Terrible Tragedy of Life Stranger Than Fiction

Editor's Note—The love tragedy here unfolded exclusively by the RECORD-AMERICAN is far more remarkable than fiction. Yet every detail has been fully investigated. All the principals have been personally interviewed. Even the deranged and suffering' billionaire's son himself was personally visited and observed.

By Soffie Sobh

A mother's tall, blond handsome son tosses tonight on a madman's cot in the Consumption Hill Hospital in Blackinton.

A young girl's tender heart is bleeding. Three other people endure heart rending torture every time the clock ticks.

All because a domineering father and a proud, jealous mother meddled in a love affair!

They interfered with the smooth course of a pure love affair and now they have their reward.

Listen to the tragic story which grips your heart strings and which has ruined the lives of five people. The story wends its remarkable way from the mud flats of South Boston, to France, to England, across the trackless deep, and back again to the mud flats. And the last page of this pitiful tragedy is written in Blackinton, cot number 357, Ward J, Consumption Hill Hospital.

One theme runs through the sad story, one dominant theme—meddling parents, meddling parents.

The dreamlike romance of Corinne Stacey and Cornelius Maey—a beautifully, touching and soulfully expressive tale—began at the Match High School in Blackinton. For there it was that Corinne met the tall handsome youth and their story-like romance began. From the very beginning, they studied their lessons together, played together, and together they divided their treasures. They had no secrets from each other. Cornelius called for the sweet, round-faced Corinne every morning. He helped her over the rough country roads, affectionately carrying her over intervening puddles, her head laid trustfully upon his stalwart breast, her golden locks intertwined with his raven-black hair. Corinne relied soully upon Cornelius's manly arm.

A SCHOOLDAY ROMANCE

After school, Cornelius waited disconsolate until the lady of his heart appeared, then a cheering smile lit up his boyish face, his heart beat faster, and with joyous steps he escorted her home, dallying on the way to pick the sweet flowers of their love. So pure, so innocent.

But at last a fateful day came, Cornelius had to make a trip to Central Africa to visit his parents. And oh, how Corinne missed him! How her heart longed for his return. And with what loving embraces and earnest protestations of her love did she greet him upon his safe return. And then it dawned upon them, that which for long the smiling neighbors have been aware of.

One day dull realization came to both of them.

They loved. They wanted each other.

They wanted each other for better, for worse, for more, for less, they desired nothing more wonderful than to trip gaily down the sunny paths of life, hand in hand, gladly sharing all their good fortunes together. Such was their love.

One day Cornelius's conscience forced him to make a confession, wrung from the depths of his heart—a statement which might forever ruin his happiness.

My father is rich. I am the heir to eighty-nine billion dollars. My father made his money in the cat industry. He kept a cat ranch in Sweden. He feeds the

Letters to the Editor

Malice Towards All and Justice Towards None

To the Editor of the RECORD-AMERICAN, Dear Sir:—

It is a self evident fact that two and two make four; also that three and three make six. Therefore it is impossible for the Library to carry on an unjust administration of secluded nooks without the co-operation of the students' bodies. That carelessness and irresponsibility on the part of the librarians amount to an inconsiderable atom in postal notices centennially ($1.23%) is unimportant in comparison with the inconvenience caused to students and the irritation of an obviously inefficient system.

A nook placed on reserve is lost to the world and to the members of the library force, who stand singly and collectively for "malice towards all and justice towards none."

All students must be acquainted with some of the charming local talent and with the administrative rule, "No absences from recitation are allowed before and after Yom Kippur." That this regulation may be effectively carried out it has been considered necessary to change the present student body for that of Columbia University, with George Rudnick for dean.

Hints to the Motorist

A good way to prevent deterioration of inner tubes during dry weather is to fill them with dilute alcohol once a week. After a few minutes immersion they should become thoroughly pickled and a pleasing sensation of intoxication will result. This will keep the tubes in good condition.

Spark plugs should never be forced into position by severe wrench action. They should be seated firmly and gently in the gasket with but little more force than can be applied with the fingers.

In most modern battery ignition systems a so-called latch is attached to the rotor. When the latch becomes worn to any extent the system may fail. It is suggested that owners carry along a spare latch.

In fitting a spark plug in a cold cylinder be very careful not to screw it too tight. The principle cause of breakage is due to expansion when the engine gets hot, thereby exerting a crushing effect on the plug and resulting in a cracked insulator.

More interesting advice tomorrow. Look this column over and get wise.

One was from his mother.

One was from his father.

Both letters agreed. Cornelius must break the engagement. His education must not suffer the damage which would inevitably tend to follow such an engagement. He must give up the girl or the cat farm.

Cornelius replied, "I love Corinne. Without Corinne I might as well die. With her I surely will. I must choose between my legacy, the enticing cat farm, and Corinne. Father, I choose Corinne."

One day came. One letter came. Cornelius had lost his legacy and his

CODDING WINS 440-YD. DASH IN LEHMAN MEET

Richmond and McWhorter Secure First and Second Cups in Annual Event

In the final event of the Lehman Meet last Monday afternoon, Coddling '21 won first place in the 440-yard dash after an exceedingly fast and closely contested race in which Richmond '22, already winner of the meet, tied with Crofts '21 for second honors. Stowers '23 and Mendes '22 finished fourth and fifth respectively.

As a result of Monday's race, Richmond added 5 1-2 points to his total, winning the meet with a score of 28 points.

McWhorter '22 won the cup for second place in the meet with a total of 25 points, while Crofts finished third, with 22 1-2 and Mendes, fourth, with 19 1-2. The final point score of the other contestants taking part in the meet and the summary of Monday's events follows: Coddling '21 18 1-2; Phillips '22, 18; Wishard '23, 16; Conn '21, 15; Barnes '23, 15; Dewey '23, 12; Faser '23, 8; Elliman '22, 6; Hiss '23, 6; Beal '23, 4; Brown '21, 4; Adams '22, 3; Stowers '23, 2; Mason '24, 1.

At the very start of the quarter mile, Coddling broke away from the field and maintained a lead with Richmond in second place for the greater part of the distance. On the last lap, the latter closed in only to drop into second place in the final spurt while Crofts with a fine burst of speed overtook him and crossed the line at practically the same instant. The finish was so close that the judges were obliged to divide the points for second and third places between them. The time was 55 1-5 seconds.

Competition to Start

The second editorial competition for the class of 1924 will start next Thursday afternoon and will continue until May 25. A cut to six or eight men will be made on April 28. All those interested will meet the Managing Editor in the editorial offices tomorrow evening (Tuesday) at 7.30 o'clock, when the details will be explained. The competition system has been entirely reorganized with three objects in view: to lay decided emphasis on assigned work rather than news-gathering; to eliminate as far as possible the personal equation in marking; and to make the competition work of a more interesting character. The system is thoroughly explained on the Record bulletin board in Jesup Hall.

LOUIS F. POST WILL SPEAK BEFORE FORUM

Former Assistant Labor Secretary to Discuss Present Policy on Immigration

IS WELL-KNOWN LECTURER

Was Very Prominent in Campaign for Deportation of "Reds" While in Office

Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor since 1913, will address a meeting of the Forum tomorrow evening at 8.00 o'clock in Jesup Hall, taking as his subject, "The Present Immigration Policy and its Administration." Mr. Post has acquired a nation wide reputation as an author and lecturer and is one of the leading exponents of the single tax movement.

Since the indisposition of Secretary of Labor Wilson in 1918, Mr. Post has carried on the functions of that office in a highly commendable manner, although the duties have been exceedingly difficult and strenuous. He has recently come into prominence because of his activity in deporting the notorious Reds from this country.

Mr. Post was born in New Jersey, where he received a common school education, and at an early age took up the printers' trade. Turning to law, he achieved an unusual success, and was admitted to the New York Bar when only 21 years of age. He became so interested and prominent in

PROF. RICE GIVES LECTURE ON CHINA

Explains Social and Political Problems of That Country in Lecture Course

With the purpose of visualizing the conditions in a Chinese city of today, and the relations of these conditions to the social and political problems of China, Assistant Professor J. P. Rice read a paper on "An Inland China Treaty Port" in the ninth number of the Tuesday Lecture Course last Tuesday afternoon in the Thompson Physical Laboratory.

"Chungsha, an ancient Chinese city, but only recently opened as a treaty port, now the home of the College of Yale-in-China, is a characteristic city of the Orient," Professor Rice began. "As the curious traveller is drawn swiftly through the teeming traffic of the rough, cavernous, streets amid the motley throng of natives, he can desire no more interesting place for observing human nature. The filthy, gaudy restaurants, the women working in the streets, the ragged children, and the gray, malicious looking soldiers, with fixed bayonets, reveal to him the external life of a Chinese city as he is hurried on to his destination, the College of Yale-in-China. This institution has many of the characteristics of our own colleges.

"It is through an increase of strikes and boycotts" Professor Rice concluded, "that China is being brought to a realization of the necessity of a change in governmental system. Foreign influence, growth of self-confidence, and the spread of student propaganda are giving hopeful signs for the future."

Grant Council Petition

Following a recommendation of the Student Council, the Faculty has made an important change in the rules governing eligibility for extra curriculum activities. The text of the new rule follows:

"Any student, who at the time of the formal warnings is found to be free from warnings in more than half of his courses of current college work, shall be declared eligible regardless of his standing at the beginning of the semester. If, however, he loses his eligibility at the end of the semester because of his scholarship standing, he shall not again become eligible at the time of the formal warnings."

LETZ QUARTET OFFERS ENTERTAINING NUMBER

Presentation of Works of Four Composers Given by Instrumentalists

REPUTED BEST IN AMERICA

Last Number of Thompson Course Well Received by Largest Audience of Year

Presenting a varied and well-balanced program, comprising the works of four noted composers, the Letz Quartet appeared in the last number of the Thompson Course last Tuesday night in Grace Hall. Mr. Letz and his associates, Sador Barnati, Edward Kreiner, and Lajos Shuk, did not disappoint those music lovers who were prepared to hear a presentation of unusual quality and justified their reputation of being one of the finest instrumental quartets in America.

Mr. Letz, as first violin, led the quartet with great vigor. The ensemble playing of the musicians was in perfect concert, the nuances were brought out with unusual skill, and the interpretation was varied and forceful. Perhaps the most outstanding evidence of skill shown by the quartet was the well-balanced rhythm with which all selections were rendered, especially noticeable in the playing of the second movement of Tschuikowsky's Quartet in F Major. Each musician was a master of his instrument, but the individuals were so properly subordinated that the quartet presented a unified whole.

The complete program was as follows:

1. Quartet in C minor, op. 18 Beethoven Allegro ma non tanto

DR. TSU ADDRESSES MEETING OF W. C. A.

Believes That Christianity Is Steady Force in China at Present Time

Differing from his position of the morning, and turning his attention entirely to China, Dr. Y. Y. Tsu in his speech before the W. C. A. last night declared that Christianity is the one stabilizing element in the period of transition through which China is now passing.

Dr. Tsu discussed the political situation in China, declaring that "while the form and organization may change, the idea and ideals of a republic are here to stay." Educational conditions he declared to be more hopeful than political conditions, and cited the new culture movement, which has for its objects the reform of the language and the inauguration of a new philosophy, that of art as the centre of civilization. Social customs, the speaker declared, are also in a transition period, resulting from the inevitable shock produced when China came in contact with the western world.

In closing Dr. Tsu cited the Y. M. C. A. as one of the most important agencies in the Christianization of China, characterizing it as the stepping stone to the church. He gave the three main purposes it serves: as an educational centre, as a source of inspiration to the young men of China, and as their source of interest in Christianity.

COLGATE DEFEATS PURPLE DEBATERS

Ownership and Operation of Coal Mines by Federal Government Discussed

BOTH SIDES ADVOCATE SYSTEMS FOR CONTROL

Winners Given Unanimous Verdict at Troy and Majority Vote at Williamstown

Williams suffered a double defeat at the hands of the experienced Colgate debating teams in the first debate between the two colleges held last Friday evening in Williamstown and Troy. The subject for the contest was as follows: "Resolved, That the federal government should own and operate the coal mines of the United States, constitutionality waived."

The Debate at Williamstown

Colgate was declared a winner over Williams in the debate in Grace Hall by a two to one decision of the judges, Professor Arthur Adams of Trinity College, Professor Z. W. Coombs of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and Professor Edward E. Hale of Union College, in favor of the invading team, which upheld the negative side of the question. President Harry A. Garfield presided. The personnels of the two teams were as follows: Colgate—Leroy Brunstrom '22, Glen G. Vought '21, and Arthur W. Riley '21; Williams—Charles L. Taylor '21, Karl H. Helfrich '24, and Webster Atwell '21, with John C. Bennett '24 as alternate.

According to the opinion of the majority of the judges, the affirmative team won on account of superior effectiveness in speaking, success in showing unsatisfactory conditions and the need of centralized control, the presentation of a possibly effective method of operation, the failure of the negative to present an effective remedy

WILLIAMS WILL ENTER MEN IN ALBANY MEET

To Oppose U. of Rochester and R. P. I. in Medley Relay Race Tonight

In the last indoor meet of the year Williams will oppose R. P. I. and the University of Rochester in a medley relay race at 8.00 o'clock this evening in the State Armory, Albany, N. Y., in connection with the indoor championships of the Adirondack Association of the Amateur Athletic Union of America. In addition to the relay race, Williams will enter several men in the open events.

The relay race is run with four-man teams, the first man running 220 yards, the second 440 yards, the third 880 yards, and the last one mile. Although the team and the order in which they will run has not been definitely decided as yet, the following men have been entered for the relay, and will probably run in the order named: Coddling, Mendes, Richmond, and Crofts, with Stowers as alternate.

In addition to the relay event, Conn and Faser will be entered in the 1000 yard run, and Mendes in the 300 yard dash, while in case Coddling is replaced by Stowers in the relay race, he will also be entered in the 300 yard run. Phillips and Barnes will run the 70 yard low hurdles, and Phillips will probably enter the 60 yard dash also.

The meet will be held under the auspices of the Tenth Infantry Athletic Association. A gold medal, emblematic of the Adirondack Association Indoor Championship, will be given to the winner of each championship event, a silver medal to the second in each event, and a bronze medal to the third. A silver cup will be given to the team of any athletic club or of any college scoring the highest number of points.

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Proper Solution of the Chapel Problem.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

At a meeting of the Board last Thursday afternoon in 17 Jesup Hall George Olmsted Jr., 1924, of Evanston, Ill., and Edward Perkins Selden, Jr., 1924, of Erie, Pa., were elected to the editorial staff.

Volume XXXV.

With this issue of THE RECORD the 1922 Board plants its baby foot forward without sustaining hands for the first time and essays the difficult task of guiding its uncertain footsteps alone and unaided. In this venture we wish first to acknowledge our indebtedness to the retiring 1921 Board, whose paternal care has heretofore been our guiding inspiration, and whose concern and fatherly interest have been well reflected in the pages of THE RECORD during the past year.

The problem of publishing a college newspaper is a peculiarly difficult one because of the diverse elements that make up the subscription list—elements each of which expect and deserve proper representation. Recognizing this important fact, THE RECORD will take as its general aim during the coming year the fair, unbiased setting forth of the sentiments and viewpoints of the student body, the faculty and the alumni of Williams, retaining at the same time a thoroughly independent attitude, arrived at through logical consideration and impartial weighing of all the evidence obtainable.

Naturally enough, the student viewpoint will monopolize the larger amount of space and doubtless receive the better presentation, for the pulse of the patient is far more accessible in this case to even the amateur diagnostician, while the critical condition is more generally localized and brought to a head. Nevertheless, it is our hope and aim to present faithfully the cases of faculty and alumni, free of prejudice, and offer better attention and service than simply "absent treatment" would afford.
For that purpose the cooperation of the bodies concerned is necessary, and their suggestions and assistance are cordially invited.

With regard to the more particular features of the editorial policy, "Our Platform for Williams" as printed above gives the salient features that seem to be of chief importance at the present moment.

For a number of years Williams has not received the publicity in the metropolitan dailies that has been accorded similar institutions, such as Amherst. In spite of encouraging signs such as the complete reorganization of the Press Club last fall and the activities amongst sub-freshmen of the newly-created Preparatory Schools Committee, there is much ground yet to be covered. With the cooperation of students and alumni this may be accomplished.

Another important need of the College is for the consummation of President Garfield's project of a Williams Triangle, which might take its place beside the Harvard Stadium and the Yale Bowl.
Such a project would call for a glass-roofed structure which would cover the major portion of the Old Campus, with sufficient room to permit the laying out of a full-size baseball diamond, indoor basketball and tennis courts, a running track, and several squash courts. The growth of the "Athletics for All" idea brings into particular prominence the need for a building of this nature to replace or supplement the present gymnasium, which is inadequate during the winter months for even the needs of the varsity basketball squad.

The chapel problem is no new question, but its constant agitation amongst student ranks during the last two years has brought to it an unexpected prominence which necessitates careful consideration.
Its proper solution in such a way as to ensure the greatest value and usefulness is a matter of vital concern to an institution with such traditions as Williams possesses. Frank expression of the student viewpoint with regard to chapel has already been given in these columns, and a further attempt will be made to represent as well the attitude of faculty and alumni, the end in view being not further agitation
but a proper solution.

The final plank in the above platform is the most important, for upon it depends the equitable solution of all problems vitaly concerning Williams College. The undergraduates are far too prone to condemn the faculty without a hearing, to regard the alumni as disinterested and unfair spectators. The faculty, on the other hand, fail often to sympathize with student movements and look askance at alumni intervention, while for graduates, young and old, the entire College is too frequently "not like it used to be." A "League for Appreciation" is indeed in order! Closer cooperation may take many forms, such as further development of the College Senate, more enthusiastic and intimate alumni reunions in Williamstown, broad-minded decisions on the part of the faculty like the recent, appreciated eligibility ruling, and many other activities, but in whatever form it may occur that cooperation will be the chief ideal of THE RECORD as the best means of "boosting Williams."

Colgate Defeats Purple Debators

for existing and admitted questions, and the greater familiarity of the affirmative with the question.

Both sides admitted that the present system has many evils and that the coal industry is vital, but the negative refused to admit that government control would be more efficient. The question that would solve the debate, the affirmative claimed was, "Had government regulation of the coal mines proved effective?"

Riley, the last speaker for the affirmative, declared that government regulation was a failure and offered his plan for control. "A plan by which," he said, "a government board of mining engineers over which in authority is a member of the cabinet, shall conduct the operation of the mines. There shall be an exchange of government for operators' bonds."

In closing the argument for the negative, Atwell claimed that the plan of the affirmative would not work and outlined the scheme of the negative: "There shall be two commissions, one for anthracite and one for bituminous mines, composed of three mine workers chosen by and from their own groups and three operators, with the Secretary of the Interior as chairman of both. This shall be an advisory committee and shall receive reports from the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Geological Survey, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor."

Colgate was declared the winner over the Williams affirmative team at Troy, N. Y., by a unanimous decision of the judges, Hon. Ledyard P. Hale of Albany, N. Y., Hon. Calvin S. McChesney and
Hon. Charles S. Aldrich of Troy, N. Y., Mr. Ernest Robinson, Principal of the Troy High School, presided over the debate, which was held in the high school auditorium. The personnel of the two teams in the order of speaking was as follows: Williams—Richard Balch, '21, Howard Conn '21, and Cameron Hall '21 with George R. Craig '24 as alternate; Colgate—Raymond C. Burns '21, Marcus
S. Smith '22, and Wallace M. Wakefield
'21, with James E. Dempsey '21 as alternate.

Hon. Ledyard P. Hale when called on by the presiding officer stated that his de-

eision was for the negative because of the difficulty for a lawyer of distinguishing in his mind between the merits of the question, government ownership, and the debate. He also declared that it was hard to free himself from ingrained prejudices on the subject and that the affirmative, having the burden of proof, had failed to convince him. He wished it understood, however, that the three to nothing decision did not in his mind represent the relative merits of the two teams; in fact it rather surprised him.

The Williams team argued that the coal mines should be owned and operated by the government, because coal is a basic commodity should not be exploited for private gain, because a government monopoly has certain inherent advantages, because it is necessary to stop the wastage of coal and to permit the realization of its full value, and also because it would stabilize the industry and eliminate profiteering. The Negative admitted the basic nature of coal and most of the evils urged against the present system. But, though offering no solution, other than indefinite government regulation, they declared government ownership was wrong in principle, would result in blunders like those of the Aircraft Board, and would destroy initiative in production. They also asked three questions, how the government would take over the mines, how it would run them, and how it would improve conditions—questions answered in the course of the main speeches and rebuttal by the Williams debaters.

The art of musical criticism is apparently largely the art of finding the right adjectives to apply to a performance. Wednesday's concert by the Combined Musical Clubs in the Drury Auditorium, North Adams, is characterized, both in its strength and weakness, by such words as bright, strong, vigorous, youthful, virile, lusty, and, to complete the list, the modern word which expresses them all when raised to the nth power—"jazzy." Neither in the selection of numbers nor in their rendering was there any hint of the problems of the universe, the decrees of fate, nor the tragedy of unrequited love. It was the music of men who play games and are too healthy to worry overmuch about the ultimate.

The program, which included items by three separate ensembles, was varied enough in outward form, but it was infused with the same spirit of optimism. It was "popular" music in every sense of the word, and eminently the kind expected from college glee clubs. The enthusiastic reception of all the numbers proved that the audience liked both the student and his means of expression.

The material, in both the vocal and instrumental organizations, is particularly good this year. The Glee Club, in addition to the Williams songs, gave a rollicking hunting-chorus followed by a Southern Lullaby, and in the second half of the program sang a version of the time-honored "Down among the Dead Men" with as much royalist gusto as any of King Charles's cavaliers. The round "Scotland's Burning" tickled the audience through its humorous ending. Perhaps Osgood's "In Picardie" was the most effective of the part songs, but since all Christus Resurrexit by Ravenello has been chosen as the organ prelude for the 10.30 service. A traditional anthem, Rejoice the Lord is Risen, will be rendered by the choir as an anthem. The postlude will be the Hosannah of Dubois. At the vespers service, the regular College choir will be augmented by a female choir of ten voices. Thame's Andante Religioso will be rendered by Mr. Salter as a prelude. The Strife is Over, a composition by Mr. Salter, will be sung as an anthem by the regular choir. An alto solo by Mrs. George E. Howes, the Hosannah of Gurnier, will be sung with the assistance of a chorus of mixed voices, accompanied by the College Orchestra and the organ. An ascription, Holy, Holy, Holy by Gounod will be rendered, with tenor and soprano solos by Richmond '22 and Mrs. Rosa Bogardus. As a postlude, Mr. Salter will play the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah."

DR. DUTTON DISCUSSES LITERARY TENDENCIES

Tenth Number of Lecture Course Devoted to Criticism of Recent Fiction

PRAISES WALPOLE HIGHLY

Describes Facts of Modern Life As Reflected in Present Day Stories

Before an extraordinarily large audience Assistant Professor Dutton read a paper on "Some New Fiction" as the tenth number of the Tuesday Lecture Course in the Thompson Physical Laboratory. Dr. Dutton discussed six new novels: Main Street, by Sinclair Lewis, Prologue, by Phyllis Duganne, Moon Calf, by Floyd Dell, In Chancery, by John Galsworthy, The Undying Fire, by H. G. Wells, and The Captives, by Hugh Walpole.

Dr. Dutton announced at the beginning of the lecture that he would use the novels he had chosen only "as springboards from which to leap into the sea of discussion of the modern literary tendencies." He devoted little time to the actual criticism of the novels in question, with the exception of Prologue, which he declared to have little value as a work of art, and The Captives, which he praised highly. "Walpole," he said, "gains a unique place among novelists by his notion that the essential struggle is against inner limitations and weaknesses, and the theory that life is a battle for the control of self, which is the ideal."

Dr. Dutton summed up his discussion in the following manner: "A sense of the increasing division and strife in our modern world, a tendency on the part of most to trace this condition to some essential conflict between man and the institutions and conventions he has built up, a search for a remedy in some principle of social control to be imposed by the few upon the many, and a conviction on the part of some that the real strife is within the individual, and that the solution lies in the attainment of self-control, self-mastery, inspired by the vision of God's high purpose running through even our most sordid tasks,—these seem to me to be the important facts of our modern life as reflected in that fiction that, aside from the delicate evasions of the esthetes, and the falsehoods of our commercialized panders, has sought in one fashion or another "to bear all naked truths and to envisage circumstance, all calm."

TO PRESENT "MUCH-ADO ABOUT NOTHING"

Cap and Bells Will Give Spring Play—Trials Will be on April 15

Cap and Bells has chosen Shakespeare's "Much A-do About Nothing" for the spring play which will be given as a conclusion of its season. Mr. Albert Lang, who will again coach the cast, will arrive in Williamstown on April 14 to take charge of the rehearsals.

Two performances of the play will be given in Williamstown, the first on Decoration Day and the second on the last night of the June houseparty. In producing "Much A-do About Nothing" Cap and Bells is reverting to the custom of presenting a spring play, which was discontinued during the War. Trials for places in the cast will begin on April 15 and are open to all undergraduates.

W. C. A. WILL CONDUCT RELIGIOUS CAMPAIGN

Sherwood Eddy Will Lecture and Arrange Conferences on April 22-24

IS WELL KNOWN SPEAKER

Formerly Secretary for Asia for International Committee of Y. M. C. A.

Employing general plans which have proved successful in other institutions, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, a world figure in the development of Christian leadership among students, will conduct the largest religious campaign of the year from April 22 to 24 under the auspices of the W. C. A.

Shortly after graduating from Yale in 1891, Mr. Eddy began his work among the students of the Indian Empire and after fifteen years was called to be Secretary for Asia for the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Associations. His nine years of service in this capacity among the students and officials of India, China, Japan, the Near East and Russia have been characterized by brilliance, energy, judgment, and devotion. After several years of success in evangelical work in Asia, Mr. Eddy engaged in active service in the British Army in France, and during the closing year on the American, British, and French fronts. Since the armistice his regular work has taken him across Asia, including Palestine, Syria, Mesopotamia and Turkey, through Egypt, Central Europe, and around the world.

Mr. Eddy brings a message concerning the present industrial crisis in Europe, a possible solution for America's industrial problem, and the basis of a new social order. His more than twenty years of experience among the students and leading men of Asia and his work among followers of all of the world's great faiths and religions, have broadened his vision and sympathy for men. Although for many years in the Orient, he is a modern man in every sense of the word; and, although his interests cover many phases of life, it is not at the cost of superficiality, for in his life and message he strikes clearly and with no uncertain sound a deep spiritual note.

The definite plan which Mr. Eddy will follow in his lectures and conferences while here has not been arranged, but his aim is to make a direct and far-reaching appeal to the College undergraduates. The program will be announced at a later date, when personal conferences may be arranged.

Editorial Comment Upon Article by Prof. Cleland

Extensive editorial comment has been called forth in metropolitan newspapers on an article written by Professor H. F. Cleland entitled "A Suggestion for making our Scientific Publications more useful and our Post-Offices a center of Information," which appeared in the issue of Science, for February 25.

In the article he suggests that the Post-Offices everywhere be made sources of information in regard to its own town and surrounding region. He proposes that they should have bulletin boards telling what there is of interest to visit near by and why it should be seen, and that they should have on sale all the relevant maps and monographs that have been prepared by the various governmental agencies.

LOUIS F. POST GIVES TALK BEFORE FORUM

Former Assistant Secretary of Labor Tells of U. S. Policy on Immigration

DISLIKES PRESENT SYSTEM

Believes that Officials Should Have Absolute Power of Discretion

Louis F. Post, former Assistant of the Department of Labor under the Wilson Administration and prominent author and lecturer, addressed the meeting of the Forum last Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall on "The Present Immigration Policy and its Administration." Mr. Post is strongly in favor of increasing the powers of the Secretary of Labor on matters of immigration and is opposed to the "closed door" policy of admission.

During recent years, the speaker has had charge of the deportation of undesirable aliens, a matter which was purely one of law and in which he had no discretion. According to the speaker, "400 of the 500 aliens who were sent out of the country were innocent of any plot to overthrow the government of the United States, but had joined the Communist Party as a labor union for educational purposes." All members of that party were guilty according to the law, and although Mr. Post opposed it, he was forced to deport them.

Mr. Post briefly outlined the history of the immigration policy of the United States which began in 1789 when Congress gave the President power to deport an undesirable alien at his discretion. This law was passed because of the revolution in France and is similar to the recent measure which was enacted because of the revolt in Russia. With the exception of this law and the legislation passed, during the "No-Nothing" period, against the

BASEBALL PRACTICE ADVANCING RAPIDLY

Intensive Training to Pick Team for Southern Trip Will Begin Shortly

Regular practice for the varsity baseball squad has been held every day this week on Weston Field. Under the supervision of Coach Coombs the players are getting into shape, so that it appears that a strong team can be picked soon for intensive training in preparation for the southern trip.

Batting and fielding practice is held each day, after which a five-inning game is played. Special care is being given to the pitching staff. No definite information regarding the make-up of the team will be given out until after the second cut in the squad, which will take place at the end of this week.

Richmond '23 at first base, O'Brien '24 at shortstop, and Ward '23 at third base are showing ability, while Boynton '21, who reported to the squad this week, is doing well in the outfield. Rauter '23, who lately became eligible, will prove another valuable addition to the outfield. Holmes '23, Gregory, and Pease '24 are the most promising pitchers. Daily practice will continue until the spring recess.

PURPLE SECOND IN TRACK MEET

Relay Team Defeats Rensselaer and Rochester University in Medley Race

COAN, P. PHILLIPS AND OLMSTED WIN FIRSTS

Kellogg and Mendes Also Place—Colonial A. A. of Troy Is Victor

Williams took second place in the track meet held in the State Armory at Albany last Monday evening, placing at least one man in every event entered, and winning first place in three. In the medley relay, the Williams team defeated the University of Rochester and R. P. I.

The Colonial Athletic Club of Troy, N. Y., took first place in the meet with a total score of 28 points, whereas Williams scored 21, and Union was a close third with 19. The feature of the evening, as far as Williams was concerned, was the triangular medley relay, in which Stowers, Coddling, Richmond, and Crofts, running the quarter mile, 220 yard dash, half mile, and mile respectively, won a keenly contested race from the teams representing the University of Rochester and R. P. I. Stowers ran first for Williams in the last relay of the season. He gave Coddling a substantial lead at the end of his quarter mile, but Coddling lost at the exchange of the baton, and was unable to recover the loss in 220 yards. Richmond started his half mile in third place, but took the lead on the last lap, passing Winslow of Rochester and Milsbaugh of R. P. I. This gave Crofts a good lead but he was overtaken by Gale of Rochester who ran well during the first three-quarters of a mile, and was frequently in the lead. On the final lap, however, Crofts passed him and won by 20 yards. Coan easily won the 1000-yard race in the good time of two minutes and 25 seconds, and Kellogg took third place. Phillips won the final heat of the 70-yard low hurdles, just nosing out Hughes of Union at the finish. Mendes placed second in the 300-yard dash, and Olmsted '23 won the 60-yard dash.

Gold, silver, and bronze medals were given for first, second, and third places in each event, and, by winning the relay, Williams was awarded a silver plaque.

VARSITY CLUB TO BE FORMED FOR 'W' MEN

Committee Appointed to Draw Up Constitution and By-laws at Meeting

Acting on the suggestion made in a recent communication to THE RECORD, it was definitely decided to organize a Williams Varsity Club at a meeting of "W" men held last night in Jesup Hall. A committee consisting of Boynton and Kellogg '21, and the three major captains, Crofts and Finn '21, and Fargo '22, was appointed to draw up a constitution and set of by-laws for the Club, to be submitted at the next regular meeting, which is scheduled for April 21.

The object for which the Club was formed was stated by the originators of the idea, Boynton, Coddling, Joslyn, and Kellogg '21, in the following manner: "In that we feel that 'W' men have a keener interest in, and a more intimate knowledge of athletics, we believe that they should organize for advancement and cooperation in the athletics of the College. The expediency of such an organization is proved by the thriving Varsity Clubs at Columbia, Harvard, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton, and Yale among the larger universities, and Colgate, Lafayette, and R. P. I. among the smaller institutions."

Membership in the Club is at present limited to men who have won "W's" and

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Proper Solution of the Chapel Problem.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

The following 16 members of the Freshman Class have entered the second competition for THE RECORD and are authorized to collect news: Allen, Ayer, Chase, Carr, Harding, Humphrey, Hunter, Kimball, Lum, MacDonald, McLean, Olcott, Pressprich, Redfield, Vorys, and Wetherbee.

Economy, Efficiency and Effort

Rarely, if ever, do the editorial columns of THE RECORD pervert their space, devoted to high ideals and Utopian dreams, to the base, material considerations of business policies, but due to the unusual conditions of the past year it seems advisable at this time to outline the immediate aims for the present year.

The past year has been a period of unsettled conditions in the business markets and of strife in the printing trades. Under these conditions it has been impossible for the business management to formulate a definite program or policy. During this time, however, we have been steadily effecting changes in our methods and equipment, investing money in labor-saving machines, inaugurating new and more efficient methods of distribution, with the result that by next fall the regular distribution of THE RECORD will be assured.

Economy in buying, elimination of waste, and efficiency in management are the cardinal planks in our platform. We are passing the benefit of this saving on to our subscribers by a reduction in the subscription price. This by no means infers a lowering in the mechanical quality of the paper by the substitution of poor printing in an attempt to make up the difference. The application of the principles of business efficiency and of sound reasoning are the factors which will effect this saving to you, our subscribers.

The fact that we have "put our own house in order" in the matter of distribution will enable the management to turn its efforts into other channels, to make possible the addition of features which, heretofore, have been unknown in the college newspaper field.

This is THE RECORD's pledge—to the pledge of the three E's—to our subscribers and to those whom we hope to have with us as readers next year: Economy, Efficiency, and Effort.

Tersichore in Moderation

Although the editorial criticized in the communication of an adjoining column appeared under the former RECORD

regime, we welcome the opportunity furnished for a further discussion and clarification of the question. We cannot agree with the writer, who signs himself "One of the Majority," that the larger proportion of the student body dissented strongly from the editorial in question at the time that it appeared. On the contrary, a wave of indignation swept over the campus on that particular day, and condemnation of the Faculty ruling virtually abolishing all dances other than at two periods a year was very widespread and vehement, the editorial coming forth on the crest of this wave.

Be that as it may, more facts have since been vouchsafed by the Faculty, and soberer judgments have prevailed amongst the student body, although considerable feeling still exists over the apparent injustice of the ruling due to its stringency. A brief statement of the chief basis upon which the Faculty based their decision may therefore be of value.

Several years before the present college generation entered Williams an agreement was made whereby the student body consented to only two houseparties a year in return for 72 hours of vacation after the midyear examinations. As far as can be ascertained no ruling was made regarding one-night dances. College generations are rarely told what their predecessors have done, however, and it is consequently unfortunate that some mention of the above agreement was not made by the Committee on Administration, as much unjust criticism of the Faculty would have been forestalled.

At the present time student opinion recognizes the fact that dances lasting two nights do interfere with class-room work, the primary business of the College, and must be regulated, but it is to be questioned whether nearly complete extinction is the best and only remedy to be applied. Yet this is the practical effect of the decision of the Committee on Administration, except under a very exceptional and providential juxtaposition of circumstances—namely, the chance arrival in Williamstown on a free afternoon of a number of girls without invitation, preferably chaperoned by their mothers at the Inn, and sufficient in number to permit of an informal dance at a single house, it being assumed that they were all acquainted with some members of that particular house in order to be invited.

THE RECORD believes that this is a fair statement of the position of the Committee on Administration as given by one high in authority. According to this position, if more than three or four young ladies should be invited from out of town, for no matter how short a period, and permission for a dance be requested, the function so arranged would constitute a houseparty in the Faculty sense of the word, and would therefore be prohibited, as the presence of fair visitors might entail other obligations on the student's time.

It is evident even on casual observation that the remarkable intervention of Providence referred to above which would make possible a one-night dance is at least problematical in any given college year. THE RECORD seriously questions the advisability of thus shutting down so completely upon individual dances. Amusements in Williamstown are limited enough at best, and it would seem preferable to permit dancing in moderation here where the students are under some regulations rather than to drive them out of town over the week-ends or to the doubtful and scarcely as beneficial social enjoyments of adjacent mill-towns.

Would it not be a better solution from all viewpoints to permit dances closing at 12 p. m. on Saturday nights and nights before holidays, times when no classes follow on the succeeding day? The Faculty have shown that they are not opposed to modern dancing in itself by holding Faculty dances once a month, inviting several members of the Senior Class, and by instituting Faculty dancing classes on certain week-day nights. The difficulty seems solely over the extra time which student dances may involve. THE RECORD thoroughly believes that the social benefits of a one-night dance on an occasional Saturday night would more than outweigh the slight inconvenience to classroom preparation entailed—indeed, it might even prevent such loss by cutting down the number of three and four-day week-end expeditions—whereas the very limitations to a single night dance through financial and travel difficulties would prevent a tendency to excess.

PRINTING FABLES

Once upon a time there was a man who wanted some printing done. He rushed about getting bids from all the printers within a radius of 25 miles. Upon comparing bids he found that no two were the same. The prices ranged from very low to very high. After a minute's deliberation he chose the lowest. He was comparing figures only! Lo and behold! When the finished work was received it was of the lowest quality.

Now there was another man, a wiser man, who also wanted some printing done. He rushed around the county looking at samples of the work of various printers. Upon comparing these samples he found that no two were alike. The quality ranged from very poor to very good. After a few seconds' thought he chose the best. He was comparing quality. Lo and behold! When the finished work was delivered it was of the finest quality. More surprising was the very reasonable price.

MORAL: Known quality is always better than known quantity. When you buy an automobile, you don't run around looking only at price tags. You compare the quality and performance. Price is secondary. If you wish "Printing of the Better Grade" see Sayen '22, representing the Eagle Printing and Binding Company, printers of The Record, The Gullimansian and The Alumni Review.

A MEMORIAL MINUTE ON THE DEATH OF JOHN HASKELL
HEWITT ADOPTED FEB-RUARY 25, 1921 BY THE TRUSTEES OF WIL-LIAMS COLLEGE

A beneficent personality has gone from us in the death of Professor John Haskell Hewitt. For the last eleven years of his life he had no official connection with the college, yet because of the general recognition of his high character, of the great service he had rendered, and of his undiminished interest in the current life and affairs of the institution, his living presence was a continued and much appreciated blessing to the academic community.

At the beginning of his career as a teacher Professor Hewitt followed his natural tastes in selecting the ancient languages as the particular field for his main endeavor, and faithfully and zealously he held to his choice until his active working days were over. A fervent and consistent advocate of the values of classical learning, he had the flavor of its culture in the quality of his thought and in the manner of his speech. There was also a certain fineness in his moral inclinations and judgments which one could but think was accentuated by the reaction upon him of his favorite intellectual pursuit.

By the sanity and fullness of his scholarship, his aptness in communicating knowledge, the warmth and genuineness of his fatherly interest in the young life committed to him for guidance, and the strength and beauty of his goodness, he won the respect, the confidence, the admiration, and the love of his pupils.

With wisdom and efficiency he served for a period as Acting President of the College, a post for whose responsibilities previous assumption of a similar office in Olivet College and in Lake Forest University had peculiarly fitted him. Brought in this capacity into more direct and intimate touch with the student body as a whole and with the entire college fellowship, he received more widely than ungrudging regard and affection so readily accorded him in the class room. His popularity was not subject to fluctuations. It steadily grew, and death, which hallowed and secured it, has left us a grateful and refreshing memory evermore to be cherished.

In Professor Hewitt the scholar and gentleman were signally united. He had dignity without austerity. The grace of his courtesy was aglow with sympathy—the sympathy that feels not only for but with another. The hospitality of his hand and heart disarmed all restraint in his presence. Benignity was in his bearing and look. His face was translucent with the gospel that illumined the soul within. Reminding at Yale after having received his A.B. degree, he completed there a course in theology, and although he elected the teaching profession as his vocation, like the Divine Master whom he had covenanted to serve, he became both teacher and preacher. His occasional sermons in the chapel pulpit are remembered as being lofty in thought, instinct with the spirit of reverence, and always interesting and impressive. The vital reality of his faith, as well as his earnest desire to recognize, and to do what he could to promote, the advancement of Christ's kingdom in the earth, has witness and memorial in the valued book from his hand which records and appraises the services of the sons of Williams in missionary fields.

He lived long and well. By all that his life realized in character, achievement, and usefulness, he contributed much to the better substance of the Williams that we know to-day, he made stronger those foundations upon which the greater Williams of the future must be reared.

Willard E. Hoyt,
Secretary.

PRAISE FOR THE FACULTY

To the Editor of the Williams Record:
Sir:—

After reading the personal opinions expressed in the editorial column in the March 14 issue of The Record, it seems only a matter of justice to the College body as a whole and to the Faculty, to state that those opinions were far from representative. To a great many of us, the stand of the Faculty, which, incidentally, was incorrectly stated in the editorial, "The Breach Widens," inasmuch as permission for one-night dances may still be obtained, was entirely justified, for the series of two-night parties which was in full swing was causing very serious interruption to College work. But apart from that question, it is not true of most of us that we feel a breach between ourselves and the Faculty, in fact we feel that the Faculty has done and is constantly striving to do a great deal for the students, notably in the recent alteration of the rules in regard to the effect of warnings upon eligibility. If anything would be calculated to cause a breach, it would be such an unjustifiable attack as that in the editorial under consideration. But we sincerely hope that it will not be taken as representative of student opinion by the

PLAN FOR TENNIS CLUB

To the Editor of the Williams Record:
Sir:—

It is now several months before the usual complaints about the poor condition of the college tennis courts will begin to pour into your office. However, if some practical plan is to be worked out for the improvement of the courts it might well be done in plenty of time before the season opens.

Harvard has just adopted a plan to further interest in the game in college and also to give proper attention to the courts. Briefly their plan is this: A Harvard University Tennis Club has been formed with a charter and paid membership. The club has the official recognition of the Athletic Association and to it has been given the care of the University's 56 clay courts.

It seems to me that an arrangement similar to this might very well be adopted at Williams. The club would of course, have a much smaller membership than such an organization at a large university. But to offset this disadvantage is the fact that it would have only eight courts to care for. With a membership of 50 or more, a very small tax would be sufficient to furnish enough money to keep all eight courts in good condition, when the allotment from the Athletic Tax had been added.

The two most important objections as I see them are:

1. That the Tennis Association is already allowed money by the Athletic Association to care for the courts. The answer is obvious—the courts have not been satisfactorily cared for, therefore this present plan is inadequate.

2. That there are many men desirous of playing but unable to pay, without inconvenience to themselves, an extra tax for the privilege of playing. To meet this difficulty a solution similar to that by which men working or partially working their way through college have their athletic tax reduced, could be adopted. Or men who chose could work off their taxes by aiding the competitors for the assistant managership in their work on the courts.

The captain of the tennis team would probably be president of the club or association (as at Harvard) and the tennis players not on the team should be strongly represented, and it might be a good idea to have a committee of alumni advisors, composed of graduates who take a large interest in tennis now or were prominent in the game while in college.

If desired the Tennis Club could arrange for exhibition matches in the fall or spring between well known players in the country, who are very numerous in New England and New York. This would further interest in the game and also the confidence and good will of the undergraduates in the club.

There are undoubtedly many good objections to a plan of this sort, which I have overlooked, but if it is feasible for another college or university, it can be made a success at Williams, too. And with the increased importance of tennis in the country, it is high time something more effectual than complaining be done to remedy the situation.

Yours truly,
John L. Washburn, ex-'21.

Students who are qualified to enter advanced classes may do so upon passing a satisfactory entrance examination. In such case they will, on compliance with the requirements as to attendance and examination, receive certificates of attendance, as required by the rules with reference to admission to the bar.

Concert of Year

were encored, it is evident that all were liked.

The North Adams concert was, of course, the first public performance of the Musical Clubs preparatory to their spring trip. The chief criticism of the singing is that it lacks a little delicacy. Much more expression could be given if the parts were treated not only as harmony but also as separate solos with independently varying nuances. The humming is still a trifle nasal, and in the unaccompanied songs the intonations were not always quite true.

Two solos and an encore were sung by Chapman '22. His chief fault was a tendency to slur down on long notes, but his voice is resonant and pleasing, and on the whole the songs were well delivered.

The Mandolin Club's selections were also enthusiastically encored. The familiar "I'll sing thee songs of Araby" was particularly well done, the cornet solo by Painter '21 being especially noteworthy for his smooth and mellow tone. "Manzanillo" by Rolyn was played with admirable precision, but the "Norwegian Slumber Song" was not quite so successful owing to the absence of proper phrasing. It was too much like jazz rhythm to be either very Norwegian or very soothing.

The rest of the program was given by the instrumental octet and this was frankly jazz. For the writer, music is divided into music—and jazz. That means that this type of performance has to be judged by the peculiar canons of this peculiar art. Judged by such standards the octet was extremely good of its kind, and if one's prejudices would allow that the kind is good, the verdict would be in terms of enthusiasm. Even so one could not help being impressed by the wonderful rhythmic precision, by the players' thorough confidence in each other, and by the mastery of such weird instruments. Needless to say the audience revelled in this dance music and showed by their applause how much they liked it.

to captains of minor athletic teams. Suggestions were made that athletic coaches and several members of the Faculty be included as honorary members, but this was left to the discretion of the constitutional committee. It was definitely decided to petition that a representative of the Club be made a member of the Athletic Council, inasmuch as at present there is no one on that body actually representing the members of the varsity teams.

All alumni who have won their varsity insignia automatically become members of the Club, and it was suggested that a banquet be held once a year, preferably at reunion time, at which all members of the Club will be present. Some men, prominent in athletic circles, will be invited to speak at the banquet, and the captains of the major teams at Amherst and Wesleyan will be asked to be present.

The Williams Varsity Club will assume definite form at the next meeting when all suggestions will be acted upon and the report of the constitutional committee will be read.

Louis F. Post Gives

Talk Before Forum

Irish and the Catholics, the United States had maintained a strict "Open Door" policy until 1882 when a law was enacted to prevent the immigration of the Chinese for ten years. This period was later extended and then made permanent. Other laws were passed about immigration forbidding many classes of immigrants until in the years of the War, the door of immigration was practically shut.

In speaking of the numerous restrictions placed upon immigration by the laws of the United States, Mr. Post spoke of the many intricate and complex problems connected with the administration of the policy. The speaker described the methods of the immigration authorities in examining the applicants and the interesting cases which came under that department.

Mr. Post declared that "the greatest criticism of the present system is that the Secretary of Labor does not have sufficient discretion but is restricted to the enforcement of the law. The Secretary is allowed to admit immigrants for a temporary period on his own judgment, whereas the official in charge ought to have the right of allowing immigrants to live here permanently. The deportation of aliens living in this country without a jury or court trial is an outrage on American ideals.

"One of the arguments commonly made against the open door policy is that immigrants are not easily assimilated if they speak a different language, but tend to live together in colonies. The second objection is that there is not room for them in the United States. Since the railroads have opened up new natural resources, more immigrants in proportion to the population can be taken care of today than at any time in our history.

An open discussion followed the speech.

Cape Breton Tales, by the late Harry James Smith '02, is the name of a new book published recently by the Atlantic Monthly Press. Mr. Smith, the author of The Tailor-Made Man, Mrs. Bumpstead Leigh, and The Little Teacher, was killed in an automobile accident in British Columbia in 1918, while engaged in the search for a peculiar kind of moss valuable in Red Cross work.

The book is a collection of short stories of the scenes and people of Cape Breton Island, and of the remaining customs of the old French influence, told in a way that makes the reader feel the spirit of that delightful region, where the author was accustomed to go for recreation and inspiration. A friend of Mr. Smith, Mr. Wiard, has supplemented the work with pencil sketches of the scenes of the people and places that are told about.

Book by Alumnus Appears

"American English," a very interesting book written by Gilbert M. Tucker of the Class of 1867, has recently been published by Alfred A. Knopf of New York City. The author devotes the entire volume to an examination of hundreds of words spoken of as Americanisms by many authorities. These words, Mr. Tucker shows, are really of British origin, and where the so-called American-English differs from the language spoken in Great Britain, judgment by reasonable standards gives preference to the former.

Foreign Composers Featured in 210th Recital

Five selections from German, Austrian, and Russian composers constituted the program of Mr. Salter's 210th Organ Recital last Wednesday afternoon in Grace Hall. Schubert's Ave Maria was the most appealing number, the three verses being rendered by the organ in tenor, baritone, and soprano tones. Overture: 1812, by Tchaikowsky, was also pleasing. In this selection the Marseillaise and the Russian national hymn combined to give a warlike theme throughout, although at times offset by a folk-song melody.

The complete program was as follows:
Fugue in E Flat ('St. Anne') Bach
Ave Maria Schubert
Torchlight Dance Rubinstein
Prelude to Tristan and Isolde Wagner
Overture: '1812' Tchaikowsky

SECOND 'GRAPHIC' IS PRAISED BY CRITIC

Reviewer Feels That Successor to Literary Monthly Has Had Success

PHOTOGRAPHS COMMENDED

Only Unfavorable Criticism Is That Issue Contains too Little Poetry

The second attempt of the editors of The Graphic to furnish the college with a worthy successor to The Literary Monthly has prospered, and we wonder how it happened that the latter was not discarded at an earlier date. The second issue has several more pages of subject matter than had the first; may it continue to thrive in quality as well as quantity. It shows careful preparation on the part of its editors, although the proof-reading is still subject to improvement; we look forward to the time when undergraduate publications will have "villains" rather than "professors." Nor do we believe we are expecting too much. The efforts of the Photographic Staff in this issue deserve special commendation.

In The Unregenerate Generation Mr.

Simons investigates a question which has been raised, chiefly by alumni, many times in as many years (possibly as early as 1800 at Williams)—that of the lamentable loss of the old-time culture and spirit. The old gray mare is never what she used to be. (This decline is not remarked by alumni only, the upperclassmen feel its presence in the ranks of the underclassmen, and the editorial board laments that so few men, "especially in the two lower classes," are interested in the art of photography.) The writer bewails the tyrannical exercise of the power of the group in order to make the individual conform to type, he appeals for closer contact between faculty and student. He suggests a remedy—the remedy which has been suggested every time the question has been brought up—in the Oxford system. He presents his case interestingly and vigorously, with originality of treatment if not of evidence, we feel that in this field he is more successful than in the role of romance.

In The Immutable Feminine, as the title might imply, the same writer introduces a time-honored and age-worn theme. We look up from the pages to wonder if The Graphic might not in some forthcoming issue give us a story of this type in which the soft breeze does not "bring exotic perfumes from the garden below," or in which the heroine does not "smoke very prettily." We feel that the author is capable of better work than he has given us here, we catch here and there promising glimpses of his latent ability.

Perils Connected with Foul D'Argent is a rather crude but flowing treatment of one of the more trivial aspects attendant upon the emancipation of woman. In this story Mr. McMaster betrays a tendency to over-emphasize the commonplace and the expected, his is the typical undergraduate sketch.

The Jade Vase, by Mr. Gray, is a well-written tale of revenge after the manner of Poe, unlabored, succinct, and impressive. The author shows an ability to draw pictures which are in keeping with the mood of his characters and their environment.

In one respect the current number of The Graphic fails to measure up to the standards set by its predecessor. The poetry of the issue is confined to three short lyric pieces, one of which deserves mention here. Mr. Britton's Myth from the Persian is rich in its imagery and refreshing in its rhythmic sweep, its color, and its suggestiveness. We should like to see more poetry of this grade.

There are two interesting brief accounts of travel, From Coast to Coast in a Ford and Our West Indian Possessions. Other articles in the issue concern themselves with our college architecture and with book reviews, the first of which is perhaps a bit too eulogistic.

JACOB S. EISINGER TO ADDRESS W. C. A.

Head of University Settlement Society to Describe Work in New York

Jacob S. Eisinger, Head Worker of the University Settlement Society of New York City, will address the regular meeting of the Williams Christian Association on Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock in Jesup Hall. His subject will be "Social Settlement Work in New York."

Mr. Eisinger represents the first social settlement organization to be founded in America, the "University Settlement Society," of which President Harry A. Garfield '85 is an honorary vice-president, and of which Robert G. Mead '93 and Fred E. Linder '12 are directors. The presentation of Mr. Eisinger as a speaker before the College is in accordance with the policy of the W. C. A. to arrange for speakers who are representative of the various life occupations that are open to college graduates.

It is the purpose of the University Settlement Society to offer a special type of social and civil Christian service to men. The work which is being undertaken by the organization in New York is of a nature suited to men who desire to serve in the cause of Christianity, and yet are prevented from so doing in the ministry by a lack of qualifications necessary for that highly professional branch of Christian service. It will be Mr. Eisinger's object to give all college men an idea of the nature of the work, and to point out the opportunities that this social work affords.

Signing Your Name

WHEN you sign your name on a hotel register

How do you feel?

Confident or Uncertain?
Delighted or Doubtful?
Like a welcome guest or
a homeless stranger?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. Though some of them from far away signed the register the first time with the vague "try anything once" air, they have been our friends ever since. We like to think it's because they are confident that upstairs and down they will find pleasant, restful surroundings with cheerful adept service—and—hospitality in the midst of excellent hotel conveniences. The sheer pleasure of mingling with joyous throngs is always here.

DIES JUST BEFORE HIS 100th BIRTHDAY

Rev. Edward Lord Succumbs Two Days Before He Would Have Spanned Century

RECEIVED DEGREE IN 1843

Has Written Many Letters Describing Former Conditions at Williams

11 a. m., March 28—Information has just been received here that the Rev. Edward F. Lord, '43 of Clifton Springs, N. Y., the oldest surviving graduate of Williams College, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. P. W. Merritt at Clifton Springs. Mr. Lord was to have celebrated the 100th anniversary of his birth tomorrow.

Numerous letters have been written by Mr. Lord to Williams men in recent years, in which he described conditions in college during his undergraduate days. His last message was read at the annual Alumni Banquet in New York City on February 25 by his son Chester S. Lord, formerly Managing Editor of the New York Sun.

Mr. Lord was born on a farm at Danby, N. Y., near Ithaca, and entered Williams in 1839, graduating with the class of 1843. He graduated from the Auburn Theological Seminary in 1846, and for over 35 years held pastorates in various churches. He married Miss Mary Jane Sanders of Williamstown, who was a lineal descendant of Roger Williams, founder of the Colony of Rhode Island. For many years he attended the alumni reunions in Williamstown, but of late years his health has prevented him from making the trip.

Mr. Lord's grandfather had fought in the Revolutionary War and his father in the War of 1812. He himself served as chaplain in the 110th New York Volunteer Regiment during the Civil War, and his grandson, Edward Merritt, was killed in the recent World War.

Supplement to Next 'Record'

With the regular issue of next Monday, the Record will publish an illustrated supplement giving the plans for the spring trips to be taken by the Combined Musical Clubs and the Baseball Team.

WEATHER HANDICAPS BASEBALL PRACTICE

Coach Coombs to Select Men to Make Southern Trip at End of This Week

Because of the muddy condition of Weston Field last Saturday practice for the varsity baseball squad was confined to battery work in the cage, and a five-inning game against an independent North Adams team had to be cancelled. At the end of this week the 15 men who will take the southern trip will be selected.

As the list from which this squad will be taken, Coach Coombs gave out the following names: Boynton, Finn (Capt.) '21, Burger, Cobb, Harder, Richmond, Smith, Wolfe '22, Bixby, Boynton, Holmes, Hoyt, Monjo, Ruether, H. M. Rounds, Ward '23, Gregory, L. O'Brien, and Pease '24.

Upon the return of the team from the southern trip the entire squad as it now stands will report as usual, and the Coach thinks it very probable that there will be some men, especially among the freshmen who will show up favorably at this later date. He has agreed to give personal criticisms of various members of the squad in time for the next issue of THE RECORD, but at present his only statement is that there is promising material among the first-year men.

Immediately after the vacation a convenience table will be started to offer members of the squad more of an opportunity for the discussion of various plays.

N. Y. Special Trains Will Run at Spring Vacation

Announcement has been made that there will be special trains at the beginning and the close of the Spring Recess for students leaving and returning to Williamstown by way of New York. A train will be run to New York, via Troy and Albany, leaving shortly after 4 p. m. on April 6, and arriving in New York at about 9.30 p. m. Returning, a special train will leave New York at 12.25 a. m. on April 14, arriving in Williamstown in time for chapel. A special train will also leave Albany on Wednesday, April 13, arriving in time for chapel.

MR. JAMES S. EISINGER TALKS BEFORE W. C. A.

Tells About Work of University Settlement Society Done in New York Slums

Representing the University Settlement Society of New York City, Mr. Jacob S. Eisinger, head worker of the Society, gave a brief account of the work that the organization is doing among the people of the lower East Side before a meeting of the W. C. A. held last evening in Jesup Hall. Practical cooperation, and not dogmatic teaching is the principle upon which the work of the Settlement is founded.

It is chiefly with the immigrant class, a receptive and responsive group of people, that the workers of the University Settlement have to deal. The development of this class of future Americans is accomplished through the medium of clubs, which have from eight to 12 members each, and a regular leader.

Relief work is undertaken by the settlement, though this branch is largely in the nature of a temporary assistance, since the larger and older charitable societies take care of most of the needy cases. Care is taken to avoid friction with other organizations in the field of settlement work.

Work is carried on by members of the Society who live among the people they have to deal with. Many of the men, now successful in the business world, are in responsible positions with the Settlement giving back some of the benefits that they have received through its means. Mr. Eisinger invited any undergraduate who is interested in settlement work to visit the headquarters of the University Settlement Society, 181 Eldridge Street, New York, where he will personally take him on a tour of inspection of the work that is being done.

'Cow' Board Holds Meeting

Members of the new Cow board met last Friday evening in Jesup Hall to consider material for their first issue, which will come out in April. Rules to govern the "brain and beauty contest" which will be conducted were discussed.

WILL HOLD TRIALS FOR DEBATING TEAM

Subject Chosen for Triangular Contest With Dartmouth and Brown

Candidates for the teams which are to oppose Brown and Dartmouth in the annual triangular debate to be held on April 29 met in Jesup Hall last Thursday afternoon for preliminary instructions. The subject chosen for the debate is, "Resolved: That the employers of labor should give up the principle of the open shop."

The subject is the one recently discussed in the Harvard-Yale-Princeton triangular debate. The Williams affirmative team will oppose Dartmouth at Hanover, and the negative team will meet Brown in Grace Hall, the individual speeches being limited to seven minutes. Trials will be held at 4 p. m. on Friday in Jesup Hall. The list of candidates who attended the meeting is as follows: Atwell '21, Dickinson, Lyon, Schaffler, Terry '22, Reid '23, J. C. Bennett and Helfrich '24.

MUSICAL CLUBS WILL GIVE SECOND CONCERT

Last Entertainment Before Trip Will Take Place in Grace Hall Thursday

IS ONLY APPEARANCE HERE

Few Changes to Be Made in Successful Program Rendered in North Adams

Making their second appearance of the season, the combined Musical Clubs will give a concert in Grace Hall next Thursday at 8.30 o'clock. This is the last concert to be given by the Clubs preparatory to the Easter trip, and practically the same program will be rendered as that presented in the North Adams entertainment.

Including numbers by three separate ensembles, the program was, according to a critic of the North Adams performance, "varied enough in outward form, but infused with the same spirit of optimism. It was 'popular' music in every sense of the word, and eminently the kind expected from college glee clubs." All the numbers were enthusiastically received at the first concert given by the Clubs, perhaps the most effective of the part songs being Osgood's "In Pieardie." The instrumental octet, playing a program of "jazz" music, was heartily applauded by the audience at the previous concert, and proved to be one of the features of the performance.

This is the only appearance the Clubs will make in Williamstown this season. Tickets may be obtained from competitors (Continued on Fourth Page.)

To Dedicate 'Class Book' to Prof. Frank Goodrich

In recognition of the debt of gratitude that Williams owes to his faithful services as a professor, the 1921 Class Book will be dedicated to Professor Frank Goodrich, of the History Department. Professor Goodrich has been connected with Williams since 1894, and his first appointment was that of professor of German and History. Dr. Goodrich is a graduate of Yale University, and received a degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Halle in 1893. He has also studied at the Universities of Berlin and Leipzig.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE FOR TUESDAY COURSE

Mr. S. S. Johnson Will Give Talk On Zion National Park in Final Number

Mr. Steven S. Johnson of New York City will speak in the last number of the Tuesday Lecture Course tomorrow at 4.30 p. m. in the Thompson Physical Laboratory, taking as his subject "Zion National Park." The lecture will be illustrated with numerous colored slides, showing various views of the park, and it is expected that the last program of the year will be one of the most interesting of the season.

Zion National Park, located in the southern part of Utah, is one of the newest additions to the United States system of public parks, having been officially purchased in November, 1919, but since its discovery a half century ago by the Mormons, it has been considered one of the most beautiful spots in America. It is small and little known, but its natural beauty, coloring, and scenic effects are ranked with the Yosemite by many leading tourists, geologists, and botanists.

Mr. Johnson is an amateur photographer who succeeded in taking many remarkable views while spending the summer in the park last year, and he is now giving these illustrated lectures to aid the government in its campaign to save the national parks. Private interests have lately been attempting to gain control over several of these regions, and in order to make the people realize the advantages obtained from such public property, Mr. Johnson, with many others, is giving views of America's beauty spots.

Publish Works of Professor

Professor Herdman F. Cleland of the Geology Department is the author of an article on "The Teaching of Historical Geology," which was recently published in the Bulletin of the Geological Society of America. Other articles by Professor Cleland that have appeared in the past year include "Practical Applications of Geology" and "The Black Belt of Alabama." Geographical Review; "Society of the Future" North American Review; and "A Suggestion for Making our Scientific Publications More Useful, and for Making Our Postoffices a Center of Information." Science.

INCREASED CHAPEL CUTS RECOMMENDED

Rev. Harry P. Dewey of Minneapolis Offers Several Unofficial Recommendations

IS PROMINENT MEMBER OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Possible Cutting Down of Number of Sunday Services Is Suggested

"Leniency respecting attendance at the week-day chapel exercises" is the remedy for the present chapel problem suggested in a recent communication from the Rev. Harry P. Dewey, D.D., of Minneapolis, Minn. Dr. Dewey is the minister of the Plymouth Church, one of the largest churches in Minneapolis, and in addition is a member of the Board of Trustees of Williams College.

Dr. Dewey thinks that the custom of daily chapel is worthy of preservation because of its wholesome effect in gathering together the College body once a day, but he feels that higher moral and spiritual aims would be served by less strict requirements as regards attendance. In addition he believes it may be necessary to abandon the Sunday afternoon Vesper service, due to the present multiplicity of religious services on Sunday.

The extracts regarding the chapel problem from Dr. Dewey's letter are in full as follows:

"As you know, as a body of trustees, in our recent meeting in New York, we discussed the chapel problem after having heard the presentation by Mr. Ufford, and it was referred to the executive committee to be reported upon at an early date, if possible. You will, therefore, understand that I am not speaking as a trustee, but as an alumnus. I do not, as yet, feel that I am sufficiently in possession of all the facts to express a final opinion. How the question stands in other institutions may have a bearing upon the case at (Continued on Third Page.)

FORTY CANDIDATES REPORT FOR TRACK

Nine "W" and Four "aWa" Men Out for Team—Practice Held Daily on Weston Field

Active spring track practice started last Friday afternoon on Weston Field when 40 candidates, including nine "W" and four "aWa" men reported to Coach Seely. With only two varsity runners of the 1920 team lost through graduation and with the material in the freshman class available for the selection of the team, Coach Seely hopes to develop a strong and well-balanced squad.

Captain Crofts and Conn '21 in the distance races, Kellogg '21 and Richmond '22 in the half and quarter, Coddling '21 and McWhorter '22 in the sprints, P. Phillips '22 and Barnes '23 in the hurdles, and Chapin '23 in the pole-vault are the "W" men around whom Coach Seely will build his team. H. S. Towne '21, Becket and Wallace '22 and Fasse '23 won their "aWa" insignia last season and have shown up well in practice this year. In addition to these men, the most promising candidates are Hibbard '21 in the hammer and discus events, Brown '22 and Dewey '23 in the pole-vault, Olmsted '23 in the sprints, Mendes '22 and Stowers '23 in the quarter mile, and Mixer '21, Beale '23 and Mason '24 in the hurdles. Wishard '24 has shown ability in the weight events, although this department of the squad will probably be the weakest as in former years. Adams '22 is running well in the distance races and is expected to place in the meet this spring. The strongest part of the squad is in the longer races for which there are 18 candidates.

"Where Praise Is Due"

That not inconsiderable portion of the literati of Williams College who have followed the Tuesday lecture course this winter have been well rewarded for their efforts. The program has included a total of eleven lectures on a wide variety of subjects, the last of which, "Zion National Park" by Mr. Steven S. Johnson of New York, will be presented tomorrow afternoon.

The subjects thus far presented have ranged from discussions of the fallacies of Eph's generalship and of modern socialism to the problems of making literature safe for democracy and the trials of the oil investor and the Fuel Administrator. All honor and high praise are due the members of the Faculty who have made such valuable adjuncts to a liberal education possible.

That the College body is not unappreciative of the opportunities thus afforded was demonstrated at the last lecture, delivered by Assistant Professor Dutton on "Some New Novels," perhaps the high point of the course, when the auditorium of the Physics Laboratory became so crowded that over 40 of the audience were forced to find seats on the stairs or in the aisles.

More Spiritual Family Worship

THE RECORD notes with pleasure the Rev. Harry P. Dewey's support of its own stand regarding the chapel problem—a stand asking for a more liberal regulation of compulsory morning chapel and for less saturation of religious services on Sunday. Dr. Dewey's suggestions as set down unofficially in this issue will carry additional weight through the fact that he is the only ordained minister on the Board of Trustees, and consequently understands both the College and the usual religious viewpoints.

As Dr. Dewey intimates, some proper solution of the chapel problem is of fundamental necessity for the best moral and spiritual interests of the institution. The observer standing in the rear of the chapel any morning who watches half the student body sprinting up to the door with the last "threes" and standing, hot and puffing, throughout the service, certainly in no religious frame of mind, who sees the listless attitude of practically the entire congregation during the service, and who notes the only half-smothered exclamations and angry looks of those indignant students who find their monitor absent and chapel not "compulsory" this morning, can scarcely fail to feel the utter inadequacy of the present service from a religious aspect.

If, as THE RECORD believes, the major portion of this indifferent religious attitude is directly traceable to the resentful attitude of the average student over the fact that he is daily compelled to receive what should be one of the voluntary benefits and pleasures of his life, it is evident that mere changes in the form of services will not materially improve the situation. Such has already proved to be the case with the hymns. Although those used at present are entirely of student selection the increase in the volume of the singing is hardly sufficient to be particularly marked.

On the other hand, completely voluntary chapel is not necessarily the proper solution, for regular services are of value in bringing together the College body, as Dr. Dewey indicates, and as a religious tradition of family worship, as Prof. Brown points out in an adjoining communication. The student body recognized this fact last spring when it voted heavily against voluntary chapel. But a 15-minute "grace before meals," as Prof. Brown designates it, may become less than divine when one is compelled under severe penalties to attend it six days a week without fail, absence from town or oversleeping being no excuse. It is doubtful if even our Puritan fore fathers enforced such restrictions on all guests.

Some moderation in this stringency, such as a provision for additional chapel euts and the retention of the Sunday Vespers as a voluntary service, THE RECORD believes would be the most effective method of removing the existing hostility in the average undergraduate mind and of retaining and vastly enhancing such value as the present service may have.

Berkshire Alumni Meet

Election of officers and the adoption of plans for more effective organization during the coming year were the main features of the annual banquet of the Berkshire County Alumni Association, which was held at the Hotel Wendell, Pittsfield, on March 19. The following officers were elected: President Harry L. Pierson '18; secretary-treasurer, William Rice '13; executive committee, Hugh Drysdale '07, John M. Deely '15, and Delano De Windt '16.

Cercle Francais Will Meet

Plans for the presentation of another play, similar to that given last year by the society, will be discussed at a meeting of the Cercle Francais, which will be held next Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Zeta Psi House. All members are urged to pay their dues to Kent '21, treasurer of the society at or before this meeting.

Pipe and Quill Will Meet

Two papers, one entitled "Williams Prose," by Hinman '21, the other, "Williams Poetry," by Richardson '21, will be read at the next meeting of Pipe and Quill which will take place in the Beta Theta Pi fraternity house next Friday evening, April 1, at 8.15 o'clock.

Corrections

The Graphic review in the last issue of THE RECORD was contributed by J. R. S. Due to an oversight the credit line was omitted.

Two items were omitted from the financial statement submitted by Treasurer E. N. Chapman of the sophomore prom committee. The following should be added to the expenditures: Committee banquet—$75.00; miscellaneous expenditures—$63.79.

Why do they put rubber on lead pencils?

THERE is not a man in the world who does not make mistakes. There is no group of men in the world which does not make mistakes. But a man of average intelligence profits by the mistakes he has made. He does not repeat them. And a well-organized group of men profits by the mistakes which they all have made. The organization does not repeat them.

There is perhaps no business in the world so prolific of mistakes as the advertising business. And the commonest mistake of all is for a man or a group of men who are new to advertising, and without any record of mistakes by which they can profit, to attempt to advertise without advice.

The best place to get advice is from a group of men of long experience in the advertising business who have not only learned a lot about what not to do in advertising, but also have an accumulated fund of knowledge about what should be done.

George Batten Company has been in advertising for thirty years. Advertising is the business of making a lot of people hold the same opinion on a given subject. It is a delicate business, because favorable Public Opinion is something that cannot be moulded by the unskilful.

In thirty years we have acquired the faculty of scenting danger as well as safety from afar. We have profited by all the judgments which the 300 members of our organization have made.

We do not make many mistakes now, but we still buy erasers.

That's one of the reasons why our business keeps growing.

ONCE a month, or more frequently, we issue a publication called Batten's Wedge. Each issue is devoted to a single editorial on some phase of business. If you are a business executive and would like to receive copies, write us.

"GRACE BEFORE MEALS"

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir:

I understand that there is some agitation now going on against compulsory chapel. I hope such criticism of the institution as may exist is directed against the form of the service and not against the institution itself. I have seen compulsory chapel abolished in other colleges with lamentable results. I look upon our chapel services at Williams as a great asset we never should lose. My reasons briefly are as follows. Williams is an avowed Christian college. It was originally dedicated in this spirit. Daily chapel is merely grace before meals—it is the consecration of the daily life of the college to high Christian aims. If regarded in this spirit no gentleman will fail to show proper respect in chapel any more than he would fail to show good breeding if dining with friends who still maintain grace before meals. If a man really resents such a custom he need not go to a house where it exists.

I therefore feel that the real trouble is not in the institution of compulsory chapel itself or in the exact form of the service. The trouble lies in the attitude of those students who fail to realize the nature of this custom, and like most humans, fretful at all restraints—particularly if compelled to get up in the morning, would object to any chapel whether voluntary or compulsory.

Williams prides itself on being one family united in lofty aims and proud of its traditions. Let us hold at least to family worship—no matter what the rest of the world may do or think!

Sincerely yours,
Philip Brown '98.

MORE CHAMPIONSHIPS NEEDED

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir:

To you undergraduates I suppose I am one of the "old fellows." This June will mark the 20th anniversary of my graduation. When I was in college I thought of the twenty-year class as well preserved old gentlemen who called Ephraim Williams "Eph" and played marbles with Mark Hopkins. Time alters our ideas, however, and today I am not willing to admit that I am old or that my opinions are antiquated.

To get my viewpoint, cut this article out and read in twenty years from now and I know you will agree with me.

Today I read a paragraph in the Graphic to the effect that Williams was no longer virile. You undergraduates see only the sarcasm but to us "old fellows," if you will, the veneer is pretty thin in places. We never boasted of a successful season in athletics when our football team was defeated by Amherst, our basketball team by Harvard and our baseball team by

Wesleyan. Williams was "renowned for baseball and free trade," especially for baseball, and we counted it a poor season when we did not add to our trophy case the baseball from both the Harvard and Yale games. We seemed to swallow a defeat harder in those days, perhaps because we were less used to them.

Ask Doc Barrett, who matriculated in our day, then, if you don't believe him, go to the Williams Alumni Dinner in New York. Look around the walls at the old faded banners, Championship 1897, Championship 1900, Championship 1901. These banners should be brought up to date.

This may seem harsh and perhaps unjust criticism, but it is only inspired by my love for Williams and my desire to see her take the same place in athletics that she does in everything else. When I tell anyone that I am a Williams man I expect him to say, "It is a fine college." I also want him to say, "Some baseball team."

Yours very truly,
J. Winthrop Spooner '01.

'Graphic' Elects Manager

Raymond Arthur Pring '23, of Orange, N. J., was elected to the position of second assistant circulation manager of the Graphic at a meeting of the board held last Saturday afternoon. At that time material for the April issue was considered and a banquet discussed. There will be a meeting at 7 p. m. tomorrow in Jesup Hall, to elect the editor-in-chief, managing editor and photographic editor of the 1922 board. Two sophomores and three freshmen will be elected to the editorial board at this time.

Williams, but at any rate, I am sure that all of us, students, faculty, trustees and alumni, wish to have the arrangements which will best minister to the moral and spiritual welfare of the institution.

The reaction upon my own mind at present (I reserve the right to modify the opinion with fuller information) is, that there should be a good deal of leniency respecting attendance at the week day exercise. Ufford's suggestion that the hour be later perhaps would be a partial solution of the difficulty. With liberal cuts, I assume that the student body would wish to preserve the custom of daily chapel, for this reason, if for no other, that it is good to have an assemblage of the students every day. I feel that every effort should be made to make the exercises interesting and inspiring and, of course, also that they should be brief. It has long seemed to me unwise to expect that many, if any, students would attend the Chapel Sunday morning, again in the afternoon, and then go to the W. C. A. meeting in the evening. We cannot afford to abandon the morning church on Sunday, and while I should be loath to give up the Vesper service, because in some respects it is the most impressive service of all, perhaps it will seem best to do so.

I think it is a wholesome sign that the discussion of the matter is ripe, and I am sure that with all of us thinking together for the best result, with openness of mind, we shall come to a more acceptable arrangement than now is in vogue."

DR. BELL ADDRESSES ST. JOHN'S SOCIETY

Discusses Place of Church and Advantages of Communion in College Life

Addressing members of the St. John's Society in the Jesup Hall Reading Room last Sunday evening, the Rev. Bernard I. Bell, the chapel preacher of the morning, spoke on the place of the church in college life such as at Williams. The speaker brought out in particular the value and the importance of college students taking advantage of the benefits of Holy Communion.

Dr. Bell explained many of the other features of the Christian religion that can be obtained in the course of every day life in influences such as are common in Williamstown. "In addition to the intentionally religious surroundings that we come under, all the appointments of the day tend to a certain extent to draw out the best that is in us," he said. "Even under these circumstances there is no way to gain the sustaining power of the Holy Spirit for our lives except by the inspiration of participation in the Communion." In concluding, Rev. Bell made a plea that every advantage be taken of the opportunities open here for gaining the benefits that come from this religious custom.

PLEDGES ARE UNPAID

Only $530 Is Turned in of $800 Promised for Hoover Fund

About $530 of the $800 recently pledged by the student body to the European Relief Council Fund has been paid by the subscribers, according to a report of the undergraduate committee in charge. Every effort is to be made to complete the collection within the week in order that the whole amount may be added to the subscriptions of the town and sent on to New York before the spring vacation.

In addition to the money pledged at the fraternity houses, several large contributions have been received by the undergraduate committee including one of $379.71 from the Sophomore Prom Committee. The $1200 raised at the Hoover Dinner has not been counted in with the student subscriptions, but was added to the town fund. To come near the record set by Wesleyan, where over $1200 was collected from the undergraduate body alone, it is necessary that every dollar pledged be paid to the committee.

"CAP AND BELLS" TO OFFER PLAYS

Three One-act Productions to Be Given in Jesup Hall by Corporation

TO PRODUCE COMEDIES AT 8.30 NEXT MONDAY

Will Present "Pyramus and Thisbe" "Poetic License" and "Overruled"

Three one-act plays will be presented by Cap and Bells on Monday at 8.30 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Auditorium, under the direction of Dr. Licklider and Mr. Tauesch. The Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe, from Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream, Poetic License by George S. Oppenheimer '20, and Overruled by George Bernard Shaw will compose the program for the evening.

In presenting these plays, Cap and Bells is pursuing its policy of producing plays of the highest artistic value, principally for the benefit of the local college audience. The plan will be followed up later in the spring by the production, on an elaborate scale, of Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing, which will be given in Grace Hall during the Memorial Day Celebration, and again during the spring houseparty in June, just previous to Commencement.

One of the most popular of all comic elements in Shakespeare's plays, the Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe is the play given by Bottom and his companions before Theseus on the night of the latter's wedding to Hippolyta. The action will be portrayed as a one-act play of four scenes. The story deals with the adventures of a group of Athenian artisans who plan to give a play for Theseus. At their rehearsal in the forest near Athens, Puck appears and puts an ass's head on Bottom, who disappears to the court of Titania, the fairy queen. Bottom returns, however, in time to take his part in the play, which is given with great success on the appointed night. The playlet concludes with a Burgomaster or peasant dance. The scenes are divided between Quince's house and the throne room in the palace of Theseus.

All of the scenes will be presented with the most modern effects of staging and lighting. The costumes and the color effects have been designed by Mrs. W. M. R. French, the well-known artist, who has also painted a series of posters to advertise the play. All of the costumes and stage effects have been made in Williamstown, following the plan of Cap and Bells to introduce, as far as possible in its work, the modern methods of the Little Theater movement. The incidental music for the play, written by Mendelssohn, will be played by Stevenson '23, violinist, with Garfield '22 at the piano.

POOR CONDITION OF TRACK IS HANDICAP

Distance Runners Have Tryouts Over Cross Country Course Despite Weather

Preliminary practice for the track team has been handicapped during the past week by the poor condition of the track due to the bad weather. The distance men and half-milers have worked out on the road and have run over the cross-country course, while the other candidates have practiced on Weston Field. The field sports have been slow in starting, and it is impossible to estimate the strength in that department. P. Brown, '22 and Chapin, '23 in the pole-vault, P. Phillips, '21 and Barnes, '23 in the hurdles, and Hubbard, '21 in the hammer throw have all won their "W"s in previous years and are showing up well in practice.

W. C. A. Campaign Postponed

Due to the inability of Mr. Sherwood Eddy to be present in Williamstown on April 22, 23, 24, the W. C. A. religious campaign which Mr. Eddy is to conduct has been postponed until May, 6, 7, 8. It is requested that the heads of all organizations cancel or postpone activities scheduled for those dates.

STEREOPTICON SLIDES GIVEN WITH LECTURE

Mr. Steven S. Johnson Speaks on Zion National Park Before Tuesday Course

Taking his audience through the natural wonders of the western canyons by means of verbal descriptions and colored stereopticon slides, Mr. Steven S. Johnson of New York City depicted "Zion National Park" in the concluding number of the Tuesday Lecture Course last Tuesday afternoon. A photographic trip through Zion and Bryce Canyons last summer furnished the speaker with the material for his lecture.

The Zion National Park, of which the Zion and Bryce Canyons are parts, is situated near Lund, Utah, almost at the intersection of Utah, Nevada, and Arizona. The park, known to the Paiute Indians as "the land of the straight canyon," is the scene of Zane Grey's novel, The Riders of the Purple Sage, and is noted for the peculiar red, white, and grey sandstone formations found there, as well as for the grandeur of its canyons. The slides with which the lecture was illustrated were colored by Mr. Johnson himself, who used samples of rock brought from the park as guides to obtain accurate results.

Mr. Johnson portrayed the beauties of a trip through Little Zion Canyon to the source of the Rio Virgin, which flows through it. On both sides walls of red rock rising to the height of 3700 feet enclose the little stream, and tiny waterfalls flowing over the cliffs turn into spray before they reach the floor of the canyon. The colored slides portrayed clearly the beautiful red, white, and grey tints of the sandstone cliffs, and the colorings in the canyon at sunrise and sunset. To supplement his purely scenic photographs Mr. Johnson showed pictures of the plant life of the region, such as the prickly pear, the crimson lily, and the purple sage.

Excellent views of Bryce Canyon, noted for its unusual pink cliffs, and extraordinary pillar-like formations which have been cut by wind-driven sand and rain into structures that almost resemble Alaskan totem poles, were shown by the lecturer. Sophomores Will Hold 'Gul' Elections Monday

Five sophomores are to be chosen for the Editorial Board of the 1923 Gulielmian at a meeting of the Sophomore Class to be held in Jesup Hall at 7.30 p. m. Monday. Bixby, Rounds, Chapman, Baxter and Maxwell '23 will be voted on by the College next Tuesday for the position of assistant manager of basketball, as a result of the nominations made at a meeting of the Class last Monday.

Dr. Long Delivers Address

Assistant Professor O. W. Long read a paper on "Shakespeare in Germany" before a meeting of the Whitney Society which was held at the Faculty Club last Monday evening. In the course of his address Dr. Long traced the interest which the Germans have had in the great English author from early times, laying emphasis upon the part which such men as Lessing, Wieland, Herder, Goethe, and Schlegel had in spreading his fame in their native land. Dr. Long stated that the Germans during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, at least, have shown as great an interest in Shakespeare as the English.

PLAY PRACTICE GAME AGAINST SECOND NINE

Varsity to Oppose North Adams Independents Tomorrow on Weston Field

NO CHANGE MADE IN SQUAD

Coach Coombs to Announce Names of Men to Make Southern Baseball Trip

Favored by dry and clear weather every day except yesterday, varsity baseball practice has been held regularly this week on Weston Field and in the batting cage. The five-inning game scheduled with the North Adams Independents for last Saturday afternoon but cancelled on account of the muddy condition of Weston Field will be played off tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m.

No change has been made so far this week in the personnel of the squad, which still contains 20 men. At the end of the week, the 15 men who will make the southern trip will be selected and given special drill. Personal criticisms by the Coach of the members of the squad are to be printed in the baseball supplement of the regular issue of The Record next Monday, but so far no statements concerning individual work have been given out.

On Monday, Coach Coombs took advantage of the perfect spring day and gave the squad a thorough workout, which included a practice game between the first and second tentative line-ups. Team practice was held with the coach at the plate in order that circumstances arising from every possible play might be discussed and met with in the most efficient way. Battery and sliding practice have been held on the other days of the week and preparations are being made for the game on Saturday.

Much interest will be centered in the North Adams game, due to its being the first opportunity for the team to face outside opposition. The Williams line-up has not been announced, but it is expected that nearly all the members of the squad will be given some trial in the game.

CONCERT FEATURED BY VOCAL QUARTET

Combined Musical Clubs Appear for Last Time Before the Vacation Trip

In their last public appearance before the spring tour, the Combined Musical Clubs presented a concert yesterday evening in Grace Hall, before an appreciative audience. In addition to the numbers given at the North Adams concert the program contained three selections by a vocal quartet consisting of Richmond, Lewis, Noble and Chapman; and the entire performance showed the benefits of the practice held since last week.

Particular interest was attached to the quartet selections, which appeared on the program for the first time. They were popular pieces, "Let the Rest of the World Go By," the "Ford Song," and "Rub-a-dub," the last one displaying the best (Continued on Second Page.)

G. P. SIMONS ELECTED EDITOR OF 'GRAPHIC'

Rose, '22 Chosen Managing Editor and Davis, '22 Made Photographic Editor

Gilbert P. Simons '22, of Blauvelt, N. Y., was elected editor-in-chief of the Williams Graphic at a meeting of the board held last Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time Douglas H. Rose, '22, of Baltimore, Md., was chosen managing editor, Waters Smith Davis '22, of New York City, photographic editor.

Five new members elected to the editorial board: Everett E. Lyles '23, of Canaan, Conn.; Haven P. Perkins '23, of Birmingham, Ala.; George A. Mason, Jr., '24, of Highland Park, Ill.; Malcolm McMaster '24, of Williamstown; and Ernest A. Moody '24, of New York City. Clarence B. Kilmer, Jr., '22, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., was elected to the photographic staff.

Simons prepared for Williams at the Nyack High School, N. Y., where he was captain of the football team and president of the Senior Class. Since coming to College he played on his class football team in his Sophomore year, and was a member of the varsity football squad last fall. He is now a member of the fire brigade and the College choir, and was elected last year to the editorial board of the Literary Monthly, serving on that publication until it was merged into the Graphic. The newly elected editor-in-chief is the author of The Immutable Feminine and The Unregenerate Generation, appearing in the last issue of the Graphic. Simons is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity.

Rose prepared for College at the Park School, Baltimore, Md., where he was on the dramatic club, chairman of the Year Book Committee, and a member of the (Continued on Third Page.)

The Rev. W. L. Sperry to Conduct Chapel Service

Service next Sunday morning will be conducted by the Rev. Willard Learoyd Sperry, of the Andover Theological Seminary. Prof. Sperry is well known to Williams men, having occupied the pulpit here several times before.

He is a graduate of Olivet College, Michigan, and attended Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar, receiving his M. A. degree there in 1907 and also at Yale University in 1909. Prof. Sperry was ordained in the Congregational Ministry in 1908, and was pastor of First Church, Fall River, and Central Church of Boston before becoming associate professor of practical theology at the Andover Seminary in 1917. He is also a member of the Prudential Committee of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and a trustee of Wheaton College.

Varsity Trainer Will Stay

Charles E. Barrett, trainer of the Williams varsity teams for over 20 years, has signed a contract with the Athletic Council to go into effect at the expiration of the present one in September. Although more attractive terms were offered him by other institutions, Mr. Barrett has accepted the Williams contract through the cooperation and assistance of the alumni.

SYSTEM OF SPORTS TO BE REORGANIZED

Will Appoint Director to Supervise Athletics and Physical Training

WILL BE GIVEN RANK OF FULL PROFESSOR

Intramural Sports Will Be Encouraged and Centralized in New System

Complete reorganization of sports and physical training, leading to the unification of athletics and the expansion of the intramural system, is practically assured under a plan which is now before the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees. A Director of Physical Education is to be appointed with the standing of full professor, who is to coordinate under his authority the Infirmary, the Gymnasium, intramural athletics, the Hygiene course, the Outing Club and the coaches.

Mr. E. H. Botsford presented the plan to the Trustees at the recent meeting in New York in the absence of Dr. Garfield. The system was drawn up by a committee composed of Professor Wild, Dr. Vanderpoel, Adriance and Mr. Botsford, was approved by the Athletic Council, the President, and the Board of Trustees, and will be put into effect as soon as it is passed by the Executive Committee. It consists in the establishment of a new department in Williams and in the encouragement and organization of intramural athletics on a large scale. The plan had been previously considered by Dr. Garfield before it was drafted in its present form. The Old Campus, Cole Field, and the tennis courts will be placed under the jurisdiction of the Athletic Council and will be maintained by appropriations from the Trustees. Weston Field will be kept for intercollegiate sports, but the hockey team will be allowed to use the Cole Field rink. The Director to be appointed will be a Doctor of Medicine and will be made a member of the Faculty Committee on Athletics and the Athletic Council. He will be the central authority under which all the sports will be organized.

The plan as presented to the Executive Committee is in part as follows:

"Director of Athletics and Physical Training: To have supervision of the health and physical development of all the students; to conduct physical examinations in the case of every student, including candidates for intercollegiate teams; to have general charge of the Infirmary; to recommend to the Athletic Council the appointment of coaches for intercollegiate athletics; to conduct the course in Hygiene; to be a member of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, and thus have a (Continued on Third Page.)

Varsity Insignia

Considerable laxness appears to have arisen lately concerning the observance of the two rules with regard to the wearing of insignia and the purple. Although no student is allowed to wear a "W" unless regularly won, a good many men not so qualified appear with "W" sweaters and jerseys, very apparent even though worn inside out, while similar looseness prevails in the wearing of "varsity stripes" on stockings, and on track and basketball suits. Through an undue fear of appearing "collegiate" Williams men make much less of athletic insignia than men at most other colleges, and it seems hardly fair that the existence of this kind of modesty should lead to the assumption of the prerogatives of insignia men by those who have not won their letters. It is to be hoped that the simple reiteration of these rules will prove sufficient to ensure their future observance.

A Treat in Store

Cap and Bells once more deserves congratulations for its ambitious and progressive spirit in offering the production of three one-act plays next Monday evening purely for home consumption. That the dramatic association should attempt to turn extra-curriculum endeavors into means of providing wholesome amusement for the isolated college community is in itself highly laudable.

In addition, Cap and Bells is continuing its policy of producing plays of the highest artistic value, as was the case with the Beaux' Stratagem, which brought merited praise to Williams from noted art critics throughout the East. Following the Little Theatre idea, the staging, costuming, lighting effects, and even one of the plots of the plays to be presented will be entirely original work, designed and manufactured in Williamstown.

We cannot too heartily urge a full attendance upon the part of the student body and of those other members of the community who appreciate worth-while dramatic endeavors. Not only will a pleasant evening be enjoyed, but proper support similar to that which athletic teams require will be afforded a deserving extra-curriculum activity.

Our Second Plank

THE RECORD takes pleasure in announcing elsewhere in this issue the plans for reorganizing general athletic activities as formulated by the Board of Trustees. One of the vital elements in our second plank is the "Athletics-for-All" idea, not a visionary dream, but a practical reality of the near future. The plan now before the Executive Committee provides one of the best specific means yet offered for attaining this goal.

Intramural athletics have been growing of late by leaps and bounds, and proper co-ordination and development under a skilled Director of Physical Education will bring them to a permanent place and proper significance amongst extra-curriculum affairs. The advantages of placing a central authority over the many diverse branches of out-door activities are obvious. The addition of more tennis courts, the improvement of Cole Field, and the ultimate construction of the Williams Triangle should be the not far distant achievements of this plan.

COMMUNICATIONS

Although communications may be published unsigned if so requested, the name of the writer must in every case be submitted to the editor. The Board assumes no responsibility, however, for the facts as stated nor for the opinions expressed in this department.

REQUESTS SUPPORT

March 31, 1921.

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir: About a month ago I made use of your columns to announce that Cap and Bells was going to institute a policy of presenting worthwhile dramatics exclusively for the benefit of the College and the community. This experiment is not undertaken as a money-making enterprise, but rather to fill a very real vacancy in Williams extra-curriculum life. On Monday night we are presenting three one-act plays, and their reception will demonstrate the advisability of continuing this policy. The program has been carefully balanced; all the pieces are comedies with real humor and fun, but there is no pie-throwing; and the price of admission (which is at movie level) is intended to cover the actual cost of production only.

I have stated the facts and trust that the students, faculty, and community, will lend their support.

ASKS FOR MORE FICTION

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir: It is a positive disgrace for a college that has the standing of WILLIAMS to have as small a fiction library as it has. In order to "run" the Lit. 14 course (Modern Novel) it is necessary to withdraw from circulation in the main fiction library every copy of certain authors; and the latest author to be removed from the shelves is Joseph Conrad. The library is fairly complete as to different authors represented, but the trouble lies in the lack of duplicate copies for the English courses; and when such authors as Conrad and Wells become unavailable, surely it is time to expend a few dollars in the purchase of duplicate copies.

Also, it would seem that everyone should be treated alike in regard to the length of time a book may be kept out of the library. One student has been waiting several weeks for "Potterism." A professor, I am told, has had it out for three months, and no notice has been sent the professor, as would have been the case had a student taken the book out.

harmony, although both the last two were amusing. Chapman's singing of "The Fields O' Ballyclare" and "Roadways" was far better than his previous performance, his greater familiarity with the words permitting his voice more freedom. The Glee Club was compelled to give several encores, pleasing the audience especially with "Smiling Through" and "In Picardie." The usual enthusiastic reception greeted the popular selections of the instrumental octet, and the Mandolin Club's offerings were well received as usual.

GIVES LAST ORGAN RECITAL OF SEASON

Mr. Salter Assisted by Local Organist in 211th Number of Series

Assisted by Mrs. Austin C. Keough, organist of St. Patrick's church in Williamstown, and presenting a varied and well-balanced program, Mr. Sumner Salter gave his 211th organ recital last Wednesday afternoon in Grace Hall. This was the last recital of the year, and accordingly the program was especially interesting and entertaining.

Franz Liszt's Prelude and Fugue on B-A-C-H required more technique than any of the other numbers, and its full, rich harmony was brought out to the best advantage by Mr. Salter. Mrs. Keough played Rheinberger's Vision and Dubois' Toccata in G, and skillfully managed the quick, light runs in the latter composition. Her playing lacked the firmness of Mr. Salter's, but her interpretations of the light, airy parts were well appreciated. Cathedral Shadows, by Alfred T. Mason of Pittsfield, a composition dedicated to Mr. Salter, was perhaps the best received of the numbers, and its soft, impressive notes, representing the dignity of the interior of a cathedral, were played with great feeling.

Following is the program in detail:

Prelude and Fugue on B-A-C-H

Vision Josef Rheinberger
Toccata in G Theodore Dubois
Spring Song Will C. Macfarlane
Cathedral Shadows Alfred T. Mason
Prelude in C sharp Minor Sergei Rachmaninoff
Overture to "Oberon" Carl Maria von Weber

"Cercle" Meets This Evening

On account of the conflict with the Musical Clubs' concert, the meeting of the Cercle Francais announced for last night at the Zeta Psi House has been postponed until 8 p. m. tonight. Plans for the presentation of another play similar to that produced last year by the society are to be discussed. It is to be noted that all members have been urged to pay their dues for the year either at or before this meeting.

Poetic License, the second of the trio of plays, was written by G. S. Oppenheimer '20. The play deals with the adventures of an amateur burglar, who is also a poet, in the house of the only people who have ever purchased a volume of his works. This play is presented by Mr. Taesch in consultation with the author, who has been present at several of the rehearsals.

Overruled, one of Bernard Shaw's most characteristic one-act farces, completes the series. The situation is presented by the chance meeting, far from home, of two happily married couples, each of which has agreed to separate for a year of vacation and travel. The farce is one of the best examples of Mr. Shaw's cynical philosophy and brilliant dialogue, and it will be staged and costumed in the most modern manner. The cast follows:

Mr. Lunn Zalles '22

Mrs. Lunn Harding '24

Mrs. Lunn Trounstone '24

Tickets for the plays will be sold by competitors at 50 cents each, and there will be no reserved seats. The management has announced that under no circumstances will anyone be admitted to the hall during the progress of any of the plays.

PRINTING FABLES

In a far-away country there once lived a beautiful princess. Two princes were her suitors; both handsome, young and gallant; both ardent seekers after her hand in marriage. The question was whom should she choose as her husband. She decided to set a task for them, and who best succeeded was to be the object of her choice. The next day she called the suitors and spoke to them. "One month from to-day, I will choose for my husband the one who brings a gift which pleases me more than anything else in the world." With these words the suitors mounted their steeds and galloped away to find gifts for the princess. The first day of the following month, the two princes met in the courtyard of the castle where the princess was to receive their offerings. The first prince, arrayed in stately robes, was accompanied by six lackeys who bore his gift. "Beautiful princess," he said, "I have found the most precious materials on earth; I have gathered together the most skillful workmen in the world, and have brought you this chalice made of the web of joy and wrought with the jewels of pleasure." The princess clapped her hands with delight at the spectacle of the gorgeous chalice glittering in the sunlight. She turned to the other prince. He was unattended and unadorned. He spoke, "I have searched the universe; I have found many beautiful and pleasure-giving things; but I have returned empty-handed. Love, Faith and Loyalty are the things I carry back to you. These, and no others bring true happiness." The princess made her choice, taking from the hands of the first prince, the flimsy gift. At this moment a dark cloud obscured the sun, and the chalice, which had been a thing of shimmering beauty, became a dull, lifeless fabric. In fright, the princess sought refuge in the arms of the second prince, the suitor who had brought her Love, Faith and Loyalty.

although naturally beautiful, was expressively characterized by the speaker as "the country God forgot."

In the last part of his lecture Mr. Johnson showed several slides made from photographs taken in the late afternoon. These exhibited the beautiful shadowed coloring effected by the setting sun on the walls of the canyons. In closing, the speaker characterized the Mormons, who formerly discovered and now inhabit Zion National Park, as a friendly, hospitable, law-abiding people, living in a world of their own, and worshipping "the wonderland in which they dwell."

Signing Your Name

WHEN you sign your name on a hotel register
How do you Feel?

Confident or Uncertain?
Delighted or Doubtful?
Like a welcome guest or
a homeless stranger?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. Though some of them from far away signed the register the first time with the vague "try anything once" air, they have been our friends ever since. We like to think it's because they are confident that upstairs and down they will find pleasant, restful surroundings with cheerful adept service—and—hospitality in the midst of excellent hotel conveniences. The sheer pleasure of mingling with joyous throngs is always here.

"—but the wire has no hole for electricity to flow through"

IT was a lawyer talking, and when he made this brilliant observation an engineer present couldn't help chuckling.

How absurd, he thought, that anybody could be so ignorant of the properties of current electricity.

But by the way, oh stern critic, what are mechanics' liens and what are the mutual obligations of partners? When the talk turns to law or business or the seven arts, have you opinions to express and can you express them without the fear of making a "break"?

Looked at in this light there seems to be some sense to the argument for a broad curriculum for engineers.

Though your object should be first and foremost to find out more than anybody else knows about some specialized phase of engineering, don't miss any chance to get acquainted with every common interest which may influence the social and industrial life of the day.

This is nothing but a matter of good business. It will enable you to meet men on their own ground.

And because life is too full to learn everything about everything, this habit teaches the greatest lesson of all—the necessity of getting at fundamentals and applying basic principles already learned to each new problem.

It is this attitude of mind which will earn you a place in the inner office where they discuss, not details, you may be sure, but policies.

The Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe, from Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream, Poetic License, by George S. Oppenheimer '20, and Overruled, by George Bernard Shaw, will constitute the program of one-act plays to be presented at 8.30 p. m. this evening in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. The productions have been directed by Dr. Licklider and Mr. Tausch, and the costumes and the color effects have been designed by Mrs. W. M. R. French.

Due to the ineligibility of Balke, deRochemont, Kerr, and Seudder '24, it has been necessary to assign the parts taken by these men to Terry '22, Smith '21, J. W. Barnes '24, and Greene '24, respectively. In the Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe, Smith will take the part of Starveling, Barnes will take the role of a Guard, and Greene has been chosen to play the part of Theseus. The part of the burglar in Poetic License, formerly taken by Balke has been taken over by Terry.

The cast of Pyramus and Thisbe follows:

Philstrate McAneny '23
Bottom Rose '22
Quince Dodge '24
Snaug Hoffman '24
Flute Thompson '24

Poet Mason '24
Father Wishard '24
Daughter Sniffen '24

Overruled, one of Bernard Shaw's most characteristic one-act farces, completes the series. The situation is presented by the chance meeting, far from home, of two happily married couples, each of which has agreed to separate for a year of vacation and travel. The cast follows:

TO HOLD TRIALS FOR TRACK TEAM APRIL 25

New System for Practice Will Be Started for Squad After Spring Recess

Track practice during the past week has consisted entirely of cross country work, under the direction of Captain Crofts, for the distance men, and starts for the sprinters, jumpers, and hurdlers under the supervision of Coach Seely. Owing to the heavy rains the track has been in bad condition, but it is rapidly being put in first class shape by a squad of competitors.

Beginning immediately after the vacation, Coach Seely will institute a new system of practice similar to that which Coach Coombs has used in working with the baseball squad. Practice will be held during the morning and afternoon recitation hours, the time being arranged according to the schedules of the candidates. The coach will meet five or six men at a time, thereby giving each man more individual attention than is possible under the present system.

Trials for the field events are to be held as soon as possible. Coach Coombs has consented to take charge of all candidates who report for the discons. Daily practice will be held regularly after the vacation until April 25, when trials will be held for the Union Dual Meet, on April 30, with which the track season will open.

Captain Crofts and Coan in the distance runs, Kellogg and Richmond in the half and quarter mile races, Coddington and MeWhorter in the sprints, P. Phillips and Barnes in the hurdles, and P. Brown and Chapin in the pole-vault, continue to be the most promising members of the squad. The strength of the team in the weights is still unknown, but it is likely that this department will again be weak, and the squad is in need of candidates for weight work. Several freshmen are showing considerable promise, especially Miller in the low hurdles and sprints, Mason in the low hurdles, Etheridge in the half mile, and J. Brown in the high jump.

FIVE STUDENTS WILL ATTEND CONFERENCE

Meeting of Theological Schools Will Be Held at Cambridge on April 8, 9, 10

C. L. Taylor '21, Dickinson and Preston '22, and Newton and Stowers '23 will attend the Fifteenth Annual Conference of Eastern College Men on the Christian Ministry to be held at Cambridge, Mass., on April 8, 9, and 10 under the auspices of the Andover, Hartford and Union Theological Seminaries, the Episcopal Theological School and the Harvard Divinity School. A special effort will be made to interest men in the ministry because of the 21 to 38 per cent decrease in the enrollment in the theological seminaries.

On March 24 Kepner '16 and Wiley '20 addressed a group of men interested in the conference in conjunction with the regular W. C. A. cabinet meeting and explained that the purpose of the work is "to present to those college men who are now deciding upon their life work definite information concerning the opportunities and work of the Christian ministry." All college men are invited to attend the conference, and those interested are requested to see Noble '21 as soon as possible. Rooms for the delegates will be provided by the seminaries in Boston, and the only expense will be for meals.

The Rev. Willard I. Sperry, who conducted the services last Sunday morning, will speak on "The Minister's Opportunities for Usefulness." Among the other speakers are President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University; The Rev. Samuel M. Crothers, of the First Church, Cambridge; the Rev. George E. Horr, President of the Newton Theological Seminary; The Rev. John E. Merrill, President of the Central Turkey College; John F. Moors, President of the Family Welfare Society of Boston and member of the Executive Committee of the League of Free Nations Association; the Rev. Charles L. Noyes, of the Winter Hill Church, Somerville, Mass.; the Rev. Charles E. Park, of the First Church of Boston; the Rev. Edmund S. Rousmaniere, Dean of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, Boston; and Bishop F. J. McConnell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Kepner '16 is Chairman of the Committee of Theological Students who are arranging the conference.

ANNOUNCES SQUAD WHICH MAKES TRIP

Coach Coombs Gives Out List of 15 Men Who Will Go South
During Vacation

VARSITY NINE WINS
PRACTICE GAME 15-1

Defeats Weak North Adams Team in One-Sided Contest Held on Cole Field

Coach Jack Coombs has announced the choice of a squad of 15 men to make the southern training trip of the baseball team. In the last regular practice of the team before the trip, Williams defeated the North Adams Independents, 15-1.

During the games of the training trip, it is probable that the following members of the squad will form the regular lineup of the Williams nine: W. E. Richmond '23, 1b; Hoyt '23, 2b; L. F. O'Brien '24, ss; Ward '23, 3b; Reuther '23, lf; Boynton '21, cf; Boynton '23, rf; Finn '21, e. Five pitchers will be taken with the team—Cobb, Wolfe '22; Holmes, Rounds '23, and Gregory '24. It is probable that Holmes and Gregory will be the first string twirlers, with the other men held in reserve. Bixby and Monjo '23 will be used as substitute infielder and outfielder respectively.

Following the excellent showing of the team in practice yesterday, Coach Coombs spoke optimistically of the condition of the nine, declaring that the teamwork was excellent, the play intelligent, and the general work of the team entirely satisfactory. The game with the North Adams team on Saturday was valuable as a means of revealing the deficiencies, as well as excellence, in the work of the team.

Boynton '21 batted well in the practice game, as did Richmond '23, who led the attack with two triples and a single. Holmes '23 and Cobb '22, who divided the moundwork in the first six innings of the game, seemed to need further conditioning before opposing any strong college nine. Gregory '24, who is the most promising of the freshmen, finished the game, and he was never in difficulty. The fielding of the team was good, except for one error in the fifth inning, which allowed the visitors to score their only tally. The fielding of the North Adams nine was errorless. Holmes struck out five men, Cobb one, and Gregory four.

The score by innings follows:

No. Adams	0	0	0

Leading Roles of 1921 Smoker Are Announced

Leading parts in the annual College Smoker, which is to be presented sometime during May, are to be played by N. P. Smith '22, Baxter, Britton, and S. A. Jones '23, and Dodge and Sniffen '24. The Book of the Smoker has been written by Banks and Moody '21, Montgomery '22 and Britton '23, and the music is being composed by Banks '21, W. D. Coleman and Luedke '22, and Sniffen '24.

Oppenheimer '20 has given valuable assistance in the writing of the Book, and is at present working with Power '21, who is in charge of the rehearsals. The chorus men are being trained by Baxter and Britton, while the latter has complete charge of the costuming. The scenic effects and the stage setting are in the hands of Rounds '22, assisted by Byers '23.

Mrs. Eugene Alvin Hendrickson has sent out invitations for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Florence Hendrickson, to Winston Blodgett Newell, ex-'21, next Saturday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Minneapolis.

The Best of Luck

As the baseball team starts on the first southern trip to be undertaken since the war, THE RECORD wishes deserved success to the squad which has worked hard in preparation and to the management which has planned and carried through the trip.

On the journey the team will play a schedule which, in the words of Coach Coombs, "forms the hardest training trip ever taken south by a northern college." Six major universities of the South will be encountered, all of which are well along in their respective schedules. The strength of the Williams team due to its short period for practice is as yet practically untested, but whatever the result of the games may be, the undivided support of the College will go with the team.

The management has assumed a large contract in planning and arranging a southern trip, and their efforts, ably seconded by those of the Athletic Council, merit praise in having brought to Williams valued publicity and prominence.

A Fable

The oldest alumnus walked down Spring Street, tottering steps supported by a sturdy cane, back bent nearly double with the weight of honorable years. But the querulous old eyes were unusually active, turning here and there, looking first with disapprobation on the half-seen figures shooting pool and those drooping over soda-water glasses inside, and then dropping with disgust to the recumbent forms sunning themselves on the benches outside.

It was the group before the next store that brought him to a full halt, however.

"Well, I'll be switched! Spinning tops and sucking all-day suckers! No, sir-e-sir! This college is not what it used to be. Time was when Williams was virile. Why in my day it used to take at least a real dog-fight or a class scrap to draw this large a crowd."

"But remember," interposed his grandson, "that we go out for studies these days, too. Of course the fellows are rather ashamed to admit it always,—but did you know that the average course covers now often five times the amount of assigned material it used to in your day, and yet this year's class will probably graduate more summa cum laude men than any other in the history of Williams?"

The old man whirled on him. "Stuff and nonsense! In my day, at least, Williams men never allowed any devotion to the curriculum to make them any less manly or more effeminate. Of course then we did not have any organized athletics, but didn't you see that communication the other day by that youngster 40 years my junior? He said as late as '01, the golden days of Williams baseball, they didn't take much victory talk from Harvard, Amherst, or Wesleyan. No, indeed. The institution isn't what it used to be!"

"Well, I am not entirely convinced, grandpa. I wonder if you are aware that Williams lost a total of 30 baseball games during the four years when that '01 man was in college, including among others 7 defeats by Dartmouth, 5 by Amherst, 2 by Wesleyan, 3 by Yale, and 4 each by Harvard and Holy Cross. During the same time the football team, with much shorter schedules lost 22 contests,—losing 4 to both Wesleyan and Harvard, tying Amherst once and losing once, and suffering defeats from Yale, Dartmouth, Union, and Hamilton among others. Basketball only started as a sport in 1901, Amherst carrying off the honors that year.

"Of course it's fellows like me that can't play any sport well enough who largely support the athletic teams in college by rooting and paying athletic taxes, but where we need lots of support from the alumni is in encouraging good athletes of the right type to come to Williams. Such support would give our teams the highest encouragement imaginable. My! What a crash the Purple will make in the athletic world if only both undergraduates and alumni can cooperate and boost that way in the future."

"Well, maybe you're right. But it does seem as if the College isn't what it used to be."

Moral: If Williams is "down and out" to-day, what will it be in 1941 when Wesleyan is defeated 100-28, the entire track team takes part in the Olympics, and a Williams aviator wins the "Around-the-World" contest.

EXPLAINS LIBRARY RESERVATIONS

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir: I have been interested to read in THE RECORD Mr. Wood's complaint at the lack of adequate Library facilities in the field of the modern novel; since the demands of Literature 14, of which I am in charge, are instanced as a factor in the situation, may I not present certain considerations that appear to have escaped the writer's notice. I am the more anxious to do his because a student who is seemingly prevented from satisfying a preference for Conrad as compared with, let us say, The Cosmopolitan, at once enlists my sympathy.

First may I point out that Literature 14 represents a serious attempt to study modern fiction with something approximating a laboratory method. To carry out this method it is necessary to assemble the material to be analyzed. This has been done by placing in the Goodrich Hall reading room the books to be studied. Similar action is taken in many other advanced courses, and the books thus assembled are reserved for an entire semester, or even year. In the case of Literature 14, however, desiring to put general novel-readers to as little inconvenience as possible, I have distributed the reservations in such fashion that, out of the dozens of prominent contemporary novelists, not more than six are represented on the reserve shelves at any one time, and no books are kept there more than seven weeks,—some but five, and some but three. Moreover, these books, except those actually in use on a given day by members of the course, may be read in Goodrich Hall by any student.

It seems to me, therefore, that the limitations upon novel-reading imposed by the requirements of Literature 14 are slight and temporary; and those limitations have been imposed, with the consent of the proper authorities, on the ground that a college library exists first of all to contribute to the efficacy of recognized college courses; that education takes precedence of entertainment.

Nor is the remedy to be found, if remedy be needed, in the purchase of duplicates. In justice to the Library authorities it should be noted that duplicates have already been obtained in the case of various important novels; but the duplicates themselves are needed in the course during the brief period in which these books are studied.

It is perhaps worth mention, although Literature 14 is not involved, that Mr. Wood appears to have been misinformed in other matters to which he refers. Members of the faculty, as well as students, are notified when library books in their possession are desired by others. "Potterism" could not have been kept for three months by any professor, since the book was not put in circulation till January 17, and has been drawn by several readers since that date. These are minor matters;

but, left uncorrected, they have a way of exciting unwarranted indignation.

May I add that I should have appreciated the courtesy, had Mr. Wood given me opportunity to lay before him personally the foregoing facts?

REGARDING MANAGERSHIPS

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

The communication of March 14 in THE RECORD entitled "Suggest Election Change" seems to embody two thoughts: first, that the sophomore class fails to exercise a just proportion of the elements of merit and of popularity in their selection of five men to be submitted to the College for final vote; and secondly, that the failure to exercise this proper proportion of merit and popularity brings hardship upon the individual who merits, from the work he has performed, but lacks the popularity to get by the class.

The first of the remedies suggested—to deprive the sophomore class of their preliminary vote—reaches to the first of these thoughts; while the second remedy—to have the class pass on the competitors at the start of the competition, reaches to the second.

If the members of the sophomore class admit their inability to return a just vote, let them be deprived of it.

But there seems to be no logic in the second remedy suggested. The argument for it is this: popularity has too much weight in the class balloting after the competition, and therefore we shall ballot before the competition, basing our decisions entirely on popularity. Either way the burden is on the unpopular man, and the class is no better off for they must still say who is the unpopular man. By this second remedy, in so far as the fall competitions are concerned, the stamp of popularity is that determined by freshman year, which is so frequently artificial. The class would send into the football competition the so-called "flashes in the pan." They would deprive the somewhat reticent individual of his very opportunity to know men; of his chance to get a bit of experience and to render service, which service would undoubtedly be of far greater value to a manager than that of the men whom the class would send out. Furthermore, it is not unusual for an individual to be practically unknown at the start of his sophomore year, but by being a candidate in a competition to become one of the most popular men not only in his class but in the College. True, by balloting before the competition this unpopular individual may be spared a lot of unnecessary work, but who can say in September who is to be the popular individual in March, and surely the interest of the individual to freely compete should be preserved.

Behind the thoughts and remedies in the communication of the 14th is the very positive, and I believe correct, feeling that the College should have the final word as to who the manager should be. The reason for this is that the College wants a manager who is fairly representative of their body, and they are willing to sacrifice a certain amount of efficiency to obtain a representative manager. The present system provides for this and at the same time preserves to the individual the interest he has to freely exercise his right to enter a managerial competition.

The first remedy suggested I consider a good one, but I should off-set the increased power given to the management by prohibiting a man of the same Fraternity as that of the manager and his assistant from entering that particular competition.

If the present system is retained I should modify it to this extent: the manager to recommend in the first group a maximum of three (and a minimum of none) making it compulsory for the sophomore class to pass all the men recommended in this group; to recommend in the second group a maximum of five men (and a minimum of three) from which group the class will complete the necessary five, calling if need be on a third group to be made up of all other men in the competition.

INTERCOLLEGIATE

Several Chinese colleges have closed in order to permit the students to enlist their aid in relieving the victims of the Chinese famine. At one university, that of Nanking, the students petitioned the administration to reduce their ration of food, and in most institutions where there are still students at work, the men are sharing the food they receive with victims of the great famine.

Will Raise Prices of Rooms in Dormitories

Advances ranging from 10 to 25 percent in room rents for all of the college dormitories will go into effect next fall. The extra rent is levied to meet the increasing cost of labor and upkeep, which have increased by approximately 75% since the old rates were made. As a general rule rooms now costing under $75 will be raised $10 or $15, between $75 and $100 will be raised $15 or $20. Rooms which now cost between $100 and $120 will be raised $25 or $30, and $120 to $150 rooms will command a raise of from $30 to $40. All rooms now costing $160 will be raised to $200. Full information regarding the new rates may be obtained by applying at the treasurer's office.

Who Was Moseley?

HE was a young Oxford man, only twenty-seven when he was killed at Gallipoli. Up to his time, man had never seen the inside of an atom. He turned the X-rays on matter—not figuratively but literally—and made them disclose the skeleton of an atom just as certainly as a surgeon makes them reveal the positions of the bones of the body. Moseley proved that all atoms are built up of the same kind of matter. He saw, too, just why an atom of copper is different from an atom of gold.

Atoms are built up of electrons. Each atom consists of a nucleus, a kind of sun, with a certain number of electrons grouped about it, like planets. Moseley actually counted the number of electrons of all the metals from aluminum to gold.

When you discover what gold is made of or a new fact about electricity, you open up new possibilities for the use of gold or electricity. For that reason the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are as much concerned with the "how" of things—atoms and electrons, for instance—as they are with mere applications of the electric current.

Hence Moseley's work has been continued in the Research Laboratories, with the result that more has been learned about matter. How does water freeze? What is lead? Why are lead, iron, gold and tungsten malleable? Such questions can be answered more definitely now than ten years ago. And because they can be answered it is possible to make more rapid progress in illumination, in X-ray photography, in wireless telegraphy, and in electrical engineering as a whole.

There would have been no coal-tar industry without the vast amount of research conducted in organic chemistry, and no electro-chemical industry without such work as Sir Humphrey Davy's purely scientific study of an electric current's effect on caustic potash and caustic soda. Sooner or later research in pure science always enriches the world with discoveries that can be practically applied. For these reasons the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company devote so much time to the study of purely scientific problems.

Resuming the custom of making an extended tour during the Spring recess, the Williams College Combined Musical Clubs will present their program during the coming week in six eastern cities, including Pittsfield and Boston, Mass., Providence, R. I., Montclair and East Orange, N. J., and New York City. None of these cities have heard the Clubs since the spring of 1919, inasmuch as last year the itinerary included only western points.

In preparation for the coming trip, the Musical Clubs have already presented two preliminary concerts, the first in the Drury Auditorium, North Adams, on March 23, and the second in Grace Hall last Thursday. Both performances met with such success as to indicate that the program selected by the Clubs and the training they have received are of a high order, well qualified to rank with the best exhibitions of recent years.

In selecting New England and the vicinity of New York for their 1921 tour, the Musical Clubs have chosen centers well populated with Williams Alumni. With the exception of last year's tour through the middle west to Chicago, and the wartime period of 1918, New York and East Orange have appeared on every schedule of the Clubs since 1914, and Montclair has been visited twice since that time. Pittsfield has not been included in the itinerary since 1917, nor Boston since 1916, and this will be the first concert at Providence since 1915.

All the concerts will be followed by dances except at Providence. The music will be furnished by the College Orchestra, which will accompany the Clubs throughout the trip. Local arrangements at all the cities to be visited have been in the hands of committees of alumni, while the management of the organization has had charge of securing patronesses for the different performances.

REVIEW OF BASEBALL TRIPS MADE IN PAST

Southern Practice Took Place in 1915 for First Time—Last Trip in 1917

Although the varsity baseball team had regular southern trips only in the years 1915, 1916, and 1917, it has had some sort of spring training trip each year between 1912 and 1917. Scores made in these pre-season games were not as a rule favorable for the Purple, but the value of the practice which the teams received was apparent in games played later in the year.

Under Coach Andy Coakley the first spring trip of recent years was taken to New York, where Fordham and New York University offered the use of their fields to the squad, and Manager McGraw of the Giants threw open the Polo Grounds for the varsity's practice. Fordham overcame the Purple, 7 to 5, and two teams of the Giants, one made up of regulars, the other of newer players, defeated the Williams team 4 to 2 and 9 to 4, respectively.

In 1915 the nine was allowed to take a southern trip for the first time. When it was over the Purple stood with two victories to its credit and four defeats. Nevertheless the general opinion was to the effect that it had been a successful trip, because of the various strong teams which were met. The University of Virginia conquered the varsity 9-0; Georgetown was triumphant by a score of 5 to 1 in one game, losing the other contest 3 to 2; the University of Pennsylvania was beaten 2-1 in a very close game; Princeton emerged victorious 5-2; and a very strong Columbia team humbled the Purple 10-1 in the last and most one-sided contest of the trip.

Was a Member of Five Teams at Colby—Has Coached in Big Leagues Recently

John W. Coombs is opening his first year as Williams baseball coach with an excellent record as a preparatory school, college, and professional player and coach. Since his graduation from Colby in 1906, Coach Coombs has been closely connected with big league baseball in both the American and the National Leagues.

During his four years at Colby, Coombs was a member of every athletic organization which represented the college and won five "C"s, playing on the football, basketball, track, tennis and baseball teams. After leaving Colby, Coach Coombs joined Connie Mack's Philadelphia "Athletics" and played with them until the 1915 season. When Coombs was connected with this club, it won four American League championships and two

Purple Nine to Meet Six Universities in Trip During the Easter Vacation

COACH, MANAGER AND 15 PLAYERS WILL GO

Purple Schedule Is One of Hardest Faced by Any Northern College in South

For the first time since 1917 the Williams baseball team will make an extended southern trip during the Easter recess. In the course of the trip, which will last from April 6th to 13th, the varsity will face six southern universities, Georgetown, William and Mary, Annapolis, the University of Virginia, the University of Pennsylvania, and Lafayette.

"The trip," according to a statement given to THE RECORD by Coach Coombs, "is one of the hardest that has been taken in the south by a northern college, due to the fact that every game is with one of the larger of the southern universities; but as the result of this fact, the team should be in first class shape for the opening game of the regular schedule with West Point on April 16."

Fifteen players will make the trip in addition to the coach and manager. Coach Coombs will probably take five pitchers, one catcher, five infielders, and four outfielders. Although the men who will make the trip had not been chosen at the time of going to press, they will be picked from the following members of the squad: Finn, Bixby, B. Boynton, C. Boynton, Buck, Clark, Cobb, Dunn, Gregory, Harder, Holmes, Hoyt, Mellen, Monjo, O'Brien, Pease, Richmond, Rounds, Rudolph, Smith, Ward and Wolfe.

The squad will leave Williamstown at 12.15 p. m. next Wednesday and will arrive in New York about 6 going to the Williams Club for supper. They will remain in New York until 12.30, when they leave for Washington, where headquarters will be taken up at the New Ebbitt Hotel. The first game will be played there with Georgetown University at 3.30 p. m. on Thursday.

From Washington the players will go to Williamsburg, Va., where a game with William and Mary College will be called at 4 p. m. Friday afternoon. On Saturday

PERSONAL CRITICISMS ARE GIVEN BY COACH

Observations Made by Mentor of Nine Give Promise of Successful Season

Coach John W. Coombs has given the following individual criticisms of the members of the baseball squad for publication:

Captain John Hartney Finn, 1921—"Steady, earnest, hard player. Indications show that he will be a good hitter."

Ben Lee Boynton, 1921—"Has not been out much due to sickness, but from past records expect him to be an extra valuable outfielder."

William Chapman Burger, 1922—"He is playing out of his position as a catcher but is showing more than the average amount of ability."

Clement Biddle Penrose Cobb, 1922—"He ought to be a very good pitcher and there is hope for a big improvement before the season is far advanced."

Charles Nicholas Harder, 1922—"A hard, conscientious worker who is handicapped at present with bad legs."

Robert Whitelaw Smith, 1922—"He shows that he has played baseball before."

Walter Bernnd Wolfe, 1922—"A left hander who has never pitched before. He has the disposition and marks of a pitcher far above the average."

Wingate Bixby, 1923—"As a utility infielder, I believe he will perform very creditably."

Charles Albert Boynton, 1923—"Indications are that he will be a second Ben."

Edwin Holmes, Jr., 1923—"A pitcher with major league ability who lacks the experience to become a player of that caliber."

morning they will arrive at Annapolis, and a game with the Naval Academy is scheduled there for 2.30 p. m. of the same day. That evening the return trip to Washington will be made, and, after spending the night at the New Ebbitt Hotel, the team will start for Charlottesville, where a short practice will be held Sunday afternoon. On Monday at 4 p. m. a game with the University of Virginia will be played there; and at 8 the squad will leave for Philadelphia, arriving at 7 a. m. Tuesday morning. Headquarters will be taken up at the Hotel Rittenlowe, and a game with the University of Pennsylvania will be played at Franklin Field at 4. At 7 that evening the team will leave for Easton, Pa., where the trip will be finished with the game with Lafayette College on March Field at 4 p. m. Wednesday, April 13. New York will be reached on the return trip in time to catch the special train to Williamstown.

One victory and five defeats resulted, in the shorter southern excursion made in 1916. The University of Pennsylvania, as in the previous year was defeated, this time by a score of 6-4. However, defeats by the University of West Virginia, Georgetown, Princeton and West Point didn't make a favorable ending for the trip.

What proved to be the last spring trip until the one which is to take place next week, occurred in 1917. It consisted of only four games, three of which turned out to be disastrous, and one successful. In the first game, the varsity was beaten by West Point 9-0, only to out-hit New York University a few days later by the score of 14-5. The last two contests were both defeats, one by Annapolis 9-2, the other by the University of Pennsylvania 4-0.

World Titles. In the 1910 World's series, Coombs established the record of pitching three games in five days and winning them all. He was considered one of the hardest pitchers to face in the league. Coombs went to Brooklyn in 1915 and played there through the 1918 baseball season. While with this club, he worked effectively in the World's Series of 1919, which the National League team lost. During 1919 he managed the National League team in Philadelphia and last season was coach of the pitchers of the Detroit club in the American League.

Edward Rogers Monjo, 1923—"According to present indications he ought to be a very good hitter and base-runner."

Wallace Everett Richmond, Jr., 1924—"He will develop as the season advances into a reliable man."

Harry McDonald Rounds, 1923—"He looks very good and will improve with experience."

Richard August Ruether, 1923—"With his experience and being a man of mature age, he will prove a valuable addition to the batting and base-running of the team."

James Crawford Ward, 1923—"A valuable man, conscientious and a hard worker."

Frank Gilbert Gregory, Jr., 1924—"He is above the average college pitcher in ability. He needs more experience to overcome his tendency to be wild which is his only handicap."

Leonard Francis O'Brien, 1924—"A freshman who by the time he graduates will be very proficient. He is learning the game very fast."

Walter Franklin Pease, 1924—"He lacks experience, never having had the opportunity of being properly coached."

ager of Basketball

Hiram William Lyon '22 of Buffalo, N. Y., was elected president of the Williams Christian Association and George Irving Rounds '22 of Newton, N. W. C. A. WILL GIVE MOVIES ON SUNDAY

L. Downer '95 to Give Illustrated Talk in Walden's Theater on Boy's Club

In place of the usual W. C. A. meeting next Sunday evening, Mr. Louis DeF. Downer '95 of the Boys' Club of New York City will speak on the work of that Club in New York and of its summer camp at Jamesport, Long Island, at 7.30 p. m. in Walden's Theater. He will depict the activities of the Club and the Camp with two moving picture reels before his talk.

Mr. Downer will attempt to interest Williams men in taking part in the social work of the Boys' Club among the poor boys of New York's East Side. Numerous Williams graduates are acting as leaders among the 7000 young foreigners whom the Club reaches, but more are needed both in the city and as counselors at the William Carey Camp, at Jamesport, Long Island, where 400 boys from the city are handled every two weeks during the summer. Mr. Downer's pictures will illustrate graphically the conditions and the work carried on, and in his brief talk he will point out the opportunities for service and the compensation.

Williams Receives New Fund for Scholarships

By the will of Edmund C. Converse, of New York City, who died in Pasadena, Cal., on April 5, Williams is the recipient of a gift of $50,000 to establish an E. C. Converse scholarship fund. Among the public bequests, which total about $2,000,000, is one of $200,000 to Amherst for the upkeep and development of the Converse Memorial Library, and nine gifts of $50,000 to various colleges for establishing scholarships similar to that at Williams.

The ten colleges mentioned in the will are Amherst, Bowdoin, Dartmouth, Ikeland, Stanford, Jr., Oberlin, Smith, Trinity, Tuskegee, Wells and Williams. To Harvard is bequeathed Gainsborough's famous picture of Count Rumford. Sums ranging from $5,000 to $500,000 are left to 18 other philanthropic and charitable organizations, chiefly in New York City and Greenwich, Conn. The exact nature of the scholarship to be established at Williams has not yet been ascertained.

Under the auspices of the Whitney Society, Professor Charles H. Grandgent, of Harvard University, will lecture on "Dante" next Monday evening at 8.00 p. m., in Jesup Hall. This meeting of the Society is open, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

The present year marks the 600th anniversary of Dante's death, which took place September 14, 1321. Professor Grandgent is the foremost American authority on the author of the Divine Comedy, and of romance languages in general.

He became a professor of romance languages in 1896, and has been teaching in that department of Harvard since that time. He is a member of the Modern Language Association of America, being elected president of that organization in 1912, and a member of the American Dialect Society, the Société de Linguistique de Paris, and a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

As author of several books such as Italian Grammar, Short French Grammar, German and English Sounds, Introduction to Vulgar Latin, and The Dark Ages, Professor Grandgent has become widely known. OVER 700 PRESENT AT NEW YORK PERFORMANCE

Individual Ability of Members and Results of Excellent Coaching Visible

Enthusiastic approval on the part of large and appreciative audiences featured the spring trip of the Williams College Combined Musical Clubs at each of the six performances given during the recess. The concerts were marked by the skill and ability with which the various numbers were presented, bearing witness to the individual capabilities of the members of the clubs and to the excellent coaching of Mrs. Seeley.

All the concerts were followed by dances with the exception of the one at Providence, R. I. The music for the dancing was furnished by the College Orchestra consisting of Painter '21, Greer and Luedke '22, Jones, Morse and Quaintance '23, and Greer '24. Over 700 attended the performance at New York, and the other concerts averaged 300. This is the first trip to be made by the clubs in the East in recent years and remarks on the part of alumni indicated that it was one of the best organizations of its kind which ever represented Williams.

On April 6, the first concert of the trip was given in the Masonic Hall at Pittsfield before an audience of 300. The local arrangements were in the hands of Carl

On Monday evening, April fourth, Cap and Bells, before an audience that filled Jesup Hall, presented three plays: The Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe from A Midsummer Night's Dream, Poetic License by George Oppenheimer, '20, and George Bernard Shaw's Overruled. The actors enjoyed all the inspiration that comes from friendly and enthusiastic support. There is an atmosphere of homelike intimacy about Jesup that is wanting in the more dignified stateliness of Grace Hall, and every advantage was taken of this Monday evening. The dimming of the lights preliminary to the appearance of Bottom and his rustic band was the signal for spontaneous acclaim, and the initial fervor did not decrease during the remainder of the evening.

In the majority of cases the actors were members of the class of 1924, and the variety of the program gave good opportunity of "trying out" these young aspirants. In a few cases upperclassmen

UNSUCCESSFUL SOUTHERN TRIP PROVIDES VALUABLE PRACTICE

B. Boynton Made Head of New Varsity Club

Ben L. Boynton '21 was elected president of the newly-formed "Varsity Club of Williams College" at a meeting held last evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time, John W. Coddling '21 was chosen vice-president, and Edward A. Fargo secretary-treasurer of the organization.

It is the purpose of the Varsity Club to "stimulate and maintain an interest for the development of a high standard of athletics in the college." There are, under the provisions of the constitution, three classes of membership in the Club—Alumni, Undergraduate, and Honorary, the latter class to include regularly elected coaches of varsity teams and "friends of Williams Athletics." Captains of minor sport teams will be considered "W" men.

WILLIAMS WILL MEET WEST POINT TOMORROW

Varsity Baseball Team to Play Military Academy at West Point

With practically the same line-up as that used during the latter part of the southern training trip, the varsity baseball team will face West Point at West Point, New York, in the first game of the regular schedule, tomorrow afternoon at 3.00 p. m. The Military Academy has an exceptionally strong team this year, having won all of the four games played thus far.

No definite Williams line-up has been announced as yet, though the changes made during the training trip will probably become permanent. B. Boynton has been substituted for Richmond at first base, and the latter has been transferred to short stop. Bixby has taken Boynton's place at center field and the remaining positions have been unchanged. Only two of the West Point players are letter men, Captain Wilhard and McGrath, a pitcher, but long outside practice has benefited the team in learning co-operation. French, Stevenson, Wilhard and Smythe are the heavy hitters of the West Point nine, and are expected to be prominent in the offense.

Without any difficulty the West Point team has won the four games played this year, taking them by large scores. C. C. N. Y. was defeated 8-2, Stevens was defeated 6-0, N. Y. U. was defeated 10-4.

Conference Will Discuss Undergraduate Problems

With the expressed aim of bringing together "representatives of the various universities and colleges at a meeting to discuss problems of undergraduate government and student activities," an intercollegiate conference on undergraduate government will be held today and tomorrow at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass. Joslyn '21, and Clark, Fargo, and Schaffner '22 will be the Williams delegates to the convention, to which men from all of the most important colleges in the United States have been invited.

Subjects of discussion will be divided into four classes—Student Government, Athletic Organization, Publications, and College Theatricals and Musical Clubs. Undergraduates prominent in the various lines under discussion have been placed at the head of committees to supervise the work of the conference. As soon as possible after the close of the convention, full reports of the solutions suggested for the undergraduate problems presented will be printed and distributed to participating institutions, and to all other interested parties.

Plenty of room for improvement formed the chief characterizing feature of the five defeats encountered by the baseball nine in its southern practice trip. William and Mary, Navy, Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Lafayette, five experienced teams faced on successive days, comprised the most difficult spring schedule that any northern nine has played.

Couch Coombs was very far from satisfied with the showing made by the squad during the training trip and expects to make numerous changes in the lineup following the West Point game this Saturday. According to the Coach, Williams, from the scientific standpoint, played better baseball than any opponents faced with the exception of Amapolis. The large scores were due to failure in head-work and execution on the part of inexperienced players at critical junctures, when glaring individual errors accounted for as many as three runs at a time.

In spite of the unbroken string of defeats, the baseball squad gave many instances of latent ability and offered promise of improvement in the immediate future. Six or seven innings of each contest would be good baseball, only to be preceded or followed by two or three weird spasms. The shift in lineup after the first two games strengthened the infield considerably in spite of temporarily disconcerting several players working in unaccustomed positions.

A Rare Opportunity

The lecture on Dante by Professor Grandgent next Monday marks what may be termed the scholarly height of the year in Williamstown. It offers a rare opportunity for undergraduates and citizens of the community to learn something of the great poet from the most important American authority on this and kindred subjects.

The action of the Whitney Society in securing Professor Grandgent for the lecture cannot be too highly commended. All thanks are due to those members of the Faculty whose efforts have made the occasion possible, and have established what we hope may prove to be a precedent. It is by affording such extra-curriculum opportunities that a college can increase enormously the value of its courses of study. Let us hope that many of our readers, recognizing the rare treat that is before them, will attend the lecture; merest courtesy to Professor Grandgent and appreciation of the efforts of the Whitney Society demand an extremely large audience, which would also be the strongest possible argument for encouraging lectures by famous educators of other institutions in the future.

The Southern Trip

Although the result of the southern trip in games and scores was disastrous, it fulfilled the primary object for which such a trip is taken,—namely, training. It was too much to hope that a comparatively inexperienced team, which had had little time for spring practice, could win games against opponents which are numbered among the best teams in the south. The team, however, returns with a training which will prove invaluable in the games of the regular schedule, and a knowledge of baseball which can only be gained by playing against teams which have proved themselves superior. Flashes of brilliant plying, which augur well for future success, were shown in several games, and the confidence of the undergraduate body in the team remains unshaken.

The Easter Vacation

The Easter vacation has come and gone. This year, again, the customary criticism has arisen from the undergraduates, and the often-repeated question, "Why does the Easter recess at Williams begin after the vacations of most colleges and schools are over?" has been asked by relatives and friends.

During the period when the college year at Williams was divided into three terms, a date was set for the Easter vacation such that the semesters would be of equal length. When the two semester system was adopted, the date for the Easter vacation remained unchanged, since it divided the last term into two equal halves; while if the vacation were to include Easter Sunday each year, the terms might be as unequal as seven and eleven weeks.

The present date for the Easter vacation is thus not wholly fixed by custom, but it is evident from the almost universal dissatisfaction that it has important drawbacks. At present the average undergraduate goes home to find friends and relatives already returned to college or school. He finds that all festivities which mark the holidays are over; and while a vacation is theoretically for the purpose of rest, there can be no doubt that it is also anticipated for its social functions, which are necessarily not found in Williamstown.

THE RECORD does not at the present time wish to propose any definite remedy, wishing to look into the conditions at other colleges more thoroughly before taking such a step. Above all, the undergraduate body should see to it that the question is not dropped without complete discussion, for it will be unfortunate if another Easter vacation is allowed to bring the same yearly complaints.

Total Subscription of Relief Drive Announced

Results of the recent European and Chinese Relief drives have just been announced by Assistant Professor A. H. Licklider, chairman of the local committee on publicity and finance. The total subscription of the entire Williamstown community, including that of the student body, is over $6,500.

The report is as follows: "The figures from the recent Hoover Community Dinner, which have just become available, reveal some interesting facts. The net total of all the receipts from tickets, posters, and contributions made at the dinner, amounts to $2,071.12. All contributions made by the student body have been credited to the student fund, which was begun before the dinner took place and not completed at that time. The student committee became part of the dinner committee, and, according to the original agreement of the dinner committee, the undergraduate contributions to the dinner have been divided between the Student Hoover Fund and the Chinese Famine Relief Fund. The largest single contribution at the dinner came from the Sophomore Promenade Committee, which turned over $379.71 to the dinner committee. The auction sale of Mrs. W. M. R. French's superb posters yielded almost as much.

"It is now possible to state with some exactness the grand total given by the entire community of Williamstown to European and Chinese relief during the drives of the past few months. As far as can be ascertained, the following sums were sent in before the dinner: Private subscriptions sent through President Garfield, $2,010; private subscriptions through Mrs. Wild, $915; collections made at the various churches, both Catholic and Protestant, $745.43; other private subscriptions, $50. The total amount given before the dinner is thus $3,720.43. With the proceeds of the dinner ($2,071.12) and the $750.00 of the Student Hoover Fund, the grand total of the entire Community comes to $6,541.55. This does not include the many individual subscriptions sent at various times, of which no records are available."

Three Plays Given

by "Cap and Bells"

had been cast for parts, notably in five instances where the joint evils of curriculum and of administrative rules had necessitated the rushing in of more experienced veterans at the eleventh hour. These more mature experts were noticeable for self-possession, and freedom from the nervousness that from time to time was, naturally enough, evident in the work of the younger men. No fault is more common to amateurs on the stage than constant "wrigglesomeness," perpetual gesticulation, and general want of poise. When the experienced actor uses his hands or changes his position, he does it naturally because the situation demands it, and the result is realistic and convincing. Saint Simon Stylites is said to have been so constantly in motion that at least one practical observer was inspired with a feeling of regret that so much power was going to waste and wished that the holy man might be harnessed in some way as to turn wheels and develop mechanical power, but the words of Hamlet to the players at Elsinore were not inspired by any such considerations. Except for this fault and a tendency to constrict their throats with resultant strained and unnatural vocal phenomena, the various actors gave excellent accounts of themselves and good promise for the future.

In The Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe Mr. Moody and Mr. McAneny in the respective roles of Hippolyta and Philstrate illustrated the absence of the faults just referred to. They were natural in action, self-possessed at all times, and notably clear in their enunciation. They did not force on the spectator the realization that they were acting, and this is, in itself, superlatively successful acting. The play was effectively presented and, aided by the artistic background and costuming arranged by the untiring efforts of Mrs. W. M. R. French, it met enthusiastic reception. Cap and Bells deserves commendation for thus reviving a bit of Elizabethan drama. Such revivals are creditable to the College, and, in every way, contribute more that is worth while than do the attempts of rivaling the fly-by-night triumphs of the Winter Garden or of Greenwich Village.

Mr. Oppenheimer's Poetic License was originally written, we believe, in connection with his work in Rhetoric 8 during undergraduate days, and therefore has a peculiar interest as a Williams product. Though brief, the play is substantial, being based on a sound bit of psychology truth, and this is more than can be said of considerable modern drama. It was successfully carried off by the four actors, particularly in the work of Mr. Terry as the experienced Burglar, a last minute substitute for a freshman originally cast for the part but found ineligible. The action was seriously handicapped by the limitations of the Jesup Hall stage, but the players made the best of the situation. Overruled was well rendered, and the audience was quick to appreciate the author's scintillating wit and lively dialogue as presented by the four members of the cast. The actors gained in power as the play progressed, in itself no mean accomplishment, and their self-possession was notable. Particular credit should here again be given Mr. McAneny for his clearness of enunciation and freedom from amateurish uncertainty of gesture. Considerable might be said regarding the basic soundness of such plays as Overruled and others of the same family: in spite of its undeniable sparkle, it is based on ultimate premises that one hesitates to phrase in brutal categorical propositions, much less to accept or defend as moral formulae. However, as plays, these productions stand the pragmatic test: they "go," and Overruled met a most enthusiastic reception from a delighted audience.

The evening's program was unquestionably successful, and gives reason to hope that similar entertainments will follow. Cap and Bells and all those who assisted in producing the three plays may well feel satisfied with the result of their efforts.

The pitching staff was generally wild, and still stands in need of decided improvement. Gregory was the steadiest man on the mound, and with better support, might have turned in a victory. Wolfe also showed up well in his two brief appearances. Holmes was a disappointment, his wildness being largely instrumental in throwing away three games.

Captain Finn was the most consistent batter during the trip, maintaining a .389 average. He accounted for seven hits and the Boynton brothers distinguished themselves by splitting the only two circuit clouts of the trip between them in the same inning. Bixby starred as a pinch hitter, and thereby earned for himself a position in the outfield.

The infield was guilty of a great many errors in spite of being strengthened by B. Boynton at first. Richmond and Hoyt at short and second base failed to cooperate successfully with Finn in catching runners, with the result that many steals were chalked up against the Purple. Captain Finn did not peg to second with his usual exactness, and proved weak at catching easy pop flies. The rough edges of the infield are getting worn in, however, and the present combination will be more or less permanent unless more good new material is available.

The outfield, which started the trip in the best shape, has been weakened by the withdrawal of B. Boynton and of Reuther, who is ineligible. New material is being sought by the coach.

The team left New York April 8 and traveled over the Pennsylvania road to Washington. Rain caused the cancellation of the game with Georgetown scheduled for that afternoon, and the players seized the opportunity to take a short walk about the streets of the capital. Another all-night ride brought the team to Williamsburg, Va., where the squad secured its first real out-door practice in the morning. Opportunity was given for both batting and fielding practice.

William and Mary, 10; Williams, 1

In the opening game of the spring training trip series the Williams baseball team lost to William and Mary by a 10-1 score, eight runs being directly due to as many errors. Gregory pitched a steady, careful game, but received poor support.

Navy, 15; Williams, 1

The Navy's heavy stick work and the effectiveness of Fleming, the plebe pitcher, led the middies to a 15-1 victory over Williams on a rain-lrenched diamond. The midshipmen batted safely 19 times, driving Holmes out of the box in the first inning by putting six runs over the plate.

Cobb struggled the remainder of the contest, pitching fair ball after the first two innings. Bisby, going in as a pinch hitter in the ninth, hit safely and came home on Boynton's fly which was fumbled. The score:

Virginia, 6; Williams, 5

In the contest with the University of Virginia Holmes, who started on the mound for Williams, was liberal with his passes and forced in two runs, Virginia winning 6-5. The southerners were given a scare in the ninth when the count was knotted, but Gregory, who succeeded Holmes, was touched for a double and a triple, the latter of which O'Brien misjudged, and Stauffer scored the winning run with one out.

Infield errors gave Williams her first run. Hoyt walked in the seventh and scored on successive singles by Finn and Monjo. In the ninth a hit by Ruether and three infield errors yielded two runs. Ward's running catch of Sexton's long foul was the fielding feature. The score:

Pennsylvania, 6; Williams, 1

In the fourth game Williams was defeated by the University of Pennsylvania by a 6-1 score. Llewellyn and Larson both pitched good ball, and Gregory toiled for Williams, holding Penn in check after three errors had contributed to runs early in the game. The opposing team stole eight bases, McNichol leading with three. Harvey's spectacular one-hand catch of Boynton's near home-run was the fielding feature. The score:

FRESHMAN NINE WILL PLAY PAWLING SCHOOL

First Year Men to Open Schedule Tomorrow Against Strong Opposing Team

In the first game of the season the freshman baseball nine will oppose Pawling on Weston Field tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 p. m. Because of the fact that five players on the preparatory school team are veterans of last year's season, the first year men are expecting plenty of opposition.

Coach Coombs has devoted as much of his time as possible to the supervision of the practice of the 1924 squad, and in spite of the comparatively short time which the team has had to play as a unit, indications point to it as one probably above the average. Buck at second base, O'Brien at short stop, and Pease as pitcher have all had experience on the varsity squad, and will accordingly be a strong addition to the Freshmen. Pawling, on the other hand, has the advantage of having recently won one game, against Mohegan Preparatory School, the first on its schedule.

Little change in the intramural basketball standing was brought about by the spring recess. Delta Upsilon strengthened its games played immediately before the claim to first place in League B by defeating Theta Delta Chi on Tuesday, April 5, by the score of 24-3. At present a number of games remain to be played before the series will be concluded. A schedule for the remaining games is being made out by Manager Burger '22.

and Union was vanquished by the score of 14-2. These teams are considerably weaker than those which Williams faced during the training trip and consequently nothing can be determined from the past records of either nine, but there can be no doubt that West Point has as good an aggregation as usual.

TENNIS SEASON WILL OPEN IN NEAR FUTURE

Exhibition Contests, Intramural and Class Tournaments to Be New Features

HARD SCHEDULE FOR TEAM

13 Matches Arranged for Varsity Netmen with Various Eastern Institutions

Exhibition matches between the leading tennis experts in the country, class and intramural tournaments, a long and difficult schedule, and the complete revision of the former system for the use of the courts are the outstanding features in the plan to be put into operation this year by the tennis association in an effort to stimulate an interest in tennis in Williams. All the members of last year's team are eligible to play this season and Captain Bullock expects to have one of the best teams in recent years at Williams.

Candidates for the varsity will be called out in the near future, as all eight courts will soon be in excellent condition. They will be marked with line lines instead of tape and will be taken charge of by a caretaker provided by the College. A record will be kept of the first 25 tennis players in College, and the ratings on this list will be based on the ability of the individual player. The team will be picked largely on the basis of these ratings.

Drawings for the class tournament will be posted in Hopkins Hall on Tuesday. This contest will consist of singles only, and the individual winner from each class will be given a cup. The entry fee of $5.00 must be paid to Larkin '23 at the courts at the time of the first match next Wednesday. The intramural tournament will start in about 10 days and it is urged that all fraternities place their courts in condition in order to relieve the College courts. Each fraternity and eating house will be represented by two singles players and one doubles team. Men who are on the varsity or who are candidates for it will be ineligible to play in this tournament.

Captain Bullock has sent invitations to

He was a member of the Delta Psi fraternity and the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and of the Williams College Alumni Association of Eastern New York. Mr. Leonard was an editor of "Songs of Williams," published in 1898.

Two New Positions on "Graphic" to Be Filled

Two new members will be elected to the editorial board of the Graphic next week, as a result of competitions to be held during the next few days. The test for Proof Reader will be held tonight in Jesup Hall.

1924 NINE DEFEATED BY PAWLING 11 TO 5

Freshmen are Outplayed in First Game of Season—Visitors Bat Heavily

In a game featured by general loose playing, the freshmen baseball season was ushered in last Saturday afternoon when the 1924 nine was defeated 11 to 5 on Weston Field by Pawling. Frequent errors by the freshmen and the ability of the Pawling players to hit the 1924 pitchers were the main factors in the visitors' victory.

For the freshmen, O'Brien proved to be the most valuable man, having three hits and two runs to his credit. In the box Pense handicapped in the first part of the game by poor infield support, allowed eight hits and four passes and struck out only one man. Klapproth was substituted in the fifth inning and struck out three men in as many innings. Ritchey, with a three-bagger and a single, and Kelley with two doubles led the attack for the visitors.

Pawling took the lead in the second inning when errors by Bigelow and Buek and a base hit by Ritchey scored four men. Bunched hits and two errors by Fiacke started another rally for the visitors in the fourth, and five runs were scored. The only possible opportunity for 1924 to tie the score came in the fifth when O'Brien and Hoffman scored, advanced by stolen bases and Klapproth's sacrifice hit. Three hits were made by the freshmen in the ninth inning, but in each case the following batter failed to hit safely, and O'Brien scored the only run.

Score by innings:
Williams 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E
1924 . . . 1 0 0 1 2 0 0 0 1—5 8 9
Pawling . . . 0 4 0 5 0 0 0 2 0—11 10 3

Batteries: Pawling—Austin, Dougherty, and Washburn; Williams 1924—Pease, Klapproth, Rudolph, and Stevenson.

College Smoker Cancelled
Due to the lateness of the season, and lack of talent and funds, the College Smoker for this year was definitely cancelled at a meeting of the Committee held yesterday morning in Jesup Hall.

TRACK TRIALS TO BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY

More Candidates Needed in Field Events—Coombs in Charge of Weight Men

Trials for the Union meet, which will open the track season on April 30, will be run off on Weston Field next Saturday at 2.30 p. m. In preparation for this meet the squad is at present working out daily under the new system of practice, by which Coach Seeley is able to give the candidates individual help during free periods in the morning and afternoon.

Practice in the field events has been handicapped by a lack of candidates and Coach Seeley has issued a call for more men in this department. Wallace is showing good form in the high jump, and Hibbard is making marked improvement in the hammer throw. Coach Coombs, of the baseball team, has already begun work with the weight men.

P. Phillips, Barnes, Beale, and Mason are all doing good work in the hurdles, and this department promises to be strong. Olcott has shown speed in the track events, and Coach Seeley hopes to develop him into a valuable runner. Captain Crofts, Coan and Fauce are exhibiting their usual form in the distances, and are counted on to score heavily throughout the season. Kellogg and Richmond are taking care of the half and quarter miles respectively, and P. Brown and Chapin are working out daily in the pole vault.

A convenience training table was started yesterday at the Commons Club for the most promising members of the track squad. Other men will be added as the season progresses. The members of the squad who are now eating at the table are: Crofts, Coan, Codding, Kellogg, Hibbard, and Towne '21; Adams, P. Brown, MacWhorter, P. Phillips, Mendes, Richmond, and Wallace '22; Barnes, Beale, Chapin, Fauce, C. Jones, and Stowers '23; and Mason and Miller '24.

"Cap and Bells" to Hold Meeting for Elections

Cap and Bells will hold a meeting at 9 p. m. tonight in Jesup Hall to elect officers and managers for the coming year. Recommendations of competitors for the assistant business managership, assistant stage managership, and property managership will be submitted, and men elected to fill those positions.

Twenty-one men tried out last Friday and Saturday afternoons for the cast of "Much Ado About Nothing," which will be presented by Cap and Bells on Decoration Day, and at some time during the alumni reunion. Most of the candidates, however, are freshmen, and it is desired that more upperclassmen, who have had experience in acting, report. Preparations for the production are already well under way. Mr. Albert Lang, who has coached the society for many years, will have charge of the production of "Much Ado About Nothing."

Former Japanese Foreign Secretary Is to Lecture

Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, of New York City, will address a meeting of the Forum next Monday evening at 7.30 p. m. in Jesup Hall, taking as his subject, "Japan's Relations With America." Dr. Iyenaga is well known throughout the country for his lectures on political science, and the present American-Japan situation. At one time he held the position of Secretary of the Department of Foreign Affairs in Japan, and since 1901 he has been the Lecturer of Political Sciences at the University of Chicago.

LECTURE ILLUSTRATED BY MOVING PICTURES

Louis DeF. Downer '95 Addresses W. C. A. Meeting on Work of N. Y. Boys' Club

Characterizing social work with boys as "not a sacrifice, but an opportunity for service," Mr. Louis DeF. Downer '95, superintendent of the Boys' Club of New York City, gave a talk on the work of his club and the summer camp connected with it before the W. C. A. in Walden's Theater yesterday evening. He illustrated his talk with two reels of moving pictures picturing the activities of both Club and Camp.

"The Boys' Club," said Mr. Downer, "is located among the crowded tenements of New York's lower East Side, where the thousands of boys have nothing to do except play in the streets or learn to become thieves. The Boys' Club handles about 8000 of these boys. After paying membership fees of from 10 to 20 cents, they are free to make use of all the educational and recreational facilities of the building. The younger boys engage in violin and art classes, enjoy the gymnasium, swimming pool and movie shows, and learn to take care of themselves physically. The older boys' "gangs" are organized into individual athletic clubs, some 70 or 80 in all, between whom the keenest competition exists, and which turn out some excellent basketball, boxing and wrestling teams.

"The Club appeals to the boys because they can take up whatever activity they want and because they handle their own discipline, each athletic club taking care of its own members. This creates personal pride and esprit de corps. The soul of the Boys' Club is the Faculty, made up of college graduates who volunteer their services one night a week, each leader remaining with his group until they graduate into the ranks of the Men's Club."

The first moving picture reel showed the boys of the Club at work and play. Camp William Carey, at Jamesport, Long Island, 80 miles from New York, was the subject of the second reel. About 400 boys are taken for periods of two weeks at the camp, where, said Mr. Downer, under the guidance of college men they are influenced more than during all the rest of the year. Mr. Downer asked that as many Williams men as possible act as counselors during the coming summer. The camp period will extend from June 25 to Labor Day, and the pay for the summer is $50.

ARMY VICTORIOUS OVER PURPLE 9-4

Failure to Hit in Pinches Costs Varsity Its First Regular Scheduled Game

FINN AND GREGORY ARE STARS OF LOSING TEAM

Fourteen Williams Runners Left on Bases—French of Army Is Heavy Hitter

West Point, N. Y., April 16—Williams lost its first baseball game of the regular season here this afternoon to West Point by the score of 9 to 4. Although making one more hit than the opposing nine, the Purple failed to hit in the pinches, leaving 14 men on bases, and this weakness coupled with poor baseball judgment at critical periods was largely responsible for the visiting team's defeat.

Except for passing six men and forcing in one run in the second inning, Gregory did fair work on the mound for Williams. He allowed his opponents 10 hits and struck out six men in eight innings, and in addition knocked out a triple and reached first on balls and on a fielder's choice. Captain Finn with a single and a double did the best hitting for the Purple, though French with a double and a triple proved himself the heavy hitter of the afternoon.

The game opened auspiciously for Williams with Bixby, Ward, and Richmond filling the bases and Bixby scoring a run. Then Ward was put out at third. B. Boynton reached first, but a double play caught both Richmond and Boynton. West Point quickly filled the bases through an error, a fielder's choice, and a single, but the next man up struck out. A single to right field scored French and Stevenson, and another, after Smith had struck out, brought in Wilbide and Smythe. Rowland struck out.

In the second frame the bases were filled when Monjo singled, C. Boynton was passed, and Bixby was struck by the pitcher, but the chance for a score was lost when Ward struck out with two men already down. West Point, on the other hand, increased its lead by two runs through French's two-base hit and the passing of four men by the Williams pitcher. During the next three frames neither side scored, although Williams lost a good chance in the fourth when men were left on second and third. The few

IMPORTANT CHANGES FOR WESTON FIELD

Funds Recently Appropriated by College Will be Used for Improvements

Weston Field will undergo a number of important changes in the near future, according to the plans of the College Administration, which has recently appropriated funds to make many much needed improvements on the College athletic grounds. Among the more important of the alterations which will be made is the institution of a system of roads whereby automobile and pedestrian traffic will be kept in separate lanes, thus rendering greater protection to foot-traffic.

In order to facilitate the handling of crowds, a new entrance for automobiles will be made, the road for the purpose being constructed to take care of traffic coming from the east side of the Field. The existing road on the Spring Street side of the field will be widened and improved. Unique in its non-climbable features, a seven-foot steel-wire fence is to be erected, which will enclose the entire acreage of the Field. If funds are sufficient, concrete pillars will be placed along the street frontage and at the corners and angles of the fencing in order to present a more dignified appearance.

Proper Solution of the Chapel Problem.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

A Reminder

Frequently those who would like to attend a lecture or entertainment in the evening fail to remember the occasion at the time or to appreciate its character.
THE RECORD wishes to call the attention of its readers once more to the opportunity presented this evening in the talk of Professor Grandgent on "Dante," which promises to be one of the most worth-while lectures of the year.

Exit the Smoker?

Despite the general protests aroused when alumni criticize the disappearance of "virility" at Williams, now and then grounds for such criticism arise. The action of the College Smoker Committee in abandoning this year's Smoker is an example of a lack of interest and initiative that might well be catalogued under the head of "loss of virility."

The passing of the time-honored Smoker, even for a year, would be another step in the process of destroying the oldest and best Williams traditions, whose departure is lamented year after year. And when the causes for such action are as trivial and unnecessary as those actuating the Smoker Committee, the College and alumni have a right to complain.

If laziness on the part of the Committee is the reason for dropping the Smoker, nothing but universal condemnation can result. If a lack of funds is to blame, then the Non-Athletic Council should see that enough money is appropriated or if necessary assessed. If the chief cause of this action is a dearth of talent among the undergraduates, certainly the Committee could have staged a Smoker on a smaller scale, thus putting the responsibility for success or failure directly up to the student body.

Something should be done, and done at once, to satisfy undergraduate opinion.
A new committee of men who have the time and energy to do the work should be appointed. The book and songs are already written, the cast selected, and some of the costumes made. The Smoker could then be presented by the middle of May, for a finished and artistically rounded production is of course not to be expected.

A Boom for Tennis

Due to the efforts of Captain Bullock and Manager Towne of the tennis association, Williams has inaugurated a new and beneficial system of regulation for that sport. Under this new plan of ratings explained elsewhere in THE RECORD, every undergraduate will be given an equal opportunity for membership on the tennis team. The management will grade the players according to individual ability as in the national ranking list and this should be of distinct advantage in the selection of the Williams team. Much criticism has been expressed in the past concerning the choosing of the members of the varsity, the tennis team has been called a "closed corporation," and charges of favoritism have been brought against the captains.

The management in addition, has gone to unusual trouble in arranging a comprehensive schedule for the team this season. With two exceptions, all the important colleges and universities in the East are included. Another feature of the plan is the policy of giving the team the unrestricted right to two of the courts and apportioning the use of the other six according to a schedule to be posted in Hopkins Hall. By forbidding any person to use a court for more than one hour consecutively, opportunities to play will be more evenly distributed among all the undergraduates. In furthering this policy of making tennis a more general sport at Williams, the planned week-end exhibition matches on the College courts between national experts will undoubtedly stimulate interest. The innovation of class and intramural tournaments will also tend to promote the value of tennis in Williams.

The entire program is comprehensive and progressive and is thoroughly in keeping with the Williams policy of "athletics for all." The men back of it are entitled to the congratulation and thanks of the entire College.

Four Men Attend Meeting

Joslyn '21, and Clark, Fargo and Schauffer '22 represented Williams at the intercollegiate conference on undergradi-ate government held last Friday and Saturday at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass. Joslyn was the representative on Student Government, Clark on College Theatricals and Musical Clubs, Fargo on Athletic Organization, and Schauffer on Publications.

"Record" Has Annual Banquet

Members of the editorial and business boards of THE RECORD held their annual banquet last Saturday evening at the Hotel Richmond in North Adams. Both old and new boards attended, besides one member of the 1919 board and four invited guests. After-dinner speeches were more in order than usual due to the decision of the board that the banquet be a strictly "dry" affair.

Freshman Captain Elected

Leonard Francis O'Brien of North Adams was elected captain of the 1924 baseball team at a meeting of the squad last Friday afternoon in Lasell Gymnasium. He played for three years on the Drury High School team, being captain his senior year, and took the recent southern trip with the varsity, playing in several games.

Dr. Garfield Guest of Honor

President Harry A. Garfield was guest of honor at the annual meeting of the Williams Alumni Association of Eastern Pennsylvania, held April 8 at the University Club, Philadelphia.

Army Victorious

Over Purple 9-4

hits registered were scattered, and good fielding prevented them from counting.

In the sixth inning Williams staged a hopeful rally which netted three runs. Monjo and C. Boynton got on base through singles, and when McGrath passed the next two men up, Monjo was forced in. At this point Cragin replaced McGrath on the mound, and Ward made a sacrifice fly which scored C. Boynton. Gregory also came in with the last Williams run of the game when Richmond was put out at first on a fielder's choice. B. Boynton struck out. West Point, however, duplicated Williams' performance. Cragin went out on a fly to Richmond, but French's triple, followed by three singles and a sacrifice fly to center, brought in three runs for the Army, making the score 9-4 in favor of the home team.

The seventh and eighth innings were short, with four men up for Williams in each period and five for West Point. A possible score by the Army was prevented when Finn put Burns out at the home plate.

In the last period, Finn started what looked like a ninth-inning rally by pounding out a double to left field. But Hoyt and Monjo went out on flies, and C. Boynton was put out at first.

the leading tennis players in the country and will arrange exhibition matches between men who stand high in the national rating on three week-ends during the spring. Only the foremost experts have been asked and Captain Bullock expects that this feature will be of great value in stimulating the interest in tennis in Williams. Another essential part in the new system is the method to be used in obtaining courts. A list will be posted in Hopkins Hall and a student or member of the faculty may sign up for the use of one of the courts for an hour at a time. Two of the courts will be reserved all the time for the practice of the tennis team.

This year's tennis schedule of 13 matches, including seven in Williamstown, is the longest and hardest ever attempted by a Williams team. Games have been arranged with most of the large colleges in the East with the exception of Princeton and Yale. The complete schedule as ratified is as follows:

April 23—Union at Schenectady.
April 29—Harvard at Cambridge.
April 30—M. I. T. at Cambridge.
May 4—Trinity at Williamstown.
May 6—Hamilton at Williamstown.
May 7—Columbia at Williamstown.

M. A. C. OPPOSES PURPLE TOMORROW

Visitors Have Played Two Games
This Week—Stevens Tech
Defeated 9-1

LINE-UP CHANGED FOR FIRST HOME CONTEST

Richmond Again at First, Boynton Returns to Center—Gregory or Holmes to Pitch

In the first home game of the season, the Williams baseball team will oppose Massachusetts Agricultural College tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 p. m. on Weston Field. The M. A. C. team opened its schedule this week, playing Stevens Institute of Technology last Wednesday, and Brooklyn Tech yesterday.

Considerable confidence is evident in M. A. C. circles in regard to the outcome of tomorrow's game, but the practice of this week, though somewhat hampered by poor weather conditions, has shown a decided improvement in the hitting of the Williams team. In the practice game played against Cape Prindle's pick-up team, poor fielding caused an 8-7 defeat. Gregory, Holmes, and Wolfe were all on the mound during some part of the game, and the pitching was good, though poor support was evident.

Catch Combs has changed the lineup for tomorrow's contest, and the opening of the game will find Richmond back at first and B. Boynton at centerfield again. R. Mellen will replace C. Boynton at right-field, and O'Brien will return to the short-stop position, which Richmond has been holding down while B. Boynton was at first. Either Holmes or Gregory will be on the mound for Williams.

M. A. C. defeated Stevens in the first scheduled game of the former's season last Wednesday, 9-1. Kroeck and Lent, playing first and short respectively, were heavy hitters, the former scoring a double.

JAPANESE PROFESSOR WILL ADDRESS FORUM

Former State Official to Speak on Relations Between U. S. and His Nation

Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, of New York City, will speak on "Japan's Relations with the United States" before a meeting of the Forum next Monday evening at 7.30 p. m. in Jesup Hall. At the close of the address, the officers of the Forum for next year will be elected, all undergraduates being eligible to vote.

By reason of his experience as a Japanese official and as a representative of his government in several foreign countries, as well as by his long residence as a student in this country, Dr. Iyenaga is well qualified to speak on the important subject which he has chosen. His many addresses on similar subjects have made a notable place for him as a lecturer in this country.

After receiving degrees at Oberlin College and Johns Hopkins University, Dr. Iyenaga returned to Japan in 1890 to occupy the chair of political science at the Waseda University and the Higher Commercial College in Tokyo. In 1895 he was appointed a secretary for the Department of Foreign Affairs and in 1898 became Commissioner of the Formosan Government to India, Persia, Turkey and China. He was called to this country again in 1901 and became lecturing professor of political science at the University of Chicago, which position he held until 1913, when he undertook the same position at Columbia University. At the present time Dr. Iyenaga is a director of the East and West News Bureau in New York City.

TENNIS SEASON ON

Varsity to Face Union in Opening Match

Williams will open its tennis season against Union in Schenectady tomorrow with every chance of success. Although the team has had little practice as yet because of the poor condition of the courts, five of the men who will make the trip have had one or more years of experience, and should form an unusually strong combination.

Chapin won a "W" last year by his victory at the New England intercollegiate both in the singles and with Captain Pollard, in the doubles, and can probably be counted on to win his match. Captain Bullock, Rowse, Fraker were awarded "W's" last year. H. Prescott and C. Taylor both took part in one or more matches, and have been showing good form in the few practices which have been held this season.

Union has the services of three letter men, Captain Hawkes, Wilbur, and Kay. The other two members of the squad, Rice and Wright, have both had previous experience. Union was defeated last year by a score of 6-0 by practically the same team which will play tomorrow. Since Union has not been materially strengthened by material from the freshman class, a victory for the varsity is likely.

CLARK CHOSEN HEAD OF 'CAP AND BELLS'

Rose Elected Secretary—Cast of Spring Production Tentatively Picked

Warren C. Clark '22, of Springfield, Mass., was elected president of Cap and Bells at a meeting of the Corporation held last Monday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time Douglas H. Rose II '22, of Baltimore, Md., was chosen secretary, Herbert McAneny '23, of New York City, delegate-at-large, and Professor Karl E. Weston '96 was re-elected treasurer.

As the result of competitions, four men were elected to the business staff of the Corporation, as follows: assistant business manager, Taylor '23; assistant press manager, Fitchen '23; assistant stage manager, Ayer '23; assistant property manager, Byers '23.

Clark prepared for college at the Central High School of Springfield, where he was active in dramatics, business manager of the year book, and a class day officer. As a member of Cap and Bells he has had leading parts in Stap Thy and The Beau's Stratagem, and has for two years been a member of the varsity football squad and of his class football team. He is a member

TRACK TRYOUTS TO COME ON SATURDAY

Final Trials for First Meet of Season With Union Will be Held Tomorrow

In order to afford a basis on which the selection of the men who will enter a dual meet with Union, Saturday, April 30, can be made, the trial track meet for all events will be held tomorrow at 2.30 p. m. on Weston Field, and it is expected that practically all of the 76 candidates now reporting to Coach Seelye will enter.

Although the deficiency in candidates for the field events has not been overcome completely there have been several additions to the squad in this department, and Fargo '21 is rapidly improving in the discus throw. The sprint men are steadily cutting down their times, and the large number of candidates for this branch points to a group of very fast short-distance men for the team. More can be determined, however, after the meet tomorrow, and the actual times will afford a means of comparison with the other colleges on this year's schedule.

New Organization Formed

With the purpose of stimulating interest in all movements for international peace and disseminating information as to the nature of plans such as the League of Nations, an organization, to be known tentatively as the International Relations Club, was formed last Tuesday evening. Thexton '21 was elected president and Oliver '23 secretary.

It is planned to hold another open meeting in the near future, at which time it is hoped to enlarge the membership to include all members of the undergraduate body who are interested in the subject of international relations. The newly-formed organization will cooperate with the Forum in securing speakers to appear before the College during the coming year. Efforts will be made to secure men of world-wide note, such as ex-Pres. William Howard Taft, who have made deep study of the subject of international peace. Several national organizations have already offered to assist in this matter, and it is expected that the organization will be the means of bringing before the College a large number of speakers of ability and prominence.

DANTE CALLED FATHER OF ITALY IN LECTURE

Professor Grandgent of Harvard Lauds Famous Poet Before
Whitney Society

"Mystic, Italian, poet, thus he appeals to his countrymen and to all the world to whom he is known" was the characterization of Dante given last Monday evening by Professor Charles H. Grandgent, of Harvard University, in his speech before the open meeting of the Whitney Society in commemoration of the 600th anniversary of the death of the famous poet. The speaker took as the subject of his address "There shined a light round about him from Heaven," and discussed at length the love and admiration which the Italians bear for their prophet and his great symbolism.

"Dante is the culmination of his age, as the 'Divine Comedy' throws into the shadow all the utilitarian inventions of that era. The Italians revere him as the founder of their national language. He is a fit companion for the finest singers of antiquity."

RECORD TO RECEIVE NEWS BY WIRELESS

Service Organized by Brown
Daily Herald—Baseball
Scores Reported

In co-operation with the Intercollegiate Wireless News Service, recently organized by the Brown Daily Herald of Brown University, The Record will receive and send reports of the scores of the Eastern college baseball games, which will be posted for the College twice a week. This movement on the part of the college publications of the East is expected to promote a new field of wireless communication between various papers, which will materially aid in the quick transmission of important news.

Muekenhaupt '22 will do the sending and receiving of the scores, using the instruments of the son of T. B. Banks of Williamstown. The news is to be received Wednesday and Saturdays, and will be posted on an illuminated bulletin board outside the Record office at 8.15 p. m. of those evenings. In this way the comparative strength of the teams on the Williams schedule can be ascertained.

Five speakers of international repute and representative of different nations and political views have been secured by the administration of the Institute for Politics to deliver lectures at the session this summer. These men are prominent in the politics not only of their own country but of the world.

The Honorable Stephen Panarettoff, of Bulgaria, is a graduate of Roberts College, Constantinople, where he taught from 1871 to 1914. He was the head of the department of Bulgarian and Slavic languages and literature. In 1876 he was connected with the movement to make public the Turkish massacres in Bulgaria, and was sent to England by his government in 1879 on a mission which ultimately led to the emancipation of his country from Turkish rule. Mr. Panarettoff was appointed in 1914 the first Minister of his nation to the United States. He is a member of the Bulgarian Academy of Sciences.

Baron Sergius A. Korff, of Russia, was born in Petrograd in 1876 and was educated at Petrograd University and Law School. S. A. JONES '23 WINS SWIMMING CAPTAINCY

Newly Elected Leader Shattered Three Plunge Records in Past Season

Sherman A. Jones '23, of New York City, was elected captain of the 1922 varsity swimming team at a meeting of the squad held last Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall.

Jones prepared for Williams at the Berkshire School, Sheffield, Mass., where he was for four years a member of the football team and captain in his Senior year. He was president of the Dramatic and Musical Clubs, vice-president of the Senior class, a member of the Senior Council, and an editor of The Annual, the Berkshire School year book.

Since coming to Williams, Jones won his "W" in swimming last year by taking second place in the plunge in the New England Intercollegiate. This winter he has been a consistent winner and has broken three tank records in the meets with R. P. I., Wesleyan and Amherst. He played on his class football team in his freshman year and was a member of the Smoker cast. Jones played on the varsity football team last fall, and was elected to the Smoker Committee and Musical Clubs. He is a member of the Sigma Phi fraternity.

More About the Smoker

Supplementary to the recent editorial in these columns regarding the forlorn Smoker, apparently "lost, strayed, or stolen," a word might be said regarding the standpoint of the committee in charge. The 1921 Smoker committee was not appointed until the latter part of February, approximately three months later than is usually the case. The 1920 Smoker was written and ready for rehearsal before the beginning of the Christmas vacation, while at that time this year the committee was not as yet formed.

The result of this was that the burden of the work of producing the Smoker fell during the last term, when time, that would ordinarily be given freely during the comparatively inactive months of bad weather preceding the Easter recess, is scarce because of the rush of spring activities. This delay combined with the apparent deficiency in high-grade talent for the production of a successful Smoker, the RECORD believes form the chief apologies of the committee.

The fact remains, however, that if hard work had been started immediately after the appointment of the committee, the production of a smoker, in which imperfections would have been pardoned on the grounds of lack of time, would have been possible. Inasmuch as the committee did not look ahead and did not take advantage of the time they did have, the censure of the College is deserved. As it does not seem feasible at this late date to ask any new committee to undertake the work of producing a Smoker when more important things demand attention, the only recourse left is to point out the obvious moral for next year.

Cooperation Replaces Rivalry

Few members of the busy undergraduate body paused last week-end to give thought to the Intercollegiate Conference dealing with all the larger phases of student activities, which assembled at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Yet it was a red-letter event in the history of intercollegiate relations. A worthy precedent was set in this first undergraduate conference of its kind in the splendid spirit of co-operation and of mutual helpfulness which prompted it and permeated those present.

The 134 representatives, coming from nearly every institution of higher learning east of the Mississippi and some even west, rapidly found that there was much in common between the organizations in various colleges or universities and in the problems which they faced. The principal object of the discussions was to make possible the application of solutions arrived at independently elsewhere to special difficulties at other institutions.

Williams had much to contribute and much to learn. Problems concerning athletics, about the Honor System, student government, and social relations, and with regard to publications and dramatics were all brought up, and her representatives were told how the same situations were met elsewhere—with better or worse results. The profit was mutual in nearly every case.

Credit for the efficient management of the conference belongs exclusively to M. I. T. which set a remarkable example of whole-hearted welcome and hospitality. The challenge of the meetings and of the activities discussed to college men is ably set forth in an editorial by the Boston Transcript, extracts of which follow:

"The realm of the extra curriculum is fittingly the place for the student to learn the responsibilities and the duties of citizenship in a self-governing democracy. Outside of the classroom, in most of our colleges, the undergraduate has open to him splendid opportunities for self-improvement, and for the cultivation of the qualities that make for success in the business world. As editors of college papers, as candidates for athletic teams, as members of fraternities and committees, and as members of student councils, the American undergraduates can prepare themselves for the more stirring and keener game of life. If an American college is not a miniature of the outside world, its problems, in the main, are similar. Hard work, courage and industry bring their rewards in college no less than they do later. Not every man who 'mucks good' in college wins his spurs in his chosen profession, but there are few men who are not better equipped for their life work through having spent four years in the competition of an American college."

"Not all that the college has to teach is offered in the curriculum; the extra curriculum, in its turn may be a training school of mind and character. It is a recognition of this truth which has prompted the holding of the present conference on undergraduate government."

CURTAIN RUNG UP ON INTRAMURAL BASEBALL

Five Games Open 1921 Season—Schedule for the Week
Is Announced

This year's intramural baseball season was opened last Wednesday afternoon on Cole Field when the Delta Kappa Epsilon team won over the Chi Psi nine 2 to 1 and Beta Theta Pi defeated the Commons Club 7 to 5. Three games were also played yesterday afternoon when Phi Gamma Delta beat the Kappa Alpha team 12 to 5, the Phi Delta Theta nine 6 ok a game from Phi Sigma Kappa 7 to 2, and Delta Upsilon defeated the St. Anthony representatives 10 to 1.

All games are to be of five innings duration, but in case of a tie, at the end of five innings, the game is to be continued until decided. Games postponed on account of rain will be played off on open dates determined by the respective teams and Manager Irwin '21. The weekly schedule will appear on the bulletin board in Hopkins Hall and a daily schedule will be printed in the Advertiser. A baseball competitor will be at Cole Field each afternoon at 4.15 with a list of the games to be played and to see that scheduled games are played off before postponed ones. Teams are to furnish their own balls, bats, and masks; chest protectors and bases will be supplied by the baseball competitor. All men are eligible for the teams except those who have won their "W" in baseball and those on the present squad, a list of which was posted in the gymnasium today by Coach Coombs.

The schedule for games to be played today and Monday is as follows: American League—Sigma Phi vs. Zeta Psi, and the Commons Club vs. Delta Kappa Epsilon, today. Beta Theta Pi vs. Chi Psi, next Monday. National League—Psi Upsilon vs. Theta Delta Chi, today, the Faculty vs. Delta Upsilon and Alpha Delta Phi vs. Delta Psi, next Monday.

Appoint W. C. A. Chairmen

President-elect Lyon, of the W. C. A., has announced the following appointments to the positions of committee chairmen for the coming year: Boys' Work—P. Phillips '22; Charities—Wightman '23; College religious work—Preston '22; Community religious work—Bowen '23; Deputations—Harder '22; Educational—Learned '22; Finance and Membership—Sayen '22; Mission Study—Count '22; Handbook and Publicity—Angevine '23; Life Work Schaufler '22; and Speakers—Adams '22.

Basketball Games Unplayed

Due to the fact that the baskets have been temporarily removed from the basketball court in Lasell gymnasium, no games have taken place in the intramural series since before the spring recess. The court will be in condition in the near future, however, so that the remaining contests may be played off.

College Baseball Scores

The results of the intercollegiate baseball games played this week are given below. Teams on Williams schedule are capitalized:

M. A. C. 7, Stevens 1.
PRINCETON 2, WESLEYAN 1.
LAFAYETTE 9, ARMY 5.
HARVARD 5, Oglethorpe 2.

Signing Your Name

WHEN you sign your name on a hotel register

How do you Feel?

Confident or Uncertain?
Delighted or Doubtful?
Like a welcome guest or
a homeless stranger?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. Though some of them from far away signed the register the first time with the vague "try anything once" air, they have been our friends ever since. We like to think it's because they are confident that upstairs and down they will find pleasant, restful surroundings with cheerful adept service—and—hospitality in the midst of excellent hotel conveniences. The sheer pleasure of mingling with joyous throngs is always here.

HOLD TRIAL MEET TO PICK TRACK ENTRIES

Men Who Will Compete in Union Meet Selected from Saturday's Results

ALL MARKS BELOW NORMAL

Wind and Rain Combine to Slow Up Track—Material Lacking in Field Events

Entries for the dual track meet with Union next Saturday have been selected by Coach Seeley and Manager Banks on the basis of the results of the trial meet held last Saturday on Weston Field. All the times and distances were poorer than usual because of a high wind and driving rain, but opportunity was afforded to judge the relative merits of the candidates for the team.

As was expected, a dearth of material was revealed in the field events, the broad jump alone having more than three entries. The results in the sprints, hurdles, and distance runs were more encouraging, particularly in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, in which Coddling, McWhorter, Dodge and Miller all showed up well.

Dodge beat Coddling by inches in the 100-yard dash, and McWhorter was hard pressed to defeat Miller in the 220. Stowers had little difficulty in capturing the quarter-mile, and Richmond took the half-mile easily. The usual distance winners again scored, Conn winning the mile run and Captain Crofts the two mile. Phillips showed the best form in both the high and the low hurdles.

Few contestants and poor marks characterized the field events. Hiss in the shot put, Towae and Hibbard in the hammer throw, Mendes in the broad jump, and Gummy in the discus throw gave the best performances of the afternoon.

The summary follows:

100-yard dash—won by Dodge '24; Coddling '21, second; Miller '24, third.
220-yard dash—won by McWhorter '22; Miller '24, second; Coddling '21, third.
440-yard dash—won by Stowers '23; Kellogg '21, second; Snell '24 third.
880-yard run—won by Richmond '22; Webb '23, second; Clason '24, third.
One-mile run—won by Conn '21; Jones '23, second; Swan '24, third.
Two-mile run—won by Crofts '21; Fasse '23, second; Adams '22, third.
120-yard hurdles—won by Phillips '22; Barnes '23, second; Beal '23, third.
220-yard hurdles—won by Phillips '22; Beal '23, second; Barnes '23, third.
High jump—tie between Alderman '21 and Wallace '22; Brown '24 third.

PERRY WILL ENTER COLLEGE AIR MEET

Winner of Alert Contest in Last Year's Games to Represent Williams May 13

Under the supervision of the Air Service of the United States Army the second annual meet of the Intercollegiate Flying Association will be held on Mitchell Field, Mineola, Long Island, on Friday, May 13. Perry '21, lieutenant in the Reserve Military Aviation Corps, who won second place for Williams in the first annual meet, will again represent the Purple.

Four events are listed on the program: 25-mile cross country race, altitude contest, aerial acrobatics, and an accuracy test. The aeroplanes for the contest are furnished by the government and will probably be the De Havilland 4, equipped with Liberty motors. In addition to the regular events German aircraft will be flown and exhibited by expert flyers.

In last year's contest, represented by Goodman '19 and Perry '21, Williams received second place, Yale taking first honors. The association has been enlarged this year from five to eighteen colleges, and flying schools have been organized in several of the universities having membership.

Propose Honor System Amendment

For the purpose of submitting to the student body an amendment, dealing with the publication of cases handled during the year by the committee, the Honor System Committee has asked the Student Council to call a meeting of the college for Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m. in Jesup Hall. At the same time the Student Council will bring the Chapel Question before the student body to obtain their opinion on the matter, which will be brought up at a meeting of the Board of Trustees to be held a week from Thursday. Following are the amendments to be presented:

Sec. 1. The chairman of the Honor System Committee shall make a report of the activities of the committee at two college meetings to be held in the months of January and May, respectively.

Sec. 2. These reports shall include the total number of cases dealt with by the committee, the number of acquittals, the number of convictions with the punishment inflicted.

Sec. 3. The names of those men found guilty of fraud who have been dismissed from college shall be made public at above meetings only, and shall be published in no other form.

'RECORD-AMERICAN' GAINS WIDE RENOWN

London 'Daily Express' Comments Favorably on Final Issue of 1921 Board

Letters and press notices commending the Record-American issue of The Record, which appeared on March 18, have been coming to the notice of the paper continuously since that date. The number of copies printed, though double the usual press-run, has proved barely sufficient to fill the orders for extra copies which have come in from the student-body, as well as from all parts of the country.

Mr. J. W. T. Mason, New York correspondent of the London Daily Express wrote the following letter to President Garfield, who referred it to the management of The Record for their attention: "I understand that the students of Williams College issued a few weeks ago a caricature newspaper. The fame of this paper is spreading through New York journalistic circles. It is being described as the cleverest output of its kind in years. New York newspapermen are trying to get hold of copies to preserve. . . . I want to send the issue to London as an example of the interest of American University students in journalism." Another favorable comment is found in a telegram received from Mr. B. A. Caparelli, an official of the United Press, who characterizes the issue as "strikingly original and good."

Letters have been received by Thexton '21, editor-in-chief of the volume of The Record which the "Hearst issue" terminated, from both the advertising manager and the managing editor of the Chicago Daily Journal, a Hearst publication, both (Continued on Fifth Page.)

'Open Shop' Is Subject of Triangular Debate

"Resolved, That the employers of labor of America should give up the principle of the open shop" is the subject of the annual Brown-Dartmouth-Williams triangular debate next Friday evening. The negative team, which is composed of Balch '21, and Craig and Helfrich '24, with Oliver '23 as alternate, will meet Brown in Grace Hall; the affirmative team, composed of Atwell '21, and Lyon and Schaeffer '22, with Bennett '24 as alternate, will oppose the Dartmouth debaters at Hanover.

Mr. Noel D. Sargent, manager of the National Association of Manufacturers, will coach the teams, particularly the negative debaters. He has gained considerable experience in lecturing on this subject throughout the country and is well qualified to give the debaters some valuable material.

DOCTOR IYENAGA TO SPEAK BEFORE FORUM

Relations Between Japan and the United States is Subject of Talk Tonight

"Japan's Relations with the United States" is the subject of a lecture by Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, of New York City, before a meeting of the Forum this evening at 7:30 p. m. in Jesup Hall. The officers of the Forum for next year will be elected at the close of the address, the president and vice-president being chosen from the present Junior class, and the secretary-treasurer from the present Sophomore class. Nominations will be made from the floor, and all undergraduates are eligible to vote.

Through his experience as a Japanese official and a representative of his government in several foreign countries, as well as by his long residence as a student in the United States, Dr. Iyenaga has come into close touch with the subject which he has chosen.

Dr. Iyenaga received his degrees at Oberlin College and Johns Hopkins University, after which he returned to Japan in 1890 to occupy the chair of political science at the Waseda University and the Higher Commercial College in Tokyo. He was appointed a secretary for the Department of Foreign Affairs in 1895 and three years later became Commissioner of the Formosan Government to India, Persia, Turkey and China. Being called to this country again in 1901, he served as lecturing professor of political science at the University of Chicago until 1913, when he undertook the same position at Columbia University. Dr. Iyenaga is at this time a director of the East and West News Bureau in New York City.

The Red course is intended for men between 16 and 21, who have had no military training or military training in school battalions.

The course will furnish instruction in the duties of a soldier, including drill, small arms and rifle practice, guard duty, camping and marching, care of equipment, personal hygiene, discipline and morale. Garfield Lauds Robins Campaign

The Eddy campaign will be run on the same plan and with similar methods and aims as the Raymond Robins series of lectures in 1916. Dr. Garfield said of the former campaign, "The announcement that the Williams Christian Association is arranging for a series of special meetings recalls a similar program carried out five years ago. Then Raymond Robins was the leader. Now it is to be Sherwood Eddy. The men are different, but their methods, aims and results are, I am told, very much alike."

"Certainly the meetings of 1916 were most stimulating and valuable. The rugged manhood and deep earnestness of Raymond Robins made an instant appeal. He dealt with twentieth century conditions—conditions as he had known them on the farm, in coal mines and as a social worker in Chicago. He made us see and understand our relations to them. To adapt an old fashioned revival phrase, he preached conviction of responsibility rather than conviction of sin, and yet when he had finished we saw that the sin of our generation lay in our failure as individuals and communities to recognize obligations and assume responsibilities."

"Now is peculiarly a time and College a place of special advantage wherein to learn the lesson of responsibility, and meetings of this kind are an important part of our opportunity."

TWO ORCHESTRAS WILL PLAY AT SENIOR PROM

'Bert' Lowe and the 'Six Melody Masters' Provide Music at Affair June 15

With music supplied by two well-known orchestras, the Six Melody Masters of New York and Herbert Lowe's orchestra of Boston, and with elaborate preparations in other respects, the Senior Prom promises to be one of the best in many years. It will be held in the Gymnasium on Wednesday, June 15, from 9.30 till 6.00.

The committee composed of Carr '21, chairman; Burger, Cole, Dana, Eaton, D. Jones, Mixer, Patton, Richardson, E. Taylor, and Tyler '21, has arranged a program of 20 dances, which will last till 12 midnight. At this time supper will be served, and informal dancing, lasting until six, will follow. The two orchestras will stage a continuous "battle of music," that is, they will play alternately throughout the night, and may unite in one or two numbers. The 20-dance program, which they will follow until midnight, consists of 12 fox-trots, six one-steps, and two waltzes. Fees will be dispensed from 9.30 from 9.30 until 4.00 in a special tent constructed outside the gymnasium for that purpose.

Engraved invitations will be sent out to all members of the senior class about the middle of May. Tickets are ten dollars for couples and eight dollars for single.

Bonus for Jersey Fighting Men

By a recent act of legislation, the state of New Jersey will pay a bonus of $10 a month up to a limit of $100 to all former service men who are residents of that state. All men eligible to receive the bonus are requested to communicate with their home post of the American Legion if they are members, or with their representative in the state legislature.

Outing Club Discusses Plans for Spring Trip

Spring plans for the Outing Club call for the clearing of several trails, the cutting of some new ones, and two regular trips, one of which will probably come the weekend beginning Saturday, May 14. The annual meeting for the election of officers will also take place in the near future.

Assignment of the cutting and clearing of trails to members of the club has been made by the trail committee, composed of Richardson, chairman; P. Phillips and Wallace '22. The trip committee, of which Preston '22 is chairman, is making arrangements for the two trips. The one which is planned for May 14 will probably be taken to Wilmington, Vt.

Campaign To Include Lectures, Mass Meetings, and Discussion Groups

SPEAKER IS PROMINENT AS Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY

Has Won Remarkable Popularity At Princeton, Dartmouth, Syracuse, and M. I. T.

Sherwood Eddy, Yale '91, former secretary for the Y. M. C. A. in India and Asia, authority on social and industrial problems, and a world figure in Christian leadership, will conduct a series of lectures and conferences at Williams on May 6, 7, 8 under the auspices of the W. C. A. Arrangements for the campaign, which will consist of "question-answer" groups, college mass meetings, and house group meetings under the direction of alumni, are practically complete.

Mr. Eddy will arrive on Friday, May 6, and will deliver his first lecture that evening at a college mass meeting in Jesup Hall at 7.30 p. m. on "The Challenge of the Present World Situation." House discussion groups will be held at 10.00 p. m. Mr. Eddy will conduct chapel on Saturday, May 7, at the usual hour, and will address the College that night at 7.30 p. m. on "The Challenge of the Social and Industrial Problem." A "question-answer" group will be held at 8.30 p. m. and the house discussion meetings will take place under the direction of the alumni at 10.00 p. m. Mr. Sam Hocking, state student secretary for Massachusetts and Rhode Island, will speak before a meeting of the Faculty and campaign workers at 1.00 p. m. The last day of the campaign will be Sunday, May 8, and Mr. Eddy will conduct the regular morning chapel at 10.35 a. m., speaking from the pulpit on the subject "The Challenge of Present Moral Issues." The workers in the campaign will hold a group meeting with Mr. Eddy directly after the service. Mr. Eddy will take charge of Vespers that afternoon and will deliver his final address at the mass meeting in Jesup Hall at 7.30 p. m., taking as his subject "The Challenge of a Rational Faith for the Modern Man."

Ten alumni have already signified their intention to return to Williamstown and take charge of the discussion groups in their various fraternity houses. Several other men are expected to be present in addition to the following: Rev. Harry P. Dewey '84, one of the trustees, and Rev. (Continued on Sixth Page.)

1924 COMPETITION TO START IN JUNE

Student Council Grants Petition From Baseball Manager—Considers More Motions

Permission was granted to the baseball management to start the 1924 competition in June at the close of the present sophomore competition at a meeting of the Student Council held last Thursday evening in Jesup Hall. It was also decided to petition the Athletic Council to award to any track man who is entered in the national Intercollegiate the right to wear a triple stripe across the "W".

Recommendation will be made at the next college meeting that the excess funds accruing from the Senior and Sophomore Promenades be turned over to the Student Council in the future, the use of the money to be determined by that body. June 13-15 inclusive was set as the time for the annual spring houseparty. Official permission was given by the Council to abandon the smoker this year. By vote of the body, it will be recommended to the Varsity Club that the members of the latter organization take over the care of the Trophy Room in Jesup Hall.

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Proper Solution of the Chapel Problem.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

100% Present

An interesting and significant fact brought out in the recent intercollegiate conference was that all but 7 colleges out of 22 east of the Mississippi employing the Honor System felt that the System had failed during the past year. Here at Williams the Honor System has come to be revered as a matter of tradition, and alumni and undergraduates alike take pride in the institution and in its record of 20 years of successful service.

This very pride should be sufficient to bring out the entire student body for the college meeting next Thursday evening which will discuss methods of ensuring the continued success of the Honor System.
In addition the Student Council will have ready a definite plan for settling the chapel question to present to the student body for ratification preparatory to laying it before the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees. Whatever may have been the cause of poor attendance at previous college meetings, the opportunity is before us to wipe out past sins by a 100% turn out to consider these vital questions.

Preparedness

An opportunity in practical citizenship, available particularly to underclassmen, is offered in the recently announced government plans for summer military camps throughout the United States. A vacation of out-door life including plenty of healthy exercise and with all expenses paid should be a real inducement to undergraduates who have not as yet formulated plans for the summer. These camps may well rival in popularity the Plum Island and Plattsburgh camps of 1915 and 1916.

Thinking patriots felt keenly the actual criminality of the total unpreparedness of the United States in 1917 which very nearly made possible a complete German victory that year. If there is any one lesson the American people should have drawn from the recent conflict, it is that of the necessity for proper military training and preparation on the part of its citizenhood. A system of voluntary military training camps is one of the best and most democratic plans suggested, and the man who takes advantage of their benefits is not only developing himself but rendering a service to the country in a fashion heartily endorsed by General Pershing, General Wood, and by such organizations as the National Security League.

"Required Chapel"

"What a difference between the spirit of the Harvard and the Williams chapels!" remarked the Sunday preacher informally
a couple of weeks ago. "In the first case, with its voluntary attendance, one encounters a wholehearted reverence and deferential, attentive receptiveness of mind and soul; in the second case the poor preacher is made immediately aware of a wholesale indifference, if not of actual hostility of mind and body. I certainly believe that voluntary chapel services are far preferable to compulsory exercises in their effectiveness and influence on the respective students. It is better far for religion to thoroughly penetrate the influential and open-minded few rather than to wash off the body whole as water from a duck's back!"

While THE RECORD cannot agree unreservedly with this judgment of one of our most forceful and effective Sunday preachers, it does feel that there is considerable justice to his viewpoint, and that the very fact that chapel attendance is strictly compulsory does raise sufficient hostility or active indifference to make it hard for the preacher in delivering his message and even more difficult for the receptive listener who would like to concentrate on the sermon but finds it at times impossible.

The value of forming regular religious habits is very great, and at Williams daily chapel with its strong traditions and associations has the further value of regularly bringing the student body together.
These reasons are sufficiently strong,
THE RECORD believes, to render any change to a voluntary system undesirable.
Nevertheless, a compromise involving most of the advantages of both systems is not impossible. The addition of more outs so that the athlete or other busy man in outside activities would not find attendance every morning during the year absolutely requisite except when away from the College, and the changing of the Sunday vesper service to a voluntary basis, would remove the major portion of the "chip-on-the-shoulder" attitude of the average undergraduate. Chapel attendance would be changed from a compulsory to a required basis. The distinction is delicate but important. Compulsory chapel implies enforced attendance "willy-nilly," whereas required chapel suggests much the same attendance but at the man's own pleasure and with his consent.

A more favorable time for venturing upon such a change could scarcely be chosen. That the religious life of the College is very much alive is shown in the surprising interest being taken in the W. C. A. and its multiple activities this year. One of the most concrete evidences is the wide-spread support already growing up in behalf of the Sherwood Eddy meetings to be held next month. If a liberal required chapel will ever succeed, it will succeed at present, and now is the time to try it.

Williams team. I do not, however, believe in athletics as an end in itself. To my mind, far more disgraceful than athletic defeats is the fact that there are two vacancies in the 1921 Phi Beta Kappa delegation for which there are no eligible candidates. If Williams is to offer higher education, she must devote herself primarily to mental and spiritual training. The only reason for physical training here is to enable bodies to serve their minds. Now, varsity athletics do not train the deficient; varsity athletes are already robust. Therefore, for them athletics are pure play and should not be made a form of college work. This does not mean no training or practice; it does mean no interference with thorough attention to mental and spiritual interests, in or out of the curriculum. It also means that if a team plays its best, a defeat is not a subject for prolonged lamentation and cries for reform. To illustrate my meaning, I would point to the Outing Club's method with its winter sports team. The men who enjoy winter sports take such practice as they are able and from these men the best are chosen for the team. The team wins or loses, as the case may be, has the benefit and fun of competition and loses no sleep over the non-existence of expert ski-jumpers and snow-shoe runners at Williams. I would recommend a like spirit for other teams. Physical prowess is an attribute of animals rather than men. With all due consideration for the necessity of health, Williams should take pride and pains in more advanced fields of endeavor. She should not worry over a shortage of pitchers while she has worthy scholars and W. C. A. presidents.

Respectfully,

Alfred C. Schlesinger.

Mr. Torres has been classed as "one of the finest of the younger Spanish-American poets" in an article appearing in the Christian Science Monitor on April 15. The reviewer speaks of Mr. Torres' recent book on Emerson, Poe, and Whitman in a very appreciative way, praising his splendid grasp of the subject and his ability as a poet.

Albany Law School

Established 1861

WILLIAM P. RUDD
President of the Board of Trustees

The ALBANY LAW SCHOOL has adopted a course of study leading to the degree of LL.B. extending over a period of three years. The instruction is of a practical character intended to fit the student for the bar examinations and for practice at the bar. The extension of the course, however, gives larger opportunity for attention to the history and theory of the law than was possible in two years.

Students who are qualified to enter advanced classes may do so upon passing a satisfactory entrance examination. In such case they will, on compliance with the requirements as to attendance and examination, receive certificates of attendance, as required by the rules with reference to admission to the bar.

The annual circular, giving full information, may be had on application to the Registrar.

Many Candidates Report for Williams Golf Team

Eleven candidates reported for the golf team at a meeting held last Tuesday evening. Captain Secor addressed the meeting, urging the candidates to begin practice at once and outlining the method of competition for positions on the team during the coming season.

The complete golf schedule has not been announced as yet, but it has been definitely decided that an eight-man team, including Ward '23, last year's intercollegiate runner-up, will be sent to the Intercollegiate, which will be played on the grounds of the Greenwich Country Club on Tuesday, June 28. As many matches as possible will be played away from Williamstown because of the poor condition of the Taconic Club course. Additional directions for members of the squad will be posted from time to time in the Adviser.

The following men have reported for the golf team: Bourne and Fulle '21, Baker, Bimsted, Buxton, W. H. Prescott and Rose '22, Hemphill and Simmons '23, and Dribben, Graves, and McKelvy '24.

minimum ages required for enrollment are 19 and 21 respectively. Successful completion of these courses will qualify a man for appointment as an officer or non-commissioned officer in the Organized Reserves of the United States Army. The Blue course instructs in the duties of a non-commissioned officer; the Red prepares for the duties of a junior officer in the branch of the army selected by the candidate, and for which he is considered qualified by previous experience and training.

Attendance at one of the Citizens' Military Training Camps will be without cost to the candidate. Upon his arrival at the camp each candidate will be reimbursed for the amount of his travelling expenses at the rate of five cents per mile, which will cover the cost of carfare, and will provide for additional expenses incurred en route. Payment for return travel will also be made.

The camps for the First Corps Area will be held at Camp Devens, from August 1-31, and for the Second Corps Area at Plattsburg or Camp Dix at approximately the same time. All who are interested should make immediate request for further information, which may be obtained from Dr. F. H. Howard, 50 Spring Street, Williamstown.

of which communications praised the cleverness of the number. J. A. Waldron, associate editor of Judge, regards it as "a very clever burlesque on Hearst papers." The editor of the "Bawl Street Journal," an annual satire on the Wall Street Journal of New York City, has requested copies of the Record-American to use for getting suggestions for his paper. W. O. McGeehan, managing editor of the New York Tribune, has written a letter calling the issue a "very clever piece of work." Another comment from J. W. T. Mason, New York correspondent of the London Daily Express, states that he hopes a copy has been "sent to the New York Public Library for permanent record."

Requests for additional copies of the paper have been received from the managements of The New York American, The New York Times, The Chicago Tribune, The Schenectady (N. Y.) Gazette and The Collegiate World. The editor of the Brown Daily Herald, Brown University, characterized it as "the best thing that has ever been done in college journalism."

Oliver J. Keller '18, former Managing Editor of The Record and editor-in-chief of the Lancaster (Pa.) Examiner-New Era, said "It was one of the cleverest things of the kind that I have ever seen." Frederic T. Wood '98, ex-president of the Williams Club of New York, described it as a "very remarkable piece of work which has produced much favorable comment" in New York.

RICCI SPEAKS IN DANTE

In connection with the universal commemoration of the 600th anniversary of Dante's death, Rollando Ricci, Italian ambassador to the United States, spoke to the students of Wesleyan in chapel last week. Ambassador Ricci talked in Italian, and quoted several cantos of the "Inferno."

BOOK COMPILED AT CORNELL

"Proceedings and Addresses at the Cornell University Semi-Centennial Celebration" is the title of a book compiled by the Secretary of the University relating the affairs of the recent centennial. The book gives the history and plans of the movement, a record of registration and attendance, and a summary of the activities and entertainments.

JOURNALISM TO BE FEATURE

Seven courses in journalism and advertising will be given at the University of Wisconsin summer session during six weeks of the summer vacation, and practical experience in reporting will be afforded in connection with the work, on the Madison daily papers. The instructors for the courses have been selected from the leading journalists and journalism teachers in the country.

'Hamp' Proves Drawing Card

The unusual attractions of "Hamp" combined with a wager for a considerable stipend to give three Williams men sufficient energy and determination to brave the elements and to successfully complete a walk to that well-known city. The distance covered was 54 miles and the time it took the sturdy pedestrians, Gay '21 and Coleman and Buxton '22, was 16 consecutive hours, 8 hours less than the stipulated limit. Two other men tried to emulate the feat but encountered a severe hail storm on top of the Trail and were forced to forgo their expedition.

Signing Your Name

WHEN you sign your name on a hotel register

How do you Feel?

Confident or Uncertain?
Delighted or Doubtful?
Like a welcome guest or
a homeless stranger?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. Though some of them from far away signed the register the first time with the vague "try anything once" air, they have been our friends ever since. We like to think it's because they are confident that upstairs and down they will find pleasant, restful surroundings with cheerful adept service—and—hospitality in the midst of excellent hotel conveniences. The sheer pleasure of mingling with joyous throngs is always here.

Joslyn '21 has charge of the work in canvassing the College, and Conn '21 will arrange the personal interviews with Mr. Eddy. In order to reach every undergraduate, "key men" will be appointed in each house to take charge of the work there and to assist the alumni.

Mr. Eddy has conducted several similar campaigns in American colleges since his return from central Europe and was particularly successful at Dartmouth, Princeton, Syracuse and M. I. T., where he spoke to large audiences on every night of his stay. He will also lecture at the University of Michigan before coming to Williams.

Alumni Defeat Amherst Choral

According to a letter recently received from B. C. Eaton '15, "the Williams alumni, though few in number, represented the College very well at the Interscholastic Lauchon on April 16 in Detroit." Williams and Trinity joined forces when they were called on for their college songs, and later combined to help the "one bashful Amherst representative in singing 'Lord Jeffrey Amherst.'" One of the Williams alumni was presented with a prize, and the contest "ended with the usual Williams victory over Amherst."

Musical Club to Elect Leaders

UNION MEET WILL OPEN SEASON HERE

Garnet Track Team Strongest in Field Events—Purple Runners Superior

WILLIAMS TOOK LAST YEAR'S CONTEST 80-46

Beekman of Union Set New Mark of 132 Feet 9 Inches in Hammer Throw

Williams will open the 1921 track season against Union on Weston Field at 1.30 p. m. tomorrow afternoon. The Purple is strong in the track events and thus should pile up a considerable lead, but is relatively weak in the field events, and it is probable that Union will do her heaviest scoring in this department.

Williams scored a decisive victory over the Garnet in last year's meet, winning by the margin of 80-46. The only regular point winner lost by graduation from last year's team was H. H. Brown, while Union has been materially weakened by the loss of men in several events. Williams won seven out of eight first places in the track events of last year's meet, but took only two firsts in the field events.

Regular work-outs which have been made possible by the good weather have put the squad into first class shape for the opening meet. All times and distances in the trial meet, which was held last Saturday, were poor, but this was to be expected because of the high wind and driving rain which lasted throughout the entire afternoon. McWhorter, who won first places in both the 100 and 220-yard dashes last year, is again entered in these two events, but he will be hard pressed by Coddington and Dodge. W. L. Jones, of Union, who took second place in the 100 and third in the 220, is the Garnet's most promising candidate.

DR. EDDY GREETED BY GREATEST ENTHUSIASM

Following Series of Meetings at Other Colleges, Speaker Is Highly Praised

"Eddy thrills crowds on last day of visit," and "Dr. Eddy wins hearty approval of students in opening address" are typical comments of college newspapers on the Eddy meetings which have scored tremendous successes in many American universities this year. At Wesleyan the meetings met with such universal approval that cuts were given to members of the student body, and at Syracuse the Senior Council not only endorsed the campaign but urged the attendance of all students.

On April 16, 17, and 18 at Dartmouth College Mr. Eddy spoke to an audience of 1,000 on the first evening and to 1,500 on the final appearance of his stay. At Princeton, Dr. Eddy "won vote of faculty and students by his straight-forward manner. As a civil engineer and as a layman, he talks facts with unusual force. Crowds of 1,000 heard him on both nights." The Tech says of him, "He is a man possessing with unusual force the magnetic power which attracts men and charges them with energy. He can put ideas into the minds of others with such persuasive emphasis that his thoughts become the tenets of his listeners. He is a fascinating speaker, for he is a part of all he has met in a life of wide experience. Coming from an extensive and sympathetic study of European conditions Mr. Eddy speaks with the eloquence of truth and understanding. He is a man who gives his personality, his experience and his knowledge to his hearers and these gifts have a greatness that abides."

Professor Weston has given the following for publication concerning the similar

Chapman and Greer New Musical Clubs' Leaders

Alexander H. Chapman '22, of New York City, was elected leader of the Glee Club, and Henry K. Greer '22, of North Adams, leader of the Mandolin Club at a meeting of the combined Musical Clubs held Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same meeting, Francis B. Shepardson '23, of Reading, Pa., and John C. Hilton '23, of Jersey City, N. J., were chosen assistant manager and assistant press manager, respectively.

Chapman prepared for Williams at the Central High School of Springfield. Since entering College, he has been a member of the Glee Club for three years. He was elected class singing leader in his sophomore year, and is on the editorial staff of the Purple Cow. He is a member of the Sigma Phi Fraternity.

Greer, a graduate of Drury High School, North Adams, since entering Williams has served on the Musical Clubs for three years. In his sophomore year he was class baseball manager, a member of his class soccer team and class banquet committee, and received Sophomore Honors. This year he has played on his class soccer team, and has served on the W. C. A. Deputations Committee. Greer is a member of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity.

HARVARD AND M. I. T. OPPOSE TENNIS TEAM

Six Players Represent Purple in Matches at Cambridge—Opponents Strong

In the first matches of the season, the Williams tennis team will oppose Harvard this afternoon, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology tomorrow afternoon, both contests to be played in Cambridge. Williams will be represented by Bullock (Capt.), Fraker, and C. L. Taylor '21, H. S. Prescott, and Rowse '22, and Chapin '23.

As a result of the postponement of the Union match last Saturday, the Williams team has had the advantage of another week of practice under the tutelage of Assistant Professor J. S. Galbraith, an experienced player, who has volunteered to coach the Purple this year. Shortly before the team left for Boston yesterday, Captain Bullock announced that the following lineup would probably be used in the matches: Singles—(1) Chapin, (2) Rowse, (3) H. S. Prescott, (4) Bullock (Capt.), (5) Fraker, and (6) C. L. Taylor. Doubles—(1) Chapin and Rowse (2) Bullock and Fraker, (3) Prescott and Taylor. Bullock, Fraker, Rowse, and Chapin are all veterans of last year's teams, and Chapin was awarded a straight 'W' in recognition of his victory at the New England Intercollegiate. Prescott and Taylor, although they were not awarded insignia, both played in several matches last season.

Harvard, the opponent of Williams for this afternoon, has had the advantage of a southern training trip, in the course of which six matches were played with leading tennis clubs of the South, which resulted in four Harvard victories, one defeat, and one tied contest, which was called on account of darkness. Among the clubs which fell before the superior playing of the Crimson team were those of Richmond, Va., the United States Naval Academy, and Chevy Chase, Providence, headed by Tilden, the world's champion, was the sole team to send the Harvard men

'Cow' Board Elects Manager

Stuart C. Keene '23, of Greenwich, Conn., was elected assistant circulation manager of the Purple Cow to fill the position of Slack '23, who has left college, at a meeting of the board held Monday night in Jesup Hall. Material for the Summer Resort issue of the Cow was submitted and discussed. The April number will probably appear today.

IMPROVED NINE TO OPPOSE LAFAYETTE

Pennsylvania Team That Defeated Williams on Trip to Play Here Tomorrow

CLOSE GAME IS EXPECTED

Visitors Have Beaten Both Army and Navy—Purple Line-up Slightly Changed

Lafayette, victorious over the Williams nine on its recent southern trip by the score of 10-4, will face the Purple on Weston Field at 2.30 p. m. tomorrow in the opening game of the local season. Williams' play has improved so markedly since the initial defeat that Coach Combs expects a much closer game tomorrow.

Six defeats have been registered against Williams to date, all of them on opponents' diamonds. The five defeats sustained on the southern invasion gave evidence of lack of practice, a handicap only partially overcome in the following game with West Point, which the Cadets won 9-4. Since that time the team has had daily work-outs, including several practice games with Cape Prindle's informal nine, which have revealed most of the defects in the varsity's play.

Prindle's team nosed out a 6-4 victory over the varsity last Wednesday, after Holmes had held his opponents to four hits and one run in the first six innings. Except for the seventh frame, when he allowed two hits and gave three passes, Holmes pitched an excellent game. The Purple batters collected ten hits, including a home run by B. Boynton. Coach Combs expressed himself as pleased with the general improvement, saying that "the pitchers have improved greatly and the whole team knows more baseball than it did at the close of the southern trip."

Williams' line-up tomorrow will be practically unchanged. Either Holmes or Gregory will pitch, and the regular infield consisting of Richmond, Hoyt, O'Brien and Ward will start the game. B. Boynton will occupy center field, the other two outfield positions depending on Lafayette's choice of pitchers. If a left-hander is on the mound for the visitors, Bixby and C. Boynton will be used, whereas Monjo and Mellen, who are left-hand hitters, will play in case Lafayette uses a right-hand bowman.

'Graphic' Elects Competitors

George Nebolsine '23, of Brookline, was elected art editor of the Graphic at a meeting of the board held last Monday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time Charles Edward Maxwell '23, of Montclair, New Jersey, and Joseph T. Resor, of Cincinnati, Ohio, were elected to the photographic board.

Dr. A. P. Fitch to Preach and Speak Before W. C. A.

Albert Parker Fitch, D.D., Professor of the History of Religion and Biblical Literature at Amherst, will conduct the morning service in the Chapel next Sunday, and will address the Williams Christian Association at 7.30 p. m. in the evening, taking as his subject "Williams and the Liquor Question" and developing it in its relation both to the student and to the college. For a number of years past Dr. Fitch has been one of the most popular of the visiting speakers, having been in Williamstown three times during the present year, and it is expected that the personality of the speaker and the interest of the subject will draw a large audience at the evening meeting.

Dr. Fitch graduated from Harvard in 1900, and received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from the Union Theological Seminary in 1903. He has since been granted the degree of Doctor of Divinity from both Amherst and Williams, from the former in 1909 and from the latter in 1914. From 1909 until 1917 he was President of the Andover Theological Seminary, a position which he held until he accepted the professorship at Amherst, which he now holds.

TRIANGULAR DEBATE HELD HERE TONIGHT

Williams Negative Team to Meet Brown Affirmative in Grace Hall at 8 p. m.

Taking for the subject under debate the problem of the open shop, Williams will meet Brown in Grace Hall this evening at 8.00 p. m. and Dartmouth at Hanover, in the 14th annual contest of the Brown-Dartmouth-Williams triangular league. In the debate held last spring between the three institutions, both the negative and affirmative teams of the Purple were victorious.

Discussion on the question of the open shop will be carried on under terms stated as follows: "Resolved, that the employers of labor of America should give up the principle of the open shop." In preparation for the debate both of the Williams teams have received the assistance of Mr. Noel D. Sargent, manager of the National Association of Manufacturers, who is campaigning for the open shop.

Professor Maxey will preside at the debate in Grace Hall and Professors Robert H. Loomis and Herman Churchill, of Boston University and Rhode Island State College, respectively, together with Mr. Walter A. Agard, of Amherst, will act as judges.

Baleh '21 and Craig, and Helfrich '24, with Oliver '23 as alternate, compose the negative team of the Purple which will debate in Grace Hall. Opposing them is the Brown affirmative team made up of the following men: Ernest S. Macmillan of Pawtucket, R. I., Walter I. Waldau of Englewood, N. J., and John A. Wilson of Jersey City, N. J., with William Paxton of Chicago, Ill., as alternate.

The affirmative side of the question will be taken up at Dartmouth by a Williams team consisting of Atwell '21, and Lyon, and Schaffler '22, with Bennett '24 as alternate.

All of the men on both Williams teams have had experience in previous intercollegiate debates, either in regular or alternate positions. Atwell spoke in both of the Amherst-Wesleyan-Williams and the Brown-Dartmouth-Williams triangular debates.

Two one-act plays, Lord Dunsany's "If Shakespeare Lived Today," and St. John Ervine's "The Critics" will be presented by the members of the Pipe and Quill society at a meeting to be held next Monday evening at 8 p. m. at the Kappa Alpha Lodge. Each member of the society will have the privilege of inviting one guest.

COMMITTEE MAKES NEW CHAPEL PLAN

Recommendations to be Presented at Trustees' Meeting Next Week Approved

AMENDMENTS TO HONOR SYSTEM ARE RATIFIED

Report of Hall '21 for Committee on the Activities of Year Is Accepted

Definite formulation of the recommendations to be presented to the Trustees at their meeting on next Thursday in regard to the solution of the chapel situation and the passing of three important amendments to the Honor System, were the most important features of the College Meeting last night in Jesup Hall.

With but one exception, the recommendations of the Student Council which were drawn up by a committee consisting of Ufford, chairman, Bullock, Joslyn and Noble '21 were accepted by the unanimous vote of the student body after considerable discussion. The resolutions are as follows: 1. That the daily chapel service shall be at 12 noon or thereabouts. 2. That the daily and Sunday chapel services be kept separate and that the number of excused absences from daily chapel remain at 18 per semester. 3. That 12 excused absences per semester shall be allowed for the Sunday services on the basis of one for Vespers and two for the morning service. 4. That the Student Council recommend to President Garfield the names of members of the Faculty whom they think most fitted to conduct the chapel services.

Ufford '21, in presenting the proposed recommendations, stated the reasons for which they were adopted by the student council. The first section was proposed in

DR. IYENAGA DEFENDS JAPAN'S NAVAL POLICY

Forum Officers for 1922 Elected at Meeting After Talk—H. W. Lyon President

"Japan's policies of naval expansion and settlement in California are not the offsprings of malicious and offensive intentions but the inevitable evils thrust upon her by existing conditions," said Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga in his lecture on "Japanese Relations with the United States" before the Forum last Monday evening in Jesup Hall.

At the conclusion of the lecture, Hiram W. Lyon '22 was elected president of the Forum for the ensuing year; Harry K. Schaffler '22 was chosen vice-president, and Ernest G. Angevine '23, secretary-treasurer.

"The naval question and the California-Japanese problem form the principal points of Japanese-United States relations," began Dr. Iyenaga. "The first resolves itself into the question of proportion, or balance of power. There are two navies in the world that are likely to endanger Japan's safety, against which she is now spending so much money to protect herself and her overseas trade. Although America may have no intentions of intimidating her, Japan must insure her own safety by constructing a navy comparable to those of other countries even though she feels she can not afford this expense. In this question of proportion the United States should take the initiative in a naval disarmament."

"Differences in race, traditions, customs and language form the essential obstacles in the way of a mutually agreeable settlement of the California-Japanese question," said Dr. Iyenaga in the second part of his lecture. "It would seem that Japan with

Please Step Between the Blades

Now that the various greenwards which comprise the campus are making their annual fight for life, it seems that the pedestrian, hard pressed though he be for time, might help out just a little by walking on the officially recognized highways, rather than on the semi-verdant laws. If perchance it be that the grass of Williams be a whit less virile than the sons of Williams, due consideration must be accorded this inherent delicacy, and gentlemanly courtesy forbids unwarranted trespassing. Even as we deprecate past disrespect by passers-by and hope for better observance in the future, we likewise commend to the powers that be the consideration of new strategic locations for arteries which may care for much new and constant traffic.

Three Opportunities

Mornle counts! In athletic contests morale is fifty percent of the victory. In intellectual contests, such as debating, the percent may not be so high, but the principal is the same. If a full cheering section can play a large part in winning a football game, a crowded house can help in the winning of a debate.

Tonight the Brunonian debaters attempt an invasion of the sacred precincts of the Purple in Grace Hall. To an outsider, wondering where to send a boy to college, a victory in debating, though not so spectacular as an athletic victory, will mean as much or more in the final sum of impressions and reasons that make up a decision. A debating victory is good advertising of the right kind. Come and support the team to victory.

Tomorrow Union and Lafayette storm the Weston Field citadel simultaneously in the first home contests of the season in track and baseball respectively. The track team is confident of an auspicious opening to a successful season; the baseball team is determined to demonstrate a marked improvement over its last contest with tomorrow's opponent. Come and support both teams to victory.

Applied Athletochemistry

As Williams men view the efforts of their two major teams tomorrow afternoon it might be well for them to consider the novel theory advanced by a chemist from Connecticut, a theory which has been spread broadcast through the daily press. Yale has lost its athletic supremacy, so the scientific man declares, because the soil of the state has become exhausted, and college men have for that reason become a race of less vitality. If the tribe of weaklings at New Haven is to prosper, farmers must grow alfalfa to get phosphate of lime into the milk. Lime and legumes, says the expert, will go far toward redeeming Yale's athletic prowess. Thus is the intricacy of intercollegiate sport reduced to simple terms of molecules and fertilizers.

The particular discovery which might well enlighten the cogitations of the sons of Colonel Eph in this instance is the astounding coincidence that Wesleyan and the Bulldog are natives of the same state, and that Lord Jeff's sons are but a figurative stone's throw up the river of the same name. Is it possible that Wesleyan owes its 50-14 defeats to the sterility of its grimy foundations, or perchance will Amherst win legs on the Trophy of Trophies when its war gardens are restored with lime and its campus is properly fertilized, even as at Williams? If such be indeed the scientific explanation, it behooves our time-honored rivals to sit and learn at the feet of the Connecticut scientist. The result may be a revolutionary movement in athletics with the establishment of a staff of chemists to co-operate with the coaches of mere fundamentals and tactics.

ATHLETICS AN IMPORTANT MEANS

To the Editor of THE RECORD:
Sir:
May I take exception to a statement made in a recent communication to your last issue by Mr. Schlesinger? The statement was this: "the only reason for physical training here is to enable bodies to serve their minds."

That would be nearly true of the dumb-bell, weight-pulling, gym-class type of physical training; "nearly true," because a healthy body produces not only a clear, keen mind, but also an optimistic outlook on life. But it is decidedly untrue of athletics. And the writer makes no distinction between physical training and athletics.

There is a great distinction. Athletics—we like to think Williams athletics—produces something in addition to what is gained from colorless physical training. It develops a man's capacity and respect for teamwork; it develops a man's "guts"; it offers a man a concrete service to his college. All are tremendously important in later life. A famous general once remarked that the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of England. Teamwork is what the world needs now; "guts" never goes out of fashion; service is the greatest thing there is. I thoroughly second his belief that athletics should not be considered as an end in itself. Neither should Phi Beta Kappa. Studies are apt to be underestimated; they should occupy the first place. Athletics are apt to be overestimated; but they should occupy a higher place than the writer assigns them. Because athletics, along with studies, are means. The end is preparation.

College is preparation for life. Life is opportunity,—opportunity to leave the world a better place than you find it, opportunity to serve your fellow men. 1921.

SERIES TO BEGIN

Interclass Baseball Schedule Announced by Manager

Games in the interclass baseball league are scheduled to commence next Tuesday at 4 p. m. on Cole Field. The contests will be played on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons in order not to conflict with the intramural series.

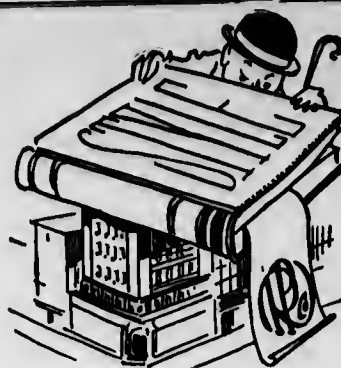

Rules similar to those of the intramural league are to govern the games. All are to be of five innings, with extra innings in case of a tie. Postponed games may be arranged for with Manager Irwin '21. Teams will furnish their own equipment except for chest protectors and bases which will be taken care of by baseball competitors. All men are eligible for the teams except those on the varsity squad or those who have won their "W" in previous years.

The schedule of the games is as follows:

TUESDAY, MAY 3

Signing Your Name

WHEN you sign your name on a hotel register

How do you Feel?

Confident or Uncertain?
Delighted or Doubtful?
Like a welcome guest or a homeless stranger?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. Though some of them from far away signed the register the first time with the vague "try anything once" air, they have been our friends ever since. We like to think it's because they are confident that upstairs and down they will find pleasant, restful surroundings with cheerful adept service—and—hospitality in the midst of excellent hotel conveniences.

The sheer pleasure of mingling with joyous throngs is always here.

APRIL 'GRAPHIC' IS HIGHLY COMMENDED

Critic Gives Favorable Comment on Recent Number of 'Lit's' New Successor

Superficially considered, the April number of the Graphic presents little foothold for the malicious talons of a critic. It is, literally, "all there." There is an alluring gallery of pretty pictures, satisfying to the movie-fed eye (by the way, I find here two college professors, a confirmation of the unpopular theory that they, also are people); there is a group of "serious" articles, crammed with fact; there is a goodly array of "creative writing" (as the Editor calls it), to captivate the imagination and solace minds exhausted by extracurriculum enterprises; there are three book-reviews; and last, but not least, twenty pages of advertisements, the right modern proportion to nineteen of literature. Even an acid critic would have to congratulate the editors on their success in furnishing forth such a banquet from the funeral baked meats of the "Lit" of blessed memory. I do compliment them upon their format of the magazine; still more heartily upon the freshness and vigor of its contents; and most heartily upon its freedom from the cheap vulgarity that besets and befouls contemporary life and literature. But, since there exists, as yet, no Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Undergraduates, I am bound to point out what seems to me some pitfalls that our intelligentsia ought to avoid and do not entirely escape.

The first of these is their apparent inclination to deal with only the surface of life; the outward and visible; the body not the spirit; or if with the spirit, with only its feeblest flutterings. In those articles dealing with facts, "things" are, of course, of paramount importance, but the tendency extends to the "creative writing" as well. Here it takes the form either of a timorous Romanticism that runs away from the human life so aggressively about us, or of a thin aestheticism that barely pricks the skin of that life. In this respect, the April Graphic falls short of the standard it set up in its earlier numbers; there was food for thought as well as for diversion.

The information articles of Mr. Coan, Mr. Schlesinger, and Mr. Nebolsine, of course, do not attempt to solve problems or excite discussion, except incidentally. All are crammed with interesting details, especially Mr. Nebolsine's series of vivid and veracious pictures of Russian life and character at the time of a national crisis. Mr. Schlesinger's prose demonstrates the fact that a pleasant style is not incompatible with the giving of information; he seasons, garnishes, and serves piping hot what Mr. Coan puts before us raw and cold.

In the department of creative literature, one finds an astonishing revival of old Romanticism. In these days, when fiction has turned itself largely into a psychiatric clinic for the study of lonesome souls in Middle-Western towns, or adolescent egotists engaged in the agony of learning what everybody else is trying to forget, to stumble upon a Gothic Romance like Mr. Simon's Shadows is like meeting Elsie Dinsmore at a mid-year houseparty. All the properties of Walpole's stage are here, even "shoon" of the feet; the diction is as loyally purple as East Mountain in a winter sun-set; and the whole tale as true to life as a marionette performance of Hamlet. The author's unmistakable poetic imagination ought to turn itself upon real life and real people. Any pool-room loafer offers richer material than his papier-mache Sieglund.

Mr. Mason's Freudian tale belongs to the school of Poe; it has Poe's horror without Poe's beauty. There is imagination here too; but the style is dull, and the story has no human "point."

Some of the verse exhibits the same tendency to escape from reality, and deal with the unknown and the un-experienced. Cragmire calls itself a ballad, and has something of ballad simplicity and directness, without ballad naivete, strict rhythm, and forceful diction. Its vertiginous mixture of tenses and lines of various lengths puts both grammar and metric into the mad-house. And why ballads about ladies of the fourteenth century, when our own world is "so full of a number of things"?

The book reviews parallel this flight from the stern immediate by their pronounced distaste for anything more substantial.

"All is discovered—leave at once!"

IN the shivery tones of melodrama false prophets rise up to assure you that all the wonders of electricity have been discovered, that the industry has had its day, that you should lose no time changing to some younger and less developed profession.

There were folks giving this same advice back in the eighteen seventies—but somehow Edison and Bell seemed to think differently.

And now, depend upon it that in 1921 as at any time during the last hundred years, the world is on the eve of important inventions and discoveries and their commercialization in the realm of electricity.

How momentous these developments shall become in the next forty years is largely up to you men now in college. It will fall upon you to work out interconnection systems, to manage water-power projects, to plan electrification of railroads, to extend the lines of communication into new lands.

There are seventy million Americans who do not use electricity in their homes. One of your jobs will be to supply them.

So there is a long-time market for your services, a demand for your utmost energy and enthusiasm and ability.

Your cue is to start now thinking about your work in a big way, building yourself to measure up to the opportunities and the problems that will be your share in developing this greater industry of tomorrow.

The electrical industry needs men who can see far and think straight.

Union Meet Will Open Season Here

Williams should score heavily in the 440-yard dash, the 880-yard run, and the one-mile run, in all of which the Purple took the first three places in last year's meet. Stowers, Kellogg, Allen, and Richmond are entered in the 440, Richmond, Crofts, and Coan in the 880, and Coan and Jones in the mile.

Captain Crofts is expected to have an easy victory in the two-mile run, and Fauce should also place. Phillips and Barnes took the first two places in the 120-yard high hurdles in last year's meet, but Captain Hughes of Union won the 220-yard high hurdles in fast time, and will again run in this event. As Chapin will be playing tennis in Cambridge, Brown is the only Williams entry in the pole-vault, in which he will oppose Jones of Union.

Union seems likely to capture three first places in the weight events. Beckman, who was high-point man in last year's meet, is expected to compete again and with his team-mate, Miller, who took first place in the shot-put, is expected to account for a fair proportion of Union's points. Last year Beckman set a new Union record of 132 feet, 9 inches in the hammer throw. The Williams weight men, who have been working out daily, may, however, prove a surprise as Hibbard in the hammer and Becket in the discus have been getting good distance.

The list of officials for the meet is as follows: Referee—Mr. S. A. Allen of Williams; Starter—Mr. Edwards of Springfield Y. M. C. A.; Clerk of Course—Manager Banks; Assistant Clerk—Assistant Manager Richardson; Track judges—Messrs. T. C. Smith, O. W. Long, of Williams, Mr. T. C. Hoyt of Union; Field judges—Messrs. Bullinton, Bell, Geer, Howes, and J. R. Smith, of Williams, and the Assistant Manager of track of Union; Timers—Messrs. McElfresh, Meurs, and Agard, of Williams; Announcer—Phillips '21; Scorer—Sewall '23.

The events will be run off in the following order, beginning promptly at 1:30 p. m.: 120-yard hurdles, 100-yard dash, one-mile run, 440-yard run, two-mile run, 220-yard dash, 220-yard hurdles, 880-yard run, hammer-throw, discus-throw, high jump, shot-put, broad jump, pole-vault. The entries are as follows:

100-yard dash—Jones, Hughes, Carpenter (U); Dodge, Coddling, Miller, McWhorter, Mendes (W).

120-yard high hurdles—Hughes, Oram, Donald (U); Phillips, Barnes, Beal (W).

One-mile run—McQueen, Barker, Hall, McCaig, Lottridge (U); Coan, Jones, Swan, Livingston (W).

440-yard dash—Patterson, Mace, McLaury, Brockway, Graubart (U); Stowers, Kellogg, Snell, Allen, Richmond (W).

Two-mile run—McQueen, Jansen, McCaig, Lottridge, Veghte, Gidley (U); Crofts, Fauce, Adams, Coan (W).

220-yard dash—Patterson, Jones (U); McWhorter, Miller, Coddling, Dodge, Mendes (W).

880-yard run—Barker, Mace, Personius, McLaury, Brockway, Graubart (U); Richmond, Webb, Clason, Crofts, Coan (W).

220-yard low hurdles—Hughes, Oram, Donald (U); Phillips, Beal, Barnes, Mason (W).

Shot-put—Miller, Beckman, Murray, Kline (U); Hiss, Hibbard, Becket, Miller (W).

Hammer-throw—Beckman, Miller, Kline (U); Towne, Hibbard, Weber (W). Discus-throw—Beckman, Miller, Hughes, Bourst (U); Gummey, James, Becket, Fargo (W).

Running high jump—Oram, Hughes, Cohn, Davis (U); Mendes, Wallace, Alderman, J. E. Brown, Barnes (W).

Running broad jump—Cohn, Carpenter, Hughes, Bussy, McLaury (U); Mendes, Parker, Brune (W).

Pole-vault—Jones, Nichols, Bussy, Wilcox (U); E. Brown (W).

stantial than sillabub; here is vigorous chewing but no meat. A magazine of the Graphic pretensions ought to include in this section reviews of at least a few of a solid and permanent character, and not confine itself to ephemeral best-sellers. These reviews show understanding, appreciation, insight, and critical ability; moreover they are interestingly written. It is sheer waste of valuable energy to set trip-hammers to cracking peanuts.

After all this, it is pleasant to be able to say that four of the poems modestly attempt to say something about the life that the writers know. Mr. Scott's tribute to the eternal life of Shakespeare is awkwardly expressed but it is genuine, and speaks of reality. Mr. Schlesinger has chosen an unfortunate title and a four foot line that cramps his thought, but his poem embodies a universal idea and states the idea with warmth which kindles at times to poetic fire.

Mr. Britton's charming Crepuscle is a faithful study of the reaction of an esthetic temperament, first to the outward trappings of religion, and then to the ride jostle of the working day. The poet might have gone further to point out that religion is not an affair of either stained-glass or cynical vergers, and that the mauve esthetic mooning in a twilight church and turned lyric by the light of day hurls a boomerang that, aimed at the high altar, only sunaises a minor prophet in the painted pane and returns to raise a painful but not dangerous bump upon the dreamer's scornful brow. Mr. Withrow's little poem exhibits another picture of a soul who mistakes sensations for substances, as a hungry man might banquet his nose upon the aroma of a "boiled dinner" and tell his stomach it had dined. This early Keatsian cocktail of brent syrups distilled by eye, ear, and nose, with the lush conclusion bobbing like a cherry on the surface reminds me of those medical gentlemen who minister to everything above the neck except "minds diseased," or otherwise.

SUNDAY SERVICES

Morning Prayer, 10.45 a. m.
Evening Prayer, 7.30 p. m.

A cordial invitation is extended to all students to attend any of these services. Arrangement to do so is easily effected thru the Dean's office.

The commendable fact about these four poems however, is that they have all tried to say something about the life the poets know. They do not attempt barren explanation of the unexplained. They all deal with actual human truths, human feelings, human ideas. They all touch reality.

In its short span of life, the Graphic has proved its possession of energy, enthusiasm and ability; the college has a right to demand that these gifts be employed in vital enterprises, not solely for purposes of information or amusement. Everybody knows the story of the servant to whom was given five talents.

Five to Attend Conference

Five men will represent the Williams Christian Association at the annual Officers' Training Conference at Brown University to be held this week-end. The conference which is for the purpose of helping new officers in their work in the various Christian Associations in the ensuing year, will be addressed by well known speakers, as G. Sherwood Eddy, who is to conduct a campaign for the W. C. A. here, and will consist of discussions led by students and Y. M. C. A. Secretaries. The delegates will be entertained by the Brown Christian Association. Lyon '22, Partington '23, and D. C. O'Brien, F. Newhard, and Stephenson '24, will attend the conference as delegates from the local association.

Dr. Iyenaga Defends Japans Naval Policy

her immense population and her scant territory and resources was entitled to an adequate proportion of land for her existence, there being at present only one quarter of an acre of land in Japan per capita. But the delicate question of race lies at the bottom of the problem. The Japanese are prone to retain their native customs; they form towns and communities; they live cheaply, work long hours, and spend very little money on their homes. By their overconcentration in California they endanger the government of the state. But the Japanese are susceptible to the promptings of the Americans. By their industry they have utilized the waste territories and converted the poor soil of California into fertile and productive land. The Japanese are able to produce food stuffs which the American farmer cannot raise. The frequent charges against the integrity of the Japs are often false, but California is driving the Japanese to hypocrisy by its intolerant policy. However," Dr. Iyenaga concluded, "it is America's duty to make the American-Japanese descendants worthy citizens. For this purpose a reconstructive policy based on generosity, sympathy and understanding should be adopted."

Committee Makes New Chapel Plan

order that the new chapel hour might interfere less with the activities of the day. The fourth section was introduced because of the prevalent feeling among the undergraduate body that the chapel service, as now conducted by many men, lacks the inspiration which is needed to make it a success. The only remedy for the complaints of those men who object altogether to compulsory chapel would be to make the service voluntary. As this is out of the question, the second and third sections were proposed as a compromise measure.

Hall '21 reported for the Honor System Committee on the activities of that body during the past year and urged that the amendments to the Honor System presented by that committee be accepted. The amendments were passed as read and are as follows:

Sec. 1. The chairman of the Honor System shall make a report of the activities of the committee at two College meetings to be held in the months of January and May, respectively.

Sec. 2. These reports shall include the total number of cases dealt with by the committee, the number of acquittals, and the number of convictions, with the punishment inflicted.

Sec. 3. The names of those men found guilty of fraud who have been dismissed from college shall be made public at above meetings only, and shall be published in no other form.

showed himself to be by far the best player on the team during the trip, though he was ably supported by J. B. Fenno, M.
Duane, and E. W. Feibleman.

M. I. T. is scheduled to play Brown this week in the first match of the former's season. Information received from the management seems to show that the result of the contest with Williams will be in doubt until the last set of the match.
Among the members of the M. I. T. quintet is Brookman, winner of the New England Intercollegiate in 1919 and captain of last year's team, and Cauldwell, a veteran, who leads this year's team.
These two men will compose the first doubles team that will oppose Williams, and the singles will be taken care of by Elliot, last year's freshman captain, Carver, a member of the latter team, and Scott. Brookman and Cauldwell, who represented M. I. T. in the New England Intercollegiate doubles last year, and who were defeated by the Williams doubles team, Pollard '20 and Chapin '23, will oppose the Purple as the first doubles team of their college.

campaign which the W. C. A. conducted in 1916 under the leadership of Raymond Robins; "The announcement of the campaign which Mr. Sherwood Eddy is to conduct under the auspices of the Christian Association naturally recalls to those of the college community who were here five years ago the campaign of a similar kind which the Association arranged in 1916.

"To most of us Raymond Robins was unknown and many, to whom anything of a 'revival' nature is distasteful, attended his first meeting in a somewhat critical not to say supercilious frame of mind. The writer frankly numbers himself among these sceptics and confesses that he went to the opening lecture of the series purely from a sense of duty and to satisfy his curiosity. The fact that he attended each of the subsequent meetings with ever increasing interest and enthusiasm proves how ill-founded were his preconceived notions of the campaign.

"That many others were similarly impressed by the virile personality of Mr. Robins and the sane, direct manner in which he presented the application of the fundamental truths of Christianity to social and civic problems, was evidenced by the size of the audiences which taxed to the utmost the seating capacity of the Jesup Hall auditorium as the campaign progressed. Without emotional or sentimental appeal Mr. Robins succeeded in stimulating serious thinking concerning the significance of life and the responsibility which rests upon the individual citizen, especially the college man on whom the country depends for trained leadership in the service of humanity. It was generally felt that the campaign had aroused our somewhat self-satisfied community to a broader and keener conception of civic and moral responsibility and that the Christian Association had performed a vital service to the College in securing a speaker whose dynamic presentation of his subject had inspired the kind of thinking that is translated into action."

No definite information is available concerning the line-up of the opposing team will employ, although it will probably be much the same as that which won from Williams earlier in the season. Carney or Kearney, who are left-handed twirlers, or Longaker, who pitched the previous game, will be given the pitching assignment tomorrow. Lafayette has met two of the teams that have defeated Williams, taking the measure of both Annapolis and West Point, by score of 10-5 and 9-5 respectively.

The probable line-ups are as follows:

FACULTY GLARINGLY DEFICIENT IN APRIL CHAPEL ATTENDANCE

69% of Official Body Subject to

FLAGRANT DISREGARD OF COLLEGE LAW 29

41 Percent of Professors Fail to Attend Single Service
During the Month

According to records of faculty chapel attendance kept by THE RECORD during the month of April, 41% of the Faculty of Williams College failed to attend a single chapel service during that period. By College Law No. 29 the duty of regular chapel attendance is imposed on students and faculty alike.

In the one month, in which there were six days when chapel attendance was not taken because of the Easter recess, 6% of the Faculty have taken more than the 18 absences from daily chapel that are allowed to students in a single semester, which would involve the dismissal of the former from college were the same penalty to be inflicted which exists in the case of students. During the month of April 65% of the faculty have been absent three or more times from the Sunday chapel service, thus again in one month exceeding the total allowed absences of the students for the semester.

It is a significant fact that of the 49 members of the faculty, the records show in the four Sundays of the month that in only ten cases has a professor attended both the Sunday morning and the Sunday vespers service on the same day. The average number of daily chapel cuts taken by faculty members during April is 18.3, out of 23 services. If the students were granted the same percentage of cuts as the faculty have taken in pursuance of their "duty," as specified in College Law No. 29, a total of 90 absences would be permitted during the semester.

DR. FITCH CONDEMNS BREAKING LIQUOR LAW

Admits No Excuse for Students Who Compromise Future by Drinking Habit

"If the young men of the privileged classes set the example of breaking the law, as they are now doing in the case of the Volstead Act, they must not complain when the under-dog, who is now working to support them, turns on them and breaks down their house of cards." Dr. Albert P. Fitch thus sounded the keynote of his speech on the subject, "Williams and the Liquor Question," before the W. C. A. yesterday evening in Jesup Hall.

"Four classes of men," Dr. Fitch said, "can be defended, or at least forgiven for drinking. These four, in my opinion, are lumbermen, sailors or soldiers, whose work is such that they become emotionally starved, men who have become addicted to alcohol by long habit and cannot break their taste for alcohol. A drunken loafer can be understood; a drunken undergraduate can be defended in no possible way."

"Man falls into habits with fatal facility. Men in their early years should look ahead and see where the road leads before taking the first steps on it. When responsibility comes, they will find that they cannot escape from their habit. If it is impossible to work without liquor, the time will soon come when you will find that you cannot work because you have it."

"By breaking the law yourselves, you of the privileged classes are playing into the hands of the Bolsheviks," concluded Dr. Fitch. "We are citizens of a republic. When a law is made, it is the duty of the citizens to keep it. If they do not, they are not good citizens. Where do you stand as American citizens?"

College Law No. 29

"Public worship shall be conducted daily in the College Chapel by the President or by the Chairman pro tempore of the Faculty or by some member of the Faculty or some instructor assigned by the President; which exercise it shall be the duty of the Faculty, the instructors, and the students regularly and reverentially to attend."

WILLIAMS VICTORIOUS HERE

Defeats Brown by Unanimous Decision in Grace Hall—Loses at Dartmouth

Three decisions in favor of the negative side of the question, "Resolved, That the employers of labor should give up the principle of the open shop," resulted in a triple tie for the 14th annual triangular debate series held last Friday evening between Dartmouth, Brown, and Williams. At Williamstown the Purple negative team was awarded a 3-0 decision while at Hanover the affirmative was defeated unanimously, and at Providence the Brown negative won over the Dartmouth affirmative by a very close decision of the judges.

Representing Williams against the Brown team in Grace Hall were Richard H. Balch '21, George R. Craig '24, and Carl H. Helfrich '24. Opposing them were Ernest S. Macmillan '21, Walter I. Waldau '23, and John A. Wilson '23. Professor Maxey acted as presiding officer and the three judges were the Hon. James W. Adams of New York City, Professor Herman Churchill of Rhode Island State College, and Professor Robert H. Loomis of Boston University.

Opening for Brown, Macmillan declared that the open shop would inevitably mean the non-union shop and attempted to prove that no system in any shop could represent the collective bargaining of the men as well as a labor union. Craig, for Williams, declared that union men cannot get along in open shops because of regulations imposed by the labor unions and not because of the conditions in the shop. Waldau, second speaker for the affirmative, touched on the greater advantages put in the hands of the employers and of their responsibility towards their men. Helfrich gave examples of both open and closed shops throughout the country and emphasized the growing popularity of the open shop. Wilson, summing up the points of the Brown arguments, made a

TENNIS TEAM FACES TWO OPPONENTS HERE

Trinity and Hamilton Netmen to Test Strength of Varsity
This Week

Trinity and Hamilton are the next opponents of the tennis team, playing on the College courts next Wednesday and Friday respectively. Both visiting teams have just opened their seasons, and little is known of their strength except on the basis of last year's playing. The Trinity team will probably include J. and H. Ortiz, Tilton and Graham. Against this combination Captain Bullock will send the following men, in the order named: Chapin, H. S. Prescott, Bullock, Fraker, Rowse, and C. L. Taylor. The three doubles teams will be made up as follows: Bullock and Chapin, Prescott and Rowse, and Fraker and Taylor. The Hamilton line-up which will consist of Captain Coupe, Getman, Barron, and either Aeberson or Fitzgerald, has been greatly weakened by the loss of Welsh, of last year's team, who is now playing in the number one position for the University of California.

Displaying unusual strength in the track events and marked weakness in the field events, Williams defeated Union in the first track meet of the season for both teams, held last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field. The final score was 75-23 to 50-1-3, the Purple taking first place in seven of the fourteen events, and winning all three places in four of them.

Oram of Union, with firsts in the 220-yard hurdles, the high jump, and the broad jump, and a second in the 120-yard hurdles, was high-score man of the meet with 18 points to his credit, while his teammate Beekman, who captured first places in the hammer throw, the discus throw, and the shot put, was second with 15 points. These two men together captured well over half the total points of the Union team.

McWhorter, with a first in the 220-yard dash and a second in the 100-yard dash, and Phillips, who took first in the 120-yard hurdles and second in the 220-yard low hurdles, led the Purple scorers. The 100-yard dash was perhaps the most exciting

WILLIAMS WILL FACE WESLEYAN WEDNESDAY

Purple Meets Strong Team with Confidence Because of Lafayette Victory

With prospects much brightened as a result of Saturday's victory over the strong Lafayette combination, the Williams baseball team will face Wesleyan at Middletown next Wednesday in the third game of the regular schedule. Up to the present time a comparison of the two nines is rendered difficult because no team has played both of them.

Wesleyan won her first game of the season, with the Connecticut Agricultural College, very easily, the final score standing 11 to 2. In this contest the offensive attack of the Red and Black was good considering the scanty practice which unfavorable weather had permitted. Captain Bateman was as usual a strong hitter. In the second game Princeton was only barely able to nose out the Middletown college by the score of 2 to 1, the fatal run being brought in by a pitcher's balk. It is evident from the fight put up by the Red and Black in this game that Williams will face a team which is at least almost as powerful an opponent as the Lafayette nine. Bowdoin was able to conquer Wesleyan 6 to 2, but this may be laid to the fact that Bubenieck, a substitute

HOUSE LEADERS FOR CAMPAIGN APPOINTED

Series of Talks

Appointment of eight men to make a personal canvass of each eating house on the day before the first Eddy meeting on May 6 to explain the purpose of the series of lectures and the selection of fifteen "key" men to be the representatives of the Eddy campaign, and to furnish active support to it, are the main features of the additional plans of the Executive Committee in charge of the series of four Sherwood Eddy meetings to be held at Williams on May 6, 7, and 8.

Beekwith, Hall, Hibbard, Joslyn, Noble and Ufford '21 and Lyon and Preston '22 will visit every house and the Commons Club individually on May 5 and will speak for four minutes at the mid-day or evening meal on the purpose and aims of the Eddy meetings. More alumni have signified their intention of returning to conduct discussion groups, one of which will be held after every mass meeting at the different fraternity houses and in the dormitories. In addition to these men, the following Seniors have been appointed to act as "key" men: Fargo, Alpha Delta Phi; Thexton, Beta Theta Pi; Brucker, Chi Psi; Phillips, Delta Kappa Epsilon; Patton, Delta Psi; Moody, Delta Upsilon; Hibbard, Kappa Alpha; Freeman, Phi Delta Theta; Coan, Phi Gamma Delta; Baker, Phi Sigma Kappa; Cutler, Psi Upsilon; Stanley, Sigma Phi; Cole, Theta Delta Chi; Coddington, Zeta Psi; and Searles, Commons Club. 'PHI BETA KAPPA' AT ANNUAL DINNER

Smith President Explains Faults of American Colleges in Main Speech

"The Suppression of Talent in American Education" was the title of the Oration delivered by President Neilson of Smith College, at the annual dinner of the Williams chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, held last Saturday evening in the Common Room. The speaker showed that in the college of today the brilliant student's intellect is not allowed the freedom and personal attention that it needs in order to be developed to the fullest extent. "While the A men and the B men are waiting for the D and E men," said President Neilson, in explaining the chief fault of American colleges, "their thirst and curiosity for knowledge are dulled and discouraged, and when loaded down with a mass of primer-grade instruction, designed to pull flunkers through college, the natural talent that they possess is not permitted the rich development that it would ordinarily go through."

RICHMOND'S BAT EFFECTIVE

Boynton and Error

Sixteen innings of sensational fielding and air-tight pitching, when the winning run seemed within the grasp of first one side and then the other, resulted in a hard-earned victory for Williams over the experienced Lafayette team in the first home game last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field.

Scoring near the start of the contest, both teams battled without success until at last the break came, and Richmond crossed the plate with the winning run when Benny Boynton's vicious single through short went past two fielders. Richmond's big bat had already driven in Ward for the first Williams score, which knotted the count in the third inning. After that each team had several good chances to sew up the game, but spectacular catches by Captain Wolbach of Lafayette and by O'Brien, and some quick fielding by Holmes and Hoyt saved the day.

Holmes, who lasted the entire sixteen innings on the mound for the Purple, gave an exhibition of fine pitching with excellent support such as has seldom been equalled on the Weston Field diamond. He kept the situation well in hand throughout and allowed only seven scattered hits although he failed to strike out a single man. His opponent, Seaman, managed to keep the twelve Williams hits scattered and fanned fourteen batters. Both pitch-

TENNIS TEAM TWICE DEFEATED IN BOSTON

Williams Overcome by Harvard 9 to 0 and by Tech 4 to 3
in Close Match

Whitewashed by Harvard 9 to 0 and barely defeated by M. I. T. by a 4-3 score, the Williams tennis team showed a decided weakness, due to lack of practice, in the matches against those colleges. The Purple players did not win any of the doubles matches and Bullock '21, H. S. Prescott '22 and Chapin '23 were the only victors in the singles contests.

Harvard experienced little difficulty in defeating the Williams team on the Divinity Field courts at Cambridge on April 29. Brooks Fenno, of the opposing netmen, sprang the biggest surprise of the afternoon in overcoming Chapin, New England Intercollegiate champion, in straight sets, 6-1 and 6-4. Fraker won the only singles set for Williams. The complete summary follows:

Singles: Fenno (H) defeated Chapin (W), 6-1, 6-4; Feibleman (H) defeated Rowse (W), 6-2, 6-1; Deturrenne (H) defeated Prescott (W), 6-1, 6-3; Romaine (H) defeated Fraker (W), 10-8, 5-7, 6-3; Duane (H) defeated Bullock (W), 6-0, 6-1; Bradley (H) defeated Taylor (W), 6-1, 6-3.

Doubles: Fenno and Deturrenne (H) defeated Chapin and Rowse (W), 6-2, 6-8, 6-4; Feibleman and Romaine (H) defeated Fraker and Bullock (W), 6-4, 6-4; Bradley and Dunne (H) defeated Prescott and Taylor (W), 7-5, 8-6.

Victory at the indoor courts of the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill, in the match against M. I. T. on Saturday was in doubt until the last set of the final doubles contest. Williams won three of the singles against two victories for M. I. T., but lost both doubles matches. The complete summary follows:

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Proper Solution of the Chapel Problem.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

Chapel Attendance

Considerable illumination is afforded by the statistics regarding faculty attendance given in another column of this issue. It is illuminating to come upon musty old laws which are still existent and operative to-day, showing clearly the spirit and the purpose with which Williams was founded, even though the majority of us are too prone to forget that any such law or any such spirit ever existed. It is still more illuminating to consider the cold facts of present day observance and the reasons therefore whether they affect chiefly the student body or the Faculty who have been chosen, in theory at least, "to lead them in the way they should go."

The reason for the paucity of faculty members at the morning services may possibly be found in the explanation of one professor that his rare attendance at chapel was due to the fact that his "aesthetic taste revolted at seeing students wiping the food from their mouths within the beautiful sanctuary." Or perhaps the reason is traceable to deeper, more fundamental circumstances.

Whatever the explanation may be, THE RECORD would be the last one to urge that the Faculty be actually required to attend chapel on the same basis as the undergraduates. Faculty members are of a maturer sort with consequent heavier duties and responsibilities. Many are married men with family cares and problems. It would be obviously foolish to insist in our modern complex community upon the "blue laws" such as would have been no hardship for our Puritan forefathers.

Nevertheless, it is to be hoped that the very recognition of this fact by the Faculty will bring with it the realization that students today are likewise occupied with their activities and cares, which are proportionately, at least, as important to them as are the faculty problems to members of the Faculty. Consequently the modest proposals regarding student chapel attendance which have been recommended by the Student Council and unanimously endorsed by the College body deserve the careful consideration of the Trustees and the Faculty of Williams. These proposals are carefully designed to preserve and enhance the value of daily chapel, and at the same time to remove the undesirable by-products of discontent and objectionableness, and as such they merit acceptance.

The Educational Why

It is safe to say that in his address before the W. C. A. last evening, Dr. Fitch indicted undergraduate indulgence in alcoholic stimulants on two counts which have never before been so clearly and indisputably demonstrated to the present college body: namely, the individual's responsibility to himself and his responsibility not only as a citizen of this country, but also as a member of a privileged, a leading, class.

The two points are clear cut and inescapable so much so as to appear almost self-evident; still, the fact remains that undergraduates drink, and it is obvious that they drink either because they have never come to recognize the dual responsibility which Dr. Fitch presented, or because they have never recognized the weight of that responsibility. Granting both the fact that a certain amount of independent thinking is expected from college men and the fact that a college education is calculated to induce that thinking, does it not seem reasonable to ask that those in charge of education shall make some effort to point out the responsibilities incumbent upon college men, instead of devoting practically all their time to preparing men for discharging obligations of which they have no clear conception? The human ego demands that matters have some direct relation to it before it can consent to be interested in them, and THE RECORD ventures to advance the opinion that liberal education would be far more effective if the whys of it were stressed proportionately to the facts of it.

A New Plank

Contemplation of the past winter at Williams in retrospect brings a rather indefinable feeling of partial incompleteness, of some failure on the part of the college to live up to all that might be expected of it. This sentiment may perhaps be incorporated in THE RECORD's Platform for Williams by the expression of a yearning for "Intellectual Leadership" on the part of this institution old in cultural traditions, if that leadership be understood to imply as essential to it the need for enlarged intellectual curiosity.

That such intellectual curiosity has been not altogether lacking is shown by the large and appreciative audiences which have attended the Thompson Course and certain of the Tuesday lectures. Considerable room for improvement is noticeable, however, in the poor support furnished debating and late Forum meetings as well as the ever-present lack of interest in national and international problems. No loyal Williams man exists who fails to take pride in pronounced athletic or social leadership when such falls to the lot of the Purple. Is there any reason why intellectual leadership, our oldest tradition, should not be also our present goal.

Anyone who believes that a college man, and particularly a Williams man, knows a good thing when he sees it cannot doubt but that a capacity audience will be turned out this week for the Eddy meetings, an immediate concrete opportunity for intellectual curiosity and leadership. Mr. Eddy brings a message so freighted with significance for the present day that that man is a hardy one indeed who says that there is nothing in these things for him.

The world-wide "Challenge of Present-Day Social and Industrial Problems" is a task which faces every community today. If Williams men are to take any leadership in settling these questions in the America of tomorrow, a full understanding is absolutely requisite. It is in an effort to bring such a realization home to the student body that the Sherwood Eddy meetings have been planned.

Any imputation that these meetings will partake of the hectic nature of a revival is unfounded; on the contrary the speaker will appeal, in a sane and sensible manner, for the application of practical Christianity to the various problems raised by a cataclysmic war. He speaks from the viewpoint of a college man, and his uniformly successful meetings elsewhere point to a similar result at Williams.

Sherwood Eddy is a man who could have been a power in international politics or a magnet in big business, but instead he preferred to devote himself to the practice of Christianity in unnoticed works which bring unintelligent abuse more often than merited praise. He is a man with a real world vision, the type of man whom it is a rare privilege to hear. He comes to us 'expecting great things of Williams,' giving us four meetings in place of the two usually allotted to smaller institutions, and it is up to Williams to surpass the record attendances which have been turned out for him elsewhere.

What Makes the Firefly Glow?

YOU can hold a firefly in your hand; you can boil water with an electric lamp. Nature long ago evolved the "cold light." The firefly, according to Ives and Coblenz, radiates ninety-six percent light and only four percent heat. Man's best lamp radiates more than ninety percent heat.

An English physicist once said that if we knew the firefly's secret, a boy turning a crank could light up a whole street. Great as is the advance in lighting that has been made through research within the last twenty years, man wastes far too much energy in obtaining light.

This problem of the "cold light" cannot be solved merely by trying to improve existing power-generating machinery and existing lamps. We should still be burning candles if chemists and physicists had confined their researches to the improvement of materials and methods for making candles.

For these reasons, the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are not limited in the scope of their investigations. Research consists in framing questions of the right kind and in finding the answers, no matter where they may lead.

What makes the firefly glow? How does a firefly's light differ in color from that of an electric arc, and why? The answers to such questions may or may not be of practical value, but of this we may be sure—it is by dovetailing the results of "theoretical" investigations along many widely separated lines that we arrive at most of our modern "practical" discoveries.

What will be the light of the future? Will it be like that of the firefly or like that of the dial on a luminous watch? Will it be produced in a lamp at present undreamed of, or will it come from something resembling our present incandescent lamp? The answers to these questions will depend much more upon the results of research in pure science than upon strictly commercial research.

Lafayette Nine Beaten In Sixteen Innings

ers tightened up especially in the pinches, when they were backed up by fielding that was little short of miraculous.

Williams sprang a big surprise in Saturday's contest, showing a complete reversal of form since the games of the spring training trip, when the Purple lost to Lafayette by the score of 10 to 4. The visiting nine was considered one of the strongest in the East, having defeated both the Navy and Army teams which beat Williams earlier in the season, and having lost only to Holy Cross.

The high points of the game were mainly in the line of sensational fielding plays. At one time Hoyt ran forward to pick up a slow ball and threw it to first in the same motion while still on the dead run, barely in time to catch the runner. O'Brien, at shortstop, pulled down a fly well back in right center which seemed almost impossible to reach. Wolbach, of Lafayette, caught two stinging liners in left field that looked good for extra bases, and his teammate, Carney, in center field dove forward for Boynton's Texas leaguer and appeared to scoop it up for a fair catch, although it was called a pick-up.

Captain Wolbach of Lafayette opened the game by grounding out Ward to Richmond. Welles hit safely but was caught stealing second when Gazella fled out to O'Brien. Ward, the first man at bat for Williams, knocked out a double, but Hoyt struck out, and Richmond grounded out to Gazella, who caught B. Boynton's fly a moment later. Lafayette scored in the second inning on a squeeze play. Chillson knocked out a two bagger, reached third on Carney's grounder to Richmond and scored when Bieber laid down a pretty sacrifice bunt.

Williams tied the count in the third inning. After Holmes had grounded out, Ward drew a pass and scored on singles by Hoyt and Richmond. The frame closed with a fly by B. Boynton to Carney, after which O'Brien grounded out.

Neither team had a good chance to score again until the eighth inning, when Wolbach knocked a single with one down and stole second, but Welles fled out to O'Brien, and Gazella's foul was caught by Finn. In the second half, Holmes got to first on a hit, and took second when Ward sacrificed, going to third when Hoyt singled, but Richmond and B. Boynton grounded out.

In the eleventh inning Williams also had a chance to score when B. Boynton hit a liner to center field. Carney ran forward and made a dive for the ball, which stuck in his glove. The play seemed to a number of spectators to be a fair catch, but the umpire called it a pick-up, and Boynton was credited with a two-base hit. He was left on base when O'Brien fled out.

Lafayette came within an ace of winning the game in the fifteenth inning. Bieber hit safely and got to third on grounders by Reeves and Seasholtz. Seaman then hit a fast ball to Holmes, who knocked it down and barely recovered it in time to catch the runner at first. Williams also had a good chance to score in the latter half of the inning, when C. Boynton doubled to deep center with one down and reached third on Monjo's single. Seaman then tightened up and fanned Holmes and Ward.

The tie which had extended from the third inning was broken in the sixteenth.

After Hoyt struck out, Richmond hit safely. He reached third through Boynton's slashing single past short, on the hit and run play, and continued to the plate when Carney and Wolbach failed to stop the ball.

The best times of the meet were made in the quarter-mile, half-mile and mile. Richmond won the half mile in 2 minutes, 2-5 seconds when a final sprint on the straightaway put him twenty yards ahead of Kellogg of Williams, who finished second. House Leaders For Campaign Appointed

Sherwood Eddy has conducted similar series of meetings in numerous other colleges in the United States with tremendous success and has scored decidedly in interesting the students and the faculty. Mr. Eddy graduated from Yale in 1891 and spent several years as a worker among American college students. In 1896 he went to India as a national secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and worked among the students there for 15 years. Mr. Eddy was then called to be Secretary for Asia for the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. and served for nine years in this capacity among the students and officials of China, India, Japan, the Near East, and Russia. In 1912-1913 Mr. Eddy assisted Dr. John R. Mott in his student campaigns in Asia. Mr. Eddy was connected with the British army in France during the early part of the war, and later served as a Y. M. C. A. worker with the Americans at Chateau-Thierry and with the French at Verdun and in the Argonne. Since the signing of the armistice, he has studied industrial and social conditions in the countries of Europe. He was with the Poles in their last stand before Warsaw, and made two journeys through Turkey in the midst of the present war of the Nationalists, Greeks, and Armenians. Mr. Eddy has made a special study of conditions in England, Germany, Austria, Egypt, Czechoslovakia, Italy, France, Belgium, the Balkans, and the Near East.

Professor J. P. Richardson, of Dartmouth College, has this to say of Mr. Eddy: "He comes to men with a man's message, phrased and delivered with a real man's straightforwardness, simplicity and courage. He believes that the ills of the world cannot be cured by socialism or syndicalism, nor the guild movement; but only by the practice of the elemental principles of Christianity, that is, the recognition of the intrinsic worth of man, brotherhood and service."

Mr. Eddy is the author of many books on various subjects, among them are the following: The Supreme Decision, The Awakening of India, The New Era in Asia, The Students in Asia, With Our Soldiers in France, The Right to Fight, Everybody's World, Personal Evangelism, The Maker of Men, and Suffering and the War.

Triple Tie is Result In Triangular Debate

plea that union shops would promote content and conservatism among the laboring men. Baleh, the last speaker for Williams, cited several cases in which the unions proved their utter contempt for the conservatism that their friends seem to ascribe to them. In the rebuttal the Purple debaters showed themselves superior to their opponents.

Hanover, April 29—A victory for the Dartmouth debating team was scored last night against the Williams trio when the Green won a unanimous decision for the negative side of the union shop question. The negative was upheld by George E. Brooks '22, Theodore M. Selden '21, and Josiah Willard '24, while Williams' affirmative team was represented by Webster Atwell '21, Hiram W. Lyon '22 and Harry K. Schauffler '22. The judges were Professor George G. Groat of the University of Vermont, Captain K. R. B. Flint of Norwich University, and Professor Alfred E. Richards of New Hampshire State College.

Lyon opened the debate for the affirmative and developed the point that trade unions would be the only possible solution in justice to the laborer. Willard, the first speaker of the opposition, argued that the closed shop would be detrimental to the continuity and increase of production. Schauffler, second speaker for the affirmative, undertook to show that the efficiency of labor and production was feasible only in case of full establishment of trade unions. Selden, the next Dartmouth representative, introduced several refutations and continued to strengthen the negative principles by citing the case of the employer in the question. Atwell advanced the theory of economical inequality under the open shop and proposed the union shop as a means to insure industrial peace. Brooks, the last speaker, spent considerable time pointing out the dissatisfaction with the closed shop in cities whose manufacturing was wholly governed by the trade unions. The rebuttals of each side tended to strengthen the points set forth previously.

Providence, April 29—Brown defeated Dartmouth here tonight in the Providence corner of the annual triangular debate between Brown, Dartmouth and Williams. Brown spoke for the negative of the Closed Shop question, while the Dartmouth debaters argued in favor of it. The score was Brown 23 points, Dartmouth 18 points.

MORE CHAPEL CUTS GRANTED COLLEGE VOTE TO FIX HOUR

Administrative Committee Grants Measures Recommended by Board of Trustees

CHANGES MADE IN FACULTY PERSONNEL

Dutton and Licklider Made Full Professors—New Assistants are Appointed

Upon the recommendation of the Board of Trustees acting on a petition from the Student Council, the Faculty Committee on Administration yesterday passed two measures relative to the student agitation for the amelioration of the chapel situation. The new rulings, which will go into effect at the beginning of the next college year, provide for leaving the time of daily chapel to the discretion of the students, and granting six more daily chapel cuts, only three-fourths of which may be used on week-days.

Inasmuch as the question of chapel requirement and attendance was considered in part a question of policy to be determined by the Trustees and in part an administrative question under the jurisdiction of the Faculty Committee on Administration, action was therefore taken by Executive Committee of the Trustees and by the Committee on Administration. The new rulings are as follows:

(1) Beginning September 15, 1921, morning prayers will be fixed at such hour as may be shown to conform to the prevailing sentiment of the students.

(2) The number of allowed absences for morning prayers and Sunday vespers will be 24, of which not more than 18 may be applicable to morning prayers.

A college meeting will be held later in the spring at which a preferential vote will be taken to determine the undergraduate sentiment in regard to the time of morning chapel.

Among the faculty appointments made at yesterday's meeting of the Trustees were the appointment of Assistant Professors Dutton and Licklider to the rank of full professors, the former of English Literature and the latter of Public Speaking and Dramatic Literature. Mr. Proctor was appointed Assistant Professor of Philosophy, and Mr. J. Fitch King Assistant Professor of Chemistry.

The minor appointments included that of an instructor in Physics and assistant in Geology, as yet unnamed, and of Fuller '21 as assistant in chemistry for one year.

Announcement was made of a gift of $25,000, in Spokane International Railroad.

TENNIS TEAM FINDS TRINITY EASY PREY

Visitors Fail to Capture a Set Though Doubles Matches
Are Close

Outclassing their opponents, Williams defeated Trinity in the first home tennis match of the season, which was played on the college courts last Wednesday afternoon. Trinity failed to win a single set during the match, the final score being 6-0 in favor of the Purple.

After being slowed up in the first set by Graham's back court game, Prescott in the second set solved his opponent's lobbing attack, winning the match 7-5, 6-1. Captain Bullock won his match in easy fashion, allowing Tilton but one game in the two sets, while Rowse had little difficulty in defeating Cunningham by the score of 6-3, 6-1.

In the doubles, Fraker and Taylor defeated Origies and Graham by superior net play, although the Trinity players drove the winners into frequent errors by their clever lobbing. Greef and Hastings won the final victory for Williams, defeating Tilton and Cunningham in a slow match in which neither team displayed

WESLEYAN DEFEATED BY IMPROVED NINE

Richmond's Heavy Stickwork Responsible for First Three

HOLMES ERRATIC BUT EFFECTIVE IN PINCHES

Losers Fill Bases in Sixth and Ninth but Put Only One Run Over Plate

Middletown, Conn., May 4—Cutting short a threatened ninth inning rally by a perfect strike with three and two on the batter and the bases full, Holmes won his second victory of the season here today when the Williams team overcame the Wesleyan nine 5-3 in a closely contested game featured by a running catch of Connelly's fly to deep center by B. Boynton and by the batting of Richmond. The Purple team, handicapped by a high, cold wind and an unusually fast diamond, played almost airtight ball, five of their six errors occurring on wild throws to first.

Although erratic in the sixth and ninth innings, Holmes pitched a good game, striking out five and passing six men. In the last frame, he twice loaded the bases by a wild throw to Richmond, three passes and a hit batter, but was able to pull himself out of the hole by striking out the last batter. Richmond with a single, a double and a home run, and Holmes with a single and a double starred at bat for the winners. Captain Finn caught a heady game, allowing only one stolen base and that when the losers attempted a double steal. For the Red and Black, Connelly pitched well, striking out eight and passing two. His wide, slow curve proved difficult for the Williams batsmen to solve. Captain Bateman was easily the star of the opposing aggregation with the stick, driving out two singles in three trips to the plate. The Wesleyan score was piled up on errors and passes and the Red and Black nine was credited with no earned runs. The Williams team outclassed its opponents in every department of the game, stealing five bases, hitting safely eight times and earning four runs.

The game by innings follows:

Ward opened the game for Williams by flying out to Peck, the Red and Black short stop. Hoyt grounded out, Richmond singled but was caught stealing

WILLIAMS NETMEN TO MEET COLUMBIA

New York Team Has Played Four Matches, Defeating Fordham and Wesleyan

In the sixth match of the season and the third to be played on the home courts, the Williams tennis team will oppose Columbia tomorrow afternoon.

Columbia has played four matches thus far, having defeated Fordham and Wesleyan by scores of 6-0 and 4-2, respectively. In the first game of her season, Columbia tied with Swarthmore, and in the third game met defeat from Yale by a 6-0 score. The singles will be played by Captain Appleby, Raymond, Seville, and McLaughlin. The first two and the last two entrants will combine to form the doubles teams.

The line-up for Williams will be approximately the same as in last Wednesday's match, the singles being played by Chapin '23, H. S. Prescott '22, Rowse '22, and Captain Bullock '21. The first two and the last two will probably combine to form the doubles teams. In case Columbia enters six players instead of four, Fraker and C. L. Taylor '21 will oppose them in the double match.

MAROON AND PURPLE TO CLASH ON DIAMOND

Colgate's 1920 Team Nearly Intact—Dangerous Hitters
in Line-Up

Fresh from victories over Lafayette and Wesleyan, Williams will face Colgate in the second home game of the season on Weston Field at 2.30 tomorrow afternoon. With a lineup practically unchanged from that of last year, Colgate presents one of the strongest college teams of the East.

With the exception of the catcher's position and third base, the entire 1920 Colgate team is intact. The receiving position will be taken care of by Hermann, a member of last year's team, who has been shifted from shortstop, while third base will be covered by Fitzgerald, a former Rochester University player, who has displaced Harris, the regular third baseman of the 1920 team. Captain Leonard, the Colgate pitcher, made a brilliant record, last season, and will probably be on the mound in tomorrow's contest.

In the two games which Colgate has played thus far this year, she has exhibited dangerous ability at the bat. Hamilton was defeated in a one-sided game by the score of 9-2. The Maroon also defeated the strong Tufts team 16-3, a hatting rally in the fourth inning netting ten runs on as many hits. In this game

WILLIAMS FAVORED IN MEET WITH WESLEYAN

Red and Black Track Team Broke Even in Two Contests but Times Were Poor

With a record of one victory and one defeat, the Wesleyan track team will meet Williams at 1.30 p. m. tomorrow on Weston Field. As Wesleyan is weak in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and in the weight events, the comparison of scores seems to give Williams a slight advantage over the visiting team.

Wesleyan lost her first meet of the season to N. Y. U. by a score of 79-56, and last Saturday defeated Springfield College, 66-60. The outcome of the 100-yard dash seems slightly in favor of Williams, after Miller's performance against Union last Saturday, when the Purple runner did the distance in 10 2-5 seconds on a wet track. In Wesleyan's meet last Saturday, Cooke did the 120-yard low hurdles in 15 4-5, bettering by a whole second the

TELEGRAPHIC MEET WILL BE HELD SOON

Amherst, Wesleyan and Williams to Enter Novel Triangular Track Meet

Negotiations are under way for a triangular track meet between Williams-Amherst-Wesleyan which will be held in the respective towns of the colleges and the result of which will be transmitted to the college by telegraph. The plan of the proposed meet is entirely original and the group competition is designed to give the team with the greatest number of good men the best chance of winning the meet.

Ten men are to be entered in the dashes and field event and five in the distance runs. The total of the times made by the ten runners is the determining factor of the race. The team having the lowest total being considered winner of that event and the aggregate distance covered in the field events by each team will decide the winner in that branch. Amherst and Wesleyan have definitely decided to have such a meet and if Williams agrees to the plan it is hoped that the date can be set for the first week in June.

"Exitus Acta Probat"

The Board of Trustees and the Faculty as represented by the Committee on Administration have given renewed proof of their desire to co-operate with the best interests of the Student Body through their decision regarding the Chapel Controversy. Careful deliberations over the various aspects of the question has led to the granting of practically every just and reasonable request made by undergraduates.

The recent appointment by the trustees of a committee to study student affairs and the decision to create the position of a Director of Athletics are other concrete evidences of the growing spirit of mutual appreciation and co-operation. It is a spirit that is essential to the furthering of the highest interests of Williams. With real pleasure THE RECORD notes the achievement of one of its chief projects. It is with an appreciative smile of content that we file away the plank "Proper solution of the Chapel Question" in the dusty store room of aims accomplished.

Sherwood Eddy

Those who know Sherwood Eddy are in high anticipation of his advent. He is a man possessing with unusual force the magnetic power which attracts men and charges them with energy. He can put his ideas into the minds of others with such persuasive emphasis that his thoughts become his listeners' tenets. He is a fascinating speaker for he is a part of all that he has met in a life of wide experience.
With Ulysses he may truly say, "Much have I seen and known,—cities of men and manners, climates, councils, governments, myself not least, but honor'd of them all." Like a modern Saint Paul, Dr.
Eddy has traveled much and spoken to thousands of alien speech and race. And in far places many peoples have received his words for he taught neither dogma, nor cant, nor creed, but love of man and God.

There are men who would face machine guns with heroic steadiness and self-control, but who flee from preachers as from a plague. For the most part these men are true as steel and straight as a right line, but the mention of religion sets them edging towards the nearest exit. They view Christian associations and endeavors as variegated forms of "hell-dodging," and will none of them. It is to men of this kind that Sherwood Eddy makes his most poignant appeal. He grips the raw truth in their spirits and commands their admiration, for he is cut to the pattern of a man. He has known danger: tiger shooting in India and speaking to fanatics of another faith are not recommended by any life insurance companies as pastimes. He understands the human heart and he speaks straight. And the men who shy at Christian Association posters will do themselves a wrong if they miss hearing

Dr. Eddy.

Coming from an extensive and sympathetic study of European conditions, Dr.
Eddy speaks with the eloquence of truth and understanding. He has already visited many colleges in this country and in all his hearers have been stirred. His is an accurate vision of the immense influences and issues in the greatest of the world's present problems—the reclamation of the peoples broken by the war. And the man who fails to attend his address denies himself an intellectual treat and misses an experience of lasting inspiration. Sherwood Eddy is a man who gives his personality, his experience, and his knowledge to his hearers and these gifts have a greatness that abides.—The Tech.

CO-OPERATION BY TRUSTEES

Editor of the Williams Record:

Dear Sir:

We desire to report upon the conference between the Student Council's committee on the chapel question and the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees. The two committees discussed the question at length with the ultimate results which are announced in this issue of THE RECORD.
We feel that this decision, arrived at by joint agreement of the Executive Committee of the Trustees and the Administrative Committee of the Faculty, satisfies every reasonable desire of the student body as expressed in the college meeting last week.

We further desire to report that at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Trustees the members of that committee showed themselves in hearty sympathy with the problems of the undergraduates, and in perfect readiness to grant any reasonable request of the student body. By their attitude and by the action taken, the Trustees have done their part to remedy the chapel situation. It now remains for every member of the student body to do his share in making the spirit of the chapel services worthy of the best traditions of Williams.

Eight Entered in Contest

Eight men were selected to take part in the annual Freshman declamation contest at trials held last Friday afternoon in Grace Hall. Next Monday at 6 p. m. has been set as the time for the contest which will take place in Grace Hall. The list of speakers is as follows: J. C. Bennett, Carr, Craig, Helfrick, Herron, MacMillan, Starr, and Wishard '24.

them. Following is the list of the various campaign helpers with their secretaries and headquarters: Edward M. Lewis '96, Dean and Acting-Secretary of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, secretary, Alan Joslyn '21; Fletcher Parker '11, Phi Delta Theta, secretary, Richardson '21; Charles Anderson '12, Sigma Phi, secretary, R. P. Towne '21; Sam Hooking, State Y. M. C. A. Secretary for Massachusetts, Commons Club, secretary, Seales '21; Herman McMillan, Dartmouth '21, Phi Sigma Kappa, secretary, Baker '21. All further notices concerning the addresses and discussions will be announced at the mass meetings and in the Advisor.

Mr. Eddy's first speech will be on "The Challenge of the World Situation." He will probably give a general resume of world conditions and will present to the audience the challenge to the American student. Mr. Eddy brings a message regarding the present industrial crisis in Europe where he has travelled and studied extensively since the armistice. Although Mr. Eddy is not a Socialist, he favors a new social order and will propose a solution for the American industrial problem.
The speaker feels that all existing disagreements could be remedied by the application of the "Golden Rule" to business conditions. Dr. Eddy ranks very high among the speakers of America. He has just returned from a trip through 18 European countries. The Daily Princetonian said of him in connection with his recent speeches there, "He comes with a message aimed directly at the vast problems which now confront the world."

second. Holmes passed Bateman, the first Wesleyan man to face him, and then threw wild to Richmond. The throw rolled to the stands and Bateman went to second. On Jacobs' ground ball to O'Brien, Bateman reached third and scored on Camp's fly to Monjo. B.
Boynton cut down Connelly's long fly to deep center in a beautiful running catch, retiring the side.

Ward opened for Williams in the fourth inning by grounding out, Peck to Jacobs.
Hoyt walked and stole second. On the second ball pitched, Richmond hit a terrible liner to left field for the circuit, scoring Hoyt. B. Boynton walked.
O'Brien sent him to second with a sharp single to left. Finn sent an easy ground ball to Stewart and was out at first, both men moving up. C. Boynton closed the frame for Williams by flying to Bateman.
In the Wesleyan half of the inning, Hoyt made a beautiful stop of Jacobs' drive but threw wild to first. Camp bunted to Holmes who threw over Hoyt's head, trying to catch Jacobs, who went to second on the throw. He reached third on the next play when Connelly grounded to Hoyt. Raines singled to right, scoring Jacobs, but was caught stealing, Finn to Hoyt.

Richmond started the sixth inning with a double to left field. B. Boynton sacrificed him to third, and on Heuer's wild throw Richmond scored and Boynton went to second. He advanced to third on a wild pitch. O'Brien struck out and Finn grounded to Peck. B. Boynton tried to steal home, but on the throw the umpire called a foul on C. Boynton, who then grounded weakly to the pitcher.
For Wesleyan, Fricke struck out, Bateman singled to center and reached second on a wild pitch. Jacobs was safe on O'Brien's fumble, Bateman taking third.
Jacobs stole second and Camp walked, filling the bases. Holmes struck out Connelly and Raines sent a high foul to Finn.

At the start of the seventh, Monjo struck out. Holmes doubled to right but on Ward's easy grounder to Stewart was caught at second on a quick throw, Stewart to Fricke. Ward stole second and was left there when Hoyt struck out. Stewart of Wesleyan fanned. Peck singled and went to second on Holmes' wild throw to catch him. Heuer flied to C. Boynton and Fricke grounded to Hoyt.

Finn reached first safely on Peck's error in the last inning but was out at second when C. Boynton missed the third strike, Heuer to Fricke. Monjo singled to right and went to third on Holmes' pop fly over Jacobs' head. Williams then worked a double steal, Monjo scoring.
Holmes went to third when Heuer let Fricke's return throw go through him.
Ward singled to left, scoring Holmes and stole second, but Hoyt struck out. Wesleyan started a rally in her half of the frame which scored one run and threatened to turn the game into a Red and Black victory. Ward made a good pick-up of Stewart's fast grounder but threw wild to first. Peck was passed and Heuer was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases.
Belcher, batting for Fricke, forced Heuer at second but Stewart scored. With three and two on Bateman, Belcher was caught off first by a quick throw, Holmes to Richmond. Holmes then walked Bateman and Jacobs, filling the bases, but Camp closed the game by striking out on five pitched balls.

Maroon and Purple to Clash on Diamond

Colgate piled up a total of 18 hits, while Leonard allowed Tufts nine hits and three runs. Steffen, who played right field for the Maroon, and led the team in hitting during the 1920 season, made two doubles and a single in the Tufts game. Barnes, Hermann, and O'Connor are also dangerous batters.

Without doubt, Colgate will be a formidable adversary, but Williams has exhibited an excellent brand of baseball, in defeating Lafayette and Wesleyan, both of which are considered among the strongest Eastern college teams. Thus far the hitting of Richmond, the fielding of B. Boynton, and the work of Holmes in the box have featured for the Purple. Holmes or Gregory will be the pitching selection of Coach Coombs for Saturday's game. In other respects the line-up will be the same as that of the Wesleyan game.

The teams will probably lineup as follows:

Colgate	Williams
Gibbs, lf	3b, Ward
Barnes, lb	2b, Hoyt
Steffen, rf	1b, Richmond
Hermann, c	c.f., B. Boynton
Schlenger, s.s.	s.s., O'Brien

CLASS GAMES BEGIN

Three Lower Classes Each Win a Game in First Contests

As a result of two games played in the interclass baseball series last Tuesday and one played yesterday, the three lower classes have each won once. The sophomores alone, however, have a perfect average with their game against 1921 scheduled for yesterday still to be played.

On Tuesday the Juniors won over the Seniors in a closely contested game by the score of 2-1. On the same day the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen 10-2. Yesterday the Freshmen easily took a game from the Junior representatives by the score of 7-3.

Freshmen to Abandon Banquet

Discussion of the advisability of holding a class banquet comprised the business taken up at a meeting of the Freshman class held last Monday evening in Jesup Hall. A ballot showed that the majority of the class were in favor of abandoning the plan provided that no custom of the College was thereby violated.

Mr. Eddy is vivid and vital on college problems.

How do you Feel?

Confident or Uncertain?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. Though some of them from far away signed the register the first time with the vague "try anything once" air, they have been our friends ever since. We like to think it's because they are confident that upstairs and down they will find pleasant, restful surroundings with cheerful adept service—and—hospitality in the midst of excellent hotel conveniences. Williams Favored in Meet With Wesleyan time of Phillips against Union. Williams seems to be the favorite in the mile-run, inasmuch as Coan has bettered Wesleyan's best miler, Stinson, by 10 seconds, covering the distance in 4:38.

Williams again seems to be an easy favorite in the 220-, 440-, and 880-yard dashes, since all the men in these events did their distances against Union in better time than Wesleyan's runners did against Springfield last Saturday afternoon at Middletown. The Purple team has a decided advantage in the hammer throw and should win the discus throw easily.

Wesleyan has considerable strength in the pole vault, the broad-jump, and the high-jump, her entries in these events all winning easy first in the meet last Saturday. The outcome of the shot-put seems

PURPLE RUNNERS DEFEAT WESLEYAN

Williams Triumphs Over Red and Black, 76 1-2-49 1-2—Biggest Score Since '14

UNUSUALLY FAST TIMES PREVAIL IN DUAL MEET

College Records Approached as Williams Wins Nine of the Fourteen Events

Piling up the biggest score which has been made in a dual meet with Wesleyan since 1913, Williams defeated the Red and Black by the score of 76 1-2 to 49 1-2 in the second track meet of the season which was held last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field. Contrary to expectations, the result of the meet was never in doubt, the Purple assuming the lead at the start and increasing it with the later events.

Unusually fast times, which in several cases approached college records, featured the meet. The Purple surprised even its most ardent supporters by taking first place in nine of the fourteen events, tying for first in another, and in five of these events taking second place as well. Each team scored one clean sweep, Williams taking all three places in the 100 yard dash, Wesleyan in the running broad jump. As was the case in the Union meet, the team exhibited much greater strength on the track than in the field events, although in the latter department much improvement was shown over the previous week.

Phillips and Miller of Williams and Abbott of Wesleyan tied for honors as high point scorers by winning a first and second place each. Phillips lost the 120 yard high hurdle race by a few inches to Cook of Wesleyan, whose time was 15 1-5 seconds equalled the Williams record for this event. In the 220 yard low hurdles Phillips turned the tables, winning from Carrington of Wesleyan by a matter of inches in the fast time of 26 1-5 seconds. Cook of Wesleyan finished third.

McWhorter of Williams won the 220 yard dash in 22 3-5 seconds, and although he was not pressed to the limit, approached the college record of 22 seconds, which was set by Kelley in 1910 and equalled by Hayes in 1916. Miller of Williams ran a close second, finishing five yards ahead of Yerkes, the only Wesleyan man to place. Three places in the 100-yard dash went to Williams, Wesleyan failing to qualify in

CLOSE GAME LOST BY FRESHMAN NINE

Rally in Ninth Inning by R. P. I. 1924 Team Responsible for 4-3 Victory

Tray, N. Y., May 7.—In a closely contested game featured by frequent errors on the part of the visitors and a ninth inning rally by the home team, which netted two runs, the Williams freshmen baseball team was defeated here this morning 4-3 by the Rensselaer Polytechnic 1924 nine. The excellent pitching and practically errorless ball displayed by R. P. I. enabled them to hold the Williams men to six hits, though the ten bases stolen by the visitors afforded the three runs.

Getting three hits and two runs in the first inning, the Purple 1924 nine jumped early into the lead and managed to hold their opponents scoreless until the fourth frame when Henderson, who had been walked by the Williams pitcher, crossed the plate. In the fourth inning also Williams made its last score and was then held scoreless by the R. P. I. pitcher for the rest of the game.

Browne pitched an excellent game for the R. P. I. freshmen, having 10 strikeouts to his credit, while Acheson, the Williams pitcher, had seven. Purcell and Holcomb of the home team, with a triple and a double respectively, did the best hitting in the game, and Acheson with two singles starred for the visitors. Williams' seven errors compared with one made by R. P. I., and the nine passes allowed by Acheson, were responsible for

To Adopt Constitution of International Club

Men interested in the study of international problems which are facing America will meet in Jesup Hall tomorrow evening at 7.30 p. m., to adopt a constitution for the International Relations Club. The purpose of the new organization is non-propagandist and non-partisan and is in accordance with similar groups being formed in many colleges throughout the country.

At a previous meeting held on April 19, Thexton '21 was elected president and Oliver '23 secretary. Efforts are under way to cooperate with the Forum in securing prominent speakers to talk on subjects of international questions. It is expected that the first of the series will treat upon the subject of British rule in India.

POWERFUL YALE NINE NEXT TO FACE PURPLE

Williams Weakened by Loss of B. Boynton—Opponents Have Won Many Games

Weakened by the loss of B. Boynton through lack of cuts, the Williams team will face the hard-hitting Yale nine next Wednesday at New Haven, Conn. The Blue has had a successful season, winning five of the seven games on its Southern trip and emerging victorious from the majority of the contests on its regular schedule.

As in last Saturday's game L. Buck will probably start at center field for Williams with C. Boynton and Monjo covering the other outfield positions. The infield will also be unchanged with Richmond on first, Hoyt playing second and O'Brien and Ward holding down short and third respectively. Finn will catch and either Holmes or Gregory will start in the box. Coach Coombs will also take Bixby, Burger and Mallon on the trip.

On the Southern training trip, the Yale nine defeated Alabama, Auburn, Florida, Mercer and South Carolina and lost two games to Georgia. After returning from this trip, the team was defeated three times by the New Haven aggregation led by "Chief" Bender, former pitcher of the Athletics. In the contests on the regular schedule, Yale overcame the University of Pennsylvania 4 to 2 and swamped Brown 11 to 5 and Trinity 19 to 0. The Blue also defeated Columbia 8 to 3, the University of Vermont 7 to 3, nosed out the Catholic University nine 2 to 1 last Wednesday in a ninth inning rally and last Saturday easily overcame the University of Virginia team 9 to 1. This last team beat Williams 6-5 on the Southern trip and drove Holmes from the box. Yale lost to Fordham by a 2-1 score and was swamped by Holy Cross 14-1.

Chittenden, who was knocked out of the box by Holy Cross, but who won his game against Catholic University, will probably start against the Purple, although Selbeck may be the choice of the Yale coach. Cox, who is considered the home team's best moundman, worked last Saturday and probably will not start against Williams. Aldrich at short stop, Eddy in right field, Sloan in center field and Captain Peters behind the bat have been the most effective wielders of the stick in the games this season.

The probable line-up of the two teams is as follows:

'Cap and Bells' to Give Series of One-Act Plays

On account of the departure of Mr. Albert Lang, for some years the coach of dramatics at Williams, who had been coaching the rehearsals of Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing, the directors of the Cap and Bells corporation have decided to produce instead, on May 28 and on June 14, during the spring houseparties, three one-act plays: Pyramus and Thisbe and Overruled, which were given on April 4, and Dunsany's If Shakespeare Lived Today, which was presented last Thursday before Pipe and Quill.

COLGATE WINS EASY GAME FROM WILLIAMS

Visiting Pitcher Holds Varsity Batters to Five Hits in 7-1 Victory

MAROON GATHERS 10 HITS

Holmes Effective on Mound for Seven Innings but Gregory Is in Poor Form

Displaying a decided slump in form from that of the two previous games, Williams lost a ragged exhibition of baseball to Colgate last Saturday by a score of 7-1. Weak hitting, several glaring errors, and the inability of the pitchers to stem the Colgate attack decided the issue in favor of the Maroon nine.

Holmes, on the mound for the Purple, pitched a fair brand of ball, allowing the visitors seven hits in as many innings, walking three men and striking out four. He gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh inning, and Gregory, who took his place, was both wild and easy to hit, for Colgate scored more than half her runs in his first inning in the box. One of the features of the game was a spectacular one handed catch by Buck in the seventh.

Williams was unable to do any damage to the offerings of Blume, gathering but five safe blows during the game. So weak was the Purple attack that only six times was the ball batted beyond the infield only three times in the form of a hit.

MAJOR "W" AWARDED VARSITY HOCKEY MEN

Athletic Council Grants Insignia to Cross-Country, Relay and Class Teams

For the first time in the history of hockey at Williams, the members of the 1921 team which played through the season with but one defeat, were awarded the major "W" by vote of the Athletic Council last Friday. At the same meeting the council awarded letters or numerals to members of the cross-country team, the relay team, and the class track teams.

Five victories over the Albany Country Club, West Point, Columbia and Amherst, including two over the last-named, were chalked up by the hockey team during the past season, although Dartmouth received the verdict in the final game of the schedule at Hanover, N. H. The men who have been awarded the "W" are D. M. Irwin, Jr., captain, Patton, manager '21, Becket, Buell, Cruise, assistant manager, Rowse '22, Clark, Mackie, Richmond, Stephenson '23, and Stephenson '24.

Crofts '21 received a "W" for placing third in the New England Intercollegiate cross-country race, and the following members of the team were awarded the "eWe" insignia: Conn, Kellogg '21, Adams, Wolfe '22, Fasse and C. F. Jones '23. Mendes '22 and Stowers '23 received the "aWa" for membership on the relay team, and Olmsted '23 received the same insignia for winning a first place in the Adirondack Association meet at Albany, N. Y.

Class numerals were awarded as follows: for winning a first place in the underclass track meet, Barnes, Beal, Chapin, Fasse, Mosher, Olmsted '23, Gregory, Pense, Pickard and Wishard '24; for the interclass track meet, Conn, Kellogg '21, Becket, McWhorter, Mendes, P. Phillips '22, Chapin, Webb '23 and Pickard '24; for the interclass relays, Mendes, P. Phillips, Richmond, Wolfe '22, Fasse, Olmsted, Stowers and Webb '23.

PURPLE TENNIS TEAM PLAYS TWO MATCHES

Williams Netmen Victorious Over Hamilton, 6-0—Defeated by Columbia, 4-3

Matches played by the Williams tennis team last Friday and Saturday afternoons on the College Courts resulted in a 6-0 victory over Hamilton and in a 4-3 defeat at the hands of Columbia. The mettle of the Purple netmen was severely tried in the match with Columbia, for the New York players had a powerful and well-organized team.

In the contest against Hamilton, Chapin showed his superiority over his opponent, Coupe, in every department of the game, and the first set resulted in a 6-2 victory for the Williams man. In the second set, however, Chapin slackened his pace, and was forced to play a 9-7 deuce set in order to beat his opponent who took quick advantage of the noticeable let-up in Chapin's play. The other singles matches were all one-sided affairs in favor of the Purple. H. S. Prescott found little to trouble him in the sets against Acebron, a Japanese player. Captain Bullock easily beat Getman, and Rowse also sent his opponent down to a crushing defeat. The doubles were mostly one-sided, except for the second set of the match in which Fraker and Taylor opposed Barron and Getman, finally winning 10-8.

Saturday's match found the Williams team against a much stronger and better balanced combination than either that of Friday, or that of last Wednesday, when Trinity was defeated 6-0. Of the two singles sets that were played between Chapin of Williams and Adams of Columbia, the latter was able to win only one game. The matches between Rowse of Williams and Appleby of Columbia, and that between Bullock of Williams and McLaughlin of Columbia were both carried to three sets, and in both cases the Williams players were victorious. Bullock took his match by steady back court play, and Rowse forced his net play to the utmost to beat Appleby. Prescott was not in his usual form, failing to handle the lobs of his opponent, Seoville, who, by the combined means of fast play and good placing took both sets, although he was forced to overcome a considerable lead in the first set. Fraker contested his

Speaker Treats Moral Problems of World and Campus from Own Experience

'SOMETHING MORE' TAKEN AS KEYNOTE OF SERMON

'Challenge of Rational Faith to Modern Man' Is Subject of Final Talk

In closing a three-day series of mass meetings, discussion groups, and personal interviews last evening, Dr. George Sherwood Eddy completed the most successful campaign for the upbuilding of student morals and living that has ever been attempted by the Williams Christian Association. Three talks on as many phases of student problems given by Mr. Eddy on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings were followed up in a most efficient manner by the leaders of the campaign and alumni in conferences and groups at the various fraternity houses and dormitories.

Opening the campaign on Friday evening in Jesup Hall, Dr. Eddy outlined to practically the entire student body in a powerful way, under the subject "The Challenge of the Present World Situation," the industrial and social crises which must be faced by the leaders of thinking people at the present time and the duty of the American college student to study the problems and apply himself to their solution. President Garfield presided at the meeting, which was opened with a selection by a quartet consisting of Chapman '22, Holmes, Richmond '23, and Archer '24, and a prayer by the rev. Charles Anderson '12.

Dr. Eddy spoke first of his experiences of the past few years in which he has seen at first hand the appalling conditions of famine that exist in China and the Near East, of turmoil and revolution in the Central Powers and Russia, and of the demoralized industrial situation of England and France and even America. Endeavoring to explain the causes of this situation, the speaker said, "Such a state of affairs is due to the faulty and materialistic administration of industry and government, and demands the consideration of college students, who will in a few years be the industrial leaders of the country." He then recommended the seven prin-

GOLF TEAM TWICE DEFEATED ON TRIP

Boston University and M. I. T. Win from Purple by 8 to 1 and 6 to 3 Scores

Williams was decisively defeated by Boston University and M. I. T. in the first two matches of the golf schedule, played on the links of the Worcester Country Club last Friday and Saturday afternoons. In each case the Purple team was pitted against formidable opponents.

In the Friday contest against Boston University, which was lost by an 8 to 1 score, Bourne, playing number four on the Williams sextet, was the only one to win a point for the losers. The rest of the Purple team was made up of Captain Seor, Simmons, Rose, Bumsted and W. H. Prescott, playing in the order named in both contests. Play in the foursomes was carried on simultaneously with that in the singles by a division of the teams into three groups. On the winning team two men played especially well, G. H. Aulback, Boston municipal champion, and A. P. Wade, the captain, who has been champion of the Meadowbrook Country Club for three years.

M. I. T. was given more opposition in the Saturday match played also at Worcester, the final score being 6 to 3. Captain Seor and Simmons, playing number one and two respectively, defeated H. M. Sealey and F. G. Clement separately, and also as a foursome, gaining the only three tallies for the Purple. J. Y. Ballard, a member of the victorious team, is the Texas state champion.

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

Thought

Some student philosophers expressed disappointment in Sherwood Eddy; other keen thinkers characterized him as "not theatrical and eloquentary, but quietly earnest and winning, through the strength of his own character." But whatever the personal opinions as to whether Dr. Eddy lived up to our expectations of him or not, the important result of the recent series of meetings is demonstrated by the amount of thought that they stimulated.

Around the dining tables, in fraternity libraries or private rooms, numerous discussions were much in evidence during the past few days. Vital questions of religious or social significance were brought up and threshed out with varying solutions in almost every case. As one alumnus expressed it, the encouraging thing in college to-day is the receptiveness and responsiveness in evidence on every hand. Men would not agree with every view offered, by any means, but at least they would give them intelligent consideration.

Williams has attained perhaps closer to "Intellectual Leadership" this week than at any time since the war. In this sense the Eddy campaign has been an unqualified success. The problem now before students is that of seeing that this is no temporary demonstration of mental activity but one to be continued with unflagging zeal.

College Athletic Maintenance

With the decision to have at Williams a Director of Athletics, the College authorities have taken an important step toward the recognition of that very vital phase of modern education. Up until this time, the only provision of the College authorities for physical development has been in the employment of a Director of the Gymnasium, of a Professor of Physiology, who has also made physical examinations of candidates for College teams, and in the maintenance of Lasell Gymnasium.

The time has certainly come, we feel, for the College to assume the responsibility and the expense of the upkeep of all the athletic property at Williams, notably Weston Field and Cole Field. When we remember how vital a part of the modern college's equipment consists in its athletic facilities, it is surprising to consider that hitherto the expense of their maintenance at Williams has all been defrayed from sources other than the College treasury. At other similar institutions, Amherst and Wesleyan, for instance, the athletic fields are maintained by the colleges just as are the dormitories, recitation buildings, and grounds, and why Williams has so long retained its unique system of leaving all this to other organizations is difficult to comprehend.

For years the Athletic Council here has spent money coming from alumni, the student athletic tax, and profits of student athletic teams not only to keep up but to improve Weston Field which is legally property belonging to Williams College. From the funds acquired from these three sources, the track, diamond, and gridiron have been kept in shape; the grandstand, two sets of concrete bleachers, a hockey rink and house have been erected; on the Old Campus, the baseball cage has been built. Just this year a considerable sum has had to be spent to paint the grandstand and the iron work of the bleachers in order to preserve them. And all this expenditure on College property has been provided for by money not furnished by the College treasury. We strongly believe that just as much as the College cares for Lasell Gymnasium and Hopkins Hall it ought to care for Weston Field and all other athletic grounds. In doing so, it would be merely assuming a responsibility that other colleges accept without question, and it would allow all the funds coming from the athletic tax and alumni to be used for athletics proper.

And, while on the subject of financing athletics, it might be timely to suggest another step on the part of the Treasurer's office that would be an immense help to both the students and Athletic Council, without putting an undue burden upon that office, namely, the collection of the annual student athletic tax along with the College charge for tuition and room. At present this athletic tax is collected from every student and there is no question of ultimate payment. But the work incidental to collection is tremendous and seems entirely unnecessary when in the Treasurer's office is the complete machinery ready to secure the payment of bills. Under this system, the athletic tax would be paid promptly and with no additional work for the Treasurer's office outside of turning over to the Athletic Council its share of the total bills paid. Of course reductions for scholarship men and exemptions for men working their way through College could be taken care of by a list given the Treasurer's office.

In assuming responsibility for the first of these two matters—the maintenance and improvement of athletic facilities—we feel the College will be taking a step not only long overdue but made all the more necessary by its recognition of the importance of athletics through the creation of a directorship of athletics. And by complying with the second suggestion, it would be showing in an admirable way its readiness to co-operate with the students whenever possible. We trust that both questions will receive the careful consideration of the authorities qualified to take action upon them.

CHANGE IN PLAYS

To the Editor of THE RECORD:
Sir:

Through no fault of the east, and through no lack of energy on the part of the management, but due to the departure without warning of the coach in the middle of rehearsals, Cap and Bells will not be able to produce Much Ado About Nothing this June.

As each coach has his own way of putting on a production, his own special "business," it is felt that the shortness of time would not allow another coach to put on the show successfully.

Three one-act plays will be produced, however, on the dates planned. The choice of plays will be announced shortly.

Warren Clark,
President.

Hitz '24 has resigned from the competition for the assistant business manager-ship of THE RECORD.

Purple Runners

Defeat Wesleyan

the preliminary heats. Miller finished a yard ahead of Dodge, who in turn beat Codding to the tape by approximately the same distance.

In defeating Captain Stimson of Wesleyan in the mile run in 4 minutes, 30 seconds, Coan turned in the fastest time which has been made on Weston Field since Newton '11 set the college record of 4 minutes, 26 1-5 seconds. Coan ran a heady race, letting Stimson set the pace until the last half of the last lap, when a sprint gave him a twenty-yard lead over the dangerous Wesleyan runner. Richmond also ran a pretty race in the 880-yard run against Captain Stimson, leading him by ten yards at the finish, and making the fast time of 2 minutes, 3 2-5 seconds, only four seconds slower than the college record made by Bray in 1900.

Stowers of Williams run neck to neck with Richards of Wesleyan throughout the greater part of the 440-yard dash, but Richards tired and both Stowers and Snell of Williams finished ahead of him. The time of the race, 51 4-5 seconds was unusually fast. Captain Crofts won his event with ease, while Fasse of Williams finished second and Norton of Wesleyan third. Captain Crofts has been steadily reducing his time in this event, finishing in the Wesleyan meet in 10 minutes, 3 3-5 seconds.

Wesleyan proved to be stronger than the Purple in the field events, taking three first places and tying for another, while Williams was able to take but two firsts. Abbott of Wesleyan won the shot-put with the comparatively poor distance of 33 feet, while Becket and Hiss of Williams took second and third places respectively. Marked improvement over the Union meet was shown in the hammer-throw, in which Williams captured first and second, these places going to Hibbard and Towne, the winning throw covering 119 feet, 4 inches. Williams was weak in the discus, the first two places in this event going to Wesleyan.

Wesleyan captured all three places in the broad jump, C. J. Johnson of Wesleyan making the good distance of 21 feet, 2 1/2 inches. Wallace of Williams won the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 6 inches, the best he has done thus far this season. The pole vault resulted in a tie between Mueller of Wesleyan and Chapin of Williams at 11 feet. Brown of Williams took third place in this event.

The complete summary is as follows:

100-yard dash—won by Miller (W); second, Dodge (W); third, Codding (W); time, 10 1-5 seconds.

120-yard high hurdles—won by Cook (Wes.); second, Phillips (W); third, Barnes (W); time, 15 4-5 seconds.

One mile run—won by Coan (W); second, Stimson (Wes.); third, Graves (Wes); time, 4 minutes, 30 seconds.

440-yard dash—won by Stowers (W); second, Snell (W); third, Richards (Wes); time 51 4-5 seconds.

Two mile run—won by Crofts (W); second, Fasse (W); third, Norton (Wes); time, 10 minutes, 3 3-5 seconds.

220-yard dash—won by McWhorter (W); second, Miller (W); third, Yerkes (Wes).

880-yard run—won by Richmond (W); second, Stimson (Wes); third, Webb (W); time, 2 minutes 3 3-5 seconds.

220-yard low hurdles—won by Phillips (W); second, Carrington (Wes); third, Cook (Wes); time, 26 1-5 seconds.

Shot-put—won by Abbott (Wes); second, Beckett (W); third, Hiss (W); distance, 33 feet.

Hammer-throw—won by Hibbard (W); second, Towne (W); third, Hubbel (Wes); distance, 119 feet, 4 inches.

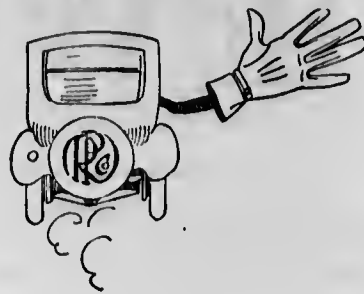

Discus-throw—won by C. C. Johnson (Wes); second, Abbott (Wes); third, Becket (W); distance 104 feet.

Broad jump—won by C. J. Johnson (Wes); second, Conover (Wes); third, Kosiki (Wes); distance, 21 feet, 2 1/2 inches.

High jump—won by Wallace (W); second, Downs (Wes); tie for third between Alderman (W) and C. J. Johnson (W); height, 5 feet, 6 inches.

Pole vault—tie for first between Chapin (W) and Mueller (Wes); third, Brown (W); height, 11 feet.

Ward led the local attack with a double in the first inning, which resulted in the lone tally for Williams. The Colgate batters drove the ball hard, collecting ten hits, including a double and a triple.

Neither team played brilliantly in the field, though many of the Maroon players had little chance to distinguish themselves, since Hermann and Barnes, catcher and first baseman respectively, made 21 of their team's putouts between them. Williams was guilty of four bad errors, which were punished in such a way that only two runs resulted. Harris scored Colgate's second run in the second inning when his grounder went through O'Brien's legs. Finn's low throw to catch him stealing second rolled to center field, and Buck let it pass through him to deep center. In the seventh, C. Boynton allowed Blume's single to get away from him, the runner making the circuit before the ball was recovered. Blume, the opposing pitcher, was the outstanding figure of the game, registering ten strikeouts and making three safe hits.

Colgate began scoring in the first inning. Gibbs, the first batter, walked and took second on Barnes' sacrifice. After Steffen had flied out, Hermann hit a triple to center field which scored Gibbs, but he himself was thrown out at the plate on a fast relay of the ball from the outfield. Ward evened the count in the same inning, hitting for two bases and coming home when Schlenger threw wild to get him in third.

The visitors scored the winning run in the second on errors by O'Brien, Finn and Buck, allowing Harris to cross the plate. Blume hit safely in the third, but was caught at second on Gibbs' attempted sacrifice. Schlenger for Colgate and Richmond for Williams both singled in the fourth, but were left at second base. In the fifth, Blume again singled and died at second on Gibbs' tap to Holmes, and Gibbs was thrown out trying to steal a moment later.

Holmes drove a hit to right field in the fifth, but was left at first. Colgate threatened a rally in the sixth. Barnes singled and Steffen walked, and both runners advanced a base on Hermann's sacrifice. The next two batters sent up infield flies which Richmond and Ward easily took care of.

Colgate scored again in the seventh on Blume's third hit and Boynton's error. Buck made the most spectacular play of the game by spearing Leonard's hard drive to center on the dead run with one hand. Williams threatened to score in the same inning when Gibbs dropped Boynton's high fly to left and Mellen, batting for Holmes, beat out a hit to short, Boynton taking third on Barnes' poor throw. Mellen was caught trying to steal second, retiring the side.

Gregory took up the pitching burden in the eighth, and immediately got into trouble. After hitting Hermann, he gave Schlenger a hit, and both men scored on Harris' double. Harris came home on Leonard's hit, and a wild pitch brought in Leonard with the fourth and last run. Williams was unable to get a man to first base in the last two innings, leaving Colgate on the long end of a 7-1 score.

Six games were played in the intramural baseball series last week, as a result of which Psi Upsilon remains the only undefeated team in the National League, while Beta Theta Pi and Zeta Psi share the honors in the American League.

Beta Theta Pi defeated Delta Kappa Epsilon by a score of 6-2 last Monday in a well played game, featured by Painter's exceptionally effective pitching. On the same day Alpha Delta Phi and Delta Upsilon fought a close battle, which resulted in a 3-2 victory for the former. With a strong wind handicapping the playing on Wednesday, Phi Gamma Delta won an easy victory over Sigma Phi by a 7-1 score. Psi Upsilon scored a 19-11 triumph over Phi Sigma Kappa despite the fact that in the fourth inning Phi Sigma Kappa had obtained a lead of 10-5. On Friday Phi Delta Theta defeated the Faculty in a close and interesting contest by an 8-7 score. Beta Theta Pi easily defeated Phi Gamma Delta 5-2, and Kappa Alpha defaulted to the Commons Club.

PURPLE GOLF TEAM TO OPPOSE CORNELL

Williams Will Meet Ithicans in First Home Match of the 1921 Season

Cornell will oppose Williams in the first golf match of the season on the links of the Taconic Golf Club or the North Adams Country Club, depending on the condition of the two courses, at 4.15 p. m. next Thursday. Last year Cornell was an easy victim, losing by a 7-2 score, but nothing is known of the strength of the visitors' 1921 sextet.

Captain Seor has not yet definitely decided who will represent the Purple on Thursday, but Bourne, Rose and Simmons, besides himself, are almost sure entries. The other two members of the team will be picked as the result of the continuous ladder tournament, in which men low on the ranking list challenge those next above them. Fulle, W. H. Prescott, Binstead and Hemphill are contenders for fifth and sixth positions on the team.

ciples of personality, brotherhood, service, liberty, justice, accountability, and love which if followed by those at the head of affairs would present the solution of the world's difficulties. Dr. Eddy concluded with an appeal "to follow the path of noble idealism rather than that of selfish materialism." The meeting was ended by the singing of "America."

In "Moral Problems of the Campus," the subject of the Saturday evening lecture, Dr. Eddy discussed the three gauges by which a man's character may be tested. "These," he said, "are best illustrated by three questions which every man should ask himself: Am I honest? Am I in earnest? Am I pure?"

"Dishonesty on the campus is found in gambling and drinking as well as in cheating and in studies. Gambling trifles with the values in life in causing dishonest gain or loss. It builds a man's life on chance, not character. A drinker often drags weaker men down with him, and drink also often drives him to crime, vice, poverty, and even death. He is not honest with himself."

"Earnestness is necessary in everything that is worth while in college and in after life. Almost any sinner may redeem his life if his purpose to do so is earnest. It is the cold man who has shut himself up as in a clam shell who is the hardest one to help."

"Like leprosy which finally rots all the fibres of the body is unclean thought. Sin often starts in thought; thought then explodes into action. In short, 'As a man thinketh, so is he.' The results of the vicious action to which unclean thought leads is far reaching, taking in its scope, many times, the lives of innocent people."

Almost as dangerous are the effects of unclean speech."

"Something More" in God, in self, and in humanity was the keynote of the third address of Dr. George Sherwood Eddy delivered from the pulpit in the Thompson Memorial Chapel yesterday morning. "The belief in a 'something more'," said Dr. Eddy, "characterizes the differences between the young and the old, the great and the small, those who seek a life of idealism and those who seek sordid gain, between the followers of God and of Mammon."

"The island of Manhattan is a parable of human life. Once it barely supported 100, now its huge buildings contain over 7,000,000 human souls. Watt saw the 'something more' in steam. Are we raising cabbages on a field full of gold? The old man is he who measures the future by the past, who thinks that tomorrow will be as yesterday, who believes that life holds nothing more for him. The young man believes that there is more beyond, more in self, in God and in humanity. David Livingston, Booker Washington, William Carey, and the five Williams students who met under the haystack believed that there was 'something more.'"

"We are only a fraction of what we might be. Are we finding the 'something more'? Business with the proper ideals is the best profession in the world, but 'something more' in business means to be a man, a brother, a Christian and to be free. We must find the greater meaning in God, in self and in our fellow-men."

Speaking on the subject, "The Challenge of Rational Faith to Modern Man," Mr. Eddy summed up and brought to a head the points he had made in the two preceding meetings of the series. The Christian, the man who has the rational faith, he defined as "one who is honestly trying to follow Christ and live like Him, and is responding to all the meanings he finds in His life."

"If materialism has broken down as a theory of life, what has succeeded, what has satisfied?" the speaker asked. "Christianity has succeeded as a working theory of life. How do we know there is a God?" Mr. Eddy asked and answered his question in the following manner: "We know there is a God because of the demand of our whole nature for something back of all things and responsible for them. We know there is a God because of the demand of the heart for a great companion, which is only satisfied by a great God of Love. We know there is a God by the demand of the will for a great power and purpose behind the world. We know there is a God because of the demand of conscience for a great moral cause of goodness. We know there is a God because of the demands of our religious nature, and finally we know there is a God because of personal, vital experience."

"God is no more invisible than you or me if we know how to look for Him. Great spiritual laws have worked themselves out in all countries and in all ages, just as surely as have great physical and chemical laws. Why not believe in these spiritual laws? Why not try them? Why not give them a chance? God is the immovable centre of life, the great central reality of existence."

"There are three ways, simple, rational, practical, in which every man can give God a chance. They are found in the account of the life of Christ: 'As His custom was, He stood up to read the scriptures,' and again, 'He went out to pray,' and again, 'He taught.' Read the scriptures every day and try to put into practice what you find in them. If you fail, as you will, try to gain help through prayer. Prayer is the breathing of the soul to God. By the third point is meant the life of service, the privilege of service."

"The American students today are not leading their country in thought or in moral courage. Why be so everlastingly afraid of doing right? Are you ready to live a Christian life? Will you be slave or free?"

RALLY IN SIXTH GIVES YALE GAME

Purple Unable to Hold 3-2 Lead
When Holmes Weakens, Giving Elis 5 Hits

GREGORY AND RICHMOND
MAKE THREE-BASE HITS

Williams Batters Mowed Down by Selleck as Crane Stars on Victor's Offense

New Haven, Conn., May 11—Yale's ability to steal bases almost at will and the wildness of the Williams pitchers gave the Blue a 9-5 victory here this afternoon. The Purple led the strong Yale team by a 3-2 score up to the sixth inning, when Holmes weakened, and five hits, combined with two passes and an error, accounted for five runs.

Williams scored three runs in the first inning, when Selleck passed Ward and Buck, Richmond sacrificed, Finn hit safely through Kelly, and Hoyt reached first on Selleck's error. Aside from Finn's hit, which was judged too hot for Kelly to handle, Selleck pitched a no-hit game up to the eighth, when Williams made three safeties for two more runs.

The feature of the game was Kelly's beautiful catch of a liner from Finn's bat in the third inning. Kelly's base running was spectacular, and he accounted for three of his team's nine stolen bases. Aldrich's fielding was a feature of the game for Yale, while Hoyt starred in this line for the Purple. Gregory and Richmond starred at the bat for Williams, each having a triple to his credit, while Crane, with four hits, including a double, out of five times at bat, and Selleck, who twice hit safely in three times at bat, stood out for Yale. In the first inning Ward drew a pass and advanced to second when Selleck passed Buck. Richmond sacrificed, advancing Ward to third and Buck to second. Ward scored on Finn's single. O'Brien rolled out to Aldrich, and Buck and Finn scored on Selleck's error. The inning closed when Boynton flied out to Sloane.

In the second Holmes struck out Eddy, the first batter for the Blue, but Crane laid down a single between Richmond and Hoyt, and scored on Boynton's error. Kelly flied out to Boynton, and Peters received a base on balls, but was caught stealing second.

Yale scored again in its half of the fourth. Eddy grounded out to O'Brien, Crane hit safely, stole second, and went to third when Kelly reached first on Ward's error. Crane scored on Peters's double. (Continued on Third Page.)

1924 DECLAMATION WON BY M'MILLAN

Second Prize in Annual Speaking Competition Is Awarded to Wishard '24

Norman S. MacMillan '24, of Pittston, Pa., won the first prize of twenty dollars and Charles S. Wishard '24, of Indianapolis, Ind., received the second prize of ten dollars in the Freshman Declamation Contest, held last Monday afternoon in Grace Hall. Honorable mention was awarded to Karl H. Helfrich '24, of Passaic, N. J.

The eight selections rendered all revealed careful preparation and declamatory ability, and the judges declared that the choice of a winner was unusually difficult. MacMillan, in reciting Spartacus to the Gladiators, displayed poetic feeling and intensity, coupled with a smooth and faultless delivery. Wishard, in The Rights of Man, by Theodore Roosevelt, had the force and conviction of the author, making good use of appropriate gestures. Helfrich's rendering of Thackeray's A Dinner at Brighton was dramatic and humorous.

The eight orations were delivered in the following order:

1. The Rising of 1776 Thomas B. Reade
T. D. A. Starr
2. America and Germany
Franklin K. Lane

VARSIITY WILL MEET PRINCETON TOMORROW

Tigers Won Ten Consecutive Victories, Defeating U. of P. in Two Games

In the first game with the Orange and Black since 1916, the Williams baseball team will meet Princeton tomorrow afternoon on the latter's diamond. Until its defeat in ten innings at the hands of the Penn State last Wednesday, the Tiger nine had won ten successive games, a record which included victories over Lafayette, and Wesleyan, and two triumphs over the University of Pennsylvania.

Comparative scores seem to favor Princeton for tomorrow's game, for Williams lost to the University of Pennsylvania, while the Orange and Black has scored two victories over that nine. Williams won 2-1 from Lafayette in one game, and lost another on the southern trip by a 10-4 tally, while Princeton defeated Lafayette. The outlook does not seem quite as dark as figures would show, for Princeton narrowly defeated Wesleyan 2-1, and Williams defeated the Red and Blue 5-3. Princeton and Williams have both lost to the Navy.

Little information is available about the work of Princeton's twirler, Margetts, who will pitch for the Tigers against the Purple tomorrow. He pitched against Pennsylvania in a game which the Orange and Black won, 6 to 3, allowing seven hits, striking out four men, and passing four. In a game which Princeton lost to Holy Cross, 4 to 3, Margetts also pitched, again (Continued on Fourth Page.)

WILLIAMS TO FACE AMHERST ON TRACK

Two Rivals Evenly Matched Despite Defeat of Purple and White by N. Y. U.

COMPARATIVE SCORES
GIVE EDGE TO PURPLE

Times on Track Favor Williams Runners Though Opponents
Excel in Jumps

Favored by the comparative times made this season, Williams will oppose her ancient rival tomorrow afternoon on Pratt Field, Amherst, in the 13th annual track meet between the two colleges. Amherst easily overcame M. A. C. by a 93-15 score in the first meet of the year but lost to New York University 66-44 last Saturday.

Williams seems to be the favorite in the track events, with the possible exception of the 100-yard dash. Miller won that event against Wesleyan in 10 1-5 seconds, but both Clark and Ferrini of Amherst have covered the distance in the same time this year. In the 120-yard high hurdles, Phillips defeated Stauff, the leading Amherst entry, last year by two yards, and his time in the Wesleyan meet was one second better than that done by Stauff against M. A. C. Coan's time in the mile is several seconds better than that of the Purple and White entries, and Captain Crofts expects to run in that event as well as in the two-mile, in which Fasce should land second place. McWhorter defeated Clark last year and has been making better time this season in the 220-yard dash. Wing, of Amherst, won the 220-yard low hurdles in the last meet, but despite the fact that his time this year has been slower than that of Phillips, this event should prove one of the most closely contested on the track. Comparative times also point to victories for Richmond in the 880 and Stowers in the quarter.

Clark and Lamberton of the Purple and White team should take the first two places in the shot-put, but Hibbard has the edge over Morse of Amherst in the hammer throw. The discus and the pole vault should be closely contested although Becket and Chapin won these events last season. In the high and broad jumps, Amherst is expected to take the first two places in each, as Clark and Darling have cleared the bar at six feet and Kimball has jumped over 21 feet. The meet (Continued on Third Page.)

WILLIAMS NETMEN TO OPPOSE BROWN

Visitors Have Been Overwhelmed
By M. I. T. and Dartmouth
This Season

Brown will oppose Williams in the fourth home match of the tennis season which will be played tomorrow afternoon on the college courts. The Purple will play without the services of Chapin, who will be at Amherst with the track team, but otherwise the team will be the same as that which faced Columbia last Saturday.

In its first match of the season the Brown tennis team was overwhelmed by M. I. T. by the score of 6-0. Brown was able to capture only one set in the entire six matches. Brown again lost all but one set in the second match of the season which was played the following day with Dartmouth. The Brown team is composed of J. E. Jones, H. B. Stearns, G. W. Bennett, and S. R. Ryno. Stearns and Ryno make up the first doubles team, Bennett and Jones the second.

Williams, showing a decided weakness because of lack of practice, was barely defeated by M. I. T. by a 4-3 score. The Purple won three of the singles matches, but failed to take either of the two doubles matches. In the Columbia match, also Williams proved fatally weak in doubles, but from comparative scores, should have an even chance in Saturday's match in this department, while in the singles the Purple looks decidedly stronger than Brown. Captain Bullock, Fraker, Prescott, and Rowse will represent Williams.

TITTONI ADDED TO LIST OF SPEAKERS

President of Italian Senate to Conduct Course at Political Institute

With the announcement from President Garfield that Tommaso Tittoni, President of the Italian Senate, will deliver a course of lectures at the Institute of Politics which opens its career at College this summer, another distinguished name has been added to the list of speakers. Others who have already signified their intention to be present include Lord Bryce of England, Baron Korff of Russia, Panarettoff of Bulgaria, Redlich of Austria, and Drago of Argentina.

In briefest outline, each course will consist of from six to eight or ten lectures. Lord Bryce will deal with "International Relations of the Old World States;" Baron Korff with "Russian Foreign Relations;" Panarettoff and Redlich with "Near Eastern Relations Viewed from the Two Standpoints of Austria and Bulgaria;" Drago with "The Foreign Relations of South America;" and Tittoni with "Italian Cultural, Financial, and Economic Conditions." More complete details of the program will be announced later.

Mr. Tittoni only recently was a prominent figure when he represented his country at the Paris Conference after the withdrawal of Premier Orlando. Educated at the Universities of Rome, Oxford, and Liege, he began his public career as Councillor and Alderman of the Municipality of Rome in 1884, and has been Chairman of the City Council since 1892. He was Prefect of Perugia and Naples, 1898 to 1903; Senator of the kingdom of Italy since 1902; Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs 1903-1906; Ambassador to England in 1906; again Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs; a member of the (Continued on Third Page.)

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

Playfulness?

Are Williams men failing to enter the activities in which they are engaged with sufficient seriousness? Does not this very lack of stern purpose account in part at least for defeats and disasters? The keen observer about the campus and on the athletic fields to-day is forced to nod his head in partial confirmation.

On-lookers at practice games on Weston Field have been surprised at the attitude of many of the players. They seem plainly out there to play and have a good time, and their actions bespeak those of schoolboys playing hockey rather than the activities of a college nine trying to learn thoroughly the complex science of baseball. Time was in the last decade, the days of championship nines, when the coach would have fired a man from the field for throwing a ball behind his back or adding other flourishes which are not baseball. This present spirit of playfulness extends beyond baseball and affects some players on basketball and other teams as well.

In regard to campus activities, the dramatic coach's clear outline of the situation which caused him to throw up the sponge deserves careful consideration.
Seriousness of purpose, according to Mr.
Lang, was largely lacking at rehearsals.
The men did not care sufficiently about the play to make any extra effort to be present or on time, and pranks and tricks were too often in order. The contrast he drew to dramas at Columbia was decidedly unfavorable to Williams. Yet Cap and Bells is not exceptional in this laxity; there are entirely too many other campus organizations which are culpable in much the same fashion.

The problem is an old one—that of the proper relative importance of the College and the individual. Students are prone to forget that perfect machinery is only possible when each cog is doing its proper task, quietly and unobserved, seriously and without frills. The cog is never bigger than the machine; the individual is never more important than the College. His inclinations must be subordinated to its tasks.

Master Minds

From Union College comes the report of the very latest advance of science—this time in the shape of a "universal lullaby," by wireless, for babies. Enterprising members of the College Radio Club, with the help of a few light poles, several wires, and a small megaphone appended to an ordinary baby carriage, have succeeded in transmitting through space to the occupant of said carriage on a noisy business street the dulcet tones of a lullaby obligingly sung by a young woman at the Club's sending station, over a mile away. The baby, according to the report, was soothingly marooned to sleep.

Here is achievement indeed! The college renowned as the mother of fraternities is now pioneering in lightening the labor of baby-tending as well. No longer will frenzied parents wear themselves out seeking in vain for silvery-voiced nursemaids, since lullabies will now be made to order. Apprehensive Blue-law legislatures may now, by appointing a central radio censor, remove all danger of having infant minds contaminated by nurses whose taste in regard to musical selections might be questioned. Young girls with no voices but with normal biceps may now receive the employment formerly restricted to their more talented sisters, while girls of refinement, unfitted for the manual labors involved in controlling a heavily laden perambulator but vocally qualified, will be promising candidates for the position of radio-songster. Nay, more; on pleasant spring days, overworked housewives will now be able to hang the family wash on baby's overhead antennae, while the sordid city streets could easily be beautified by fastening flags on the wireless poles,—one, say, bearing the coat of arms of the pampered infant and the other emblazoned with the insignia of the Radio Club. Truly, in Union there is not only strength but wisdom. Space once again topples before the onslaught of the inquisitive mind. Einstein take notice!

REGARDING CHAPEL ATTENDANCE

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Dear Sir:
As father of one of Williams' Alumni, and as a reader of THE RECORD I have noticed the discussions, pro and con, in regard to chapel attendance at Williams College, in your paper and elsewhere.

Permit me to say, as an outsider, that one of the finest things, from a material standpoint, at Williams, is your beautiful Thompson Memorial Chapel, which has the reputation, I believe, of being one of the most beautiful college chapels in the United States. It has, also, from my standpoint, a most uplifting effect upon the mind and heart of any careful observer with its lovely stained glass windows, stone and wood carving, and especially, since the Commencement in June, 1920, with its now close association with your Founder, Colonel Ephraim Williams, whose remains lie buried beneath the chancel.

I know that the average undergraduate is not much impressed with these things.
But let him but remember that he goes to college for a three-fold purpose, or should do so, the development of himself into a full man, spiritual, mental and physical, and that he cannot afford to neglect any one of these if he is to round himself out in every particular.

In other words then, this question becomes an attitude of mind, and if the student has "the will to go," and will stop to realize the benefit of the spiritual and mental uplift of attendance at chapel services, whether the matter were left as it is, compulsory, or whether it were made voluntary, it would readily solve itself.

I do not think that the right minded student makes any objection to attendance at chapel services. He goes because he likes to go, and that is all there is to it.
For, as the Psalmist says, "I was glad when they said unto me, we will go into the house of the Lord."

Friend of Williams.

Dr. J. H. Randall, Colgate Graduate, to Fill Pulpit

Dr. J. Herman Randall, associate minisuntil 1896. After holding several pastorates in the middle west, he was called

City in 1906, which he left in 1919 to take up his present work. Dr. Randall is the

Signing Your Name

WHEN you sign your name on a hotel register

How do you Feel?

Confident or Uncertain?
Delighted or Doubtful?
Like a welcome guest or
a homeless stranger?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. Though some of them from far away signed the register the first time with the vague "try anything once" air, they have been our friends ever since. We like to think it's because they are confident that upstairs and down they will find pleasant, restful surroundings with cheerful adept service—and—hospitality in the midst of excellent hotel conveniences. The sheer pleasure of mingling with joyous throngs is always here.

Rally In Sixth Gives Yale Game

but Kelly was held at third while Selleck fled out to Richmond.

In the sixth Yale scored five runs, putting the Blue on the long end of a 7-3 score. Kernan reached first on an error by O'Brien, and reached third when Eddy doubled to right field. Kernan and Eddy scored on Crane's double, while Crane came in when Kelly singled. Kelly stole second, Peters received a pass, and Selleck singled, scoring Kelly and advancing Peters to second. Murphy drew a base on balls, but was out at second on an attempted steal. Aldrich fouled out to Finn, and Sloane singled, scoring Peters, but Kernan, in his second time at bat for the inning, rolled out to Hoyt, retiring the side.

Selleck struck out O'Brien, Hoyt, and Boynton in order in Williams' half of the seventh, while Yale again scored in this inning. Eddy, the first man up for the Blue, grounded out to Ward. Crane made his fourth consecutive single, stole second, and took third on Finn's error. Kelly received a pass, and went to second as Crane stole home in a well-executed double steal. Peters was passed, as was Selleck, and Kelly scored when Murphy singled, but Selleck was put out at second. Aldrich hit to Hoyt for the third out.

Williams scored three runs in the eighth on three clean hits. Monjo fled out to Eddy, but Gregory hit a three-bagger along the third base line, and scored on Ward's swinging bunt to the pitcher. Buck singled, and came home when Richmond hit the second three-bagger of the inning. Finn fled out to Sloane, leaving Richmond on third. Gregory hit Sloane with a pitched ball. Kernan rolled out to Hoyt, and Eddy received a base on balls and stole second. Crane struck out, and Kelly grounded out to Ward.

Williams was unable to stage a rally in the first half of the ninth. O'Brien was out, Aldrich to Kernan, Hoyt struck out, and Boynton fled out to Kelly, ending the game with the score 9-5 in favor of Yale. The score and summary follow:

College Newspapers Hold Convention at Columbia

Representatives of the Eastern Inter-collegiate Newspaper Association held their second annual convention last Friday and Saturday at Columbia University, at which Brune and Sayen '22, managing editor and assistant business manager, respectively, represented The Record. Members of the editorial and business staffs of all the important college newspapers of this section of the country were present.

The Columbia Spectator received the representatives on Friday, and the morning was spent in inspecting the editorial and business offices of that paper. At the discussion meeting in the afternoon, Mr. W. B. Littell, of Roy Barnhill, Inc., an advertising agency, and Mr. M. L. Rutsky, manager of the Collegiate Special Advertising Agency, spoke to the business delegates, the main question being the policy of charging national advertisers more than local advertisers. Questions of editorial policy and technical matters were discussed at the editorial meeting.

On Friday evening a banquet was held at the Hotel Astor at which about 30 men were present. The results of the editorial contest were announced, The Spectator taking first place with "The Midnight Hour," and The Yale News second. Don Seitz of the New York World spoke at the banquet, discussing questions in connection with collegiate and professional journalism. After the banquet the delegates were shown through every department of the New York Times as the paper went to press.

On Saturday morning a joint meeting of the representatives was held, and officers were elected for the ensuing year. E. J. J. Smith of the Cornell Daily Sun was chosen president, E. A. Stevenson of the Daily Princetonian vice-president, and I. E. Ferris of the Columbia Spectator, secretary-treasurer. It was voted to hold the convention next year at Ithaca, N. Y. Dr. Cunliffe, of the School of Journalism, addressed the delegates at the Saturday luncheon at the Faculty Club.

CORNELL IS WINNER

Golfers to Face U. of Penn. Tomorrow in Fourth Match

Defeat at the hands of Cornell again befell the Williams golf team yesterday on the links of the Country Club at Bennington, Vt. The final score stood 5 to 2, Simmons and Ward being the only men of the Purple combination to win their matches. Captain Secor, Bourne and Rose were the other members of the Purple team.

On the links of the Apawamis Country Club at Rye, N. Y. tomorrow morning, the Williams team will face the University of Pennsylvania in the fourth scheduled match of the season. The Purple lineup will probably be as follows: Captain Secor, Simmons, Bourne, Rose, Bumsted, W. H. Prescott.

WILLIAM P. RUDD
 President of the Board of Trustees

The ALBANY LAW SCHOOL has adopted a course of study leading to the degree of LL.B. extending over a period of three years. The instruction is of a practical character intended to fit the student for the bar examinations and for practice at the bar. The extension of the course, however, gives larger opportunity for attention to the history and theory of the law than was possible in two years.

Students who are qualified to enter advanced classes may do so upon passing a satisfactory entrance examination. In such case they will, on compliance with the requirements as to attendance and examination, receive certificates of attendance, as required by the rules with reference to admission to the bar.

The annual circular, giving full information, may be had on application to the Registrar.

allowing seven hits, fanning three men, and passing two. The fielding of the Princeton team, though far from errorless, has been above the average, and the Tigers are capable of good stickwork, though the quality in this department has been changeable this year.

Despite the 7-1 setback in the Colgate game last Saturday, the Williams team seems to be gaining strength as the season progresses, a fact which was demonstrated in the Yale game on Wednesday. Yale used Seleck, one of her star pitchers, against the Purple nine, and he was able to fan only three Williams batters. After the four errors made in Wednesday's game, Coach Coombs is laying special stress on accurate fielding in the infield in preparation for the game tomorrow. Either Holmes or Gregory will be on the mound for Williams.

Postpone Relations Meeting

No definite action was taken at a meeting of the International Relations Club, held last Tuesday night in Jesup Hall, since only a few men were present, but plans for the future policy and activities of the Club were discussed and formulated. The suggestion that the Club cooperate with the Forum next year met with approval, and it is hoped that the combined organizations will be divided into two groups: one to study the social and political problems of the United States, and the other to study those of the foreign countries. Speakers are to be gotten alternately by the two bodies so that the men interested in these questions can hear as great a variety of views as possible. A constitution will be drawn up and definite plans made at a later meeting.

'Gone But Not Forgotten'

"John Spaghet" is gone. He has returned to the land of his fathers. Upper-classmen who remember his smiling face will look at the grinning skulls of plaster of paris on their mantelpieces and feel sorry.

His visits to Williamstown will be supplanted by those of a young soldier, Joe Silvetto, who will dispense clinging "Clunys" and plaster of paris pipe holders and other mantelpiece decorations to a new generation of Williams freshmen, and when he arrives their rooms will be resplendent with shining and artistic chef-d'oeuvres of recreated Grecian sculpture. And his smile—they say that it is just as winning as that of old John, who has gone from this country forever.

WILLIAMS BOWS TO TIGERS IN BASEBALL

Costly Errors and Weakness of Gregory in Pinches Result in 8-2 Defeat

MARGETTS ALLOWS BUT FOUR HITS TO PURPLE

Brilliant Double Play is Executed in Fifth Inning by Ward and Richmond

Due to costly errors and the weakness of Gregory's pitching in the pinches, Williams lost to the Princeton nine last Saturday by an 8 to 2 score. Only in the first inning was the Purple ahead, the effective pitching of Margetts holding the visitors to four scattered hits.

In the first inning Williams made the first of her two runs. Ward walked, Buck sacrificed him to second, and he scored on Richmond's hit through short. Boynton then hit through short advancing Richmond to second. Finn and Mallou fled out retiring the side.

It was not until the second inning that Princeton was able to score, when they tallied three runs. Fisher received a base on balls, McNamara fled out to Mallou, Weiser reached first on an error by O'Brien, Fisher advancing to second. Gilroy singled bringing Fisher home, but Margetts was out, O'Brien to Richmond. Botting then doubled along the left field foul line scoring Weiser and Gilroy. MacPhee struck out.

Princeton scored again in the third when Berg, who had singled and stolen second, scored on McNamara's scorching drive past third.

For the next three innings neither side was able to score, but a brilliant double play by Ward and Richmond, showing good headwork on the part of Ward stopped a Princeton rally.

Williams scored its second and last run in the seventh when with one out, Hoyt walked, advancing to second on O'Brien's single, and scored when Ward hit over second base. In Princeton's half of the inning with one man down, MacPhee doubled to right field and then stole third. Gorman walked and on a short and long throw to catch him stealing second, Gorman was safe, MacPhee scoring. Berg singled, reaching second on the attempt to get Gorman at third. Princeton then worked the squeeze play, scoring Gorman and Berg, Fisher being thrown out at first. McNamara fled out to Mallou retiring the side.

Princeton's last tally came in the eighth. Weiser led off with a single. Gilroy fled out to Finn. Then Gregory walked Margetts, Weiser going to second. Botting hit to Hoyt forcing Margetts at second, Weiser scoring on the play. MacPhee fled to Hoyt.

CASTS OF ONE-ACT PLAYS ARE REVISED

'If Shakespeare Lived Today' to Complete 'Cap and Bells' Spring Program

On account of the ineligibility of several members of the original casts of Pyramus and Thisbe and Overruled, which were presented in Jesup Hall on April 4, new men will fill their places when these plays are re-presented on May 28 and June 14, during the spring houseparties. In Pyramus and Thisbe the substitutions include Baxter '23 for Thompson '24 as Plute, Cluett '21 for deRochemont '24 as Stanceling, Brandeis '22 for Parkhill '24 as a guard, and Britton '23 for Harding '24 as a lady in waiting. WILL GIVE 'ELECTRA' IN THOMPSON COURSE

Edyth Wynne Matthison and Students of Bennett School to Present Tragedy

In the sixth and last number of the Thompson Course, Edith Wynne Matthison, supported by Graduates and Students of the Bennett School of Liberal and Applied Arts, of Millbrook, N. Y., will appear in the tragedy Electra of Euripides on Thursday evening at 8.15 p. m. in Grace Hall. This will be the third of a series of six performances that will be given by Miss Matthison and the cast.

Professor Gilbert Murray, Regius professor of Greek at Oxford University, is the author of the English translation of the Greek classic in which Miss Matthison will appear. Electra is a play seldom produced in America, but in England, where the star has appeared frequently, much favorable comment has been evoked from dramatic critics. William Archer, of the London Tribune staff, and one of England's foremost critics, says of Miss Matthison's work in Electra: "The character of Electra is depicted with marvelous subtlety. She is on the stage almost all the time, and is all the time in a state of high nervous tension. Edith Wynne Matthison supports the weight of character without once flinching. In attitude, gesture, expression, and delivery her performance approaches perfection. She makes Electra at once a beautiful, a terrible, and above all, a memorable figure." Professor Murray, translator of the play, writes to Miss Matthison that the play was "exquisite in the full sense of the word," and he describes her acting as "scholarly, nothing misunderstood, nothing false, nothing slurred over." He continues that "that is only a foundation for higher qualities; but as a foundation it is so vastly important. It was a magnificent performance."

Edith Matthison was in charge of a production by students of the Bennett School last year, at which time Antigone of Sophocles was presented with great success. In this play, as in the one which will be given here Thursday, she is assisted in the management of the tragedy by her husband, Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy. The dancing is under the direction of Miss Margaret Gage. Twenty-six girls take part in the play, exclusive of Miss Matthison.

Briefly the plot of the play is as follows: Orestes, a son of Agamemnon, is made known to his sister, Electra (played by Miss Matthison), and the two together take vengeance on Aegisthus, a tyrant, and Clytemnestra, an adulteress, thereby fulfilling their duty.

Elmer Green Resigns Position of Registrar

News has just been received of the resignation of Mr. Elmer A. Green, Registrar of the College and Secretary of the Faculty. As this is his sabbatical year, Mr. Green has been absent on leave in California, where he has been engaged in the Hoover Relief Campaigns, which work he will continue for the present.

Mr. Green graduated from Williams in 1902 and has been affiliated with the College since that time, first as secretary to Dr. Hopkins and later as Registrar. For the last six months he has been secretary to Mr. Hellman, who is in charge of the Hoover Relief Fund for California and the western coast.

TRADITIONAL RIVALS TO MEET ON DIAMOND

Victory in Thursday's Game Will Insure Possession of Trophy for Third Time

CLOSE CONTEST INDICATED

Amherst Has Shown Strength Although Defeated in Four of Five Starts

Williams will invade Pratt Field next Thursday to meet Amherst in the first of the two baseball games between the traditional rivals to be played this spring. A victory for the Purple in Thursday's contest would insure possession of the Trophy of Trophies for another year by giving Williams 12 out of a possible 23 points.

Amherst opened its season with poor prospects, having been hard hit by the ineligibility of three catchers and the regular short stop. New men were tried out in these positions during the Easter recess when the team remained in Amherst for practice. In spite of a record of one victory and four defeats, the team has shown promise of strength, particularly in the pitching department, where Captain Clark and Zink, both veterans of several seasons, have done effective work. Leete has been the heavy hitter of the Amherst nine, his home run against Dartmouth saving his team from a shut-out.

The Purple and White opened its season with a 6-2 defeat at the hands of Bowdoin, in which the inexperience of several players proved an important factor. Dartmouth won an exciting 2-1 victory, featured by the excellent pitching of Zink. Amherst won its first game against Colgate by a 5-4 score, the day before Colgate defeated Williams 7-1. Wesleyan, which had previously lost to Williams by a 5-3 count, nosed out Amherst in the best-played game of the season, the score standing 2-0. Leete made Amherst's only two hits, whereas Clark and Zink held the Red and Black to four safe blows. Amherst's last defeat was at the hands of Springfield College, by a 5-1 tally.

Coach Coombs intends to present the same line-up against the Purple and White that faced Princeton on Saturday, with Holmes the probable selection for pitcher. The winning streak begun in the Lafayette and Wesleyan games was halted in the last three contests with the strong Colgate, Yale and Princeton nines, but the playing of the Purple has been such as to indicate a close game with Amherst.

The probable line-ups of the two teams follow:

CAPTAIN SCORES 8 POINTS AT AMHERST

J. W. CROFTS '21

Beta Theta Pi Wins

Beta Theta Pi by defeating Kappa Alpha easily by a 13-0 score in the only game played in the intramural series last Friday, retained the leadership of the American League. Two National League games were postponed due to the wet condition of the field.

College Baseball Scores

Following are the scores of college baseball games played last week-end. Teams on the Williams schedule are capitalized: Holy Cross 5, YALE 2. ARMY 5, COLGATE 4. UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA 5, DARTMOUTH 2. ANNAPOLIS 3, Swarthmore 1. Vermont 5, SPRINGFIELD 1.

Juniors Maintain Lead in Interclass Baseball

Three games in the interclass baseball series were played off during the past week. As a result of these contests, 1922 stands first, with 1924 in second place, and 1921 last.

In the first of two defeats received in the week, the senior nine was overwhelmed by 1924 last Tuesday afternoon, the final score standing 12 to 5. On the same day 1922 won a close game from 1923, 11 to 8. The second defeat suffered by the 1921 nine was at the hands of 1922 last Thursday afternoon by a score of 6 to 4. In the case of each game superior pitching was plainly the deciding factor.

Purple Gains Four-Point Lead for Trophy of Trophies by 64 1-3 to 61 2-3 Victory

MILLER TIES COLLEGE RECORD IN 100-YD. DASH

Mendes Wins Deciding Points for Purple by Placing Second in Broad Jump

Amherst, Mass., May 14—In a most closely contested and exciting meet, with the outcome in suspense until the last minute, the Williams track team for the third successive year defeated Amherst in the 13th dual contest between the two colleges by a 61 1-3 to 61 2-3 score, thus giving the Purple four more points toward the Trophy of Trophies.

Although Williams maintained the lead in the scoring from the first event to be completed, the mile, in which Coach Seely's runners took both first and second, the Purple had but 61 1-3 points to Amherst's 55 2-3 when only the broad jump remained, in which Amherst had counted on placing three men. But on his first jump, Mendes went 21 feet 1 3-4 inches, over a foot better than any previous try of his, and later he lengthened it by 1 3-4 inches and held first place until the final jump of Kimball of 21 feet 5 inches gave Mendes second and secured the victory for Williams, keeping intact the remarkable series of triumphs that Coach Seely's athletes have maintained through two seasons of dual meets. A total of 22 1-3 points in field events, including two firsts and a tie for first, bear witness to the strength Coach Seely has developed in this department. The high jump was the only event in which the Purple did not place, although Wallace with 5 feet 7 1-2 inches was but an half inch below the three who tied for first.

Williams, which last suffered defeat from Amherst in 1913, won her tenth victory over the Purple and White by securing six firsts and a tie for first, nine seconds and three thirds with a tie for third. R. H. Clark of Amherst was the individual high scorer with a total of 14 points, and Captain Crofts and Phillips of Williams and Lee of Amherst came next with eight each. Miller tied the Williams record of 10 seconds flat in the 100-yard dash which has not been equalled since 1916. Other unusual performances were Phillip's 16 seconds flat in the high hurdles, 1-5th of a second slower than the record, and Beckett's throw of 108 feet 2 inches in the discus, about two feet short of the record.

Although the final score was close to previous calculations, the Williams total was secured in a different way than had been expected. Defeats for the Purple

U. OF PENN TAKES HONORS IN GOLF

Rose and Simmons are Only Players on Defeated Sextet to Win Their Matches

Ill fortune again followed the Williams golf team when it was defeated last Saturday morning on the links of the Apawamis Country Club at Rye, N. Y., by the University of Pennsylvania in the fourth contest of the season. The final score was 4 to 2, only single matches being played.

Rose and Simmons of the defeated sextet were the only players to win from their opponents the former easily downing Adis 4 and 3, the latter besting Davis 3 and 1. The contest between W. H. Prescott and Riley was by far the most sensational of any, it being necessary for the Pennsylvania golfer to play 20 holes to win. In the other matches Captain Rownd of the winners easily defeated Captain Seor 4 and 3; Bressette defeated Burnsted by the same score; and Bourne lost to Faulk 3 and 1. Scores in all the matches were only average due to the fact that the links were in a wet condition, following the rain on Friday.

That Pratt Field Jinx

The congratulations of the College are due the varsity track team for its excellent showing Saturday against Amherst on its rival's own field. Meeting unexpected resistance in events which had been confidently forecasted in whole or in part for the Purple, the team showed the traditional Williams spirit by retaliating in events where it was supposed to be weakest.

Individual performances were generally of a high order, previous achievements being bettered in several instances. The arrival of a new co-holder of a college record in the shape of an underclassman was in itself gratifying. Best of all, the success of the track team practically assures the Trophy of Trophies to Williams for the third consecutive year, a single victory in either baseball or tennis being all that is necessary to clinch the award.

The Chapel Hour

Within a short time the student body will be called upon to decide as to the hour for daily chapel next year. If the decision is to be a proper one, it must be based on a thorough consideration of the merits of each suggested time and not upon a hasty acquiescence to the partisan sentiments of some fluent speaker. Hence the ballot-box with a preferential ballot will prove more permanently beneficial than will the vocal acclaim of any College meeting.

Not unnaturally there are many who worship the god of precedent and believe in chapel at the present hour. Their main arguments are the value of such devotionals as an alarm clock and disciplinary exercise and the advisability of "starting the day right." There is considerable merit to this point of view, and due allowance must be made for it. On the other side, it has been pointed out that chapel has signally failed as an effective disciplinary exercise in producing tangible results so far, and that the increase in cuts will scarcely improve its effectiveness.
Further, it is the very belief that chapel exercises have not afforded the proper setting for the day that has led to the agitation against them.

In the second place, some have urged the establishment of the chapel at 10.00 a. m. The impracticality of breaking into the middle of the morning's work without obviating the objections urged against early morning chapel to any large extent seems to be sufficient to warrant the dismissal of any such plan for a middle-morning hour.

The last solution suggested is to set chapel during the noon hour when practically everyone will be present and wide-awake. The valid objection has been raised that under such a plan students will be inclined to sleep late and waste morning study hours. On the other hand, the very requirements for the passing of each curriculum subject should serve in the course of time to remedy this fault at least in part.

Endeavoring to look forward progressively, THE RECORD is inclined to favor this latter plan because it seems the first stepping-stone to later improvements. The dates of vacations are at present unsatisfactory to both students and faculty, and a change appears imminent. Consequently, when alterations are made in the vacation system, it would not be a far step to set each recess "from chapel—to chapel," providing daily chapel were at noon.

The advantages of such a system are obvious. When vacations start it would be possible to reach New York, Boston, or Buffalo by dinner time. Returning, on the other hand, it would be possible to take a convenient train from almost any direction which would arrive in Albany at a reasonable hour in the morning, permitting ample time to reach Williamstown for noon chapel. These considerations, re-enforced by the considerable discontent with the present hour, would seem of sufficient weight to warrant the setting of daily chapel at the noon hour for at least a trial period of one year.

Bennett to Head Gun Club

Geoffrey R. Bennett '23 was elected president of the Williams College Gun Club last Friday evening in Jesup Hall.
At the same time, Robinson '24 was chosen Vice-President; MacMillan '24, treasurer; and Foster '24, secretary. An effort will be made to revive trap and rifle shooting in College.

Freshmen Will Oppose St. Johns

In the second home game of the season,
the freshman baseball nine will meet St.
Johns, Manlius, next Friday afternoon at 4 p. m. on Weston Field. With a perfect record so far and a pitcher, Judd, of exceptional ability, it is expected that the visitors will prove a hard opponent for the freshmen.

Council Meeting is Postponed

Postponement of the Interfraternity Council Meeting from tonight to Tuesday at 7.30 has been found necessary by Chairman Finn '21.

Owing to the refusal of the government to supply airplanes and the inability to secure them elsewhere, the annual Intercollegiate Aero Meet has been definitely cancelled this year.

Exeter-1924 Match Cancelled

Because of the inability of the Exeter team to make the trip to Williamstown, the tennis match scheduled for the 1924 team last Saturday was cancelled.

runners in the 440, the 880, the 220 and the low hurdles gave unexpected points to their opponents, and the broad jump gave Williams three points which had not been figured upon.

Except for preliminary heats in the 100-yard dash and the 120-yard hurdles, the mile was the first event to be completed.
Coan took the lead from Captain Crofts during the first lap and maintained it to the finish, winning in the good time of 4:31 3-5. Crofts took second and Munn of Amherst third. The 440 was an exciting race throughout, with Moyer and Lee of Amherst and Stowers finishing within a yard of each other in the order named.
Amherst however received a set-back when Phillips and Barnes took first and second in the high hurdles, defeating Captain Stauff of Amherst, who did not even qualify. But it was an even greater surprise when Miller defeated R. H. Clark in a 10 flat century with McWhorter third.

Another Purple victory was the two-mile with Captain Crofts winning in 10 minutes

Little Progress Made in Four Class Tourneys

Due to the wet weather, little progress was made in the Interclass Tennis Tournament during the past week-end. All third-round matches must be played off by next Wednesday in order that the finals may be completed as soon as possible. Following are the results of the matches played Friday and Saturday:

1922: Second Round—Brown defeated

Wallace.

1923: Second Round—Sewall defeated

Irwin; Mosher defeated Romaine.

Williams Defeats Amherst in Track by Narrow Margin

6 1-5 seconds, a remarkable time after his hard race in the mile. Fasse came in second and Johnson, the only Amherst entry who did not drop out, took third. Lee of Amherst won the half-mile in 2:01 with Richmond a close second. In the 220-yard dash, McWhorter's being penalized two yards at the start cost him the first place to R. H. Clark, and Dodge nosed Miller out for third. Phillips ran a beautiful race in the low hurdles until he lost his step and Win of Amherst barely defeated him in the fast time of 25 3-5 seconds. Mason took the third place for the Purple.

In the field events, Williams did not start very auspiciously, for Hiss with a third was the only man to place in the shot-put. But the score was evened when Hibbard and Towne, bettering their previous records by several feet, won first and second in the hammer, Hibbard throwing it 123 feet 6 inches and Towne, 115 feet. Becket's first place in the discus and Fargo's third put Williams further ahead, but Amherst's disadvantage was offset when a triple tie between R. H. Clark, Lamberton, and Darling in the high jump gave the Purple and White all nine points. Chapin sailed over the bar at 11 feet in the pole-vault, tying with R. G. Johnson for first whereas Brown divided third place with Bailey and Darling at 10 feet 6 inches. Chapin competed in the broad jump but did not take his finalty when Mendes' unexpected leap gave Williams the victory.

The summary follows:

100-yard dash—won by Miller (W); second, R. H. Clark (A); third, McWhorter (W); time, 10 seconds flat.

120-yard high hurdles—won by Phillips (W); second, Barnes (W); third, Brown (A); time, 16 seconds flat.

One-mile run—won by Coan (W); second, Crofts (W); third, Munn (A); time, 4 minutes, 31 3-5 seconds.

440-yard dash—won by Moyer (A); second, Lee (A); third, Stowers (W); time 52 seconds flat.

Two-mile run—won by Crofts (W); second, Fasse (W); third, Johnson (A); time, 10 minutes, 6 1-5 seconds.

220-yard dash—won by R. H. Clark (A); second, McWhorter (W); third, Dodge (W); time, 23 seconds flat.

880-yard run—won by Lee (A); second, Richmond (W); third, Moyer (A); time, 2 minutes, 1 second.

220-yard low hurdles—won by Wing (A); second, Phillips (W); third, Mason (W); time, 25 3-5 seconds.

Shot-put—won by Andrews (A); second, Lamberton (A); third, Hiss (W); distance, 39 feet, 9 1-2 inches.

Hammer throw—won by Hibbard (W); second, Towne (W); third, Moran (A); distance, 123 feet, 6 inches.

Discus throw—won by Becket (W); second, R. H. Clark (A); third, Fargo (W); distance, 108 feet, 2 inches.

Running high jump—tie for first by Darling (A), Clark (A) and Lamberton (A); height, 5 feet, 8 inches.

Running broad jump—won by Kimball (A); second, Mendes (W); third, Seyler (A); distance, 21 feet, 5 inches.

Pole-vault—tie for first by Chapin (W) and R. G. Johnson (A); tie for third by Brown (W), Bailey (A) and Darling (A); height, 11 feet.

The officials were as follows:—referee—Mr. G. J. Edwards; starter—Mr. G. B. Burnett, Jr.; timers—Professor Fletcher, Dr. Phillips, and Mr. Kennedy; judges at finish—Professor Baxter, Professor Bennett; clerk of course—Professor R. W. Marsh.

It was time to wake up, all right

MY BRAIN was busy.
BUILDING AIR castles.
FOR I wasn't sleepy.
FINALLY I dozed off.
AND PROMPTLY dreamed.
THAT I was awake.
BUT WOKE right up.
AND FOUND I was asleep.
THEN I got thinking.
OF A wonderful formula.
FOR MAKING cigarettes.
I PLANNED it all out.
SO MUCH Turkish tobacco.
BLENDED JUST so with Burley.
AND OTHER Domestic leaf.
AND I knew that blend.
WOULD MAKE a hit.
I COULD just see.
CROWDS OF happy people.
THRONGING INTO stores.
TO BUY that cigarette.
THEN LIGHTING up.
SMACKING THEIR lips.
AND SAYING, "Oh, Boy.
IT'S THE exact copy.
OF THAT 'Satisfy' blend."
AND THEN I came to.
AND SAID to myself.
"THIS TIME you're dreaming.
FOR SURE.
WAKE UP, you darn fool.
WHY, THAT 'Satisfy' blend.
SIMPLY CAN'T be copied."

THAT'S a fact—the "Satisfy blend" can't be copied. It's our own secret—putting those good tobaccos together in a way that gives you every last ounce of their fragrance. You'll smack your lips over Chesterfields. And remember—you can't get "Satisfy" anywhere else.

SIXTEEN COLLEGES ENTER N. E. I. MEET

Williams to Send 17 Men Who Have Scored 190 of 215 Points
In Dual Meets

BOTH BOSTON COLLEGE
AND M. I. T. ARE STRONG

Purple Runners on Edge for Contest After Three Victories In Season's Meets

With a record of three straight victories in the dual meets of the season, Williams will compete with fifteen other colleges in the Thirty-Fifth Annual New England Intercollegiate Meet, which will be held on Tech Field, Cambridge, Mass., today and tomorrow. The colleges which have entered teams in the meet are as follows: Amherst, Bates, Boston College, Bowdoin, Brown, Colby, Holy Cross, M. A. C., Middlebury, M. I. T., New Hampshire State College, Trinity, University of Maine, Wesleyan, Williams and Worcester.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology which has won the meet for three successive years, is again the favorite in tomorrow's contest. Boston College is strong, as is Brown, while Amherst has strong entries in several events, and may place in the first three. Williams enters the meet with prospects much the same as those of last year, although the loss of H. H. Brown will be keenly felt. The weakness of the Purple lies in the fact that it will encounter the strongest opposition in the events in which the team has thus far shown the greatest strength. Little can be said definitely regarding the outcome in a meet in which there are so many entries of unknown strength. Judging from past records, the Purple should take third or fourth place, with a possibility of second if the "breaks" of the meet are favorable.

Williams will enter seventeen men, who between them have totalled 190 of the total of 215 points which have been scored by the Purple in the three dual meets. Of these men the most likely winners are Miller in the 100-yard dash and Com in the mile run, although both will meet strong opposition. In the 100-yard dash Clark of Amherst and Miller have records of 10 seconds flat, both made on the Amherst track. Other strong candidates are J. F. Carter of Brown, and T. P. Fitz and J. W. Poole of M. I. T. Coan will meet two dangerous runners in R. S. Buker of Bates and G. R. Goodwin of Bowdoin. In making his fast times in the dual meets he has not been pressed at any time. Stinson of Wesleyan will, in all probability, enter only the half mile.

Phillips, who leads in scoring for the season thus far with 24 points to his credit, has a fighting chance of victory in the 120-

WILLIAMS TO OPPOSE DARTMOUTH IN TENNIS

Green Has Scored Victories Over Brown, M. I. T., U. of Penn. and Tied Amherst

Weakened by the absence of Chapin '23 who will take part in the New England Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament at Boston, the Williams tennis team will oppose Dartmouth at Hanover tomorrow afternoon. Captain Bullock, Fraker and C. Taylor '21 and Prescott and Rowse '22 will represent the Purple.

Dartmouth opened her schedule by tying the Amherst tennis team on April 28 at Amherst, Mass. Captain Sanders, and Howe won their singles matches for the Green and as a doubles team defeated their opponents. In the second match, Dartmouth defeated Brown 6-0, taking every set but one. The first home match proved a 6-0 win for the Green over the M. I. T. team, featured by the close games between Captain Sanders of Dartmouth and Brookman of M. I. T. The University of Pennsylvania team was overcome by a 6-0 score, the Green players easily winning every match except the one be-

College Mass Meeting Held Wednesday Evening

Discussion of the time for daily chapel next year and a speech by Coach Coombs in regard to college spirit at Williams featured a college mass meeting Wednesday evening in Jesup Hall.

Arguments were considered concerning the advisability of holding the chapel service at 7.50 a. m. or at noon. The college will vote on this question on a preferential ballot next Wednesday at the same time as the election of assistant track and baseball managers. Students are also requested to write on the back of the ballot the names of the members of the Faculty whom they would prefer to conduct the services.

Coach Coombs then spoke on behalf of the baseball team and scored the college body for their lack of enthusiasm in supporting the baseball and the track teams. He declared that every student ought to go to Amherst for the game. The meeting closed with the singing of The Mountains.

Four houses, Chi Psi, Kappa Alpha, Alpha Delta Phi, and Sigma Phi, will combine in a large series of dansants. Beta Theta Pi will entertain a few guests, but has arranged no definite festivities, and Phi Delta Theta, Delta Upsilon, Delta Psi, and Theta Delta Chi are still undecided.

Following is the Commencement program:

Boys' Club Banquets Tonight

Under the auspices of the Boys' Work Committee of the W. C. A., a banquet will be given this evening at 7.30 p. m. in the Commons Room, Currier Hall, to about 95 boys. An equal number of students have been invited, each to have the care of one boy as his guest. Dr. Vanderpoel, Adriance and Ben Lee Boynton will head the list of speakers.

PURPLE NINE MEETS TRINITY TOMORROW

Visitors Have Scored Only One Run in Five Games Played
This Season

Favored by every chance of success, the Williams baseball team will oppose the Trinity nine tomorrow afternoon on Weston Field at 2.30 p. m. Trinity has not won a game this year in five starts and has scored only one run.

Holy Cross opposed Trinity in the first contest of the season and swamped the Blue and Gold 14-0. The games against Amherst and Worcester were cancelled because of rain, but Yale overwhelmed the Trinity nine 19-0, Bowdoin won 4-1, and Brown and Massachusetts Agricultural College scored 8-0 and 18-0 victories respectively. The Trinity team is composed chiefly of Freshmen, but four members of the team having played varsity ball before. Captain Reynolds on first base and Cram at short have proven the most effective men at the bat and the base running of Bolles has been a feature of the games. Due to injuries, Reynolds will probably not start the game. J. Orgies or Brickley will be on the mound for the visitors.

For Williams, the line-up will probably be the same as in the Amherst game, with either Holmes, Gregory or Patton pitching. B. Boynton, Mallon, and C. Boynton, L. Buck or Monjo will start in the outfield and the infield will remain the same with Richmond, Hoyt, O'Brien and Ward covering the positions.

The probable line-ups of the two teams is as follows:

Trinity	Williams
Hall, cf	Ward, 3b
H. Orgies, ss	Buck, C. Boynton, rf
Bolles, Canner, Reynolds, lb
Jones, c	Richmond, lb

RECORD DELEGATION TO GO TO SILVER BAY

Williams Will Send 20 to 25 Men to 36th Annual Conference for College Men

Representatives from all the Eastern and Middle-Atlantic colleges will meet at Silver Bay, Lake George, N. Y., from June 24 until July 3 for the 36th annual conference of Eastern college men. Nearly 25 Williams students have already definitely decided to attend and it is expected that from 10 to 15 more will be included in the delegation, making one of the largest ever representing the college.

According to members of previous delegations, the conference, which is especially designed for men interested in the intellectual and religious side of college, offers a most unusual opportunity for contact with the religious and social leaders of the country. Prominent men such as Dean Brown of Yale, Henry Sloan Coffin, Harry Emerson Fosdick, John R. Mott, and J. Stitt Wilson will be among the leaders.

The mornings and evenings of the conference will be given up to mass meetings, personal interviews with the leaders, and conferences between groups and delegations. (Continued on Fifth Page.)

Dr. Drury graduated from Harvard University in 1901, and received his L.H.D. degree at Trinity College and the degree of Doctor of Divinity at Dartmouth. From 1905 to 1907 he was chaplain to Bishop Brent in the Philippine Islands, and in 1908 accepted the position of rector in the Calvary Church, Providence, R. I. He later accepted a similar position in the St. Stephen's Church in Boston. Since 1910 Dr. Drury has been connected with the St. Paul's School in Concord, and has been rector there since 1911. He was recently called to Trinity Church, New York City, but declined the offer in order to remain with the St. Paul's School. Dr. Drury is the author of The Christian Inheritance.

'ELECTRA' PRESENTED IN THOMPSON COURSE

Edith Wynne Matthison and Able Cast Give Distinguished Performance

Edith Wynne Matthison and her company of graduates and students of the Bennett School of Liberal and Applied Arts, of Millbrook, N. Y., presented the artistic triumph of the year in the tragedy Electra of Euripides, staged yesterday evening in Grace Hall as the last number of the Thompson Course for the current year.

Miss Matthison and her pupils succeeded in reviving before their audience the perfect classical atmosphere of Euripides' masterpiece. Everything that could contribute to the perfection of the whole was carefully worked up in detail, costumes, setting, dances, singing and accompaniment, all blending in exquisite harmony. The whole frame-work of the performance was built around the acting and the voice of Miss Matthison, both of which were to all intents and purposes flawless. She fully justified her reputation of possessing the best voice on the American stage, for clearness and modulation. Her gestures were truly classic, and always blended with the heroic dignity and poise of Electra, the part she portrayed.

Next to Miss Matthison herself, the chorus of girls won the most widespread commendation. Clad in a delicate green, possessing excellent voices, and minutely trained in the intricacies of the Greek dance, they were a delight both to the eye and to the ear. Costumes of green, red, black, purple and orange presented harmonious contrasts to a simple gray backdrop. Miss Geraldine Douglas and Mr. Horace Middleton, the composer of the music, provided the background for the songs on the piano and organ respectively.

Among the individual actors Miss Matthison, of course, stood out pre-eminently through her experience and complete understanding of her part. Miss White gave an excellent representation of the old servant, her enunciation being especially clear. Miss Schoelkopf made a good Orestes, though handicapped as were the other male impersonators by the pitch of their voices. The entire cast was well balanced, with the result that the minor characters intensified rather than obscured the chief parts.

All the choral dances were devised and directed by Miss Gage, and were particularly good on occasions of tense emotion, such as the reunion of Orestes and Electra and the receipt of the news of the killing of Aegisthus by Orestes.

October 1 Set for Rushing Date

Discussion of the rushing agreement and election of officers for the ensuing year was the business of the Interfraternity Council meeting which was held last Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall. The agreement of last year was ratified, and it was voted that formal rushing should begin on the third Saturday after College opens, October 1. Zalles '22 was elected chairman, and P. Brown '22 was chosen secretary-treasurer of the Council for the coming year.

Five Runs on Four Singles, Triple, and Two Passes Decide Outcome of Game

GREGORY AND PATTON FORCED TO WITHDRAW

Purple Ahead but Loses by 8-5 Score—Monjo Stars Despite Error

Amherst, Mass., May 18—Four singles, a triple, and two bases on balls which netted five runs in the last half of the seventh inning gave Amherst an 8-5 victory over Williams today in an exciting but ragged contest.

Until the disastrous seventh the game was close all the way, with Williams retaining the advantage. Amherst scored first in the initial frame when Monjo dropped Leete's fly. The score was tied in the first of the second, however, when O'Brien walked, stole second, and came home on Monjo's single. There was no scoring during the next three innings, but in the sixth Williams took the lead. Richmond drew a pass, stole second, went to third on B. Boynton's out, and scored when the Amherst catcher threw wild over third.

Amherst knotted the count in the last of the sixth when Brisk walked, and Leete, Eliot and Eames singled. Brisk was caught at the plate when he attempted to score on Eliot's hit, Monjo making a perfect throw from left field, but Leete scored the tying run on the following two singles.

Williams scored two runs in the seventh inning, gaining a lead which looked like a victory. O'Brien was safe on Eveleth's error. C. Boynton fanned. Monjo singled, O'Brien going to third. Williams dropped Gregory's third strike and then threw wild over first, O'Brien scoring, and Monjo taking third. Ward hit a fast sacrifice roller to Eames, Monjo scoring the second run.

The two run lead lasted but a short time, however, for Amherst came back with an attack in the last half that won the game. Gregory weakened for the first time, and after Eveleth had opened with a single and was forced at second, he passed two men, filling the bases. Patton was put in to pitch at this point, but met with little success. The first man, Eliot, singled, scoring Booth and Brisk. Eames tripled to right, Leete and Eliot coming home. Palmer singled, bringing in Eames for the fifth run. Zink struck out, and Eveleth rolled to O'Brien.

This gave Amherst a three run lead which was too large to overcome. Williams threatened in the eighth when B. Boynton hit the first ball pitched for a long triple, and scored on Finn's single. The last half of the inning gave Amherst

BULLOCK AND CHAPIN TO ENTER N. E. I. T. T.

Singles Champion of Last Year Will be Hard Pressed to Retain Title

Bullock '21 and Chapin '23 will represent Williams at the New England Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament which will be held next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday on the courts of the Longwood Club, Boston. In last year's tourney, Chapin won the singles championship and paired with Pollard '20, also captured a victory in the doubles.

By the double victory of last year, Williams gained two points toward the trophy, making a total of five and a half points of the eight required for the possession of the cup. Amherst is in the lead with a one point margin on the eve of the opening of the 1921 tournament.

It is probable that if the Williams doubles team reaches the finals, they will again meet Broockman and Cauldwell of M. I. T., the pair who were defeated in the 1920 contest. Little is known of the singles entries for this year's matches, but it seems likely that Chapin may be hard pressed to retain his championship.

Sleep

If, as some would have us believe, the editorial "eagle eye" must only be employed in casting about for objects for aerimionous thrusts or hopeless subjects for support, what more fitting topic could present itself than that of sleep! The need for its championship is plain. It receives no consideration in the curriculum; no place is allotted to it in any schedule of hours yet published. The authorities seemingly fail to recognize the existence of any such activity, if the word activity may properly be applied to any such experience of divine relaxation.

Is there not something perhaps amiss with a world of which we tire within the short space of sixteen hours? Certainly the speed and joy with which mortals post to the arms of Morpheus is not complimentary to the day's other activities. Escaping from the petty vexations and myriad tasks of a mundane existence, they rejoice beyond measure in seeking refuge in the Lethe of repose. Nightly this earthly planet is forsaken by its multitudinous inhabitants, save perhaps for some lonely, restless crowned heads or other unfortunates. Perchance it may not be the tribulations of concrete existence but the very allurements of sleep itself which so powerfully attract mankind from its earthly interests. Yet it is singular that that same vast mass of humanity which clings so tenaciously to life should embrace death's counterfeit with such free abandon.

It does seem a pity that here at Williams opportunities for indulgence in that delightful pastime should be so limited. If the government at Washington were properly on the job, a luxury tax would have been levied ere this. It is indeed a hardship to watch the lights twinkle out in our surrounding country town at an early hour, and then again, with that special topic still unfinished, to watch them twinkle on once more and see the rustic inhabitants issue forth rubbing from their eyes the mist of eight to ten hours of wholesome sleep. Some reform is imperative before the cruel omission of sleep works havoc in our college life. Formal recognition by the Faculty and the Board of Trustees of sleep as an all-year sport and not a mere vacation pastime and its introduction at least on trial into the innermost precincts of Williams are crying needs. We plead for these reforms in order that the College as a unit may have opportunity to enjoy the world's favorite method of relaxation, the only known means of preparing the individual for work 365 mornings in the year, the best health of all, Sleep.

Although communications may be published unaltered if so requested, the name of the writer must in every case be submitted to the editor. The Board assumes no responsibility, however, for the facts as stated nor for the opinions expressed in this department.

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir:
Although the hour for chapel was discussed at some length at the college meeting last Wednesday evening, nevertheless, very few practical suggestions were offered to guide the undergraduates in voting. Of course, each man must decide for himself as to which time he shall vote for, but there are several points which we all should have in mind when we vote next week.

First, may I refer briefly to the phrase, "alarm clock religion," which was used ill-advisedly by several speakers at the college meeting. As used in an article in a recent number of the Williams Graphic, "alarm clock religion," referred more to the chapel service as such rather than to the time at which it was held. The writer insisted that the religious appeal of the service was secondary to the disciplinary effect in the minds of the undergraduates; but it will be noticed, on reading the article carefully, that a change of time was offered only as a minor means of remedying the situation. The writer's main point was that the service should be made to appeal on a religious basis through the insuring of proper leadership, and through a corresponding change in attitude on the part of the undergraduates, aided by more freedom as regards cuts.

As the situation now stands there are still two ways of remedying the present lack of religious atmosphere in the chapel service. First, through a change in the hour of chapel which would obviate to a large degree the necessity for more cuts, a method which we are now at liberty to use, but which would, if used alone, be but a half-way measure. Or second, through a change in the attitude of the student body, since we are assured that adequate leadership will be provided for in the future. This change in attitude may reasonably be expected in view of the concessions of the Board of Trustees, and the spirit of co-operation manifested by them. The use of this second method would not necessarily mean a change in the hour of chapel.

No matter at what time chapel is held, the whole chapel question will never be settled until the service is regarded by faculty and students alike as religious and not disciplinary. The attainment of this ideal, moreover, requires as much effort on the part of the students as it requires on the part of the Trustees and Faculty. The three points conceded by the Trustees, namely, adequate leadership, increased cuts for vespers, and an option as to the time at which chapel should be held in the future, were gained after a declaration by the Student Council Committee that if the Trustees would grant a reasonable number of requests, the Student Council would do all in its power to secure a reciprocal change in attitude on the part of the student body. With this in mind the Trustees acceded to all the reasonable requests which the Student Council Committee finally made, and it is now incumbent upon the undergraduates to fulfill their share in the bargain.

Whatever the time decided upon at the balloting next week, I would urge, therefore, that every man in the undergraduate body, as party to an agreement, do what he can to make the chapel service realize its true function as a religious exercise rather than as a mere disciplinary measure.

To Our Subscribers A NEW POLICY

In order to facilitate the prompt delivery of THE RECORD during the coming year of 1921-22 and to avoid error in the handling of subscriptions, we have evolved a new plan which, we believe, will bring about the desired results.

The changes which will be made are as follows:

1. THE RECORD will be dated Tuesday and Saturday instead of Monday and Friday as heretofore. The first 600 copies off the press, however, will be distributed to college subscribers as usual.
2. All subscriptions will be cancelled in June of this year, and hereafter will automatically expire with the Commencement issue of each year. Renewal notices will be sent before the beginning of the next college year.
3. The subscription price is to be reduced to the pre-war price of $3.00. This reduction of 25% by no means represents a corresponding decrease in our cost of production, and we therefore ask the unqualified support of our subscribers and of those alumni who are not now readers of THE RECORD, in order that we may maintain the high standard of quality printing which we have been able to furnish you this past year.
4. All subscriptions will be payable in advance. This change is made to conform to the law regarding publication subscriptions and also to lessen the number of errors due to incorrect billing.
5. The installation of improved machines in our Distribution Department and the introduction of a simple but effective system of office routine will make it possible for us to take care of our subscribers with a minimum of error and delay.

Subscribers are requested to give immediate notice of changes of address and irregular or non-delivery of THE RECORD so that we may trace any irregularities promptly and thus secure a satisfactory and efficient method of distribution.

Netmen Will Oppose Country Club Septet at Pittsfield

While the varsity tennis team is playing Dartmouth at Hanover, a second team of either five or six men will face the Pittsfield Country Club on the latter's courts tomorrow afternoon at 3.00 p. m. Arrangements for the match were made by William T. Rice '13.

Under the new system of ratings inaugurated this year, the second team will probably be made up of Allison, Ewing, Hastings, Greef, Herron and Blackmer. The Pittsfield team is composed of the most prominent players in that vicinity and should prove to be a very formidable opponent. Hastings and Greef have already played in one varsity match.

Play Four Intramural Matches

Little progress has been made in the intramural tennis series thus far this week. The match between Delta Kappa Epsilon and Kappa Alpha, the only first round contest that was played at the last report, resulted in a victory for the latter. In the second round, Zeta Psi defeated Delta Upsilon, Sigma Phi defeated Theta Delta Chi, and Kappa Alpha defeated the Faculty.

The organization is to be non-secret, and the pledging will be in the form of a public ceremony, freshmen being eligible to be pledged. The plan has received the hearty support of the administrative body, and is expected to fill a gap in the college life which has been felt for some time.

First of Van Vechten Contests Held Monday

Eight Seniors have entered the competition for the Van Vechten Prize for Ex-temporaneous Speaking for which the trials will be held next Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday evenings at 8.30 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Reading Room. The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Each man will be required to speak at two of the three times stated above, and speeches will be of not less than eight, nor more than twelve minutes duration. Subjects for addresses will be assigned one hour before the time scheduled for the man to speak. Judges for the Monday evening speeches have been announced as follows: Professors Bell, D. T. Clark, and Long.

Through the generosity of Mr. A. V. W. Van Vechten '47, a prize of seventy dollars is annually awarded for excellence in extemporaneous speaking. The provisions of the gift stipulate that the assignment of the prize be made by a committee of the Faculty on the basis of a public competition. Last year, the contest was won by W. P. Hedden '20.

Rawle Cup Entrants to Meet Next Monday

Freshmen interested in competing for the Francis W. Rawle Memorial Cup will meet Coach Seeley in the Gymnasium next Monday and Tuesday evenings at 7.30 p. m. The cup is awarded annually to the member of the Freshman Class who in the course of the college year has shown the most marked improvement from the regular strength test conducted during the previous fall and winter, and who at the same time has maintained at least an average of "C" in his curriculum work. The question of athletic ability shown during the year is also taken into consideration.

Trustees Pass Minutes

In order to fittingly express their sorrow on the death of Mr. Francis Lynde Stetson, the Board of Trustees passed the following memorial minutes at the meeting held on May 5:

"The Board of Trustees records with peculiar sorrow the death of its senior member, Francis Lynde Stetson, on December 5, 1920, in his seventy-fifth year. Born in Keeseville, N. Y., on April 23, 1846, Mr. Stetson was graduated from Williams with the class of 1867, and turned immediately to the study of the law. When he was chosen a member of this Board in 1890, in his forty-fifth year, he had attained signal distinction at the New York bar. Though he never held political office, he was one of the master minds in the politics of his state, and a leading layman of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He brought to the performance of his duties as Trustee an unswerving loyalty to the history and traditions of the college and the town, a wide acquaintance with men, and a keen practical knowledge of administrative questions. He soon became a leading figure in the Board, and served, at one time or another, upon all of its standing committees. His colleagues recognized in him a directing intelligence and a superior executive capacity, yet such was his personal charm, and so liberal and conciliatory was his spirit, that it was a pleasure to sit in counsel with him. He was deeply interested in securing beautiful physical surroundings for Williams students, and no alumnus has equalled him in generous and countless gifts to the college, during his lifetime and in the final disposition of his estate. Greatly as he added, however, to the material equipment of Williams, he will be remembered not more for his generosity than for his affection. He loved the college, and served it joyfully, unweariedly, and to the end. Like his old associates, Dr. Mabie and Mr. Dehna, Mr. Stetson represented a significant and noble era in the life of Williams, and with his passing, that era vanishes irrevocably, except in the memory of his friends."

The Rev. Malcolm Taylor of Boston, in charge of the educational work of the Episcopal Church in New England addressed the meeting and told of the work of societies similar to St. John's in various other colleges. Plans were drawn up with the advice of Dr. Taylor for a greater extension of the work of the club during the next college year.

Phillips was beaten by Captain Wing of Amherst last Saturday in the 220-yard low hurdles, while Merrick and Sullivan of M. I. T. are again strong in this event.

Captain Crofts, who has won the two-mile run easily in every meet thus far this season, will meet the strongest kind of opposition in R. B. Baker of Bates, G. R. Goodwin of Bowdoin, W. K. MacMahon of M. I. T. and C. E. Leath of N. H. State College, all of whom have been turning in times around 9 minutes, 30 seconds. Captain Crofts, however, has not been forced to his best time in any meet, and is stronger than when he took fourth place in the National Intercollegiate last year in the time of 9 minutes and 33 seconds.

McWhorter should place in the 220-yard dash, with possibilities of a first, while Chapin should score in the pole-vault with 11 feet, and take second place if he can clear 11 feet six inches, which he barely missed in the Amherst meet. S. M. Cook of Bowdoin, who has cleared 11 feet, 8 inches this season, is picked to win the event.

Driscoll of Boston College is an almost sure winner of the 440-yard dash, while Moyer and Lee of Amherst, Forstall of Brown, and Spitz of M. I. T. are favorites for places. Stowers will have a hard race to score. King of Holy Cross, who won the 880-yard run last year, is again entered in this event, but will be pushed hard by Bawden of M. I. T. Stinson of Wesleyan is also a dangerous runner, although he was beaten two weeks ago by Richmond, after he had finished second in the mile. Richmond may spring a surprise in this race, however.

Williams will enter no man in the high jump and shot-put, and Mendes is the only entry in the broad jump. Hibbard should get a second or third in the hammer throw, Dandrow of M. I. T. being a practically sure winner, while Becket also has a chance of placing in the discus.

The Williams entries are as follows: 100-yard dash—Miller and McWhorter. 220-yard dash—Dodge, McWhorter, and Miller.

440-yard run—Kellogg, Snell, and Stowers. 120-yard hurdles—Barnes and Phillips.

880-yard run—Kellogg and Richmond.

One-mile run—Coan and Crofts.

Two-mile run—Crofts and Fasse.

220-yard hurdles—Barnes and Phillips.

Shot put—Becket and Hibbard.

Broad jump—Mendes.

Hammer throw—Hibbard and Towne.

Pole vault—Chapin.

Discus throw—Becket.

its eighth run on an error, a stolen base, and a single off Holmes, who pitched the last inning. Williams was unable to score in the ninth, although Ward singled and advanced to third before three were out.

Zink was the mainstay of the Amherst defense, striking out 13 Williams batters, and keeping the seven Purple hits well scattered. The visitors were unable to hit the ball at the crucial moments, whereas the Amherst batters bunched their hits successfully off Gregory and Patton for the winning tallies.

Only two extra-base hits were made, B. Boynton and Eames both getting long triples. Monjo lead the batting with three singles, two of which scored runs for Williams, and B. Boynton, Leete, Eliot and Eames got two apiece.

tween the two captains, Fischer of Penn losing in the third set, 9-7.

Sanders, the Dartmouth captain, was the runner-up in the Intercollegiate tournament last Spring and has only lost two sets this year. Howe, the captain of last year's freshman team, is a fast and accurate player and is the only other man to have defeated his opponent in every contest. Carleton and Kendall, the other members of the team, have both had a very successful season so far. The doubles team composed of Sanders and Howe has not lost a set this year and the other team made up of Carleton and Kendall has won every match.

Matches have been played during this week on the College Courts to determine the new ratings and as a result the four men who will play in the singles is not certain but they will be chosen the following: Bullock, Fraker, C. Taylor '21 and Prescott and Rowse '22. The men who will play together on the doubles team is also not decided but will probably be Bullock and Fraker, and Prescott and Rowse.

Dwight L. Moody, who gathered the first group at Northfield, founded the conference in 1885. The gatherings were continued at Northfield until the spring of 1920, when the location was changed to Silver Bay. Williams has been interested from the beginning and in 1910, the last year before the war, sent a delegation of 30 men. All those expecting to attend or interested in obtaining more information are asked to see either Noble '21 or Lyon '22 at once. The following men have signified their intention of attending at least a part of the conference: Adams, Brune, Harder, Learned, Lyon, Prescott, Preston, Richardson, and Schauflyer '22, Angevine, Bowen, Count, and Partington '23, Hoffman, Johnson, Lum, McKean, Miller, Newhard, Shores, Starr, and Teller '24.

Your Son's Inheritance

THE man who leaves his son a factory producing unknown goods, leaves him merely a chance to fight for business.

The man who leaves his son a factory producing goods that have a place in the public opinion of the nation, leaves that son an inheritance which only his own folly can destroy.

This shows what it is that advertising expenditure really buys. Unknown merit is merely unknown merit. Merit recognized by public opinion is riches.

Signing Your Name

WHEN you sign your name on a hotel register

How do you Feel?

Confident or Uncertain?
Delighted or Doubtful?
Like a welcome guest or a homeless stranger?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. Though some of them from far away signed the register the first time with the vague "try anything once" air, they have been our friends ever since. We like to think it's because they are confident that upstairs and down they will find pleasant, restful surroundings with cheerful adept service—and—hospitality in the midst of excellent hotel conveniences. The sheer pleasure of mingling with joyous throngs is always here.

HIGH HONOR GIVEN TO MARK HOPKINS

New York University Places Famous President of Williams in Hall of Fame

PRESIDENT GARFIELD REPRESENTS COLLEGE

Dr. Henry Van Dyke Heads Speakers in First Dedication Ceremony Since 1907

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, representing Williams, made a brief speech at the unveiling of the tablet in honor of Mark Hopkins, former president of Williams College, last Saturday in the Hall of Fame of the University of New York. The names of 25 other eminent Americans, including William Cullen Bryant ex-1812, who left College before graduation and who received an honorary degree in 1863, were also given this honor at the same time.

Dr. William Mulligan Sloane, president of the American Society of Arts and Letters, called the Hall of Fame in his speech "that Valhalla or American Westminster." This is the first dedication ceremony since 1907. The principal address of the occasion was made by Dr. Henry Van Dyke, who explained the qualifications of men entitled to admission. The other speakers were Dr. Sloane and Elmer E. Brown, chancellor of the University.

The complete list of those to whom tablets were unveiled follows: Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"; Frances Elizabeth Willard; Charlotte Saunders Cushman; Alice Freeman Palmer, educator and president of Wellesley College; Alexander Hamilton; Andrew Jackson; Patrick Henry; Rufus Choate; Daniel Boone; James Buchanan Eads, engineer and builder of the St. Louis bridge; Williams Thomas Green Morton, physician and introducer of ether as an anesthetic; Louis Agassiz, naturalist; Joseph Henry, inventor of electro-magnet; Roger Williams, champion of religious freedom; Phillips Brooks, pulpit orator; Mark Hopkins, philosopher and scientist; Augustus Saint-Gaudens, sculptor; Elias Howe, inventor of sewing machine; James Fenimore Cooper, novelist; John Lothrop Motley, historian; Samuel Langhorne Clemens (Mark Twain), humorist; Edgar Allan Poe, creator of the short story; Francis Parkman, historian; George Bancroft, historian; William Cullen Bryant, poet and historian; Oliver Wendell Holmes, poet and humorist. This year's additions brings the total number of names in the Hall of Fame to 63.

MANLIUS TEAM EASILY OVERCOMES 1924 NINE

Judge Allows but Three Hits and Strikes Out 15 in 14-4 Baseball Game

Outclassed in every department of play, the Freshman baseball team was defeated by St. John's Manlius on Weston Field last Friday afternoon by the score of 14-4. Excellent pitching and fielding on the part of the visitors gave them an advantage in the sixth inning which they easily held for the rest of the game.

Starting out with a rush in the first inning, the 1924 nine gained two runs, Newhard and Gregory scoring on O'Brien's double, but the lead was quickly overcome when the Manlius team bunched three clean singles in the second. Judge, the Manlius pitcher and a former Williams-town High School player, fully lived up to his reputation by fanning 15 freshmen and allowing but three scattered hits during the entire game. At no time after the first inning did the 1924 nine look dangerous while the visitors, aided by numerous errors in the Freshman outfield, steadily increased their lead.

Beginning with the seventh frame, the Manlius nine hit consistently, and two three-base hits and two bases on balls

HOPKINS IS LAUDED BY PROFESSOR C. L. MAXCY

Former Pupil Offers Appreciation of Famous President of Williams

Professor Maxcy, who was a student in Williams during Mark Hopkins' years here, has written the following appreciation of the famous educator:

At the unveiling of the twenty-six new tablets in the Hall of Fame in New York on Saturday, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, in his address, said of Fame, that "among the ancients it was a neutral word signifying no more than wide repute for good or evil. . . . But now, in our own time, it has won a moral estate, so that we refer it only to good deeds and call a great benefactor famous, but a malefactor infamous. . . . Let him that seeketh fame seek first duty and virtue and the joy of service."

To none do these words apply more fittingly than to Mark Hopkins, one of the two "Great Educators" honored in this American Westminster. Generations of Williams men learned to look to him as the inspiration of their intellectual and moral lives. For many years membership in his classes was anticipated as the culmination of college life. His method was that of leading young men to think for themselves, but always to think surely and clearly. With a fatherly kindness that dispelled hesitation and gave encouragement to all, he led his students on to sound premises from which to draw sound conclusions. His classroom was not dark with the mists of hazy metaphysical technicalities, amid which only the self-confident could grope their uncertain way. And ever present, pervading all, was the personality that drew all men to him. "The law of love" and "Love as a law" because more than the mere title of a textbook. No student lost religious or intellectual moorings after the awakening experiences under his teaching; many students found them. Williams men went out from these hills stamped and moulded by the personality of Mark Hopkins as the men of Brown went forth from their Alma Mater after contact with Francis Wayland. For them education had been a lesson in true living. Such men sanctify the profession of teaching.

Freshmen Competitors for Rawle Cup to Meet

All members of the Freshman Class who wish to compete for the Francis W. Rawle Memorial Cup will meet Coach Seeley this evening or tomorrow evening at 7.30 p. m. in the Gymnasium. The cup is awarded annually to the member of the Freshman Class who in the course of the College year has shown the most marked improvement from the regular strength test given the previous fall, and who at the same time has maintained at least an average of "C" in his curriculum work. The question of athletic ability shown during the year is also considered.

21 RUNS SCORED AGAINST TRINITY

Williams Defeats Weak Blue and Gold Team by Score of 21-5 in Batting Fest

BOYNTON AND WARD ARE STARS AT BAT

Patton Allows Trinity Only Four Hits in Six Innings as Purple Wins

In a rugged exhibition of baseball, interesting largely because of the number of runs scored, Williams overwhelmed Trinity last Saturday afternoon by a score of 21 to 5. Williams took the lead from the start, scoring three runs in each of the first three innings, and increased it as the game went on, while after the third inning Trinity did not even threaten to score until the ninth.

B. Boynton and Ward had a big day at the bat, the former getting two triples and a single out of three times up, while the latter drove in three runs by means of a triple and three singles. Captain Finn hit a home run between left and centre field in the sixth inning, scoring Boynton ahead of him. Williams, however, gathered a total of only fourteen hits off Bowdridge and Brickley, the Trinity pitchers, but combined with nine passes and six errors these sufficed for 21 runs.

The Purple ran wild on the bases, making eleven steals against catcher Brown, in which Ward led with a total of four, while Boynton and Bixby had three each and Monjo two. The game was featured by three double plays, two of which were made by Williams and one by Trinity. In the eighth inning Hall made a pretty catch of Finn's long fly, and threw in to Canner who caught Boynton after he had overrun first in his attempt to get back to the base after the catch. O'Brien and Hoyt executed a double play in the second, when Bowdridge rolled to O'Brien, forcing Canner at second, and Hoyt threw out Bowdridge at first. In the ninth inning Canner hit an easy grounder to Patton who threw Machinor out at second, while O'Brien caught Canner at first.

WILLIAMS DEFEATS DETROIT IN TENNIS

Purple, Weakened by Absence of Chapin, Succumbs to Dartmouth Netmen, 5-2

Williams defeated the two-man team of the University of Detroit 3-0 Friday afternoon on the College courts and lost to the strong Dartmouth netmen 5-2 Saturday afternoon at Hanover, N. H. The spectacular playing of Prescott featured the Detroit match, and with Rowse he also won his doubles match at Hanover.

In the match against Detroit, Prescott had little difficulty in disposing of his opponent, Grass, in straight sets, 6-0 and 6-3. The opening game was the most closely contested in the whole match, the score going to deuce nine times before the Williams man finally won. Bullock won his first set against DeVine of Detroit by a 6-3 score but lost the second 6-4. The third set went to the Williams captain 6-2. But few of the games were closely played and rarely went to deuce. Williams won the doubles easily in straight sets.

At Dartmouth, the Purple team was greatly weakened by the absence of Chapin. Fraker was the only Williams man to win in the singles and Prescott and Rowse defeated their opponents in the doubles. Captain Sanders of Dartmouth easily overcame Prescott in straight love sets. Howe experienced little difficulty in defeating Rowse, whereas Bullock and C. L. Taylor were also overcome by Carleton and Kendall of Dartmouth by 6-2, 6-2 and 6-3, 6-3 scores respectively. In the doubles, Sanders and Howe took every game but one from Bullock and Fraker. Prescott and Rowse exhibited a fast brand of tennis in overcoating the second Green team composed of Carleton and Kendall.

The summaries follow:

Detroit vs. Williams
Singles

Prescott of Williams defeated Grass of Detroit 6-0, 6-3.

Bullock of Williams defeated DeVine of Detroit 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

Victory Over Middlebury Is Anticipated in Tennis

Williams will oppose the Middlebury tennis team on the College courts Friday afternoon at 4.15 p. m. Middlebury has only played two matches this season, losing them both and showing no unusual strength.

Holy Cross defeated the Middlebury actmen 6-0, and Springfield overcame them 5-1. The team has had considerable practice since then and expects to make a better showing against Williams. The squad from which the visiting team will be picked is composed of four veterans: Captain Gollnick, Ashley, Brautigan, and Lane, and of five freshmen: Adams, Ferry, Fletcher, Gannon, and Krichbaum.

Captain Bullock and Chapin will return from the New England Intercollegiate in time to play in the match. The other members of the team will be Fraker and C. L. Taylor '21 and H. S. Prescott and Rowse '22.

Williams, With Evenly Balanced Team, Places Men in 9 Out of 14 Events

TECH WINS MEET WITH BOSTON COLLEGE SECOND

Driscoll Breaks N. E. I. A. A. Record in 440—Good Times Made in Spite of Heat

By placing men in eight of the fourteen events for a total of 22 points, although failing to win a first place in any, one of the most evenly balanced teams that has ever represented Williams at the New England Intercollegiate Track Meet repeated last year's record and won third place for the Purple at Technology Field, Cambridge, last Friday and Saturday afternoons. M. I. T. ran away with the meet for the fifth consecutive year, amassing 49 points, and Boston College nosed out Williams for second place with 23 points.

All the times and distances were good, in spite of the excessive heat, which reached a temperature of 93 degrees, the hottest ever recorded in Cambridge on May 21. Driscoll of Boston College shattered the New England quarter-mile record of 49 3-5 seconds made by J. D. Lester of Williams in 1911, running it in 49 1-5 seconds. Chapin, who tied for second in the pole vault, bettered the height of the College record in that event, established 17 years ago by W. H. Peabody '04, by 1 1-2 inches, clearing the bar at 11 feet 4 1-2 inches in the preliminary trials on Friday. Becket, though he failed even to qualify on account of the strong opposition tied the distance of the College record of 110 feet 6 inches in the discus throw, which was set in 1910 by J. F. Thomas '10. Crofts bettered the time of the College record for the mile, finishing second in 4 minutes 25 seconds, 1 1-5 seconds under the time made by F. I. Newton '11 in 1911.

Eleven of Coach Seeley's athletes qualified in the preliminary trials, all but one of whom scored in the finals on Saturday. M. I. T. led in number of qualifiers with 23 and Brown had 12, the other entrants coming in the following order: Boston College 10, Bowdoin 7, Holy Cross 6, Maine 6, Wesleyan 5, Amherst 4, Middlebury 4, W. P. I. 3, M. A. C. 2, Vermont 2, Colby 2, New Hampshire State 2, Bates 1. Boston College was able to outstrip the Purple in points scored through the individual brilliancy of Driscoll, Sullivan, and Nolan, who won four

VAN VECHTEN TRIAL TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Eight Seniors Have Been Selected for Contest—Each Will Speak Twice

First trials in the competition for the Van Vechten Prize for Extemporaneous Speaking will be held this evening at 8.30 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Reading Room, with Assistant Professors Bell, D. T. Clark, and Long as judges. Second and third trials will be held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings respectively at the same time and place, and different judges will be selected for each evening. The meetings are open to the public.

Atwell, Balch, Conn, Kent, Thexton, Tyler, Schlesinger, and Searles '21 are the members of the senior class who have decided to enter the contest, and each of them will be required to speak at two of the three opportunities offered. Subjects for the addresses will be announced one hour before the time of speaking, and the speeches are limited to between eight and twelve minutes duration.

The Prize of seventy dollars was founded by A. V. W. Van Vechten '47, to be given to the senior who was adjudged by a committee of the Faculty to be the best extemporaneous speaker in his class after trials had been made on a competitive basis.

Mark Hopkins

Williams men have long taken a secret pride in the aptness of that famous definition which recognized the log with Mark Hopkins on one end and the student on the other as constituting all the requisites for a liberal education. It is therefore particularly gratifying to see the permanent recognition of the greatness thus implied ensured through the recent inclusion of Mark Hopkins in the Hall of Fame.

It is a worthy recognition not only of a preeminent alumnus and president but also in a measure of the College which owes so much of its present distinction to his guiding influence. The honor which has come to Mark Hopkins's memory is reflected upon every Williams man, and it is one which all of us may contemplate with justifiable pride.

Your Support, Please

Criticism of the management of the College newspaper has become so rife during the last year as to demand attention. The heaviest onslaught has fallen on the financial end. One of the College professors gave a typical expression of this attitude recently when he objected seriously to THE RECORD on the ground that "it is a commercial enterprise."

THE RECORD is a commercial enterprise in the same sense that all other college organizations which collect money and distribute limited amounts in one form or another are commercial enterprises. The business managers of Cap and Bells and the Musical Clubs find some inducement to efficient work in the assurance of a remuneration at the end of the season; the managership competes and the very members of athletic teams are urged on by the bright prospect of being paid expenses on coveted trips; the business managers of the Cow, the Graphic, and the Gul are similarly encouraged. Yet it can scarcely be maintained that all these men, the leaders in every activity, are doing nothing for Williams, are simply actuated by personal selfishness.

In like manner the business department of THE RECORD is paid for the numerous hours spent daily in the business office, performing for three years virtually without honor the most exacting and incessant duties of any undergraduate position.
The work of the editorial board is more visible and appreciated, and consequently no financial incentive has ever been offered to secure competence. As the College has enlarged and become more complex,
THE RECORD has improved and taken on new departments. More inches of news are being printed to-day than at any previous time in its history, pictorial features have been added, wire service is furnished on important out-of-town games, and a daily Adviser is published. The paper ranks high among college newspapers, and as such with its circulation of 1700 furnishes an excellent advertisement of Williams. The enlargement of that circulation would spread clean, complete publicity of Williams activities even wider, but the above-mentioned critics must inevitably object to that as new subscribers would mean more dollars and more of a "commercial enterprise."

The injustice of these criticisms is felt especially at this time when THE RECORD is striving to meet its subscribers more than half way by reducing the subscription price to the pre-war figure of $3.00.
The price of printing and of paper is still at war level and even higher in some instances. A drop in price can only be made possible by more efficient management and service and an increased number of subscribers. To ensure this co-operation and unqualified support of all subscribers and of those alumni who are not now readers is necessary.

STRONG SPRINGFIELD TEAM NEXT OPPONENT

Springfield has Beaten Both Amherst and Wesleyan, and Won 7 Out of 10 Games

After an easy game Saturday against Trinity, Williams will meet Springfield College on Wednesday afternoon at Springfield. The Springfield nine has had a very successful season thus far, winning seven of the ten games played, two of the victories being contests with Amherst and Wesleyan.

Comparative scores are of little use in determining the favorite for Wednesday, since the games noted above are the only ones in which Springfield and Williams have had common opponents. Wesleyan was beaten by the Purple 5-3, and by Springfield 4-1. Williams lost to Amherst
5-8, whereas Wednesday's opponents achieved a 5-1 victory over the Purple and White.

The infield of the Springfield team is composed entirely of veterans, and the college attributes the majority of the season's baseball victories to the snappy work in that department. Twombly, captain of the nine, is the only pitcher left from last year's varsity, and during the season he has proved the mainstay of the twirling end of the team. Springfield is confessedly weak in the receiving end of her batteries, but this seems to be the only notably weak part of the team. Ma-Lette, although a pitcher of some ability, will probably play in the outfield against Williams because of his excellent hitting ability, and because Coach Berry has no place for him on the pitching staff. The team is characterized as "the best that Springfield has had for some time."

In the game against Trinity here last Saturday, Williams showed poor fielding work in several innings, three errors being tallied against the team, two of which were made at the home plate, and the other by Wolfe, who pitched two innings. The Purple was credited with 14 hits, as against seven made by the Trinity nine, but the opponents' pitchers were weak.

Coach Coombs will probably put either Gregory or Patton on the mound for the game against Springfield. Holmes will be unable to pitch due to the fact that he sustained an injury to his arm in practice.
The infield will be the same as in the majority of the previous games this season with a single exception. Bixby will be tried at first because Richmond, who regularly holds down that position, injured a finger in the warm-up before Saturday's game. Boynton will be unable to make the trip to Springfield due to a lack of cuts so that the outfield will be composed of Buck, C. Boynton, and Monjo.

Following are the lineups for both teams:

To our Subscribers:

In order to facilitate the prompt delivery of THE RECORD during the coming year of 1921-22 and to avoid error in the handling of subscriptions, we have evolved a new plan which, we believe, will bring about the desired results.

The changes which will be made are as follows:

1. THE RECORD will be dated Tuesday and Saturday instead of Monday and Friday as heretofore. The first 600 copies off the press, however, will be distributed to college subscribers as usual.
2. All subscriptions will be cancelled in June of this year, and hereafter will automatically expire with the Commencement issue of each year. Renewal notices will be sent before the beginning of the next college year.
3. The subscription price is to be reduced to the pre-war price of $3.00.
This reduction of 25% by no means represents a corresponding decrease in our cost of production, and we therefore ask the unqualified support of our subscribers and of those alumni who are not now readers of THE RECORD, in order that we may maintain the high standard of quality printing which we have been able to furnish you this past year.
4. All subscriptions will be payable in advance. This change is made to conform to the law regarding publication subscriptions and also to lessen the number of errors due to incorrect billing.
5. The installation of improved machines in our Distribution Department and the introduction of a simple but effective system of office routine will make it possible for us to take care of our subscribers with a minimum of error and delay.

Subscribers are requested to give immediate notice of changes of address and irregular or non-delivery of THE RECORD so that we may trace any irregularities promptly and thus secure a satisfactory and efficient method of distribution.

Purple Takes Third Place in Intercollegiate Track Meet

firsts and a second between them. Williams' rivals of the past season, Amherst and Wesleyan, made poor showings in the final score, the former taking eight points, including seven in the high jump, and the latter winning five.

In the 120-yard hurdles, Phillips and Barnes both qualified, the former winning his heat. He captured third place in the final heat, Weise of Colby winning in 15 1-5 seconds. Miller and McWhorter both qualified in the preliminaries of the 100-yard dash, and Miller won his heat in the semi-finals on Saturday. He finished second to Carter of Brown in the finals, in a furious finish that gave the victory to the Brownian in 10 1-5 seconds. McWhorter came in sixth.

The 440-yard dash was one of the most interesting events on the program. Stowers was the only qualifier for Williams, as Snel fell on his trial heat. Driscoll, who won this event last year, gave a beautiful performance of running, lowering the former record by 2-5 seconds in the final heat. Stowers, who finished third, ran one of the prettiest races for the Purple, finishing within a few yards of the leaders in approximately 50 seconds. He easily defeated Lee of Amherst, who took the quarter-mile from him in the dual meet with Amherst a week ago. Driscoll was also the star in the 220-yard dash, winning it in 22 3-5 seconds after his hard race in the 440. McWhorter and Dodge both succeeded in qualifying on Friday, McWhorter winning his heat in 23 2-5 seconds, and both placed in the finals, Dodge taking third and McWhorter fourth. McWhorter defeated Driscoll in the 220-yard dash last year, but was weakened by having run four heats previous to Saturday's final race.

Williams was unable to win a place in the 220-yard hurdles although Phillips captured first in his preliminary heat on Friday. Five previous races in the hot sun prevented him from showing his best form in the finals. Richmond was the only Williams runner to survive the preliminary tests in the 880-yard run, winning his heat in 2 minutes 4 seconds, and finishing third in the final event behind Bowden of M. I. T. and King of Holy Cross, last year's winner. Bowden won in the final time of 1 minute 57 seconds, and Richmond's time was approximately 2 minutes flat, one of his best performances.

Williams made a better showing in the mile run than in any other event, taking five points through the medium of a second and third place won by Crofts and Coan respectively. Richard Baker of Bates captured first in 4 minutes 22 1-5 seconds, and the two Purple runners were about 20 yards behind, Crofts beating out his team-mate in the final spurt. Crofts was not entered in the two-mile run on account of his hard race in the mile, with the result that no Williams representatives placed. Raymond Baker of Bates was first, with Fosse finishing sixth.

Chapin and Mendes were the only Williams contestants to win points in the field events, the former in the pole vault and the latter in the broad jump. Chapin tied for first with West of Brown in the preliminary vaults doing 11 feet 4 1-2 inches, but in the final round he was unable to exceed 11 feet, tying for second at this figure with Stearns and Fletcher of M. I. T. Sheldon won the event with a leap of 11 feet 6 inches. Mendes barely missed winning first in the broad jump with a mark of 21 feet 7 inches, 1-2 inch less than Nolan of Boston College. Mendes broke his own record of 21 feet 3 inches made at Amherst, and defeated Johnson of Wesleyan who had captured the broad jump in the Wesleyan-Williams meet.

Hilbard missed qualifying in the hammer throw by 4-1 inch with a throw of 119 feet 6 1-4 inches. Becket failed to win a place in the finals of the discus throw, although his heave of 110 feet 6 inches was equal to the College record in that event.

Following is a summary of the preliminary trials in which Williams entrants qualified:

100-yard dash—Second heat—won by Carter of Brown; Bossett of M. I. T., second, McWhorter of Williams, third; time 10 2-5 seconds. Fourth heat—won by Hayes of M. I. T.; Miller of Williams, second; Darby of Middlebury, third; time, 10 3-5 seconds.

440-yard run—First heat—won by Driscoll of Boston College; Forstall of Brown, second; Stowers of Williams, third; Pratt of Maine, fourth; time, 51 1-5 seconds.

880-yard run—Second heat—won by Richmond of Williams; Bowden of M. I. T., second; Kendal of Middlebury, third; Shepard of Vermont, fourth; time, 2 minutes 4 seconds.

120-yard hurdles—Second heat—won by Phillips of Williams; Mills of M. I. T., second; Breaux of Boston College, third; time, 16 4-5 seconds. Third heat—won by Merrick of Boston College; Barnes of Williams, second; Hardy of Bowdoin, third; time, 16 4-5 seconds.

220-yard hurdles—Fourth heat—won by Phillips of Williams; Weise of Colby, second; Landgren of W. P. L., third; time, 27 seconds.

Broad jump—Nolan of Boston College, 21 feet 7 1-2 inches; Mendes of Williams, 21 feet 7 inches; Johnson of Wesleyan, 21 feet 6 inches; Williams of Brown and Reid of Brown, 21 feet 3 1-2 inches; Adams of Brown, 20 feet 10 inches.

Pole Vault—West of Brown and Chapin of Williams, 11 feet 4 1-2 inches; Fletcher of M. I. T., 11 feet 1 inch; Stearns of M. I. T., Sheldon of M. I. T. and Lyman of W. P. L., 11 feet.

The summary of the meet follows:

100-yard dash—won by Carter of Brown; Miller of Williams, second; Bossett of M. I. T., third; Spitz of M. I. T., fourth. Time, 10 1-5 seconds.

220-yard dash—won by Driscoll of Boston College; Carter of Brown, second; Dodge of Williams, third; McWhorter of Williams, fourth. Time, 22 3-5 seconds.

880-yard run—Won by Bowden of M. I. T.; King of Holy Cross, second; Richmond of Williams, third; Sheppard of Vermont, fourth. Time, 1 minute, 57 seconds.

GOLF TEAM TO PLAY UNDEFEATED SEXTET

Dartmouth Has Beaten Columbia, Pennsylvania, and Amherst in Early Matches

Dartmouth will face the Williams golf team Wednesday afternoon on the links of the Greenfield Country Club at Greenfield. The Green has a strong team and has won every match this season.

Columbia yielded to Dartmouth on May 6 by a 7-2 score. On May 8, the Green defeated the University of Pennsylvania team and overcame the Amherst golfers 5-1 on the next day. The Dartmouth team is taking an extended trip this week, playing M. I. T., Princeton, Yale and Williams. The men who compose the team to oppose Williams is as follows: Captain A. P. Boyd, D. K.
Ankeny, O. C. Frost, A. Gunnison, G. R.
McKee, and R. J. Rothschild. Captain Boyd is easily the best player of the team and has broken the record for the Hanover links. He will probably play with Rothschild in one foursome and Ankeny will pair with Gunnison in the other.

The Williams line-up will probably be as follows: Captain Secor, Bourne, Bunnsted, W. H. Prescott, Rose and Simmons.

Alumni Attend Trinity Game

Between 25 and 30 members of the Northeastern New York Williams Alumni Association motored over from the capitol district last Saturday and attended the Trinity game. Professor Maxey and Coach Coombs were present at their annual banquet which was held at the Greylock Hotel after the game, and both made speeches.

BANQUET IS GIVEN

Under Auspices of Boys' Club
Boys are Entertained

In order to bring to a climax the work of the Boys' Work Committee during the past year, a banquet was given to the four boys' clubs under the supervision of the W. C. A. in the Common Room of Currier Hall last Friday evening. About 75 boys were present, each one the guest of an undergraduate.

Noble '21, who acted as toastmaster, outlined the achievements of the Boy's Work Committee, and declared that the purpose of the banquet, which is to become an annual affair, was to bring the college men closer to the boys, to give the boys a good time, to encourage them in the ambition of going to college, and to establish a lasting friendship between each boy and his particular host.

Dr. Vanderpoel Adriance '90, the first of the regular speakers, emphasized the importance of selfishness and loyalty, the need for "boosters" rather than "kickers." Boynton '21 spoke on clean living and fair play, giving examples of both taken from his college experience.

The boys who attended the banquet represented the Blackinton Boy Scouts,
the Clark Chapel Club, the Tiger Club, and the Jesup Hall Club. Music was furnished by the Freshman Orchestra and a quartet consisting of Brigham '22, Holmes and H. Romds '23, and Craig '24.

Local Lights in Fairy Flights

In a glorious blaze of color that would put any rainbow to shame, Williamstown's pioneer May Day Festival was ushered in at Mission Park last Saturday afternoon.
Many of the shining lights and dimmer stars of the local community contributed to making the affair a grand success.

Despite the fact that the festivities started half an hour late, the gloom cast over the anxious audience by this slip-up was soon lost in the sensuous beauty of the pageant. Familiar figures in Williamstown society were seen capering in dances that fair would rival the famous dances of the seven veils. There were old-fashioned turns 'round the May Pole to the timeless melody of "Follow, Follow," which bore evidences of local composition. The faculty was represented on the program by the participation of a single member.

Music for the occasion was supplied by an orchestra recruited from Mr. Salter's Soothing Symphony, which has distinguished itself several times at Sunday vespers. A band of amateur highway-women purveyed all manner of goodies to the assembled multitude. The meeting closed with a long cheer for the pseudofairies, and a very good time was had by all.

To Hold Initiation Banquet

Delta Sigma Rho Society will hold its first annual initiation banquet next Wednesday evening at 6.30 p. m. at the Williams Inn. President Harry A. Garfield will be the principal speaker of the evening.

TITLE IS IN DANGER

Chapin Will be Hard Pressed to Keep N. E. Championship

Probable entries in the New England Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament, which will be held today, tomorrow, and Thursday at Boston, place the position of Chapin as New England champion in some danger.
Bullock and Chapin will represent the Purple at the tournament this year.

Among the men who were in the tourney last year, and who are still eligible to compete, are Sanders of Dartmouth, whom Chapin defeated in the singles finals for the title, and J. D. E. Jones of Brown, who has played excellent tennis throughout this season.

If the Williams team is able to win through to the finals of the doubles, it is possible that the Purple pair will again meet Brookman and Cauldwell of M. I. T., who were beaten last year by Pollard and Chapin. The score of this match was 2-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

INTERCOLLEGIATES

'ROOSEVELT HOUSE' SUGGESTED

In a recent report of the associated Harvard Alumni Clubs, a suggestion was made for the erection and maintenance of a building to be known as "Roosevelt House" in memory of Theodore Roosevelt of the class of 1880. The report recommended that the building contain a working floor for the use of some of the departments of the University, and a memorial reading room where Roosevelt memorabilia of all kinds, such as books, state papers, and hunting trophies, may be kept.

NEW MAGAZINE TO APPEAR

The Royal Gaboon is the name of the humorous magazine which is to make its first appearance at Hamilton College this Commencement. The publication will consist of 32 pages of wit and humor, and will contain many illustrations. The college at large is helping to contribute to this issue in order to make this type of publication a success.

AMHERST PRESS CLUB RATIFIED

Ratification of the constitution of the Amherst College Press Club was made recently by the Student Council of that college. The club is under the supervision of the Student Association, and its purpose and activities will be much like those of the similar clubs in other institutions. Two competitions are to be held each year from which members of the board will be elected.

SYRACUSE PLAY SCORES HIT

Pit Say She Does is the title of the annual musical comedy which was presented for the first time last week by Tambourine and Bones, the Syracuse Dramatic Club. The performance was a hit with the large audience that viewed the first presentation, and the many weeks of hard work that have been put upon it have turned out an exceedingly clever and witty show. It was written and coached by members of the college.

YALE TEAM TO GO TO HONOLULU

Trials for the swimming team which will represent Yale on the trip this summer to Honolulu will be held in the near future, and in addition several novelty events will be run. The schedule for the Transcontinental trip has been practically completed, and this trial meet is the last appearance to be made this season at home.

in the town of Cummington, Mass., and entered the sophomore class at Williams when he was fifteen years of age. He later transferred to Yale without completing his course here. Mr. Bryant first entered the law, but after the publication of his early works he turned to a literary career. In addition to his poetry, he was a famous journalist and for many years editor-in-chief of the New York Evening Post.

Mark Hopkins was born in Stockbridge, Mass., in 1802 and died in Williamstown in 1887. He graduated from Williams in 1824 and served as a tutor here for two years. In 1828 he was given the degree of M. D. and practiced medicine in New York City. Mr. Hopkins was called to Williams in 1830 to be professor of Moral Philosophy and Rhetoric and in 1836 was made president of the College, which position he held until 1872. He was a director of the Lowell Institute of Boston and of many similar organizations. As president of the College which has been called the "cradle of foreign missions," he was actively connected with missionary work and for 36 years was president of the American Board of Foreign Missions. Dr. Hopkins was the author of many philosophical and religious works.

Col. Archibald Hopkins, of Washington, a son of the famous educator, and Judge C. C. Nott, of New York City, a grandson, were present at the ceremony. Among the large number of Williams alumni who attended the unveiling were the following: Solomon B. Griffin '72, Arthur H. Mastens '76, Benjamin Prince '80, Frederick Gellert '83, Judge J. Addison Young '88, Frederick C. Ferry '91, President of Hamilton College, Willard E. Hoyt '92, Franklin H. Mills '93, George F. Perkins '95, Edmunds Putney '96, Professor Phillip M. Brown '98, Frederic T. Wood '98, Max B. Berking '02, and Col. Charles W. Whitteley '05.

21 Runs Scored

Against Trinity

In the first inning Williams scored three runs when Bixby singled, Ward reached first on an error by Machinoor, and Boynton tripped to left, driving the ball into the concrete bleachers, and scoring on Finn's long fly to left field. Hall struck out, Ortgies flied out to Bixby, and Sutcliffe rolled out to O'Brien. Williams again scored three times in the second. Mallon reached first on an error by Ortgies, went to third on Monjo's single, and stole home. Monjo stole second and third; Bixby was hit by a pitched ball, and both scored on Hoyt's long fly. Ward flied out to Crane and Boynton walked, but was caught stealing second. Trinity scored twice in their half of the second when Jones singled and Machinoor doubled, scoring on errors by Finn and Wolfe respectively. Williams made three more runs in the third when Bowdridge passed Bixby and hit O'Brien with a pitched ball. Machinoor contributed another error, and Monjo singled. Wolfe weakened in the third, passing Hall and Ortgies, who advanced to second and third respectively when Crane and Sutcliffe grounded out. Patton replaced Wolfe, but Jones singled scoring two runs, before the inning closed.

No scoring was done after this inning until the sixth, when Williams scored five runs before a single man was out. Bixby started the session by walking and promptly stole second, scoring on Hoyt's single to centre field. Ward scored Hoyt by contributing another single, and in turn was driven across the plate by Boynton's triple over the left fielder's head. Captain Finn then stepped to the plate and drove out a home run to deep left, scoring Boynton ahead of him. Another single by O'Brien proved useless as the next three men flied out.

Williams scored four more in the seventh, Brickley, the new Trinity pitcher failing to stem the tide. Bixby was passed and again stole second, Hoyt struck out, but Ward scored Bixby with a single, stole second and reached third when Boynton singled. Hall dropped Finn's fly, but picked it up in time to catch Boynton at second. Ward scored and Finn went to second on an error by Hall on which O'Brien reached first. Finn scored when Mallon singled, and O'Brien came home on a passed ball. Three more runs came in the eighth on two passes and a triple by Ward. Trinity scored in the ninth on a triple by Jones and a single by Machinoor. Patton, in six innings allowed only four scattered hits.

WHAT A ventriloquist was.
SO I had to explain it.

I BLEW just a whiff.

BOTSFORD RESIGNS AS TREASURER OF COUNCIL

Athletic Council Awards Letters to Fifteen Men at Important Meeting

TAX PETITION SUBMITTED

Ask Trustees That Athletic Tax Shall be Paid as Item of Bill for Term

Mr. Herbert Botsford '82 last Wednesday afternoon tendered his resignation as Graduate Treasurer of the Williams College Athletic Council to take effect at the end of the present academic year or as soon as his successor is appointed. At the same time, the awards of track insignia were ratified, a motion was passed petitioning the Trustees to change the present system of the collection of the Athletic Tax so that each student shall pay it as an item of his term bill, and a discussion was held of the advisability of creating a supply officer to take charge of the purchase and distribution of equipment for the athletic teams.

Mr. Botsford has held his office for seven years, following a long term of service by Professor Maxey. During this time, he has systematized the collection of the Athletic Tax, has supervised expenditures, has improved Weston Field by the erection of permanent bleachers and by fencing the property, has taken over the supervision of all athletic contracts and

NEW PLAY ADDED TO TOMORROW'S PROGRAM

'Cap and Bells' to Present Dunsany Comedy and Two Previously Produced

Three one-act plays, The Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe, from Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream, If Shakespeare Lived Today, by Lord Dunsany, and Overruled, by George Bernard Shaw, will comprise the program offered by Cap and Bells at 8.30 p. m. tomorrow in Jesup Hall. Dunsany's play is a newcomer on the program but the other two were presented with success on April 4.

Because of ineligibility, several changes were made in the original casts about three weeks ago, when on the discontinuance of Much Ado About Nothing the Corporation decided to present three one-act plays. Under the direction of Professor Licklider and Mr. Tausch progress has been rapid, and it is expected that tomorrow's performances will be equal to the standard of the first presentations.

The Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe is a short burlesque presented by a company of Greek artisans at the court of Duke Theseus on the occasion of his marriage to Hippolyta. Rose '22 and Baxter '23 have the leading roles of Bottom and Flute, who play Pyramus and Thisbe respectively. If Shakespeare Lived Today has for

Famous Tennis Players Clash on College Courts

On account of the inability of Harold A. Throckmorton to make the trip to Williamstown, his place in the exhibition match with Ichiya Kumagae, which will be held tomorrow at 4.00 p. m. on the College courts, will be taken by Frank H. Anderson, one of America's leading net stars and at present the indoor champion of the United States. Kumagae is rated as the fourth player in the country by the National Lawn Tennis Association, whereas the fast, consistent game which Anderson has played for several years has gained him the title which he now holds.

Kumagae is the leading Japanese player, and in 1920 was runner-up in the Olympic games in Antwerp, Belgium. He annexed the championship of Cuba last year, and has defeated at different times practically all of the foremost tennis men of the country, including Tilden, the present Champion of the World. Anderson was twice runner-up in the National Indoor Junior tournaments, and has won many important tournaments and championships. He should prove a difficult opponent for Kumagae, although the latter's strong, driving game will have the advantage over that of his younger opponent.

FIVE MEN ENTERED IN CAMBRIDGE MEET

Williams Entries Will Have Hard Fight to Qualify Against Strong Fields

Five men, Coan, Crofts, Miller, Richmond, and Stowers, will represent Williams in the annual track meet of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association of America which will be held at Cambridge today and tomorrow. Owing to the size of the field in every event, it is impossible to make any prophecy concerning the outcome, but from the current season's record, it seems possible if not probable that the Purple will place in one or two events.

Over thirty colleges from all parts of the United States are entered in the meet, which will be one of the largest ever held by the Association. Crofts and Coan stand the best chance for a place of any of the Williams track men who are entered. Crofts placed fourth in the two-mile run last year in the time of 9 minutes and 33 seconds, and will again enter this event, rather than the one mile, which he ran in the New England Intercollegiate. Coan has been making fast times throughout the season, but will meet the best runners in the country, and has only a fighting chance to place.

Although Miller was given the time of ten flat for the 100-yard dash in the Amherst meet, he was running under very favorable conditions, and took second in the event in the New England Intercollegiate, the winner's time being 10.1-5 seconds. Stowers ran the best race of his track career at the New England Intercollegiate, and has shown steady improvement, which may pull him through to the finals. The same applies in large degree to Richmond, who will have a hard race to qualify.

Freshman Baseball Nine Plays Strong Opponents

Polytechnic Preparatory School team of Brooklyn, N. Y. will oppose the freshman baseball team tomorrow afternoon immediately after the varsity game on Weston Field. The visitors have a strong aggregation, having won five of the seven games played thus far this season.

Heavy hitting, good fielding, and a fine pitching staff characterize the playing of the Poly Prep. team. Eight hits were scored in a game played against Horace Mann High School of New York City, which is considered one of the strongest secondary school teams in the Metropolitan District.

Probable line-ups for both teams follow: Poly Prep—Cook, lf; Ruckstall, ss; Bell or Yale, p; Henderson, 2b; Vaux, c; Meeker, 1b; Molitor, lf; Lawson, 3b; Toomey, rf. Williams 1921—Newhard, ss; Kellogg, 2b; Stephenson, c; Fineke, 3b; Herron, 1b; Acheson, p; Pease, lf; McKean, cf; Johnston, rf.

5-Set Contest

GREEN ALSO WINS DOUBLES

Williams Doubles Team Eliminated by Amherst Entry in Early Round

After a close five-set contest with the final score 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, Chapin was forced to surrender his title of New England Intercollegiate singles tennis champion to Clarence W. Sanders of Dartmouth, last year's runner-up, last Wednesday afternoon on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club, Boston. Paired with W. E. Howe, Jr., Sanders also captured for the Green the doubles championship from R. D. Carver and Herman Brookman of M. I. T. in another five-set match.

Sanders won the singles title by consistently outplaying the last year's champion, who could not equal his opponent's cut strokes even with his customarily severe drives. Chapin was somewhat wild overhead and his forehand drives accounted for many errors, but even when his hardest shots were well placed within the white lines, they were returned with amazing regularity and occasionally volleyed for aces. Sanders took the first set, 6-2, dropped the next, 3-6, and after a bitter struggle captured the third, 6-4. Chapin evened up the match in the fourth set, 3-6, but was not able to get his best shot working, and Sanders won the deciding set, 6-4.

On Monday, the first day of the tournament, Captain Bullock was eliminated in the first round of the singles by Titus of Amherst, who had difficulty in winning by a score of 6-3, 4-6, 10-8. Chapin

VICTORY IN TENNIS WILL INSURE TROPHY

Will Oppose Amherst, Middlebury and Wesleyan This Weekend on Courts

In the last opportunity before the baseball game to insure possession of the Trophy of Trophies, the Williams tennis team will meet the Amherst netmen tomorrow afternoon at Amherst. A Purple victory in this event will bring the two points necessary for the maintenance of the prize. The Purple team will also oppose Middlebury this afternoon and Wesleyan on Monday morning, both matches to be played on the College courts.

Amherst tied Dartmouth in the opening match of the season, 3-3, and tied Worcester Tech by the same score in the second contest. The third scheduled match with M. I. T. was disastrous to the Purple and White, the final score being 5-1. University of Penn was defeated 4 to 2 in the last contest to date. The team will be

The results of the balloting yesterday are as follows:

Chapel Hours:

7.50 a. m.—191

10.00 a. m.—8

Managers:

E. Shuttleworth, Jr., and J. W. Laws are Chosen to Manage Track and Baseball

INITIAL BALLOT GIVES SHUTTLEWORTH ELECTION

Managerships of Tennis and Golf
Go to McGrath and Larkin, Respectively

By a vote of 247 to 191 the College body decided yesterday in favor of changing the time of the daily chapel service from 7.50 a. m. to 12.00 noon. At the same time four assistant managers were elected from the Sophomore Class, as follows: baseball, James W. Laws, Jr., of Swarthmore, Pa.; track, Edwin Shuttleworth, Jr., of Douglaston, L. I.; tennis, Robert H. McGrath, of Cleveland, Ohio; golf, James Crate Larkin, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Inasmuch as the 247 votes cast in favor of changing the chapel hour are not a majority of the College body, an opportunity will be given all men who failed to cast their ballot or who wish to alter their choice to vote in the Dean's Office, within the next week. The Faculty declared itself unwilling to make a definite change in the chapel hour without having the opinion of the entire College body to act upon.

In winning the track managership, Shuttleworth received a majority of the

PHILLIPS HONORED BY CAPTAINCY OF TRACK

Adams Heads Cross Country Team for Next Year—Both Consistent Runners

Philip Phillips '22, of Buffalo, N. Y., was elected captain of the 1922 track team at a meeting of the team held last Tuesday afternoon. On the same day H. Borden Adams '22, of Fall River, was chosen captain of the cross-country team for next fall.

Phillips has been a member of the track team for three years, proving the most reliable hurdler on the squad. He has improved steadily every year, and led the entire team in scoring this year with 24 points in dual meets and third place in the 120-yard hurdles at the New England Intercollegiate. He prepared for Williams at the Nichols School, where he was captain of the track team and a member of the hockey team. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Adams completed his third season on the cross-country team last fall, and is a distance runner on the track team. Coming to Williams from the B. M. C. Durfee High School without previous experience, he has developed into a reliable runner. He is at present treasurer of the Junior Class. He is president of the Outing Club for next year and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Garfield Addresses Debaters

President Garfield spoke at the annual banquet of Delta Sigma Rho last Wednesday evening in Currier Hall. Professors Morton and T. C. Smith, Assistant-professor Bell, and Mr. Geer were present as guests of the organization.

Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin To Occupy Pulpit Sunday

Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin, D.D. of the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, will conduct the morning service in the Thompson Memorial Chapel next Sunday. There will be no W. C. A. meeting this week.

Following his graduation from Yale in 1897, Dr. Coffin studied at Edinburgh, Scotland, and in Germany until 1899. Upon his return to this country, Yale conferred a Master's degree upon him in 1900, and he received his Doctor of Divinity from Union Theological Seminary in the same year. After his ordination into the Presbyterian ministry, he held two pastorates in New York City, and in 1904 was made Associate Professor of Theology at the seminary from which he received his degree, a position which he now holds. Dr. Coffin is the author of many books on religious subjects.

Baseball and Birthdays

Amherst College will celebrate its 100th birthday during the approaching Commencement ceremonies. Just a hundred years ago President Zephaniah Moore of Williams, dissatisfied with the isolation of Williamstown, crossed Hoosac Mountain to found a "proposed literary institution" near Northampton, and Williams men have been following in his footsteps with unflagging zeal at least most of the way ever since. The "proposed literary institution" is now our friendliest enemy, Amherst.

We take this opportunity of congratulating the step-daughter of Williams upon her long-awaited centenary. May she have all deserved success in the years that are to come! But—

It is not yet her birthday, and when the Purple and White hosts invade Williamstown on Memorial Day all brotherliness must vanish for the nonce till the May 30 jinx shall have done its work. Then, and only then, can we lay aside a century's animosities and greet the sons of Lord Geoffrey with open arms. On with the battle!

Williams' Loss

The resignation of Mr. E. Herbert Botsford '82 from the office of Graduate Treasurer comes as a distinct shock to the many undergraduates and alumni who have long since accustomed themselves to the acceptance of efficient administration of athletic affairs as a matter of course.
The most cursory consideration of the many achievements during his term of office offers convincing proof of the ever-increasing amount of time and energy which the greater duties of the position have necessitated, duties sufficient to require the exclusive attention of the next incumbent.

In the seven years in which Mr. Botsford has served the College as Graduate Treasurer he has accomplished many concrete and long-desired improvements—in particular, the systematizing of the collection of the Student Tax so that during this period practically every student has met this obligation, and the checking of carelessness and extravagance by carefully auditing the accounts of athletic teams and non-athletic activities. His efforts in the thankless task of securing funds from alumni and friends of Williams have been of particular value. In his relations with other institutions he has brought the reputation of the College into high repute.
But above all, he has shown himself a man of vision by formulating a real conception of the athletic needs of Williams on Weston Field and elsewhere, and a man of action by quietly carrying those plans to virtual completion at the present time.

Mr. Botsford's long experience lends particular weight to the suggestions which he has to offer upon retiring from office.
The beneficial results of removing the burden of collecting the Athletic Tax from the overworked Graduate Treasurer and placing it upon the broad shoulders of the Treasurer's Office are obvious. Mr. Bots-ford's own experiences demonstrate the need for the other reform, that of a salaried official who will devote his entire time to the duties of that office.

ALL PRESENT, OR ACCOUNTED FOR

To the Editor of THE RECORD:
Sir—
Still stuffed with pride at its gallant submission to the freshmen in the tug-of-war last fall, the Sophomore Class has just cut another enviable niche in its climb toward the interclass Hall of Fame. A delightfully worth-while theatrical entertainment was opened in North Adams last Monday, at which the class was splendidly represented, with the purely incidental result that a meeting called to nominate candidates for managerships was put off and the college balloting was delayed twenty-four hours.

It was very thoughtless of the powers that be in the Sophomore Class—if there be any—to call a meeting on that evening.
Some 25 or 30 sophomores, who were silly enough to attend the meeting, were thereby denied the privilege of joining their classmates in leading thunderous encouragement to the actors over in the city.
What a blow to Sophomore prestige to be discovered in the theater less than 100% strong! Unprecedented!

Fortunately, however, it does not matter whether the college body waits a day or even a week to elect its managerial representatives, as long as the Sophomore Class enjoys a thoroughly good time.
And it was such a good show!

Captain Secor Wins Only Match for Purple Against Unde- feated Team

Winning only one of the twosomes and neither of the foursomes, the Williams golf team yielded to Dartmouth last Tuesday afternoon on the course of the Greenfield

tain Secor, playing third man, took the only point for the Purple in defeating his opponent, Ankeny, 4 and 3. Ward, runner-up at last year's Intercollegiate Tournament, yielded to Boyd, the brilliant captain of the Green with 3 up and 2 to go.

The summary of the match is as follows:
Twosomes—Boyd (D) defeated Ward (W),
3 and 2; McKee (D) defeated Simmons
(W), 4 and 3; Secor (W) defeated Ankeny
(D), 4 and 3; Gunnison (D) defeated Bourne (W), 6 and 4; Rothschild (D) defeated Rose (W), 5 and 4; and Frost (D)

to the degree of LL.B. extending over a period of three years. The instruc-

The extension of the course, however, gives larger opportunity for attention to the history and theory of the law than was possible in two years.

Students who are qualified to enter advanced classes may do so upon

He prepared for College at the Pawling School, where he played on the football team for two years and on the golf team, besides being a member of the Senior Council and of the Pawling Dramatic Club, of which society he was also treasurer. Shuttleworth won his "W" as guard on the football team last fall, and played on his class team in his freshman year. He has been vice-president of his class for two years, and a member of the Auxiliary Prom. Committee. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Laws prepared for Williams at the Swarthmore Preparatory School, where he was actively engaged in extra-curriculum activities. He played for three years on the football team and was manager for one year, besides being a member of the basketball and tennis teams. He was manager of the school paper, a member of the editorial staff for three years, and an honor man of his class at graduation. In his freshman year at Williams Laws played on his class football team, and was tackle and guard on the varsity team last fall. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

McGrath is a graduate of the University School of Cleveland, where he was manager of the school paper, and a member of the Glee Club and debating society. He is photographic editor of the 1923 Gulielmian, on the photographic staff of the Graphic, and on the Deputations and Charities Committees of the W. C. A. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Larkin received his secondary education at the Nichols School of Buffalo. While there he was on the hockey and swimming teams, captain of the track team, and manager of football. He also served on the Senior Council and as photographic editor of the school year book. Since coming to Williams he was elected assistant business manager of the Graphic, took part in Cap and Bells production of The Beau's Stratagem last winter, and was on the swimming team. Larkin is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

As the result of the Sophomore class meeting held Tuesday evening in the Chemistry Laboratory, Laws, Humes, Anthony, Wightman and Chapman were nominated for assistant manager of baseball; McGrath, Larkin, Collins, Morse, Maxwell, and Anderson were passed in the tennis and golf competition; and Shuttleworth, Thacker, Angevine, Bowen and Byers were selected to go before the college on the ballot for assistant manager of track.

has estimated the budget every year so that the Athletic Council has never had a deficit. Mr. Botsford gave as the cause of his resignation press of work due to the new duties which have been placed upon the Graduate Treasurer and which will require additional expenditure of time and energy.

The collection of the Athletic Tax by the college administration will not affect the size or the distribution of the budget but will simplify the method of getting the funds and will relieve the office of the Graduate Treasurer of a large amount of extra mechanical work.

The awards to the members of the 1921 track team were made on the basis of one point or a fraction in the N. E. I. C. A. A. meet or ten points in dual meets for a "W", and two points in dual meets for an "aWa". The following letters were awarded: "W"—Banks, Coan, Crofts and Hibbard '21; Becket, McWhorter, Mendes, Phillips, Richardson and Richmond '22; Chapin, Pasce and Stowers '23; and Dodge and Miller '24; "aWa"—Alderman, Coddling, Fargo, Kellogg and Towne '21; Brown and Wallace '22; Barnes, Hiss and Webb '23; and Snell '24.

Getting the plus out of college

 NEARLY every college man does some serious thinking on the question, "Will taking part in college activities hurt my chances for success?"

 If you say that college is only a period of preparation for life, it would seem indisputable that the more closely you confine yourself to your work, the better your chances.

 But if you take the broader and what seems truer view, that these four years are a portion of life itself—then it follows that you will play your part now just as fully as you ought to later on.

 During no four years can a man afford to refuse his active support to the natural interests which concern his associates. If he does, let him beware—for when he decides the time has come when he can start leading a public-spirited existence, he won't know how.

 That freshman who cheerfully lends a hand at carrying water for the team and later becomes assistant manager is all the better citizen for his efforts.

 There need be no question of slighting his work. Rather is it a problem of so organizing the work that he will find time for the other demands too.

 The old saying, "If you have a thing to be done, give it to a busy man" is true because the busy man in sheer self-defense has been forced to systematize his actions and so make time.

 This philosophy induces clarity of thought and precision of judgment. Cultivate it today if you would play a worthy part in the vaster, more varied issues of tomorrow.

FINAL COURT BATTLE WITH RED AND BLACK

Wesleyan Players Strongest in Doubles—Are Veterans of Three Seasons

Presenting the same line-up that has played together for the past three years, the Wesleyan tennis team will oppose the Purple netmen on the college courts at 10 a. m. today. Last year the two teams battled to a 3-3 tie, and since the personnel of both is practically unchanged, a close match is expected.

Three victories have been won by the Purple tennis team thus far in the season, two out of the nine games scheduled having been called off on account of bad weather. The first match scheduled against Union at Schenectady having been cancelled, the season opened in Cambridge when Williams lost to Harvard, 9 to 0. Another defeat by a 4-3 score at the hands of M. I. T. was sustained before the first victory, when Trinity was overcome 6 to 0 on the College courts. A similar victory over Hamilton followed, after which Columbia was victorious in a close match which ended 4 to 3. The Brown match being cancelled, the next contest was against the Detroit two-man team on the College courts when Williams won the third victory, 3 to 0. On May 21 Dartmouth defeated the Purple netmen 5 to 2 at Hanover. Wesleyan won from Boston University and Springfield by 4 to 2 and 6 to 0 scores, but succumbed to Columbia, 4 matches to 2.

Captain Swift, Steele, Ott and Leland, who will probably represent the Red and Black, are completing their third season together. Team-play is consequently Wesleyan's strongest asset, as was shown in the Columbia match, when Wesleyan won both the doubles matches and lost all the singles. In the Wesleyan-Williams

Golf Team Has Suffered Five Consecutive Defeats

Handicapped by the fact that only one veteran of last season is playing this year, the golf team has thus far been unable to win a single victory. Captain Seor called for candidates as soon as the local links could be played on, but the team opened its schedule before it had had adequate time for practice.

Boston University defeated the Williams golfers 8-1, and M. I. T. was victorious 6-3 in the first two matches of the season. A 5-2 defeat at the hands of Cornell marked the third contest, and in the last match played up to the present time, the University of Pennsylvania won from the Purple sextet 4-2. Simmons the only remaining member of last year's team has played the most consistent game for Williams.

PURPLE HOCKEY TEAM WINS STRAIGHT 'W's'

Fast Septet Defeated Only by Powerful Dartmouth Combination

Starting practice with one of the largest squads of recent years, the varsity hockey team passed through a season marked by only one defeat, and that at the hands of the very strong Dartmouth septet. As a special reward for their good work members of the team were awarded major "W's" in spite of the fact that the season was not completed without a defeat for the varsity.

Contests against R. P. L., Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, M. I. T., and Harvard, which were the first on the schedule, all had to be cancelled, the first two because of no ice and the last two because of the lack of a place to play. Opening with a game against the Albany Country Club team, won by a 4-0 score, a long list of victories followed. Amherst was defeated 2 to 1 in the first of the two contests between the traditional rivals played at Amherst, and again fell before the Purple sextet in its home territory by a 3-0 score. Columbia was the next victim, being able to make only one goal to five scored by Williams. The West Point game, in spite of the poor condition of the ice, was so

Gargoyle Elects Today

Elections to Gargoyle, the honorary non-secret senior society, will take place after the Amherst baseball game this afternoon on the campus in front of Jesup Hall. The maximum membership is twenty men, who are tapped by the present members as the entire Junior Class sits on the Laboratory fence. Gargoyle was established in 1895, and men are chosen to the society on the basis of the work they have done and the spirit they have shown in behalf of Williams. The society has for its objects the fostering of Williams spirit and the extension of its influence to create and maintain whatever is for the best interests of the College.

Victory for Williams in Today's Game Will Decide Race for Trophy

BOTH TEAMS ON EDGE FOR DECISIVE CONTEST

Purple Beaten by Score of 8-5 In First Contest of Season Between Two Rivals

Stinging from a defeat recently suffered in the home territory of her traditional rival, Williams will face Amherst in the annual Memorial Day baseball classic on Weston Field this afternoon at 2.30 p. m. As a victory for the Purple will mean the winning of the Trophy of Trophies, the contest should prove to be hard fought from start to finish.

Comparison of the scores made by the two nines in their regular scheduled games shows that Amherst has won three and lost four out of seven played up to last Wednesday. Williams on the other hand, has won three out of eight contests. A distinct advantage for the Purple and White, however, is evident on closer inspection. In the first place, Amherst won from the varsity by a score of 8-5 in the first of the two games. Colgate although victorious over the Purple 7-1 was beaten by the Purple and White 5-4. The third triumph for Amherst over Harvard by an 8-0 score is also of significance. In fact the only case in which the comparison favors Williams is that where the varsity defeated Wesleyan 5-3, and the Purple and White lost by a score of 2-0.

Amherst has suffered defeat at the hands of Bowdoin, 6-2; Dartmouth, 2-1; Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, 5-1; and Wesleyan, 2-0. Williams' victory over Lafayette brought out a kind of baseball which has not been shown since that time, but the defeat of Trinity last Saturday cannot be considered of great importance because of the weakness of the Hartford team. The Purple has been defeated on the whole by more decisive scores than its old time rival. West Point was victorious, 9-4; Colgate, 7-1; Yale, 9-5; Princeton, 8-2; and Amherst 8-5.

Zink and Clark have been consistently good hurlers for Amherst, and one of them will undoubtedly start today's game. For the Purple either Holmes or Gregory will be on the mound.

The probable lineup is as follows:

Amherst—Eveleth 2b, Booth ss, Brisk 3b, Leete cf, Elliott rf, Eames 1b, Palmer lf, Williams, Friel c, Zink, Clark p.
Williams—Ward 3b, Buck, C. Boynton rf, Richmond 1b, B. Boynton cf, Finn c, Mallon, Monjo lf, Hoyt 2b, O'Brien ss, Holmes, Gregory, p.

game with the strong Lafayette nine which the Purple won in the 16th inning, mark the 1921 baseball team as distinctly erratic. The nine was favored by a spring training trip and by the return of eight veterans but, with the exception of the Lafayette contest, it has seldom displayed any unusually effective playing.

Owing to the graduation of Burrows and the illness of Patton, the season opened with but one pitcher from last year's team, Holmes has pitched the majority of the games so far and has shown a marked tendency towards wildness. Gregory has worked in most of the other games and has also been free with his passes. Richmond has been the most effective batter although Captain Finn, B. Boynton and Gregory have each driven out several long hits.

The Southern trip opened with a 10-0 defeat by William and Mary. The Navy won the second game 15 to 1, Bixby scoring on an error for the lone Purple tally.

Fleming, the opposing pitcher, allowed the Williams team but two hits. Virginia won the next contest 6 to 5, driving Holmes from the box and finding Gregory for several extra base drives. Pennsylvania outplayed the varsity in the fourth game and easily won by a 6-1 score. The final contest went to Lafayette 10 to 4.

West Point won the first game on the regular schedule 9 to 4, the varsity showing a weakness in the pinches, evidenced by the fact that 14 men were left on base, and frequently displaying poor baseball judgment.

Rain caused the cancellation of the game with M. A. C., but the Purple team scored a complete success in its first home game by defeating the Lafayette nine 2-1 in the sixteenth inning in a contest marked by accurate fielding on the part of the team and by steady pitching by Holmes.

Williams won the next contest 5 to 3 against the Wesleyan nine. The game was featured by a running catch of B. Boynton and by a long hit of Richmond as well as by the poor throwing of the varsity. Holmes pitched the entire game, striking out five and allowing six hits to his opponent's eight.

Exhibiting a dejected slump over past performances, the Williams nine lost to Colgate by a 7-1 score in a raggedly played game on Weston Field. The Varsity was unable to hit the offerings of the Maroon pitcher, whereas their opponents gathered a total of 10 safe hits.

Leading the Yale team until the sixth inning, the Purple lost the tenth game of the season in a contest featured by the wildness of Gregory, the Williams pitcher, who gave eight passes, and by Kelly's catch of Finn's hot liner. The Varsity was unable to find Seleck, the Blue twirler for more than four hits, whereas the Yale batsmen drove out eleven safe blows including three doubles. Both Richmond and Gregory tripled for Williams.

Costly errors and the weakness of Gregory in the pinches cost the Princeton game by a six-run margin. Margetts held the Purple batsmen to four scattered hits while his team-mates touched Gregory for seven safe drives and received as many passes.

COACH COOMBS

Amherst won the next game from the Purple on May 18 by a 8-5 score by means of a seventh inning rally. Zink held the Williams batters to seven hits, struck out thirteen and allowed eight passes, whereas Gregory and Patton were touched for ten hits, struck out but four men and gave six passes.

Last Saturday the Williams team experienced little difficulty in defeating the Trinity nine 21 to 5 in a one-sided game on Weston Field. The Varsity had no trouble in hitting the opposing pitchers almost at will but allowed the Blue and Gold to score five times as many runs as they had done all season. Wolfe started the contest for the Purple but was relieved by Patton early in the game.

Famous Artists Appear in Entertainment Course

Through the generosity of Mrs. Frederick F. Thompson of New York City, the course of entertainments which bears her name, and which has been given here for many years, was again presented this year. Five excellent numbers, arranged by Professor K. E. Weston, constituted the year's program.

Beginning on January 13 with a concert by the Hambourg Trio, an instrumental presentation, this number was followed by an offering of monologues on January 20 by Miss Ruth Draper. Tony Sarg's world-famous Marionettes came to Williamstown on February 8 under the auspices of the Course, and scored their usual success. The Letz Quartet Concert, another instrumental entertainment, was given on March 15. The course closed with the presentation on May 19 of the Electra of Euripides by Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, supported by a cast composed of the graduates and students of the Bennett School of Applied Arts.

THREE DUAL MEET VICTORIES IN SUCCESSFUL TRACK SEASON

Union and Wesleyan Defeated by Decisive Scores—Amherst
Meet is Close

TEAM PLACES THIRD IN
N. E. INTERCOLLEGIATES

Squad Shows Unusual Strength On Track But Decided Weakness in Field

Coch Seeley's track team repeated its brilliant record of 1920 by winning all three dual meets on the schedule just completed and placing third among 16 college teams in the New England Intercollegiate Meet at Cambridge on May 20 and 21. Victories were registered over Union, 75 2-3 to 50 1-3, over Wesleyan, 76 1-2 to 49 1-2, and over Amherst, 64 1-3 to 61 2-3, and total of 22 points were scored in the New England Intercollegiate.

Much of the team's success has been due to the work of new men, although Captain Brown of the 1920 team was the only serious loss by graduation at the beginning of the year. Miller and Dodge '24 have shown the best results among the first year men, forming with McWhorter '22 a very dependable trio of sprinters. Others who have broken into the scoring column for the first time this year are Mendes '22 in the broad jump, Stowers '23 in the quarter-mile, and Hibbard '21 in the hammer throw. Captain Crofts '21 has maintained his excellent standard of several seasons, winning the two-mile run in every dual meet, and taking second in the mile at Amherst and in the New England Intercollegiate. Captain-elect Phillips '22 was high scorer with 26 points to his credit, capturing a first and a second in the hurdles in every dual meet as well as third place in the high hurdles at the Intercollegiate. McWhorter, who led in points scored last year, amassed 13 points through his consistent work in the sprints, though he had more opposition this spring in Dodge and Miller. Coan '21 has won steadily in the mile, defeating all comers in the dual meets and placing third in the Intercollegiate. According to Coach Seeley, Coan has never run better before. Richmond '22 has improved with every meet, and has set a fast pace in the half-mile, rolling up 15 points, including a third at Cambridge. Becket '22, Kellogg and Towne '21, Becket and Wallace '22, Fasse, Chapin and Barnes '23, all veterans of last year, have shone at various times, winning points with regularity for the Purple.

Purple was represented this year by five men, who were responsible for a second place and a tie for second in that meet. Hibbard and Towne formed a powerful combination in the hammer throw, the former taking two firsts and a second in dual meets and failing to qualify in the Intercollegiate by only 1-4 inch. Chapin continued to win points in the pole vault, his most notable achievement being to better the college record in that event with a leap of 11 feet 4 1-2 inches at Cambridge. Mendes proved one of the season's surprises, developing into New England's second Intercollegiate broad jumper. He started jumping this year for the first time, but suddenly showed his ability by taking second in the Amherst meet and a week later repeating the performance in the Intercollegiate with a jump of 21 feet 7 inches. Becket was the only reliable discus thrower, his effort of 110 feet 6 inches at Cambridge tying a college record.

Williams again showed superiority over her rivals on the track, taking a majority of places in running and hurdling in every dual meet, and collecting 17 out of 22 points in the Intercollegiate meet in these events. Captain Crofts and Pascoe led all their rivals across the finish line in the two-mile, and Coan won every mile run in the dual meets. Richmond and Stowers were the mainstays in the middle distance runs, Richmond taking 15 points in the 880-yard run, and Stowers 13 in the 440-yard dash. herst, and barely missing first in the same dash in the Intercollegiate at Cambridge. He came to Williams with no track experience behind him. McWhorter twice won the 220-yard dash, and took two seconds and a third in both dashes in dual meets, besides fourth in the 220 at Cambridge. Dodge's best achievement was a third place in the Intercollegiate 220-yard dash. Phillips was better than ever this year, and supported by Barnes he made the hurdles one of the Purple's strongest events.

Two existing college records were bettered and two more were equalled during the track season. Chapin outvaulted the previous mark of 11 feet 3 inches by 1 1-2 inches, and Crofts and Coan both lowered the one-mile record, finishing second and third in the New England meet in 4.25 and 4.25.1 respectively. Miller won the 100-yard dash against Amherst in 10 seconds, tying the previous mark, and Becket completed the year's record performances with his discus throw of 110 feet 6 inches in the Intercollegiate meet.

closely contested that an extra period was necessary. A goal by Clark, however, gave an edge of 3 to 2 in favor of the Purple. With an undefeated season almost in their grasp, the varsity skaters bowed before Dartmouth 6 to 4 after a hard battle in the closing contest of the year. In all the games the work of Captain Irwin, Becket, Clark, Rowse, and Richmond was especially effective.

match played last year, the Wesleyan players again took both doubles matches, although Bullock, Fraker and Rowse defeated Ott, Steele and Leland respectively in the singles.

It is expected that Captain Bullock, Chapin, Prescott and Rowse will make up the Purple team, with Fraker and C. L.

Taylor held in reserve. The doubles combinations will be Bullock and Chapin and Prescott and Rowse for Williams, with Swift and Steele and Leland and Ott pairing together for Wesleyan.

Williams and Amherst to Meet on Mount Tom Links

While Williams faces Amherst in baseball today, the golf teams of the two rivals will meet also on the links of the Mount Tom Country Club at Holyoke. Neither combination has been victorious as yet, and it is therefore impossible to make a prediction of the probable outcome of the contest.

Amherst has been defeated by Dartmouth, 3-1, and by Columbia, 4-0, in the only matches played thus far. Williams has been beaten by Boston University, 8-1; M. I. T., 6-3; Cornell, 5-2; and the University of Pennsylvania, 4-2.

Ward may possibly be able to play for the Purple, and if so he will prove a valuable addition to the team. Captain Secor, Simmons, Rose, and Bourne will probably make up the Williams team if Ward does not play. On the Amherst quartet, both Captain Hooker and Neale are veterans of last year, and Bagg, a first year man, has proved to be a very good player. Stearns and Clapp as substitutes complete the Purple and White team.

Five straight defeats mark the swimming season as a failure, even though two were lost by the narrow margin of one point. Jones '23, who has been elected captain for next year, was the team's most consistent performer, winning first place in the plunge in every meet, and breaking the tank records at R. P. I. and Wesleyan.

Winning this year for the third time the championship of the Amherst-Wesleyan-Williams triangular debating league, Williams came into permanent possession of the prize cup for which the three colleges have been competing since 1915. The 14th annual debate between Brown, Dartmouth, and the Purple resulted in a triple tie, with the teams upholding the negative winning for each college. A unanimous decision was given the experienced Colgate debaters in the first dual debate that has been held between the two colleges, though the Williams team presented its arguments in a very creditable manner.

C. A. C. MEETS DEFEAT AT HANDS OF PURPLE

Cobb Pitches Fine Brand of Ball Which Brings 6-4 Victory to Williams

With Cobb pitching a fine brand of ball and through effective bunting of hits, Williams overcame the Connecticut Agricultural College baseball team by the score of 6 to 4 on Weston Field last Saturday afternoon. While the visitors collected only five hits from the Williams batsman, B. Boynton and Richmond led the Purple attack, the former getting a home run and a single and the latter a triple and a single.

Cobb did effective work in his second appearance of the year for Williams. Until the seventh inning he allowed the Aggies only one hit, a fluke single too hot for Hoyt to handle. He had two periods of wildness, his three passes in the eighth inning loading the bases and accounting for three of the visitors' runs. Lord, the opposing pitcher, was hit consistently and driven from the mound in the fifth inning. Johnston, who succeeded him, allowed the Purple three hits for the rest of the game, and drove in three runs himself with a double in the eighth.

Connecticut played a fast game in the field, making but one error and completing three double plays. B. Boynton, Monjo and Hoyt starred in the field for Williams, Boynton in particular covering ground fast and pulling down several difficult flies. The rest of the team played indifferently, O'Brien being responsible for three errors and Ward for one.

Boynton's home run was the butting feature of the game, and the Williams

Championship In Soccer Is Won By Junior Team

In the final game of the interclass soccer series played yesterday morning on Cole Field the Juniors triumphed over the Senior team by the score of 1 to 0. The teams had previously been tied for the class championship, each having won five and lost one contest last fall, and as a result of yesterday's game the members of the Junior team will receive class numerals.

Outplaying their opponents in the first half, the Juniors early succeeded in making the only score of the game, J. B. Williams kicking the goal. Wallace and Serjeant also played well for the winners. In the second period the Seniors showed improved teamwork and barely missed scoring, Beekwith and Keegan leading the attack.

Last fall the Juniors were defeated 3 to 1 by the Seniors, but later retaliated by winning from 1921 by the score of 5 to 0 in an easy contest. Both teams were victorious over the two lower class teams.

U. OF CAL. IS VICTOR IN I. C. A. A. A. MEET

Williams, With But Five Entrants, Fails to Place—Miller Alone Qualifies

Cambridge, May 28—Williams, with only five men competing, failed to place today in the 45th annual field and track championship meet of the I. C. A. A. A., which was held in the Harvard Stadium and to which 29 colleges and universities from all over the United States sent teams. Of the three men running preliminary heats Friday, Miller in the 220-yard dash was the only one to qualify, though Richmond and Stowers ran good races in the half-mile and quarter, and Captain Crofts and Coan competed in the two-mile and mile respectively on Saturday.

The keenness of the competition throughout the meet may be judged from the fact that of 29 colleges competing, only 17 were able to place and M. I. T. which won the New England Championship with 46 points was able to score but 10. The meet was won by California with 27½ points, only half a point ahead of Harvard. The point score of the others was as follows: Dartmouth 20, Pennsylvania 18½, Stanford 15, Cornell and Princeton each 13, M. I. T. and Penn State 10, Yale 9½, Lafayette 9, Syracuse 8, Georgetown 5, Rutgers 4, Holy Cross 3, Columbia 1½, and Bowdoin 1.

In Friday's trials, Stowers drew the heat with Eby of Pennsylvania, Ray of

Steady Offensive Gains Kumagae Tennis Victory

Ichiya Kumagae rated as the fourth best tennis player in the country, found little difficulty in defeating Frank H. Anderson in three straight sets in the exhibition match played between the two men on the College courts last Saturday afternoon. Almost from the beginning of the contest, the more experienced Japanese player kept his younger opponent on the defensive.

Anderson started the first set with a much faster brand of tennis than his more wary adversary. His service, especially was bewildering in its speed. After running up a considerable advantage over Kumagae, the American netman gave visible signs of weakening, and all the time his opponent was steadily increasing both the speed and precision of his play. By steady playing the Japanese champion overtook his adversary and then forged ahead taking five straight games and capturing the first set 6-4. In the second set Anderson's service grew slower and his drives became wilder. In contrast to this Kumagae was each minute placing his shots with more accuracy, continually forcing Anderson into deep court, and finally taking the set, 6-2. The third set was merely a repetition of the second, and except for a hotly contested deuce game in the latter part of it the younger player did not at any time offer serious opposition to the clever Nipponese netman. The score was 6-3.

Purple Team Wins From Middlebury and Wesleyan in Last Matches of Season

TEAM IS STRONG IN SINGLES

Wesleyan is Only Opponent to Capture Singles Match in Last Three Contests

Winning the two points which gave the Trophy of Trophies to Williams for the third consecutive time, the Purple tennis team defeated Amherst last Saturday afternoon at Amherst by the score of 5 matches to 2. The Middlebury netmen fell before Williams on the previous day by a 4-0 score, while Wesleyan was defeated yesterday when the Purple took five singles matches to one for the Red and Black.

By the victory over Amherst Williams raised its total number of points on the Trophy to 12 out of a possible 23, while the golf match added another point. Williams won all five of the singles matches, but lost both of the doubles. Middlebury afforded the Purple little opposition in any of the four matches, while four of the six matches went to three sets before the decision was finally obtained against Wesleyan.

Chapin defeated Snyder in the feature match at Amherst by the score of 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. The former New England champion was clearly outplayed in the first set. Snyder having command of all his strokes and using them effectively. Chapin came back strong in the second set, forcing the play throughout to a 6-3 victory. The final set went to Chapin although both men played championship tennis throughout, and the decision was in doubt until the last point.

Captain Bullock won his first set from Titus, who put him out of the New England Intercollegiate Tournament, by the score of 6-4. Both men played careful tennis which was featured by Bullock's long placement drives from the rear of the court. In the second set the Purple captain speeded up his game, but the change resulted in many errors, and he dropped the set 6-2. Titus was finally defeated in the third set by the score of 8-6, both men playing brilliant tennis.

Prescott was in fine form and defeated Clark of Amherst by the score of 6-2, 6-3. The Amherst player was unable to solve Prescott's overhead game, and his inability to pass him at the net was responsible for the defeat. Rowse came from behind and defeated Plimpton 7-5, 6-3. The Williams player was trailing in the first set by the score of 5-2, 40-15, but succeeded in pulling the match out although Plimpton had set point three times. Fraker, playing a strong game at the net, had little trouble in defeating Brickett 6-3, 6-3.

Williams lost both of the doubles matches, although both went to three

HARVARD STAR WILL PILOT 1921 ELEVEN

Percy Wendell, Captain of Crimson in 1912, to Have Staff of Assistants

Percy L. Wendell, Harvard football star, has been appointed by the Athletic Council to coach the Williams football team for the 1921-22 season. Mr. Wendell will meet all candidates for the team at 7.30 p. m. this evening in Jessup Hall.

Next year it is probable that an innovation will be made in the history of football at Williams, for the newly appointed coach feels that one man is not sufficient to bring any college eleven to a high degree of excellence. With a view to remedying this situation here, Mr. Wendell will presumably call in men before each game who are proficient in the several departments of football, and these men will be in charge of the coaching in these lines. Thus expert ends, guards, tackles, quarterbacks, and other star players will concentrate on their men, and Coach Wendell will exercise general supervision over the entire system. It is by means of this system that many colleges and universities of note in the United States have brought their elevens to a great degree of efficiency. Among these colleges, Harvard is notable.

Mr. Wendell graduated from Harvard in 1913, and in 1912 was captain of the Crimson eleven. At the outset of the War, he went into the service, and upon his return, took up college football coaching as a profession. Last year he coached the team of Boston University with great success.

Recommendations received by the Athletic Council seem to indicate that Mr. Wendell is a man of extraordinary ability. He has been highly endorsed by "Joe" Brooks, who coached the Purple for two years, and by Percy Haughton, coach of Harvard, with whom Mr. Wendell worked for several years as an assistant coach of the Crimson. Williams alumni in Boston who are in touch with the football situation in and around that city are enthusiastic about the outlook for a successful season next year with the Purple eleven under the tutelage of Mr. Wendell.

Poly Prep is Victor By 6-5 Score Over Freshmen

1924 succumbed to Poly Prep in a closely contested seven inning baseball game with the final score 5 to 6 last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field.

Pease starred as pitcher for the defeated team striking out eight men, whereas Bell, the Poly Prep twirler struck out six. Two of the five runs for the losers were made by Buck. Gregory, Newhard and O'Brien each accounted for one. Two clever double plays on the part of the Poly Prep nine featured the game.

In the first inning Poly Prep was allowed three runs and 1924 made two. The playing then tightened up on both sides and Poly Prep was held to one run in the second and did not score again until the fifth. 1924 came near tying the score in the sixth when three runs were made, but the final inning was uneventful for either team.

The score by innings follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	r	e
Williams 1924	2	0	0	0	3	0	5	7	5
Poly Prep	3	1	0	0	2	0	6	9	2

2nd Baseman Makes Spectacular Catch of Clark's Drive in Fourth Inning

Combining three singles in the eleventh inning after having overcome a four run lead in the fifth, Amherst won the annual Memorial Day baseball classic by the close score of 8-7. The game was featured by the wildness of the Purple pitchers and the uncertainty of the outcome up to the last minute of play.

Hoyt contributed the most brilliant play of the season when he made a diving one-handed catch of Clark's liner over second base in the fourth inning with the bases full and touched the bag for an unassisted double play, cutting off a threatened Amherst rally. O'Brien started two double plays, one on a fly ball and another on a fast grounder, O'Brien to Hoyt to Richmond, and Monjo cut short a run for the visitors with a hard running catch in the ninth.

Clark began the game on the mound for Amherst, but he was relieved in the sixth inning by Zink, who pitched a strong game, allowing two hits and no passes and striking out three men in six innings. Boynton's triple to deep center in the seventh was the longest hit of the game. The wildness of Holmes and Gregory, who walked eight and six men respectively, was largely responsible for the defeat of the Purple. Both teams batted well, Amherst collecting ten hits including a double, and Williams making a triple and seven singles.

Amherst was unable to score in the first frame. Holmes struck out Eveleth, the first man to face him, but walked Booth. Brisk fled to Boynton and Leete drove a ball to Monjo. Ward opened for Williams

PURPLE AND WHITE IS EASY VICTIM IN GOLF

Williams Golfers Prove Unquestionable Superiority by Decisive Score

Williams found no difficulty in overcoming the Amherst golf team on the links of the Pittsfield Country Club yesterday morning by a score of 4 matches to 2. This contest closed a series of minor sport victories over Amherst during the past year, interrupted only by the loss of the swimming meet.

The superiority of the Purple golfers was unquestioned, as all the matches they won were taken by decisive scores, whereas Amherst was twice forced to the 20th hole to register a victory. Simmons, playing number two for the Purple, ran up the biggest individual score, defeating Captain Hooker of Amherst 6 and 4. Captain Secor of Williams won from Neale by a 5 and 3 count. Bourne overcame Kohn 3 and 2, and Rose forced Bagg to the 20th hole before the Amherst player was able to capture the match. In the foursomes Williams played a better game, Secor and Simmons triumphing 6 and 4 over Neale and Hooker, and Bourne and Rose losing to Kohn and Bagg 1 down on the 20th hole.

The summary follows:

At a meeting of the editorial board of THE RECORD last Sunday afternoon Herbert McAneny, 1923, of New York City, and Grenville S. Sewall, 1923, of Rye, N. Y. were elected Associate Editors, and Ernest G. Angevine, 1923, of Brookline, Mass., was elected to the newly created position of Assignment Editor. At the same time Henry A. MacDonald, 1924, of Erie, Pa., and Douglas W. Olcott, 1924, of Albany, N. Y., were elected to the editorial staff as a result of the second freshman competition.

A Republican Cross of Honor

THE RECORD is overprone to take pride in the achievements of undergraduates when such appear particularly notable, and to overlook completely the records of those same students in after life. The public life of Bainbridge Colby, Williams '90, however, has been of such a nature as to force itself upon the attention. Although he resigned his portfolio as Secretary-of-State some months ago praise for his effective administration and its later results still continues to appear periodically in the daily press.

When Mr. Colby was selected by Mr. Wilson to succeed Secretary Lansing, Republican papers promptly denounced him as another of the President's capital blunders. They confidently believed that he would lead his superior into some international quagmire, but to their surprise he functioned as well as the best of their own nominees could have done. In regard to Mesopotamia, and Yap, and international cable questions, he did precisely the right thing—so right that Mr. Hughes has simply followed in his footsteps.

It is rare indeed for a Democrat to be decorated with a Republican cross of honor, as Mr. Colby has been by such organs as the New York Tribune. Mr. Bryan and Mr. Lansing may well feel envious of the Secretary of State who not only succeeded in pleasing the President and the Democratic Administration, but in extorting the admiration of his political opponents.

The Turn of the Tide

In considering the whys and wherefores of a college education it is profitable to examine the future use to which it is put. Year after year succeeding graduating classes vote overwhelmingly in favor of "business," while the majority of men "undecided" eventually align themselves under that vaguely inclusive head. Business attracts more men every year, with a consequent decrease in aspirants for other callings, such as the ministry, teaching, and politics. And why? Simply because business offers material rewards far and above those to be had in any other occupation, and the ancient and honorable professions no longer command the esteem of this hard-headed Age of Bargaining.

If we ignore for the moment the personal advantages or disadvantages involved, should not college men devote themselves in larger measure to occupations other than business? The world today is badly overbalanced. Too much stress is laid on economic and industrial development for its own sake, and not enough on those influences which will determine what kind of men and what sort of conditions are to regulate their development. There is furthermore a pressing need for altruistic service, as exemplified in the fields of politics, teaching and preaching, cited above.

Theodore Roosevelt declared it the duty of every young man without a definite profession to enter politics—perhaps "public life" would be the more euphemistic term—and to try not what he could get out of the state but what he could improve in it. Strange as it may seem the state still requires widespread improving. The demand for teachers and leaders of men has never before been so urgent, for never before have so many really uneducated people, foreigners especially, gone into the world to do they know not what, and to do that too often wrong. As for the ministry, which a century ago was the most honored profession and still is perhaps the most honorable, a little thought will show what vast opportunity for positive service it embraces. And so on ad lib.

"We admit that more men ought to go into the altruistic professions," college graduates declare, "but first of all we must be able to live." There lies the root of the trouble. In order to attract these men politics and teaching and their kindred vocations must offer returns in income and social standing more nearly approximating those of business; but as long as a large proportion of inferior men engage in them the rewards will not be materially increased, and as long as the rewards remain unincreased only mediocre men for the most part will be drawn to engage in them. This profitless circle must be snapped somewhere. Why cannot the college men start the tide flowing in the right direction by entering these professions, thereby raising their standards, and restoring the balance of remuneration. Whatever sacrifice is entailed will be only temporary, for the return to normality will benefit both profession and individual. And self-sacrifice is not a shadowy trait inherent in some and to be avoided by the rest of the world. It is a habit worth developing. The nation continues to need men who will choose their life-work on the basis of service to humanity rather than on that of gain in dollars.

Yes, prices on our entire Summer stock are based on current replacement costs—unless the goods cost us less than to-day's quotation, in which case prices are based on just what we paid.

In short, college men in buying their Summer outfits now get the benefit of all the reductions the wholesale markets afford.

Delighted or Doubtful?
Like a welcome guest or a homeless stranger?

From all over the country people return again and again to the Lenox and the Brunswick. They are our friends. by flying to Booth. Buck singled to right and scored when Leete let Richmond's hit go through his legs for a homer. Boynton was easy for Booth and Eames. Finn singled through third but O'Brien grounded out, Booth to Eames.

Holmes walked Elliott, the first Purple and White batter, in the second frame. Eames tied to O'Brien who threw to Richmond for a double play. Palmer tied out. Hoyt started the inning for Williams by singling over second, stealing second and went to third on Monjo's hit. Holmes closed the inning by flying to the short-stop.

Friel was safe on Monjo's error and advanced to second on Clark's fly to Buck. Eveleth walked and Booth tied to Ward, but Brisk singled, scoring Friel. Leete grounded out, Hoyt to Richmond. Ward tied out to right, Buck singled to center but was caught at second on a fielder's choice. Boynton walked and scored with Richmond when Leete's error let Finn stretch a singled to a triple. Finn scored on a wild pitch. O'Brien tied out.

Elliott opened the fourth inning with a double to left, Eames tied to Buck, Palmer drew a pass, and Friel grounded to Hoyt who threw wild to second, filling the bases. Clark then lined out to Hoyt who made a hard running catch and a double play unassisted. Hoyt grounded out in Williams' half of the frame. Monjo beat out a bunt and went to second on Holmes' sacrifice, but Ward struck out.

Holmes started the fifth by passing Eveleth, Booth tied to Buck but Brisk was safe on a ground ball to O'Brien. Leete drew a pass, filling the bases. Gregory passed Elliott, forcing in a run. Gregory then took the box. Eames tied to O'Brien but Palmer singled to left, scoring Brisk and Leete, and then stole second. Gregory passed Friel. Clark hit to O'Brien who caught Friel overrunning second, Palmer tallying. Buck and Richmond drew passes in Williams' half of the frame, but Boynton grounded to Clark and Finn and O'Brien tied to the outfield.

Eveleth drew his third pass at the start of the sixth frame. Richmond fell over Booth's sacrifice bunt and both were safe. Brisk and Leete grounded out, but Elliott walked, filling the bases. Eames singled, driving in Eveleth and Booth. He was caught off third on a short throw, Finn to Hoyt to Ward. For Williams, Hoyt struck out and Monjo and Gregory tied to the outfield.

The lucky seventh opened with Palmer grounding to Hoyt. Friel singled and Zink walked. Eveleth tied to Monjo and Zink went out at second on a fielder's choice of Booth's grounder to O'Brien. Ward started a Purple rally with a single which Leete let go through him for a triple. Buck tied to third and Richmond drove a sacrifice fly to right. Boynton tripled to deep center and was held on third because the ball hit an automobile. Finn grounded out.

Brisk and Leete drew passes. Gregory retired in favor of Patton. Elliott grounded to O'Brien who threw to Hoyt to Richmond for a double play. Eames tied to Ward. Zink retired the Purple batters, O'Brien flying out, Hoyt grounding out to Eveleth and Monjo fanning.

Palmer singled over second, Friel tied to Richmond, Zink singled to center field and Eveleth singled. Booth bunted a fly over Ward's head which O'Brien picked up and forced Palmer at the plate, Booth reaching first. Brisk closed the Purple and White half of the inning by flying to Monjo. Patton was safe on Brisk's error and went to second on Ward's bunt and to third on Buck's boulder. Richmond closed the frame by flying to Eames.

In the first extra inning, Wood, who had been substituted for Leete, grounded out, Hoyt to Richmond. Elliott tied to Monjo and Eames tied to Boynton. Boynton grounded out, Eveleth to Eames. Finn tied to Palmer and O'Brien tied to Elliott.

Palmer opened the final frame by reaching first on an error. Friel was out, Ward to Richmond. Zink was hit by a pitched ball and Palmer scored on Eveleth's hit to Boynton. Booth grounded out, O'Brien to Richmond. Williams was unable to make up the one run in the second half. Hoyt struck out, Monjo grounded out, Patton to Richmond, and Mellen, batting for Patton, grounded out, Booth to Eames.

center fielder brought in four runs by his hitting. Richmond had a lead in two of Williams' tallies, his triple in the fourth starting the scoring for the Purple. O'Brien and Monjo gathered two hits apiece from the Connecticut twirlers.

An Aggie runner advanced to third base in the opening inning through a walk, a sacrifice, and an out, but a pretty catch by Cobb of Richmond's wide toss to first prevented any scoring. O'Brien made the first hit off Lord in the second, a Texas Leaguer to left field, but he was out attempting to steal the third out.

The Connecticut team scored first in the third. Monjo made a great running catch of Metelli's long foul, but Enigh was safe when O'Brien threw wild to first. Enigh stole second and came home when Alexander's grounder went through Ward. Two singles by Hoyt and Monjo in the same inning produced no result. Hoyt was forced at third on Cobb's attempted sacrifice and Ward fanned. Monjo took third and Cobb second on a passed ball, but C. Boynton struck out, ending the inning.

Williams counted first in the fourth inning. Richmond drove the first ball pitched to right field for three bases, and scored when B. Boynton shot the next ball past short for a single. Finn hit into a double play, and O'Brien's second single was wasted when Hoyt struck out.

Four hits and an error gave the Purple its last five runs in the fifth inning. With one out, Cobb was hit by a pitched ball. Ward was safe on Alexander's poor throw to get Cobb at second, and Cobb continued to third, from which he scored on C. Boynton's short hit to left, Ward taking second. Richmond sent Ward home with a hit to right, and took second on the throw home. Johnston replaced Lord in the box for Connecticut, and his first ball was driven far over the left fielder's head by B. Boynton for a home run. C. Boynton and Richmond scoring ahead of him. Finn singled to left, but was doubled off first base when Brundage caught O'Brien's fly.

Cobb retired the opposing batsmen on three pitched balls in the next inning. O'Brien threw out Braw, B. Boynton stopped Brundage's line drive on the run, and Minacci lined to Cobb. Boynton stopped an Aggie rally in the seventh with another beautiful running catch in center field.

Connecticut almost evened the score in the eighth. Alexander walked, the next two men went out, and then Cobb handed passes to Minacci and Mullane, filling the bases. Johnston's double scored two runs, and Mullane made a third when O'Brien threw wild to get him at the plate. Johnston halted a Williams rally in the same inning. Hoyt walked and stole second, Monjo singled and stole second, and Cobb walked. With the bases loaded Johnston threw out Ward, retiring the side. After Enigh had singled in the ninth Patton took Cobb's place on the mound, and retired the next three men in order.

In a fatal automobile accident near Hainesport, N. J., Henry P. Richardson of Philadelphia, Pa., was killed on May 23 while on his way to join his wife at their summer cottage. For the last 11 years he has been superintendent of the House of Detention of Philadelphia and recently was made a member of the bar in the same city.

Chief Justice Charles B. Wheeler '73 and Dr. Samuel V. Holmes '83 were the principal speakers at the first annual dinner of the Buffalo members of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, which was held recently. L. L. Lewis '87 and T. M. Maytham '18 were elected president and secretary respectively.

Juniors Win Singing Contest

By the decision of Professors Doughty and Weston, and Mr. Salter acting as judges the Junior Class was adjudged the winner of the interclass singing contest which took place on the steps of Jesup Hall yesterday afternoon. W. D. Coleman and J. E. Wilson '22, the composers of the song, will receive the annual prize award of ten dollars.

Warning

Under the provisions of a new State law, any person defacing shade trees in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts by attaching advertisements of any sort to them is liable to a heavy fine. Attention of managers and publicity agents of College organizations is called to this statute, especially since complaints have been received of violations occurring in Williamstown.

CORNELL RE-ESTABLISH SINGING

Senior singing, a custom which was discarded during the war, has been re-established at Cornell. It was first inaugurated in 1906. This year an innovation will be tried in using the chapel chimes to accompany the singing.

FREEDOM OF ACTORS IS LAUDED BY CRITIC

Three 'Cap and Bells' Productions are Interpreted Truthfully and Artistically

Last Saturday evening before an enthusiastic audience in Jesup Hall, Cap and Bells presented for the second time, The Droll of Pyramus and Thisbe, from A Midsummer Night's Dream, and George Bernard Shaw's Overruled, and added to their program a new play, Is Shakespeare Lived Today, by Lord Dunsany.

In each play the actors kept in the situation and so maintained the illusion throughout. There was, however, a slight tendency to speak to the audience, a common failing to amateurs. The action was for the most part spontaneous and free without the ordinary stiffness and rigidity. There was very little of the usual meaningless waving of arms, for the actors lived in their situations and responded with self-possession and ease to the natural progression of events. Each play was well interpreted from the author's standpoint as well as from an artistic point of view, making for the audience a wholly delightful and enjoyable entertainment.

The new play was the center of interest, portraying the exclusiveness of English club life, with its egotistical habit of self-appreciation equalized by the depreciation of the outsider. The story hits at the Irish and at American depravity might be classed by Owen Wister as propaganda, but the response of the characters to each other, the coherence of rendition and the excellence of the "playing up" of Mr. Gleek to Sir Wobley Woothery Jurnip made so delightfully a smart bit of satire that the audience was quite oblivious to any double entendre and also to the occasional inopportune rendering of lines. Mr. Trundebens's weakness proved the strength of Mr. Hinman's ability to lose himself in character while a whole volume of indifference, scorn, and snobbishness was most effectively condensed in the closing speech, Mr. Neek's emphatic "No."

The more finished work in the two repeated plays made their former presentations seem almost like dress rehearsals, the limitations of space striking almost the only jarring note. The unthoughtfulness of Peter Quince and "his" cast was a really finished product as it kept one conscious at all times that they were simply workaday folk playing at mimicry. On the other hand, Messrs. Linn and Jumo plus their wives or affinities never for a moment revealed the college student, with the "ladies" making especially good representations of feminine depravity, or should we except the baseball arms?

Someone has said that "George Bernard Shaw laughs at his audience and not with them," certainly he leaves no consciousness of mirth, instead one leaves him with a shrug and an "Oh, Pshaw!"

PRINCETON CHAMPION IN TENNIS

With a recent 7-2 victory over Yale in tennis, Princeton secured the intercollegiate championship in that sport. Although the Orange and Black team was pitted against all of the powerful colleges and university teams, it emerged victorious in every contest.

To Combine for Dances on Monday and Tuesday Evenings—
Prom on Wednesday

Ten fraternity houses have definitely decided to entertain guests during the spring houseparties, June 13-15, and will combine with one another to form five different parties, which will be held at the various houses on Monday and Tuesday evenings. All activities will end with the Senior Prom on Wednesday night, June 15.

Four houses, Alpha Delta Phi, Chi Psi, Kappa Alpha, and Sigma Phi will combine in giving four dances at the respective houses, and will have the New York Club de Vingt orchestra for their music. An evening dance will be held at the Sigma Phi house on Monday and at the Kappa Alpha house on Tuesday. A tea will be given at the Alpha Delta Phi house on Tuesday afternoon, and the Chi Psi house will give a dinner dance on Tuesday.

Delta Kappa Epsilon and Zeta Psi will have Wittstein's orchestra of New Haven and will hold two evening dances. The Monday night dance will be at the Zeta Psi house and on Tuesday will be held at the Delta Kappa Epsilon house. No tea will be given by the two houses together.

Phi Delta Theta and Phi Gamma Delta have obtained Cipriano's orchestra from New Haven but have not yet decided upon the places at which the different dances shall be held. Psi Upsilon will be alone and will have Bert Lowe for music, giving two evening dances and one tea. The Phi Sigma Kappa house has decided to have a houseparty, but has made no final arrangements as to music. Theta Delta Chi and Delta Psi are as yet undecided and the remaining houses will entertain no guests.

HARVARD TO BE NEXT OPPONENT ON DIAMOND

Line-up of Crimson Has Remained Practically Without Change
Throughout Season

IS VICTOR IN NINE GAMES

Amherst Won Surprising Victory Over Crimson by Decisive
Score of 8-0

With only four more games to play before the close of the season, Williams will face Harvard in baseball tomorrow afternoon at 4.00 p. m. at Cambridge. The outlook for the Purple is somewhat brightened by the fact that Amherst was able to defeat the Crimson by a margin much larger than the very close score made in yesterday's game against the Purple.

Harvard has had, on the whole, a successful season, and it is a significant fact that the lineup of the Crimson nine has remained practically the same throughout the entire schedule. Out of twelve games played up to the present time on the regular schedule the Cambridge nine has emerged with nine victories and only three defeats.

Only two games were played by the Crimson on its southern trip this spring, one being lost to Georgia Tech, and the other resulting in a triumph over Oglethorpe University. The regular schedule opened with four straight victories over Northeastern College, Boston University, Colby, and New Hampshire State. Then a defeat at the hands of Dartmouth, and another by the powerful Holy Cross nine in a very closely contested game followed. M. A. C. was beaten without difficulty, and then unexpectedly the Cambridge team bowed before Amherst, the final score standing 8 to 0. Next came three straight victories. Princeton was humbled 8 to 2 on one occasion and 4 to 2 in the second contest, and the Waseda University nine from Tokio, Japan was defeated 6 to 5.

To compare with this record the Purple, in ten games played since the training trip, has carried off four and lost six. The only cases in which a true comparison can be made are in those of Princeton and Amherst. Williams has fallen before both nines, and Harvard has won twice from the former and has been whitewashed by the latter. In summary it would appear that chances strongly favored Harvard, especially since the game will be played in their home territory.

In Russell and Goode the Crimson has two very fine pitchers, who have worked all the season. The Crimson is also strong in batting. Owen at first, Emmons at second, Lincoln at third, Blair behind the plate, and Hallock in centerfield, have all shown themselves to be dependable and even brilliant hitters.

For the Purple Patton, Cobb, and Gregory will form the pitching staff. Buck may replace C. Boynton at right field, W. R. Stephenson will act as substitute catcher, and Bixby will be used as a utility infielder. The rest of the lineup will be the same as that of the last two games.

The probable lineups for both teams are as follows. HARVARD—Lincoln, 3b; Captain Emmons, 2b; Condon, ss; Owen, 1b; Murphy or Blair, c; Hallock, cf; Crocker, rf; Thayer or Jamin, lf; Goode or Russell, p; WILLIAMS—Ward, 3b; Buck or C. Boynton, rf; Richmond, 1b; B. Boynton, cf; Captain Finn, c; O'Brien, ss; Hoyt, 2b; Monjo, lf; Patton, Holmes, Wolfe, Cobb or Gregory, p.

FOURTEEN CLASSES TO HOLD REUNIONS

Various Activities for Individual Classes are Tentatively Outlined

Commencement Week is to be marked by the reunions of 14 classes according to arrangements completed so far. Following the two plans of holding reunions, the "Dix" Plan and the "Old Plan," 23 classes are scheduled to meet, but of these two met last year and one has postponed its convention until next year, while the remaining have no definite organization.

Five members of the class of 1866 are expected to be present to celebrate the fifty-fifth anniversary of their graduation and will hold their meeting in Jesup Hall. 1871 is planning a re-union at the Williams Inn, to be held on the evening of June 17. Of the 28 living members of the class, 12 have promised to be present, with several others as yet undecided. A dinner on the same night at the Inn has also been arranged for by the class of 1876.

A golf tournament will probably be held by the members of the class of '86, which has rented the house of Mr. Mayhew on Main Street as a headquarters. 1887 will have headquarters at Mr. Hopkins' on Hoxie Street and will hold its class banquet in the Commons Room June 18.

A committee, composed of Edwin Holmes of Englewood, N. J., George A. Mason of Chicago and John Hill of Brooklyn, N. Y., has charge of the arrangements for the '91 re-union. No definite plans have been issued as yet.

The class of 1896 has also put their re-union in the hands of a committee, the members of which are chosen to cover as much of the country as possible. Edward C. Duffee of Chestnut Hill, Pa., is chairman, and is working with the following men: William R. Folsom, Middle West; Dudley W. Strickland, West; Sanford Robinson, Metropolitan district; John W. Boakes, Central New York; Edmunds Putney, Treasurer; and Frederick A. Alden, Secretary. Professor Weston is a local member of the committee in Williamstown. Headquarters are to be located at 27 Hoxie Street, and the class banquet is to take place in the cabin of Sanford Robinson in the Hopper on June 17.

The classes of 1903-'04-'05 and '06, in joint re-union, have issued a card appointing all members of the different classes as delegates to the All-American Soviet to be held at Williamstown, June 16-20. A classbook of the four classes is being published under the editorship of Herbert B. Howe '05 and will be sent out shortly after June 1. Headquarters have been engaged at Mr. Goodrich's House on Hoxie Street, and a joint dinner will be held at the Commons Club June 19. The classes will be distinguished by arm bands with numerals, and from all reports a very large attendance is expected.

Pirate costumes will be worn by 1911, whose headquarters will be over Mr. Smith's bookstore on Spring Street. The committee in charge is composed of Chester D. Heywood, chairman, James D. Lester, J. Tracy Hale, Jr., Philip C. Rider, William J. Cartwright, Clifford Hemphill and Carl T. Nannburg, secretary. A Decennial History of the class is being prepared by Merrill Gates, and about 60 members of 1911 are expected to be present.

G. B. Bowen is chairman of the 1918 re-union committee, but no word has yet been received of the plans. 1920 will wear costumes, although the design has not been fully decided. Prindle's basement will serve as headquarters.

INTERCOLLEGIATES

PRINCETON RECOGNIZES POLO

Princeton identified itself this year as the leader of a movement to secure the recognition of polo as an intercollegiate sport, and an almost undefeated team was developed by the Tigers in the course of the season. Two of the star players of this combination are returning next year, and plans are being made for a much larger schedule.

HARVARD WINS FROM WASEDA

Harvard recently won a very close game by a score of 6-5, from Waseda University, which is located in Tokio, Japan. Since coming to this country the Japanese nine has won four and lost four out of eight games played, some of which were contests against very powerful combinations.

DETAILS OF TRAINING CAMP ARE FINISHED

Provisions Made for 10,000 Men Between Ages of 16 and 35
for 30 Day Period

Complete details of the Citizens' Military Training Camps which are to be held during July and August of the coming summer as announced in a previous number of The Record, have recently been received from the War Department at Washington. Together with this notice has come a statement from President H. A. Garfield, in which he expresses the hope that members of the Freshman and Sophomore classes will avail themselves of the opportunity which is hereby offered.

Plans as now drafted provide for the training of 10,000 men between the ages of 16 and 35 for a period of 30 days at regular army posts in various sections of the country. These centers, together with the States from which the men assigned will be taken, are listed as follows: First Corps Area—Camp Devens, Mass. Men from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut. Second Corps Area—Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y. Men from New York, New Jersey, and Delaware. Third Corps Area—Camp Mead, Md. Men from Pennsylvania, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

Fourth Corps Area—Camp Jackson, S. C. Men from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Louisiana. Fifth Corps Area—Camp Knox, Ky. Men from Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky. Sixth Corps Area—Camp Grant, Ill. Men from Michigan, Wisconsin, and Illinois. Seventh Corps Area—Camp Pike, Ark. including Fort Snelling, Minn. Men from North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, and Iowa. Eighth Corps Area—Camp Travis, Tex. and Fort Logan, Colo. Men from Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, and Arizona. Ninth Corps Area—Camp Lewis, Wash. and Presidio of San Francisco, Cal. Men from Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada, and California.

Provision for the camps, which are an entirely novel adventure in the form of military training which they will teach, was incorporated into legislation passed by Congress June 4, 1920 for the coordination of military and civilian agencies in a comprehensive system of national defense. In some respects they have been modeled on the Plattsburgh camps of 1913, 1914, and 1915. On account of the limited number of accommodations, it is advisable to make application as soon as possible.

side of the track. The end of the first quarter which went in 57 2-5 seconds found him third with Connolly in the lead making the half in 2 minutes, 6 and 2-5 seconds and three quarters in 3 minutes, 13 and 4-5 seconds. On the last lap Coan pulled up past several men, but with the winner's time 8 seconds better than his best in the New England when he went a second under the College record, twelfth place was the best he could do. Brown of Pennsylvania was second, O'Connell of Harvard third, Strickler of Cornell fourth, and Crawford of Lafayette fifth. Campbell of Yale, one of the favorites before the race, collapsed at the end.

Captain Crofts in the two-mile won the pole by a fast start and then set the pace for the first quarter which was clocked in 63 seconds. But as he started the second lap his ankle, which has been in poor condition since the Amherst meet, began to trouble him and he dropped back a little until on the third lap it was impossible for him to go further and he was forced to drop out. R. E. Brown of Cornell won the race from Romig of Penn State in 9 minutes, 32 seconds, and Dorr of California was third with MacMahon of M. I. T. and N. P. Brown of Cornell, a brother of H. H. Brown '20, fourth and fifth respectively.

sets. Captain Snyder and Titus defeated Prescott and Rowse in a brilliant exhibition of tennis, in which the Williams men made a strong fight, but failed to pull through. Plimpton and Arnold defeated Fraker and Taylor in another hard match by the score of 9-7, 4-6, 6-3. Fraker played a good game, but Taylor was not up to his usual game and showed signs of nervousness.

Second string players experienced no difficulty in defeating Middlebury on Friday, losing only 10 games in the entire match. Fraker beat Ashley 6-1, 6-2, Taylor defeated Davis 6-0, 6-0, and Herron beat Lane 6-1, 6-2. Allison and Ewing had no trouble in the doubles, winning from Ashley and Lane by a 6-2, 6-2 score.

Victories in five of the six singles matches ensured a win against Wesleyan yesterday, although the doubles had to be postponed until today, and the final score of the match had not been decided at the time of going to press.

Chapin won his first set against Steele in easy fashion by a 6-1 score, but the Wesleyan player showed a reversal of form and took the second set 6-4, when he succeeded in passing Chapin at the net for many points. Chapin, however, was able to come back in the third set deciding the match by the score of 6-3 with tennis that brought repeated applause from the spectators.

Rowse, playing number two, was decidedly off form, and Swift did not give him a chance to get started. The Wesleyan player worked his strong service with great effectiveness, and scored few errors while taking advantage of every opening for placement shots. The score of the match was 6-1, 6-2. Captain Bullock won a long match from Ott, his victory giving the decision to Williams. The match was featured by the unusually long rallies, in which Bullock continually played the ball from the rear of the court and Steele responded with an unusual cut stroke. The Williams captain forced the play at the net in the last set, and succeeded in wearing out his opponent, who was defeated in spite of his ability to cover the court and his many spectacular gets.

Prescott lost the first set to Leland by the score of 7-5 when the Wesleyan man showed unusual ability at lobbing. Finding himself unable to maintain his position at the net, Prescott played a back-court game in the last two sets, and won the match by the score of 5-7, 6-3, 6-3. Fraker won his match 6-1, 6-2 as a result of his pretty net play and accurate placements, against which Burlinghoff was unable to defend himself. Taylor beat Smith in a match featured by long rallies and spectacular gets on the part of both men by the score of 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

Schauffler Heads Press Club

Harry K. Schnuffler '22, of Kansas City, Mo., was elected chairman of the Williams College Press Club for the coming year at a recent meeting of that organization. At the same time Frank B. Carr, of Holden, Edward Dewey, of Milwaukee, Wis., Lancaster M. Greene, of Rochester, N. Y., and Haven P. Perkins, of Birmingham, Ala., were elected to the club.

Richmond also drew Eby's heat in the half-mile and the other men who qualified were Campbell of Yale and Bawden of M. I. T. Eby who secured the championship Saturday won in 1 minute, 56 and 3-5 seconds and Richmond was fifth. After failing to qualify in a 10 seconds flat heat of the 100-yard dash, Miller entered the 220-yard sprint placing fourth in a 21 and 3-5 seconds heat won by Maxam of Pennsylvania with Leconey of Lafayette and Hendrixson of California, the others qualifying. In the semi-finals on Saturday, he was eliminated in a fast heat won by Woodring of Syracuse, who later took the championship, with Davison of Cornell and Maxam of Pennsylvania second and third.

Coan was the only Williams entry in the mile in which twenty-six runners lined up for the start, and which was won by Connolly of Georgetown in the fast time of 4 minutes, 17 and 1-5 seconds, only 2 and 4-5 seconds slower than the record set by John Paul Jones in 1913. Because of his position on the outside of the track, Coan took a fast start and gained the lead as he swung into the straightaway on the far

PURPLE WINS ONCE IN FOUR CONTESTS

Williams Nine Conquers Wesleyan
By 9-6 Score With Spectacular Homers

B. BOYNTON AND BUCK
SCORE TWO HOME RUNS

Harvard, Dartmouth, and Boston
Win on Purple's Poor Pitching and Fielding

Poor pitching and lack of support in the field at crucial moments were responsible for three defeats in four games played by the Williams nine on June 1 and during the last week-end. Numerous instances of poor baseball were evident, particularly in the Dartmouth game, but several times the Purple team tightened up and displayed a strong batting offensive as B. Boynton and Buck's home runs in the victory over Wesleyan illustrated.

Harvard clinched a 6 to 2 victory on June 1 at Cambridge, when the Crimson made 10 hits off Cobb, four of which were two baggers. Superior team work on June 16 saved the day for the Purple when Wesleyan was defeated 9 to 6. The Williams nine took a considerable slump on Friday, allowing Dartmouth a 9 to 5 victory on steady and effective pitching with good support in the field while Williams was staging a poor exhibition of ball. The last game of the season proved no less a disappointment when Boston College easily outplayed the Purple nine with the decisive victory of 9 to 1 on Saturday.

Hard hitting in the seventh inning with two men out gained a 6 to 2 victory for Harvard on June 1. Goode, the Crimson

BLISS CHOSEN HEAD OF ALUMNI SOCIETY

Officers for Next Year Elected at Annual Meeting in Grace Hall

William B. Bliss '97, of New York City, was elected president of the Society of Alumni for the coming year at the annual meeting held Saturday morning in Grace Hall. At the same time, Lewis Perry '98 of Exeter, N. H., was chosen vice-president, E. Herbert Botsford '82 was re-elected secretary, Danforth Geer '79 of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., was selected for the alumni trusteeship with term ending in 1926, and Charles T. Terry '89, of New York City, was elected alumni trustee to fill for one year the vacancy caused by the election of William P. Sidley '89 to a permanent position of trustee.

Following the usual order of business, a prayer, offered by the Rev. Clarence Dunham '96 of Boston, opened the meeting. The minutes of the last annual meeting which were printed in the Alumni Review were approved as printed. Elisha Powell '69 of Oswego, N. Y., Dudley W. Strickland '96, of Denver, Col., and Professor Brainerd Mears '03 of Williamstown were appointed as a nominating committee for the officers to be elected.

Chairman Geller '83 of the Advisory Council made a report on the financial condition of the Alumni Loan Association and showed that more calls had been made during the year by deserving students than were warranted by the present income, although all were fulfilled. The name of Leonard Sargent, sometime member of the class of 1850, the only surviving member of his class, was brought up for honorary membership.

An oration was delivered by Rev. George L. Richardson, D.D., Dean of the Protestant Cathedral of Philadelphia, in which the plea for the continuation of Williams as a small college was made. A telegram was sent congratulating the alumni of Amherst celebrating the 100th anniversary of the founding of that college. Other talks were given by George F. Hurd '03, of New York City, the Rev. William W. Clark '66, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Hon. Charles E. Harwood '52, of Upland, Cal., and Rev. Isaac Jennings '79, of Elmira, N. Y.

"For He Dwelleth With You and Shall be in You" is Taken as Text of Sermon

Taking as his text, a passage from the gospel of St. John XIV, 17: "For He dwelleth with you and shall be in you," the Reverend Harry P. Dewey '84 delivered the Baccalaureate Sermon yesterday morning in the Thompson Memorial Chapel.

"The profoundest effect produced upon the first disciples when they came to believe that Jesus had risen from the dead," Dr. Dewey began, "and had appeared unto them was a deepened sense of the nearness and reality of the unseen world, and of closer association with the Spirit. Jesus had told them that He should go from their physical sight though He was the risen Christ."

Later the Rev. Dewey said that the nearer association with the Spirit of God in Christ was the "vital element in the creed of modern society." "It is the vital element in our creed today," Dr. Dewey continued. "Religion is something more than the remembrance of a life lived two thousand years ago. It is an experience of

FOURTEEN CLASSES IN 1921 ALUMNI REUNION

Over 500 Graduates Assemble in Williamstown Over Commencement Week-end

Approximately 500 alumni representing classes ranging from 1852 to 1920 have assembled in Williamstown over the week-end to celebrate the annual commencement reunions. The award of the cup given annually to the class with the largest attendance in proportion to its living members has not been announced yet as the registration has not been completed.

Each class from 1892 on has at least some representatives among those present while 1920 can claim the largest attendance with over 50 of its members returned. Parades of all sorts and at all times have featured the reunions concluding on Saturday afternoon in a combined procession of all alumni to the ball game on Weston Field. Individual classes have held golf tournaments, ball games, smokes and banquets, in accordance with plans made in advance.

Charles E. Harwood '52, coming from Upland, California, the oldest living graduate of the college, has the double distinction of being the oldest visitor and at the same time coming the longest distance to attend. Three members of the class of 1866, one of the classes with scheduled reunions, are in attendance to celebrate the 55th anniversary of their graduation. 1869 is represented by six members. 1871 with seven men back banqueted at the Williams Inn on Friday evening together with members of 1876.

A golf tournament on Saturday morning followed by lunch at the home of Judge Tenney was arranged by the 20 returned members of 1886. The regular meeting and a buffet supper were held last evening at the home of Mr. Mayhew on Main Street. Professor Maxey acted as toastmaster for the banquet of the class of 1887 which was held on Saturday evening in the Commons Room. A short memorial service was held by this class in the cemetery on Sunday morning. About 25 members have registered from 1887 and established headquarters at Mr. Hopkins' on Hoxey Street.

Two banquets on Friday and Saturday evenings held at the cabin of Sanford Robinson in the Hopper marked the celebrations of the 33 attending members of the class of 1896. 1903, 1904, 1905, and 1906 which combined their reunions were distinguished by skull caps and arm bands. A banquet was held last evening in the Commons Room and a memorial service

HOYT IS ELECTED TO CAPTAIN PURPLE NINE

Rowse and Secor Will Pilot Tennis and Golf Teams Thru
1922 Season

Willard E. Hoyt, Jr., '23, of Williamstown, Richard Edson Rowse '22, of Lexington, and George B. Secor '22, of Toledo, Ohio, were elected captains of the 1922 baseball, tennis, and golf teams respectively at meetings held during the past week. All of the captains-elect have played steadily and consistently in the various sports, and with a substantial nucleus for next year's teams, the outlook appears favorable for the coming season.

Hoyt prepared for Williams at the Taft School where he played baseball throughout his four years, and upon coming to Williams made the freshman and varsity baseball teams in his first year, and was also a member of his class football team. He has played an even, and often exceedingly brilliant game at second base during the past season, and his excellent fielding has been apparent throughout the year. Hoyt is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Rowse prepared for Williams at the Taft School, where he was captain of the tennis team during his senior year, and was also a member of the hockey team. He made the varsity tennis team at Williams during his freshman year, and has played on the varsity hockey team for the last two years. He was a member of the Musical Clubs and College Choir during his sophomore year, a member of the Honor System Committee in his second and third years, and has been a lieutenant in the Fire Brigade this year. Rowse is a member of the Delta Psi fraternity.

Secor was captain of the golf team this year, and throughout the difficult and unsuccessful season, he has played a steady and often spectacular match. He prepared for Williams at the Hotchkiss and Berkshire Schools where he was a member of the golf teams and while in College has been a member of the varsity golf team and has played on his class baseball team for two years. Secor is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

A Prosperous New Year

Another college year has drawn to a close. The final pages of its achievements, its victories, and its defeats have been recorded. Nine months of interesting and instructive experiences have been allotted the student body. But if we are to profit in fullest measure from these experiences, it is necessary to consider what they have been and what significance they possess for the future.

The first thought of the undergraduate is that Williams won the Trophy of Trophies; and the alumnus remembers that the Purple lost an Amherst football and two baseball encounters. Both are essentially right in their viewpoints. On the one side the athletic year may be viewed as moderately successful. Amherst was defeated in a majority of sport, the Purple eleven rolled up the largest score of any season against worthy opponents, the basketball five won a large majority of its contests, the hockey team lost but a single game, the track team without any outstanding stars has been called by Coach Seeley the best in the history of that sport, and even the mulberated baseball nine defeated our other chief rival, Wesleyan, on both occasions.

On the other hand, in nearly every sport contests have been lost which never should have been lost. Undergraduates have walked from the field at times simply because the Williams team was losing. Carping, destructive criticism has been omnipresent both among students and alumni. The attitude of the players themselves has left much to be desired. Lack of earnest purpose has characterized practices. Too often the impression is conveyed that individuals are working more for selfish considerations than for the team and the college. College spirit has been replaced on the bench and in the bleachers by a country club attitude toward sport as simply a diversion or recreation. Such in brief is a partial history of the past year.

Frankly facing these facts we refuse to be pessimistic, or even regretful over the past year. The very fact that Williams teams could win the victories they have won in the face of such conditions gives encouraging assurance of the underlying strength of the college fabric. During the year just closed the spirit of unrest, scepticism, and dissatisfaction caused by the war reached its summit, and the above external manifestations have been a natural result. The ebb-tide has set in,

however. The growing interest in the work of the W. C. A., the endeavor on the part of the baseball team this spring to observe stricter training, and the quieter, more serious observance of Commencement are straws which show clearly the direction of the wind.

The only real danger is that undergraduates will overlook the new opportunities and lapse back into old habits. They must not be allowed to forget that loyal support at every contest is vital and that strict training is a necessity. The "W" and the Phi Beta Kappa key must be properly honored, and college customs built up and preserved. This year has seen long steps forward in the matter of faculty and student cooperation, but there is still room for much more. The Williams Club and other alumni organizations are taking a more active interest in the college than ever before. Once such projects are under way the bodies in question must not permit themselves to rest upon their oars.

Triumphs and successes there will certainly be during the coming year. Opportunities are constantly enlarging, and those close to the pulse of undergraduate life feel that the students of to-day are fully capable of rising to those opportunities if they will simply recognize them. They have the occasion, they have the capacity, they have the vision. Consequently THE RECORD looks forward with supreme confidence to the coming college year, with the same confidence that a certain Williams graduate must have felt in the recent Olympics when he faced the greatest opportunity of his life, the supreme test of his athletic career, but with the knowledge that within himself he possessed the ability to rise to that occasion and to triumph. The real success of Williams during the coming year will not be due to forces without but to the inherent capability already within.

It is with sincere regret that we see the class of 1921 depart from our close family circle into the more distant relationships of the Society of Alumni. The removal of their influence as a class and as individuals is a distinct loss to the college. Yet we can find consolation in feeling that it marks the almost complete return of the college to normality. 1921 is to all practical purposes the last "war class," the final large group to graduate after having had their studies seriously interrupted by the war. They take with them the last of those men who were prematurely developed by the war, who were forced by the country's need to rise superior to college and local interests, and who returned to complete their education not in a spirit of scepticism, perhaps, but with an air of aloofness, lacking that intangible but lively "collegiteness" of their earlier days. Beginning with next year, therefore, we may look for less of the country club and more of the proper collegiate atmosphere about Williams, and a steady increase in college spirit. It will be the same Williams spirit which has won many an Amherst game against overwhelming odds and which inspired students and alumni to do those splendid achievements which makes us so reverently proud of the Williams Honor Roll.

Editor of the WILLIAMS RECORD:

Perhaps the following fact, told me by a member of the Amherst Press Bureau, may interest those undergraduates and alumni who have been criticising the Williams College Press Bureau for its lack of news in New York papers by comparison with Amherst. He told me that clippings of four leading New York dailies over a period of several months showed that Williams averaged just twice as much news in that time as Amherst. And, as has been pointed out before, the fault for the non-appearance of even more news lies with the newspapers which will not print it, not with the Williams bureau.

Yours truly,

H. R. Coan, 1921,
Chairman of the Press Bureau, 1920-1921.

ANNUAL MISSION PARK MEETING IS CONDUCTED

Dr. Thomas C. Richards Speaks on American Missions and Their Work

As part of the regular commencement exercises, a meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the Haystack Monument in Mission Park, the site of the founding of the first American Foreign Mission 115 years ago. The meeting was opened by some songs rendered by a Negro quartet from Straight College, New Orleans, which had been brought from Louisiana by the Reverend Howard Briggs, M.A., a graduate of Williams in the class of 1897, and now president of the southern college.

Rev. Thomas C. Richards, of Medford, Mass., the author of a book entitled "Samuel J. Mills, the Hero of the Haystack," then addressed the meeting. He spoke of the first years of the American Missions after their birth in Williamstown, and how their influence spread across this continent and finally over the whole world. "The movement was born in the hearts of college freshmen and sophomores, who felt that Christianity was bounded practically by the limits of a very few countries and that it should be spread to all peoples, no matter what their race or creed," he said. He mentioned some of the men who had been prominent in missionary work in the past century, among them Dr. Patton, a trustee of Amherst College and secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions. Dr. Patton started from the Haystack Monument and visited Africa, China and Japan, spreading the Gospel as he went.

Dr. Richards ended his speech with an appeal to the college men of today to consider seriously the ministry as a life work. He said that this profession has suffered badly in the past few years for want of good men to carry on the work and that if the work of those men who first went out from the Haystack Monument is not to perish, more men must come forward to take it up.

The meeting was closed with some hymns and a prayer and benediction by the Reverend Harry L. Everitt of Jersey City, of the class of 1905.

Dr. Dewey Delivers 1921 Baccalaureate

the present hour. It is a sense of living contact with the Lord of the Spirit. And why should it not be so, since in Him we live, and move, and have our being? Why should we not think that Heaven can touch Earth, and Earth thrills in response, that the Divine can play upon the Human, and the Human feels the impression?

"Let us consider three of the various offices which the Spirit, according to the Scriptures, is said to perform—three which seem especially reasonable and are most commonly experienced. First, it is said that we are born of the Spirit. We are born of the Spirit. There are times when the mind suddenly and surprisingly awakens to larger perception and apprehension. There are times when you have an inspiration and you say that you are facing a problem and seeing no solution, or trying to remember something forgotten because it is sorely needed at the moment. Suddenly, in a flash, and out of the hidden depths and unknown, breaks the light. Geniuses are inspired folk. They do by intuition what others do by labor. The word genius is derived from the name of the tutelary deities which the Romans thought attended them, guided and protected them, and so we may believe that we have a Divine Genius attending us and ever ready, if we are ready, to stimulate our minds.

"Even more evidently we are born of a Spirit religiously. There are times when we are roused from our spiritual indifference and sluggishness, when all things become new, when it seems to us as if we had come from the dawn into the day. Perhaps we read suggestive books, or meet a noble, quickening friend, or come into a service like this, and are wrought upon by the surroundings and worship. Think not that the effect is merely a reaction of your mind upon itself, or merely a response to circumstantial and human agencies. Believe that the Holy Spirit is using these various instrumentalities to kindle you with His own flame. You cannot tell how your mind lifts your arm or drops it to your side, you cannot tell how you stand talking to a friend and some impalpable influence is conveyed by the look of the eye and the tone of the voice, to your mind and heart, and you cannot tell how the Invisible Spirit of God approaches and enters into your soul, but you know what you cannot measure or calculate, or describe, that change for the better is wrought in you: you are seized by a different mood; you thrill with a new zest."

"Who can see the wind?"

Neither I nor you;
But when the leaves hang trembling,
The wind is passing through.

"Who can see the wind?"

Neither you nor I,
But when the trees bow down their heads,
The wind is passing by."

Secondly, Dr. Dewey continued, "We are convicted by the Spirit. What a strange faculty is conscience! It seems to speak as another self; to stand above and give its advice and utter its verdict, and we cannot blink its mandates. It seems often to speak with an authority which is beyond and above itself. Whence does it come? Philosophers have argued that it is the result of the experience of the race in which, by long testing, certain courses of action have been found wise and profitable and others have been found unwise and unprofitable, and so men have come to think that they are under the bonds to go one way rather than the other. But surely that does not explain conscience; that does not explain why someone feels that he ought not to do the thing that seems wise rather than that which seems foolish. Why is he not at liberty to do as he pleases? No solution of the problem seems so in line with the facts as the one which says that this feeling of obligation is nothing other than the pressure of God's Spirit. It does press and keeps pressing.

"Yet, what encouragement there is in this fact! We look out upon a world sadly torn by human passions; we grow disheartened as we think of reconstructing society, bringing to pass the desired reforms, and a new Heaven and a new Earth wherein righteousness shall dwell. We reckon on our own resources, we compute our own equipments, we take account of our own abilities, and they seem small and feeble enough. We must remember that there are invisible forces that we cannot see and cannot compute; we must remember that there is a Holy Spirit who is very busy in the world, and that underneath all of the worldliness, selfishness and brutality, He is prodding the Conscience, filling men with shame, stirring within them longings for things good and true. 'Not by might, not by power, but by My Spirit,' saith the Lord.

"Finally we are told that we are led by the Spirit. We all need a guide." Mr. Dewey continued with the assurance that Jesus had promised to be our guide in all kinds of truth, and pointed out historical examples, illustrative of the Divine guidance that blesses us. He said that nature is always giving us hints of great things, and he emphasized the fact that while we are ever seeking truth, truth is also ever seeking us. Dr. Dewey pointed out that this condition of affairs is the assurance that the mysteries of the world of all kinds will be made clearer, that it is a pledge that secular wisdom will dawn, and that the world will be more justly and righteously governed. He added that "the comfort of this assurance is appreciated as we think of life as a pilgrimage through the devious years."

As the soundest and most practical working philosophy of life, the Rev. Dewey quoted the following tribute paid to a church in Philadelphia: "Behold I have set before thee a door, open, for thou hast a little strength and hast kept the faith, and hast not denied my name," that is, he said, "fidelity is rewarded by opportunity, and the door is opened by your push and by the Divine pull on the other side of the door." The sermon closed with the text "For He dwelleth with you and shall be in you."

CLASS DAY EXERCISES CROWNED WITH SUCCESS

Addresses by Joslyn and Hall Are Features of Annual Ceremonies

Attended by a large audience of alumni and visitors, the annual Class Day exercises of the graduating class took place last Friday afternoon in Grace Hall, at the Thompson Chapel, on the library campus, and in the Berkshire Quadrangle. The parade of the Class of 1921 formed at 2.00 p. m. in front of the Lawrence Hall library, and proceeded first to Grace Hall.

Joslyn opened the ceremonies in Grace Hall with the President's Address, in which he emphasized three ways in which college spirit is exhibited: by attention to the curriculum, by participation or interest in athletics, and by participation in non-athletic undergraduate activities. After the singing of "Twas in the Days of Long Ago, Moody read the Class Poem and Hall delivered the Class Oration. The latter pointed out the difference between men of ideals and men of mere ideas, and declared that the former brought about progress as opposed to mere change. The graduating class, he declared, owes a debt of ideals to the College.

The procession then marched to the Thompson Chapel campus, where after the singing of Come Fill Your Glasses Up the ceremonies attendant upon the planting of the ivy took place. Schlesinger delivered the Ivy Poem, and Finn the Ivy Oration, urging the graduates to grasp every opportunity for service in life in order to justify their college training.

The procession having moved to the library campus, Thexton opened the speaking there with the Library Oration. He pointed out the advantages of the humanitarian education over the utilitarian one, and advised a desire for perfection in all things intellectual and moral. Camp indulged in a profusion of persiflage at the expense of the faculty in the Pipe Oration.

Coan was the last speaker on the Class Day program. In his Address to the Lower Classes, delivered in the Berkshire Quadrangle, he admonished the succeeding classes to think and act independently and at the same time to carry on all the ideals and traditions of Williams. He emphasized the need for putting scholarship ahead of other interests and of electing class and college officers on the basis of ability rather than on popularity alone. The ceremonies closed with the singing of The Mountains from the Chapel tower by the Senior Class.

The Class Day officers were Joslyn, president; Noble, permanent secretary, and Coddington and Ufford, marshals.

What Is Research?

SUPPOSE that a stove burns too much coal for the amount of heat that it radiates. The manufacturer hires a man familiar with the principles of combustion and heat radiation to make experiments which will indicate desirable changes in design. The stove selected as the most efficient is the result of research.

Suppose that you want to make a ruby in a factory—not a mere imitation, but a real ruby, indistinguishable by any chemical or physical test from the natural stone. You begin by analyzing rubies chemically and physically. Then you try to make rubies just as nature did, with the same chemicals and under similar conditions. Your rubies are the result of research—research of a different type from that required to improve the stove.

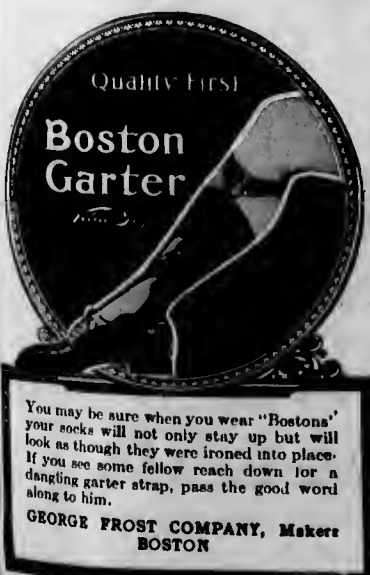

Suppose, as you melted up your chemicals to produce rubies and experimented with high temperatures, you began to wonder how hot the earth must have been millions of years ago when rubies were first crystallized, and what were the forces at play that made this planet what it is. You begin an investigation that leads you far from rubies and causes you to formulate theories to explain how the earth, and, for that matter, how the whole solar system was created. That would be research of a still different type—pioneering into the unknown to satisfy an insatiable curiosity.

Research of all three types is conducted in the Laboratories of the General Electric Company. But it is the third type of research—pioneering into the unknown—that means most, in the long run, even though it is undertaken with no practical benefit in view.

At the present time, for example, the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are exploring matter with X-rays in order to discover not only how the atoms in different substances are arranged but how the atoms themselves are built up. The more you know about a substance, the more you can do with it. Some day this X-ray work will enable scientists to answer more definitely than they can now the question: Why is iron magnetic? And then the electrical industry will take a great step forward, and more real progress will be made in five years than can be made in a century of experimenting with existing electrical apparatus.

You can add wings and stories to an old house. But to build a new house, you must begin with the foundation.

The single victory in the quartet of games was made on Thursday afternoon on Weston Field when the Purple nine conquered Wesleyan by a 9 to 6 score. A home run by B. Boynton in the fourth inning with the bases full was the main feature of the game and provided a thrill for the combined audience of houseparty girls and returned alumni. Buck also knocked out a homer, and Finn a three-bagger. Cobb pitched for Williams, striking out four men and giving four passes.

He tightened up wad in the pinches, and with the help of good support was never in serious difficulty. During all nine innings Murpleby stuck to the mound for Wesleyan, in spite of having hits bunched against him and errors scored by his teammates at inopportune moments. The hitting was heavy on both sides, Raines and Fricke driving out three baggers, and Belcher making a two base hit.

With Dartmouth exhibiting some good team work and effective pitching as opposed to the ragged playing of the Purple nine, Williams again lost by a score of 9 to 5 last Friday afternoon on Weston Field. Buck and Richmond scored two runs for the Purple in the first inning through Maynard's error at shortstop. Robertson of Dartmouth knocked out a three bagger in the second getting in on Hoyt's error. In the third Brown of Dartmouth made a two base hit and Bruce brought him to the plate when he knocked out a grounder past Hoyt on second. A three base hit by Finn past Bower on second in the last half of the inning gave Williams the advantage again. In the fourth inning

Dartmouth took the lead decisively with three runs when Robertson made first on a grounder past third and Merritt repeated the play. Bruce then sacrificed and Bower brought in two runs with a grounder through center, and scored on Ross' one base hit. The Green and White scored again in the sixth and seventh innings with one run each. In the eighth Dartmouth scored twice when Bower knocked out a grounder through third, stole second and made third on the catcher's wild throw. A one base hit by Ross brought in Bower, and Ross made a run on Brown's single. A swift double play, Buck to Ward, made two outs. B. Boynton made the Purple's final score when Grundman dropped a fly giving him two bases. A grounder through third by Finn brought Boynton to the plate.

Weak pitching on the part of the Purple nine and superior fielding and excellent twirling on the part of the visitors gave Boston College an easy victory by a 9 to 1 score last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field. Neither team gained an advantage until the fourth inning when T. Phillips of Boston knocked out a single just beyond B. Boynton's reach at third. Comerford knocked a single through right field while T. Phillips was getting to third. T. Phillips came in on a grounder through center. Two more runs were scored by Comerford and E. Phillips on liners through center. Boston scored four runs in succession in the fifth, and Cobb, pitching for Williams, was withdrawn, Gregory taking his place. In the sixth inning C. Boynton made the only score for the losers, knocking out a three bagger through center, and coming in on Richmond's fly past third. The Purple defense tightened up in the seventh. T. Phillips scored again for Boston in the eighth and Holligan closed the scoring in the ninth.

for their members lost in the war was held in Thompson Chapel on yesterday afternoon.

Pirate costumes decorated the visitors from 1911 of whom nearly 25 were on hand. Headquarters were held over Smith's Book Store on Spring Street and a smoker on Friday evening marked their gathering. A ball game in front of Jesup Hall on Saturday morning between '11 and '16 drew a large audience and much enthusiasm. The scores of each team were left far behind before the game was even well under way and it is said that the total if known would establish a new world's record. The members of 1916 wore clown costumes of blue and white with caps to match. Headquarters for 1920 were established in Cabel's basement and informal gatherings met there on each evening.

Correction

Appearing in the November 8 issue of the Record an account of this year's Williams-Hamilton football game characterized its score as "the largest ever made by a Williams football team against any opponent." The Record takes this opportunity to correct the above statement. A strong Williams eleven rolled up a total score of 130 points against Union on October 16, 1889, holding their opponents scoreless. Even more remarkable was the score made the next year, when on October 25, 1890 the Laureate Boat Club team allowed the Purple eleven to score 142 points and were unable to tally.

Houseparty 'Cow' Is Purer Than 'Ivory'*Courtesy of A. E. L.*Purity without precedent might well characterize the 1921 Houseparty number of the Purple Cow, which unfortunately appeared too late to be enjoyed by many of the fair guests who spent three mortal nights of tracking Terpsichore with us during the early part of last week. The fact that there are only twelve references to 'petting' and other various forms of extra-Promenade activity, and about the same number of sly condemnations of the Volstead Act makes the number distinctively original.

Excellent in general art work, the best single piece of drawing seems to be found in the frontispiece by Becket '22, a well-reproduced picture of what is generally considered the 'ideal houseparty girl.' Two full page drawings by Hurley '23 are well done, but the accompanying wheezes are rather weak. Illustrations for jokes are good throughout the number, those of Becket and Hyde '22 and Merryweather '24 being especially commendable.

The poetry throughout is not dangerously original in theme, but is on a par with the usual line of inspiration that afflicts most amateur funnybards when there is a prospect that there will be hosts of fair damsels who will coyly peruse the pages of the number, and ask her man "who wrote that naughty little poem." Of this material, the best is that of Britton '23 and Dodge '24. Longer prose articles are few in number, and not remarkably good. The jokes in the number are slightly above the average. On the whole, it seems that the Cow will undergo a well-earned rest during the summer, and that in various pastures she may be able to find some new and healthy fodder with which to start the new college year with more than her usual strength.ALUMNI NOTES*1902

25 MEN TO ATTEND STUDENT MEETINGS

Large Williams Delegation to Be Present at Silver Bay Conference

Approximately 25 college men have signified their intention of attending the Eastern Student Conference to be held at Silver Bay, N. Y., from June 24 to July 4. Opportunities of an exceptional character are being offered in the conference, several noted speakers having been engaged to deliver addresses and carry on the business of the meeting.

According to the leaders of the conference, the aim of the gathering is to "seek fearlessly and sanely the moral and spiritual problems that confront the college man of today on the campus, in the community, and throughout the world," and it is expected by those active in the work that "as always, the presence of hundreds of earnest, joyous students, the frank discussion and intimate fellowship, the healthy intercollegiate rivalry, and the new-found partnership with men from other colleges, will all combine to create that indescribable atmosphere which makes a student conference unique in the experience of a lifetime." "Students and professors who desire to lend their support to raising up the Christian leadership, demanded of the college men of this generation for the service of the world," are those that are invited to attend.

The entire conference will be divided into 50 or 60 groups of 10 or 12 students each for the discussion under capable leaders of such questions as "The Challenge of the Near East," "The Christian Basis of World Democracy," "The Marks of a World Christian," and "Home Mission Fields and Opportunities." Among the leaders and speakers expected are Robert E. Speer, Sherwood Eddy, Henry Sloan Coffin, John R. Mott, and Henry B. Wright. Opportunities are to be given to special groups such as student volunteers, theological school students, and professional school students for the discussion of their own problems. Every effort will be made to discover by discussion the best lessons of recent experience in the enterprises of the different colleges.

In addition to the meetings and groups, a large part of the time will be spent in recreation. Regular events, such as a series of baseball games, aquatics, mountain climbing, will be on the program.

ONE-ACT PLAYS SCORE ANOTHER BIG SUCCESS

Critic Makes Favorable Comment on Houseparty Performance of 'Cap and Bells'

Not too much must be expected of a house party audience, which has been known to fall asleep at the movies even when they were featuring the valiant "Doug" himself. Yet there was, at the presentation of the three one-act plays by Cap and Bells on Tuesday evening, June 14, sufficient response to stimulate the actors to make the third time a charm. It was avowedly a makeshift to repeat these plays instead of producing a Shakespeare comedy; and though the residents ought to have something new, this arrangement was under the circumstances wholly best.

As is usual in college dramatics, the most striking virtue of the performances was the vigor of the actors, their enthusiasm, their gusto. It was this characteristic that made the Pyramus and Thisbe so interesting to watch even for a third time; from the planning of the droll by the lusty artisans to the thumping rhythm of the Bergmask, the swing of the players covered up such evidences of amateurishness as the make-up, and their verve in the intimacy of the Jesup Hall auditorium was infectious. This with Mendelssohn's music and the charming color schemes made the play an artistic pleasure.

The lesser success of Emmeline's If Shakespeare Lived Today was due in no small measure to the play itself, or rather to its lesser suitability. The subtle hits on English character, the genial satire on their blustering muddle-headedness and their lumbering attempt to seem far-minded—these were largely lost, and the more obvious points were too infrequent to keep up active interest. Then, too, many of the hits on the general ignorance about Shakespeare were perhaps too well directed to be comfortable, or worse still, to be comprehensible.

Shaw's Overruled was less delicate and far more seasonable. The scintillating dialogue, the smart small-talk, the amusing situations of the complicated flirtation gave it a tang altogether agreeable, accentuated by just the right amount of faring on the part of the four actors to keep it from being satirical. In point of acting and stage illusion, this was of the three the most finished production.

Cap and Bells is once more to be congratulated on the attempt to give plays of literary merit and at the same time of genuine interest. Such an interest admits Williams to the great Renaissance of drama as manifested in the Little Theater Movement, and offers a fitting expression to an important phase of the artistic life of the community.

The Advisory Council met at 10.00 a. m. last Friday in Jesup Hall to draw up its propositions. The following were present: Chairman Frederick Geller '83, Augustus W. Buck '88, Calvin Bullock '92, Williams A. Lockwood '96, Edmund E. Whitney '96, E. Herbert Botsford '82 et-officio.

Officers for the coming year were re-elected: Chairman, Frederick Geller '83; vice-chairman, Judge John M. Killits '80; secretary-treasurer, James F. Bacon '98.

It was voted that the Secretary of the Alumni be empowered to change the form of the Alumni Review from a quarterly to a monthly if in his judgment it seems best for the interest of the society; that the Secretary of the Alumni take such steps as may seem advisable for better publicity in regard to matters of College news, acting in co-operation with the present College press bureau; to recommend that authorized appeals to the alumni body for funds be (1) loyalty fund, (2) student aid fund, (3) W. C. A. work, (4) alumni athletic association, (5) Alumni Review, (6) undergraduate publications; that all other appeals for funds from the undergraduate body must first be submitted to the executive committee of alumni for approval; to recommend that the basis of calculation of the percentage for the award of the reunion cup be the same as for the loyalty percentages, all graduates being counted and only those non-graduates who are present at any commencement.

The Directors of the Loyalty Fund met at 11.00 a. m. on Friday in Jesup Hall to draw up their proposition. The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted. The Secretary reported on the results of the ballot. Directors for the new term ending 1924 were elected as follows: Downing P. Brown '08, Walter H. Chubb '93, Josiah M. Lasell '86, Herbert H. Lapham '99, Elisha B. Powell '69. To fill the vacancy in the term ending 1923 George F. Perkins '95 was elected and the nominees for the next ballot were as follows: Charles M. Davenport '01, William O. Wyckoff '14, Mark W. MacKay, Jr., '09, Chester D. Heywood '11, and six others to be named by the society. The Treasurer reported all bills paid and $12,000 cash available for appropriation, $3,000 additional having been paid to the College Treasurer from the collections of the present year. It was voted that the Loyalty Fund appropriate and give to the Board of Trustees for salary increases covering the year July 1, 1921 to June 30, 1922 the sum of $12,000. It was resolved that this resolution be sent to the Board of Trustees with the request that they appoint a committee of the Loyalty Fund Association in regard to future collection and application of similar moneys.

212th ORGAN RECITAL

Interesting Program Rendered by Mr. Sumner Salter

Presenting a varied and excellent program of noted and popular compositions, Mr. Sumner Salter gave his 212th organ recital last night at 8.30 p. m. in Grace Hall before a large audience of alumni and commencement guests. The program consisted of nine selections and was very well appreciated both as to its selection and as to the finished manner in which it was rendered.

Ave Maria, Prelude To Lohengrin, and The Lost Chord were perhaps the most appreciated selections and the soft notes of the first were rendered with a great deal of skill and technique. The sweet theme of Baird's Evening Song was given its fullest meaning in Mr. Salter's interpretation, and the recital as a whole was skillfully and pleasantly played.

Following is the program in detail:
Prelude in G Minor Gabriel Pierné
Evening Song Edward C. Baird
Prelude to Lohengrin Richard Wagner
Sposalizio Franz Listz
Ave Maria Franz Schubert
Introduction and Allegro Moderato J. Guy Rapartz
The Lost Chord Sir Arthur S. Sullivan
May Night Selma Palmgren
Toccata from Symphony V Charles Marie Widor

"Where do we go from here?"

"ALL through my last year", said the old grad, "I listened to a lot of advice on what to do when I got out into the wide, wide world—how to fight the battle of life, and all that sort of thing.

"That dim, shadowy world beyond Commencement appeared so unfriendly that I hardly had the courage to face it. I seemed about to step off into space, with a foreboding sense of doom.

"Then came some surprises. To begin with, my boss did not wear horns. He laid down no sterner rules than I had been following in electrical lab or in football practice—an honest day's work, and when occasion demanded, an honest night's work too.

"Well, to my delight I kept discovering that this was no new planet I had landed on. Nothing but the same old world as at college, only more of it. The problems were harder, the issues larger. But the astonishing and comforting thing was that the basic principles involved were the same.

"If you have learned to analyze your problems down to their fundamental principles and to apply those principles to similar and bigger problems—good for you! You will find that ability a comfortable bridge between college and industrial life.

"That is the most important lesson for any man to learn, in college or out of it, and to practice all through the day's work.

"So if your first job should be to rig up a generator in a tool-shed and wire the outbuildings, depend upon it that that job can help to make your thinking a little quicker and a little surer when you are planning your 500-mile interconnection system ten years from now."

JUNE 'GRAPHIC' GAINS HIGH COMMENDATION

Critic Comments Especially on Excellence of Photographs in New Issue

Featured by pictures of exceptional quality, clearness and interest, the June issue of the Williams Graphic, made its appearance last week, and it contains much that is to be praised. Perhaps the stories and literary sections were not up to the usual standards, but as a whole the issue can be called a fitting climax to the first year of its existence as one of the Williams publications.

In looking over the number, our attention and interest are immediately called to the photographs which are scattered throughout the pages and the action and clearness of the baseball and track pictures fully redeem any discrepancies in the literary departments. Among the best photographs is the cover which is really an unusual action picture. The individual photos of the team and of the games are full of action, and what is most essential are realistic and natural. The original ideas of the Cap and Bells and The Electra productions should be commended and the old class pictures are particularly appropriate at this time of the alumni reunions. As we have said above, it is the photographic section that makes the last issue one of the best of the short year of its life.

Mr. Moody's Imprayer Names is a cleverly written informal essay which leaves one with the feeling that he has been entertained for the time that was taken in the reading, but which does not greatly raise one above the common herd for its intellectual value. It is light and clever. Mr. Richardson's Williams Poetry presents something that is of interest to all, and it gives one a new idea about an unknown branch of alumni activity. Its subject matter appeals to one more than any delicate style, and we feel that we have gained something by reading it and after all that is what good literature is for. Mr. McMaster's What's In A Name is interestingly written but is somewhat shallow and pointless. It is the type of story that the Graphic should attempt to avoid since it is rather amateurish and unconvincing to the reader. The article on Graduate Schools deserves high commendation since it opens a new field in advice to undergraduates from the alumni and something that is really worth while and of some benefit. It gives one an opportunity to benefit himself from the experiences of older men and gives one a view into graduate work from the standpoint of men who have experienced the same things that undergraduates are about to experience.

There are a few new ideas and subjects in the last issue and these we should commend highly, for originality in a publication is a quality which, because of its importance in the interest in the magazine, should always be praised.

Musical Clubs Announce Plans

Plans for the Christmas trip of the Combined Musical Clubs are now in the process of formation, and it has been announced that the trip will include Springfield, East Orange, N. J., Montclair, N. J., New York City, and Philadelphia, Pa. and another city to be decided later. The great success of the previous concerts of the Clubs in East Orange, Montclair, and New York has made it seem desirable that these places be included on the 1921 itinerary. Several week-end trips will follow the regular Christmas run.

ELEVEN FRATERNITIES HOLD HOUSEPARTIES

Two Hundred Guests Entertained During Early Part of Last Week

Brought to a successful finish by the 1921 Senior Prom, the annual spring houseparty season closed last Thursday afternoon. Eleven fraternities held dances on Monday and Tuesday evenings and almost 200 guests were present for the festivities.

Alpha Delta Phi, Chi Psi, Kappa Alpha, and Sigma Phi combined in a large party, for which the Club de Vingt Orchestra of New York City provided music. Dances were held Monday evening at the Sigma Phi Place, Tuesday afternoon at the Alpha Delta Phi House and Tuesday night at the Kappa Alpha Lodge. Delta Kappa Epsilon, in combination with Zeta Psi, held dances on both evenings preceding the Prom, on Monday at the latter house and on Tuesday at the former. Wittstein of New Haven supplied music for both. Phi Delta Theta and Phi Gamma Delta, also combining, held dances on Monday evening and Tuesday afternoon at the former house and on Tuesday evening at the latter, with Cipriano's Orchestra of New Haven as music. Psi Upsilon had dances on both Monday and Tuesday evenings, and a tea dance on Tuesday afternoon. Bert Lowe's Orchestra of Boston furnished music. Delta Upsilon, with Hartigan's Orchestra of Albany, N. Y. held dances on both nights, as did Phi Sigma Kappa, music at the latter house being supplied by Zeta's Orchestra from the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany, N. Y.

Beginning on Wednesday evening at 10.30 in a blaze of color, the 1921 Senior Promenade closed on Thursday morning at 7.00 in a similar blaze of sunshine. Bert Lowe's eight-piece Orchestra of Boston, assisted by the Six Melody Masters Orchestra of New York City, played for the dance which was unusually well-attended. The Gymnasium, in which the affair was held, was decorated in pink and white, and boxes were built around three sides of the hall to accommodate the guests of the several fraternities and of the Faculty and Commons Clubs. Supper was served shortly before one o'clock, and omitting half of the regular program, the dance continued open until seven.

NEW "GUL" ATTRACTIVE

1922 Edition Featured by Large Amount of Fine Material

Appearing on schedule last week, the 1922 Gulielmian formed a most worthy addition to the library of 64 volumes that have preceded it. Traditions and forms of other years were followed carefully and successfully and a new department of humor opened up an interesting section to the undergraduates.

Artistically, the work was nearly perfect. The colored prints introducing the different sections were a novel and excellent feature. Other drawings were of the same grade. The sufficiently numerous photographs showed careful consideration and taste. Typographically too, the volume was of the highest grade. The editorial work, such as was necessary, was in keeping with the rest of the volume. The amount of material compiled was considerable and the most that has ever been published.

The new section of humor, which probably is the most appealing to the majority of the readers, seems at times to tend too nearly to personal criticism and slander which might make it objectionable to some of its intended owners. In other places, considerable wit is shown and such things as the suggested improvements for the college are well worthy of note.

The cover of dark brown grain leather is most attractive and well done and surpasses anything of recent years. On the whole, no praise has ever been more deserved for the hard work required in compiling a year book than is due to the editors of the 1922 Gulielmian.

61 ANSWER FIRST CALL OF FOOTBALL

Large Squad With 12 Letter Men Reported to Coach Wendell for Practice Monday

HARVARD STARS HELP COACH TRAIN PLAYERS

Lewis and Lawson in Charge of Ends and Line—No Line-up Adopted as Yet

For the first time in many years Amherst will not be the last opponent to face the Purple football squad this season, and Wesleyan will hold the position indicating the most important struggle of the schedule. R. P. I., Harvard and Trinity have been dropped from the schedule this year and in their places have been substituted Yale, Middlebury and Bowdoin. The opening game is with Hamilton on October 8. Following is the schedule in full:

October 1—Hamilton College at Clinton, N. Y.
October 8—Bowdoin College at Williamstown.
October 15—Yale University at New Haven, Conn.
October 22—Middlebury College at Williamstown.
October 29—Columbia University at New York City.
November 5—Union College at Williamstown.
November 12—Amherst at Williamstown.
November 19—Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn.

Practice for the 1921 football season officially opened last Monday morning when 61 candidates, including 12 letter men, reported to Head Coach Wendell on Weston Field. No scrimmages have been held so far, most of the work consisting of teaching the men the fundamentals of the game.

The coaching staff this year has been entirely changed. Percy Wendell, Harvard '13, All-American selection for full-back in 1910 and 1911, has taken Brooks' place as head coach. He is being assisted by Richard Lewis, Harvard '13, who has charge of the ends, and by Douglas Lawson, Harvard '13, in charge of the line-men. Robert Fowler, former assistant to "Peech" Donovan, has taken the place of Charlie Barrett as trainer. Both Barrett and Brooks are with the Columbia team this year. Jack Coombs, re-appointed baseball coach, will also help at the completion of the full baseball practice.

No definite line-up has been adopted as yet but the men from whom the line will be probably picked are Captain Fargo, J. Barnes, Boynton, Cole, Humes, Laws, Robinson, Shaw, Simons and Vroman. In the backfield, Burger, Gregory, Holmes, Mallon, Mellon, Monjo and J. E. Wilson have shown promise. Shuttleworth has shifted from guard to end and is the only letter man out for that position. Clark, Phillips and H. Wilson of last year's team with Etheridge and McKean of the 1924 team are also candidates for ends. Montgomery is temporarily out of the game with an injured leg but will probably be in condition in two weeks. The loss of B. Boynton at quarter will be felt especially at the start of the season. C. S. Richmond and Coleman '22 and Heywood and Hoffman '24 are candidates for the position. Richmond, because of his speed and experience, seems to be the logical man for the place.

Scrimmage will probably start Saturday or Monday. Practice will be held every afternoon in the future. A tentative line-up will be picked soon in preparation for the first game on October 1 with Hamilton College at Clinton, N. Y.

A complete list of the candidates follows: Captain Fargo, Brigham, Burger, Clark, S. T. Coleman, Fleming, Hyde, Montgomery, Phillips, Richmond, Rubino, Simons, Vroman, H. S. Wilson and J. E. Wilson '22; J. N. Anderson, Angevine, Ayer, Boynton, Byers, Chapman, W. S. Crosby, Greene, Hamilton, Holmes, Humes, H. Lawder, M. Lawder, Laws, Mallon, Mellon, Monjo, Parker, Procter, Quaintance, Shuttleworth, Wightman and Zuber '23; and Ayer, J. W. Barnes, Bigelow, Brigham, Cole, Cushing, Etheridge, Fawcett, Gregory, Healy, Heywood, Hoffman, Jayne, McKean, Pattison, Pease, Perkins, Prossprich, Robinson, Shaw, Shores, Sinkler, Taylor and Weber '24.

Coach Wendell Calls for Men and Steady Interest

Coach Wendell has given out the following statement for publication:

The coaches and I are pleased that such a large number of men have reported for football practice; the more men report, the stronger team we shall have. Under the system we are using, the man who has played little or no football can be developed in a season into a player of varsity caliber. We urge all men who have any desire to play or any idea that they could, to report. We shall be glad to have any man come out, no matter how little experience he has had.

The coaches like to have the undergraduates on the field while the men are working. Our only request is that they do not come on the gridiron or speak to the players during practice. There is a tremendous amount of work to be done with the present material, and it is a decided stimulus for the players and coaches to see the student body is taking a real interest in our work.

Percy Wendell,
Head Coach

SUMMER SNAKES RETURN TO WORK

Europe Calls Many, but Others Conduct Summer Campaign in America

High Sens and High Society vied for supremacy in popularity with Williams men this summer, profitable work coming, as usual, a poor third. Heart-Breaking and European Travel gained unusual attention from exam-worn students, and rumors are rife that the number of engagements, both foreign and domestic, that have resulted from the 1921 summer campaign compares favorably with the figures for the Allied Armies during the summer of 1914.

Members of the football squad have been seen or heard of in every conceivable occupation and in a few that are not quite so conceivable. Activities ranged from pen-pushing to heavy-lifting in department-stores. Fargo '22 acted as a clerk in a Chicago concern. Laws '23 did enough coal-mining in West Virginia to make it certain that none of the Williams fraternity houses will have to close this winter due to a lack of fuel. Shuttleworth '23 and Barnes '24 graced the beaches of Quogue, L. I., and Magnolia, Mass., respectively and respectably. It is reported that Rubino '22 ran a beauty-parlor at Babylon, L. I., but no confirmation of this rumor could be obtained in time for publication in this issue.

So many of the college body spent the summer or part of it in Europe that an epidemic of Dunnill pipes, English clothes

SEMINARS A GREAT PHASE

Round-Table Conferences Prove an Important Factor in Institute Work

Complete and unqualified success, evidenced by the universal enthusiasm of the two hundred odd delegates present, attended every phase of the first annual session of the Institute of Politics held during the summer at Williams College. The local arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the delegates were perfectly handled and the valuable results gained from the public lectures, round-table conferences, and informal discussions on international relations have already caused a flood of applications for membership in next summer's session.

The prevailing spirit of the Institute was one of scientific investigation rather than partisan contention. Especially noteworthy were the eight round-table conferences, at which lecturers and delegates exchanged views with the most informal frankness, and from which the real lessons of the Institute were carried away by the college professors and political leaders who formed the student body of this novel summer school.

Although business and study were the keynote of the Institute, nevertheless the picturesque social side of the gathering of notables was not lost sight of. The intimate social life of the Institute centered about the College Commons, where meals were served and where great and small mingled on a plane of friendly equality. All the principal lecturers forsook the services of the private cooks who had been placed at their disposal, preferring to dine at the Commons, and many of the delegates tried in vain to obtain rooms for themselves and their families in the college dormitories, as West College, Berkshire Hall and Fayerweather Hall were all crowded to capacity. Unmeasured praise was heard on every hand for the complete and faultless provision that had been made for the care of all visitors, the details of which were in the hands of Professor Weston, secretary of the Institute, Professor McLaren, chief secretary of the round-table conferences, Mr. Hoyt, and Mr. Smedley.

For four weeks Williamstown was the cynosure of attention not only among

Institute Minutes Preserved

Eyes of the entire thinking world were focused on the activities of the Institute of Politics and the results of the conferences. It is doubtful if there could have been a better or more comprehensive system for keeping the press informed than that which was devised and supervised with great success through the efforts of J. E. King '12, a member of the editorial staff of the Boston Transcript and his corps of assistants. Clippings of over 3000 news stories and approximately 400 editorials on the Institute have been collected by the College, and a seven-volume summary of the summer's proceedings, comprising the addresses of the six foreign lecturers and detailed reports of the eight round-table leaders, will be published in the near future.

WORLD LEADERS LECTURE

Taft Opens Work of Summer With Memorable Address—Root Makes Final Speech

BRYCE AND TITTONI CLASH

Disagree on the Austria-Italy-Tyrol Question—Viscount Favors League

Declaring that "if the democracies of the world want to control international affairs they must first become internationally minded," and that the members of the institute had pointed the way toward this goal, former Secretary of State Elihu Root brought to a close the first session of the Williams College Institute of Politics at the farewell dinner held in Laseil Gymnasium on August 26.

Mr. Root's address marked the close of the most notable gathering of national and international dignitaries ever convened at Williams. It was the practically unanimous opinion of the conference delegates as well as of the American press that this "clearing house of world knowledge" conceived and created by President Garfield was a unique and valuable contribution to political education. Guided by the opinions of six of the keenest political minds in the world, some 200 authorities and teachers of international relations devoted four weeks to studying the political and economic tasks confronting civilized nations, through the medium of intelligent, unbiased investigation and discussion.

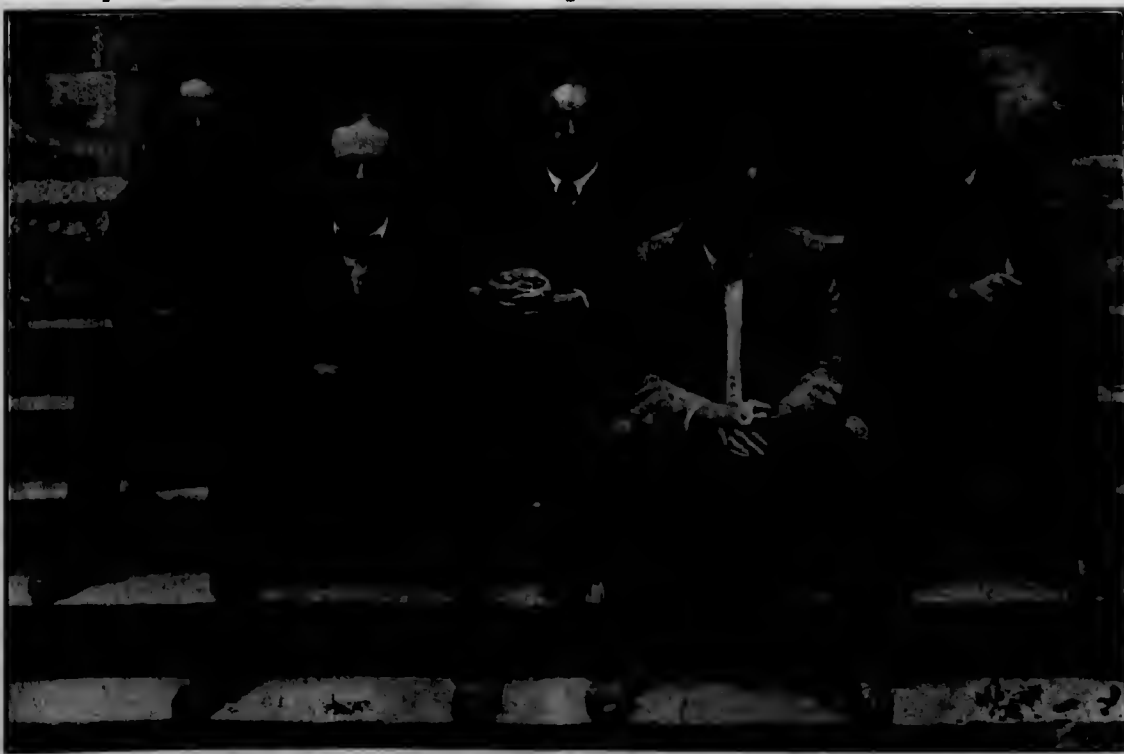

The international flavor of the conference was supplied by the six principal lecturers, each of whom unofficially represented one of Europe's leading states. There was Viscount James Bryce, long the British ambassador to the United States, and well-known to Americans through his masterly treatise, The American Commonwealth. There was the Honorable Tommaso Tittoni, President of the Italian Senate; Baron Sergius A. Korff, Deputy Governor of Finland under Kerensky; Count Paul Teleki, who was premier of Hungary when the Emperor Charles attempted to regain the throne in 1920; the Honorable Stephen Panarettoff, Bulgarian minister to the United States, and for 43 years a professor at Robert College, Constantinople; and Professor Achille Vialatte, one of the foremost French masters of Economics.

Many other notable figures attended the Institute, some as leaders of round-table conferences and others as regularly enrolled "students." Directing the round-table discussion on "Reparations" was Mr. Norman H. Davis, former under secretary of state. The Honorable L. S. Rowe, president of the Pan-American Union, headed the "Latin-American Questions" group, and Professor F. W. Taussig of Harvard, a leading American economist, conducted the course on "Tariff Problems." Other well-known discussion leaders were Professors Coolidge, Lord, Wilson, and Haskins of Harvard, Professor Garner of the University of Illinois, and Professor Reeves of the University of Michigan. Among the illustrious "undergrads" at the Institute were Maurice Casennve, French High Commissioner to the United States, and his aide Major J. A. M. de Sanchez, one of France's leading economists; President Charles F. Thwing of Western Reserve University, President Ellen Pendleton of Wellesley College, and many others.

The Institute of Politics was opened on July 29, the day after a destructive storm had demolished about 50 of Williamstown's finest elms, leaving the campus in a the Berkshires but throughout the entire country. Natives and summer residents flocked from all directions and great distances to the Grace Hall lectures. Almost every one of the lecturers attracted audiences of Commencement proportions, Viscount Bryce in particular filling the auditorium to the doors.

Round-Tables Important

The two daily lectures, which were delivered at 11.15 a. m. and 8.30 p. m., were the only exercises of the Institute open to the general public. Far more important in educational value were the round-table conferences, each of which had its own leader, a specialist on the subject, and his secretary. These conferences were conducted like highly advanced college seminars, but every member had been specially invited, and was expected to be able to contribute something to the discussion. The list of delegates included college presidents and professors of history, economics, and sociology, clergymen, authors, editors, social workers, members of the War Intelligence bureau at Washington, foreign diplomats in this country, both men and women. A vast number of special text-books were provided for these conferences, as well as maps of the highest order, many of which had been prepared especially for this occasion. Serious study of both maps and texts accompanied the discussions. The list of round-table conferences, no more than two of which were open to any one delegate, with their leaders, was as follows: "The New States of Central Europe," Professors A. C. Coolidge and R. H. Lord of Harvard; "The Reparations Question: Its International Aspects," Norman H. Davis, former Under Secretary of State; "Treaties of Peace, especially the Treaty of Versailles," Professor J. W. Garner, University of Illinois; "The New Frontiers in Western Europe and the Near East," Professor C. H. Haskins of Harvard and Colonel Lawrence Martin of Washington, D. C.; "Fundamental Concepts in International Law in Relation to Political Theory and Legal Philosophy," Professor J. S. Reeves, University of Michigan; "Latin-American Questions," The Honorable L. S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan-American Union; "Tariffs and Tariff Problems," Professor F. W. Taussig of Harvard; "Unsettled Questions in International Law," Professor G. G. Wilson of Harvard.

One of the many features of the Institute was the large sound amplifier installed in Grace Hall to facilitate the hearing of the speakers. The machine was the same one that was employed at the inauguration of President Harding, and proved a great help to the audience, although the delivery and command of English revealed by the speakers was remarkable.

The presence of so many distinguished visitors quickened the social pulse of Williamstown. Absolute informality marked all the social functions, however, from President Garfield's opening reception to the farewell dinner in Lasell Gymnasium. Many of the members of the Institute were the guests of local residents at receptions and lawn parties, and the lecturers and their wives acted as hosts on several occasions. Organ recitals, informal teas, tennis, golf, motoring, dancing, and mountain-climbing served to occupy the leisure hours of the ordinarily hard-working lecturers and delegates.

Beginnings of the Institute

President Garfield first proposed the idea of a summer institute of politics to the Board of Trustees in 1913, but it was decided to take no definite action until the completion of the $2,000,000 endowment then being raised. This was finished in 1917, but Dr. Garfield's period of service as Fuel Administrator in Washington during the war interfered with progress on the Institute plans. Immediately after his resignation in December, 1919, he outlined the plans and purpose of the Institute to his friend and co-worker Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, who agreed to finance the entire proposition for three years. The name of the Institute's benefactor was withheld from the public at his own request until the final banquet on August 26, at which the announcement was greeted with prolonged cheers.

Interest is already running high in the second session of the Institute of Politics, which will begin in the last week of July, 1922. In order to satisfy the large number of applicants, the college will furnish all the dormitories, allowing for a far larger membership. The details of next summer's conference will be perfected and announced during the winter.

A COMBINED PRINTING AND ENGRAVING SERVICE

With the beginning of a new year, plans have been perfected to offer the men of Williams a dependable way to buy good printing.

Although situated, as we are, in Pittsfield, 22 miles from the college, orders leaving Williamstown as late as 11.30 p. m. reach our office at 7 a. m. the next morning. Whenever the size of the order permits, the finished work is delivered the same day at 6 p. m.

One of your own classmates, Sayen, '22, will represent us again during the coming year. His work in the last three months of the past semester resulted in our gaining many new friends at Williams. Mr. Sayen's seven years' experience in the printing, engraving, and publishing fields enables him to offer you suggestions with regard to printing and engraving matters which result in lower cost.

It gives us great pleasure to resume our cordial relations with Williams men through Mr. Sayen. If you have printing or engraving problems of any sort, stop down at The Record office and talk them over with him.

FRATERNITY RUSHING TO START OCTOBER 1

Shorter Closed Period Is Only Alteration in Agreement
Used Last Year

October 1 is the date set for the opening of the 1921 rushing season, and the entertainment of the freshmen by the various houses will start with the Saturday dinner dates. Rushing is to be conducted under the same plan and agreement as heretofore used, with the exception that the closed period is shorter than that of last year and previous years. First period dates are to be arranged by the Interfraternity Council and the subsequent dates are to be arranged by the freshmen themselves through the medium of the Council.

Following is the Interfraternity Rushing Agreement which has been ratified by all of the fourteen fraternities:

INTERFRATERNITY RUSHING AGREEMENT

1. I hereby agree upon my honor that previous to his final registration, I shall not bid or pledge any prospective first year man of Williams College or obtain from him any promise regarding future bidding or pledging. I also agree upon my honor that, during the period extending from two weeks before the opening of College until the beginning of the Third Rushing Period, I shall not communicate with any first year man except:—(1) to transact usual College business; (2) to greet him or carry on with him brief non-fraternity conversation upon the street; (3) to carry on during the dates of the first two rushing periods conversations on non-fraternity matters.

2. This agreement is to be binding upon every undergraduate member of a Williams College fraternity, provided that it is signed by four-fifths of the undergraduate members of such fraternity, from the time of its signature until two months subsequent to the close of the rushing season for 1920.

3. Prospective students may be entertained at any time previous to two weeks before the opening of the College in the year of their entrance, but prior to such two weeks before the opening of College there shall be no bidding or pledging or promises of any nature made regarding possible future bidding or pledging.

4. After two weeks before the opening of College and up to the beginning of the Third Rushing Period, conversation with first year men shall be confined to transactions of the usual College business and greetings and brief non-fraternity conversations upon the street.

5. Rushing season shall be divided into three periods: A, B, and C. Period A shall begin with the dinner date of the third Saturday after the opening of College and shall extend through the second evening date of the Tuesday following. Period B shall begin with the dinner date of the following Wednesday and shall extend through the second evening date of the following Friday. Period C shall begin with the dinner date of the Saturday following and shall end with the second evening date of the same evening.

6. During Period C there may be bidding and pledging.

7. During the three periods, the day shall be divided into the following rushing dates: Week days: Dinner (6:00-7:30);

First Evening Date (7:30-8:45); Second Evening Date (8:45-10:00); Sunday Luncheon (12:30-2:00); Afternoon Date (2:00-3:15); Dinner and Evening Dates as on week days.

8. At the close of Period C there shall be unrestricted bidding and pledging of unpledged undergraduates.

9. The Interfraternity Council shall conduct the transmission of invitations for Periods A, B and C, and for Period A shall determine the apportionment and order by lot in a manner to be regulated by a by-law.

10. For Period A, each first year man must accept one invitation from every fraternity offering him one, or refuse all. For Period B, he may accept not more than two invitations from every fraternity he pleases. For Period C he is free to accept whatever invitations he may choose.

First year men must mail their replies to the invitations as follows:

Period A: before 12 m Saturday.

Period B: before 3 p. m. Wednesday.

Period C: before 12 m Saturday.

11. Any first year man breaking a pledge with any fraternity shall thereby render himself ineligible for fraternity membership at Williams College for a period of six months following such break and during this time shall not be entertained at any fraternity house at Williams College.

12. First year men at any time may consult the Chairman of the Interfraternity Council for information on the Rushing Agreement.

The members of the following Fraternities have signed the above Agreement and are bound by it:

and French customs seems imminent. Some of them worked their passages, some travelled first-class, some second, and even the steerage claimed the attention of some of the sons of the Royal Purple, that is when they were well enough to be off decks. Activities after landing in Europe seem to have been diverse. Burger and Schaeffer '22 spent considerable time motoreycling through southern Europe, and even succeeded in climbing Mount Matterhorn, though it is doubtful if they climbed it on high. A telegram received at Williamstown early this week said that they had sold the machine for a thousand dollars as a German war relic. Holmes '23 visited Italy and reports the ability to make love in Italian better than in English. Bennett, Chapman, and Chutman '23 visited England, France, and Switzerland. Among others who travelled to foreign countries, and who have either failed to arrive to date or who have been unable to regain their land-legs enough to talk for publication are S. Phillips '22, S. A. Jones and Sewall '23, and the Buckner Twins '24. Many members of the freshman class look as though they had just arrived from Europe for the first time, but figures regarding these are not available.

Among those of us who shouted "My country, wet or dry" and stayed on this side of the Atlantic and Pacific, are Lyon '22, who tutored Williams prospects in Connecticut, Preston '22 who peddled groceries in Boston, P. Phillips who plugged through the hot months in Buffalo, buried in law-books, and Richardson '22 who did lumberjacking in the wilds of Northern New Jersey, doing his bit to relieve the shortage of tooth-picks which threatened to close many prominent hotels. Through the efforts of Greer, Luedeke, and Wallace '22, Quaintance '23, and Greer '24, 57 varieties of Williams Jazz were introduced into the restful atmosphere of Cape Cod, causing an unprecedented restlessness of pedal extremities. The orchestra has been offered a contract to play for three months next summer at the Cafe D'Enfant, formerly Child's Restaurant, at Broadway and 59th Street.

Noble '21, last year's President of the W. C. A., was director of a Boy's Camp at East Brookfield, Mass., and had for his senior councillors Cole '21, P. R. Blake and J. E. Wilson '22, and Wightman '23. The Lawder Twins, formerly members of the class of 1922, have returned to College after exciting adventures on the Spanish-American Main. Youngman '22 spent a summer of tea-fighting at Edgartown, Mass.

So many of the sons of Williams made a summer business of love that we are unable to publish even a partial list at this time. Those interested in the welfare of the love-sick would do well to watch the Classified Advertisement Column of the RECORD, for the Business Department has promised to provide special rates and a regular section for announcements of lost fraternity pins.

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

The Institute of Politics

It is a rare event for an American college to receive recognition or publicity abroad, but Williams men in Europe this summer had the thrill on numerous occasions of seeing a Williamstown, Mass., dateline blazing forth on the front page of some London or Paris Newspaper. Our quiet little village in the Berkshires had suddenly become a Mecca of international interest, its academic idealism and higher statesmanship contrasting sharply with the furtive, self-seeking politics displayed by the Allied premiers, meeting at the same time across the water.

Appreciations and thanks have already been conveyed in many forms to those in charge of the Institute of Politics, but the deep sense of gratitude felt by every loyal Williams man toward President Garfield for conceiving such a plan, toward Mr.
Baruch for making its execution possible, and toward the many individuals and committees who carried its details to such elaborate perfection, are truly incapable of adequate expression. Even those alumi who had drifted furthest from their early moorings have been forcibly reminded that they are connected with an institution preeminent in leadership, renowned as such from the early days of its greatest single educator until the present times of internationally-known teachers.

And those of us who return once more to learn or to instruct, tread these shady walks and quiet corridors with feelings akin to awe because of the wealth of associations bequeathed us here by the past summer.
Possibly it is the atmosphere that is different in the Commons dining room, where college presidents have rubbed shoulders daily, or in the conference rooms, where great mutual problems have been threshed out, or all about out-of-doors where world-famous figures have wandered and given freely of their carefully formed judgments. Or perhaps it is simply the international reminiscences left to us which seem to make the weighty collegiate problems of yesterday look petty and ridiculous in the clearer light of to-day. Certainly the strong sentiment of those who had the privilege of attending the Institute and even of those less fortunate, who could only catch some of its reflected light, is that Williams can never be the same again.
A new opportunity for grander service has been revealed which cannot help but affect the old routine as well, improving its spirit and elevating its care-worn ideals.

The remarkable success of the Institute of Politics in a single summer is the more astounding when we consider the experimental nature of the undertaking. With the pioneering past, however, the two remaining years assured to the Institute should prove to be of even greater value.
The coming Disarmament Conference, for example, will furnish excellent specific material for future consideration, and it is not too much to hope that the conclusions already reached at the Williams Institute of Politics may bear due weight at this same Conference.

As regard the concrete decisions of the past summer, The Boston Globe has ably summed up the healthful yet sobering conclusions reached by the Institute, as follows:

1. That the modern world carries all its bread-and-butter in the same basket;
that if my neighbor goes hungry, I am so much the more out of pocket until I feed him; and that statesmanship must act accordingly. That is, world politics have become world economics.
2. That unless the peoples abolish war, war will abolish them.
3. That abolishing war depends on raising the mental and moral standards of the average citizen.
4. That we must learn to think less as partisans of our own Nation and more for the sake of mankind as a whole, since it has been abundantly shown that no nation is strong enough either to rule the roost or to go it alone.
5. That the war-breeding evils of secret diplomacy have their origin in the ignorance and indifference of the peoples themselves, who in war are, of course, the first to pay the penalty.

COMMUNICATION

Although communications may be published unsigned if so requested, the name of the writer must in every case be submitted to the editor. The Board assumes no responsibility, however, for the facts as stated nor for the opinions expressed in this department.

To the Editor of THE RECORD:
Sir:

It would be a thoughtless omission indeed should I fail to express to you the sincere thanks due to THE WILLIAMS RECORD for the use made of its offices and office equipment during the session of the Institute of Politics for the work of the Bureau on relations with the press. Not only was it invaluable to have, in Jesup Hall, a headquarters where the duties of the Bureau itself could be carried on uninterruptedly at all hours, but also it was gratifying to receive the many special correspondents who came to Williamstown from the metropolitan dailies in rooms suggesting the accustomed atmosphere of a modern newspaper plant. The RECORD mimeograph and the six typewriters, lent by express permission of your business manager, Mr. Sayen, were given heavy employment and helped much toward timely achievement of the Institute's service.

Thanking you again and most heartily for this contribution, let me close with an expression of hope that you will not modestly receive this letter as personal, but will find a corner in some forthcoming issue of the RECORD where it may stand as public even though inconsiderable witness of my appreciation.

JAMES ERNEST KING,
Director of Relations with the Press.

FALL BASEBALL TO BE STARTED TODAY

Varsity and Underclass Teams to Practice on Improved Cole Field Diamonds

Numerous improvements having been made on the diamonds of Cole Field during the summer months, first practice for the freshmen and sophomore baseball teams will be held today. Full practice for those Varsity men not out for football will also begin at the same time, and the annual freshman-sophomore series will open a week from tomorrow for the best four out of seven games. Captain Hoyt will have charge of the sophomore team and Coach Coombs will take the 1925 men in hand.

Cole Field has been thoroughly mowed and raked and is in the best condition that it has been in for several years. In addition, two backstops have been erected, which will do away with a great deal of the former interruptions of play, necessitated by the retrieving of lost balls. Full baseball practice for the varsity is somewhat of an innovation at Williams and will undoubtedly prove to be a great advantage to the squad next spring.

Rev. W. P. Merrill to Be First Preacher of Year

Morning chapel services next Sunday will be conducted by the Rev. William P. Merrill, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church of New York City. Dr. Merrill is well known in Williams, having spoken here several times.

Dr. Merrill graduated from Rutgers College in 1887, receiving the M.A. Degree from the same institution in 1890. The same year he received the degree of B.D. from Union Theological Seminary and was ordained in the Presbyterian ministry. During the next five years he was pastor of Trinity Church, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, being called to the Sixth Church, Chicago, in 1895, where he was pastor until 1911. He then transferred to New York and has since served as pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church of that city. Dr. Merrill has written Faith Building, Faith and Sight, Footings for Faith, and Christian Internationalism.

Play in Fall Tennis Cup Tourney to Begin Monday

Play in the annual fall tournament for the Rockwood Memorial Tennis Cup will start next Monday, and entrants are asked to complete their matches as soon as possible. A list has been posted on the bulletin board in Hopkins Hall upon which all undergraduates wishing to enter must sign their names before this evening, in order that drawings can be made.

In each case where men from different classes are matched together the member of the lower class will find his opponent and make arrangements for playing, and after the completion of each match scores must be marked up on a list provided for this purpose which will be placed in Hopkins Hall. The cup for the winner is annually awarded in memory of Rockwood '16 who lost his life in the World War.

W. C. A. TO BE HOST

Reception for Freshmen Will be Held in Jesup Tonight

As the annual welcome to the entering class the Freshman reception will be held under the auspices of the Williams Christian Association tomorrow evening at 8.00 o'clock in Jesup Hall. Dr. and Mrs. Garfield, Dean and Mrs. Howes, Professor and Mrs. Maxey, and other members of the faculty will receive the members of the class of 1925 in the reading room.

Following the reception, the freshmen will adjourn to the auditorium where President Garfield will address the class and officially welcome them to Williams. Fargo '22 will speak on college athletics, Zalles '22 on the dramatics and debating, Schaufler '22 on Williams publications, and Lyon '22 on the interests and activities of the W. C. A. Zalles '22 as chairman of the Interfraternity Council, will then explain the rushing agreement and answer any questions regarding it. The first-year men will be instructed in the college songs and cheers.

Light refreshments will be served in the reading room on the main floor immediately after the speeches. All members of 1925 are expected to be present.

Employment Bureau Now Open

Announcement has been made by Professor Milham, Chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Employment, that this bureau will hold its office hours today from 11.00 a. m. to 12.00 noon and from 4.00 to 5.00 p. m. in the Thompson Physical Laboratory. All undergraduates wishing to secure positions for the coming academic year should meet the committee at one of these times.

14 Football Competes Report

Following are the 14 sophomores who have entered the competition for the Assistant Managership of Football: Blackmer, Carleton, Fenner, Herron, Hunter, Keck, Klapproth, Mason, D. O'Brien, L. O'Brien, Poel, McDonald, Redfield, and Selden '24.

Textbook Library Reopens

For the benefit of those men who are holders of scholarships and for others who are in need of financial assistance in completing their courses at Williams, a free text-book library was established last year through the generosity of the class of 1914, the institution being known as the "1914 Loan Library." The Library was a great success during the past year, and, through the addition of new text-books since the close of the second semester, will be in a position to help a larger number of men than before. Further information may be obtained from Mr. Botsford at 15 Jesup Hall, and men desiring to avail themselves of the services of the Library may apply for membership to him.

Lack of Majority Vote Leaves Chapel at 7.45

Inasmuch as the vote registered last May in favor of changing the chapel hour from 7.50 a. m. to noon lacked a majority of the undergraduate body, no change has been made in the time of services this year. Although the final ballot indicated 250 votes in favor of noon chapel as against 194 for the present hour, the joint committee of the Faculty and the Student Council in charge of the proposed change ruled that the "prevailing opinion" of the college, required by the Board of Trustees, did not favor the plan, as no majority had been reached. 101 students, or 17 per cent of the college, failed to vote.

Additional competitors for the position of second assistant subscription manager of The Record may still enter the competition which started yesterday afternoon. The competition will run until mid-years and is open to all members of the class of 1924. All those interested who did not attend the first meeting can meet the Subscription manager in the business office in Jesup Hall at 1.15 p. m. today.

Adviser Resumes Schedule

Resuming its schedule of publication daily except Sunday throughout the college year, the Adviser appeared last Thursday. All managers and others having occasion to use this bulletin must have their material dropped in the boxes placed in Jesup and Hopkins Halls before eleven o'clock on the day of publication. Until after rushing season, it is suggested that fraternities make arrangements with their sophomores to call for the Adviser at 12 noon in Jesup Hall. It is further suggested that the custom, adopted by the majority of houses last year, of reading the contents of the Adviser at the noon meal be continued this year. The subscription price of the bulletin is ten dollars for the entire year, a reduction of 50 per cent. from last year's rate.

Track Competes Meet Tonight

First call for the 1924 competitors for the position of assistant manager of track will be issued this evening when a meeting is to be held at 7.30 in Jesup Hall. Work on repairing the track for the usual fall practice will begin at once.

Frosh 'Handbook' is Ready

Bound in black and gold as last year, the 25th edition of the Williams Handbook was to appear today for distribution. Except for minor changes the present volume is based upon the 1920-1921 edition. Schaufler '22 is the editor-in-chief, Rose '22 managing editor, and Everts '23 business manager of the new Handbook.

Library Exterior Shows Progress After Summer

Work on the new College Library, which has continued throughout the summer, has now progressed to the point where contracts for the plumbing, heating, electric systems, and rough plastering work authorized at the June meeting of the Board of Trustees, are now being placed. This work alone will take several months, and any decision for further inside finishing contracts will depend upon the action of the Trustees at their October meeting.

In any event, now that the roofing and glazing work is nearing completion, the Library will be sufficiently finished so that it will be possible for workmen to proceed during the coming winter. At best the building could not be ready for occupation before the end of next summer and it is highly probable that it will not be at that time.

'Bells' Competition Begins

All Sophomores wishing to enter the competition for the second assistant managership of Cap and Bells should meet at 7.45 p. m. Tuesday evening in the Cap and Bells office on the top floor of Jesup Hall where the details of the competition will be explained.

Dr. Merrill Before W. C. A.

Dr. William P. Merrill of New York City, who will conduct the Sunday morning chapel services, will address the first W. C. A. meeting of the year, to be held Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. "Is College Worth While?" is the subject Dr. Merrill has chosen for his talk, which will be followed by a few minutes of informal discussion on the theme of the evening. The entire college is invited to attend.

Freshman Picture Tomorrow

Zalles '22, chairman of the Interfraternity Council, has announced that the picture of the Freshman Class will be taken at 12.45 p. m. today, on the steps of Grace Hall. All first year men are expected to be present.

Seniors to Elect Officers

Officers for the ensuing year will be elected by the Senior Class at a meeting to be held next Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock in the Jesup Hall Reading Room. All members of 1922 are urged to be present.

ART BASTIEN, The Jeweler, Spring Street

state of carnage. A crowd of 800 people gathered to hear the opening exercises, at which speeches were made by Chief Justice William H. Taft, President Harry A. Garfield, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, and Mayor Andrew Peters of Boston. Chief Justice Taft stated the purpose of the Institute in clear terms. "This Institute of Politics," he declared, "is designed to enable us to come nearer the truth, which, when known, will make the family of nations free from the evil and disaster of misunderstanding." Dr. Garfield extended an official welcome to the lecturers and delegates.

No time was lost in getting to the real business of the conference. Viscount Bryce delivered the first public address on July 30, on "International Relations." Throughout the conference Lord Bryce proved the idol of the public, and his lectures never failed to draw capacity crowds. In his first address he traced the development of international relations, emphasizing the fact that they are almost always "what the leaders of the people make them." Lord Bryce devoted his second address on August 2 to the Versailles treaty. "The Treaty of Versailles," he stated, "holds the seeds of future wars. The stupid ignorance and the political motives of the framers are responsible for its injustices." International finance was Lord Bryce's third topic. "The less executive governments meddle with business and international finance the better," he said. "Private financiers are not the cause of most wars, although it is true that they have a great influence over negotiations leading to hostilities and over war policy. The influence of money, however, is usually detrimental to a democracy."

In his fourth lecture Viscount Bryce repeated his criticism of the Treaty of Versailles, in answer to an objection on behalf of the Italian government by Senator Tittoni. He declared that Italy had no historical or racial right to southern Tyrol, ceded to her by the treaty. He further outlined the factors leading to wars in modern times, and deplored the absence of great men at the Peace Conference, declaring incidentally that the three greatest men in the world were President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, ex-Premier Venizelos of Greece, and Premier Smuts of South Africa. His fifth address was an appeal for the formation of a world court for the codification of international law. Later, Lord Bryce stated his belief that the morality of states and nations was slowly but surely advancing, and he condemned the want of conscience that continued to hold it back. He made an earnest plea for greater participation in foreign affairs by the average man and woman. Viscount Bryce's next lecture dealt with the important subject of disarmament. "Europe must disarm or be financially ruined," was his warning. "She cannot continue to support such overwhelming armaments as she has in the past." A clear endorsement of the League of Nations, "with whatever amendments may be found necessary," occupied the concluding address of the British statesman.

The presence of Senator Tittoni at the Institute of Politics was an interesting feature, as the president of the Italian Senate was considered more or less in the light of a spokesman of his government. His opening address on August 4 was the Senator's first public utterance in the United States, and partook of the nature of a tribute to the spirit of America during and after the war. He also took the opportunity to challenge Lord Bryce's charge of partiality to Italy shown by the Peace Conference, declaring that his country was merely establishing a logical national boundary. In his next speech Senator Tittoni spoke in favor of the present plan for the League of Nations rather than any other, emphasizing the necessity of speedy disarmament. Next the Senator launched into his main topic—an attack on government ownership and operation as an "economic folly." He traced the economic tendencies in Italy for the past 50 years, and declared that "economic issues are the chief cause of international rivalries, jealousies, and finally bitter conflicts." The Communist grip on Italy, Senator Tittoni stated, was now shattered, as proved by the inability of the revolting peasantry to seize the government no matter how many factories they captured. One of the Senator's most powerful addresses then attacked trade warfare. "If the world does not cut out discriminating prices and export duties, it will revert economically to the ark ages. There must come a fair distribution of raw materials." "Absolute freedom in immigration is necessary in order to restore labor conditions to normalcy," declared Senator Tittoni in his concluding lecture.

Baron Korff attracted instant popular favor by his engaging personality and his frank and personal treatment of all his subjects. He explained the failure of Russia in the war in his first address, stating that autocracy and reaction were the great reasons, and predicting that Russia would repay every loan she had made. He then attacked secret diplomacy, declaring it to be at the root of all Europe's blunders and the underlying cause of the Great War. His third address took up the Russo-Japanese War. He questioned the wisdom of Theodore Roosevelt in forcing peace on the belligerents, for he believed that Japan would have learned a lesson from her impending economic collapse which she has not yet learned. The Baron then discussed the Balkan situation, showing how the Balkan confusion helped Germany, how nervousness both in Germany and Russia over the fate of Constantinople hastened the outbreak of the war, and how the failure of the Allies to eject Turkey from Europe would work harm in the future. Baron Korff's concluding address dealt with the period of intrigue and suspicion in the Russo-German relations under Bismarck, and the prediction was made that Germany would soon sweep the Russian markets with her cheap goods and regain economic possession.

Count and Countess Teleki were unable to reach Williamstown until the second week of the Institute, owing to an accident in passage. The ex-premier of Hungary opened his lectures by expressing the thanks of his country for the spirit of helpfulness shown by the United States since the war. Count Teleki joined Lord Bryce in opposing the claims of Senator Tittoni in the question of the cession to Italy of southern Tyrol. The Count then discussed the history of Hungary. "The racial confusion of Hungary is the result of recolonization with non-Magyar aliens after the Turkish invasion of 1526." In his third lecture he described the present plight of Hungary, deprived of its wheat fields and shut off economically from outside help. The only natural resource of value left to Hungary, he declared, is its oil fields. "Hungary, nevertheless, is not begging for foreign aid. The difficulties ahead are great, but Hungary will face them herself."

Professor Achille Viallate impressed his hearers by his brilliance in the economic field and the refreshing originality of his addresses. In summarizing the economic changes of the 19th century in his opening lecture, he emphasized the impossibility of any nation's isolating itself in this age. In his second address, Professor Viallate declared, "As long as Europe needs American goods and raw materials, the United States is safe from trade reprisals. The United States has always pursued a very independent commercial policy." Professor Viallate next spoke in defense of the oft-condemned "dollar diplomacy." "Economic and political interests are often intertwined," he said, "and where money is not used fraudulently its influence may very often be salutary." In his fourth address the French economist contrasted the "open door" policy of the United States in China, and the Monroe Doctrine, criticizing the latter as being in reality a "closed door" policy. A reduction in every nation's standard of living was predicted in the final address by the Professor. "The nations will find it necessary to reduce their living standards in order to make up for the excess of goods used up in the war," he stated.

The Honorable Stephen Panaretto, who was instrumental in keeping Bulgaria at peace with the United States, is an expert on schools and education in his country. He opened his series of addresses by saying that the success of the Turks in the Balkans was due to the mutual jealousies and lack of cooperation of the other states. Later he traced the development of Bulgarian religion and literature, and declared that only education will end the warfare between the Turks and the Christians. M. Panaretto praised the moral influence of American schools in the Balkans, and described the hardships of education in the Near East. One of his most important statements was that "so firmly is constitutional government planted in the Balkans now that no personal or arbitrary regime can overthrow it." The speaker urged that Turkey should reform its laws and seek honest help rather than try to expand again, and he wound up his addresses by blaming the Balkan eruptions on the stupidity and dishonesty of European statesmen.

At the final dinner held in the gymnasium on August 26, Mr. Elihu Root was the principal speaker. "The democracies of the world must learn their business before they can control international affairs," he declared, adding that the Williams Institute of Politics had gone a long way in pointing out to the world the right way of learning the business of government.

Old Infirmary Now a Dorm

To accommodate the overflow of an unusually large entering class the Old Infirmary building has been made into a college dormitory, called the Williams Hall Annex. Extensive alterations in the interior of the old building, which has been idle since the Thompson Infirmary was built in 1910, have made it roomy and comfortable. Nineteen freshmen have been assigned to the Annex.

COOMBS REAPPOINTED TO COACH 1922 TEAM

Mentor of Last Year's Nine Has Shown Great Interest in Athletics Here

John W. Coombs, former big-league pitcher and coach for the 1921 season, has accepted the position as baseball coach for next spring. The sincere interest which Coach Coombs manifested in the baseball team and in Williams athletics in general was strongly indicated during his work of last year.

As a portion of Coombs' athletic career, during the ten years, 1905 to 1915, he was one of the star pitchers for the Philadelphia Athletics, and during his last years with that team he was in large part responsible for the winning of the World's Series for the three consecutive years, 1909, 1910, and 1911. Subsequently he has played with the Brooklyn Nationals and coached the pitching staff of the Detroit Americans.

Coombs' experience in connection with college teams includes his career as a varsity pitcher of unusual ability at Colby University, from which he graduated. For three springs he served as coach for another college nine, the Rice Institute, Houston, Texas. His next engagement was with the Williams nine last year, and the progress which the team made under his training makes the prospects for the 1922 season most favorable.

FROSH AND SOPHS MIX WAR AND GORE FREELY

Lower Classes Disturb Slumber of Peaceful Williamstown
By Noisy Brawls

Mexican War veterans, professors, and unnaturalized citizens in the vicinity of Williamstown were afforded an unusual glimpse of the horror and carnage of real strife last Wednesday evening when the first outburst of the class of 1925 made known its arrival to the world in general and to the class of 1924 in particular. Mass movements, executed from the Quadrangle and Spring Street, carried the bulk of the new arrivals to the vicinity of Grace Hall where encounters with the sophomores varying from mob rushes to individual wrestling matches, of which 6 out of 11 went to 1924, welcomed the freshmen to the campus.

Starting with a band of 50 in front of "Cabe's," and gathering momentum and recruits until they numbered more than 150, the first-year men marched several blocks up and down Main Street shouting their contempt and disdain for 1924. The latter, believing that action could be postponed no longer, faced the enemy with 60 members on the Grace Hall campus and scattered them for a short time through superior co-ordination and morale. Coming into their own, the freshmen collected and held their ground until a truce of half an hour was entered into to determine by what methods the two classes might become acquainted.

The general conflict was abandoned and it was decided to put the matter up to a series of ten fights and in these the participants chosen varied from 200-pound Frost of 1925 to Flyweight Keck of the Sophomores. With this phase of the occurrence concluded to the satisfaction of all, the underclassmen and the audience which had collected went on about more peaceful service.

W. C. A. CABINET AT ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Plans of Association for Coming Year Emphasize Additional Discussion Groups

Plans for the coming year were discussed at the annual "setting-up" conference of the cabinet of the Williams Christian Association held at Wilmington, Vt., from Sunday, Sept. 11 until Wednesday, Sept. 14. The work for the entire year was discussed and definite decisions were arrived at which will enable the Association to carry forward and improve the activities started last year.

Special attention will be placed on the discussion groups this year, and in addition to the groups for the upper classes there will be numerous ones for the freshmen. The religious work in the neighboring churches will be carried on with increased vigor while important additions such as a Life Work Institute will be established. The latter will attempt to lay before the College and especially the Seniors the opportunities which the various professions and occupations offer.

Robert Russell and S. M. Shoemaker, members of the class of 1916 at Princeton, attended the conference and acted as leaders in the discussions. Both men are ordained ministers and have been engaged in Y. M. C. A. and college religious work since graduation. The undergraduates who were present were Adams, Learned, President Lyon, P. Phillips, Preston Rounds, Snyen, and Terry '22 and Angevine, Bennett, Bowen and Partington '23. C. C. Noble '21, last year's president, attended the first part of the conference.

Fifteen Williams men attended the Silver Bay conference last July, making one of the largest delegations which ever represented the College. The following men were present: Adams, Count, Greer, Learned, Lyon, Preston, Richardson and Terry '22; Fitcher and McAneny '23; and Bennett, Chase, Craig, Selden and Shores '24.

Nine Veterans Report at Cross Country Meeting

Cross-country candidates under Capt. Adams reported to Coach Seeley yesterday afternoon for the first practice of the season. No meets have been arranged for up to the present time. Among those on last year's squad who have reported this year are Capt. Adams, Pascoe, Fitcher, C. F. Jones, Learned, Livingston, Seaman, Stowers, Swan, and Wolfe.

1925 Choir Trials Monday

Choir trials for new men will be held next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Choir Room under the direction of Mr. Sumner Salter. Chapman '22 is temporary leader.

Final Sale of Frosh Caps

Freshman caps will be on sale this afternoon at 1:30 for the last time in the managers' office in Jesup Hall. The caps, which must be worn after Sunday morning chapel, are the customary black skull caps with a green button, and sell for $1.30.

DR. MERRILL DEFENDS CASE OF HIGHER ARTS

Preacher Deplores Materialistic Judgment of Cultural Study
Before W. C. A.

WHAT COLLEGE CAN DO

Speaker Cites Nine Points That Are Within the Reach of All Students of Classics

"Largely due to the vast amount of money spent for our colleges, people are hesitant in answering the questions 'Is College Worth While?' and 'Does College contribute enough to the social good to justify the enormous expenditure made for it?' These are the questions which Dr. William P. Merrill treated last Sunday evening in the first W. C. A. meeting of the year in the Jesup Hall Auditorium.

"I will draw upon my own personal experience and my observation of others," began Dr. Merrill, "for my reasons and examples on both sides of the question. By the term 'college' I refer to the college of liberal and not professional arts. People say that college does not add materially meaning, in most cases, financially, to a man's success. On account of the four years spent in this higher education many say that college is a handicap rather than a help. But statistics prove that this is untrue. From among the successful men whose names are listed in 'Who's Who' there is a greater percentage, excluding professional men, who have gone through college than those who have never had the benefits to be derived from the higher education. Although the college man loses the business opportunities offered in his four years of study, after twenty years, if not sooner, he will be ahead of the non-college man and constantly going ahead, while the other will be reaching the maximum of his efficiency."

"Life is something more than financial success," continued Dr. Merrill. "By a fuller education and broader knowledge life is made richer and grows increasingly rich. The saddest men of all are those who have made fine successes in business, but when they have retired have, figuratively speaking, nowhere to go. Stranded from business, they lack the enjoyments to be derived from the greater education obtainable only in college. Money and success mean little to certain kinds of men. To other kinds it is everything. College can develop the high character which, coupled with money and success, means everything."

"There is no obvious answer to this question 'Is College worth while?'" Dr. Merrill said. "It is if you make it so."

SEVEN VETERANS OUT FOR AUTUMN PRACTICE

Squad of 25 Reports to Coach Coombs for Fall Baseball Drill

Twenty-five upperclassmen reported to Coach Coombs and Captain Hoyt at Cole Field last Friday afternoon with the start of fall baseball practice for varsity candidates. Seven men from last year's squad, Smith and Rounds '22, Bixby, Clnrk, Hoyt, and Richmond '23, and Buck '24, were among the number, and in addition there were several sophomores who had played on the 1924 freshman nine.

Two diamonds have been carefully constructed during the summer months and work on a third is well under way. Wire back-stops have been erected, the grass has been leveled and mowed, and the field is in excellent shape. Two of these diamonds will be used by the freshmen and sophomores, while the third is to be reserved for the varsity squad.

Light fielding and batting practice took up the first part of Friday afternoon, and Coach Coombs endeavored to show the new recruits some of the fundamentals of hitting, and especially of bunting. Following this a short game between two pick-up teams was played, Bixby's home run furnishing the one spectacular play of the afternoon. Due to the slight drizzle of Saturday, practice for the squad was not held on that day, but daily workouts are to be held beginning with today.

Initiation Fee Limit $100

In accordance with a resolution drawn up by the Interfraternity Council last June THE RECORD has been asked to publish for the benefit of all freshmen, the statement that no initiation fee of any fraternity on the campus exceeds the sum of one hundred dollars. This request was made due to the fact that many false rumors circulate around incoming classes concerning fabulous amounts paid at initiations.

'Cow' Calls Competitors

Competitors for the editorial staff of the Purple Cow, including members of the Freshman Class, are requested to meet in Jesup Hall tomorrow at 7.30 p. m. The first meeting of the Board will be held in Jesup Hall next Friday at 7.30 p. m., at which time material for the "Freshman Number," scheduled to appear about the middle of October, will be considered.

Glee Club Trials Wednesday

Trials for the College Glee Club will be held Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock in the Jesup Hall Reading Room under the direction of Mrs. Charles F. Seeley and leader Chapman '22. Members of the class of 1922 who were on the club last year need not be present. All members of the three upper classes are eligible to compete for membership on the club.

Correction

Through a misunderstanding in connection with the football schedule, THE RECORD stated in its last issue that Wesleyan will hold the position indicating the most important struggle of the schedule, i. e., the concluding date. The Amherst game, which will take place in Williamstown on November 12, one week before the Wesleyan game, will be as usual the Purple's biggest contest. The date was advanced a week merely to accommodate weather conditions and details of schedules, and does not indicate any change of policy.

Call for 1925 Heelers

Sept. 19—Members of the Freshman Class who wish to enter the first competition for the Editorial Board of THE RECORD will meet the Assignment Editor at 7.30 p. m. tomorrow in the Press Room, Jesup Hall. This is the first of five competitions and the initial College activity in which members of the Class of 1925 are allowed to participate. Two cuts will be made, the first on November 1 and the second on November 22. Two men will be elected to the RECORD board on December 15. There will be no work during rushing season. Election depends strictly on the ability of the competitors. The personal equation is ignored as far as possible in the marking, which is computed on the basis of 60% for facts and 40% for style on assigned articles, with extra credits for College and alumni notes and all unassigned articles.

COMMONS CLUB PLANS FULL REORGANIZATION

Important Meeting Tonight Will Discuss Methods of Rousing Alumni Interest

Plans for a complete reorganization of all non-fraternity men have been formulated during the past week by a committee composed of representatives of all the eating-houses about the campus. An important meeting to complete the reorganization has been called for this evening at 7.30 p. m. in the Commons Room, Currier Hall.

All non-fraternity men are strongly urged to attend this meeting when the election of new officers will also take place necessitated by the resignation of the former officers who have retired in order to facilitate the complete reorganization of the Club.

This action is taken as a result of the need, strongly felt by the alumni, of a more powerful Commons Club as a medium of linking the neutral graduates to Williams. Of late the Club has had a membership of about twenty and it is hoped that with an increase in numbers will come the necessary interest and enthusiasm which should be factors in again giving the Commons Club the position which it formerly held. A committee of alumni has been appointed to investigate the matter and aid in the reorganization, which it is expected, will be of the greatest importance to the neutral graduates.

To Elect Senior Officers

Sept. 19—Election of class officers and representatives to the Student Council for the ensuing year will constitute the principal business to be considered at the initial meeting of the Senior Class which will be held at 7.30 p. m. tonight in Jesup Hall.

1925 Gridiron Men Report

Over 30 candidates reported to Coach Coombs at a meeting of Freshman football men held last Friday evening in the Thompson Chemical Laboratory. First practice will be held tomorrow afternoon on Weston Field under the direction of Coach Coombs who in addition to acting as baseball mentor is assisting the regular football coaching staff this fall.

Choir Trials Held Tonight

Sept. 19—All men irrespective of classes who wish to try out for positions in the chapel choir are requested to meet Mr. Salter in the choir room of the College Chapel this evening at 7.30 p. m.

Business Candidates Called

All sophomores who intend to enter the competition for the second assistant business management of Cap and Bells are to meet the present business manager in his office on the top floor of Jesup Hall this evening at 7.45 p. m., when the details of the competition will be explained. The two competitors receiving the highest recommendations will succeed to the positions of business manager and press manager in order of standing.

SEEK TO BAR 'W' MEN FROM MANAGERSHIPS

Varsity Club Resolution Would Exclude Letter Men From Competitions

Resolutions barring all men who have previously won a straight 'W' in a major sport from entering a sophomore managerial competition were passed by the Varsity Club at its first meeting of the year last Friday evening. The matter will be taken up by the Athletic Council and, if approved, will be presented to the student body for ratification at a regular college meeting.

Owing to the fact that a quorum of the club was not present when the meeting was called to order, the election of officers for the ensuing year did not take place. Fargo '22 was named chairman of the meeting. A committee consisting of Adams, Phillips and Richardson '22 was appointed to draft the resolution concerning managerial competitions, which was thereafter unanimously passed by the club after careful consideration. The text of the resolution is as follows: "That it be the unanimous sentiment of the Varsity Club of Williams College that measures be taken by the Athletic Council to prohibit letter men, i. e., men having been awarded the straight 'W', from participation in any managerial competition which involves a vote on the part of the student body."

The only other matter brought before the meeting was presented in a brief speech by Coach Coombs upon the subject of the proper wearing of Varsity insignia. The coach declared that too little respect was shown for letters by the very men in possession of them. Coombs urged all letter men not to be afraid of displaying their 'W's, instead of wearing sweaters with the insignia on the inside. It was decided to hold another meeting of the club in the near future, although no exact date was determined upon.

'Gargoyle' Announcement

In accordance with a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the Gargoyle Society in June, scholastic qualifications for election revert this year to the regular pre-war status of eligibility, as indicated by the following excerpt from the Constitution:

"For purposes of election to this society, a man shall be considered a Junior who, at the time he is a candidate for election, shall have not more than 55 semester hours of class room work to pass before graduation, according to the records in the office of the Dean of the College."

Twelve Enter Competition

Twelve members of the class of 1924 have entered the competition for the position of second assistant manager of track, which began last Friday. Those men who reported but are out for football will not be required to do any work this fall. They will, however, report in the spring. Work will begin immediately in repairing the track for the annual Freshman-Sophomore meet and varsity practice. Following are the competitors: Ateson, Ayer, H. Barnes, Bilieke, Coe, Etheridge, Kellogg, Olin, Pattison, Poel, Snyre, and Shaw '24.

PRES. GARFIELD SPEAKS

Advises Whole-Souled Work for College Activities—Talks
By Upperclassmen

Accepting the invitation of the Williams Christian Association, the large majority of the incoming class of 1925 attended the Freshman reception held last Saturday evening in Jesup Hall and were welcomed by President and Mrs. Garfield, Dean and Mrs. Howes, and other members of the faculty, together with members of the W. C. A. Cabinet and two representatives from each fraternity. Short talks explaining the various campus activities by prominent upperclassmen and music by a quartet and orchestra made up the entertainment, after which light refreshments were served.

Early in the evening, a receiving line was formed in the reading room, giving the freshmen an opportunity to meet the members of the faculty present. About nine o'clock the whole assembly adjourned upstairs to the auditorium for the speeches. Wells '22, Holmes and H. Rounds '23 and Craig '24 rendered several pleasing selections of quartet music. Dr. Garfield then spoke briefly on the part that the new men should undertake in the college activities. After telling the stories of several successes made by members of earlier classes, he emphasized the necessity of throwing one's whole soul into every undertaking as little as it may be rather than attempting a great deal without much concentrated effort, saying, "It is he who does his part according to the best powers within him, of whom the faculty, the trustees, and the alumni are proud."

Schauffer '22, the next speaker, explained the service of the several publications of the undergraduates to the college, distinguishing between the Gulldensian and Handbook, the editors of which are honorary, and the RECORD, Graphic and Cow, whose editors are chosen after competitions. In particular, he made a plea to the new men to continue the support of the publications. Fargo '22 took as his subject the athletics of the college. He brought out the necessity in a small college the size of Williams of every man's taking up if possible some branch of the sports.

Zalles '22 described the work of Cap and Bells, the Adelphe Union, the Forum, (Continued on Third Page.)

VARSITY SQUAD TO BEGIN SCRIMMAGES

Heavier Program of Work Starts Today—Training Table to Open Wednesday

Harder work is in store for the varsity football squad this week, for the coaches are determined to have the men in the best possible condition for the opening game of the season, against Hamilton College on October 1. The first regular scrimmage will take place today.

With a view to conditioning the players, the entire football squad took a long hike Sunday afternoon. Yesterday's practice consisted chiefly in a dummy scrimmage, a continuation of last week's form of practice. This afternoon a light scrimmage will be held, and a heavier workout is scheduled for tomorrow. Another lighter scrimmage will feature Thursday's practice, leading up to a practice game between two picked elevens on Saturday afternoon.

Due to severe injury in last Friday's scrimmage McKean '24 is confined to the infirmary. While coming down the field he was tackled by two men coming from opposite directions. In the scuffle McKean's leg was severely wrenched and broken just above the ankle. He will be out of the game for this season.

A training table for the members of the squad will be established at the College Commons on Wednesday. Coach Wendell will probably select about 25 men for the table, but the number may not be so large at the outset.

'Gargoyle' Eligibility

THE RECORD notes with real gratification the announcement of the Gargoyle Society that election to that society will be contingent once more upon full compliance with the scholastic eligibility requirements enforced in the case of athletic teams and other college activities.

The disruption of many courses during the past few years on account of the war with the consequent loss of class status in the Dean's office made it seem unfair to penalize the students who entered the national service by debarring them from all chance of election to Gargoyle, and hence the eligibility clause in the constitution was temporarily suspended.

Now that election has been made from the last class that might possibly be considered a "war class," it is highly desirable that the former high standards should be reinstated. It would seem obvious that no man deserves election on the basis of having done the most for Williams who has made himself ineligible for participation in college activities through deficiency in scholarship. Williams has long prided itself on its high scholastic standards and it is eminently fitting that its Senior honor society should continue to recognize that tradition.

'Pro Alma Mater'

In another column of this issue appears the announcement of a meeting for the complete reorganization of the non-fraternity men in College. Such a reorganization, if it can be effected at the present time, must prove of incalculable value to Williams.

The situation of late has been sufficiently serious in nature to give real concern to those interested in the welfare of the College. Last year the old Commons Club came almost to the point of being classified with the extinct mammals; a mere handful of members still clung to the wreckage of a once powerful organization. On the face of affairs the strength or weakness of the Commons Club seemed to be of relative unimportance to both fraternity and non-fraternity men, but succeeding events have amply demonstrated the fallacy of such a viewpoint.

The absence of a strong organization in the neutral body removed the incentive and guiding force previously actuating its members. In consequence the athletic teams and other activities have been deprived of many candidates which they might reasonably expect from the neutral body. At no time within the last ten years has there been such a small percentage of non-fraternity men active in College affairs. Among other results has been the removal of most incentives for returning to College. Two members of 1921, for example, have not returned this year because they recognized a lack of friendliness and healthy college spirit in Williams so long as there was no strong Commons Club to welcome them back and make college life worth the living. Finally, without such an organization there has been no place to which non-fraternity alumni, who outnumber the alumni of any fraternity chapter 3 and 4 to 1, may return, and their only strong tie to Williams is thus severed.

What is the reason for this situation? Frankly, lack of co-operation. THE RECORD firmly believes. Non-fraternity men have failed to co-operate with each other, and a number of petty cliques has been the unfortunate result. The present move to organize the entire neutral body should prove to be a long step in the right direction, when carried out effectively. It must be borne constantly in mind, however, that friendliness and a general, broad-minded attitude will form the only basis upon which true co-operation can be built.

Fraternity men and non-fraternity men likewise in the past have too frequently failed to co-operate, and the burden of the present weakness of the Commons Club must be laid in part on the fraternities. Whether one belongs to an athletic team or a literary board, to a fraternity chapter or a non-fraternity organization, he is a member of a far greater institution, Williams College, and in that capacity constant intermingling is of the utmost desirability. One of the principal reasons for the comparative lack of college spirit in the large universities of the country is that their very bulkiness makes such complete intermingling among the student body virtually impossible.

Freshmen who do not become immediately allied with any fraternity will find membership in a reorganized Commons Club to be the best means of developing their latent talents and of presenting them before the student body. The building up of such a new and greater Club is bound to result, not only in increased co-operation among non-fraternity men, but in stronger bonds between fraternity and non-fraternity men, and all for the higher interests of Williams. THE RECORD can only wish the highest success to those now striving to reorganize the neutral body.

1925's First Opportunity

A call for the first group of competitors from the Freshman class for positions on the RECORD board is found elsewhere in this issue. As the first opportunity for becoming allied with the larger activities of the College, it merits careful consideration. Men intending to compete in Spring sports are particularly urged to enter the present competition in order that their work may not be hampered later by other activities.

Previous experience along journalistic lines is by no means necessary, and lack of it should not deter any one from entering the field. On the contrary, previous experience on preparatory school papers frequently proves a hindrance to those who do not adapt themselves readily to the new requirements of work on a college publication. Willingness to work conscientiously is the only real requisite.

The advantages of becoming associated with THE RECORD are manifold. In the first place, there is the sense of making a real contribution in the form of service for the College. RECORD men are kept constantly in touch with the pulse of college life, their friendships are early more widespread, and their work is interesting in itself and valuable. All freshmen intending eventually to become interested in some college activity owe it to themselves to attend this first meeting of competitors and learn the details of the work.

College Subscriptions

College subscription cards for THE RECORD will be placed in the post boxes of the students during the coming week. All you have to do to subscribe is to fill out this card with your name and post office box number and send it in to us in the return envelope supplied. Dr. Merrill Defends

Case of Higher Arts

And then the question arises, How can a man make it so?" Dr. Merrill cited nine points which college may mean to any man. "First, college affords a basis of accumulated facts, on which the average man will constantly draw in his subsequent life, and which form a background for future knowledge; second, ability to think and face new situations in an independent manner; third, sound judgment, the ability to estimate factors in situations without bias; fourth, the power of expression. Every man should be able to state his judgment and opinions clearly and accurately. Fifth," and Dr. Merrill particularly stressed this, "college affords the opportunity of forming the habit of self-discipline. The college man is often required to do what he does not want to do. This factor of self-discipline contributes in future life amazingly to a man's success. Sixth, college offers a range for vocational choice. Four years of liberal education gives a wide knowledge of the opportunities open for future occupation. Seventh, college affords the chance for a man to find a set of guiding principles, high moral ideals; eighth, the capacity for self-devotion and service to mankind; and ninth, the capacity to be a leader in the development of an intelligent and sensible religion."

In closing Dr. Merrill mentioned four necessary characteristics for the college man who would make a success. "The man must go into college life hard and make the best of existing conditions; he should have a twenty-year perspective and not a limitation of vision to his college career only; he should maintain self-discipline, blaming himself for his errors; and lastly, faith in life and God." Dr. Merrill closed his speech with the quotation "According to your faith be it unto you."

and the Musical Clubs. He then went thoroughly over the rushing agreement and explained several doubtful points. Lyons '22, the last speaker, told of the place the W. C. A. holds in the life of the students and community. He further outlined the plans of the various departments of the association for the coming year.

Play for Golf Title Begins Thursday

Entries in the golf tournament opened yesterday, and will close Wednesday afternoon, when the drawings will be made. Play will commence the following day. The tournament is open to all members of the College and the faculty, and freshmen and faculty members are particularly urged by Captain Secor to take part. Manager Lucdeke '22 has procured two cups, one of which will be awarded to the winner and the other to the runner-up. All matches are to be eighteen holes, subject to the usual tournament rules, and may be played on any course that the two players desire. Last year the cup emblematic of the College championship was won by Captain Secor '22 with C. F. Jones '23 runner-up.

Track Squad Opens Season's Activities

Track practice for all candidates for the team who are not on the football squad began yesterday afternoon when Captain Phillips '22 called a meeting of all men interested. Regular practice will be held every afternoon from now on in preparation for the annual interclass meet and for the Freshman-Sophomore contest, which are to be held later in the fall.

With the return to College of such veterans as Becket, Brown, Phillips, and Wallace '22, Chapin, Fasse, Stowers, and Webb '23 and Dodge and Miller '24 the prospects for the coming season look exceedingly bright.

Despite threatening weather, a squad of 22 men turned out for the first cross-country practice of the season last Saturday afternoon. Besides Adams '22, captain of the harriers, Wolfe '22 and Fasse '23 have already won their insignia, and Seaman '22, Livingston '23, and Swan '24 are all members of last year's squad. Among others who turned out for practice are Count and Learned '22, Fitch, Stowers, and Webb '23, and Sanford '24.

As yet the cross-country schedule is only tentative, but it is probable that contests will be held with Springfield College, M. A. C., Middlebury and Wesleyan, and that the Williams team will participate in the annual New England Intercollegiate meet. An invitation has been received from Syracuse University for a cross-country meet on October 29, but the management has announced that it will be impossible to send a team.

1924-25 TRACK MEET TO BE HELD OCTOBER 8

Track Squad Holding Daily Workouts Under Direction of Coach Seeley

Fall track practice has been progressing favorably during the past week under the direction of Coach Seeley and Captain Phillips, with the sprinters and hurdlers holding daily workouts and the distance men running with the cross-country squad for distances of from two to four miles. Considerable interest is being shown in preparing for the underclass track meet which is scheduled for Saturday, October 8.

Practically all the members of last year's squad in college except football candidates have been out working on starts and form. Trials for cross-country men will probably be held during the week of October 2. A large squad of freshmen has been reporting and among the number are several with considerable preparatory school experience.

Among those entering in the 1924-1925 meet are Areher, Dodge, Miller, and Snell '24 and Conklin, Cranford, Francis, Keap, and Lagedin '25 in the dashes, and Brayton, Clason, Floyd, Olcott, Sanford, and Swan '24 and Bach, Campbell, Cranford, C. Fisher, and Newton '25 in the distance events. Mason and Wishard '24 and Coleman and Longstreet '25 have been practicing in the hurdles, while Perkins, Wishard, and Weber '24 and Baldwin, Bicknell, Davis, Graves, Longstreet and Peabody '25 are preparing for the field events.

Tennis Competition Starts

Seven sophomores have entered the competition for the second assistant managership of tennis. They are as follows: Gallaudet, Humphreys, Parkhill, Saunders, Shores, Spence and Towne.

INITIAL UNDERCLASS BASEBALL SATURDAY

Varsity Nine Plays North Adams Team Today—New Candidates Report

Several additional candidates, including L. O'Brien '24 of last year's squad, have reported to Coach Coombs during the past week for fall baseball practice on Cole Field, and though rain has prohibited play on two days, the men seem to be rounding into fair shape. About 30 freshmen have also been trying out for berths on the 1925 nine and several have shown up well in the preliminary drills.

Saturday, September 24, is the date set for the first game of the annual freshman-sophomore interclass series, and on the Friday preceding, the varsity squad will meet the North Adams nine at North Adams in the first practice game of the fall season. No work was done by the varsity candidates during the rain on Wednesday, but dummy drill was held for the freshmen in the cage, and at that time some of the elements of proper fielding and team-play were explained. Additional practice for the North Adams game was held on Thursday.

TWO ARRIVALS SWELL COACHING DEPARTMENT

Harvard Stars Aiding Coach Wendell to Prime Eleven for Fall Campaign

Football practice is constantly tightening up as the date for the opening game of the season approaches, October 1, when the Williams team will oppose Hamilton College at Clinton, N. Y. Since Wednesday the coaching staff has been increased by two former Harvard football players, W. J. Boles and "Moe" Taylor, who will assist Head Coach Wendell in getting the team in shape this fall, bringing the total staff up to five men.

Dummy scrimmage, a continuation of the form of last week's practice, was the chief work of Tuesday, and regular scrimmages were begun Wednesday, with a shorter period of the same work on Thursday. On Saturday afternoon a practice game between two picked elevens is scheduled.

Boles, Harvard '15, played half-back under Eddie Mahan, when Yale was beaten by the overwhelming score of 41-0. For several years he has been an assistant coach at Harvard.

Taylor, Harvard '16, was a sub-center on Mahan's famous team, and held down a regular guard berth the next year. He also has been helping out at Cambridge developing the line of the second team. The football training table started on Wednesday with twelve men and it is expected that more will attend in the next few days.

Lyon Appoints Peerade and No-Deal Committees

Lyon '21, president of the Senior Class, has appointed the No-Deal and Freshman Peerade Committees for the present year. The Peerade Committee is composed of Humes '22, chairman, Brundis, Greer, Lewis, H. M. Montgomery, '22, and Britton '23.

One man from each of the 14 fraternities and four men from the neutral body compose the No-Deal Committee as follows: S. Phillips, chairman, Bumsted, Castle, Chapman, Cobb, S. Coleman, Gardiner, Garfield, Hahlo, Huckel, Johnson, Learned, A. Mellon, Mendes, J. Montgomery, W. Olmsted, Seamen, and Youngman '22. Besides these eighteen men, the Junior members of the Student Council are also ex-officio members of the No-Deal Committee.

Organize Freshman Orchestra

Musicians of some considerable experience in preparatory school orchestras have been enrolled in the Freshman orchestra which met for the first time last Sunday afternoon in Jesup Hall. The following men have been chosen as the regular members: Soby, leader, saxophone; Ehlers, piano; Fisher, saxophone; Fay, traps; Marshall, violin; Diekey, banjo; and Schoentgen, trombone. This orchestra will furnish music for the Freshman get-togethers.

In the W. C. A.'s policy of expansion, all students are urged to offer their services on any of the committees in which they are interested and in which they have any talent. REORGANIZATION OF E. I. N. A. UNDER WAY

New Constitution Will Bring Improved News Service to 22 College Papers

Plans for a complete change in both constitution and organization of the Eastern Intercollegiate Newspaper Association, of which 22 college papers including THE RECORD are members, are now under way. It is expected that the new constitution, drawn up by E. J. J. Smith, president of the organization and managing editor of the Cornell Daily Sun, will be ratified by the various papers within a few days, and that the proposed reorganization will be complete. If this is the case, the paper-members of the Association will possess a far better medium for the exchange of interesting news than has heretofore been devised, since the new system provides measures which should increase the satisfaction of all subscribers.

According to the new constitution, annual meetings are to be held in which the exchange of ideas and experiences is expected to prove exceedingly beneficial to all officials and delegates who attend. The new Association will have more solidarity than before, and will undertake to carry out many of the present progressive steps in modern college journalism.

41 MEN REPORT FOR FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Regular Practice Started Under Direction of Former Varsity Line-man

Forty-one candidates from the Class of 1925 reported to Coach Fulle '21 at the first football practice which was held on Weston Field last Wednesday afternoon. Although it is too early to make any definite statement as to the quality of the material, all indications point to a successful season.

Practice will be held every afternoon, and it is hoped that by the end of next week the squad will be in good condition. The next week will be spent in rudimentary work before any scrimmages take place.

Coach Fulle, who is taking charge of the 1925 squad under the supervision of Head Coach Wendell, played in the line of the varsity team for two years, and should prove a capable mentor for the freshmen.

Following is the list of men who have reported to date: Adams, Beckwith, Bourae, Brown, Brown II. C., Brownell, Campbell, Chandler, Clarke, Davis, Diekey, Driscoll, Dunham, Evans, Farnsworth, Fay, Fisher, Frost, Gladding, Graves, Gummy, Holt, Hyatt, Ide, Jones, Leete, Lindsay, Longstreet, McLean, MacMaster, Mitchell, Makepiece, Newbegin, Page, Pearson, Post, Reed, Sterling, Walton, Wells, Wycoff.

Contributions Due Today

All contributions for the Freshman Number of the Purple Cow should be in the hands of the editors by 7.30 o'clock on Friday evening, at which time the board will meet in Jesup Hall to consider the material. The issue is due to appear about the middle of October.

Important Business

The new Student Council will have several important problems to consider at its first meeting. The question of barring men who have won straight 'W's in some major sport from entering sophomore managership competitions has been passed on to the Student Council by the Athletic Council which ruled at its meeting this week that the question lies outside its own province. A favorable decision seems assured in view of the overwhelming vote recorded by the Varsity Club and the general approval expressed about the campus.

A more difficult problem will be to arrive at some satisfactory solution of the present class election difficulties. Three elections have thus far been held, which, through the carelessness of class officers, have completely disregarded the regulations laid down by the No-Deal Committee last spring. These regulations specified that a nominating committee system should be used at all class elections prior to a college meeting to be called before the first football contest this fall for the purpose of deciding as to the advisability of continuing the system.

It thus becomes the duty of the President of the Student Council, promptly following his election, to call a College meeting, but unfortunately the nominating committee system under consideration has not as yet been given a fair trial. Further delay seems inadvisable, however, the present method being generally recognized as inefficient at best, with but few negative virtues to recommend it. A change is urgently needed, and the leadership falls upon the Student Council, working in cooperation with the newly appointed No-Deal Committee. To facilitate interchange of suggestions THE RECORD gladly offers the use of its columns to any who may have comments or plans to offer.

An Auspicious Start

Happy auguries of the successful football season so soon to start may already be seen in the hearty support given the squad by the steadily growing turnout of undergraduates every bright afternoon on Weston Field. In the face of such interest the coaches and players dare not do otherwise than play the game to the best of their ability, and that spirit means but one thing—a season to be proud of. For those who can only lend support from the sidelines, the problem still remains of translating this silent encouragement into organized and unified singing and cheering. This final test will come during the next few weeks.

All About Us

Sixty odd men are out for football, an equal number more engaged in fall baseball, cross country, or other athletics, but what of the remaining four hundred during the glorious fall weather? It is to those that we address a special appeal.

Have you never been atop the Dome just as a gorgeous sunset over the Taconic range sets in marked contrast the deeper purple of the hills; have you never crawled down the historic Williams caves with a creepy sensation of brother snakes or muskrats about you far below the surface; have you never listened to Nature's silvery voice in the splashing and gurgling eddies of Flora's Glen; have you never fought your way like some half-savage Indian up through the tangled undergrowth and wild scenery of the Bellows-pipe; or have you never felt that solemn, lonesome thrill that can only come on Greylock's summit just as the newly risen sun reveals five states to the gaze and silently but eloquently speaks of the insignificance of man, truly revealed at that early hour. If not, why not? From our hearts we sincerely pity those who proudly boast that in four years they have never climbed Greylock, or gotten beyond the limits of Williamstown other than by car. Why, we wonder, did you come to Williams? Why not Columbia, or Harvard, or some other great institution in a great city?

These "purple mountain majesties" are Williams' inheritance. They have given our college a distinctive atmosphere down through its history. Perhaps it is they who most clearly distinguish Williams from its offspring in the valley of the Connecticut. Certainly they afford us a splendid opportunity to form unforgettable associations, and this is the time of year to look about us, and freely yield to those half-repressed inclinations toward an outdoor life.

COMMUNICATION

Although communications may be published unsigned if so requested, the name of the writer must in every case be submitted to the editor. The Board assumes no responsibility, however, for the facts as stated nor for the opinions expressed in this department.

COOPERATION NECESSARY

To the editor of THE RECORD:

Notwithstanding previous explanations, there seems still to be a great deal of misunderstanding between the coaches and members of athletic teams on the one hand, and the management and Athletic Council on the other, due largely to lack of knowledge of the financial status of athletics in Williams College. Athletics are almost entirely supported by a student tax, owing to the very small gate receipts obtained at games, and the Athletic Council rightly does not care to increase this burden. In view of this situation, a very decided effort must be made on the part of everyone connected with the various teams, in order to keep within the budget provided.

Facing on the one hand the financial censure of the Athletic Council, and on the other hand the hostility of the players, coaches and trainers, the managers are placed in a very disagreeable position. They desire that the money provided should be used to the best advantage of athletics at Williams, but they do not feel that this includes Pullmans and taxis at all times, or the entertaining of numerous alumni while on trips at the expense of the association involved. Members of athletic teams to whom such requests are denied, are convinced that they have the "worst manager on record" and he who has "reamed" an association for an extra pair of shoes or other equipment feels a sense of triumph. It is mostly as a result of this kind of cooperation between the business and athletic sides of the organization that more than one sport is at the present time insolvent, the penalty for which is failure to complete the schedule, the denial of "W's" to members of the team, and the financial responsibility of the manager to make up the deficit.

We face another year when sports at Williams may either be placed on a business-like basis, or may again find themselves in bankruptcy. We therefore ask for the utmost cooperation between members, coaches, trainers, and managers in stopping the small leaks, for it is these with which we are primarily concerned. It is essential that the teams have the best of care and equipment; it is also essential that unnecessary expenditures do not mount up as they have in past years. To accomplish this, everyone involved must understand the situation and cooperate.

'GRAPHIC' CRITICIZED

To the editor of THE RECORD:

Sir,
"Proper names can be the most improper things in the world." This is the topic sentence of an article called "Improper Names," which appeared in the June issue of the Graphic. I won't go into details concerning this slanderous and malicious article; suffice to say it was harsh, impolite, and crude. The writer evidently did not realize that there was such a thing as "The Improper Use of Proper Names" and "the improper use of private trade-marks." To slander eight or ten towns because they bear ancient names may or may not be sound judgment, but to bring a private concern into an article of this type is certainly not sound judgment. Evidently the Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager were not on speaking terms, for no sooner had the above mentioned concern contracted for a quarter page advertisement in the Graphic when this rude article appeared, slandering the company which was doing its share to help the publication along.

Such a sentence as this is hardly appropriate: "I claim that it is vile for Troy, New York to bear its present name. It should hang its head and wilt its world-famed collar in burning, anguished shame." We may now change some of the pronouns and apply this little phrase to thoughtless editors.

The question arises, will the editors still deem it wise to send "heelers" into this "besmudged and be-sooted city" to secure advertisements, and when refused aid will they call Troy a "tight-wad" city?

ENTERTAIN 1925 AT FIRST GET-TOGETHER

'Dark Duo' and Recently Formed Freshman Orchestra Amuses First Year Men

Featured by a comedy sketch and by the playing of the Freshman Orchestra, the first get-together of the class of 1925 was held last Wednesday evening under the auspices of the W. C. A. in Jesup Hall. It was announced at the close of the evening that the second affair of the kind will be held next Wednesday at 7.30 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Auditorium.

Preston '22 opened the festivities of the evening with a speech on committee work in the W. C. A. The address was followed by practice in college cheers led by Secor '22, head cheer leader.

Kellogg '22 and H. M. Rounds '22 entertained an enthusiastic audience with a skit entitled "The Dark Duo," which included some incidental singing, with Lucdeke '22 at the piano. During the evening, selections were rendered by the Freshman Orchestra, which did excellently, especially in view of the fact that complete organization has been effected in less than a week.

At the close of the evening, refreshments were served by members of the W. C. A. Entertainment Committee.

BUDGET UNCHANGED

Athletic Tax Will Remain 20 Percent—Maximum $35

E. H. Botsford '22, Graduate Treasurer, has announced that the budget of athletic expenditures prepared for the coming year based upon room charges of undergraduates, will be the same as that of the past few years, necessitating a tax of $20.00 on each $100.00 of room charge.

In order to furnish a safeguard, however, to those members of the Freshman Class who have been obliged to take more expensive rooms, the Athletic Council has voted that no individual tax shall exceed $35.00. These tax bills will soon be mailed to the undergraduate body, and prompt voluntary payment is especially requested this year since the Football and Track Associations are already in need of financing.

The following table will show the tax for each room in the College: $60 room, $12 tax; $75, $15; $80, $16; $85, $17; $95, $19; $100, $20; $115, $23; $120, $24; $125, $25; $135, $27; $140, $28; $150, $30; $155, $31; $165, $33; $170, $34; $175, $35; $180, $35; $185, $35; $190, $35; $200, $35; $205, $35; $210, $215, $35; $225, $35.

Registration Still Incomplete

Registration of the entire college body for the coming year has been practically completed, but neither the exact number of the freshman class nor of the undergraduate body has as yet been computed, since several men returned as late as last Tuesday. Following are the men who registered later than Thursday, September 15: Camp, Doherty, Ewing '22; Ishida, Jones, Sellwood, Sewall, Stephenson, Vilas '23; J. Buckner, L. Buckner, Starr '24; and Smith and Vorys '25.

Press Club Elects Powell

Robert W. Powell '24 of Springfield was elected to the Press Club at the board's first meeting of the year, held last Monday evening in the RECORD office. At the same time plans for continuing relations with the leading metropolitan journals were discussed.

Council Re-elects Officers

Dr. F. W. Olds '76 was re-elected President, Dr. Vanderpoel Adriance '90, Vice-President, Assistant Professor Allen, Secretary, and E. H. Botsford '82, Graduate Treasurer, at a meeting of the Athletic Council held in Jesup Hall last Wednesday afternoon. Grant Field, the athletic stadium of Georgia Tech University, will be used for the Dartmouth-University of Georgia football contest scheduled for November 26. The game was originally to be played on the Ponce de Leon Park, the Atlanta baseball field. Georgia has not played in Atlanta since 1915, when it last met Georgia Tech.

jects is assured each member under the new system of inter-paper exchange service, and the material is to be sent in four different manners: by wire, mail, pictures, or wireless. This service will be conducted on the general plan of the International News Service except that the scale will naturally be much smaller. One member of the board of each paper is to be the service man, and it is to be his duty to see that all events of interest to other papers are sent to them. It is hoped that thorough cooperation between these various service men will render the prompt and efficient exchange that is promised in the reorganization.

Subject to government approval, a wireless system will be organized which will greatly facilitate the rapid transportation of late news and which will revolutionize the exchange system of today. The main advantage of the wireless system is the cheapness with which the exchange is effected and the greater speed of transmission of the news.

College papers intending to enter the reorganized Eastern Intercollegiate Newspaper Association are The Record, the Cornell Daily Sun, the Yale News, the Daily Princetonian, the Wesleyan Argus, the Pennsylvania, the Trinity Tripod, the Syracuse Daily Orange, the Rochester Campus, the Richmond Collegian, the Beacon, the Middlebury Campus, the Massachusetts Tech. At the same time Donald Chre O'Brien of Huntington, L. I., was elected to represent the Class on the Student Council.

Heywood prepared for Williams at Worcester Academy where he was captain of the swimming team and a member of the football and tennis teams. He served three years in France after leaving school and was awarded the Croix de Guerre. During his Freshman year at College he was treasurer of his Class. He is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Selden received his secondary education at Hotchkiss. He was elected to THE RECORD during his freshman year and this year has been appointed to the Publicity and Religious Work Committees of the W. C. A. He is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

O'Brien attended Poly Prep before entering College. During his Freshman year he was secretary of his Class and played on his class football team. This year he is serving as treasurer of the W. C. A. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Because of the lack of a quorum, the meeting for the election of a class secretary and a class treasurer, which was scheduled for last Thursday evening, was postponed.

SOPHOMORES LEADING IN BASEBALL SERIES

Have Three Victories to Two for Freshmen—Score of Fifth Game is 12-1

GOOD PITCHING DISPLAYED

O'Brien, Cook, and Sabin Show Up Well on Mound—1924 Has Heavy Hitters

Thursday's 12-1 victory gave the sophomores a one-game lead in the underclass baseball series, which has been going on throughout the week. After their initial defeat a week ago Saturday, the sophomores evened up the series with an 8-7 victory on Monday, led the freshmen by a 6-2 score on Tuesday, were defeated on Wednesday 7-5, and took the odd game on Thursday by the one-sided score of 12 to 1.

Excellent pitching by O'Brien, coupled with opportune hits by his teammates enabled the upperclassmen to win the second game of the series on Monday. The score saw-sawed back and forth up to the eighth inning, when it stood at 7-7. In the ninth inning Newhard drew a base on balls, and came home with the winning run on O'Brien's double.

HOLD DAILY PRACTICE FOR UNDERCLASS MEET

Varsity and Cross Country Teams Also Drilling—Freshmen Seem Promising

Daily practice for the varsity and class track squads is now being held on Weston Field, and the underclass teams are rapidly rounding into shape for the annual freshman-sophomore meet, which will take place October 10 and 11. Miller '24 and Coleman '25 have been appointed captains of their respective class teams by Phillips '22, varsity captain.

Promising material has been found among the freshman candidates and it is expected that close competition will result in the underclass meet. In the dashes Dodge, Miller and Snell '24 and Conklin, Cranford, Francis, Keep, and Lugsdin '25 will run, and Clasco and Swan '24, and Bach, Campbell, and Newton '25 will run the distance events. Mason and Wishard '24, and Coleman and Longstreet '25 will enter the hurdles.

Cross country candidates, under the leadership of Captain Adams '22 have been going over the five mile course daily, and the exceptionally large squad has been reporting regularly. Trials are to be held on October 8, and the cut is to be made soon after that time. Trials for the varsity track squad will also be held then.

Final arrangements have been completed on the 1921 cross country schedule, and it has been sent to the Athletic Council for ratification.

SUCCESSFUL CANVASS CONDUCTED BY W. C. A.

Almost All Undergraduates Sign up in Membership Campaign for Various Work

According to the statistics on the W. C. A. membership campaign which took place last Wednesday, almost all the members of the College have signed up. At this time the material has not been thoroughly compiled, so there are no definite figures as to the number of men signifying their intentions of participating in any one specific branch of the W. C. A. work.

On Wednesday evening one man from the W. C. A. cabinet visited each fraternity house and explained the lines of service which were designated on the membership cards issued to the students. Every undergraduate was urged to sign up for one or more of the following lines of work:

1, Boys' Work; 2, Charities (hospitals, worthy poor, etc.); 3, College Religious Work (discussion groups, etc.); 4, Community Religious Work (Sunday Schools, etc.); 5, Committee on Missions; 6, Deportations; 7, Educational Work (Americanization, etc.); 8, Finance and Membership (Office work); 9, Handbook and Press (publicity, office work).

SABRINA RECAPTURED BY AMHERST SLEUTHS

Even Classmen Seize Bronze Goddess from Hiding Place in Litchfield Jail

Amherst, Mass., Sept. 26.—Sabrina, the elusive and disturbing goddess of Amherst College, has again changed hands. After a short stay of 16 months in the possession of the odd classes, the much-disputed statue was recaptured on July 20 last from her hiding place in the Litchfield County Jail, Litchfield, Conn., by a committee of the class of 1922.

The even classmen's coup marked the first time that Sabrina has ever been stolen from her place of concealment. Hard work on the part of the committee and a generous portion of good luck were responsible for the capture. Acting on information as to the goddess' supposed whereabouts, the senior committee persuaded Lieutenant-Governor Charles A. Templeton of Connecticut to make a careful inspection of the Litchfield County Jail. In spite of the precautions of the local jailer the statue was discovered in one of the cells, from which it was removed the next day after the jailer had been intimidated by the Governor and a deputy sheriff. The statue was transferred to a high-powered automobile a few miles outside of Litchfield, and the daring raid was successful.

Sabrina had been in the care of the even classmen for 26 years prior to March, 1920, when the odds captured her at an alumni banquet in Boston. Her last public appearance took place last spring, in Amherst.

PRESS CLUB ELECTS

Montgomery Made Chairman and College Press-Agent

Harry M. Montgomery, Jr., '22 of Evanston, Ill. was elected College Press Agent and Chairman of the Press Club at a meeting of that organization held in Jesup Hall last Monday evening, to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of Schauffler '22. At the same time J. Allison Humes of Boston was elected to the Club.

Montgomery prepared for Williams at Evanston High School. During his first year at College he played on the freshman football team and was manager of the class basketball team. He played on the varsity football eleven the next two years and is again playing this fall. He was a member of the No-Deal Committee last year and a member of the Smoker Committee last year and the preceding year. He was also elected to the editorial staff of the Graphic last year. This year he is Managing Editor of the Purple Cow, a Captain of the Fire Brigade, and a member of the Freshman Parade Committee. He is a member of the Pipe and Quill society and of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

FRATERNITY RUSHING COMMENCES TONIGHT

Answers Must be Mailed Before 12 Noon Today, Saturday, for Period A

Final instructions for freshmen regarding rushing season have been announced by Zalles '22, Chairman of the Interfraternity Council, and these are given below. All freshmen having dates for Sunday evening dinner must return to their rooms immediately after the afternoon chapel service on Sunday. In case of confusion of dates or for any information regarding rushing season, telephone either Zalles '22 (telephone number 102) or P. Brown '22 (telephone number 14).

During periods A and B, all fraternity conversation must be carefully avoided. Before each date a man will call for the freshman to take him to the house which has invited him for the date. Freshmen must leave promptly at the end of their date, unaccompanied by any member of the fraternity.

Period A: All invitations must be accepted or all rejected. No dates may be changed in this period. Freshmen have only to sign their cards and mail them before noon, Saturday, October 1. They should also make a list of their dates and empty periods for their own convenience.

Period B: This period begins with the dinner date on Wednesday, October 5. Not more than two dates may be accepted with any one fraternity. All invitations may be rejected if the freshman so desires. Dates may be changed to suit the man concerned, and must be changed in case of conflict. The correct dates must be indicated on the return postal, which must be mailed before 3 p. m. on Wednesday, October 5. In case of refusal of all dates from a given fraternity, mail the card.

Bennington Nine to Play Varsity Today

October 1—Practice for the varsity baseball candidates was resumed again last Wednesday after a two days' intermission made necessary by the Freshman-Sophomore games. Today the team will journey to Bennington, Vt. to meet the Knights of Columbus nine of that city.

Coach Coombs has announced that probably next week, as soon as he has been able to make more careful judgment of the material among the freshmen, the drill will be along even more advanced lines than those followed in practice last spring.

The tentative line-up for Saturday's game is as follows: L. Buck, cf; Hoyt, 2b; Richmond, 1b; J. Stephenson, c; Harder, rf; Fineke, 3b; O'Brien, ss; Elliott, lf; Clark, Cohn and Rounds, p.

Sophomores Elect Three Men

Norman S. MacMillan '24 of Pittston, Pa., was chosen by the sophomores to represent 1924 on the Honor System Committee at a meeting of the class held last Tuesday evening in the Thompson Chemical Laboratory. At the same time, George Olmsted '24 of Evanston, Ill. was elected to the class football managership, and Andrew S. Keck '24 of Allentown, Pa., was chosen soccer manager.

WILLIAMS OPENS SEASON SATURDAY

Purple Will Send Well-Balanced Team to Oppose Hamilton at Clinton

BACKFIELD WEAKENED BY INJURY TO BURGER

Hamilton Team is Inexperienced but Expects to Wipe Out 82-7 Defeat

Sept. 30.—Williams will meet Hamilton in the first game of the 1921 football season tomorrow at Clinton, N. Y. Although neither team has been tested as yet, Hamilton is still smarting from the sting of the 82-7 score which the Purple rolled up last year, and this season on its own field is set to clean the slate.

For the first time in three years the Purple starts the season without the services of Ben Boynton, and it remains to be seen how much the loss will effect the power of the team. Coach Wendell takes with him to Hamilton a strong and well-balanced team, with a more powerful line than last year's eleven and a fast backfield, which, though light, has good scoring power.

Burger, who was injured in last Saturday's practice game, has developed a case of water on the knee, and will not be in shape to play tomorrow, although he will be back in uniform again the latter part of next week. Holmes and Gregory both have injured shoulders and will not make the trip to Hamilton. The loss of these three backfield men is a serious handicap to the team, but Monjo, Richmond, and Wilson form a dangerous trio, and the offense of the Purple will not lack power. The other backfield position lies between Mallon and Brigham, both of whom will probably play during the course of the game.

Shuttleworth and H. Wilson will start the game as ends. Neither have had any experience in the wing positions, but Shuttleworth went through the season as a guard last year, while Wilson played in several games. Captain Fargo and Laws should prove strong men in the line as tackles, while Humes will fill his old place at guard. Robinson, who has been filling the other guard position, is now on the injured list, and his place will be taken by Jones or Vroman. Boynton will start the game at centre.

Hard workouts have been the order of the day throughout the week. Coach Wendell has made every effort to correct the faults which were shown in last Saturday's practice game, and has the team in the best possible condition to meet.

1922 MEETS TO FILL TWO CLASS OFFICES

Phillips Chosen to Honor System Committee and Williams to Soccer Managership

Philip Phillips, '22, of Buffalo, New York and James B. Williams, '22, of Philadelphia, Pa., were elected to the Honor System Committee and the managership of class soccer, respectively, at a meeting of the Senior Class held last Monday evening in Jesup Hall.

Phillips prepared for Williams at the Nichols School, Buffalo, where he was captain of the track team and a member of the hockey team. Since he has been in College, he has been a member of the track team for four years, was high scorer last season, and is now captain of the team. He is chairman of the Boys' Work Committee of the W. C. A., and was tapped for Gargoyles last year. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Williams prepared for College at the Germantown Friends School in Germantown, Pa. In his Senior year he was president of his class, editor-in-chief of the school paper, and a member of the soccer team. Since coming to Williams he has played for three years on his class soccer team, and was elected manager of class basketball last year. He is a member of the Chi Psi fraternity.

Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

At a meeting of THE RECORD Board held in the Press Rooms in Jesup Hall last Thursday evening, Hervey Crampton Lawder, 1923, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., was elected to the newly created position of Photographic Editor.

College Drinking

The strong personal stand in regard to the college liquor problem taken by the Student Council this week, supported as it is by similar action on the part of other influential Senior bodies, brings the entire question into the limelight and demands for it the careful consideration of each member of the student body. An individual and collective resolve to refrain from drinking wherever the name of Williams may be involved is a quiet pledge of college devotion neither lightly to be taken nor flippantly to be regarded.

A constantly growing chain of facts and circumstances would seem to have brought about this sentiment which has been crystallized into suitable expression by the recent action of the Student Council. A brief enunciation of some of these causes may serve to clear the way for a candid consideration on the part of each student of what stand he as an individual should take on this vital question.

The 18th Amendment has been part of the Constitution for some two years now, and clear-sighted political students appear to agree that there is little possibility of its being materially altered. However keen the disappointment of some may be over this situation, the question raised by Dr. Fitch last spring must be fairly faced, i. e., whether college men, who form the privileged and educated class upon which the duties of government should properly devolve, can afford to ignore an act which has become one of the supreme laws of the land.

Perhaps even more important to the present discussion is the strictly local aspect. Here again facts must be frankly faced. Those who do have the best interests of Williams at heart—and we like to believe that this includes every member of the student body, as well as the faculty and alumni—such, we repeat, must do some hard thinking in the face of a situation where enrolled sub-freshmen are not being sent to Williams because of the reputation the College has acquired in the last two years, and where Williams organizations have been requested not to appear in certain cities unless all liquor is strictly banned, thus doing away with any possibility of a repetition of the disorders of recent years.

The question as to whether excessive drinking is more or less characteristic of Williams than of other institutions is immaterial. The important point is that the reputation of Williams is far from spotless. Just as reunions and "parties" upon every conceivable occasion have besmudged this reputation at home, so unfortunate incidents in connection with athletic trips or Cap and Bells and Masical Clubs performances have done much to sully it abroad. The managers of such organizations are not only given the honor of representing the College before the outside world, but are charged with the responsibility of properly representing it there. Their province then must certainly include the disciplining of members who dishonor the College in any way, while the cooperation of the alumni must be sought to prevent thoughtless setting of stumbling blocks in the road of the unwary.

The moral problem as to the right or wrong of taking alcoholic stimulant is one for the individual alone to face and answer to his own satisfaction. But where the good name of the College and the maintenance of law in the land is involved, more comprehensive duties become evident and demand careful weighing.

THE RECORD believes that many of the present untoward circumstances are traceable to the fact that moderate drinking is a lost art. The liquor to be found in a college town is almost always illegally procured, and thus has some of the glamour of wickedness. The relative scarcity of even such liquor and the abominable quality of the same has made excessive drinking, generally the consumption of all in sight for the "effect," the sole object of the average stag party. Such excessive drinking has hurt the name of the College, and its continuance is detrimental to the best interests of Williams. Starting from this fact the Student Council has planted itself squarely on one side of the fence. It is left for the rest of us to ponder deeply as regards our own actions, both as individuals and as organizations.

Although communications may be published unsigned if so requested, the name of the writer must in every case be submitted to the editor. The Board assumes no responsibility, however, for the facts as stated nor for the opinions expressed in this department.

THE GRAPHIC REPLIES

To the Editor of THE RECORD:
Sir:

The communication signed "J. P. C." in your issue of September 24th, betrays an extremely literal mind. That "slandering and malicious" essay entitled "Improper Names," which appeared in the Graphic for June, has apparently so wrought upon the feelings of your correspondent that after the lapse of three months his indignation is still at white heat. May I suggest to him that he consider my essay as a playful attempt to comment upon the inappropriateness of certain place-names, and not as a mean-spirited endeavor to insult local pride?

I trust that I can make some slight amends for my deluded characterization of Troy as "shabby" and "barbaric" (those, I think, were the words) by confessing that perhaps indeed the city has charms which, modestly, do not rise to meet the casual eye. I have only looked upon it with the casual eye.

As for the Arrow Collars, I wear them myself, and I am sure that any reference I may have made to them in the article in question amounted to nothing less than free advertising, which I might have omitted had I not been so kindly disposed toward the concern.

In conclusion I desire to express sincere regret to "J. P. C." for my responsibility in having so unduly disturbed his mental balance.

Sincerely,
John E. Moody '21

COUNCIL MEETS

Committee to Investigate System of Class Elections

Various items of business were brought up and discussed by the Student Council at a meeting of that body last Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall.

The resolution to prohibit "W" men from competing for managership positions was referred to a committee to investigate the matter and report at the next meeting. It was the sentiment of the Student Council to make a special effort to have as many alumni as possible back for the Amherst game. It was further voted that the College meeting should be postponed until after rushing. The fourth item was the appointment of a committee to investigate the system of class elections and make a proposal for improvement.

Seven errors by the freshmen, coupled with timely hitting by Buck and Newhard, gave the sophomores the third game of the series by a 6-2 score on Cole Field last Tuesday afternoon. The sophomores obtained an early inning lead which 1925 was unable to overcome. After a bad start Sabia pitched well, while Acheson held the underclassmen to nine scattered hits and was never in danger.

Heavy hitting by the 1924 team coupled with loose fielding on the part of the freshmen gave the sophomores the fifth game of the series by the one-sided score of 12-1 Thursday afternoon on Cole Field. Two underclass pitchers were knocked out of the box, while O'Brien had the game well in hand throughout. Kellogg, O'Brien and Newhard starred at the bat for the second year men. Cranford attended Poly Prep in Brooklyn before entering Williams. He was swimming manager, a member of the soccer team, and also served on the staff of his school paper.

1925 to Scrimmage Soon

Gradual progress is being made in developing the Freshman football team under the direction of Coach Fulle. No definite line-up for the eleven will be selected for some time since the present work is entirely rudimentary and the special abilities of the different candidates have not been thoroughly tested. Scrimmages will probably begin next week.

Indications show the line material good, especially the candidates for end. No remarkable stars have appeared in the backfield, however.

Dropping in to see our representative who will be showing at A. H. L. Bemis' next Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 2nd and 3rd, will give you the same wide choice of smart Fall suits and overcoats as though you stepped into one of our stores in New York.

Showing of furnishings, hats and shoes, too.

Season Saturday

Hamilton. Monday was devoted to tackling the dummy, forward pass practice, and signal practice. On Tuesday in addition to these things a half hour scrimmage was held. On Wednesday Coach Wendell put the backfield through a long drill on protection against forward passes, while the line practised breaking through and opening up holes. The day ended with dummy scrimmage, and a short period of regular scrimmage, in which Ben Boynton, who has been working with the backs for the last three afternoons, got away for a 30-yard run for a touchdown. The longest scrimmage of the week was held on Thursday, while the squad started for Clinton at 3.25 today. The following men made the trip: Barnes, Boynton, S. Brigham, Byers, Chapman, Fargo, Healy, Hoffman, Humes, Jones, Laws, Mallon, Monjo, Montgomery, Pease, Richmond, Ruether, Shuttleworth, Vroman, Wilcox, H. Wilson, and J. Wilson.

Hamilton also is opening its football season on Saturday, and prospects there are vague at best. As yet not even a tentative line-up has been announced. The coaching is being carried on by Howard Berry of Pennsylvania, all-American half-back for two years. Coach Berry is being assisted by Sherman, Hamilton '06 and Gorman, Hamilton '20. The following men have returned from last year's team: Captain Fowler at centre, Reeder, left end, Spice, left tackle, Kelly, left guard, Davis, right guard, and Warren, right half-back. Coach Berry states, however, that these men have as yet no settled positions, and will not definitely start Saturday's game.

The probable line-ups of the two teams are as follows:

Soccer Season Opens

More than 25 men were present at a meeting for those interested in soccer which was held in Jesup Hall last Tuesday evening. It was decided that an attempt would be made to have soccer recognized as a minor sport this year, and that if possible a match against Amherst would be arranged for the morning of the Amherst-Williams football game. Practice for members of the three upper class teams began on Cole Field last Wednesday afternoon and will be continued daily.

W. C. A. Meeting Is Cancelled

Due to the fraternity rushing, there will be no W. C. A. meeting on Sunday evening.

LAST GET-TOGETHER

Speeches and Skit Feature Final W. C. A. Entertainment

Large attendance marked the final Freshman get-together held last Wednesday evening in Jesup Hall. Speeches by Harder and Zalles '22, and Coach Wendell and entertainment by Britton and McGrath '23 featured.

After music by the Freshman orchestra Coach Wendell gave a short talk on college spirit, especially in relation to the football team. Zalles then explained the rushing system and answered questions pertaining to it. After a skit by Britton in feminine costume, Harder made an appeal for membership and active interest in the W. C. A., giving an outline of the work of the deputations committee. Adams '22 and Harder then led practice in cheers and songs, after which McGrath presented a sleight-of-hand performance. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

Frosh Number of 'Cow' to Appear October 15

Mooring a cheery greeting to the class of 1925, the Purple Cow will make her first appearance of the year with a "Freshman-Number," which is scheduled to be on sale October 15. In addition to the cheer of the greeting, there will be words of wisdom to the yearling class, written in the usual serious style of Her Ladyship's messages. Among the authors of long articles in prose and poetry in the issue are Montgomery and Wallace '22, Britton, Hilton, and Romaine '23, and Mason '24. Hurley '23 has drawn a special three-color cover for the number and Soly '25 is the author of an excellent frontispiece. Drawings and illustrations by Beckett and G. I. Rounds '22, and Britton and Hurley '23 are also included in the issue.

Heavy hitting by the 1924 team coupled with loose fielding on the part of the freshmen gave the sophomores the fifth game of the series by the one-sided score of 12-1 Thursday afternoon on Cole Field. Two underclass pitchers were knocked out of the box, while O'Brien had the game well in hand throughout. Kellogg, O'Brien and Newhard starred at the bat for the second year men. One more victory will now give the series to the sophomores.

FUMBLES MAR GAME

Reckwith and Chandler Star for Freshmen and Bigelow for Third Team

Five periods of hard football resulted in scoreless tie in the game between the first varsity and the freshman teams last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field. He joined the American Red Cross in 1918 and became first commissioner to Czechoslovakia in 1919 with the military rank of major. Dr. Johnson is a trustee of Berea College and of Franklin College.

1925 to Scrimmage Soon

Gradual progress is being made in developing the Freshman football team under the direction of Coach Fulle. No definite line-up for the eleven will be selected for some time since the present work is entirely rudimentary and the special abilities of the different candidates have not been thoroughly tested. Scrimmages will probably begin next week.

Indications show the line material good, especially the candidates for end. No remarkable stars have appeared in the backfield, however.

'COLLEGIATES' DEFEAT BENNINGTON BALL CLUB

Varsity and Freshmen Combine to Outwit Independents—Jack Coombs Make Homer

Combining steady fielding with the ability to bunch their hits, a team calling themselves the Williams Collegiates, made up mostly of players from the Varsity squad, defeated the Bennington Independents at Bennington last Saturday by the score of 11 to 7. In the playing of Cooke, Fisher, Freeman, Reed, and Sabin 25 the game brought to light some excellent baseball material in the freshman class.

The remarkable playing of Jack Coombs, the Varsity coach, who pitched three innings for the collegiates, was the outstanding feature of the game. Beside knocking a home run, he struck out four batters, pitching only ten balls in one inning. Richmond's bat proved effective in tally. At the same time Duncan Cranford of Brooklyn, N. Y. was chosen manager of the class soccer team.

Rudolph came to Williams from the Lake Forest Academy, Lake Forest, Ill. While there he was a member of the base ball team, year book board, and debating zood lead, which they held during the end, and was also football manager.

Hamilton. Monday was devoted to tackling the dummy, forward pass practice, and signal practice. On Tuesday in addition to these things a half hour scrimmage was held. On Wednesday Coach Wendell put the backfield through a long drill on protection against forward passes, while the line practised breaking through and opening up holes. The day ended with dummy scrimmage, and a short period of regular scrimmage, in which Ben Boynton, who has been working with the backs for the last three afternoons got away for a 30-yard run for a touchdown. The longest scrimmage of the week was held on Thursday, while the squad started for Clinton at 3.25 today. The following men made the trip: Barnes, Boynton, S. Brigham, Byers, Chapman, Fargo, Healy, Hoffman, Humes, Jones, Laws, Mallon, Monjo, Montgomery, Pease, Richmond, Ruether, Shuttleworth, Vroman, Wilcox, H. Wilson, and J. Wilson.

Hamilton also is opening its football season on Saturday, and prospects there are vague at best. As yet not even a tentative line-up has been announced. The coaching is being carried on by Howard Berry of Pennsylvania, all-American half-back for two years. Coach Berry is being assisted by Sherman, Hamilton '06 and Gorman, Hamilton '20. The following men have returned from last year's team: Captain Fowler at centre, Reeder, left end, Spice, left tackle, Kelly, left guard, Davis, right guard, and Warren, right half-back. Coach Berry states, however, that these men have as yet no settled positions, and will not definitely start Saturday's game.

The probable line-ups of the two teams are as follows:

DISCUSSION GROUPS RECEIVE INSTRUCTION

Several Colleges Represented in Institute—Professor Curry Outlines Work

FIVE MEETINGS HELD

Problems Pertinent to College Life Receive Experimental Discussions

For the purpose of discussing the treatment of Bible study and discussion groups and the methods of arriving at solutions to different problems which arise in the life of different colleges, an intercollegiate discussion group institute was held last Saturday and Sunday. There were five meetings held in Jesup Hall which were presided over by Bruce Curry, professor of the Biblical Seminary of New York City.

Mr. Curry, the leader of the Institute, is a leading authority on discussion groups and had charge of the leaders' conferences at Silver Bay last summer. The several representatives of other colleges were Babbitt and Buckingham of Wesleyan, Pierce of Vermont University, Alberti of Worcester Polytechnic, Moody of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and Griswold of Amherst. Sam Hoeking, state Y. M. C. A. secretary was also present.

The first of the meetings was held at 7:30 on Saturday evening in Jesup Hall, at which time Mr. Curry gave an introduction and outline of the principles of the institute and the method of its organization. The second meeting was held at 10:30 on Sunday morning. The time was devoted to a discussion of "How to begin a big movement," and the difficulty of starting a campaign was discussed. The four principles deduced were spiritual renewal, unreserved commitment to cause, testing of motives, and co-operation. Difficulties and methods of putting principles into effect were brought up and solutions offered, the main outcome being that a change of heart is necessary for real progress.

The problem of the student's expense account was discussed at the third meeting at 11:30 a. m. on Sunday morning. This was an experimental group meeting in which a careful record was made of the pertinent questions and arguments, the discussion irrelevant to the subject, and the wasted time. At the end of the time

ACTIVE INTEREST TO BE TAKEN IN SOCCER

Plans for Varsity Schedule are Being Formulated—Will Give Insignia

More interest is being taken in soccer this fall than heretofore, and it is expected that a college team will be formed in the near future which will have outside contests, and which will mark an innovation in the sports of Williams. Wallace and Williams '22, and Whitecomb '23 are the outstanding players among the candidates who have signified their intention of trying for the team, and with the additional experience to be gained from the annual interclass series, a strong team should be developed in a few years.

Practice for the varsity squad will be started in a week, and the interclass series will commence soon after. Plans are being arranged for a schedule with a few college soccer teams, and the drawings for the class teams are nearly completed. Soccer has never held a prominent position in the athletics of the college, and it is hoped by those interested that the present popularity that it will enjoy, will become a permanent addition to the college and class sport interests. Practice will be held on Cole Field, and though nothing definite has as yet been accomplished, there is every reason to believe that soccer will gain the place that it occupies in other institutions.

Members of the winning class team will receive their numerals, and those men on the varsity team will probably be awarded the regulation insignia given for a minor sport. It is expected that a captain will be elected in the near future.

Non-Athletic Council Meets

With the purpose of determining the necessary amount of the non-athletic tax for this year, a meeting of representatives of the various campus activities other than athletic organizations was held in Jesup Hall yesterday afternoon. The activities represented were THE RECORD, the Graphic, the Purple Cow, the Musical Chubs, Cap and Bells, the Williams Christian Association, the Forum, the Class Book, the Outing Club, the Press Club, and the Adelphe Union.

FAST AMHERST TEAM OUTCLASSES COLUMBIA

Yale, Wesleyan, Union and Bowdoin Win as Middlebury Loses to Dartmouth

While Williams was administering a 14-0 defeat to Hamilton at Clinton last Saturday afternoon, three teams on the Williams schedule scored victories, one suffered a defeat, and Amherst beat Columbia, 9-7, both teams being future opponents of Williams.

Although forced to wait until the second half, Yale scored two touchdowns against the University of Vermont at New Haven last Saturday, defeating the visitors by the score of the Williams-Hamilton game.

Opening the first period Gurnsey fumbled Brock's kick-off, giving Vermont the ball at Yale 40-yard line. Gooch's forward pass was intercepted by Jordan and Yale rushed the ball to Vermont's 10-yard line, where, on fourth down, Oed's try for goal was blocked by Tryon. Jordan fumbling on the ball. Again on fourth down Aldrich failed another field goal. The first period went scoreless.

Yale three times reached Vermont's 20-yard line during the second period. Gooch throttled Eli bopes in the first instance by catching Jordan's forward pass. Oed attempted field goals on the other two occasions, but both fell short. Both elevens played the first half without substitutions.

Following an exchange of punts at the opening of the third period Yale uncoiled a series of short gains for a total of seventy yards and getting the long-desired touchdown. Captain Aldrich time and again drove just outside Vermont's left tackle for gains which netted from 7 to 10 yards and Jordan and Blair wrested 5 yards each in similar smashes at left tackle. Yale was held until fourth down at the Vermont 3-yard line, but Aldrich twisted outside of left tackle for the tally and Jordan kicked the goal.

On the scrimmage just previous to the touchdown, Vermont ordered the first substitution made by either team, Sunderland replacing Semansky. Although Oed and Malsley were bruised early in the game, both refused to quit.

With two minutes remaining of the period, Yale started at its 35-yard line for its second touchdown. Jordan and Aldrich flitted through left tackle for 8-yard gains each and Yale had attained

HEAVY DRILL STARTS

Track Men Prepare for Underclass Meet

Heavy work will be done during the coming week by the varsity, cross country, and freshman track squads in preparation for the cross country trials on next Saturday, and the annual underclass meet on the following Monday and Tuesday. No good material has been found among the freshman harriers as yet, but several first year men are showing up well in the track and field events.

Little practice was held during the past week-end, due to the rain of Friday and the football game on Saturday. The cross country squad started a long hike Friday, but was forced to stop and return. On the following day, however, they went over the regular five-mile course, and Captain Adams '22, Seaman '22, Fawcett '23, and Olcott, Sanford, and Swan '24 finished in good early-season time. A few starts were made by the varsity dash men on Saturday, but no other practice was held, and it is expected that it will require hard drill this week to round the underclassmen into form for the fall meet.

FUMBLES MAR GAME

Beckwith and Chandler Star for Freshmen and Bigelow for Third Team

Five periods of hard football resulted in a scoreless tie in the game between the third varsity and the freshman teams last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field. The freshmen showed surprising strength in view of the fact that Team C scored three touchdowns in ten minutes of scrimmage on the preceding Thursday.

Both teams played ragged football, and the game was marred by many fumbles, Team C suffering especially from its weakness in this department, twice losing good chances to score through its inability to hold the ball at critical times. Also there were many penalties for offside play. Both teams were successful in the forward passing line, Wightman tossing pretty passes to Chapman and Crosby, and Dickey receiving two from Chandler. Both freshman ends showed up well, especially Beckwith, while Chandler and Dickey starred in the backfield for 1925. The interference of both teams was weak, but this is due to the fact that the game formed the second scrimmage for the freshmen, while the third team has played together very little. Both teams made many substitutions during the game.

Neither side advanced the ball far beyond the centre of the field during the first quarter, the ball see-sawing back and forth around the forty yard lines. Both lines showed defensive power, and neither team could gain consistently by straight football. In the second quarter the third team took the ball inside the thirty-yard line of the 1925 team, only to lose it on a fumble.

On the kick-off at the beginning of the second half Chandler made a long run through a broken field before he was downed. Throughout the game he showed consistent ability in line plunging and broken field running. The third team held, however, and by straight football succeeded in taking the ball inside the freshman ten yard line. Team C was twice penalized for offside play at this point. Two forward passes failed, and a third was intercepted.

The play of the freshman eleven showed great improvement in the fourth quarter, and two long forward passes, both of them from Chandler to Dickey placed the ball inside the third team's twenty-five yard line. 1925 lacked the offensive power to score, however, and the quarter ended in a scoreless tie. A fifth quarter was played in an effort to break the tie, but the defensive play of both teams proved strong, and neither was able to score.

The original line-up of the teams follows:

Team C		Freshmen
Crosby	l. e.	Davis
Clark	l. t.	Dunham
Rubino	l. g.	Brownell

'COLLEGIATES' DEFEAT BENNINGTON BALL CLUB

Varsity and Freshmen Combine to Outhit Independents—Jack
Coombs Make Homer

Combining steady fielding with the ability to bunch their hits, a team calling themselves the Williams Collegiates, made up mostly of players from the Varsity squad, defeated the Bennington Independents at Bennington last Saturday by the score of 11 to 7. In the playing of Cooke, Fisher, Freeman, Reed, and Sabin '25 the game brought to light some excellent baseball material in the freshman class.

The remarkable playing of Jack Coombs, the Varsity coach, who pitched three innings for the collegiates, was the outstanding feature of the game. Beside knocking a home run, he struck out four men, pitching only ten balls in one inning. Richmond's bat proved effective in tallying three times, once for a homer. Rounds '22, Sabin '25 and Coombs worked in the box.

Four runs in the fourth inning, the result of extra-base hits by nearly all of the Collegiates' line-up, started them off to a good lead, which they held during the entire game. Another hitting rally in the seventh, which netted four runs, was helped by numerous errors and general loose playing on the part of the Bennington nine. The line-up and summary is as follows:

RUSHING CONTINUES

First Period Ends Tonight with Second Evening Date

With the second evening date of this evening, the first period of rushing comes to an end. Period B, which begins with the dinner date of tomorrow, ends with the last evening date on Friday, leaving three evening dates for Saturday, during which pledges are made.

Freshmen should mail their second period cards before 3.00 p. m. tomorrow, accepting not more than two invitations from any fraternity. From the conclusion of Period C, bidding and pledging may be carried on without restriction, with the single exception that, should a first year man break his pledge with any fraternity, he thereby renders himself ineligible for fraternity membership for six months following that break and during that time may not be entertained at any fraternity house in College.

WILLIAMS ELEVEN WINS FIRST GAME

Hamilton Defeated 14-0 in Game Marked by Ragged Play

Both Line and Backfield Appear

Offensive Power

Grasping the first opportunity for displaying its strength, the 1921 Williams Football Team met and defeated the Hamilton College eleven by the score of 14 to 0 last Saturday afternoon on Steuben Field, Clinton, N. Y. Touchdowns by J. Wilson and Mallon followed by successful goal kicks by Fargo in the first and third quarters, constituted William's scoring.

Raggedness, which characterized the play of both sides throughout the game, was most noticeable in the third and fourth quarters, which were marked by five fumbles, three penalizations, and several intercepted passes. An unusual number of substitutions were made by the Purple during the second half, in which all of the twenty-two men who took the trip played.

At no time was the outcome of the game doubtful, although a heavy offensive was carried on during the third quarter by Hamilton, starting when Warren, the Buff and Blue fullback, carried back a kick for thirty yards, and succeeded by a short forward in bringing the ball near enough the Williams' goal for a trial drop kick, which was unsuccessful. Comparative statistics show that the Purple team gained eight first downs against two made by their opponents. Four fumbles were charged to each team and three penalties were enforced against Williams. A total of 155 yards were gained through rushes by Williams, while Hamilton made only 41 yards. Considerable gains were made by the Purple through forward passes, which were directly responsible for the first score. A 35 yard run by J. Wilson in the third quarter, followed by a gain of 12 yards by Mallon, brought the ball within striking distance of the Hamilton goal and resulted in the second touchdown.

ROTOGRAVURE SECTION ANNOUNCED BY RECORD

Innovation New Departure in College Journalism—To Appear 6 Times

Announcement is hereby made of the publication in the near future of the first issue of the WILLIAMS RECORD Rotogravure Supplement, a new departure in college publishing. The new section will be entirely pictorial, and is scheduled to appear six times during the college year.

The Rotogravure supplement will replace the special supplements published by THE RECORD in the past at the time of important football or baseball games or before extended vacation trips of college organizations. These supplements were printed on heavy stock paper and employed half-tone cuts, which gave mediocre photographic results. The new supplement will be as far as is known the first genuine college rotogravure section in the country. The pictures will be printed by the same method employed by the Sunday editions of the metropolitan papers. This system, suited both to the tone of the soft focus lens and to the clear outline of the hard focus ranges in effectiveness from the beauties of a landscape setting to the quick action of the football field.

The first issue of the Rotogravure supplement is scheduled for October 22, although this date is still tentative. Present plans call for the remaining issues on November 12 (Amherst game), December 17 (Christmas), February 18 (Houseparty), April 1 (Easter), and May 27 (Memorial Day). Current college news will be featured in the pictures. News matter will be excluded from the supplement.

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

The following members of the class of 1925 are competing for the editorial board of THE RECORD and are authorized to collect news: Bell, Brodhead, J. E. Brown, Cameron, Elliott, Fairfax, Fiske, Golding, Horvill, Johnson, Keep, Lochner, Lockwood, Longstreet, Lowes, Marshall, Nicholls, Phillips, Sterling, and Touton.

We're Off

The first game of the football season is now a matter of history, and Williams has chalked up only the first, we trust, of many "victories." Congratulations are due the football squad for its auspicious beginning on a foreign field.

The account of the game does not satisfy all our expectations, however. Against a distinctly inferior team only two touchdowns were scored, the playing was generally ragged, the generalship not of the best, and n driving, fighting spirit seemed lacking. These are, of course, natural early-season faults, and not causes for great concern. The only moral to be drawn is that the team needs plenty of practice during the coming week and that a full turnout of undergraduates is imperative for next Saturday's stiff contest with Bowdoin. With the Amherst and Wesleyan games as the final objectives, there is no reason why each week should not show a steady improvement in the spirit and condition of the Purple eleven.

A New Departure

Attention is called to the announcement in another column of this issue of plans for rotogravure supplements during the coming year. THE RECORD is gratified to be able thus first to introduce this most modern of journalistic improvements into the college newspaper field.

The experiment is being made in line with THE RECORD's ideal of the best possible service to its subscribers and advertisers. A four to six page rotogravure section with sheets the same size as those of the regular metropolitan dailies will afford an excellent method of presenting pictorially the present-day undergraduate life to the large body of alumni and friends of Williams making up the subscription list.

THE RECORD has endeavored with partial success heretofore, to fill this need by occasional half-tone pictorial supplements, but poor reproduction and other undesirable features have rendered such efforts make-shift at best. The new method should go far to obviate the defects of the old. It is our hope not only to portray the undergraduate life, but alumni activities as well. To do this with any measure of success, the thorough cooperation of alumni organizations is necessary, and such aid we earnestly solicit.

Commons Club

We feel keenly the justice of the criticism in Mr. Roth's communication as to the position of the fraternity man in condemning the condition of the Commons Club. It was thus with decided diffidence that we set about analyzing the situation in the editorial mentioned.

The chief variance between the views then advanced and Mr. Roth's opinion is in placing the major portion of the responsibility. As has been previously pointed out, the Commons Club of eight or ten years ago was a powerful organization with decided prestige. Mr. Roth would seem to believe that that strength was due to the help of the fraternities, but THE RECORD feels that it is more probably the very strength of the Commons Club which forced such recognition from the fraternities. Again, the disagreements that Mr. Roth feels are inevitable in the neutral body were certainly kept far in the background in those days, and do not appear to have removed the Commons Club so far from the "Utopian Dream" ideal.

The criticism of the fraternity system borders on injustice. Violations of the interfraternity agreement have been rather noticeable by their scarcity at Williams as compared with other institutions. Any observer of recent class and college elections is struck by the lack of politics displayed and the general spirit of awarding the office to the highest standing competitor.

We do agree thoroughly with Mr. Roth that fraternity cooperation is of vital concern to the complete well-being of the neutral body. The reorganized Commons Club may safely be said to be again on its feet, but its further progress does depend largely on the spirit of helpfulness shown by the remainder of the student body. The only difficulty is to decide upon what form this "honest desire to cooperate" may take. Concrete suggestions will be heartily welcomed.

COMMUNICATION

Although communications may be published unsigned if so requested, the name of the writer must in every case be submitted to the editor. The Board assumes no responsibility, however, for the facts as stated nor for the opinions expressed in this department.

FRATERNITY RESPONSIBILITIES

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir: In your editorial of Tuesday, September 20th entitled "Pro Alma Mater" and dealing with the organization of the non-fraternity men in college you opened up a very interesting subject.

As I understand your argument it runs briefly as follows: There is an unhealthy condition among the non-fraternity men of the college. They have no strong organization and this is detrimental to the good of the college as a whole because, in the first place extra curriculum organizations are not getting the support of the non-fraternity men; in the second place two men failed to return to college because there was no strong Commons Club to welcome them upon their return; and in the third place the non-fraternity alumni have no place to which they may return and be welcome. The cause of this condition is due to two things: first, lack of cooperation among the non-fraternity men, and second, lack of cooperation between the fraternity and non-fraternity men. A strong Commons Club is your solution to this difficulty, because, you say, it will dispense with the present lack of co-operation.

There is no doubt that there is an unhealthy condition among the non-fraternity men of the college, but this condition can be changed not by a stronger organization of the Commons Club but only by a different attitude on the part of the fraternity men. The lack of support of extra curriculum activities by non-fraternity men is not due to the fact that these non-fraternity men have any interest greater than that of Williams College. The very fact that the organization of the Commons Club is a weak one denies the member of that club any interest within the college which could supersede that of the college. It is the fraternity man who has these detrimental interests and who places his fraternity above the college. This is shown first by the fact that both in college and class elections fraternity men almost invariably vote for a member of their fraternity, no matter who he may be or what kind of opposition he may have. And it is shown secondly by the frequent breaking of the interfraternity agreement, which while it brings advantage to his fraternity can bring only discord to the college. Two men who failed to return to college this Spring acted as they did not because there was no strong Commons Club to welcome them back but because they were made to feel by the fraternity men that they had no place in the college, and were not welcome.

As to the lack of co-operation among the non-fraternity men. How anything else could be expected is rather difficult to understand. Most non-fraternity men think, and only naturally, that their position in the neutral body is merely temporary and consequently they cannot be expected to show as much interest in it as they would in an organization in which they were permanently situated. It is very easy for a fraternity man who is living in most congenial surroundings with companions of his own selection to see that weakness in the Commons Club, but to expect the same co-operation he finds in his fraternity among a group of men who are thrown together, who have nothing in common but disappointment, and each of whom feels that he is somehow different from the rest and will eventually "come through" and make if fraternity, is merely a utopian dream. It is only natural that petty cliques should be formed for the same spirit prompts them that prompted the organization of the fraternity originally and to hear fraternity men complain of this spirit is like hearing the pot calling the kettle black.

It there is an honest desire on the part of the undergraduates today to improve the position of the non-fraternity men, all the advances must be made by the fraternity men. No matter how strong the Commons Club may be it would be unavailing to do good in the face of the neglect, and almost contempt of the fraternities which now exists. If the "Record," instead of exhorting the non-fraternity men to form closer bonds of union, would point out to the fraternities their pettiness, their small jealousies which are so detrimental to the unity of the college, it would do far more to improve the condition of non-fraternity men, which it at present so justly deplors.

The fifth and last of the meetings was held at 4.30 p. m. at which time the functions of the group leader both in the discussion meeting and on the campus were analysed. The functions of the group leader before his group is to state the questions, hold the discussion to the point, get everyone into the discussion, and summarize the arguments. Before the group meetings the leader should prepare the lesson, attend the normal training group meetings, work the question over for his own group, and get in touch with the men outside of his own group for their opinions. The necessity of reading the Bible, of choosing practical problems, and maintaining open mindedness in the discussions was particularly stressed.

The following are the men in College who are leaders in the discussion group work: Adams, Chapman, Learned, Lewis, Richardson, Schauler, Terry, and Zalles '22, Angevine, Bennett, Bowen, Fitcher, Parker, Partington, and Sewall '23, Balke, Chase, Copeland, MacMillan, O'Brien, Olcott, Parkhill, Selden, and Shores '24.

the Vermont 35-yard mark when the period expired.

In the fourth period Aldrich and Jordan hastily tore off 8-yard gains each, the former at centre, the latter at right end, and the Vermont defense stiffened until the Elis were held until fourth down six inches from the goal line of the Green Mountaineers. Oed finally squirmed through centre for the touchdown, Jordan again kicked goal.

Middlebury went down to a 28-3 defeat at the hands of Dartmouth at Hanover, the Green amassing all her points in the second half, in nine plays scoring two touchdowns and kicking both goals.

Middlebury started like a wonder eleven. Time and again it ripped the Dartmouth line apart for long gains. On the defense the visitors' lines not only held the Dartmouth charge, but repeatedly tore through and spilled the man carrying the ball even before he had started. And in addition they shoved the ball up to the 20-yard marker and Ashley dropped back five yards and skinned the leather between the uprights for a three-point lead. All during that time Dartmouth was on the defensive. But not so the second half.

Middlebury brought the ball to the 20-yard mark as the first period ended. The Green line steadied itself and held. It was a desperate stand there in the shadows of its own goal post, and three suc-

sive Middlebury rushes broke and rolled back. Then Ashley dropped back for the first and only points that the Blue eleven was destined to get. The teams fought on through the remaining 10 minutes rather evenly and the half ended with Middlebury retaining their slight advantage.

It has been said that the exhortations of Dartmouth coaches between the halves has often brought tears to the eyes of Green players, and a crying team is a hard one to hold. Whatever happened in the dressing room during the breathing space is unknown, but when Dartmouth came onto the field for the second time that afternoon they were not to be denied. Burke picked up 10 yards and Robertson made 25 more, four more line bucks brought the ball to the 11-yard line and the Morey men were set back five yards for offside play. With the ball on the six-yard point Robertson plunged off tackle for the first touchdown.

On play after the subsequent goal with the ball in play 30 yards from the Hanover goal Chick Burke, not to be outdone by his fellow townsman from Natick, Eddie Casey tore around left end, stiff-armed three tacklers and sprinted 70 yards for the second six points. Middlebury was tired and discouraged from frequent penalties. They had spent themselves in the grand stand opening. Robertson scored again after reversing his field prettily from the 31-yard mark. Haws, who replaced him, sneaked over for the final touchdown just before the whistle blew.

Columbia, coached by "Buck" O'Neill and "Joe" Brooks, both of Williams, was assailed by a light, speedy team from Amherst, with disastrous results for the Blue and White. Columbia was almost powerless against the Amherst line. The New York team failed to score at all until near the end of the third quarter. At this time, Columbia, having discovered the futility of attacking Amherst's line, tried four forward passes in almost as many minutes. Two were completed, one from Freeman to Koppisch gaining 45 yards, and another went over the heads of the Purple and White line and brought the New Yorkers into the shadow of the goal posts. Moszezinski raced around right end for a touchdown on the next play. Thornton kicked the goal for Columbia. Amherst scored early in the game when Thornton punted to Columbia's 40-yard mark. The kick was received by Wing, who ran for a first down on the initial rush. After missing a forward pass formation, a fake punt, which ended in another pass play, sent the ball 15 yards from Elliot to Davidson, who escaped the Blue and White's secondary defense and fell over the goal line on Freeman's pretty tackle. The winning tally came in the last quarter when Adams of Amherst blocked de Stephano's punt behind the Blue and White goal line, and the ball bounced out of bounds, into the grand stand. By means of short line rushes through tackle and guard, Martin and Wing brought the ball back to Columbia's five-yard line. The Blue and White withstood two attempts at breaking through. Amherst's fake field-goal formation failed, and de Stephano kicked out of danger, the ball going to the 40-yard line. The play was ruled out on the ground that the ball was not properly in play, and the Columbia man was forced to kick from behind the goal posts again. Adams, Amherst's speedy left tackle, broke through, blocked the kick, and the ball landed over the grandstand for the winning safety.

In the initial game of the season, Wesleyan defeated Stevens at Middletown, 13-0. Parsons, playing at quarter for the Red and Black, scored both touchdowns for the home eleven. Until the beginning of the second half, it seemed as though the chances were even, both lines holding fast and neither backfield making any substantial gains. Abbot was instrumental in scoring the touchdowns, both times carrying the ball to Stevens's five-yard line. Fricke intercepted all three forward passes attempted by Stevens. Captain Butler and King played hard and fast football for Wesleyan.

Bowdoin defeated Rhode Island State, 9-0, and Union beat Clarkson, 14-0, but no definite information on either game is available.

off to the 15-yard line, carried back for 20 yards by Brigham, opened the game. Failing to gain in two downs, Richmond kicked and the ball, fumbled by the opponents, was recovered by Williams on Hamilton's 20-yard line. Richmond passed to J. Wilson, who gained 15 yards. A fumble on the five-yard line gave the ball to the Blue, who kicked back for thirty yards. Another pass from Richmond to Wilson, and several line plunges, carried the ball over the goal line. Fargo kicked the goal.

Hamilton received the kick-off on the 20-yard line and, failing to gain, kicked back and Williams ran the ball back to her opponent's 40-yard line. Another kicking duel left the ball in the hands of the Purple in the middle of the field. Early in the second quarter, two fumbles by Williams gave Hamilton the chance to kick back into her opponent's ground but a series of rushes and a kicking duel left the ball in the middle of the field at the end of the first half.

A series of kicks marked the opening of the third period. A pass by Hamilton was intercepted on the 50-yard mark and Wilson, running off tackle, carried the ball down to Hamilton's 15-yard line. Mallon rushed the ball to within a few feet of the goal and in a series of line bucks carried the ball between the posts. Fargo again kicked goal. Late in the quarter, Hamilton threatened the Williams line for the only time, when a successful pass from Warren to Farrell took the ball to Williams's 15-yard line. An attempted field goal, which proved unsuccessful, and a fumble by Williams, giving the ball to Hamilton, ended the quarter.

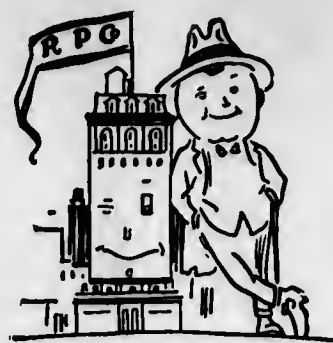

Hamilton was held for downs, but carried back a kick by Richmond for thirty yards where she was again held for downs. A kick by Richmond and two forwards carried the ball to the 10-yard line where Hamilton intercepted and carried it back to the middle of the field. Two kicks left the ball in mid-field in the possession of Hamilton as the game ended.

CREW STARTS AT CORNELL

In response to the first call issued by Coach Hoyle, 257 candidates reported for the 1921-1922 crew season, the largest squad which has ever come out in the history of the university. Included in this number are 137 freshmen and 120 members of last year's varsity squad, of whom 20 rowed on leading combinations. Practice on the machines has already begun and will continue every afternoon for ten days, after which time the veterans of last year's season and picked material from among the freshmen will start work with the shells.

ITHACANS LEARN TO SWIM

With the institution of swimming classes to be held each afternoon throughout the year at Cornell, an attempt will be made to arouse interest in this sport so that a university team may be formed and a swimming pool constructed. An indication of the presence of good material for starting a team was demonstrated last summer in the especially fine showing made by an informal Cornell team in a New York swimming meet.

With the intention of taking over the printing of all the undergraduate publications of the University, except the Sam, the Cornell Publications Printing Company has recently been organized in Ithaca and a plant for the use of the new concern has been completed. The profits of the company are to be given to the University for use in the publication of educational material under some new plan. This step is virtually a beginning of a plan to create a fund for the endowment of a University Press.

Dr. Livingston Farrand, the newly elected president of Cornell, who will succeed Jacob Gould Schurman is to be inaugurated into office on October 20. Dr. Farrand, who will be the fourth president of the University, has been serving as chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, and was formerly a professor at Columbia and at one time was the president of the University of Colorado.

AMHERST GIVEN SCHOLARSHIPS

Amherst has been presented with $150,000 for the purpose of founding six new fellowships, according to an announcement made at the Centennial Dinner which was held on June 22. The gift was made by Mrs. J. W. Simpson in memory of her husband who was in the class of '71, and is to be called the John Woodruff Simpson Memorial Fellowship. Under the conditions of the gift, scholarships are to be provided for Amherst graduates who wish to continue their studies, and the schools selected are to be approved by the Board of Trustees of the college.

NEW DORMITORY FOR CORNELL

Plans for a new dormitory at Cornell University have recently been formulated, and an initial appropriation of $10,000 has been made to date. The construction of the building, which is financed by the Alumni of the University, will begin in the spring. This is to be the fifth building in a group known as the Baker Court, and all of them have been gifts. The formation of these plans is the realization of a dream which was shattered by the war, and it is now expected that an extensive building program will be launched.

FALL BASEBALL INAUGURATED

Fall baseball practice has been started at Cornell for the first time in the history of that sport at the university, and already 50 men have reported to Coach Carney. With the exception of those playing football all the members of last year's varsity squad are out, and an effort is being made to give each one of these men the greatest amount of individual coaching possible in preparation for the spring season.

DARTMOUTH LETTER GAMES

Contests to be played against Columbin, the University of Pennsylvania, Cornell, and Georgia have been named by the Dartmouth Athletic Council as the letter games of the 1921 football season. Only one of these, the Columbia game, will be held at Hanover. Members of the freshman football team who play against Dean Academy or the first year men at Penn State or Syracuse will be awarded their numerals.

BOWDOIN OPPOSES VARSITY SATURDAY

Visitors Have Developed Aggressive Team From Unusually Large Squad

BOTH ELEVENS HAVE WON OPENING GAMES

Williams Defeated Hamilton and Maine College Overcame R. I. State 9-0

Oct. 7.—Local football enthusiasts will get their first opportunity to see the Williams varsity football team in action on Weston Field at 3.30 p. m. tomorrow against the strong Bowdoin College eleven. The outcome of the game is uncertain, as both teams have won their opening contests by small scores.

Bowdoin is represented by a fast and aggressive team, which has been built up from the largest football squad in the history of that college. Four teams have been practicing daily since the opening of college. The Bowdoin squad started the year with 13 veterans and a large number of recruits, under the direction of Head Coach Ostgren, Holy Cross '12, Coach Laeue, Bowdoin '14, and Trainer Magee.

Among the experienced players on the visiting team are Captain Morrell, Dahlgren, Smith, Woodbury, Miller, and Mencham in the backfield, Gibbons at end, and McCurdy, Eames, Wetherell, Eldridge, Mason, and Tootell in the line. Morrell, Dahlgren, Smith and Miller have been doing the punting for Bowdoin, and Mason, Smith and Miller are all able to take care of the other kicking. Other promising men on the Maine college squad are Parsons, Burnett, Shields, Wharton, and Philbrick, linemen, Jones, C. Hildreth and H. Hildreth, ends, and Alfred, Phillips, McDonald and Keane, backfield.

Bowdoin emerged victorious in a rugged game with Rhode Island State College last Saturday by the score of 9-0. Williams' only game thus far resulted in a 14-0 victory over Hamilton at Clinton, N. Y., in which the showing of the Purple team was far from brilliant.

Coach Wendell has been putting the varsity squad through a series of stiff scrimmages during the past week, supplemented by work in all the various departments of the game, such as punting, drop-kicking, forward passing and signal work. There is little likelihood of any change in the Williams line-up from last week's (Continued on Third Page.)

NON-ATHLETIC COUNCIL ELECTS TWO OFFICERS

Budgets of Non-Self-Supporting Organizations to be Investigated

Harrison K. Sayen '22, of West Philadelphia, Pa., and Charles E. Maxwell '23, of Montclair, N. J., were chosen to fill the offices of vice-president and secretary, respectively, of the Non-Athletic Council at a meeting of that body held last Monday evening in Jesup Hall. As chairman of the Student Council, Hiram W. Lyons '22, is also president of the Non-Athletic Council.

At the same time budgets were submitted by representatives of the non-self-supporting organizations. The duty of investigating these budgets was referred to a committee, and a report of the committee will be made at the next meeting.

Sayen '22 prepared for college at the West Philadelphia High School, Pa. He is now manager of the Musical Clubs, business manager of the RECORD, and chairman of the Membership and Finance Committee of the W. C. A. He is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Maxwell '23 prepared for Williams at the Montclair Academy, Montclair, N. J. Since coming to College he has been elected Business Manager of the 1923 Gulet-mensian, and is now Assistant Business Manager of the RECORD and a member of the photographic staff of the Graphic. Maxwell is a member of the Chi Psi fraternity.

1924 VICTORIOUS IN UNDERCLASS BASEBALL

Sophomore Nine Wins Last Game of Series by 10-2 Score—1925 Hits Poorly

Winning the sixth game of the underclass baseball series, played last Tuesday afternoon on Cole Field by the one-sided score of 10 to 2, the sophomore nine gained the necessary fourth victory over 1925, which gave them the championship for the year. Excellent hitting by 1924 and numerous errors on the part of the yearling infielders resulted in a loosely played game, the outcome of which was not in doubt after the first inning.

Buck '24 led the sophomore batsmen with three hits out of four chances, and also led the scoring with three of the ten runs scored. Reed '25 and Newhard '24 both made three base hits during the game, and Dugan '25 and Kellogg '24 drove out doubles. Frequent errors by Freeman, the freshman short stop, in the first two innings, gave the sophomores a 6 to 0 lead at the end of that period, which could not be overtaken later. Sahin, the 1925 pitcher, was erratic at the start of the game, and walked five men, though he later settled down and struck out the same number. The freshmen were not able to drive out many long hits, but seemed to find difficulty with O'Brien's slow ball, and could only hit infield flies and short grounders.

1924 started the game with a rush by throwing out at first the three men who came to bat, and then in the latter half of the inning, scored two runs on an error by Freeman and a hit by Stephenson. Four tallies were garnered by the sophomores in the last of the second when Krause, Newhard, Buck, and Kellogg scored. In the next frame, the freshman batters strengthened temporarily when Dugan doubled and came home when Reed poled out a triple. Due to the early start of rushing dates, only seven innings were played, and in the last frames, the freshmen held the sophomores to scattered runs, but were unable to overcome the 1924 lead. Superior hitting and fielding gave the second year men a decided advantage which was not apparent in the earlier games of the series.

Following is the box score and the score by innings:

1924	ab	r	h	p	a	e
Newhard, ss.	3	1	1	4	2	1
Buck, 2b.	4	3	3	6	3	0

Among the men who have been appearing regularly for practice with the squad are Captain Adams '22, Merriam, Seaman, and Wolfe '22, Fasse, Fitcher, Livingston, Stowers, and Webb '23, Sanford, and Swan '24.

TRUSTEES AND ALUMNI APPROVE NEW COLLEGE ATHLETIC CONTROL POLICY

UNANIMOUS FOR PLAN

Alumni Meet in New York to Discuss New Athletic Policy for Williams

GARFIELD CHIEF SPEAKER

President Urges Athletics for All as Essential Part of College Curriculum

Co-operation of the alumni in the new plan of athletics for Williams was assured at a meeting held at the Williams Club in New York City on October third, which was called by Max Berking, President of the Club "for the purpose of discussing an athletic policy for Williams College." Three representatives from Williamstown, President Garfield, Professor Wild, and Mr. Botsford were present and spoke on the subject.

The sentiment of the meeting was summed up in a motion proposed by Mr. Frank Mills '93, which was passed unanimously. The motion read as follows: "That it be the sense of this meeting that a Physical Director be appointed to have entire charge of intramural athletics under the supervision of the Athletic Council; that he be a member of the Athletic Council with no more power than any other member; that the Athletic Council shall choose coaches from among Williams men if possible, or from any other group of men if suitable Williams men are not available; the Athletic Council to have charge of all intercollegiate athletics and all intramural athletics."

President Garfield was introduced by Mr. Berking, as an "unannounced speaker and old football player who used to play what is now called 'guard,' but what used to be called 'next to centre.'" A cheer for President Garfield was led by William A. Bliss, '97, President of the Society of Alumni. President Garfield's remarks in substance were as follows: "I have realized for a long time that our minds have not met in discussing principles for athletics at Williams. I realize that my thoughts have been misunderstood, probably due to my own fault. In the address which I delivered on the occasion of my inauguration as President of Williams College thirteen years ago, I tried to say that the best athletics were achieved when every man got into the game. I believed then and I now believe in athletics for all. I could not abide seeing eighty per cent of the undergraduate body sitting calmly by, while twenty per cent trained for athletic sport. My whole idea has been against tolerance of a plan which shuts out eighty per cent of the students from participation in sports. I have preached this idea ever since my inauguration. I should like to see every man who is not disabled by physical disability participate in some sort of sport, with the intramural idea being the basis of such a policy. With such a scheme in force the coaches for intercollegiate teams would have at their disposal the largest possible squad of men trained at least in the rudiments of the game. I have never been against intercollegiate athletics, but I have lamented a system which stressed the training of a few men to the exclusion of the large number. At West Point one hundred per cent of the student body is the squad for an athletic team.

Council Awards Agencies

Award of four agencies was made by the Student Council at a meeting held last Saturday in the Council Room, Jesup Hall. The agency for the special train for the Wesleyan game was given to H. C. and H. M. Lawder, '23, that for the Columbia special to Buell and Feeley, '22, that for the Williams Calendar to Dickinson and Wolfe, '22, and that for the College picture to Craig and Schmidt, '22. The basis of these awards, as announced by Lyon, '22, chairman of the Council, is made primarily on the financial necessity of the applicant, and secondarily on class seniority.

YEARLING TRACK MEN TO MEET SOPHOMORES

Annual Underclass Meet Will be Held Monday and Tuesday on Weston Field

Seven events will form the schedule for the opening day of the annual Sophomore-Freshman track meet, which begins Monday afternoon at 4.15 on Weston Field. As usual, entries will be received until the events are actually run off and may be made with officials on the field, as well as with Coach Seeley, Captain Phillips '22, or either of the class captains, Miller '24 or Coleman '25.

Preliminary speculation gives a slight advantage to the Sophomores, whose list of entries is headed by Dodge and Miller, two of last year's varsity sprinters. The ability and previous experience of Clason, Mason, Snell, and Swan '24 in other events will make the 1924 team well balanced. The freshmen show considerable strength in the hurdles and pole vault, in the work of Coleman and Davis '25 respectively.

The official list of entries up to the present time is as follows: 100 yard dash—Miller and Dodge '24, Lugsdin and Francis '25; 220 yard dash—Archer, Bridges, Miller and Dodge '24; 440 yard run—Snell '24, Conklin, Keep and Cranford '25; Half mile—Clason and Oleott '24, Campbell, Bach and Newton '25; One mile—Brayton, Floyd, and Sanford '24, Bach, Campbell, and Newton '25; Two mile—Swan '24; C. Fisher and Cranford '25; 220 yard hurdles—Mason and Wishard '24; Coleman and Longstreet '25; 120 yard hurdles—Wishard '24, Coleman and Longstreet '25; Pole Vault—Perkins '24, Baldwin and Davis '25; High Jump—Sinkler and Wishard '24, Bicknell, Graves and Longstreet '25; Shot put—Weber '24; Hammer throw—Weber '24; Discus—Wishard '24.

The schedule of events will be as follows: Monday, October 10—100-yard dash, 120-yard high hurdles, 440-yard dash, mile run, high jump, shot put, discus throw.

Tuesday, October 12—220-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles, half mile run, two mile run, pole vault, broad jump, hammer throw.

Easy Drill for Track Men

Practice for the varsity track candidates this week has been confined to starting drill followed by a few easy laps each afternoon. Several freshmen have been reporting in preparation for the underclass meet.

1925 Will Choose Class Officers Next Wednesday

Election of freshman class officers will take place at a meeting to be held next Wednesday evening at 7.30 p. m. in Jesup Hall, according to an announcement made by Lyon '22, chairman of the Student Council and temporary president of 1925. The election will be conducted under the old system in which no nominations are made for the first ballot.

At the same time, Lyon will explain the ideals and purposes of the Gargoyle Society, and will give in detail its part in the college activities.

Details of New Plan to be Drawn Up by Executive Committee and Council

NEW LIBRARY IS NAMED

Takes Name From Donor of Fund Which Enables Completion of Edifice

General reorganization of athletics in Williams College into a unified system under the control of the Athletic Council, and the appointment of a Director of Athletics and Physical Training, who shall have the rank and salary of a full professor, was decided on at a meeting of the Board of Trustees which was held in Williamstown last Thursday morning. The plan, which was first drawn up by a committee of the Athletic Council in February, 1921, was approved in principle, and the working out of the details was left to the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees in consultation with the Athletic Council.

At the same time the Trustees decided that the name of the new library should be the Francis Lynde Stetson Library. This action was taken because of the report of the executors of Mr. Stetson's estate that the money derived from that source would be sufficient for the entire completion of the library, and because of the fact that Mr. Stetson had always urged that work on the new library should be pushed ahead in spite of the fact that funds were not available for its completion.

Under the rule which was passed in 1913 the College will accept no building unless provision is made for its maintenance. It was decided that the $231,000 which had previously been given for library purposes, should be turned into a fund, the interest of which will be used to maintain the new library, for such purposes as the salaries of the library staff and the purchase of (Continued on Fourth Page.)

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON WINS SCHOLARSHIP CUP

Non-Fraternity Group and Phi Delta Theta Second and Third

According to statistics announced to the Faculty by Assistant Professor Agard, Chairman of the Committee on Prizes, the scholarship prize of a silver loving cup donated by a member of the class of 1899, and awarded to the member of the fourteen fraternities and the non-fraternity group having the highest scholastic average for the past college year, this year goes to Delta Kappa Epsilon. Second and third place were held by the non-fraternity group and the Phi Delta Theta respectively.

The strength of the winning fraternity lay in its large number of B's, having a total of 98, the largest proportional number of any group. The largest proportional number of A's were accredited to the non-fraternity group. In compiling the ratings of the different groups, the individual grades of each member of a fraternity formed the basis for determining the fraternity's rank.

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

In the Future

During the past week momentous decisions have been reached regarding the future development of a greater Williams.
The alumni meeting last Monday evening in the Williams Club in New York voted unanimous support to the projected plans, and yesterday's Trustee meeting set the official executive stamp of approval upon them.

Particularly gratifying to loyal supporters of the college is the fact that quality and not quantity is being considered, that not a bigger Williams but a greater Williams is contemplated. Not more professorial chairs are desired, but higher-paid existing ones, so that financial considerations may not force the Williams Faculty to rank second to any in the country. More athletic equipment for a larger student body is not sought, but rather better facilities to develop properly the physical well-being of the present number of undergraduates.

The proportion is equitable as well.
Proper emphasis will be laid upon the scholastic side by devoting a million dollars of endowment, when-raised, for the increase of salaries. On the other hand the athletic side will be amply taken care of by an endowment of three hundred thousand dollars for the Directorship of Athletics and an additional half million for the erection of a field gymnasium, or "Williams Triangle." These are big figures for a small college, but Williams men are thinking in big figures these days and achieving big deeds. The generous loyalty which has characterized the alumni and friends of Williams in the past will surely answer this greater call.

In Wonderland

For one brief week freshmen have found themselves living in a looking-glass world, in which the normal relations of college life are just reversed. They have tasted of the same bottle that made the precocious Alice suddenly grow to many times her natural size.

Tonight the inevitable readjustment will start. Upperclassmen who have hitherto showered obsequious cordialities upon their guests will soon administer the bitter draught of normalcy. The lighter side of fraternity life has been the only one in evidence. Freshmen must now begin to realize the duties and responsibilities that they take upon themselves at the time of pledging. And they must also learn all over again just how short a distance on their journey through college freshmen really are.

1925 FOOTBALL TEAM MEETS HOOSICK HIGH

Tentative Line-up is Announced by Coach Fulle—Dickey, '25 Stars in Scrimmage

Oct. 7—Opening the 1921 football season, the freshmen eleven will oppose Hoosick High School on Saturday afternoon at 2.00 o'clock, before the varsity team meets Bowdoin, on Weston Field. The prospects are very favorable for a successful outcome for the 1925 team.

The tentative line-up for this game as announced by Coach Fulle is as follows:
Clark, center, Brownell and Dunham, guards, Evans and Farnsworth, tackles, Beckwith and Leete, with Davis substituting, ends, Dickey, quarterback, Chandler and Post, halfbacks, and Bourne, full back.

Last Tuesday was devoted to scrimmage between two freshman teams and in a hard scrimmage with the varsity on Wednesday, the freshmen held their opponents to one touchdown. The backfield and ends have showed up very well in the practices, Dickey starting at quarterback for the 1925 team. The line, however, shows need of improvement, but it is expected that with the practice of the next few days it will be in condition to cope with the Hoosick team.

The practice of Thursday was devoted to a second clash with the varsity. As final practice for the opening game the freshmen were scheduled to run through a light signal drill this afternoon.

LAST MONTH PROVED TO BE WARM AND DRY

Observations at College Station Show Little Rainfall and High Temperature

According to the summary of the meteorological observations at the Williams College station the month of September was unusually warm and dry.

The highest temperature during the month was 85 degrees on the 2nd and the lowest 38 degrees on the morning of the 27th. Neither of these temperatures is at all extreme or unusual as the highest and lowest ever observed during September for the last twenty years are 87 and 25 respectively. The average temperature for the month was 62.5 degrees, which is quite a little above the normal of 59.6 degrees.
In fact, it has been surpassed but once during the last twenty years. September 1915, averaged 63.2 degrees.

The total rainfall was 2.41 inches. This is below the normal, which is 3.21 inches, but it has been surpassed for scantiness
many times during the last twenty years.
In 1908 the September rainfall was only 0.38 inches.

There were 14 clear days, 9 partly cloudy days, and 7 cloudy days during the month.
Rain fell on 6 days. The month passed without even a light frost of any kind.
This is very unusual and has not happened more than once in twenty years.

TUESDAY SET AS DATE FOR COLLEGE MEETING

Revised Class Election System and Sunday Privilege to be Discussed

Three questions of importance to the student body are to be brought up at a college meeting to be held at 7.15 next Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall. The resolution adopted by the student council recently regarding participation of varsity insignia men in managerial competitions is to be discussed before the meeting. The college rule regarding Sunday privilege is also to be discussed. A new plan for college elections is to be presented to take the place of that which was adopted last year.

that we must recognize that to turn out a well rounded man requires that he be developed in three ways: in the class room, in the chapel, and on the athletic field. Educators have been slow to recognize that the latter was an essential. Trained in these three things, a man faces life equipped to do the right thing instinctively in any crisis. Proper correlation of these three branches of development is absolutely necessary.

"We are met to-night to discuss the matter of the development of the man on the athletic field. I wish to state again that I do not believe in intramural athletics to the exclusion of intercollegiate athletics, but rather that it is a fundamental that the training of all will lead up to the selection of teams for intercollegiate competition.

"I should like to call to your attention that on October first there were 582 men enrolled as undergraduates in Williams College. Of these, 385 are regularly engaged in one form or another of athletic sport—this amounts to two-thirds of the undergraduate enrollment. I should like to see it mount up to one hundred per cent.

"Last May the Board of Trustees authorized the appointment of a Director of Athletics, to be a member of the faculty with professor's rank and professor's pay, and to superintend the physical education of the student body. To-night I should like to hear a discussion of this general proposition."

Mr. Berking then introduced Professor H. D. Wild. Professor Wild stated that heretofore the trouble had been that the development of the mind, the soul, and the body in Williams and in other colleges had not been properly correlated. "The first two have been recognized at Williams and properly taken care of, but the third has not yet received the proper study.

"To trace back this feature of the development of the body, some progress has been made at Williams. First, recognition of the need of the development of the body of the student was made when funds were appropriated for the erection of a gymnasium. Later, intercollegiate sports were developed which made it possible for a few students to get training in athletic games. Most recently, intramural sports have been introduced and larger numbers of students have been able to receive training in athletic sports. Now there is a need for the proper correlation of gymnastic work, intercollegiate athletics and intramural sports. Our plan is as follows: first, to appoint a Physical Director who shall be responsible to the President and the Trustees for the physical development of the undergraduates; second, this gentleman shall be a doctor of medicine, preferably. He shall have a seat on the faculty with rank of professor, and he shall be chairman of the Faculty Athletic Committee, which gives him a seat on the Athletic Council. We propose that coaches for various sports shall be appointed by the Trustees or that they shall be appointed by the Athletic Council, but that they shall be Williams men, that they shall be members of the faculty and their appointments permanent. I call to your attention the fact that one athletic organization which has been most uniformly successful at Williams during a great many years has been the Track Team, which has since 1883 been under the coaching direction of Mr. Sealey."

Mr. Berking next called on Mr. Botsford, who took up the need for financial means for bringing about this proposed general athletic plan, and stated his enthusiastic belief in the idealism of Dr. Garfield's proposal. There was then general discussion, in which Makepeace, '00, Gutterson, '04, and Hurd, '03, took part. Mr. Makepeace advised against the abolition of the Athletic Council, Mr. Gutterson advocated the need of interesting desirable men of athletic ability in going to Williams, and Mr. Hurd spoke on the subject of the selection of football coaches. President Garfield took the floor a second time and carried on a discussion with Clark Williams, '92 of the advisability of getting secondary school athletes to come to Williams.

After the discussion, the plan of the administration, as printed in another column of this issue, was read by Professor Wild. At the close of further discussion, the motion introduced by Mr. Mills was unanimously passed. The meeting ended with the singing of "The Mountains".

new books. When the new library is completed sometime during the next year, it will thus be fully endowed. A discussion was held as to the use which is to be made of the present libraries in Griffin, Lawrence, and Goodrich Halls after the completion of the new library, and, although it was decided to devote them to class and lecture rooms, no definite details can yet be given out.

In view of the fact that suggestions have come from alumni regarding a change in the commencement exercises, a conference committee of the faculty was appointed by the Trustees, among the members of which are Professors Maxey, Mears, and Wild. This committee was instructed to confer with those alumni from whom suggestions as to the reconstituting of the exercises have come and to report at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees.

In February, 1921, the plan for the reorganization of athletics in Williams was drawn up by a committee of the Athletic Council consisting of Mr. Botsford, Professor Wild, and Dr. Adriance. At that time it was approved by the Board of Trustees in principle and was referred to the Executive Committee for the working out of the details. In May the Board of Trustees authorized the appointment of a Director of Athletics, but it was impossible to secure a man who was deemed competent for the position. In June it was decided to postpone action on the matter in order to permit conference between the Executive Committee of the Trustees and the alumni, and to make sure that the new department of Physical Training and Athletics should have firm financial footing before further action on the matter was taken. It is estimated that the establishment of such a department would mean an additional expenditure by the College for salaries and equipment of $15,000 a year, necessitating a trust fund of $300,000.

The new department will be put into operation as soon as the funds are available. It is hoped that these funds will be forthcoming in connection with the campaign for $1,000,000 additional endowment for Williams which is being planned. The amount stated is needed to meet increases in the salaries of the faculty, but it is expected that enough beyond the minimum will be secured to provide for the establishment of this department. Any additional money which may be subscribed in the campaign will be used for the erection of a new field gymnasium, equipped with basketball floors, indoor tennis courts, squash courts, and a baseball infield, and for the further development of Cole Field and the enlargement of the Cole Field hockey rink.

The co-operation of the alumni in the new plan was assured at a meeting of Williams Alumni at the Williams Club in New York City on October 3, an account of which will be found in another column of this issue. At this meeting, which was attended by President Garfield, Mr. Botsford, and Professor Wild, a motion in favor of the proposed plan was unanimously passed. The plan, in principle, was approved by the Trustees last Thursday. The details are to be worked out by the Executive Committee and the Athletic Council. The statement of the plan, as approved by the Trustees, is as follows:

"There is need at Williams of a reform in the whole matter of athletics and physical training. We have fallen far behind other institutions in this regard. The movement set on foot by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, although it has shown increasing results throughout the country since the war, has failed to reach Williams. If the ideal of athletics for all is to become anything more than a theory with us, some sound program of physical education must be thought out and put into operation, a program that so far from unduly exalting athletics and physical exercise shall incorporate them as a wholesome and expected element in the college fabric. A college should make official and systematic provision for the physical development of every one of its students as it does for his mental development.

"To accomplish this at Williams a change is needed in two fundamental respects,—our policy must be broadened and it must also be unified. The physical welfare of all the students throughout their course should be made in a practical way a care of the College. Again, we are bound in a system, if it can be called a system, that consists of separate compartments, each one of which has developed by itself without relation to the others in the gradual growth of the institution. There should be co-ordination and unification of these different elements. At the same time, it would be poor economy to discard existing machinery that has been tested and perfected. Wherever possible it should still be employed, readjusted to fit the wider plan. An illustration of this may be seen in the possible development of intramural sports on the one hand and the functions of the Athletic Council on the other. One great difficulty with our situation has been that intramural sports have not been attached to the central source of energy in athletics. This center is represented by the Athletic Council, which has control of intercollegiate athletics, collects funds for this purpose by levying a tax on the students, and has charge of Weston Field. The machinery is efficient and powerful. Meanwhile intramural sports have been on a wholly different footing. Under the control of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, but without any standing in the Athletic Council, they have been provided for hitherto in a hit-or-miss fashion. They have been looked on somewhat askance because they have no official connection with the organized athletic life of the College. The remedy is to give them this connection.

"In general, the plan of reorganization involves the following elements: The appointment by the President and Trustees of a first-class Director of Athletics and Physical Training, of the type now so successfully employed in many institutions, a man who holds the degree of Doctor of Medicine and who shall have the rank and salary of a full Professor; the appointment from time to time of such assistants to the Director as may be found necessary; the continuation of the Athletic Council as at present constituted; the turning over to the Athletic Council of Cole Field, the Old Campus and the tennis grounds, to be cared for and administered by it, subject to the jurisdiction of the President and Trustees, as has been the case hitherto with Weston Field, on the understanding, however, that they shall be used solely for intramural sports and for the benefit of all the students unless permission is granted by the President and Trustees for their use in special cases for the purposes of intercollegiate athletics; the making over to the Athletic Council of the balance of such funds as have been given for the development of Cole Field, as shown on the books of the Treasurer of the College; the appropriation from year to year on the part of the President and Trustees of such sums of money as may be necessary for the equipment and up-keep of the fields, not including Weston Field, and for the carrying out of the general program of intramural sports, in such a way that this program shall not involve an increase in the tax levied on the students, which shall be levied, as heretofore, to defray the expenses of intercollegiate athletics only.

"The functions of the different officials, organizations, and elements under this plan will be as follows:
"Director of Athletics and Physical Training: To have supervision of the health and physical development of all the students, to conduct physical examinations in the case of every student, including candidates for intercollegiate teams; to have general charge of the Infirmary; to conduct the course in Hygiene; to be a member of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, and thus have a seat on the Athletic Council; to develop and assist the work of the Outing Club as an agency for cultivating wholesome outdoor life; to cooperate with the President and Trustees, the Faculty, the Athletic Council, and the students in all ways likely to promote the success of this plan.

"The Athletic Council: To be constituted and to operate as heretofore, subject to the jurisdiction of the President and Trustees, with the additional function of administering formally, in consultation with the Director of Athletics and Physical Training, the funds entrusted to it for the equipment and up-keep of the fields to be used for intramural sports; to be, as before, financially responsible for all matters connected with intercollegiate athletics, and to determine their policy; to employ coaches and other officials connected with intercollegiate athletics; to award athletic insignia, and to determine the general rules of eligibility.

"The Faculty Committee on Athletics: To sanction the schedules of intercollegiate games; to cooperate with the Director (the Director being a member of the Committee) in arranging for and developing intramural sports; to serve as a connecting link between the Administration and the Athletic Council.

"The Alumni: To be represented, as heretofore, on the Athletic Council through the Alumni Athletic Association.

"The Students: To continue to elect managers of Intercollegiate Athletic organizations, these managers to be members of the Athletic Council, and, under the supervision of the Director, to assist through managers and committees chosen for the purpose in arranging and carrying out the schedules of intramural sports.

"The Gymnasium: The work in the gymnasium to be under the immediate supervision of the Director of Athletics and Physical Training, subject to the jurisdiction of the President and Trustees; the Director of the Gymnasium to be appointed by the President and Trustees, but to be subordinate to the Director of Athletics and Physical Training; in other words, no change to be made except to constitute the Directorship of the Gymnasium a part of a larger department instead of being a department by itself."

SOOCHOW CAMPAIGN BEGINS WEDNESDAY

Drive is Williams Contribution to International Y. M. C. A. Movement

PURPOSE OF WORK TO CHRISTIANIZE CHINA

Other Colleges Subscribed Over $114,000 to Chinese Work in Last Year

Active campaigning for the "Williams-in-China" drive will begin next Wednesday. The Williams Christian Association has issued further information about the Soochow project, in order to familiarize the College with the cause it is urged to support.

The Soochow drive is to be Williams' contribution to the international Y. M. C. A. movement, which has been doing a specialized work for students and business and professional men in all quarters of the globe. The Soochow Association, of which Mr. Egbert W. Hayes, special Williams representative, is the head, is primarily developing Chinese leadership, with the result that in 1920 there were three times as many Chinese secretaries as American secretaries, and a native Chinaman now holds the position of National General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of China.

China offers a wide field for the work of the Y. M. C. A. The country is still in the transition period in education, with the need for modern practical teaching on the increase. Rapid development is taking place.

CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM OPPOSES MIDDLEBURY

Four Meets Have Been Arranged Seven Men to Make First Trip of Season

Four meets, the first of which is to be run against Middlebury at Middlebury today, have been arranged for the cross country team by track manager Richardson '22. The schedule as ratified by the Athletic Council is as follows: October 15, Middlebury at Middlebury; October 22, open; October 29, Springfield College, here; November 5, Wesleyan at Middlebury; November 12, New England Intercollegiate at Boston.

Seven men, besides Coach Seeley and Manager Richardson, are making the Middlebury trip. They are Captain Adams and Seaman '22, Fawcett, Fitcher, and Webb '22, Sanford and Swan '21. Since Williams has never had a race with Middlebury before, there is no chance to compare the two teams, but indications are that Middlebury has a strong team this fall. Coach Seeley, on the other hand, has had to develop a comparatively new team this year, having lost Coan, Crofts, and Kellogg by graduation last spring.

College Dance Orchestra Will Play on Xmas Trip

Again featured by the performance of the College Orchestra with an entirely new repertoire, the Combined Musical Clubs will take a trip during the Christmas recess, appearing in five or six cities, the names of which will be announced in a few days. The Clubs have been little weakened by graduations, and several new men, taken on as a result of the recent trials, have served to bring the organization up to full strength.

Dances, with music supplied by the Williams Orchestra, will follow all of the concerts. This ensemble, which gained such wide popularity on last year's trip, will probably be in the form of a sextet composed of Jones '23, saxophone; Morse '23, violin; Greer '22, banjo; Quintance '23, traps; Luedke '22, piano, and probably another man yet to be selected. The Orchestra lost but one man by graduation. Chapman and Greer '22 are leading the Glee and Mandolin Clubs respectively, and Sayen '22 is managing the Combined Clubs. The organization is fortunate in having again secured the services of Mrs. Charles F. Seeley as coach of the Clubs.

Varsity Baseball Squad Has Final Fall Practice

Oct. 14—Final practice for the varsity baseball squad this fall will be held this afternoon, on Cole Field, and next Monday Coach Coombs will leave Williamstown until next February or March when work in the cage will start. No heavy drill has been held during the past week due to the rain and the intervention of Mountain Day, but light practice was held on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

Practice games were played on both of those days, and though frequent errors marred the playing on both teams, the hitting was exceptionally good for fall work. Hoyt '23 has changed to left handed batting and succeeded, in the game on Tuesday, in putting out a triple. Sabin '25 has been showing up well on the mound though his control is not up to standard. Coach Coombs expects to have about 25 men working in the cage next spring, and excellent results should be obtained from the line of practice that he has laid out.

Mountain Day Proves Stormy

Mountain Day, one of the oldest traditions of the College, was observed last Wednesday. Due to the generally poor weather, however, the usual hikes which were planned for that day in most cases had to be postponed.

UNDERCLASS MEET WON BY 1924 TRACK SQUAD

Decisive Victory Gained by 79-47 Score—Wishard Stars With 31 Points

1924 won a decisive victory over the freshman track team in the annual fall interclass track meet held last Monday and Thursday afternoons on Weston Field, and the sophomore runners were at no time pressed in maintaining the lead which was gained from the first event. The final score was 79 to 47, and the points garnered by the yearlings were for the most part due to their ability to get the second and third places, while the sophomores were able to take 10 of the 14 first places.

Wishard '24 was the star of the meet and succeeded in getting 31 points by winning the low hurdles, the high jump, the discus throw, the javelin throw, and the shot put, and also took second place in the high hurdles and the broad jump. One of the features of the Thursday afternoon events was Wishard's victory over Coleman '25 in the low hurdles, as was also the defeat of Miller '24 by Perkins '24 in the 220-yard dash. Wishard's superiority in the field events was consistently evident, as he lost but two out of six. His work in both the low and high hurdles was also a revelation, as he has improved considerably since last year.

Swan '24 with 10 points was second point-winner of the sophomore team and of the meet, and managed to take first places in both the mile and two-mile runs. Sanford '24 was second in both of these events. Keep '25 was individual star of the freshmen with eight points, and his fast victory over Snell in the 440-yard dash was unexpected and exceedingly good running. The time of 53.3-5 seconds under the wet conditions of the track was very fast and indicates that he can make much better time in the spring when the track is in its best shape. Driscoll '25 was second point winner for the freshmen and succeeded in taking two second and one third places, making a total of seven points. However the only event in which the 1925 men were able to get all three places was the pole vault which Davis and Baldwin tied, and Longstreet took the third position.

No brilliant material was found in the new runners, but it is hoped that Keep will make a good quarter miler in the (Continued on Third Page.)

'Graphic' Competes to Meet

Oct. 14—Because of the confusion arising from the cancelling of meetings on the evening before Mountain Day, any additional men who wish to enter the competition for the business managership of the Graphic may do so by reporting to Larkin '23 in the Graphic office this evening at 7.30 p. m.

Nominating Committee System is Made Permanent by Unanimous Vote

THIRD RESOLUTION REVISED

New Section Requests Return to Last Year's Sunday Privilege Rules

Resolutions bearing upon the revised nominating system for class elections and upon the restriction of competitors for athletic managerships were passed by the undergraduate body as recommended by the student council at a college meeting held last Thursday evening in Jesup Hall. At a meeting of students who at present have the Sunday Privilege, which was held immediately after the college meeting, action was taken on the third resolution which was presented by the Student Council.

The first two resolutions were passed without discussion and practically unanimously. They read as follows:

a. The nominating ballot shall be used in Freshman elections prior to and including the election of class officers.

2. This committee shall be composed of five (5) men to be appointed by the class president with the advice of the other three class officers, at least forty-eight (48) hours previous to the holding of the election.

a. No man shall serve on this committee twice in succession, nor more than three (3) times during the college year.

b. The names of the committee shall be entered on the class minutes.

3. The names of the nominees together with those of the nominating committee shall be published in the Adviser at least twenty-four (24) hours previous to the holding of the election.

Outing Club Conducting Competition for Mileage

In order to arouse increased interest in hiking and to improve the condition of trails in the vicinity, the Outing Club has formulated a "Mileage Competition," open to every undergraduate. The club will award a prize to the man walking the greatest number of miles between Mountain Day and May 30 next.

Both official and unofficial mileage will count in the award. Official mileage will consist in distance covered on an organized Outing Club trip, and unofficial mileage will comprise distance covered by a person or group of persons whose destination and objective are approved by the club. Records will be kept by means of blank cards obtainable at the Club office on the top floor of Jesup Hall. These cards contain spaces for entering the destination, trail, distance, time, condition of trail, drinking water, signs, date, and party. Men taking hikes are asked to fill out the cards both for the purpose of the contest and for information leading to improvement of local walking conditions.

Active membership cards will be issued next week, to be signed by all men interested in organized Outing Club activities, such as hikes, winter sports, and intercollegiate carnivals.

1925 ELECTS BOURNE TO CLASS PRESIDENCY

Fisher, Sabin and Post are Chosen to Fill Three Remaining Offices

Richard W. Bourne '25 of New Bedford, Mass., Harris B. Fisher '25, of New Rochelle, N. Y., Charles H. Sabin '25 of New York City, and Robert W. Post '25 of Jersey City, N. J. were elected to the positions of president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer respectively at a meeting of the Freshman Class held last Thursday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time Lyon '22, first man tapped for Gargoyle last spring, spoke on the foundation, purposes and ideals of that society and explained its position in the college life of Williams.

Bourne prepared for Williams at the Moses Brown School, of Providence, R. I., where he was a member of the football, baseball, and swimming teams. He was captain of the football team during his senior year, and was also president of the athletic association. While at Williams he has made the freshman football team and is at present a regular halfback. He is pledged to the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Fisher prepared for Williams at the St. John's Manlius Academy, at Manlius, N. Y., where he was a member of the football, baseball, basketball, tennis, hockey, and golf teams, and in his senior year was elected captain of the baseball team and vice-president of his class. For two years he was awarded the All-Around Athletic Cup of Manlius. Since coming to Williams he has played on the freshman baseball team, has been appointed acting captain, and is pledged to the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Sabin prepared at the Evans School in Arizona, and during the war served in the United States Signal Corps, being stationed at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio. At the Evans School he was captain of the baseball team for two years and was a member of the board of the school paper for the same length of time. He was also elected senior class president. This fall he has played on the freshman baseball team, and is pledged to the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Post prepared for Williams at the Lincoln High School, in Jersey City, where he played on the football team for three years, and was vice-president, treasurer, and twice president of his class. Since coming to Williams he has played on the freshman football team and is pledged to the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Phil. Union to Meet Monday

Professor A. H. Morton will speak on "Metaphysical Ghosts" at the first meeting of the Philosophical Union which will be held in the Currier Hall Common Room next Monday evening at 8.00 p. m. The annual election of officers will also take place as well as a general discussion of the topic treated by the speaker.

PURPLE KEYED UP FOR YALE CONTEST

Wendell Expects Team to Put Up Good Fight Today—Burger and Wilson Return

ELI BASES ATTACK UPON AERIAL PLAY

Bulldog Eleven Has Downed Bates, University of Vermont, and North Carolina

October 15—Williams plays Yale at New Haven today in the first game between the two New England colleges for over 20 years. On the eve of the departure for the contest, Coach Wendell would issue no statement as to the chances of a victory, but expressed the belief that the Purple would put up a good fight, and requested that as many as possible follow the team.

Yesterday afternoon, 25 men left the Lasell Gymnasium in excellent condition and spirits. Burger and J. E. Wilson, whose line-bucking ability was sorely missed in the game against Bowdoin last Saturday are back in the lineup, and will start the game against the Eli eleven. Henly and Pense will again start at the end positions. Jones and Robinson will start as guards in place of Montgomery and Byers who began the Bowdoin game. Boynton will start at center. The other men who will make the trip are as follows: Barnes, Byers, S. T. Brigham, Clark, Fargo (capt.), Hoffman, Humes, Laws, Mallon, Monjo, Montgomery, Parker, Phillips, Richmond, Reuther, Weber, Wilcox, and H. S. Wilson.

NEW ALUMNI ADVISORY COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Will Give Suggestions and Advice to Dramatic and Musical Organizations

In order to stimulate interest in dramatic and musical organizations at Williams the Alumni Advisory Committee on Dramatics and Musical Activities was founded recently through the efforts of the Williams Club in New York City.

Don H. Arnold '10 was appointed chairman by Max Berking '02, president of the Club, who also serves as a member of the committee ex officio. The other men, who were chosen by the chairman are Karl E. Weston '06, Francis J. Daforth '00, Francis S. Hutcheson '00, George E. Hite, Jr. '08, Harry A. Johnston '09, Stanley M. Babson '12, Van H. Cartmell, Jr. '17, and Woodruff Sutton '93 who will act as chairman of the Entertainment Committee, a sub-organization of the main committee.

In accordance with the decision reached last spring at several meetings held by the officers of Cap and Bells and interested alumni, the function of this committee, being solely of a advisory capacity, will be to provide a channel and "clearing house" for the transmission of suggestions and advice from alumni towards any possible improvements in dramatic and musical performances. In full, the part to be played by the committee will be as follows:

1. To read plays, suggesting those found suitable to the Board of Directors of Cap and Bells for their consideration.

2. To assist both the Musical Clubs and Cap and Bells in their plans for trips.

3. To advise both organizations in the selection of coaches and in the purchase of equipment.

4. To act as representatives of the Alumni in order to bring about a mutual understanding between the alumni and undergraduate bodies.

Already the Advisory Committee has suggested that undergraduates should try their skill in writing musical comedies or short sketches for performance either at the College Smoker or at some of the entertainments given during the winter, with the end in view of arousing a greater interest in Cap and Bells, and also of bringing to light any talent for acting or writing that may exist in College.

Nightingales?

The American college student is by nature a night-owl. Be he the most zealous seeker for knowledge or the most assiduous avoider of it, his latent talents rarely attain their maximum efficiency until about ten o'clock at night in his own opinion. The stroke of ten finds every college man working at top speed: some bent over abstruse studies, some gaily invoking the spirit of mirth, of harmony, and oft of discord, and some—not many, it is true—striving against odds to fit themselves, through sleep, to fight their college's battles on the gridiron, the track, or the diamond.

Rules of training require football men to retire at a uniformly early hour. At Princeton, music is forbidden on the campus after ten o'clock because it keeps the varsity players awake. At Williams, it seems, a little thoughtfulness and self-abnegation in the matter of musical instruments and loud noises after ten o'clock would be distinctly beneficial to the team, and is the least that can be asked of the undergraduates during the football season.

While on this topic, is it not a trifle strange that the importance of sufficient sleep for football players is universally recognized, whereas no one seems to appreciate the necessity of sleep for the ordinary student? Mental effort, we are agreed, is essentially as fatiguing as physical effort, and is certainly more representative of the purpose of the college. But suggestions for helping our intellectual warriors acquire their well-earned repose are noticeably lacking. None of us, neither athletes nor students, wish maliciously to burn the midnight filament any longer than is necessary; we therefore suggest the staging of all saxophone concerts, intradormitory warfare, and divers other entertaining but boisterous pastimes at some hour prior to ten o'clock at night. Day-time is the world's play-time; night was intended for meditation and rest.

Student Self-Government

The far-reaching value of the first Intercollegiate Conference on Student Self-Government which met at M. I. T. last spring was generally acclaimed at the time. The healthy interchange of ideas and of solutions to common problems, made possible by such a representative gathering from every institution of importance east of the Mississippi, could not do otherwise than reflect some benefit on the colleges and universities in question.

In this connection we read with interest the recent announcement from Dartmouth that fuller recognition of student self-government as regards Seniors has been definitely decided upon by the Dean of the college, with President Hopkins in hearty accord. At Dartmouth, as at Williams, the advanced standing of a Senior has been somewhat recognized heretofore, and he has on occasion been tacitly accorded by the Dean's office the additional consideration befitting one who is soon to join the ranks of the alumni.

The above announcement, however, constitutes the first concrete, formal statement of such a policy that has come to our attention. Although the policy is characterized as an experiment, authoritative opinion at Hanover seems agreed that such success will attend the operation of the plan as to make it a permanent institution for future Seniors. Its development will be watched with interest at Williams. For details as to the policy we quote from The Dartmouth of October 5, 1921.

"The working details of the plan (to institute a new form of self-government for seniors in all matters coming within the province of the Dean of the College) are built around the sense of responsibility normally possessed by an undergraduate of fourth year standing within the College. Its main provision is that every request made by a senior who has viewed the matter from every angle and can say that he honestly and reasonably has a right to expect it to be granted, will be acceded to by the Dean. No further questions will be asked. It is the conviction of Dean Laycock that men of senior standing can be trusted to govern themselves to this extent, and he is anxious to place upon them a mark of distinction and consideration deserved by men in their position.

"It does not provide for unlimited cuts for seniors. It means simply that if a man has used up all available cuts and is suddenly called upon to absent himself from classes for any worthy reason, he will be granted the necessary excuse by the Dean. And it will be granted without any further questioning, providing the man himself believes his request reasonable. That is the sole criterion by which the senior's petition will be judged.

"A proposition to make the seniors at Dartmouth College absolutely free men is the way Dean Laycock described the scheme. 'Its fundamental purpose is to make the senior an alumnus before graduation so that the new freedom that comes when he leaves college will find him better prepared and more capable of utilizing it to advantage.'"

TO HONOR GARFIELD IN BANQUET TONIGHT

Five Presidents of Other Colleges and Many Prominent Alumni Will Attend

In order to honor President Harry A. Garfield for having conceived and carried out successfully the Institute of Politics at Williams College during the past summer, a dinner will be given this evening at the Nayasset Club, Springfield, which will be attended by several other college presidents and prominent alumni of both this and other colleges.

The college executives who will be present are Alexander Meiklejohn, of Amherst, William A. Shanklin, of Wesleyan, John E. Cousins, of Tufts, William Neilson, of Smith, and L. L. Doggett, of Springfield. In addition to these there will be present such noted men as Bliss Perry, Williams, '81, now professor of English literature at Harvard University, who will act as toastmaster.

Dr. Garfield will give the inside history of the Institute of Politics, which attracted students of International history from every part of the country to hear the principles and policies of world leaders.

It is expected that this meeting will be the largest gathering of Williams alumni ever held in Springfield. A business meeting for the election of officers will be held at 6.30 p. m. preceding the dinner. Dean Edward M. Lewis, acting head of the Massachusetts Agricultural College and a Williams graduate of the class of '96, is president of the Connecticut Valley Alumni Association that is arranging the program.

Intensive practice in every department of the game has been the order of the week. Secret practices have been held on several days, and both the line and backfield have been worked hard in preparation for today's game. The scrimmages during the week have been supplemented by concentrated work in drop-kicking, punting, passing, and much signal work.

Yale, basing her attack on forward passes, has come out victorious in all of the three games played thus far this season, having defeated Bates College 28-0, the University of Vermont, 14-0, and North Carolina, 34-0. A survey of the conclusions that may be drawn from the playing of the Eli team in these contests throws considerable light on what the Purple may expect at New Haven today.

In the game against Bates, Yale scored her first touchdown in the first five minutes of play, when Aldrich, captain of the Blue eleven, ran back Mouton's punt 30 yards, and Jordan, Yale fullback, twice broke through center for eight yards. Yale was held on downs at the Bates three-yard line, but Davis of Bates fumbled to Aldrich, and on the next play, Jordan went through tackle for the first score. The second period opened with the ball in Yale's possession on Bates 40-yard mark. Neither team was able to gain consistently until, with only two minutes remaining, Murphy of Yale passed to Mallory, netting 30 yards, and Aldrich circled left end to Bates 10-yard line as the half ended. Yale scored again in the third period. Aldrich ran back a punt for 30 yards. Murphy passed to Mallory for 30 yards, and after several short line attacks by Jordan and Mallory, Aldrich carried the ball across. Shortly afterward Jordan scored the third touchdown. In the final period, Murphy ran back a punt 40 yards, and Neidlinger tore off the remaining 40 yards for a touchdown. Three of the goals were kicked by Aldrich, and the fourth by Wight.

With the University of Vermont on the offensive during the entire game, and making only two first downs, Yale won her second game 14-0 in a game characterized as strictly unspectacular. Throughout the entire first half, Yale was unable to penetrate the visitor's line. The Eli team tried four field goals, all of which failed. Captain Aldrich again starred for the Blue and White with his plays through tackle, and Jordan featured on his plays through both center and tackle. Yale lost several chances to score through costly fumbles and stubborn opposition of the Vermont line. After a long series of gains by Aldrich and Jordan, the first touchdown was carried across the line by the former in the third period. The second score came at the beginning of the fourth quarter, when a series of drives through the line brought the ball on the Vermont ½-yard line on the fourth down. Oed carried the ball across from this position. Both goals were kicked by Jordan.

Yale displayed a dazzling and varied attack in her third game of the season played against North Carolina last Saturday afternoon. Despite the soggy condition of the field, Yale was able to baffle the Southern eleven with a forward pass, Aldrich to Jordan, which resulted in the first touchdown. This pass was the first successful one gained by the Eli's this season. In the second period, Aldrich's broken-field 40-yard run tallied the second score, and two passes, Aldrich to Blair and Becket to Mallory brought the ball to North Carolina's five-yard line, from which Aldrich plunged through for the third touchdown before the close of the first half. Early in the third period, Mallory intercepted a forward and ran 40 yards for another touchdown, and Wight's long pass to Becket started things for the fourth tally in the final period. Wight went through center and over the line. Yale used a substitute team throughout the entire second half. The final score was 34-0 in favor of the New Haven team, Aldrich kicking three goals and Wight one. Cruikshank broke through for several spectacular tackles.

Tentative lineups of the teams follow:

With proper training and practice, Wishard will undoubtedly make a good weight man, and should partially fill the vacancy that has been felt for some time in the field department. However the times made in the meet are good for the season and the condition of the track, and both the varsity men and the new material should show improvement in the spring drill.

Soochow Campaign Begins Wednesday

ing place in the utilization and exportation of China's rich natural resources. The Y. M. C. A. workers are helping materially in these phases of Chinese growth, as well as in combating the pneumonic plague, in fighting opium, in relieving flood and famine victims, in underpinning moral foundations, and above all in winning leaders to Christianity. Dr. Paul S. Reisch, American Minister to China, has said, "There have been many great crises in history, but none comparable to the drama which is now being enacted, in the Far East, upon the outcome of which depends the welfare not only of a country or a section of the race, but of all mankind."

Under the leadership of Mr. Hayes, hundreds of Soochow's influential men have joined in Y. M. C. A. work in their city. They have organized and taught Bible classes, promoted five Student Associations, assisted local churches in work for men and boys, provided opportunities for service with boys in Soochow industries, provided recreational facilities, and conducted health lectures and educational and religious classes for Government school students. Mr. Hayes is receiving the co-operation of Soochow's city officials and leading business men, who have contributed $40,000 to the cause, of the president of the Chamber of Commerce, the president of the Self-Government Association, and the principal of the Agricultural School. General Chu, the military chief of Soochow, was one of many private contributors with a donation of $1,000 to the Soochow Y. M. C. A.

In writing of his work in Soochow, Mr. Hayes stated that "one of the most important reasons why Williams should support our work is that we are developing Chinese leadership more rapidly than any other organization. The chief duty of our secretaries is to develop Chinese secretaries who will eventually be able to carry on the work alone." . . . The funds sent from America have been simply for the expenses of the American secretaries and the erection of buildings. Local expenses, together with money necessary for the purchase of land, have been raised locally. Money given by American friends acts as a stimulus to call forth greater contributions from among the Chinese."

Numerous American colleges contributed generously to Chinese Y. M. C. A. work last year. Yale led the field with gifts aggregating $55,000, Princeton gave $32,000, Pennsylvania gave $10,000, California gave $7,500, and ten other colleges gave a total of $9,000. The inhabitants of China, both Christian and Non-Christian, gave more than $504,000 for Y. M. C. A. work in their leading cities in 1919.

Authoritative comment from high sources is unanimous in expressing appreciation of the work of the Y. M. C. A. in China, one portion of which next week's W. C. A. campaign will seek to perpetuate. Speaking at the twentieth anniversary dinner of the Shanghai Y. M. C. A., Judge Charles S. Lobingier, of the United States Court for China, declared, "One of the most marvelous chapters in that story of growth (of the Y. M. C. A.) has been written right here in Shanghai, where in a score of years the Association has reached a membership of 3,200, with a boys' branch which is the second largest in the world. Its program is nothing less than the development of the triune man—body, soul, spirit." The Honorable Hugo Reiss, Consul for Brazil, said, "Perhaps the most striking example of your prodigious efforts is the tremendous success you have achieved in China. During my many years' residence here I have taken a keen interest in noting the splendid way you have influenced the young men of China in developing initiative, which means producing men of strong character, so greatly needed in upbuilding this new Republic."

In opening a $250,000 Y. M. C. A. campaign in Shanghai, Mr. James Kerfoot, General Manager of the Yangtsepo and Ewo Cotton Mills, stated, "We must have men of the right calibre and ability to conduct the affairs and commerce of this city, and we can only get them by having an institution of this character in this and in all large cities in China." The North China Daily News, Shanghai's leading journal, declares editorially that "institutions of the stamp of the Y. M. C. A. are indeed helping to mold China anew; and although it may be said that the young men who frequent its classes and gymnasiums do so primarily for their own advancement, the outcome is one by which foreigners resident in China are also benefited."

1925 Scores in Scrimmage

Under the direction of Coach Fulle, freshman football practice is progressing, several scrimmages with the varsity having been held during the past week, and the customary practice with the line-backing machine and the tackling dummy being continued.

In last Wednesday's scrimmage the freshman team succeeded in making a touchdown, and prevented the first team from scoring. Yale plays were used in order to familiarize the varsity team with tactics.

Prof. H. D. Wild, head of the Latin department and president of the athletic association, of Williams College, will address the regular Sunday evening meeting of the Williams Christian Association on October 16. Non-Athletic Council Meets

In order to consider the budgets of the various non-self-supporting organizations, the Non-Athletic Council will meet in Jesup Hall at 11.30 a. m. tomorrow. The apportionment of the non-athletic tax will also be decided at that time.

Representatives of each organization will present their budget, which will then be discussed and passed upon, or altered to meet the necessary approval. Then the aggregate sum needed will be determined and the non-athletic tax apportioned accordingly. Individual taxation will probably be on a different basis from that of last year, when each man was taxed six dollars and a half, although the method of apportionment has not yet been decided.

1925 OPENS SOCCER SERIES WITH VICTORY

Faculty Grants to Varsity Team Right to Oppose Amherst on November 12

Opening the interclass soccer series, the freshman team defeated the sophomores by a score of 3-0 last Thursday afternoon on Cole Field, the goals being made by Clarkson, Johnson, and Holt '25. The playing of the sophomores was generally mediocre, since the greater part of the team was inexperienced.

The faculty has granted to the varsity soccer team the privilege of playing the Amherst team on November 12, before the Amherst-Williams football game, on Cole Field. Definite plans for this event have not as yet been made.

On Friday the Seniors will oppose the Sophomores, and on next Monday the Juniors will meet the Freshmen in the second and third games, respectively, of the series. A game between the Seniors and Juniors was scheduled for last Wednesday, but due to Mountain Day it was postponed.

Cook '25 in Tennis Finals; Three in Golf Semi-Finals

Cook '25 has entered the final round of the fall tennis tournament, having defeated Blenkner '24 in the round before the semi-finals and Keep '25 in the semi-finals. Captain Rowse '22 will meet the winner between L. Buck '24 and Canby '24, and H. S. Prescott '22 faces Hastings '22 in the remaining matches to be played before the semi-finals.

In the golf tournament W. H. Prescott '22, by defeating H. S. Prescott '22, has joined Rose '22 and Simmons '23 in the semi-finals. Captain Secor '22 and Dean Howes will play for the remaining position in this round.

Rice Fund Book Prizes Ready

Winners of the Book Prizes from the Rice Fund, announced at Commencement by President Garfield, will meet Mr. Galbrith in 15 Hopkins Hall on Tuesday, from 3.30 to 4.30 p. m. in order to choose their books. The following men were awarded prizes: Anthony, Baxter, Hoyt, Langmuir, Rankin and Vercoe '23. The following books are offered:

The Foulis Virgil (folio), Glasgow, 1778; Bentley's Horace, 1st edition, Cambridge, 1711; Bentley's Horace, 2nd edition, Amsterdam, 1713; Apuleius, Ginnata, Florence, 1512; Novum Testamentum, Baskerville, Oxford Press, 1763; Terence, Whittingham Press, 1854; Caullus, Baskerville, 1772; Horace, Bond, Amsterdam, 1650.

INTERCOLLEGIATES

Official announcement has been made by the Treasurer of Yale University that

$2,000,000 has been pledged by alumni in the campaign to meet the terms of the conditional endowment, by which an anonymous donor has given $3,000,000 provided that $2,000,000 be given by subscription.

Two totem house-posts from British Columbia, elaborately carved and weighing over a ton and a half apiece, a collection of clothing, tools and other material illustrating the life of the so-called blond eskimos of the far north, carved wooden house-posts from New Zealand, and two hundred specimens of African Material from the Kameroun region have been acquired by the Penbody Museum at Harvard University and are being prepared for public exhibition.

On Thursday, October 14, Dr. John M. Thomas, for 13 years president of Middlebury College, will be formally inaugurated as president of Pennsylvania State College. Dr. Thomas has been active in carrying out his new duties since his departure from Middlebury last April.

Enrollment in Dartmouth College has reached 2014 students, according to an announcement made by President Hopkins at "Dartmouth Night," the first regular meeting of the college body for the year, and it exceeds by far the numbers of former years. Over 600 freshmen are contained in this number, and it was primarily to welcome these men that the meeting was held, speeches being made by the President and various coaches and instructors.

Under the new regulations at Cornell, competitors for the positions of major sport managers are required to wear black cloth hats with red bands, and the first letter of the sport for which they are competing is also on the front of the visor. This plan has been adopted as a means of showing the college what men are interested in the managements, and thereby affords a better opportunity to consider the candidates before the election.

Complete reorganization of the School Clubs in Harvard University is now under way, and a committee which has been appointed intends to correct the steadily declining importance of those organizations. The essential fault has been found in the fact that the visiting preparatory school teams have not been properly entertained and it is this element on which the greatest emphasis is to be laid.

The importance which Dartmouth College attaches to its Outing Club is shown in the fact that over 1000 of the 2000 men in college are members of that organization, and have paid the necessary dues of $1. Canvassers expect to get more members within the next week, and the total enrollment will be 150 greater than that of last year. The money collected will be used for the maintenance of the trails and cabins about Hanover.

Exercises in commemoration of the sixth centenary of the death of Dante will be held in the Union College Chapel in the near future. President Richmond will preside at the affair, the program of which calls for addresses in Italian and English, interspersed with fine musical selections.

The Sophomores at Amherst decisively won the freshman-sophomore baseball series by capturing the second game on Hitchcock Field last Saturday afternoon. 1925 lost the first game by the score of 6-3, and the second 4-0.

The total enrollment of Harvard University has reached 5936, breaking all previous records, according to the first complete official figures available this year, and is likely to top the six thousand mark before the books are finally closed for the year. Every department of the University except two shows an increase in numbers over last year.

The Harvard Dental School has entered an agreement with all of the larger dental schools of the east to adopt the following regulation:

COOMBS REAPPOINTED COACH OF 1922 TEAM

New Rule Regarding Departure of Teams Made at Meeting of Athletic Council

MR. BOK DONATES SALARIES

Noted Philadelphian Has Given Fund for Providing Better Baseball Coaches

Jack Coombs, coach of the baseball team last spring, is engaged to coach the team this year as a result of the meeting of the Athletic Council held in the Faculty Room of Hopkins Hall last Friday afternoon. At the same time a resolution was passed prohibiting any athletic team to leave Williamstown at such a time as to arrive at its destination before the evening of the night before the scheduled game, and several other matters were brought up for consideration.

The salaries of Harry Davis, Ira Thomas and Jack Coombs, the last three baseball coaches Williams has had, have been paid for by a fund established five years ago by Mr. Edward Bok of Philadelphia, Pa. to provide Williams with better baseball coaches, and it is thru this generosity of Mr. Bok that Coombs will be engaged for the 1922 season. Coombs will be in Williamstown about the middle of February to start work in the cage with the baseball men.

The following resolution regarding the time when teams will be allowed to leave Williamstown for outside games was passed. "Resolved, that after the football season of 1921, no team shall be allowed to leave Williamstown earlier than is necessary to enable it to reach its destination on the evening of the day before the scheduled game." The reasons for the passage of this resolution are given as follows: Departure before this time is too serious an interference with regular college work, causes too much added expense for the athletic association, and causes unnecessary fatigue to men staying in strange surroundings longer than necessary.

In accordance with Williams' policy of athletics for all, the College authorities turned over $1,500 to the Athletic Council for use in intramural athletics. $300 of this sum has been spent this fall improving the condition of the baseball diamonds on Cole Field, and an additional $600 is being used for the enlarging of the hockey rink. CAP AND BELLS TO PLAY IN FIVE CITIES

Will Present Plays in Albany, Boston, Bridgeport, Fall River, Portland

Preparations for the Christmas trip of "Cap and Bells" are rapidly progressing, and the itinerary now includes five cities, Albany, Boston, Portland, Fall River and Bridgeport. Ryland, The Game of Chess and The Crimson Cocoon, the three plays recently chosen by the Board of Directors, will be those presented on the trip.

Leaving Williamstown after the last class Wednesday afternoon, December 21st, the Club will go to Albany where the plays will be presented at Centennial Hall. Following the production, a dance is to be given in the Ball Room of the Ten Eyck Hotel. Mr. Allston Headley '14 is acting as local manager at Albany.

On Thursday evening, the 22nd, the performance will be given at Whitney Hall in Brookline, for which arrangements have been made by Mr. Henry M. Dwight '18, the local manager for the production. The plays will be followed by the customary dance. The third presentation and dance will be given at Portland, Me., where the local management, under the direction of Mr. Everett L. Hazleton '09 have secured Frye Hall for Friday evening, December 23. There will be a tea dance Saturday afternoon, after which the cast will remain in Portland until Sunday.

The plays will be produced at the Music Hall at Fall River on Monday, the 26th, where Mr. Flint Brayton '20 is acting as local manager. The following night the Club will play at Bridgeport, Conn., but as further arrangements for this date are still tentative, they will be announced later.

Subject and Date for Debate to Be Decided

Negotiations have been opened with Amherst and Wesleyan with regard to the annual triangular debate which will take place sometime during the early part of December. Representatives of the debating organizations of the three colleges will hold a conference at the Hotel Kimball in Springfield within the next ten days to draw up articles of agreement, and to decide upon a subject for the debate. The date of the debate will also be fixed at this time.

By defeating both the Amherst negative team and the Wesleyan affirmative team in the triangular debate last year on the question, "Resolved that all nominations for elective state offices should be made at non-partisan direct primaries," Williams won its third consecutive victory since 1915 and the permanent possession of a cup.

UNION DEFEATED BY AMHERST ELEVEN 6-0

Columbia Victorious Over N. Y. U. by 19-0 Score—Wesleyan is Beaten by B. U.

Of the football teams remaining on the Williams schedule, Middlebury did not play Saturday, Amherst was victorious over Union, Columbia defeated New York University, and Wesleyan fell before Boston University. Good weather favored all of the games and they should prove for this reason a more accurate forecast of the comparative strength of the four teams than those played previously under less favorable conditions.

Columbia defeated New York University by the decisive score of 19 to 0 at New York City last Saturday. A mixture of good and bad football was played but the men from Columbia consistently held the upper hand throughout the contest. Brodell, Koppisch, and Moszczanski all played well for Coach O'Neill's team. New York University threatened to score only twice and never succeeded in getting within Columbia's 25-yard mark. Only once in the second quarter did N. Y. U. exhibit any considerable strength and then Brodell of Columbia halted the onward march by a remarkable tackle.

Union College met its first defeat of the season when it fell before the attack of Amherst, losing by a score of 6 to 0 to Williams' rival. Wing of Amherst broke through the Union line on a cross buck in the first play of the game and raced 52 yards for a touchdown. Elbot failed to kick the goal. After the first half of the first quarter the teams played each other to a standstill and neither was able to score. The playing of Welling, substitute end for Union, and Klein at guard featured for the losers while Wing at left half and Reusswig at right half back played the best games for Amherst. In the last period Union opened up an aerial attack which advanced the ball from the Union 15 (Continued on Third Page.)

15 Events Will Compose Annual Inter-Class Meet

Fifteen events, seven on the first day and the remaining eight on the second, are scheduled for the annual interclass handicapped track meet which will be held tomorrow and Thursday at 4.15 p. m. on Weston Field. In order to allow time for arranging the handicaps to be given, all entries must be in the hands of Coach Seeley or Captain Phillips by this evening.

1922 was an easy victor last year in the meet, but the Sophomores are expected to furnish close competition this year, to judge by the showing made by them in the recent Sophomore-Freshman meet. 1923 should defeat 1925, the Freshmen being very weak in the track events. All predictions may well be wrong, however, if generous handicaps are given.

The following events will be held Wednesday afternoon: 100-yard dash, 120-yard high hurdles, 440-yard dash, mile run, high jump, shot put, discus throw; on Thursday afternoon the order of events will be: 220-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles, 880-yard run, pole vault, broad jump, hammer throw, two mile run, javelin throw.

WILLIAMS HARRIERS HUMBLE MIDDLEBURY

Purple Runners Take First Five Places in Opening Meet of Autumn Season

FASCE'S TIME IS 34:45

Capt. Adams, Swan, Fitchen and Sanford Also Finish Before Any of Home Team

Overwhelming their opponents on an unfamiliar course in exceptionally fast time, the Williams cross country team emerged victorious over Middlebury by a score of 15 to 45 last Saturday afternoon. Each of the first five places fell a prize to one of the septet of Purple harriers.

Middlebury's course, over six miles in length, is laid out over rough dirt roads in the very hilly country which surrounds the town. The course is rendered even more difficult by the fact that a very steep hill lies near the finish. This, however did not seem to offer much of an obstacle to the Williams team, accustomed to daily runs over Stone and Cemetery Hills, but it accounted for the loss of one member of the home team before the end of the race.

From the start it was evident that Williams would do the leading and Middlebury the following along the entire length of the course. The first of the Vermont harriers to finish, Captain Cole, was easily 200 yards behind Sanford, who made fifth place for the Purple. Fasce and Captain Adams, who came in first and second respectively with hardly a second's difference in time, had no real competition from the outset. Nevertheless Fasce's time, 34:45 was very fine for the course. Swan, taking third place for Williams, followed Fasce and Adams by about eight yards. Next Fitchen and Sanford finished, 100 yards behind Swan. Captain Cole of Middlebury, trailing Sanford 200 yards in the rear, took sixth place in the line. He was pressed closely by Cook of the home team and Webb who gave eighth place to Williams. Walter, Seaman, Shelve, Palmer, and Whitten, the remaining harriers, finished in the order given.

An attempt is now being made by Manager Richardson '22 to secure a meet with Harvard next Saturday, but up to the present time this date has not been definitely fixed.

In the second game of the interclass soccer series the Seniors defeated the Sophomores last Friday afternoon on Cole Field by the score of 4-1. Powell made the only point for the Sophomores on a blocked goal-kick, while Dunn, Brune and Williams scored field goals, and Wallace kicked a penalty goal for the Seniors.

Yesterday the Juniors played the Freshmen, and this afternoon the same team opposed the Sophomores. During the rest of the week, the Seniors will play the Freshmen and Juniors on Wednesday and Thursday respectively, and the Sophomores will oppose the Freshmen on Friday.

CANTON COLLEGE HEAD TO ADDRESS FORUM

Dr. Charles K. Edmunds to Give Illustrated Lecture This Evening at 7.30

Oct. 18—Dr. Charles K. Edmunds, for fourteen years President of Canton Christian College, Canton, China, will give an illustrated lecture entitled "Thirty Thousand Miles in China" before the first meeting of the Forum in Jesup Hall this evening at 7.30 p. m. Because of his extensive travels along the unbeaten paths of this great country in directing the Magnetic Survey of China and Mongolia for the Carnegie Institution of Washington, the speaker is especially well prepared for the treatment of his subject.

Dr. Edmunds spent the first four years of his stay in China as Professor of Physics and Electrical Engineering at Canton Christian College before becoming its president in 1907. While in charge of the Carnegie survey from 1906 to 1917 he covered some 45,000 miles in all parts of the country, and was able to see many places of great interest little known about because of their remote location. Having also travelled in Japan, Korea, French Indo-China, the Philippines, and Siam and having had in addition to this a close connection with the educational life of China, Dr. Edmunds is fitted to give a broad review of conditions in the Far-East. He has been speaking in New York City for almost a year, and will continue his lectures in different parts of the country during the 1921-22 season.

As an author Dr. Edmunds has been a frequent contributor to The Popular Science Monthly, The Journal of International Relations, The National Geographic Magazine, and Asia. In all his works of this nature the striking characteristic is the author's firm conviction that the awakening of China involves the destinies not only of that great people, but of the whole human race. His monograph on "Modern Education in China" has been published (Continued on Fourth Page.)

Pacific Coast Alumni Are to Organize Association

Efforts are being made by prominent Alumni on the Pacific Coast to organize the Williams graduates there. At a luncheon held in Los Angeles on Oct. 5, sixteen were present, and it is expected that many others who were unable to attend will be present at the next gathering.

Enthusiasm was shown for the continuance of monthly luncheons, and plans are already in the making for a dinner to be held sometime in December. Williams songs will enliven all these meetings, and interest in the College will be further revived by other methods. Among those present were: Pierce '81; Van Vranken '90; Azhderian, Dow, and Briggs '91; Wark '92; Millsap '95; Bidwell '98; Green '02; Westervelt '06; Keith '07; Rand '08; Lewis '12; Ware '13; and Coye '17.

'Cow' Board Meeting Tomorrow

To consider material for the Amherst game issue, a meeting of the Purple Cow board will be held in the office tomorrow night at 7.30 p. m. All contributions for this number must be handed in before this evening.

Williams Threatens Yale's Goal Line Three Times—Lack of Dropkicker is Felt

MONJO HOLDS ALDRICH IN EXCHANGE OF PUNTS

Visitors' Aerial Attack and Line Play Appear Strongest in Hard Fought Game

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 15—Coming here with every prospect of being overwhelmed, the Williams football eleven surprised general expectations today by giving Yale the hardest fought game played in the Bowl this season, only succumbing to a 23 to 0 defeat after having brought the Blue supporters to their feet on three separate occasions before the imminent possibility of seeing the home team scored upon. Eighteen thousand gridiron fans, according to the ticket officials, a record attendance for an early season contest, saw Yale's goal seriously threatened for the first time this year, the light Purple eleven three advancing the ball within the 15-yard line by means of an aerial attack.

The comparative closeness of the game is indicated less by the one-sided score than by the fact that Williams was able to gain six first downs against a team outweighing them many pounds to the man. Line plunges, end runs, and forward passes, together netted the Purple a total of 113 yards during the game. The visiting team played a clean game, despite their eagerness to score, and were only penalized twice, while Yale lost ground on penalties on six occasions. By the end of the contest the most ardent Bulldog supporter was willing to admit that his team owed its continued clean slate not to any aggressive virtue on its part but to the fortunate coincidence that the invading team possessed no drop-kicker.

The first period started off with a spectacular kicking duel in which Captain Fargo and Moajo challenged the toe of Captain Aldrich. The Yale leader responded and for the first few minutes the ball sailed back and forth over the heads of the players with neither side gaining any noticeable advantage. Yale's first score was made possible through a fumble of Monjo's, after a kick had been blocked but recovered by (Continued on Second Page.)

PRESIDENT GARFIELD TELLS OF INSTITUTE

Describes Conception of Plan at Dinner Given in His Honor by Alumni

Before an audience of four college presidents and representatives from Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, Smith, Tufts, Wesleyan, and Harvard, President Garfield told the inside story of the Institute of Politics at a dinner given in his honor Saturday evening at the Noyasset Club of Springfield by the Connecticut Valley Williams Alumni Association. Presidents William A. Nelson of Smith, John A. Cousens of Tufts, William A. Shanklin of Wesleyan, and Alexander Meiklejohn of Amherst spoke in praise of the Institute and of its founder.

Introduced by Bliss Perry '81, Dr. Garfield told of his conceiving the idea of an Institute in the spring of 1913 during a conversation that turned on how the college plant might be used to more effective purpose. The alumni approved of the idea, but all plans had to be postponed when Dr. Garfield was called to Washington to act as Federal Fuel Administrator. On December 15, 1918, while returning to New York after his duties at Washington were completed, President Garfield discussed his idea of an Institute with his train companion, Mr. Bernard Baruch, who became very much interested and within two weeks promised the funds necessary to start the Institute. Due to the presidential elections and the discussion over the Versailles peace treaty, another year passed before the idea became reality last summer. Dr. Garfield also characterized the noted speakers who gave addresses at the sessions of the Institute.

A Fine Showing

To be proud of defeat would seem hardly the proper attitude for the Williams undergraduate after a football game, but in the case of last Saturday's contest he has good cause to be at least proud in defeat. The showing made by the Purple was not that of a determined few fighting against tremendous odds, but rather the playing of a team to be reckoned with as a rival. Coach Wendell has developed an eleven that threatened Yale's goal-line three times and made more first downs than all other opponents put together have made in the Bowl this season. It is in a true spirit of congratulation that we welcome back the coach and his men.

The Haystack Tradition

One hundred and fifteen years ago, as all of us are proud to remember, a little coterie of clear-visioned college students here conceived the idea of extending the gospel of the Christian faith from America to foreign lands. Today Williams is called upon to revitalize the splendid tradition which the Haystack Monument commemorates.

A detailed account of the plan for establishing "Williams-in-China," along the lines of the work hitherto carried on by fourteen other colleges, will be found on another page. Briefly, the project provides for the maintenance by Williams of a competent Y. M. C. A. representative in Soochow, who will employ equipment and buildings previously erected and kept up for the most part by Chinese contributions.

Such a proposal can well command the enthusiastic acclaim of the entire undergraduate body. From now on the money annually invested in China by the College is to bring forth tangible results. It will be interesting to all contributors to follow the progress of the work in frequent direct reports and literally to see the good that each gift, large or small, is accomplishing.

It is inconceivable that Williams, founder of American foreign missions but long only a secondary factor in that field, should fail to grasp this great opportunity of taking her rightful place once more among the militant Christian forces of America. Let us see to it that the very reasonable sum asked for is not merely subscribed but oversubscribed.

Yale Netmen Beat Williams

In an exhibition match last Saturday morning at New Haven, the Yale tennis team defeated Williams, 4-2. The two matches won by Williams were Prescott's singles match and the doubles in which Prescott and Morse defeated a Yale duo.

Purple Makes Plucky Fight Against Heavier Eli Eleven

Williams. The disastrous fumble gave Yale the ball on their opponents' ten yard line, and line plunges aided by a penalty of half the distance to the goal line afforded the first touchdown of the game. Aldrich missed the kick for goal.

In the second period Yale scored again following a long end run by Aldrich and successive line plunges by Jordan. Not disheartened by these reverses Williams launched a stronger attack after Mallon had intercepted one of Aldrich's passes and carried the ball to the Yale 35 yard line. Two more forward passes and an end run by Richmond advanced the ball to the 9 yard line. With many kind of a drop kicker the Purple could have easily scored, but Richmond was entrusted with the ball in a desperate run around the Yale left end. Before he could gain a yard Jordaa collided head on with the Williams back and both players went to the ground hard. A trick pass was tried but failed to get first down and it was Yale's ball in the shadow of their goal post. Aldrich punted out of danger, Mallon making a fair catch. Fargo then tried a free placement kick from midfield but it fell short. In the second half the Bulldog attack brought the ball to the Williams' 27 yard line. Having failed to gain further by the fourth down Captain Aldrich dropped back and lifted a graceful drop kick over the cross bar. Williams threatened again in this quarter, Mallon tossing a 25 yard pass to Pease. Another pass was followed by line plunges by Burger advanced the ball toward the coveted Blue goal line, but O'Hearn intercepted another aerial attempt on his own 13 yard line.

Early in the final period Yale's versatile quarter back captured Monjo's punt and carried it to the Williams 40 yard line. A forward pass to Spider and end run by Neidlinger brought the ball to the Williams 2 yard line. Another forward pass over the goal line closed the scoring for the afternoon.

Throughout the contest the Williams eleven gave a good exhibition of clean, hard-fought football. The field generalship was of a higher average than that of previous games and both offense and defense worked more smoothly. Mallon's passes at times displayed unerring accuracy, while Captain Fargo was a constant inspiration to his team. His kick offs were uniformly good and on two occasions he tackled the Yale player he kicked off to. Both ends, in spite of being slow at getting down the field under kicks, showed versatility in attack and in receiving passes. One of the unexpected high points of the game was the generally excellent punting done by Monjo, who consistently prevented Yale from gaining any ground through resorting to exchanges of punts.

One of the individual features of the afternoon was the debut of O'Hearn as Yale quarterback. The brilliant young star of last season's freshman eleven was sent into the game to relieve Becket in the third period and throughout the remainder of the game handled his team and himself in splendid fashion. Captain Aldrich likewise starred for the Blue, turning in several fine runs, while Jordan proved the most reliable man at gaining ground through the line.

FIRST PERIOD

Yale chose the south goal. Fargo kicked off to Becket who ran the ball to the 30 yard line. Aldrich returned the punt to the Williams 35 yard line and Richmond elected to punt, booting the ball back to Aldrich. Fargo was down the field with the kick and tackled the runner in his tracks. Yale failed to gain and Monjo wanted to Becket who ran the ball to his 40 yard line. Aldrich punted to Williams 20 yard line. Monjo immediately returned the kick. Jordan failed to gain and Aldrich punted to Mallon who was tackled mid field by Aldrich. Aldrich was slightly hurt on the play.

With the ball in the center of the field Monjo failed to gain and Richmond tried a forward pass to Mallon. It grounded. Monjo kicked to Becket, who was downed on Yale's 22-yard line. Aldrich got 5 yards on a tackle plunge. Jordan added two more through center. Aldrich kicked to Williams 37 yard line. Richmond rushed the ball without gain. Mallon tried another forward pass which grounded. Monjo's attempted kick was blocked by Landia and play resumed on 10 yard line. Monjo fumbled and Hadden recovered the ball on Williams' 10 yard line. Jordan got 3 yards through center. Jordan got a yard and Williams was penalized half the distance to the goal for offside play. Becket took the ball over for a touchdown on the next play. Aldrich missed the goal. Yale 6, Williams 0.

Fargo kicked off to Spider, who ran the ball to Yale's 40 yard line. A forward pass, Jordan to Becket, got 25 yards. Jordan threw another pass which Mallon intercepted on the Williams' 13-yard line. Lincoln was injured on the play. Monjo punted out of danger to the center of the field. Jordan got two yards. Aldrich kicked and the ball rolled over the goal line. The ball was brought back. A beautiful forward pass, Aldrich to Sturm got 25 yards. Jordan made 5 yards through tackle. The period ended with the ball on Williams' 32 yard line. Yale 6, Williams 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Aldrich and Becket made first down for Yale. Aldrich circled the Williams right end for 11 yards. Mallon finally downing him. A center smash by Jordan, failed. Becket fumbled but recovered without loss. Jordan brought the ball to the one yard line. Aldrich smashed the Williams right wing and just edged the ball over the line for a touchdown. Aldrich kicked the goal. Yale 13, Williams 0.

Fargo kicked off to Becket, and then tackled him on the 38-yard line. Aldrich kicked to Mallon who was downed on the 36-yard line by Becket. It was a 25-yard run. Richmond on a delayed pass got five yards. Mallon threw a forward pass to Hearn, which got Williams first down. Monjo gained a yard and then Richmond smashed his way to the Yale 17-yard line. Burger made first down on Yale's 14-yard line. Burger got two yards more

PROF. WILD EXPLAINS RELATIVITY OF VALUES

Tells W. C. A. That Sense of Proportion Comes If High Aim Is Kept Foremost

Holding that the aim of devotion to God is the aim towards which we should all build our own individual scheme or "pyramid" of life, Professor H. D. Wild spoke before the regular Sunday evening meeting of the W. C. A. on "The Relativity of Values."

In introducing his subject Professor Wild said, "There are many standpoints from which we may look at life. Some men look at it as merely an event, and these men usually drift along without any important aim in view. Others look at life as a problem to be solved; as a campaign which needs a map just as a military campaign needs a map. This is the point of view which practically all men in the end have to accept."

"There are positive goods and positive evils. When we only have to choose between these forces it is easy because we are endowed with a conscience. But we are all sooner or later obliged to go much further than this."

"By values we mean all the assets of life whether they be spiritual, mental or physical, in short everything from aesthetics to athletics. Each man finds that there are four questions which will influence his discrimination of values. In the first place there is the consideration of whether a good is intrinsic or not. Wealth and health are both values, but who but a fool would consciously choose wealth if it meant the loss of his health? Health then is an intrinsic value. In the second place values are affected by time, place and circumstance. What were considered fair business principles a few years ago are considered unlawful today; the Chinaman cannot look at a question from the same standpoint as an American; neither does the millionaire look at the value of a drink of water in the same light when he is dying of thirst in the desert as when he is in the luxury of his own home. In the third place standards vary with individuals. This fact has led to trouble when men have tried to force their own standards down other peoples' throats. The Blue Laws are the result of just this sort of thing. Finally each man must decide how great a pyramid or scheme of life he intends to build, and then he must make everything that he does fit in with the attainment of that aim."

"Service, and devotion to God which comes from service, are the two highest aims. If we choose devotion to God as the pinnacle of our pyramid we will have all those things which are included in the smaller schemes of life and something more besides. A man who has this great aim in view at all times will not deprive himself of the value of amusement and things of a like nature, but he will keep them in such a place that they do not interfere with his real purpose. Jesus saw that men could live this sort of life when he said, 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and all these things shall be added unto you.' Likewise Browning says in a poem, 'Who has an aim makes all things serve.'"

"By making devotion to God our highest aim we gain poise, a sense of proportion, and a sense of completeness; we also become the captain of our soul because we have then become a part of the Captain of the Universe."

"Men think too much about the things which they ought to have done, and thereby sometimes lose sight of their aim. When a sailboat is making towards a certain point, no matter how many tacks it has to make it will finally reach its destination if the skipper continually has his eye on that point."

"It seems evident that the great trouble with modern civilization is that it cannot yet discern the relativity of values. Men have not given the lead to a great aim. Capital and Labor would not have all their troubles if each group would strive for something besides a selfish aim. Our modern education and religion are in trouble because they are paying attention to by-products instead of main issues."

"Each man in College is confronted by a scheme of values which is most complicated. In directing the course of his life he should always have two principles in mind; first to make his aim as high as he is able to, and then to struggle towards it, never letting minor things interfere. If he honestly does this he may or may not be a great athlete, a very popular man, or a Phi Beta Kappa student, but he will have at least a strong body, the respect of his fellows, and the real value of his college education."

WILLIAMS-IN-CHINA

WILLIAMS RECORD, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1921

CAMPAIGN COMMENDED BY PRES. GARFIELD

Tells Student Council He Favors Project of Establishing Williams-in-China

To the Student Council, Williamstown, Mass.

Gentlemen:

I have just read the detailed program of the Williams in China Movement. It should arouse the enthusiasm and command the support of every Williams man, first because it aids in carrying out a general program of the American colleges leading to mutual understanding between China and the United States; and mutual understanding is a necessary, indeed is a fundamental, element in international good-will. I am impressed by the fact that the proposal looks to the entire support of an experienced worker at Soochow. This is far better than merely making a contribution. The presence of Mr. Hayes in China as the representative of Williams College gives vitality and human interest to the movement. It commands my interest also because it will prove as beneficial to us as to China. Good-will is mutual. And, finally, the movement should make its appeal because it is in the line of our best tradition, the Haystack.

Faithfully yours,
H. A. GARFIELD.

SOOCHOW CENTER IS OF RECENT ORIGIN

Founded 6 Years Ago at Request of Citizens by Y. M. C. A.—Work Well Established

Soochow is one of the leading cities of China in respect to missionary work. In this Chinese city of 500,000 people, there are five Christian denominations at work, maintaining ten churches with an active membership of over 2,000.

In 1915, the native church and the missionaries invited the Young Men's Christian Association to establish an organization at Soochow. Mr. W. W. Brockman, at that time General Secretary of the Association at the University of Virginia, resigned his position and accepted the invitation of the National Committee of China to open the Y. M. C. A. at Soochow in 1916. With him in this work was associated Mr. E. M. Hayes, an American missionary who had been born in Soochow and who was temporarily working at Nanchang. These two men organized the Association at Soochow.

The first campaign was started last October among the Christians of the city and $1,500 was raised for current expenses. The active members then totaled 68. The campaign for $40,000 for expansion (Continued on Second Page.)

Students Needs Our Help to Save China—Every Undergraduate Must Contribute Freely

Pekin is "Princeton-in-China." Changsha is "Yale-in-China." Soochow is "WILLIAMS-IN-CHINA."

SOOCHOW

An ancient Chinese proverb says, "Above is Heaven, below is Soochow." China has thus named the city of Soochow the "Heaven on Earth."

POSITION

Soochow has a strategic position located in the heart of China and the head of a group of nearby cities. It is two hours by rail from Shanghai, the center of the great Chinese silk industry. Soochow is surrounded by a rich farming country.

POPULATION

Soochow has a population of 550,000 people of whom but 5% are Christian. Thus it is about the size of Pittsburg, and Los Angeles and is larger than Buffalo, San Francisco, Milwaukee, Washington, Newark, Cincinnati, New Orleans and Minneapolis. It is the eleventh largest

Purposes and Aims of College Explained in Brief Form—Plans Given

STUDENTS NEED AMERICA

Yale and Princeton Have Large Centers at Changsha and Peking Respectively

WHY WILLIAMS-IN-CHINA?

China must have America in the development of strong Christian leadership among her students. The Chinese student holds the key to the future of China. They are the only educated class and are the real leaders of the people. Will the future China be an asset or a menace to the world? Yale has Yale-in-China at Changsha, Princeton has Princeton-in-China at Peking; twelve other American universities and colleges have representatives in China. Where is Williams, the founder of the foreign missionary tradition?

America will need the friendship of China in the future when China shall have become a strong political and highly developed economic country. From a utilitarian viewpoint, we will require the friendship of the coming power in the East. The establishment of Williams-in-China will leave a lasting tradition to the College of world service and unselfishness, of farsighted sympathy and interest in universal problems. It is an opportunity to enrich the best and highest traditions of Williams.

CHINESE RECEPTIVE TO Y. M. C. A. IDEALS

Coordination and Cooperation Needed for Application of Christian Efforts

Y. M. C. A. ALREADY A STRONG FACTOR THERE

Association Is Well Supported and Has Shown Rapid Expansion and Growth

No one who has seen the work of the International Y. M. C. A. in China can fail to be vitally interested in the contribution which Williams College is now planning to make to this movement. For it is of precisely the kind of help which the Y. M. C. A. is able to offer that the young men of China stand most in need.

The young men of China need before all else to be taught the principles of co-ordination and co-operation which are the logical results of a sincere application of Christian social efforts. The co-ordinated development of spirit, mind and body for which the Association stands will alone insure the integrity of character without which young China cannot hope to secure the rehabilitation of the country in the face of discouragement, perplexities and overwhelming odds. And hand in hand with the co-ordinated development of the individual must go the other guiding principle of the Association, the principle of co-operation in a common cause.

"SOOCHOW" NIGHT TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Arthur Rugh, National Y. M. C. A. Officer, to Speak—Student Council Calls Meeting

Mr. Arthur Rugh will make a short speech on China and the center at Soochow before the College Mass Meeting which the Student Council has called for tomorrow evening, Soochow Night, at 7:30 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. Mr. Rugh is an eminent missionary worker and has had considerable experience in this field of Christian activity. He is the National Student Secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Gold of Foochow, another large University center in China, will also probably speak. The purpose and ideals of the campaign will be fully explained at this meeting. It is the request of the Student Council that all undergraduates attend.

PLEDGES FOR SOOCHOW FUND TO BE DRAFTS

To Be Collected at Bank Every Month for Eight Periods—No Trouble for Students

The pledges for the Soochow Fund will be made out on the installment plan. Unless otherwise desired, the payments will extend over a period of eight months and will fall due the first week in each of the months from November to June.

The means by which this is to be accomplished, as announced by Sayen '22, Chairman of the Finance Committee, are as follows: The pledges will take the form of miniature check books containing nine slips of paper. The uppermost slip is in the form of a draft or promissory note and reads "I promise to pay to the Williams Christian Association Soochow Fund the sum of Dollars at the (name of your bank and its location) in eight installments of $.... each."

The remaining eight slips of paper are ordinary bank checks and read as follows: "To the (Name of your bank and its location) Pay to the order of The Williams Christian Association Soochow Fund $.... Signed" These eight checks will be fastened to the draft by staples and will be dated from November 5th, when the first installment falls due, to June 5th at intervals of one month.

In order to make a contribution, one has only to write in the total amount of his subscription and the name of the bank which handles his account, attaching his signature to the draft and to the eight succeeding checks.

STUDENT CENTER

Soochow contains important government and missions schools. The Methodist University has an enrollment of 600, larger than Williams. Nanking University is supported by Boston University and is the "Amherst" of the Soochow University. Five Student Christian Associations similar to the W. C. A. depend on the Soochow Association for leadership.

MR. HAYES

Mr. Hayes was born in Soochow and has lived 19 years in China. He has been connected with the Y. M. C. A. for the past seven years and is now the successful head of the Soochow Association. He has received the degree of B.A. from Michigan, of M.A. from Columbia and of D.D. from the Union Theological Seminary.

PROPOSALS

That Williams supply the funds necessary to enable Mr. Hayes to continue his work. Mr. Hayes sailed September 15 for China on the assumption that Williams would back him.

"On the threshold of large political developments in which the average man of Asia is to have an increasing share in his own government, the question which lies deepest in the minds of thoughtful leaders is whether there is ready for those new responsibilities a sufficient number of upright, honest, unselfish men to carry them."

"In short, the need for moral character, universal and eternal, has a peculiar sharpness just now in all of Asia."

CHINESE FACTS

Did You Know That—

China is the land of unchallenged superlatives?

The greatest population in man power.
The largest homogeneous mass in the world's history.

The oldest national civilization.

The widest cultural influence.

"Soochow, Heaven upon Earth"

In respect to the foregoing principles, the Chinese are by nature singularly receptive. In spite of the inroads of disease, and the frequent calamities of flood and famine, the physical vitality of the Chinese is amazing; and once certain barriers of convention have been broken down, the young men of China takes readily to physical training. The native intelligence of the Chinese is amply proved by their many centuries of intellectual leadership among the peoples of the East, while the minds of the younger generation are keenly interested in every phase of modern thought. Moreover, Chinese education since the time of Confucius has exalted a code of social ethics into a moral force scarcely less than a religion. Given the co-ordination of these native aptitudes, an extraordinarily fine type of character results.

The unprogressive character of Chinese education has too often prevented this co-ordination in the past, while the peculiar structure of Chinese society in which the family or clan has been the largest unit has impeded the development of a spirit of co-operation, not only with foreign countries, but among the Chinese themselves. Without this sense of mutual helpfulness and obligation to a common cause, the development of a national consciousness is well nigh impossible.

In still another respect, the Y. M. C. A. may be of the greatest benefit, not only to China but to the various countries which it represents. The solution of

The plan is to provide two large rinks for the students this winter in order to afford a chance for more men to take part in hockey.

At the same meeting tennis insignia was awarded to Bullock, Fraker, C. Taylor and H. Towne '21, H. S. Prescott and Rowse '22, and Chapin '23. Professor Wild announced that a soccer game with Amherst on Cole Field before the football game on November 12 would be allowed by the college authorities, but that the athletic association would not stand the expense of the game and did not recognize soccer as a varsity sport at Williams. Permission was granted the freshman football team to play the Union freshmen at Williams-town on October 29, and the Wesleyan freshmen at Middletown on November 5. A motion was passed providing for a meeting of the council at 4.15 p. m. the second Monday in every month.

to the Amherst 35-yard line. It came too late in the game to be of avail but it showed great promise for the future. Amherst was much stronger than Union on offense.

Wesleyan lost to Boston University by a 7 to 0 score at Middletown. Boston made her only tally in the second period when a long forward pass brought the ball almost to Wesleyan's goal posts and the Boston half that caught it was able to carry the ball over without interference. Seriggins of Wesleyan made the longest run of the game when by an end run he carried the ball from his own 40-yard line to Boston's 35-yard mark. The teams were very evenly matched and had it not been for Boston's aerial attack the game would probably have resulted in a scoreless tie.

COACH COOMBS SENDS LETTER TO 90 ALUMNI

Asks Graduates to Persuade All Likely Baseball Men to Enter Williams

Stating that out of the entire entering class he had found only six varsity baseball possibilities, John W. Coombs, Baseball Coach, in a letter dated October 12, appealed to all loyal alumni to do their part in encouraging preparatory school players to enter Williams.

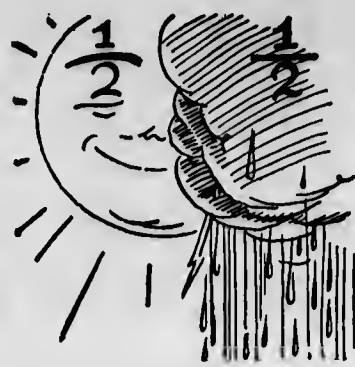

After acknowledging the co-operation of the faculty as well as of the Athletic Council in retaining daylight saving time and in improving the facilities on Cole Field, the letter thanked alumni for their response to the appeal of last commencement, and asked for further help. "One pitcher at Poly Prep in Brooklyn," Coach Coombs said, "and another whom I am helping at Exeter will be under my tutelage next year. Several more throughout the preparatory schools have intimated that they will be in college next fall."

After stating the Coach's intention to leave Williamstown for the winter, the letter went on to explain that cage work would begin March 1, and that strict training rules would be enforced as soon as the squad was called out. The following list of those who will report at that time was attached:

Class of 1922: Cobb, Dunn, Elliott, Harder, Reuther, Rounds, Wolfe. Class of 1923: Captain Hoyt, Bixby, C. Boynton, Clark, Holmes, Mellen, Monjo, Richmond, W. Stephenson, Ward. Class of 1924: Buck, Fincke, Gregory, Newhard, O'Brien, J. Stephenson. Class of 1925: Bernhard, Cooke, Dugan, Fisher, Freeman, Reed, Sabin.

Attention was also called to the unusually large proportion of men who are interested in organized athletics. Reports from those in charge of the various activities showed over 60 per cent of all men enrolled in Williams College out for some form of sport. The distribution of these 385 students is as follows:

Coach Wendell—Varsity Football, 55.
Coach Fulle—Freshman Football, 44.

Council Accepts Budget

Discussion and revision of the budgets submitted by the non-self-supporting organizations comprised the business at a meeting of the Non-Athletic Council last Sunday morning at 11.30 a. m. in Jesup Hall. The Council will present these budgets and its own recommendations to the Student Council this week, after which the amount of individual taxation will be settled upon. The taxation will be made this year on the same basis as last year, through the tax will not necessarily be the same.

$200,000 has been bequeathed to Harvard University under the terms of the will of Mr. H. F. Mills '89 for the purpose of financing a study of the origin and cure of cancer. In all probability this fund will be used by the University Cancer Commission, which has been very successful lately in cancer research work.

DISARMAMENT TO BE TOPIC OF CONFERENCE

Delegates from Over 70 Colleges, Including Williams, Will Discuss Policy

Definite action has been taken by the Student Council of Princeton University in regard to an intercollegiate conference on the subject of disarmament, to be held in Princeton, New Jersey, on October 26, and Williams will be represented by two men, to be selected by President Garfield and the Student Council. The plan which has been adopted is to invite two representatives each from over 70 colleges and universities throughout the East, and it is hoped in this manner to stimulate discussion and thought among the undergraduate bodies of these colleges and to deepen the interest in the whole question of the limitation of armaments.

These steps were taken by the Princeton undergraduates following the matriculation sermon of President Hibben in which he stated, "I wish to urge upon your serious consideration the possibility of organizing a movement which, with the cooperation of other representatives from other universities, might give expression to the convictions upon this subject (disarmament) which I am sure you hold."

It is not intended that this conference will influence in any way the delegates to the Washington Conference on the same topic. On the contrary, the purpose is merely to stimulate the interest in the subject which will be necessary to the proper consideration and thought upon such an important affair in the nation's welfare. On their return to their respective colleges, the delegates will be expected to start publicity campaigns to bring the matter before the individual student bodies, and that in the end, a straw vote will be taken in the various universities which will give fairly significant results. Active preparations for the coming conference have been put in the hands of a committee of six Princeton seniors, and it is their duty to secure speakers of note and ability who are familiar with the proposition in discussion.

sion. The chief features of the program consist in an afternoon and evening meeting, to be addressed by the prominent speakers which will be invited for this purpose, and finally a banquet in the University Dining Halls. In the afternoon meeting a resolution will be presented to the delegates in which the sympathy of the colleges of the country with the purpose of the coming conference at Washington is expressed, and also solicitation for its successful conclusion.

Not only are the college men to be touched by this movement, but also the readers of all college publications and metropolitan dailies, for it is expected that this will be the means of obtaining the general publicity and interest which is so desired by President Hibben and Princeton as a whole. It is felt that on account of the fact that during the war it was largely the college men who composed our army and bore the brunt of the conflict, their endorsement of a program of disarmament cannot be misinterpreted, and their expressed opinion should carry considerable weight.

Williams' delegates to the conference have not as yet been decided upon, but President Garfield is heartily in favor of the proposition, and has definitely given permission to send the number of men invited to attend. These delegates will be selected within the next few days, and a general publicity drive will be made on their return. Following is the list of colleges and universities, in addition to Williams, that have been invited:

Allegheny, Amherst, Boston, Brown, Bucknell, Carnegie Tech., Catholic University, Clark, Colgate, University of Chicago, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Delaware, Dickinson, Drexel Institute, Episcopal Divinity School, Fordham, Franklin and Marshall, General Theological Seminary, George Washington, Georgetown, Hamilton, Hartford Theological Seminary, Harvard Divinity School, Harvard, Haverford, Hobart, Holy Cross.

WILLIAMS TO MEET STRONG BLUE TEAM

Middlebury Has Been Defeated
Three Times But Has Aggressive Eleven

PURPLE IS STRONG ON EVE OF HARD CONTEST

Yale Game Leaves Team Without Serious Injuries—Lineup
Is Unchanged

Williams will meet the strong and aggressive Middlebury team in the fourth game of the season which will be called at 3:30 today on Weston Field. Although the visitors have been defeated by Harvard, Dartmouth, and West Point, the score has been low in each case, and Middlebury has exhibited unusual gameness and strength when facing strong opposition.

Williams came through the Yale game without a serious injury, and the squad is at top form for today's game, while Middlebury, which has been handicapped by serious injuries earlier in the season will be able to present its strongest line-up against the Purple. The two teams have both exhibited strong defense when greatly outweighed, and have both shown that they possess dangerous offensive plays. Williams held Yale to a 23-0 victory last Saturday, three times threatening the Blue's goal line, while Middlebury went down to defeat at the hands of Harvard by the low score of 16-0 after it had carried the ball to the Crimson's 25-yard line on two separate occasions. Today's game promises to result in the hardest kind of football.

A field goal and two touchdowns accounted for Middlebury's 16-0 defeat at the hands of Harvard in the first game of the season, but the Blue staged a clean and determined fight that impressed the spectators. Middlebury presented a light but aggressive team that showed the results of careful coaching, and made four advances into Harvard's territory, the farthest reaching the 25-yard line, with an offense that was able to gain ground consistently and which brought into play some very effective open formations. The most notable feature of the game occurred when Middlebury held Harvard for four downs on her own two-yard line and then punted to safety. Middlebury had possession of the ball practically all of the third period, when she carried it from her own 12-yard line to Harvard's 30-yard line, only to lose it on a forward pass.

Middlebury upheld the reputation established against Harvard when the Blue outplayed and outgamed Dartmouth throughout the entire first half of the game which was played at Hanover on October 1. When the second half began, Dartmouth faced a 3-0 score against her, but in the final periods the Green's weight and reserve strength showed up to advantage, and the final score was 28-3 against Middlebury. In this game, as in the Harvard game, frequent fumbles and penalties for offside play marred Middlebury's chances. The whole Middlebury team received a hard battering by the Green, which outweighed them 20 to 50 pounds to the man. Browa, Middlebury's star end, received a broken shoulder which will keep him out of the game for the rest of the season. The other injuries were not serious, and Browa is the only regular who will not start the Williams game.

Playing in a steady downpour of rain that made fast football impossible, Middlebury went down to defeat by a 19-0 score at the hands of West Point in the third game of the season. The Blue was again outweighed approximately fifteen pounds to the man, but made a strong fight in spite of the absence of two regulars, Brown and Moynihan from the line-up. A wet slippery ball together with the heavy slow field were a great disadvantage.

Council Approves Budgets

Two points of business were transacted at a meeting of the Student Council held last Tuesday evening at 7:30 p. m. in Jesup Hall. The budgets recommended by the Non-Athletic Council were ratified, and a resolution was passed to support unanimously the Soo-Chow campaign.

W. C. A. Deputation Goes to White Oaks Church

Seven men, composing one of the first deputations to be sent out by the W. C. A. this year, entertained at the White Oaks Church last Tuesday evening, with songs, instrumental selections, and a magician act. A quartet composed of Brigham '22, Rounds '23, J. Buckner and Foster '24 rendered several college songs and other selections, and J. Buckner, L. Buckner '24 and Soby '25 gave a short program with the saxophone and banjos. Rounds '23 presented a black face act, and McGrath '23 entertained with his magical tricks. In addition, Foster '24, accompanied by J. Buckner '24, gave several solos. Deputations will be sent at regular intervals from now on, and the men in college fitted for this work will be organized into various groups.

SOPHOMORES LEAD IN CLASS HANDICAP MEET

1924 Scores 26 Points in First Day of Events—Meet Will Finish Today

Oct. 20—As a result of the first day events in the annual interclass handicap track meet last Wednesday afternoon, 1924 is in the lead with a total of 26 points over the other classes, who scored as follows: 1925—16; 1922—15; 1923—6. The remaining events, which were postponed from Thursday afternoon due to inclement weather, will be run off this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock on Weston Field. Mendes '22, Wishard '24, and Keep '25 were the only men who scored at least five points by placing in more than one event, the first two winning a first and second place each, and the latter taking a tie for second and a second.

The strength of 1924 was clearly to be seen as they won three first places, two seconds, one tie for second, and three third places. On the other hand 1923 won only 6 points, both their places coming in the dashes and hurdles. 1924 had a best rounded team that placed in every one of the seven events except the high hurdles. Wishard '24 did especially commendable work for his class, winning the high jump and taking second place in the shot put. The seniors and freshmen were also strongly represented. Mendes '22 took first place in the shot put and second in the 100-yard dash.

The times and distances in the various events were average. The following is the summary in detail, with the handicaps of those that placed:

120-yard high hurdles—won by P. Phillips '22, Coleman '25 (1 yd.), second, Barnes '23 (2 yd.) third. Time, 17 sec.
440-yard dash—won by Stowers '23, Keep '25 (5 yd.), second, Snell '24 (5 yd.) third. Time, 52 2-5 sec.
100-yard dash—won by Miller '24, Mendes '22 (1 yd.) second, Dodge '24 (2 yd.) third. Time, 10 1-5 sec.
1-mile run—won by Clason '24, Driscoll '25 (10 yd.) second, Brayton '24 (20 yd.) third. Time, 4 min. 57 3-5 sec.
Shot-put—won by Mendes '22, Wishard '24 (1 ft.) second, Becket '22 (1 ft.) third. Distance, 32 ft., 11 1/4 in.
High-jump—won by Wishard '24 (2 in.), Sinkler '24 (2 in.) and Keep '25 (3 in.) tied for second. Distance with handicap, 5 ft., 2 in.
Discus throw—won by Jameson '25 (15 ft.), Brigham '24 (15 ft.), second, Becket '22 third. Distance with handicap, 104 ft.

Dr. A. P. Fitch Again to Conduct Chapel Services

It was hoped that he would also address the Williams Christian Association in the evening, but he will be forced to return to Amherst before then.

Dr. Fitch graduated from Harvard in 1900 and received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from the Union Theological Seminary in 1903. He has since been granted the degree of Doctor of Divinity by both Amherst and Williams by the

By defeating the freshman soccer team on Monday 5 to 0, and the sophomore team on Tuesday 2 to 0 the juniors have forged to the lead in the annual interclass soccer series. The first-year men by their 3-2 victory over the seniors in an overtime contest on Wednesday retained second place in the series and lowered their opponents from the topmost position to next to last place. Up to the present time, on account of a superior brand of team work acquired from more constant practice, the junior team has distinctly outclassed its opponents. The sophomores have been seriously handicapped by the difficulty of getting together enough men to form a team on several occasions.

Because of rainy weather the game scheduled between the seniors and juniors on Thursday was postponed.

QUOTA FOR SOOCHOW CAMPAIGN ALREADY FAR OVERSUBSCRIBED

Rowse and Cook Meet In Tournament Finals

Captain Rowse '22 reached the finals of the fall tennis tournament last Wednesday afternoon by defeating H. S. Prescott '22 in a closely contested five-set match of which the score was 7-9, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5. The final round, in which Rowse will meet Cook '25 is to be played off as soon as possible. Prescott, in reaching the semi-finals, defeated Hastings '22 6-0, 6-2. Rowse won over L. Buck '24 6-1, 6-3, who had beaten Canby '24 6-3, 6-3.

No progress has been reported so far this week in the fall golf tournament.

1925 FOOTBALL MEN TO FACE LOCAL TEAM

Tigers Have Played Together for Three Years—Yearlings
Down Team C

Confident because of its excellent showing against varsity teams, the 1925 football team will face the Williamstown Tigers this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on Weston Field as a preliminary attraction before the Varsity-Middlebury game. This is the first official appearance of the freshman team, the game with Hoosick Falls High School having been cancelled.

Light signal practice, 'duck waddling,' dummy scrimmaging, falling on the ball, and similar exercises have kept the squad busy each day this week with the exception of Wednesday, when the freshman team was called upon to face Varsity teams A and C. The yearlings were not able to put up much opposition against team A, which retired from the field after 10 minutes of play with two touchdowns to its credit. Team C, however, was not even able to gain as much as one first down against the first-year men in 25 minutes of hard scrimmaging. The latter, largely through the brilliant running of Bourne and Chandler, tore through C line almost at will and succeeded in carrying the ball over the line twice.

The loss of Beckwith at end and the possibility of Chandler's being unable to play today will cripple the team considerably. The Tigers, consisting mostly of students or graduates of the Williamstown High School, have played together since 1918 and have not been scored on since then.

The teams will line-up as follows:

Drive by W. C. A. Nets Total Sum of $46,000 at End of Second Day's Canvassing

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY
ADDRESSES MEETING

Mr. Rugh and Professors Rice and Pratt Speak on Behalf of Chinese Drive

Gathering impetus at a large mass meeting on "Soochow Night" last Wednesday evening in Jesup Hall, the College campaign for the establishment of Williams-In-China went "over the top" the following day with a total subscription of over $4,500. Canvassing for subscriptions will continue through today, in the hope that every man in college will share in exceeding the $4,000 goal set for the drive.

By late Wednesday night $3,075 had been raised toward the quota. A committee composed of the president of each fraternity and of the Commons Club then took charge of the campaign in their respective houses with the result that by Thursday night the former goal had been passed, and the fund was well on the way toward the new mark of $5,000. The total thus far subscribed does not include the faculty contributions, which will be announced later. The surplus raised will be used to enlarge the sphere of Williams-In-China by taking over a larger share of the total expenses of the American Y. M. C. A. work in Soochow.

The system of payment by checks, which will become due on the fifth day of each month, outlined in the Soochow supplement of THE RECORD, was explained at the mass meeting by Sayen '22, chairman of the Soochow Committee. At the same meeting the active campaign was launched by means of short talks given by Mr. Arthur Rugh, for 14 years National Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in China, Professor Pratt and Assistant Professor Rice. Representatives of the Student Council and THE RECORD read resolutions backing the drive, and urged the college to oversubscribe the allotted quota of $4,000.

Professor Wild, who presided at the meeting, introduced Mr. Rugh as the first speaker, at the same time characterizing the Williams-In-China campaign as "a statesmanlike job." Mr. Rugh, who has participated in the opening of Chinese Y. M. C. A. drives at Princeton, the Universities of California, Michigan, Missouri, and Iowa, and other colleges, opened his address by contrasting the size of the world today and a generation ago. "Modern transportation has reduced the world to one-ninth its former size," he declared, "and the generation now in college is the first that must deal with the shrunken world. We must adjust ourselves to the new world, whose greatest problem now lies in the Orient. Mr. Reinseh, United States Minister to China, said, 'As the last century belonged to America, so the next century will belong to China.' We must accustom ourselves to think internationally; Williams must be an international institution."

"Although China emerged from barbarism centuries ago, she is still struggling between Christianity and paganism. Bolshevism exerts a strong influence on many of the people, who are abandoning Christian study to take up the doctrines of Lenin in Russia. The leaders of the Chinese Renaissance have recommended the works of Marx and Lenin together with those of Tolstoy and James for Chinese students. On the other hand,

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

For the Games' Sake

The advantages to be gained by having every man on the team numbered were clearly shown last Saturday in the Yale Bowl. On account of the virtual impossibility of identifying the Williams players from the press box, erroneous reports of the game were spread broadcast through the country's newspapers. Correct publicity is preferable to inaccurate report, and the numbering of the players, in itself an easy task, would go far toward eliminating the chances of error, besides making the game more interesting for the spectators in the back rows and the many old grads who are not familiar with the new faces on the squad.

"Williams-in-China" a Reality

To oversubscribe the quota asked for within the first twenty-four hours is an achievement on the part of the student body which surpasses the hopes of even the most ardent partisans of the Soochow movement. The fact that the basis of the campaign was strictly confined to an intellectual rather than an emotional appeal makes the heavy response all the more significant. Contributors frequently regret pledges made under the stress of high emotional excitement, but those based on calm judgment and thorough consideration more frequently bring added gratification to their donors as time passes.

The entire campaign has been handled in a quiet but efficient fashion which reflects high credit on the committee in charge. With the fund over-subscribed and Mr. Hayes already on the high seas en route for Soochow, Williams-in-China may be safely said to have passed from the realm of theory into that of fact. We are glad to note, however, that the committee is not being content with that, but is going on to give every member of the student body and of the Faculty a chance to join in this Williams project. The need is immeasurably great in Soochow, and Williams will not have done its full share until it has enlisted 100% strong in founding and supporting this worthy complement of the Haystack tradition.

Let Williams Enlist

The following telegram, with reference to the probability of a general railroad strike, was received Thursday evening:

"Editor, THE WILLIAMS RECORD:
At meeting of Undergraduate Institute

Committee of Massachusetts Institute Technology Thursday resolution adopted to give Government all possible aid in case of railroad strike. Intensive courses in railroading to be given.

The Tech.

The movement for student action in reference to the railroad strike is growing, and the action at M. I. T. is a fair sample of what other institutions are doing. Those who remember the spirit with which Williams has turned out on previous occasions to aid the transportation of necessities, when the need was urgent, cannot doubt the hearty response which a similar call to aid the government will evoke. A definite statement to that effect, however, might be worth while in order to crystallize the sentiment at the present time, and THE RECORD suggests a college meeting for that purpose.

With the co-operation of the Administration, courses might even be established to train men in freight handling and other branches of railroad service which do not require extensive training. Adequate plans could also be drawn up for the efficient mobilizing of the student body in such manner as to afford the greatest service at the shortest possible notice.

Does your P.M. schedule read like this?

If your burning ambition is to excel as an all-around society man, you couldn't have planned your evenings better. Such persistence will win out over the indolence of the rank and file, for as the poet says,

"The heights by great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they while their companions slept
Were toiling upward in the night."

But if you intend to make your mark in engineering or business, don't expect that supremacy on the waxed floor will help when you start hunting a job.

Not that you need swing to the other extreme as a "grind" or a hermit. Let's concede it is all right to minor in sociabilities—but certainly it is only common sense to major in the math and sciences and English that will mean bread and butter to you later on.

Remember this—the harder you work right now in getting a grip on fundamentals, the easier things will come to you when you must solve still bigger problems. And if you take it easy now—well, look out for the law of compensation.

It's up to you. While you've got the chance, seize it, dig in, plug hard. It will pay—in cold cash.

Quota for Soochow Campaign Already Far Oversubscribed

many believe that religion is the key to the situation, as is shown by the fact that the Chinese government, though rotten in itself, has selected eight leading Christians to represent their country at the critical disarmament conference in Washington. In short, China has recently undergone a complete rebirth, and is now looking for leadership to help her choose between Christianity and Bolshevism. Williams-in-China will help supply this leadership."

Mr. Rugh passed briefly over the details of Williams' work in Soochow, declaring that The Record had satisfactorily covered the facts. He characterized Soochow as "The Boston of China, the leader of the country's thought." Mr. Hayes, the Williams representative at Soochow, he declared to be "the most sought-for man" on the staff of the American Y. M. C. A. in China. "Williams has chosen wisely to help the largest nation on earth in the most critical period of its life," concluded Mr. Rugh.

Assistant Professor Rice spoke of his experience on the faculty of Yale-in-China in 1919. "The colleges such as those maintained by Yale and Princeton are places of refuge for the people who are almost constantly oppressed by the native provincial governors," he said. "The ordinary Chinese youth is patriotic and active but easily discouraged by temporary failure, and the Y. M. C. A. is contributing largely to the development of coordination, co-operation, and morale among the people. The work benefits both China and the United States."

Professor Pratt declared that the fall of the old religions has caused this most critical period in Chinese history. "All the finer elements of Buddhism and China's other religions have disappeared, and it is now a question of Christianity or no religion at all. One of the chief functions of Williams-in-China is to develop a Chinese Christianity, adapted to the country's needs and conditions. It is a world problem of tremendous dimensions which must be settled at once, and cannot be dodged; it is an emergency call. Will Williams come to the rescue?"

J. E. Wilson '22 reported that the Student Council is backing the campaign "to the limit." Schnuffer '22 announced a subscription of over $300 from the editorial board of The Record, and stated that news of Williams-in-China would be printed as much as possible during the coming year. A quartet composed of Chapman and Wells '22 and Holmes and Rounds '23 sang several popular selections at the opening of the assembly. The meeting closed with the singing of "The Mountains."

Purity Will Rule in Stupendous Peerade

formance without the slightest danger of corruption.

Members of the Faculty will heave deep sighs of relief following the announcement of the Committee that a part of the originality of the Peerade will be derived from the absence of harrowing revelations of the private life of the professorial body. It has been assured that even those pedants who have recently fallen, or who may be contemplating an early downfall, into the ironclad bonds of matrimony may safely leave their blushing propensities at home and come out to see the freshmen go through their annual antics.

Adequate refutation of the accusations that Williams is provincial will be found in the several phases of current events that will be depicted in the Peerade. As a means of insuring the complete success of the performance, the entire class of 1925 has been imperiously invited to participate, and as usual, there are a few favored members of the Sophomore Class who have doubtless been urged to march.

Although the plans of the Committee are, for the most part, heavily veiled in secrecy, with the aid of a stomach-pump, a representative of The Record found it possible to obtain from the chairman of the Committee the arrangements that have been made to provide music to liven the weary steps of the marchers. The Greylock Band of fifteen generous pieces has been secured at a great expense of time and money to play for the event. This band of marvelous musicians has been selected in preference to all others as the best obtainable. It was this organization that turned the formerly famous Sousa prematurely gray and drove Pryor's world famous band from their soft berth at a prominent New Jersey shore resort.

The guests of the Hotel Greylock (both of 'em) will find it necessary to trail the Peerade to Weston Field if they would see more than a flitting glimpse of the marchers, as the Committee has decided not to present an entertainment in front of the Hotel this year.

Classical Society Holds First Meeting of Year

With an address by Professor Wetmore on his recent year of travel in France, Italy, and Greece, the Classical Society held its first meeting of the year last Thursday evening at the home of Professor Wild. About 35 students and members of the faculty were present at the meeting, which was of an informal nature.

After sailing on July 13, 1920, Professor Wetmore stopped at several villages of eastern France and then visited the chief towns of northern Italy. At Rome he spent over five months taking trips under the guidance of the American Academy. In the latter part of March, 1921, he went to Sicily, then back to Naples and Mt. Vesuvius, and finally reached Greece, where several weeks were spent in travel. Returning to Italy, Professor Wetmore visited Florence, Pisa, and Venice, and then went to London, sailing for Montreal in July.

After the address by Professor Wetmore, Count '21 outlined the proposed work of the Society for the coming year. Refreshments were then served by Mrs. Wild.

To Hold Novice Meet Soon

Open to everyone except the men on the Varsity cross-country squad, a novice cross-country meet will be held early in November. The run will be over the regular course, but will consist of only one lap instead of the usual two, making a race of about three miles. Stowers '23 was the winner last year. Prizes are offered by several Spring Street merchants to the first three or four men to finish.

Williams to Meet

Strong Blue Team

to Middlebury, which depends largely on its speed for power. In this game again, fumbles at inopportune moments accounted for two of the Army's touchdowns. Last Saturday Middlebury won its first game of the season when it defeated the strong Norwich team 3-0.

The Middlebury eleven is coached by Dave R. Morey, former Dartmouth half back. Injuries to four of his most dependable players have been a great handicap to him throughout the season. Brown, star end and veteran of three seasons, broke his shoulder in the Dartmouth game, and Kalin, a guard has been suffering from an infected knee. Moynihan, centre, has been out for two weeks with leg injuries, and Gallagher at end has not been in first class condition since the Harvard game. It is expected, however, that all these men with the exception of Brown, will be in shape for the Williams game, when Middlebury will be able to present its strongest line-up.

The story of the Williams football season thus far has been one of steady development, with the real strength of the team showing for the first time in the Yale game last Saturday. Hamilton was defeated 14-0 in the first game of the season, which was characterized by the raggedness of the play of both sides, especially in the third and fourth quarters, which were marked by five fumbles, three penalizations, and several intercepted passes. At no time, however, was the outcome of the game in doubt, a total of 155 yards being gained on rushes by Williams while Hamilton was credited with only 41 yards. In this game the Purple first showed signs of the forward pass attack which proved so powerful against Yale.

Bowdoin held Williams to a scoreless tie in the second game of the season, when the slippery condition of the field prevented any consistent ground gaining by either team. The game resolved itself into a punting duel between Monjo and Richmond, and Morrel of Bowdoin, with no decisive gains on either side. Both teams exhibited a strong defense, only four first downs being made in the entire game, although this contest was not a fair test of the ability of either team.

Williams reached its maximum power when it held Yale to a score of 23 to 0 in the Yale Bowl last Saturday. The Purple showed an offensive and defensive strength which its supporters had not dared to hope for, three times bringing the ball to Yale's 15-yard line, and preventing the Blue from making any consistent gains by straight football. In this game Williams' forward passes proved a constant menace to Yale, while Monjo, showing the best form of the season, held Captain Aldrich of Yale in a punting duel, sending off several punts of over 55 yards. Mallon played a heady game, especially on the sending of the forward passes, and the return of Robinson, who had been on the injured list for week and a half, greatly strengthened the line.

The drill of the past week has been devoted to correcting the faults which came to light in the Yale game. Coach Wendell has placed especial emphasis on perfecting the tackle plays, which did not prove effective against Yale and general drill has been held in the other departments of the game. Ted Withington, who helped coach the team two years ago, is in Williamstown and has aided Coach Wendell during the past few days. Shuttlesworth and Holmes are both out for the rest of the season, the former on account of a kidney injury, the latter because of studies.

The probable line-ups of the two teams is as follows:

Williams	Middlebury
Pease	Leary
Laus	Potratz
Jones	Laumpher
Boynton	Moynihan
Robinson	Reinbrecht
Fargo (Capt.)	Norton
Healy	Gallagher
Mallon	Quackenbush
Burger	Ashley

Correction

In 1917, Mr. Edward Bok of Philadelphia agreed to give a considerable sum each year for five years to provide better baseball coaching. But the Athletic Council continued to pay part of the Coach's salary. Mr. Bok's five-year arrangement terminated with the 1921 season. He does not, nor could he be expected to, continue to contribute toward the salary of the baseball coach. At his request, the name of the generous donor was kept secret until this time.

For many years Dr. Fitch has been one of the most popular visiting speakers at Williams, having spoken here twice last year at meetings of the W. C. A. Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarettey aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.

STRONG ELEVEN TO OPPOSE COLUMBIA

Williams Team in Fine Shape for Game After Week of Intense Scrimmages

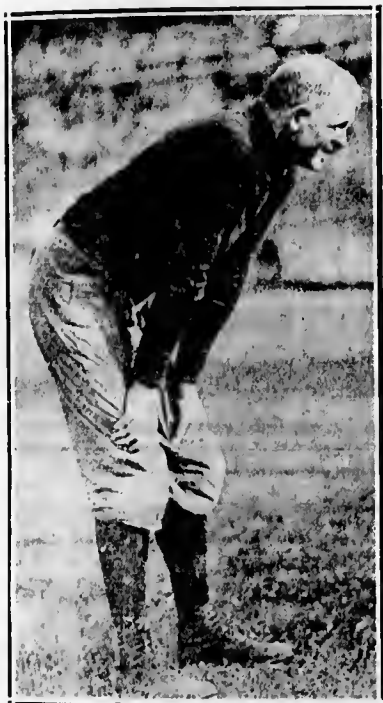

BLUE AND WHITE HAS GOOD OFFENSIVE TEAM

New Yorkers Defeated Wesleyan and N. Y. U. Lost to Amherst and Dartmouth

October 28—Columbia is confident of victory over the Purple tomorrow afternoon, when the teams clash on South Field. Probably 175 men will follow the Williams eleven to New York and enthusiasm is rife for a Williams victory to avenge the defeat of last year.

Comparative scores are not available, for the two teams have played no games as yet with a common opponent. Columbia lost her first game to Amherst, 9-7, and during the entire contest, the Blue and White was kept on the defensive. Columbia was admittedly far outplayed by the sons of Lord Jeff. The resistance of Columbia's line was practically negligible, and the Amherst backfield repeatedly showed its superiority. Mosezcenski was the only member of the Metropolitan eleven that did any work worthy of commendation, and his excellence was greatly hampered by the poor support rendered by his team mates. He scored Columbia's only touchdown.

COLUMBIA'S COACH

"BUCK" O'NEIL

Wesleyan fell before the onslaught of the Columbia team, 14-3. The Red and Black depended on the speed of their aggregation to carry off part of the weight advantage that Columbia had, but found that their speed was of little avail on the wet turf of South Field. Once again, Mosezcenski proved a satchite for the Blue and White offensive, and Koppisch and Anderson played first-class football. Scriggins, the Wesleyan tackle, made the only tally for his team in the second period by kicking a field goal from the side line at the 30-yard mark.

Columbia blanked her uptown rival, New York University, 19-0, in the annual classic between the metropolitan rivals. The "slashing attack" of the Columbia team was featured by the work of Mosezcenski, Koppisch, and Burt. De Stefano, who formerly was a member of the Princeton team, made a brilliant run for a touch-

Phil. Union to Meet

"Reality" will be the subject on which Dr. T. Hayes Proctor will address the Philosophical Union at its second meeting of the year Monday at 8 p. m. in the Commons Reading Room. The lively interest aroused at the last meeting is expected to continue throughout the year and a full attendance is expected to hear Dr. Proctor.

Mass Meeting Speeds Team Toward Columbia

Coch Wendell was the principal speaker at a mass meeting held last Wednesday evening in Jesup Hall for the purpose of arousing enthusiasm for the Columbia game. Before and after the coach's speech the cheerleaders put the students through a cheering drill, including instructions concerning the actual singing and cheering at today's game.

Although expressing himself as well satisfied with the support given the team in the face of defeat in the Middlebury game, Coach Wendell asked that the college try to do even better on South Field, promising that the team would render a good account of itself. In order to make the strategy of the contest more interesting to the spectators, the coach outlined diagrammatically some of Columbia's formations and plays, and the steps that would be taken to block them.

Rounds '22 gave instructions for cheering and singing "For it's Captain Fargo Coming Down the Line" at the game with Columbia, and loud applause followed the cheers for the coach, the captain, and the team.

Buell '22, agent for the special train which is to leave New York at 12:25 Monday morning and arrive in Williamstown in time for chapel, outlined the plans for running the train. The meeting closed with the singing of "The Mountains."

HARRIERS TO RACE SPRINGFIELD TODAY

Close Meet Expected Over Local Course With Conquerors of Wesleyan

Williams and Springfield Y. M. C. A. College will meet this afternoon at 2:30 p. m. in the only local cross-country race of the season. Both teams have won impressive early-season victories, Williams with a 15-15 win over Middlebury, and the visitors with an easy 18-44 triumph over the Wesleyan harriers.

Springfield was not extended to defeat the Red and Black over the latter's course last Saturday. Eldridge of Springfield won the race in the exceptional time of 26 min. 18 4-5 secs, breaking the Wesleyan course record. The following men trailed Eldridge in the order named, and will probably start against Williams today: Offer, Robbins, Heck, Staley, Reed, and Rodriguez.

In the only other meet of the season Springfield overcame Worcester Tech 23-32. Under the coaching of Professor Paul Otto the Y. M. C. A. College team has lost only one race in the past three years. Of last year's successful team, Captain Offer, Staley, and Robbins alone have returned.

Whether Sanford will be able to represent the Purple today is doubtful, as he has suffered an injury to his ankle, but the rest of the team that defeated Middlebury will run. Seven men will be chosen to compete from among the following: Captain Adams, Count, Seaman '22, Fosse, Fritchen, Webb '23, Sanford and Swan '24.

The teams will run twice over the usual two and a half-mile course, beginning at the Gymnasium and circling the Taconic golf links, and finishing with one lap around the Weston Field track.

Cook '25 Defeats Rowse '22 for Rockwood Tennis Cup

By defeating Captain Rowse '22 in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, Cook '25 won the annual College singles tournament last Tuesday afternoon on the College courts, and thereby annexed the Rockwood Memorial cup, given in memory of Richard Burton Rockwood '16, who was a member of the tennis team while in college. This is the second year that this trophy has been offered. Last year it was won by Chapin '23, New England Intercollegiate Champion in 1920.

Cook played a hard, steady game, and throughout the match held the edge on Rowse who was playing defensive rather than offensive tennis, but who played a game that kept his opponent on the alert at all shots. The sets were more closely contested than the score would indicate, and it was only through hard fighting and good placement that Cook succeeded in winning the match.

Resolutions Passed at Intercollegiate Conference

Whereas the recent World War has demonstrated that future war would be a calamity whose consequences are beyond all calculation; and

Whereas, the nations of the world, already impoverished by past wars and confronted by the urgent social and economic problems bred by war, have entered on an unprecedented scale into the race for military and naval supremacy, which makes for mutual distrust and war, rather than for mutual understanding and peace; and

Whereas the costs of vast armaments prevent the diverting into constructive channels of money and energy, sorely needed for the solution of the problems of peace; and

Whereas the Government of the United States, appreciating these facts, has invited the powers to meet in conference at Washington to discover means through which the reduction and limitation of armaments by international agreement may be realized, and to promote through amicable discussion universal good-will; and

Whereas, the college men who speak have proved their devotion and loyalty in the past war and the generation which the present would in all probability bear the brunt of a future war; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the representatives of forty colleges and universities in conference assembled, do hereby express to the Government of the United States our unqualified approval of the course it has taken in summoning the Washington conference and our entire sympathy with the purposes of the conference, pledging our faithful support to the United States delegates in their efforts to alleviate the burden of war and preparation for war, through mutual understanding through world reduction and limitation of armaments; and that we do hereby urge upon all delegates that their efforts shall not cease until some solution be found whereby the possibility of war may be minimized, and whereby at least a considerable portion of the vast amount of energy and money expended by the nations for armament may be released for the development rather than the destruction of civilization and the human race.

And be it further resolved:

That it is the sense of the Intercollegiate Conference that the Washington conference will not have attained its objectives without:

(1) A settlement of the Far Eastern question based upon principles which will make practicable the reduction of naval armaments.

(2) An agreement to suspend all present programs for naval construction and to undertake no further expansion.

(3) An agreement to reduce substantially the present naval strength of the nations concerned. And be it further

Resolved: That a copy of the above resolution be signed by each delegate here assembled, and dispatched forthwith to the President of the United States of America, and to representatives of the press for publication.

FAIL TO AGREE ON PLANS FOR DEBATE

Triangular League Delegates Expect to Compromise on 36-Hour Notification

Plans for the annual Amherst-Wesleyan-Williams triangular debate are hanging in the balance on account of a disagreement in the conditions of the contest proposed at a meeting of delegates of the three institutions held last Friday afternoon at the Hotel Kimball, Springfield, Mass.

At last week's meeting the Amherst delegates proposed that the debate be run, as it was last year, under the system of announcing the exact topic to the debaters only 24 hours before the time of the contest. Helfrich '24, the Williams representative, seconded the proposal, but Wesleyan objected and declined to debate under these conditions. Last Thursday Wesleyan agreed to a compromise on a 36-hour basis, which will in all probability be adopted.

None of the details of the debate were decided upon, but they will be settled at another meeting of delegates from the three contestants in Springfield next week. The general topic favored by Amherst and Wesleyan concerned industrial arbitration, although Williams suggested the topic of limitation of disarmament. Friday, December 2, was selected as a tentative date for the triangular contest.

CONFERENCE FAVORS DISARMAMENT PLAN

Delegates From 39 Colleges Meet at Princeton and Discuss Limitation Policy

FORMAL RESOLUTION OF APPROVAL IS DRAWN UP

Prominent Ex-Service Men Speak on Waste and Destruction Caused by War

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 26—Delegates from 39 colleges and universities, having an aggregate student body of more than 100,000, met here today to formulate and present to the International Conference on the Limitation of Armaments the sentiment of the generation who will bear the brunt of the next war, and to promote interest and discussion among the college men concerning the problems which will be before the National Conference at Washington. Schaulier and Lyon '22 were the Williams delegates, and together with other representatives, signed the resolutions which were sent to the national committee, and Lyon was one of a committee of five which drew up the formal sentiment and result of the meeting.

President Harding, in a telegram to John Grier Hibben, President of Princeton University, under whose auspices the conference was held, said:

"My very cordial greeting to college conferees meeting at Princeton to discuss the problem to an international agreement on the limitation of armaments. Knowing as I do the sincerity of our American purpose, free from every phase of national selfishness, it is most gratifying to know that the college thought of the Republic is being exercised helpfully to commit the sentiment of our country and the world to real achievement. A great service to this generation may prove vastly greater to the generations yet to come."

Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State, also expressed his approval of the object of the conference as follows:

"The State Department welcomes the aid of public spirited citizens in furthering the objects on the Limitation of Armaments, and keenly desires to facilitate all who are engaged in the effort to give accurate information and to develop sound opinion."

The student conference opened Wednesday with an afternoon meeting at 3:00 p. m. when the delegates were welcomed to Princeton by President Hibben, who has been appointed Vice-Chairman of the National Council of the Limitation of Armaments which has its headquarters at Washington. In his informal speech, he recognized the patriotic willingness of college men to spring to arms in case of war, but stated that he felt that it was a greater opportunity to seek to prevent war. He praised the Student Friendship Fund under John R. Mott, which provides food and clothing to needy students in foreign lands. In closing, President Hibben stated that he would give his full support to any verbal expression of sentiment that the conference should see fit to draw up.

Capt. Norman Mackie, in the class of '09 of Princeton University, who was an officer in the air service during the war, and was aide de camp to General Biddle, then presented the economic aspect of the situation and the fact that the future wars will not be the product of militarism, but rather will be incited by the fact that nations will be subject to the necessity of finding markets for their goods. He quoted appalling figures on the cost and preparations for war, giving examples from past and present conflicts, and the estimation of what a war in the future would amount to financially. "It is the generation of the present," said Capt. Mackie, "which has made the sacrifice in the recent war, and it is the youth of

WILLIAMS 1925 WILL MEET UNION FRESHMEN

Union 1925 Has Lost to Glens Falls by 17-0 Score—To Be Last Game at Home

In the only regular home game of the season the Williams Freshman football team will meet the Union Freshmen this afternoon at 2:30 p. m., on Weston Field. This is the second game of the schedule, the 1925 team having defeated the Williamstown Tigers, by a score of 33-0 last Saturday.

The Freshmen scrimmaged with the varsity Wednesday and offered a strong resistance. The line showed a powerful charge at times while at other times the varsity line-men carried it off its feet. Brownell proved a strong defensive man as guard and Jones showed up well at center. The biggest strength of the 1925 combination lies in the backfield. Diekey showed excellent judgment in the choice of plays to be run and is a sure tackler. Bourne and Chandler have excelled on end runs and off-tackle plays, providing good interference for the other backs and clever dodging when carrying the ball themselves. King has proved an asset as a plunger and in backing up the line. He uses his weight well and is a good tackler. Reed and Motter will probably get into the game in the backfield.

The Union freshmen made a poor start, losing the first two games to the Saratoga High School team 19-7 and to the Glens Falls High School eleven by a 17-0 score. The playing in both games was ragged and showed great room for improvement. The team is in charge of Gregory, captain of last year's varsity and Wemple '21, who held down a backfield assignment for two years.

The line-ups of the two teams is as follows:

Senior Class Elects Basketball Manager

Theodore C. Brandeis Jr. '22 was elected class basketball manager at a meeting of the Senior Class held in Jesup Hall last Monday evening. At the same time Philip R. Blake, Hampton D. Ewing Jr., William H. Prescott Jr., Douglas H. Rose II, and Dudley B. Wallace '22 were chosen to be members of the Class Book board.

Plans for a Senior Dance over the week end of the Union game, were considered, and in the event that it is found possible to hold the dance a committee to direct it will be nominated by President Lyon.

It was furthermore decided that a tablet in memory of James Mellick Baker ex-'22 who died last winter, be placed in the Thompson Chapel.

The Third Stumbling Block?

No incentive to victorious football will be lacking to the Purple team when the whistle blows for the Williams-Columbia game this afternoon on South Field. The memory of last year's game, when the Blue and White defeated "Benny Boynton and his gang" by the count of 20-14 still rankles, and, first of all, that score remains to be wiped from the slate.

Because more Williams alumni and a larger total number of spectators attend this game than any other on the schedule, it is in some respects the most important of the year. Earlier in the season Amherst downed Columbia by the score of 9-7.
Today's game will be the first in which a direct comparison can be made between the New England rivals, and Williams men have large hopes that the comparison will not prove unfavorable. Nearly half the undergraduate body and twice that number of alumni and friends will be in the Williams stands to cheer the team to a victory. They call for a supreme effort.

"Columbia's football star," remarks the Columbia Spectator, "is in the ascendant." Amherst, however, gave Columbia hopes a rude jolt, and Dartmouth furnished one still ruder. Williams gives its team undivided support with the firm hope that the result of the game may prove a third stumbling block to Columbia's gridiron aspirations, and may mean greatly increased prestige for the Purple.

What Do You Think?

The Intercollegiate Conference on the Limitation of Armaments met at Princeton last Wednesday and drew up certain definite resolutions. Individuals may agree or disagree with certain details in execution, but the object sought by the Conference is a worthy one, and the desirability of its goal is recognized by the thinking world.

But the immediate point is as to whether college students, and more particularly, Williams students, have given the entire question any careful thought. True, we all agree with the thinking world that limitation of armaments is highly desirable, indeed necessary. Yet how is this to be effected? Can France have the German menace removed and thus agree to a smaller army? Can the interests of Japan or Britain be so secured as to do away with the need for large navies?
What do you think on these and the host of other similar problems?

Shortly the opportunity may be presented of influencing Washington through straw votes, instructed delegates, and other means. How will you vote? Is your mind intelligently made up?

The privilege and the right of the college man to enrich his mind is well brought out in the following comment by the New York Times:

"The college man is in the way of doing all this without being misunderstood.
For it was the college man, and men of college age, who bore the brunt of the last struggle, and it is to the college man that, if need be, the world will turn again.
From the 'dreaming spires' of Oxford, the windy 'closes' of Edinburgh, the corridors of the Sorbonne and from every campus in the length and breadth of this vast land they went in their thousands and, to quote one of the greatest of them 'laid the world away; poured out the red, sweet wine of youth.' All this is of too recent and too glorious a memory to need stressing. It is not out of place, therefore, that college men should be found in the vanguard of another movement of preparedness—a preparedness for peace, not for conflict; for building up, not for tearing down—a preparedness that, in President Hibben's phrase, 'will create national and international conditions which will tend to make war an unthinkable thing.'"

To the editor of THE RECORD,

Dear Sir:

I was very glad to see your short editorial "For the Game's Sake" in THE RECORD of Oct. 22.

I am one of the many "old grads who are not familiar with the new faces on the squad." I saw the Yale game a few weeks ago and if it had not been for a courteous and obliging undergraduate who sat in front of me I would have had no idea as to
"who was who" on our team.

Many of us alumni read THE RECORD carefully each week following the work of the individuals on the squad and spend more than half our time at the games we are able to attend asking people near us to identify our own players.

For the game's sake and for our sake,
why not number the men?

Wesleyan Team Light but Fast, in Mid-season Form

Middleton, Conn., Oct. 27.—Although handicapped by lack of weight the Wesleyan football team is rounding into good mid-season form, as was demonstrated by its excellent showing against New York University, at New York, last Saturday when Wesleyan held the strong Violet team to a 7-7 tie. Seriggins and Adams played consistently for the Red and Black, the former averaging fifty yards in his punts.

The Connecticut team this year is both light and inexperienced. Only two men in the whole varsity squad weigh over 170 and only four have done any previous varsity playing. There is no one star, the backs dividing the work about equally.
Straight football has been employed since the beginning of the season. Fifty percent of the forward passes attempted have been successful, and only four touchdowns have been scored by opponents. Seriggins and Fricke are fast developing into accurate drop kickers so that more of this work will probably be seen in the future.

No-Deal Agreement Ratified

S. Phillips '22, chairman of the No-Deal Committee, has announced that the No-Deal Agreement has been ratified for the current college year, having been signed by more than four-fifths of the undergraduates in each fraternity and in the neutral body. In accordance with the rule which applies in this case, the force of the instrument will bear upon each member of the student body whether he has signed it or not.

The No-Deal Agreement, which is annually put before the College for ratification, applies to all nominations or elections to any undergraduate office. A "deal" is considered as any agreement, written, spoken, or tacitly understood, between two or more men, or groups of men, with the interest of aiding or hindering the nomination or election of any man for an undergraduate position.

PORTRAITS OF WAR FIGURES EXHIBITED

Notable Collection to Be Given to Nation Comes to Grace Hall November 1

Grace Hall will be transformed into an art gallery of war portraits from November 1 to November 10. Under the auspices of Mrs. James C. Rogerson, whose husband was a member of the Class of 1892 at Williams, an exhibition of paintings by eminent American artists will be placed on view at that time, and will be open to the public from 10 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 5
p. m. daily.

The portraits were painted under the direction of the National Art Committee, which was organized in 1919 for the purpose of making a pictorial record of the Great war, and after a tour of exhibition through the country, they will be presented to the National Portrait Gallery at Washington, D. C., by art-loving and public-spirited citizens of some of the larger cities.
The paintings were first exhibited in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, last January, and since that time have been shown in many art galleries in the East. After the Grace Hall exhibition, the collection of portraits will go to Amherst College, and then to the Middle West, Far West, and South.

The American Magazine of Art characterizes the collection of paintings as "a notable memorial of the Great War." The pictures in the exhibition, and the well-known painters who created them, are as follows:

Admiral Beatty, Premier Clemenceau, Cardinal Mercier, by Cecilia Beaux; Premier Borden, General Currie, by Joseph DeCamp; Premier Bratiano, Premier Pashieh, Prince Saionji, by Charles Hopkinson; Field-Marshal Haig, Marshal Joffre, General Diaz, Premier Orlando, and the group "Signing of the Peace Treaty, 1919," by John C. Johansen; Elizabeth, Queen of the Belgians, Premier Hughes, Premier Venizelos, by Jean Mc-Lane; President Wilson, Herbert Hoover, Marshal Foch, General Leman, by Edmund C. Tarbell; Albert, King of the Belgians, Premier Lloyd George, General Pershing, by Douglas Volk; Admiral Sims, by Irving R. Wiles.

geles, Cal., Lindsley V. Dodge of New up of more than a hundred pages. The preface is written by Senor Roberto versity and former Secretary of Education in Costa Rica.

sented to the winning organization by the Club.

Having been granted an appropriation by the Non-Athletic Council, the Gun Club is putting into condition the trap

Improving the quality of its teamwork each game, the junior soccer team strengthened its hold on first place in the interclass series by defeating the freshmen for the second time by the score of 2-0 last Tuesday and by scoring its second victory over the sophomores Wednesday by the score of 3-0. The 1923 men completely outclassed their opponents in both games, neither of the underclass teams being able to hold in check the fast and well-balanced junior aggregation.

By defeating the sophomores 3-2 in an extra-period game Monday the seniors took second place in the league standing, having won two games and lost one. The sophomores still trail the league with five defeats, but put up better opposition against the seniors than in any previous game. The senior-freshman and the senior-junior games scheduled for Thursday and Friday were postponed because of the number of men attending the Columbia game.

'Cap and Bells' Coach Will Be Selected Soon

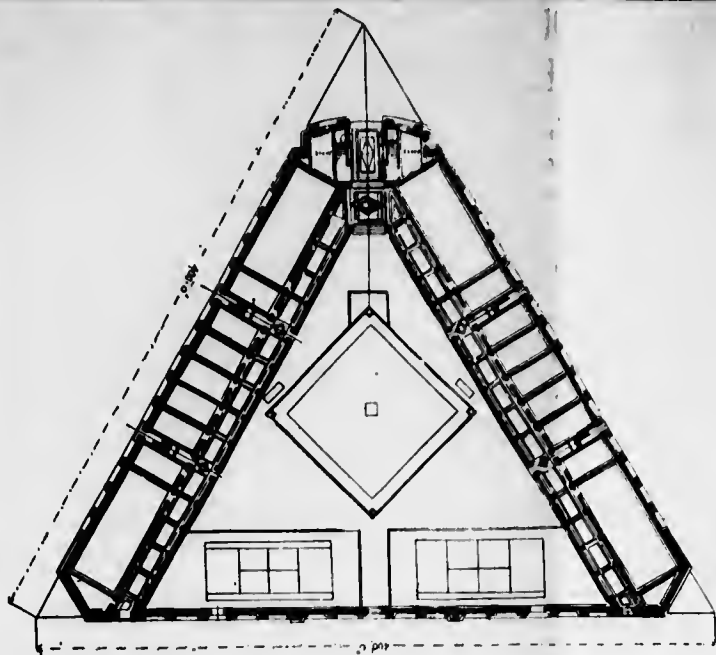

Preliminary trials for Cap and Bells were held in Jesup Hall last Monday evening and will take place again sometime during the first part of next week. By these trials it is hoped to cut down the number of candidates to about 40, thereby simplifying the task of the coach in his selection of workable material. Clark and Grout '22, president and business manager of the organization respectively, were present at a meeting of the Alumni Advisory Committee on Dramatics and Musical Activities held at the New York Williams Club yesterday. Discussion of the coach for the coming season was taken up, and it is probable that within the next few days he will be appointed.

Alumni Review Out

Featuring an article, "Williams College Gymnasiums, Past and Present" by Henry W. Smith, '69, who was formerly Instructor of Gymnastics at Williams and is now Instructor of Elocution at Princeton Theological Seminary, the October number of the Williams Alumni Review has just been published.

Besides Mr. Smith's article, the Review contains an article by Alfred C. Chapin, '69, "Old Books for the New Library," describing the 8500 volumes that Mr. Chapin intends to give to the College. There is also included in the October issue much editorial comment on the Institute of Politics and on many campus questions, such as the Athletic Council and Commencement.

The usual amount of College news and news about athletics is contained in the new Review, as is also a large number of alumni notes.

FLOOR PLAN

The floor plan of the proposed Williams Triangle, which was described in the last issue of The Record. Provided that the coming campaign for additional endowment for the College is sufficiently successful, this building will become a reality.

ADD 1143 NEW BOOKS TO COLLEGE LIBRARY

Special Collection on Dante Put on Shelves—Section on World Politics

According to a recent announcement of the college librarian, 1143 new volumes have been added to the library, bringing the total number of books to 99,486. The library has put on exhibition a remarkable collection of works commemorating the 600th anniversary of the death of the Italian poet, Dante.

The Institute of Politics was responsible for the acquisition of a large number of volumes on international law, the League of Nations, and world politics. One of the most unusual sets was the series of Peace Handbooks, in 25 volumes, containing the survey made by the British foreign office for the Peace Conference. A new Times loose-leaf atlas, one of the most complete of its kind, has been acquired. A complete set of Montesquieu's works, in six volumes, was purchased with the interest accruing from the Rockwood Fund, provided in memory of Richard Burton Rockwood '16 who gave his life in France. Six volumes of Chateaubriand's Memoires D'Outre-Tombe were also secured through this fund. Both of these sets are very ornate in binding and unusual in character. Many other valuable volumes have been added, keeping up to date the library collection.

In the East Wing of Lawrence Hall there has been placed on exhibition a collection of books by Dante and of books on Dante. The 32 volumes in this collection were selected by Professor Rice. Several valuable and unusual copies of his works are in this group, one of which, written in Italian, dates back to 1536. The bibliography, One Hundred Dante Books, has been checked to indicate the books in the library that concern his life and works. This collection is accessible to all students who may be interested, on the 600th anniversary of his death, in Dante Alighieri and his masterpieces.

Outing Club Committees

In preparation for the coming season's activities Adams '22, president of the Williams Outing Club, announces the following committees for that organization:

Committee on winter sports: Greene '23 (chairman), McNair '22, Fitcher '23, and Greene '24.

Committee on trips: Castle '22 (chairman), Davis and Learned '22, and Ayer '23.

Committee on trails: Greer '22 (chairman), Elliot, Fleming '22, Allen, Langmuir Larkin, Nebolsine, Newton, and Stephens '23, Copeland and Russell '24.

Committee on club rooms: Newton '23 (chairman), Bancker '22 and Graves '23.

Special Committee for map: Nebolsine '23.

ROPE-PULL TO TAKE PLACE ON WEDNESDAY

Sophomores and Freshmen Will Struggle for Supremacy in Green River

Freshmen and Sophomores will stage their annual Tug-of-War across the Green River next Wednesday afternoon. The rules regarding the contest remain unchanged from those of former years.

Arrangements for the tug-of-war have been made by the Underclass Contests Committee consisting of Bumsted, Chapman, Hahlo, Preston, chairman, and Rowse '22. 1924 will meet at the Gymnasium at 4.00 p. m. to march to the scene of action, while 1925 will assemble on the Jesup Hall campus at the same time and carry the rope to the river, where the president of the Freshman class will take it across the stream to the Sophomores. The Freshmen will occupy the east bank for the first pull. At the firing of a pistol by the chairman of the committee, who stands in the middle of the stream, each class will attempt to pull the other through the river. The first one to do this twice must carry the rope back to the Gymnasium to win the contest. Whichever class has final possession of the rope is declared the winner.

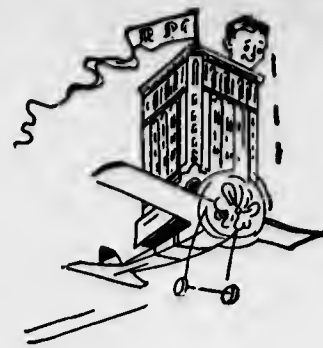

Dr. Holmes to Conduct Both Services Tomorrow

Rev. Samuel Van Vranken Holmes, D.D. '83, will conduct the services tomorrow morning in Chapel and will hold communion service at 5.30 in the afternoon. Dr. Holmes, who is a member of the Alumni Advisory Committee of the Williams Christian Association, has been holding conferences with students during the past week in Jesup Hall on matters pertaining to life work.

After studying a year at the University of Berlin and later at the Princeton Theological Seminary, Dr. Holmes was ordained in the Presbyterian ministry in 1887. Williams conferred on him the degrees of M.A. and D.D. in 1886 and 1903 respectively. Dr. Holmes has held pastorates in Richfield Springs, N. Y., and in Washington, D. C., and in 1893 was called to the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Buffalo, N. Y., which pastorate he now holds. He has conducted conferences and officiated at Williams services for many years.

down in the last quarter, carrying the ball from the N. Y. U. 42-yard line. The reserve power of Columbia was shown in this game by the mettle of the team in the last few minutes of play, for with the ball in midfield, practically an entire second-string aggregation was put into play.

Last Saturday afternoon, amid a shower of fumbles on Columbia's part, Dartmouth overwhelmed the New York team, 31-7, Koppisch scoring the Blue and White's lone touchdown. In the language of a letter about the game received from the Columbia Spectator, "although the affray at Hanover resulted in some bad sprains and a few minor injuries, every member of the Columbia squad is expected to be in condition for the combat at South Field Saturday. Koppisch, who was the individual star of the game at Dartmouth, and who has led the Blue and White offense all season, has recovered from an injury which put him out of the Dartmouth game for the last quarter," and he is counted on to carry off some brilliant forward passes with Anderson, the Columbia quarterback, against the Purple tomorrow afternoon. Anderson's kicking is heavily counted upon to aid in the Williams game, and it is expected that De Stefano will play in the backfield.

25 men will make the trip to Columbia, leaving this afternoon at 12:55 p. m. and arriving in New York at 6:25. The men that will go are as follows: Bigham, Burger, Clark, Coleman, Fargo, Montgomery, Phillips, Wilcox, and Wilson '22, Boynton, Byers, Humes, Jones, Laws, Mallon, Monjo, Richmond, Reuther, and Wilson '23, Barnes, Cole, Healy, Hoffmann, Pease, and Robinson '24.

During the early part of the week, the squad concentrated on hard scrimmages, C team opposing A. Special attention was given to the line in breaking through and in defense work. On Wednesday, team A scrimmaged with the freshmen, making consistently large gains around end and through tackle. Forward passes proved very successful in this practice. Thursday there was dummy scrimmage practice and heavy signal drill.

The leadership of Mallon at quarter has been excellent throughout the week. Fargo has been playing in his usual form at tackle, starring for the line. J. Wilson played in the scrimmage against the 1925 eleven and has been showing up very well, especially in view of the fact that this is the first practice in which he has participated since the Hamilton game, in which he was badly injured. It is probable that he will replace Burger or Monjo in the course of the game tomorrow.

At the opening of the game, the lineup of the Purple team will be the same as that which has prevailed throughout the season thus far: Pease and Healy at ends, Fargo and Laws tackles, Robinson and Jones in the guard positions, and Boynton at center. The backfield will start with Mallon, Monjo, Burger, and Richmond.

The tentative lineups of the two teams are as follows:

WILLIAMS		COLUMBIA
Healy	l. e.	Forsythe
Laws	l. t.	Meyer
Jones	l. g.	Walden
Boynton	e.	Seovil (Capt.)

Conference Favors Disarmament Plan

America which must demand that the Washington Conference be so conducted that it will ensure proper methods of preventing further wars. The responsibility rests upon America because of her economic and military pre-eminence." In stating further the purpose which the student conference should keep in mind he said, "We must demand that the Washington Conference be conducted in a magnanimous fashion, and that full publicity should be given all its meetings to obviate the secret mistakes of Versailles. The question of Disarmament, particularly naval programs, should not be left until last as planned, but should be put first and settled before serious discussion can break up the Conference in any manner."

One of the most important talks of the afternoon was that of Professor E. W. Kemmerer, of the faculty of Princeton University, in which he explained certain charts he had prepared regarding the results and effects of a modern war. These were mainly taken from a governmental pamphlet entitled The War With Germany, and presented startling facts concerning the stupendous amount expended during the past conflict. He asserted that the war cost the United States more than a million dollars an hour for more than two years, and that our expenses were so great that the Revolutionary war could have been carried on for 1000 years at the same total expenditure. Considering that the total amount of money in circulation in the United States today is about six billion, he stated that the war, as a complete unit, cost 186,000,000,000 dollars, and gave other figures equally as startling concerning the actual expenses of running the government during the period of war. With other charts, he showed the great numbers of men killed from disease and battle, and stated that the 7,582,000 men who died as a result of the war would constitute a population of a state three times the size of New Jersey, and that they form a body four times the number of students in all the high schools, academies, colleges, universities, and professional schools in the United States. Perhaps his most significant figures were those which showed that 92 per cent of the expenditures of the National Income during the war were for military uses, while the rest was divided between the important administrations of Public Welfare, Public Works, and the executives of the government. Prof. Kemmerer is one of the ablest authorities on economics and statistics, and because of the fact that the delegates were able to visualize the tremendous expense, destruction, and waste of the war by means of his charts, his point was brought home with startling clearness and reality.

Following Prof. Kemmerer, Major Van Santvoord Merle-Smith gave the results of the war as first, personal and economic suffering; and second, burden of armaments in dollars and in the militaristic spirit that they foster. In defining the task that was presented to the student conference, he stated that the essential duty was to think clearly and then to carry out the decisions made in actions. He touched upon the foreign element, in stressing the importance of organizing and securing the support of opinions, similar to those made in the Princeton Conference, in English, French, Japanese, and Chinese colleges and universities.

Mr. Robert Wilberforce, of the British Embassy, then presented the greetings of Oxford and Cambridge Universities, and read the message of the Rt. Hon. H. A. L. Fisher, President of the English Board of Education and Member of the British Cabinet, in which he sent his hearty congratulations and co-operation. At the same time greetings from the Director General of the Pan-American Union, the Pan-American Student League, and the National Council of Limitation of Armaments, were read before the meeting.

Lengthy discussion followed the speeches, and the general phases of the purpose and objects which the conference wished to accomplish were presented and discussed by the delegates as a whole. Following this, a committee of five was elected by the representatives to draw up the resolutions of the conference and present them to the delegates at the evening meeting. Four of the men on this committee were Lyon of Williams, Baker of Harvard, Case of Princeton (chairman), and Skelding of Princeton. The representatives also voted to establish a general intercollegiate committee to advance the cause of disarmament, and also a smaller executive committee to head the movement, the latter committee to be elected by the former. The resolution which was drawn up by the body appointed is to be found on another part of this page.

At 7.00 p. m. in the University Dining Halls, a banquet was held for the delegates and the members of the Senior Council. At this meeting the resolutions previously prepared were presented for approval. President Hibben presided over the evening meeting, which was held in Alexander Hall, and was open to undergraduates and townspeople. Col. Franklin D'Olier, in the class of '98 of Princeton University, in a short speech, then described the foolishness of war, stating that war between nations is as senseless as duelling between individuals. This was the essence of his topic, and with various illustrations, he gave further reasons for the disarmament cause as affecting the common sense of the people of today.

Major General John F. O'Ryan, Commander of the 27th Division, then spoke of the amazing apathy with which the generation which had passed through the World War was confronting this opportunity to decrease the chances of another, and expressed his hope that the lesson of the recent conflict would not be wasted. Limitation of Armament, he stated, is not an end, but a means to limit the probability of war. Under present circumstances, nations are spending five times as much money for the preparation of further wars than before the "War to end all wars," and contended that the only effective method to eliminate armament is to arouse in the individual a permanent prejudice against the evils and problems arising from war. In this connection, he advocated the League of Nations and the World Tribunal as means of effective organization to avoid wars, and said that these bodies, as well as all other disarmament groups, should take into consideration the self-interest and emotionalism of man. In summing up his topic, he declared that the Limitation of Armament is not sufficient to prevent future wars, but that real peace organizations are necessary to fill this great need.

In the final address of the evening, Mr. Vernon Kellogg, summed up the purpose and extent of the Limitation of Armament policy, by saying that such an institution would reduce waste and use every ounce of human effort constructively and not destructively. In conclusion, he gave a dramatic portrayal of the desperate conditions in Poland and Russia, in regard to housing, fuel, clothing and food.

The afternoon meeting was presided over by Thomas C. McEachin, who is Chairman of the Senior Council Committee, of Princeton, and is chairman of the Board of Editors of the Daily Princetonian. All delegates were housed at the upper class clubs on Wednesday night, and were their guests for Wednesday lunch and Thursday breakfast. The paramount purpose of the Intercollegiate Conference was to stimulate a healthy interest and thought among the college and university men of the East, and the resolutions passed are the outward results of this thought and interest. It is expected that the delegates from each institution will spread the publicity of the conference in their respective student bodies, and that, in this way, the attention which such a large and expensive undertaking merits, may be gained to the greatest possible extent.

DR. HOLMES SPEAKS ON INDIVIDUALITY

Conformity and Cooperation are Stressed as the Imperative Principles of Life

DANGER LIES IN LOSS OF INDIVIDUAL IDEAS

Personal Opinion Should Not be Sacrificed to Crowd—Rules Must be Followed

"No man liveth unto himself" was the keynote of the address of the Rev. Samuel Van Vranken Holmes, of Buffalo, N. Y., on "The College and the Individual" last Sunday evening before the W. C. A. meeting in Jesup Hall. In further elaboration of his theme, the speaker stressed conformity and co-operation as the two imperative principles of human existence.

"We are all a part of the groups of which the world is composed," said Dr. Holmes in opening his speech. "First we have the family, then the school life, a miniature democracy where each individual bears a part of the responsibility. Finally we become a part of the state and learn the respect due to others' rights. We find that we cannot have our own way. We become part of other organic groups, as the professions and corporations. But everywhere we see the rules and regulations governing the game.

"There are two imperative principles governing life,—conformity and co-operation. Our responsibility must be met in all phases of life; we cannot kick against the bricks of life nor can we live to ourselves. All that is accomplished must be done chiefly by group action. Co-operation is one of the greatest words in the dictionary today. But there is a great peril in such a relationship. We must not lose our individuality or confound our moral principles. The question for college men to solve is 'Where lies my duty?'

"In college, a man finds two bodies of laws which confront him. First there are the laws and rules under which the college operates, the administrative regulations governing the institution. These are based partly on our past experience. If we disagree with them, we are at liberty to go elsewhere to college. The wise man will conform or get out. The second factor is composed of the undergraduate opinion and traditions which have been handed down from class to class. Some of them seem wise and some seem foolish, but the wise man will conform. There are

EXHIBITION OF WAR PORTRAITS TO OPEN

Collection Shown Here Through Mrs. J. C. Rogerson Will be Free to Public

Beginning at 10 a. m. today, and every day hereafter until November 10 from 10 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m., a collection of war portraits will be open free to the public in Grace Hall. The collection is shown in Williamstown through the generosity of Mrs. James C. Rogerson, wife of the late James C. Rogerson '92.

Among the portraits which are included in the collection are those of President Wilson, Marshal Foch, Herbert Hoover, General Pershing, Premier Lloyd George, Albert, King of the Belgians, Marshal Joffre, Premier Clemenceau, Premier Venizelos, Admiral Sims, Field-Marshal Haig, and a group of the signing of the Peace Treaty at Versailles in 1919, the latter painted by John C. Johansen.

The American Magazine of Art has characterized the collection as a "notable and permanent memorial of the Great War." The history of the collection is interestingly told in that magazine. "In the spring of 1919 it became evident to those specially interested in American art that if the United States was to have a pictorial record of this sort of the World War it would be necessary not only immediately to send artists to Europe for that purpose, but to do so as a private contribution without awaiting public action.

Musical Clubs to Give Concert in North Adams

Opening the annual season of concerts, the Combined Musical Clubs will give a benefit concert in the Drury High School Auditorium, North Adams on Friday evening, December 9, at 8.15 p. m. The proceeds of the concert will be applied to the Drury High School Scholarship Fund.

Definite plans for the program are being drafted, and cannot be announced as yet. A feature of the concert will be the appearance of the Williams Jazz Orchestra which created such a favorable impression during the spring trip last year.

Dr. Herbert H. Gadsby, principal of the Drury High School, Mr. J. M. Chambers, director of music at the school, and Sayen '22 compose the committee in charge of arrangements for the North Adams concert.

SPRINGFIELD CROSS- COUNTRY TEAM LOSES

Williams Harriers Win by 25-31
Score—Fasce Leads Field
in Time of 27:45

Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, with a record of only one defeat in the past three years, fell before the Williams cross-country team on Saturday by the score of 25-31. Fasce of Williams was the individual winner, covering the long Williams-town course in 27 minutes 45 seconds.

Fasce was complete master of the race from the beginning. He and Eldridge of Springfield, who broke the record for the Wesleyan course a week ago, took the lead at the juncture of Main and South Streets, and were never headed thereafter. As the race progressed, Fasce drew away from his rival, and at the finish line was about 300 yards ahead of him. Swan and Fitcher ran good races for Williams, finishing third and fourth respectively, not far behind the fast-moving Eldridge. Captain Adams took sixth place for the Purple, and Livingston and Webb the other Williams runners to finish, were eleventh and thirteenth respectively.

Eldridge was as usual Springfield's star. His running suffered only by comparison with that of Fasce. Heck finished fifth, and Reed, a new man on the team this year, was seventh. Robbins, Staley, and Rodriguez finished right behind Reed in the order named. Captain Offer of Springfield was handicapped by a lame foot, but stayed in the race to the finish.

The order of finishing follows: won by Fasce (W); Eldridge (S), second; Swan (W), third; Fitcher (W), fourth; Heck (S), fifth; Adams (W), sixth; Reed (S), seventh; Robbins (S), eighth; Staley (S), ninth; Rodriguez (S), tenth; Livingston (W), eleventh; Offer (S), twelfth; Webb (W), thirteenth. Judges—Sealey, Osborne (S), Richardson (W).

Plans of College in R. R. Strike Crisis Cancelled

As a result of action taken last Friday night by chiefs of the "Big Five," engineers, conductors, trainmen, firemen, and switchmen, the general railroad strike, which was set for last Sunday morning at 6.00, has been called off. The action considered by the College authorities for the help of the government in carrying on the work of the railroads in the event of a general strike has, therefore, been dropped.

Athletic Taxes Still Unpaid

Only 366 men, including exemptions, have paid the athletic tax levied at the beginning of the semester by the Graduate Treasurer, leaving 215 men yet unpaid. On November 15 or at the close of the football season collectors will be sent out and it is desirable that the books be closed with all taxes paid before the holiday recess.

Proctor Before Phil. Union

Dr. T. Hayes Proctor will speak on "Reality" before the Philosophical Union at the second meeting for the year of that organization which will be held at 8 p. m. today in the Currier Hall Commons Room. The lively interest in discussion that was manifested at the first meeting of the year seems to indicate that a large audience will be present to hear the talk.

FINAL SCORE IS 31 TO 7

Bourne, Chandler, Dickey, and King Star for Winners—Davis for Losers

Brilliant runs by Bourne, Chandler, and Dickey and consistently good line plunging by King proved the decisive factor when the Williams freshmen swamped the Union freshmen by the score of 31-7 last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field. Union's lone score came in the second period on a line plunge by Davis after Cornell had received a forward pass on his own 40-yard line and carried it to Williams' 8-yard line before being downed.

Union was outclassed throughout the game, and after its touchdown never seriously threatened the Williams goal line. Davis twice attempted placement kicks, one from the 35-yard line and the other from the 30-yard line, but the first fell short, while the second was blocked. Stellar work by the entire freshman backfield and a powerful defense which forced Union to use many forwards and to punt frequently marked the 1925 team as an unusually strong aggregation. Quarterback Dickey could depend on any of his backs to gain at will through the Union line, and during the greater part of the game used only straight football.

The feature plays of the game came in the second and fourth quarters. In the second period Dickey received a punt from Campbell on his own 40-yard line and

Freshman-Sophomore Classic is to Be Held Across Green River Tomorrow

Cold weather having arrived, the annual Freshman-Sophomore tug-of-war will be held tomorrow afternoon on the banks of the Green River near the Main Street bridge. The Classic is run under the supervision of the Underclass Contest Committee, which consists of Preston (chairman), Bumsted, Chapma, Hahlo, and Rowse '22.

The rules for the contest remain the same as in former years, and are as follows: 1924 will meet at the Gymnasium at 4 p. m. to march to the scene of action, and 1925 will assemble on the Jesup Hall campus at the same time to carry the rope to the river. The president of the yearling class will carry the rope through the river to the sophomores. The Freshmen will occupy the east bank of the stream. At the firing of a pistol by the chairman of the Underclass Contest Committee, who will stand in midstream, the tug will begin. The class pulling the other through the river two out of three times will be the winner of the contest provided that it also carries the rope back to the Gymnasium. Final possession of the rope determines the winner of the pull.

PRESS IS ASTONISHED AT COLUMBIA'S ROUT

Superior Generalship is Given as Reason for Upset of Blue and White's Plans

Though advancing different reasons for Williams' victory over Columbia last Saturday, the consensus of opinion of the New York press is that the final result of the contest came as a great surprise.

Commenting on the game, The New York Tribune says: "The local team was a 2 to 1 favorite before the game, but the New England lads had little difficulty in holding a lead they gained in the first quarter and added to as the game progressed. * * * Alternating line bucking with forward passing, the visitors wasted little time in showing how far ahead of the Columbia aggregation they were."

According to the New York Times, "It is not often that the dope is upset so recklessly as it was up on South Field yesterday afternoon when a group of boys from Williamstown humbled the Columbia eleven to the tune of 20 to 0. Coach Weadell's proteges unleashed a bag of tricks that perplexed the New York outfit, and, although the Morningside Heights team ran up twelve first downs to the Purple's six and completed six forward passes to their opponents' three, the Massachusetts lads took advantage of all the breaks that came their way, and thereby gleaned the victory."

In its analysis of the game the New York World says: "The eleven from Williamstown, Mass. defeated Columbia by a score of 20 to 0 and great was the shock on Morningside Heights. The visitors took advantage of every situation and followed the ball with hawk-like precision. Columbia on the other hand, demonstrated once again that it lacks the punch to score when in the shadow of an opponent's goal and that it cannot hold on to the ball when it has possession. * * * Percy Wendell's men upset the dope and made the locals look like the under dog. * * * The playing of the Blue and White showed none of the teachings of Joe Brooks. Time and time again the lighter Williams linemen broke through and threw the Columbia backs for losses."

The New York Herald lays Columbia's defeat to poor generalship and speaks as follows: "A team overburdened with confidence, weight, and poor generalship fell before the onslaught of a lighter, faster, and headier outfit. * * * It was Williams all the way, and the final score was 20 to 0. * * * Williams came to South Field like the lamb in the story ready to be sacrificed to the mighty lion. * * * Suffice it to say that it was the lamb who put the lion to rout. * * * O'Neil's machine had power galore, weight a plenty, and apparently requisites necessary to defeat a team that had just lost to Middlebury. But in generalship she was lacking. Her old Nemesis, fumbling, was, as usual, very much on the job."

PEASE AND J. WILSON
SCORE ON TOUCHDOWNS

Fargo Boots 46-Yard Placement Goal—Mallon Tallies on 30-Yard Kick

New York, October 29.

Williams crushed the heavy Columbia team this afternoon by the score of 20 to 0. The Purple eleven showed itself superior from the first whistle surpassing its opponents in every department of the game.

The first score came after four minutes of play when Mallon passed twenty yards over center to Pease who carried the ball 27 yards to the Columbia goal line. Fargo kicked the goal. Mallon's fair catch and Fargo's placement kick from the 45 yard line completed the scoring for the first quarter. With the exception of the opening of the second quarter when Williams held Columbia for downs on the 2 yard line, neither team came within 20 yards of their opponents goal lines. Mallon sent over a drop kick in the middle of this period from the 30 yard line. The second touchdown came in the last minutes of play of the game when J. Wilson intercepted a forward pass on Columbia's ten yard line and carried it over. Fargo kicked the goal.

Williams Line Holds

Fargo, started the game by kicking off to Columbia's eight-yard line, where Moszczenski caught the ball and came back twenty-seven yards before he was stopped. The Williams line held, Columbia gaining only six yards on three tries, forcing Anderson to kick. The ball went to William's 20-yard line, where Mallon recovered and ran it back eight yards.

J. Wilson gained three yards on a line buck through center and Monjo punted. Anderson catching the ball on his 44-yard line and coming back four yards. Birtt gained four yards through tackle and then another fumble gave Williams the ball on Columbia's 40-yard line. Wilson tried to go round right end, but was downed for a loss of three yards. Another play failed to gain and then Mallon made his 20-yard pass to Pease, over center, who broke loose and evaded three Columbia tacklers to go across for a touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal.

CRITIC FINDS MERIT IN GRAPHIC PICTURES

Asks Why 'Literary Monthly' Sub-Title is Retained—Proof Reader Suggested

Courtesy of A. H. L.

The task of reviewing the October number of The Graphic should have been given to a committee composed of one advertising specialist, one professional photographer, and one expert proof-reader. These gentlemen alone are fitted to appreciate the special virtues of the issue, and the proof-reader would have had his hands full. For the critic whose interests lie chiefly in literature, there is little need.

As an example of eye-entertainment, the number takes high place. The varied activities of modern college life are portrayed in a series of extraordinarily good photographs, remarkable both for their artistic merits and for their relation to the contemporary life of the place. The reader experiences an odd sensation when he comes upon the august personages of the Institute of Politics sandwiched between layers of the narrative of the Lingerie School of fiction, or beholds dignified members of the faculty dividing attention with heroic forms of the gridiron; but this proximity is itself appropriate and symbolic.

In its capacity as The Graphic, then, the journal can be commended without reserve. But when, in these days, a journal attempts to combine the functions of both cinema and legitimate drama, that is, to

A Season's Turning Point

(Courtesy of P. C. C., 1910)

It is seldom that the performances of any college team remain on a high plane of excellence throughout the schedule. Almost invariably there is a time, about mid-season, when it becomes obvious that there is to be either a slump or a marked improvement. It is the trend of the curve from this point which evidences not only the worth of the coaching, the training, the leadership which the team has had, but also the work which it has done, and the spirit in which it has done it.

We believe that Saturday's game marked the turning point of the 1921 season.
There was a very apparent precision of cooperation, a sort of "on-your-toes" type of keenness, which, combined with a knowledge of fundamental football and a will to win, left the result a matter of no doubt after the first five minutes of play. The entire attitude of the eleven was one of determination, steadiness and optimism which augurs well for its success in the remaining games.

It is a turning point of this sort, rather than statistics of scores, which makes a team a credit to the college which it represents. Such a game means more than a single victory; it means that Williams has a team which has been well led, which has trained honestly, which has learned thoroughly and labored faithfully; of all of which the college may very properly be proud. It also means more alumni back for the Amherst game, and more sub-freshmen buying Williams banners. All of which are among the justifications for having any games at all.

A Notable Opportunity

For the next ten days a collection of portraits of distinguished leaders in America and the Allied Nations during the World War, painted by the most eminent American artists, will be on exhibition in Grace Hall. It is an unusual opportunity which is presented to Williams men through the generosity of Mrs. James C. Rogerson, and one which should be taken advantage of by every undergraduate.

The paintings "constitute a notable and permanent memorial of the Great War." Portraiture is generally considered to be the highest form of art, and it is a fact that man is to man the most interesting of any form of exhibit. These great men, differing widely in personality as in appearance, may be studied anew from the portraits, which are in the fullest sense historical documents open to the world."

From the standpoint of the student and lover of art, from the standpoint of the student of history, from the standpoint of the student of men, these paintings afford an opportunity which does not usually come without a trip to the art galleries of our large cities. From some one of these angles the exhibition must appeal to every man. Let Williams show its appreciation of its good fortune by intelligent and universal attendance at the Grace Hall "art gallery."

Pull, Pull Together

The occasion of the underclass tug-of-war has often been considered the signal for clandestine flight or suddenly remembered engagements on the part of many of the contestants. Within the memory of most of us widespread defections have occurred on the eve of the battle, notably among the sophomores, who may be a bit more worldly-wise than their foes. Whatever the reason, however, less than the full strength of both classes detracts from the interest and fairness of the contest, and leads to the suspicion that perhaps some underclassmen do not care whether their class wins or loses. We strongly suggest that every man expected on the scene of battle tomorrow report, and make the contest the best ever staged.

ONE OF REMAINING RIVALS SUCCESSFUL

Union Loses to Hobart—Amherst Overcomes Hamilton—Wesleyan Ties Tufts

Of the three teams remaining on the Williams football schedule, Union lost to Hobart last Saturday, Amherst won an easy victory over Hamilton, and Wesleyan's game with Tufts ended in a tie score.

Union put up a losing battle at Schenectady with Hobart College, coming out at the short end of a 21-7 score. The Union team was greatly handicapped by the absence of both varsity ends and three of its regular backs. Considering this the Schenectady eleven made a very creditable showing. Hobart made its three touchdowns on a pair of forward passes and a long end run. The feature of the game was a 23-yard run by quarterback Heidorf of Union around right end for Union's single touchdown.

Amherst easily defeated the heavier
Hamilton team by a 20-9 score on Pratt Field. Line plunges, off tackle plays, and forward passes were all used with effect in gaining the three touchdowns. The first two scores were made on plunges through the Hamilton line by fullback Jillson, the individual star of the game. The third score came when Clapp recovered an Amherst fumble over the line. Williams' rival attempted 13 passes, completing three of them for a gain of 75 yards. Jillson of Amherst played the most spectacular game, accounting for two touchdowns, brilliantly running back punts, and making several remarkable broken field runs.
Reusswig and Martin at left and right half also did some excellent broken field running for the Purple and White.

Wesleyan played a 14-14 game with Tufts at Middletown last Saturday. The home team rolled up 14 points, held Tufts scoreless for three periods, and then gave way in the fourth quarter before a smashing attack employed by the visiting eleven.
Long runs, forward passes, and heavy penalties charged against Wesleyan enabled Tufts to tie the score in this period. The game ended with Tufts in possession of the ball on Wesleyan's two-yard line. The Middletown eleven played the better game in the first three quarters, uncovering a strong brand of football. Adams, Abbott, Foster, and Captain Butler starred for the Red and Black.

Dr. Holmes Speaks

on Individuality

certain conventions, opinions and moral standards in the air, venerated and cherished, but it is a question to what extent we should conform to these. In every group there are such standards and the man who does not break them is like the goose who does not venture outside the chalk circle. The great danger from conformity is that the man will lose his individuality and that he will do as the crowd does at a cost to himself. There is too much gregarious morality and action in the world, for if this conformity is carried too far, man becomes but a rubber stamp of the crowd. Moreover there is a distinct loss and peril to the world, for mankind needs men of independent will and action, not men who are at the mercy of mere formulas."

The power of the crowd over the individual was stressed by Dr. Holmes.
"Anything will get across if it has a sufficiently good phrase which is repeated a sufficient number of times. The world today lacks men who will refuse to accept the formulas of the majority. The secret of successful leadership is embodied in three principles. First, do not pose as peculiar, do not be forever playing off side in the game of life. Conform where conformity is good and right and proper. Do not advertise your independence or be always on the off side of every argument.
Some men undoubtedly go too far, are always on the off side, never play according to the rules of the game, advertise their idiosyncracies and eventually become pests. Where conscience permits, compromise. In the second place, never be afraid to think independently. State your convictions and the grounds on which they rest. Express your moral purposes and principles. There are certain times when we must not conform. We must never sacrifice our principles to keep the peace, we must not be afraid of the unpopularity of the crowd. We must think for ourselves, and let the others know where we stand and why. These three principles combine the principles of successful leadership. College and society are groups. We must play with and through these. We must have enough manhood and moral thinking to let the world know our stand. The aim of the world and of college is the individual strength. The vitality and strength of the individual strengthens the group as the group strengthens the world."

Williams Springs Surprise and Defeats Columbia

Fargo kicked off and Anderson immediately punted to the Williams 20-yard line. Burger went through tackle for twelve yards and after Monjo had gained four yards, a forward pass of fifteen yards, Burger to Mallon, gave Williams another first down. An exchange of kicks gave Williams the ball on Columbia's 45-yard line after Mallon signalled for a fair catch. Fargo made the placement kick.

Advance Ball 25 Yards

Anderson kicked off to the Williams 20-yard line and after gaining eight yards Williams was forced to punt because of a 15-yard penalty for holding. Burt ran the kick back twenty yards and fumbled. Moszczenski recovered and went another twenty-seven yards, being downed on Williams' 25-yard line. Seven plays took the ball to the Williams two-yard line, when the period ended. Score, Williams, 10; Columbia, 0.

Monjo punted out of danger and the ball saw-sawed up and down in mid-field. Richmond was substituted for J. Wilson when Mallon had received Anderson's punt on the Williams 30-yard line. With perfect interference Richmond was able to get away to 52-yard end run. Moszczenski tackled him on Columbia's 18-yard line. After attempting a forward pass that failed, Mallon sent over a drop kick from the 30-yard line.

Fargo kicked off and on the first play Williams recovered the ball on a Columbia fumble. After making a first down, Williams lost the ball on an intercepted pass by Mallon. Columbia then opened up its strongest attack, making three first downs and carrying the ball from their own 22-yard line to Williams' 25-yard line. Here the half ended. Score, Williams, 13; Columbia, 0.

In the third period neither team scored or threatened to score. Anderson kicked off to Mallon who ran the ball back 10 yards to Williams' 20-yard line. Monjo punted but Williams recovered the ball in the center of the field when Mallon fell on a fumbled ball. A 15-yard penalty forced Monjo to punt again. Columbia made two first downs for a total of 25 yards, Moszczenski carrying the ball four times in succession. An exchange of punts left Columbia with the ball on their own 25-yard line. The period ended after Columbia had gained 35 yards with two first downs. Score, Williams, 13; Columbia, 0.

Forward passes and punting were resorted to by both teams in the final period. After holding Columbia for downs Williams lost the ball on an intercepted pass in the center of the field. An exchange of punts gained nothing. Burt and Anderson alternated in carrying the ball 15 yards to the Williams 24-yard line where Williams held for downs. Monjo punted to Columbia's 40-yard line. Koppisch got away on the first play for an end run of 20 yards. Columbia again threatened to score by carrying the ball 18 yards to Williams' 22-yard line only to lose it on a fumble. Monjo punted to Columbia's 43-yard line. Boynton intercepted a forward pass on the Williams 45-yard line. Richmond made a fast kick that went over Anderson's head who was playing in too close. Columbia had the ball on its own 10-yard line. With one minute to play Columbia attempted a forward pass from the goal line. J. Wilson intercepted and had a clean field of 10 yards for a touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal.

Fargo kicked off and Anderson punted on the first play from his 30-yard line. Richmond ran the ball back to Columbia's 45-yard line and the game ended after one line buck that gained four yards.

Union '25 Swamped

By Williams Frosh

carried the ball through the entire Union team for a touchdown. In the fourth quarter Chandler intercepted a Union forward pass and ran 45 yards for a touchdown. Chandler scored two of the Williams touchdowns in the fourth period after he had been put back into the game in place of Reed, who had been substituted for him in the second period. King, Bourne, and Dickey had a touchdown each to their credit, but Dickey succeeded in making only one out of five goals after touchdowns. Davis scored for Union and kicked the goal after the touchdown.

The game was characterized by a great deal of kicking. Davis, whose all around play featured for Union until he was injured in the third quarter, and Pearson, were the contesting punters. Williams gained on the exchange of kicks as a general rule, largely through the brilliant broken field running of Dickey after he had received the punts. Both kickers, however, sent off long spirals for over 50 yards on several occasions.

Pearson opened the game by kicking off to Davis, who received the ball on his 10-yard line and ran it back to the 25-yard line. Davis punted on the first play, the ball rolling off the field on the Union 35-yard line. Bourne, Chandler, and King took the ball in a series of line plays to the Union 2-yard line, but Union braced, and Williams lost the ball on downs. Davis at once punted from behind his own goal line, and Dickey, who received the kick, was downed on the Union 40-yard line. From here a steady march toward the Union goal line started, the work being distributed almost equally among the four Williams backs, who by hard running took the ball to the 5-yard line, from which King went over for the first touchdown. Dickey failed to kick the goal.

After several exchanges of punts which brought the first quarter to an end, the Williams freshmen took possession of the ball at the center of the field, and began another irresistible march toward Union's line. Bourne and Chandler averaging five yards per play. Bourne took the ball over the line from Union's 4-yard mark. Dickey again failed to kick the goal. Two plays after the next kickoff Davis, standing on his own 30-yard line, tossed a forward pass to Cornell, who successfully eluded the Williams tacklers and ran to the 8-yard line before he was caught by Jones. Three line plays were sufficient to carry the ball over for Union's only score. Davis kicked the goal.

Williams' third touchdown came soon after when Dickey caught Davis' punt and ran 60 yards for a score. Union forced the play in the third quarter and the ball was in Williams territory the greater part of the time, although never dangerously near the goal line. It was in this period that Davis attempted both his placement kicks. The first fell short, and the second was blocked. Although Davis fell on the ball, Union lost 25 yards through the play. Chandler, who had been put back into the game for Reed, proved to be the star of the Williams team in this quarter, and in addition to his 45-yard run after intercepting a pass, made four runs of over 15 yards. Many substitutions slowed up the game, and several penalties were imposed on both teams. The feature of the game in tacking was provided in this quarter by Sterling, when he threw North of Union for a 12-yard loss on an attempted end run.

The line-up and summary follows:

Through the initiative of the Smithsonian Institution as custodian of the National Gallery of Art, The American Federation of Arts, and the American Mission to negotiate Peace, then in session at Paris, a National Art Committee to accomplish this purpose, was brought into existence, and the artists were selected and commissioned. This committee was composed of Hon. Henry White, Chairman; Mr. Herbert L. Pratt, Secretary and Treasurer; Mr. W. H. Crocker of San Francisco, Mr. Robert W. De Forest of New York, Mr. Abram Garfield '93 of Cleveland; Mrs. E. H. Harriman of New York; Mr. Arthur W. Meeker of Chicago; Mr. Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati; Mr. Charles D. Walcott of Washington, and the late Henry C. Frick of New York. It was determined that the collection of paintings when completed should be presented to the National Gallery of Art, thus initiating and establishing in Washington, a National Portrait Gallery.

Artists of international repute were chosen to do the paintings, and after considerable discussion, the following were commissioned: Cecile Beaux, Joseph de Camp, Charles Hopkinson, John C. Johansen, Edmund C. Tarbell, Douglas Volk, Irving R. Wiles, and Jean McLane.

Exhibitions of the paintings have been held in the following places: Museum of the Rhode Island School of Design, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, a temporary exhibit at the Washington National Gallery, Yale University, Rochester, Buffalo and Pittsburgh. After the Williams exhibit, there will be showings at Amherst College, Cincinnati, Cleveland, and other cities in the Middle West, Far West, and South.

Critic Finds Merit in Graphic Pictures

portray both the outside and the inside of life, it is always the inside that suffers. The result, in this October Graphic at least, is disastrous. It is provokingly difficult to serve both God and Mammon (I shall not dare to affirm which The Graphic serves) and this issue is a glaring proof of that fact. To be plain, literature is emphatically not served. The articles on Williams-in-China and the Commons Club are sturdy and fine, but they are scarcely to be defined as "creative" literature; they are only a record of facts, valuable and necessary facts, but not original creation. To speak bluntly, the "creative" literature of this issue is either commonplace or nonsense or illiterate.

The editorial is commonplace. As an example I should designate all of Mr. Britton's contributions. His Quietus is thinly voluptuous; his Abandoned Road is a pretty little jingle. His short story lacks the architectural virtue that should be the very backbone of its type, and is smothered in decorative details. In spite of this fact, however, the story has one distinct merit: it is a subtle satire upon the empty life of a certain terrible set in modern society. Nobody can escape the import of this showing-up of the vapidness, the petty viciousness of this little group that flirts its intimate ribbons and flicks its drugged cigarettes against the ghostly background of the old-world dignity and romance. There is danger, however, that the ethical significance of the tale may be blurred by the very success of its realism.

As an example of erudeness, immaturity, and illiteracy, the "story" called Hidden Details easily surpasses anything ever printed in a college periodical or anywhere else. In prose that would be painfully dull but for its fascinating violations of every elementary principle of the English language, the author presents, with agonizing accuracy of detail, an incident of little interest except to a detective bureau or a magazine for small boys. Eccentric spelling adds charm to this masterpiece.

In a rapid survey, I counted five common words fantastically misspelled.

If the "literature" of this number is a fair example of what we may expect in future issues of The Graphic, it seems to me that the time has come to drop the sub-title "Literary Monthly." It is humiliating enough for that lamented magazine to play second (rather fourth or fifth) fiddle in The Graphic's orchestra; let it not be allowed to descend in importance until it finally contributes its honored name to the jazz whistles and comic wails of the music. Let us kill it quickly and mercifully (to change the figure); put it out of its misery until the day of its possible resurrection. The spectacle of its lingering death is painful to its friends and bad for the college. For the Literary Monthly, whose pitiful remains lie among the superlative pictorial splendors of The Graphic, is not worthy of the ideals and traditions of a college devoted to humanistic education.

3306 students work loyally for the prestige of their Alma Mater, founded in 1701, and later given its illustrious name in honor of old Eli Yale.

The Yale man may be different from the Harvard man, but all good college men alike possess the distinguishing mark, the class consciousness, the well-bred savoir faire which is marked by the smoking of Melachrino — The Cigarette Elect of all Nations.

Remember that Melachrino is a master blend of the finest Turkish Tobaccos as originated by Miltiades Melachrino. Egyptian cigarettes are simply those that originated in Egypt. But the tobacco is what you want to know about — and if it's Melachrino — it's right.

WILLIAMS HARRIERS TO MEET WESLEYAN

Purple Team Won From Middlebury and Springfield in Only Meets to Date

FASCE SHOULD WIN

Wesleyan Runners Have Not Been Successful Thus Far In Schedule

In the third meet of the season the cross country team will oppose the Wesleyan harriers at 2.30 p. m. today in Middlebury, Conn. With a record of two victories, the first over Middlebury by a large margin, and the second over Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, the prospects are very favorable for the Williams runners.

The men who have made the trip are Captain Adams and Seaman '22, Fasce, Fitch, Webb and Livingston '23, and Swan '21, who left Williamstown yesterday at 2.17 p. m. With the exception of Sanford '21, who is suffering from sprained ankles, and, therefore, is unable to compete, the team is in good condition. From comparative records Fasce should take first place in the meet, having taken first in both the Middlebury and the Springfield meets. Eldridge, who took second in the latter contest, won the lead in the meet against Red and Black two weeks ago breaking the record for the Wesleyan course.

Wesleyan has not been showing up well in the encounters so far. In the last meet to date, that against Worcester Tech on last Saturday, the Red and Black were defeated 21-33. Captain Foster was taken with cramps in his stomach and was forced to fall back to sixth place. Morton took second place a scant yard behind the winner, Marston of Worcester Tech. The fourth place was taken by Baisley of Wesleyan. Marston's time was 26 min., 35 2-5 seconds.

The remainder of the Wesleyan team which opposed Worcester Tech consisted of Smith, Knowles and Stevens, who will probably be included in the team to meet Williams this afternoon.

35 Men Chosen as Result of First Dramatic Trials

Any men who have not had "Cap and Bells" trials and who wish to try for positions in the casts of the three plays to be given should arrange immediately with Clark '22 for an appointment. The following constitute the present eligibility list for the casts of these plays: Male parts—Brandeis, Brune, Doherty, MacNair, Northrup, S. Phillips, Schelling, Terry, Youngman, Zalles '22, M. Lawder, McAneny, Maxwell, Nebolsine, Romaine '23, M. S. Barton, H. M. Carleton, Carter, Copeland, Dodge, Etheridge, Helfrich, Herron, Hoffman, Mason, Moody, and Ward '24; Female parts—Rose, Towne '22, Baxter, Britton '23, Foster, Harding, Thompson, and Trounstine '24.

Phil Union Hears 'Reality' Discussed by Dr. Proctor

Taking "Reality" as the subject of his address, Dr. T. Hayes Proctor spoke before a well attended meeting of the Philosophical Union which was held in the Currier Hall Common Room last Monday.

In the first part of his lecture Dr. Proctor undertook an explanation of the principles underlying the classification of "Realities," later quoting the French philosopher Descartes as to the limit of the doubt we may hold concerning "reality." Then starting on a more direct consideration of the term, Dr. Proctor spoke of all matter whether physical or mental as being arranged according to definite principles of order. For practical purposes Dr. Proctor added, we may understand that everything which is actually experienced or of which we may have a conception, comes under the head of "reality."

After the close of the address a discussion was opened in which Professors Morton and Pratt took leading parts.

Thanks Student Body for Offer to Serve in Case of Railroad Tie-Up

Following is a letter that has recently been received by Dean Howes from Mr. J. D. Bourne, Superintendent of the Berkshire Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad:

Mr. George E. Howes, Dean Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. My dear Mr. Howes:—

I am informed this morning by the Assistant General Manager that it looks as though we would not have any labor trouble the 5th of November.

I consider one of the strongest forces brought to bear against the recent labor disturbances was the prompt action of the student body in volunteering assistance to the railroads, and I was indeed pleased to find that Williams College stood ready to assist the railroad line that serves Williamstown, and I want to extend the appreciation of the management to the officers of Williams College and its students for their prompt promises for assistance.

Yours truly,
J. D. Bourne

JUNIORS ANNEX CLASS SOCCER CHAMPIONSHIP

Score Fifth Straight Shut-Out Victory Against Seniors by 4-0 Count

STANDING OF THE TEAMS
	Won	Lost	Pct.
1923	5	0	1.000
1922	2	2	.500
1925	2	2	.500
1924	0	5	.000

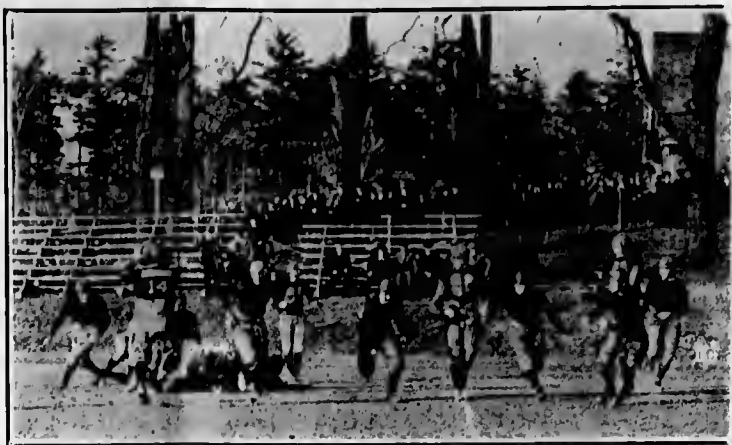

Riding roughshod over the seniors in the first game between the two upper class elevens, the 1923 soccer team clinched the interclass championship on Thursday by a 4-0 victory on Cole Field. In winning the series the junior team scored 16 goals against its rivals and kept its own goal line unbreached.

Vastly superior team-work on the part of the juniors made the 1922-1923 contest a one-sided affair. Only two or three times during the game were the seniors within scoring distance of their opponents' goal. The 1923 forward line carried the ball down the field almost at will, getting numerous tries for goal from corner kicks and from scrimmage. Sutton made the only score for the winners in the first half on a difficult shot from left wing, and in the second period he tallied again from scrimmage. The third junior score came as a result of a mix-up in front of the senior goal, and Greef shoved the last marker through the goal posts for 1923.

Darkness put an end to the 1924-1925 game last Wednesday, after the two teams had struggled through an extra-period 0-0 contest, in which rain and cold weather made effective playing difficult.

1924 WINS ANOTHER ROPE-PULL VICTORY

Freshmen Twice Splash Through Green River Under Auspices of Sophomores

Superior generalship and cool-headed strategy won the annual Freshman-Sophomore tug-of-war for the class of 1924 against heavy odds and opposition from the Freshman class. Thus for the second time since 1913, a class has pulled its opponents through the Green River both in freshman and sophomore years.

Throughout the contest, both sides displayed unprecedented pugacity. From the time the men of '25 left the Jesup Hall Campus until the sophomores had safely deposited the rope in the Gymnasium basement, a spirit of keen rivalry was evident. There was a noticeable absence of glum looks from the Sophomores as the rope-bearing frosh passed the Berkshire Quadrangle, the assembly place of the class of '24. If anyone showed signs of apprehension for the outcome, it must have been the freshmen, for the second-year men were 100 per cent strong confident of victory after Heywood '24, president of the class, had made a speech from the steps of the Observatory. The substance of the speech was soon to be demonstrated.

At about 4.35, Bourne '25, freshman president, stepped into the river and brought the rope to the sophomores who were gathered on the west bank. Preston '22, chairman of the Underclass Contests Committee, stood in mid-stream, submerged to the knees, and fired the pistol which started the war-tug. By the time the sophomores had enough rope, about thirty members of the freshman class were standing in the river, and before the end of two minutes of struggling, the majority of the yearling class was as wet as it could be in a little over two feet of water. Agitated by the fact that part of their class was forced to stand in the water, cries of "give us more rope" were heard from the 1925 side of the stream. It was found impossible to stretch the rope, and the cries of the frosh were drowned out by the pistol-shot, and the second pull was on. In less time (Continued on Third Page.)

MANY OBTAIN VIEW OF WAR PORTRAITS

Exhibition of Paintings Attracts Crowds to Grace Hall on Opening Days

Lively interest has marked the first four days of the exhibition of war portraits now being shown in Grace Hall through the kindness of Mrs. James C. Rogerson, wife of James C. Rogerson '92. Although attendance figures are unavailable, the gallery has been well filled by visitors at all hours open to the public.

On account of the somber weather, the lighting in the hall has thus far been unfavorable for the best effects in viewing the portraits. Grace Hall however, has proved a satisfactory exhibition hall, the portraits being hung on all the walls of the main floor. The painting, "Signing the Peace Treaty, 1919," and the portraits of Admiral Sims and Premier Lloyd George occupy positions of eminence on the stage in the front of the hall.

The collection of war portraits will remain in Williamstown until November 10, and will be accessible to the public every day from 10 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m. The portraits will then be exhibited at Amherst College.

WESLEYAN FRESHMEN MEET PURPLE TODAY

Williams 1925 Team Faces Exceptionally Heavy Line at Middletown

Williams' undefeated freshman eleven will meet the Wesleyan 1925 team at 2.30 this afternoon at Middletown, Conn., in what is expected to be the hardest test of the season. Reports from Middletown indicate that the Red and Black will be represented by an unusually heavy team.

Coach Fulle will start his best line-up against Wesleyan today. The 1925 team scrimmaged against the varsity on Wednesday and Thursday in preparation for the game. A squad of 18 men left yesterday afternoon for Hartford, Conn., and will reach Middletown in time for the game at 2.30 today.

Most of the Wesleyan players lacked football experience at the beginning of the season, but a series of interclass games has developed the team. Their freshman line averages 175 pounds, which is considerably heavier than the Red and Black varsity line.

Williams 1925 has not yet been hard pressed this season, winning two easy games from the Williamstown Tigers and the Union freshmen, by the scores of 33-0 and 31-7 respectively. The backfield combination of Dickey, Chandler, Bourne and King has proved irresistible to all opponents thus far, and the line has been a powerful asset on both offense and defence.

The following line-up will start the game against Wesleyan today:

CRIPPLED GARNET TEAM HERE TODAY

Union Made Strong Start But Injuries Proved Big Factor in Three Defeats

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT FOR WILLIAMS VICTORY

Purple Shows Great Strength in Columbia Game—Many Minor Injuries

In view of the unexpected strength which Williams developed in defeating Columbia by the score of 20 to 0 last Saturday, all the odds are against Union when the two clash this afternoon at 3.00 o'clock on Weston Field in the third home game of the season. Hard workouts have been the rule in Williamstown throughout the past week, however, and Coach Wendell has the team in top form for the game today.

Union started off the season well, registering victories over Clarkson and St. Lawrence, but the tide turned with the Amherst game, and since then, the Garnet team, with several of its best men out of the game with serious injuries, has succumbed to Amherst, Rochester, and Hobart in the order named. Carpenter and Rinaldi, two of the mainstays of the backfield are out of the game for the rest of the season, and Meyers, who played regular end throughout the 1920 season has water on the knee and will not start against Williams. It is expected, however, that Parry, a halfback, who has been laid up for the past week with a sprained ankle, will be in shape for the game today. The Union team has been holding secret practice throughout the week under the instruction of Coach Leroy, and every effort is being made to overcome the handicap caused by the loss of these players.

Williams is also handicapped by injuries, although most of them are not serious, and are not expected to cause the lineup with which the Purple entered the Columbia game to be changed. Robinson broke a cartilage in his nose in the Columbia game, but may be able to play on Saturday. Burger has a sprained wrist, and Pease a bad shoulder, while several other members of the squad are suffering from minor injuries. All these men are expected to round into shape for today. There has been no let-up for the squad during the week, and Coach Wendell has been pleased with the spirit of fight shown in the practice. He has devoted much time to perfecting the aerial attack which proved successful at Columbia, and which Williams is expected to use to good effect in the next three games. Mallon and Fargo have been practicing drop and placement kicks, the former putting three drop kicks between the bars in scrimmage with the freshmen last Wednesday. In this scrimmage the varsity developed a strong offensive, and pushed the ball over for several touchdowns against the yearling team.

Union won its first game of the season by defeating Clarkson at Schenectady on October 1 by the score of 14-0, although Union was outweighed 20 pounds to a man. Both teams were slow in getting started, neither scoring in the first half, but Union came back strong in the final periods and pushed over 14 points. Union defeated St. Lawrence in a close game on the next Saturday by a score of 9-7. The game was played in a downpour of rain which handicapped the lighter Union team and caused much fumbling by both teams. The ball was in Union's possession during the greater part of the game, and only twice was the Garnet's goal in danger. A safety in the second quarter was the deciding factor in the victory.

Union suffered its first defeat of the season, when the strong Amherst eleven scored a touchdown in the opening minutes of play. Wing, Amherst's star halfback, broke through Union's defense on a cross buck and ran 58 yards for the only (Continued on Third Page.)

To Dance or Not to Dance—Who Speaks?

Consideration of the entire problem of college dancing is precipitated by the action of the Senior Class in giving up its dance, scheduled for tonight, in order that it might not possibly prejudice the existing houseparty privileges of the student body. At Wesleyan, at Yale, and in numerous other institutions the problem has been recently met and answered by Faculty intervention and regulation. That such a solution is not entirely satisfactory to all parties concerned is evident from the frequent, wide-spread murmurs arising from those institutions.

It is a hardened, mossback conservative who maintains that there is no recreational or social virtue in modern dancing. But it is likewise evidence of nothing less than prejudiced blindness for one to see none of the dangers which excessive dancing brings, such as interference with the curriculum, financial extravagance, and moral laxity. Our old maxims apply here as elsewhere. When individuals congregate and perform jointly, be it in the social world or in the realm of politics and economics, they must be regulated by certain definite laws.

The student body emphatically does not desire Faculty regulations controlling its social life. Unfortunate as the fact may be, it yet remains true that laws imposed by the Administration seem of necessity by tradition to require an hostile reception on the part of undergraduates.

The ease for dancing as it now stands is questionable. Expenses are exorbitant, hours are inordinately late, and the tendency toward moral laxity is uncontrolled. On these grounds alumni and friends might conceivably find some justification for further Faculty intervention.

We feel strongly that such action would be most unfortunate. Agreed, that certain definite laws are necessary. Would it not be far preferable for such regulation to be effected by the student body? In the Student Council there exists a representative body, with large legislative and executive powers, which might well handle such affairs for the best interests of all concerned. It is constantly in touch with the pulse of undergraduate sentiment, and it is at the same time responsive to Administrative ideas.

The Officers of the College have already this fall shown a commendable desire to cooperate in furthering student interests. If the student body will reciprocate and show its good faith by some such method as that of placing its interests unreservedly in the hands of its elected representatives and by observing wholeheartedly such wise regulations as they may deem necessary, it is conceivable that the Administration may eventually place the entire control of social activities in the hands of undergraduates. This is a goal worth striving for. But the initiative must be taken by the student body.

APROPPOS PEERAGE DELINQUENTS

Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir: In a recent issue of THE RECORD, there appeared an article wherein were printed the names of Sophomores who did not appear in the Freshman Peerage, the article being signed by the Peerage Committee. In regard to the article in question, there are undoubtedly some men mentioned who had legitimate excuses for not appearing—one, in particular, did not even receive a summons to be present. We feel that the aforementioned article has done injury to these men in their relations here, at Williams, and we urge that the Student Council take action in this case and hold the Peerage Committee strictly responsible for any injustice which it has done.

Furthermore, we are of the opinion that the Peerage Committee does not adequately represent the student body to be justified in selecting men from the three upper classes for forced participation in the affair. If others than Freshmen are to take part, they should be chosen by a thoroughly representative body, such as the Student Council.

Our Stores are Your Stores

Thousands of young men in and out of college have made the Wallach stores what they are today.

The fine clothes, hats and haberdashery we sell are the kind you like to buy: the style and quality of our goods are the sort for which you have shown a decided preference.

And our prices make these things doubly interesting—due to the great size of our business which permits us to take a tiny profit on many sales as against a big profit on a few.

1924 Wins Another Rope-Pull Victory

than before, the sophomores pulled their opponents across, and part of the 1924 group went to the river's edge to throw back the freshmen who were plucky enough to hang on to the rope.

With little difficulty, the rope was brought to Main Street, but from then on, the fight was fast and furious. Before the semi-victorious sophs had been able to carry the rope to Cole Avenue, a distance of about 100 yards, the freshmen had, at the instigation of the gallery of upperclassmen, twisted the rope around trees twice, and had thus temporarily halted the progress of the sophomores. It was at this time that evidences of the plans of the sophomores to carry the rope to the Gym were easily seen. A squad of about 50 second-year men made determined efforts to pull the rope up Main Street in the direction of the College, while the rest of the class busied itself with picking stray and pugnacious freshmen off the rope as the latter tried with varying degrees of success to twist the hawser around convenient trees. The second-year men made fairly good time after passing Cole Avenue until they reached Southworth Street, where the freshmen made additional charges as the winners tried to get the rope up Consumption Hill. Three times the rope was stopped around trees, and three times, the 1924 fresh-pickers were on the job. At the summit of the hill, the sophs started on the run, and reached the Gym without further difficulty.

As usual, the rope left numerous private fights in its wake. Several members of both classes were badly shaken up in these encounters, but as far as could be ascertained, no one received permanent injuries. The victorious sophomores paraded on Spring Street in celebration of their conquest, and after a speech of thanks by President Heywood, and cheers for the losers and for the class, they dispersed.

score of the game. Union suffered greatly from injuries in the Amherst game, and sent a crippled team to Rochester, which was defeated by the score of 28 to 7.
Again handicapped by the loss of several of its star players, Union went down to defeat at the hands of Hobart last Saturday afternoon by the score of 21-7. Hobart made its three touchdowns on a pair of forward passes and a long run, circling the right end of the Garnet line.

Williams has thus far turned in two victories, two defeats, and one tie, but every indication points to the fact that the Purple was developed gradually and did not play the football of which it is capable until the Columbia game. The team is on edge for today's game and hopes to duplicate last year's 35-0 score. Coach Wendell has developed a strong overhead attack, which should go far to overcome Williams' lack of power in straight line-bucking, and Mallon has showed good generalship in directing the play of the Purple. The line has steadily developed in strength and has proved its power in every game.

The probable line-up of the two teams is
as follows:

NEW STADIUM TO BE ERECTED

Addresses by several of the members of the Columbia University Stadium Committee were given last week before the student body, in which the plans for the building of the proposed structure were presented and discussed. It is anticipated that the erection will cost something over $700,000, and that it will rank with the best fields of the country.

COLUMBIA ESTABLISHES BAND

"Columbia University will have the best Student Band in the United States," said Edwin Franko Goldman, Conductor of the Summer Concerts on the Green, in an interview with a Spectator reporter yesterday. An attempt is being made to develop a band from all of those students that register for the Extension course in band playing.

CLOSER TIMING FOR SPRINTS

In order to provide for more accurate timing in the sprints, the intercollegiate track events in the future will be clocked to the fractional tenths of a second instead of fifths of a second, as is now the rule. A resolution to this effect was adopted recently at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America at Cambridge, Mass.

BRYAN AT MIDDLEBURY

William Jennings Bryan spoke before a discussing God's law of reward as inter-

"Fundamentals" and presented the controlling relation of the three relationships into which a man enters; namely, government, society, and religion.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper —secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarettey aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.

M. I. T. ENROLLMENT INCREASES
Despite the efforts of the M. I. T. authorities to lower the registration on account of the crowded conditions at the institute, the enrollment shows an increase of 100 men over last year's total. The latest figures set the number at 3540, of which about 700 are freshmen, and there are also 200 army and navy officers and 60 co-eds enrolled.

NO FAILURES RE-ADMITTED
Probably the most drastic change that has affected Dartmouth for years was made last week when the faculty of that college decided that no longer should those men who are dropped at the mid-year examinations be permitted to gain entrance again to the college. This ruling was passed only after extensive investigation in which it was determined that only one man in four who are readmitted after failure ever graduates with his class. This action makes Dartmouth one of the very few institutions not permitting re-admission.

PURPLE HARRIERS WIN FROM RED AND BLACK

Fasce Sets Stiff Pace at Start and Finishes First—Score Is 19 to 36

COURSE RECORD IS BROKEN

Williams Takes 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 6th, and 7th Places in Decisive Victory

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 5—Williams decisively defeated the Wesleyan harriers here this afternoon by the score of 19 to 36, taking first, second, third, sixth and seventh places. Fasce was the individual winner, breaking the tape in the fast time of 26 minutes, 42 1-5 seconds, establishing a new course record at Wesleyan, and he was followed five seconds later by Fitcher.

Fasce took the lead at the start of the race and was never headed. Norton of Wesleyan threatened to take the lead for a few yards at the beginning of the race, but was unable to pass the Williams runner. Fitcher and Swan both followed Fasce closely throughout the entire course, Fitcher crossing the finish line in 26 minutes, 48 seconds, and Swan in 26 minutes, 56 seconds. Norton, the first Wesleyan man, finished some 200 yards behind Swan, and then came Balsley of Wesleyan, Adams of Williams, Webb of Williams, Foster of Wesleyan, Smith of Wesleyan, Livingston of Williams, Knowles of Wesleyan, and Seaman of Williams in the order named.

Fasce led off at a fast pace from the very start and was never overtaken. He sprinted the last 100 yards of the five and a quarter mile course. The runners soon grouped, with Fasce, Fitcher, and Swan leading, and the others trailing at irregular intervals. The course is a comparatively easy one with few hard hills, but the severe wind hindered both teams, and prevented Fasce from lowering his time. The finish was in front of the grandstand on the football field, and the run ends with one and a half laps around the cinder track. It was evident as soon as the runners came in sight for the finish that there was to be no excitement, and there was no contest for any of the places.

The runners finished in the following order: First, Fasce (W); second, Fitcher (W); third, Swan (W); fourth, Norton (W); fifth, Balsley (W); sixth, Adams (W); seventh, Webb (W); eighth, Smith (W); ninth, Foster (W); tenth, Livingston (W).

TRIANGULAR DEBATE SET FOR DECEMBER 9

Williams, Amherst, and Wesleyan Will Discuss Question of Disarmament

According to plans which were formulated at a conference held last Wednesday afternoon in Springfield, Mass., a triangular debate is to be held between Williams, Wesleyan, and Amherst on December 9, in which the subject will be argued by two representative teams at each college. On account of the fact that the entrance of Wesleyan was, until recently, undecided, it was found necessary to hold the second conference on the matter last Wednesday, in which Helfrich '24 was the Williams representative.

Favorable comment was made at the meeting of the 36-hour basis of controlling the debate, and it was finally decided to adopt this system. The general subject for discussion was chosen as "The Limitation of Armaments," which is the purpose of the conference to be held in Washington in the near future. The specific branch or view point of the question which is to be debated, will not be announced until 36 hours before the time of debating, and will then be telegraphed to all three colleges simultaneously.

Only two men and an alternate will constitute each team, and will be given the customary opportunity for rebuttals. One Williams team will meet other representatives in Grace Hall at 8.00 p. m., December 9, while a second team representing Williams will debate either in Amherst or Middletown. Preliminary trials will be held Tuesday afternoon, at which time the members of the two teams will be selected.

MEMBERSHIP GRANTED IN SWIMMING LEAGUE

Williams Recently Admitted to National Intercollegiate Association

Associate membership in the National Intercollegiate Swimming Association was granted to Williams College, at a meeting of the Association at the New York Athletic Club on October 30. This membership will enable Williams to enter individual entrants in the National Intercollegiate meet, but does not allow for team participation.

All captains and managers of the colleges which are members of the association met to consider plans for the coming season, and it was at this meeting that the Williams petition was made, and granted. This event will mark a new step for Williams in the swimming world, as heretofore, participation in such meets has been confined to the New England Intercollegiate. The date of the meet has not been announced as yet, but it will be held in Philadelphia some time in March.

RELIGION ATTRACTIVE IS BELIEF OF DR. COBB

Speaker at Sunday W. C. A. Meeting Deplores Insincerity in Our Religion

Speaking before an unusually large assemblage at the weekly meeting of the Williams Christian Association last Sunday evening, the Rev. Henry E. Cobb, the speaker of the morning, answered the question "Should Religion Be Made Attractive?" to the effect that a sincere belief in the Christian religion cannot be made more attractive than it is.

"A friend of mine who is pastor of one of the New York churches," said Dr. Cobb, "was prevailed upon by a certain artist of rather radical ideas to believe that religious emotion can be made effective by the liberal use of motion pictures. In my opinion such an idea is an absurdity. The underlying theme of motion picture production is artificiality; a 'movie' is successful according to its efficiency of deception. No such instrument can aid in teaching a doctrine whose fundamental basis of activity is sincerity.

"Emotion and heartfelt enthusiasm are necessary for the success of any project. However, too much religious emotion is misguided and is without the foundation of Christian faith. Its force is like the power of a huge locomotive running along the ground without tracks to guide its direction. Faith converts the principles of the Divine Life to the actions of our lives. I have seen many enthusiastic young welfare workers in the slums of our large cities lose heart in their work because they could not see positive results of their labors immediately. Faith in the eternal order of the universe is the only power on earth strong enough to make real results along the lines of Christian achievement possible.

"The religion of the early Puritan settlers in this country was anything but attractive. With its long sermons, cold and bare meeting houses the services offered little to those who could see only the romance of religion, if there were any such among the Puritan settlers. And yet it created a moral fibre in the community

Supplement to Appear

With the next issue of THE RECORD will appear the first rotogravure supplement of the year, and the first attempt made in this line by a college or university newspaper. The section will contain action pictures of the football team in the Yale, Middlebury, Columbia, and Union games, for the most part, and will also present photographs of some of the minor sports of the fall season.

Freshman Meeting Tonight

Nov. 7—For the purpose of electing a class basketball manager and a class debating manager the class of 1925 will meet this evening at 7.30 in Jesup Hall. The nominating committee has named Cranford, C. Fisher, Hodgeman, and Lacey for the former position, and Bicknell, Karageusian, Dunne, Gladding, and Sterling for the latter.

SHANAHAN TO COACH THIS YEAR'S QUINTET

Athletic Council Makes Numeral Awards to Three Winning Class Teams

John Shanahan, of North Adams, was re-appointed coach of the basketball team for the season of 1921-22, and numerals were awarded to the members of three winning class teams at a meeting of the Athletic Council last Friday afternoon. At the same time, it was decided that soccer should be officially recognized as a minor sport in the athletics of Williams, with the start of the season next fall.

Coach Shanahan has been associated with the game of basketball for over twenty years, starting his career as a member of the "Hand in Hand" five of North Adams, the winners of the city championship for many years. Since that time he has been in great demand as official, coach and player.

Numerals were awarded to the following three teams: 1922 Soccer team, winners of the season of 1920-21; 1923 Soccer team, winners of this fall's league; 1924 Baseball team, winners of the class season of last spring. The men making up these teams are: 1922—Adams, manager, Brune, Cruise, Dickinson, Dunn, Greer, Gummey, Johnson, Learned, Rosenwald, H. C. Smith, J. Williams, and Wallace; 1923—Allen, manager, Bancker, M. Campbell, Carr, Durfee, Greene, Greif, Keen, Maxwell, McAneny, Romaine, Stephens, Sutton, Taylor, Witcombe; 1924—Acheson, Carleton, Fincke, Herron, Kellogg, Klaproth, McKean, McKelvey, Newhard, Pease, Pressprich, manager, J. Stevenson.

WESLEYAN-AMHERST GAME ENDS IN TIE

Dropkick for Red and Black and Placement for Home Team Are Only Scores

Unable to cross each other's goal during the entire game, Amherst and Wesleyan, the two remaining teams on Williams' schedule, fought to a 3-3 tie on windswept Pratt Field last Saturday afternoon. Amherst apparently was the stronger of the two elevens, but lacked the aggressiveness displayed in previous contests.

"Chink" Wing, chief hope of the Purple and White, was closely guarded at all times, and in the third quarter he was temporarily forced out of the game by injuries. Jillson, Reusswig, and Brough however, were all three able to make constant gains for Amherst. For the visiting team Seriggins, the full back, and Butler and King, the ends, were the mainstays of the offense.

Numerous attempts to kick field goals were made as first one team and then the other faced the sheltered eastern goal. Seriggins twice failed to boot the pigskin over the cross bar in the first quarter, but finally was successful in the third period, making a perfect drop kick from the 42-yard line. Elliot of Amherst, who made the only score for the home team with a kick from placement in the final period, was also unsuccessful in two other attempts to kick a goal. His third kick looked as if it were successful at first but it hit the cross bar and fell back into the arms of a Wesleyan player.

T. S. WOOD SECURED AS DRAMATIC COACH

New Mentor of 'Cap and Bells' Has Had Long Experience in Theatricals

Through the efforts of the new Alumni Advisory Committee, which held a meeting on October 28 in New York City, the services of Mr. William T. S. Wood have been secured as coach of "Cap and Bells" for this year. Mr. Wood has had wide experience in theatricals as coach of the Amateur Comedy Club of New York, and as coach of both the Columbia and N. Y. U. dramatic clubs.

Messrs. Arnold, Cartmell, Hite, and Sutton, of the Alumni Advisory Committee, will be in Williamstown over the weekend of the Amherst game to see a tentative production of one of the three one-act plays which are to be produced during the Christmas recess. Mr. Wood will come during the third week of this month to choose the casts for the plays and to conduct the rehearsals.

WESLEYAN FRESHMEN NOSE OUT WILLIAMS

Single Touchdown in Final Quarter Gives Victory to Red and Black Yearlings

With such a high wind blowing that an aerial game was almost impossible, and even kicking difficult, the Williams freshman eleven was defeated by the Wesleyan first year men 6-0 at Middletown last Saturday. From start to finish the game was hard-fought and well played.

From a general summary of the game it appears that the Purple cubs had the edge on their opponents during the first quarter and the last part of the final quarter. At other times Wesleyan had a decided advantage arising from the successful use of a tandem play in which the runner with a heavy interference made up of two linemen and two backs, formed as a square, made constant gains through the visitor's line. It was only at the very end of the contest that the Williams freshmen were able to break up this play. One of the two passes tried by the Red and Black was completed; the Purple's only attempt was unsuccessful.

Wesleyan won the toss and received the ball from the visitors. Finding themselves unable to push the ball into Williams territory they punted. The Purple team received the ball well back towards its own goal posts and started a powerful offensive. Five first downs were made and when possession of the ball was lost because of the failure to make the sixth, the pigskin was well into the territory of the home team. Wesleyan almost immediately punted, and soon afterwards Williams returned the kick. The quarter ended with the ball on Wesleyan's 30-yard line.

At the start of the second period the Red and Black netted about 15 yards on a forward pass, and then, bringing their tandem play to bear with almost mechanical precision, they forced the ball to the Williams 10-yard line. Clifton and Riday proved to be the constant ground gainers for the home team. Here they were penalized. Williams gained possession of the ball on a fumble but was forced to give it up because of a man off side. Losing a fierce drive, the Red and Black cubs tried to push the ball over, but were halted on the 4-yard line when the visitors' wall-like de-

UNION OVERCOME BY 44-0 MARGIN

Garnet Powerless to Make Gains as Varsity Team Piles Up Six Touchdowns

WILLIAMS COMPLETES NINE FORWARD PASSES

Healy and J. Wilson Score Twice for Purple—Mallon, Monjo, Richmond Figure

Savage line-plunging, well-directed forward passes, and a speedy attack levelled against the weakest defense the Purple has encountered this year gave Williams an easy victory over Union on Weston Field last Saturday afternoon by the score of 44-0. Six touchdowns, five subsequent goals, and one goal kicked from the field combined to pile up the largest total of points yet gathered by the varsity this season.

Weakened by the loss of several of its star players, Union was on the defensive from start to finish of the game. Not once did the Garnet earn a first down and not once did the visiting team have possession of the ball beyond its own 40-yard line, reaching that mark at one time in the first quarter.

The Purple was able to gain almost at will, completing ten first downs by rushing the ball and five by the aerial route. Union's line was unequal to the task of halting the fast-charging Williams backs, and the Garnet defense was helpless before Williams' forward pass attack. An analysis of the game shows the margin of superiority in the Purple offense. Williams carried the ball for a total distance of 373 yards, as against 78 yards for Union. Williams completed nine passes out of 11 attempted, and Union tried but three, two of which were intercepted. The Williams line broke through three times to block punts, converting two of them into touchdowns, whereas Monjo and Richmond were able to outkick their opponents every time. The only advantage Union held was in the matter of penalties, for while the Garnet was not penalized once the home team suffered eight penalties for a total loss of 65 yards.

Healy in the line, and Monjo, Richmond, and J. Wilson in the backfield played brilliantly for Williams. Healy accounted for 12 points by furling on two blocked punts behind Union's goal line, and his defensive work was of a high order. Monjo and Wilson tore the Garnet line to pieces, and the former made two long runs of over 30 yards after receiving Union punts. Wilson crossed the line twice and Monjo scored one touchdown. Richmond's off-tackle and end runs never failed to gain, and he advanced the ball 68 yards on rushing during the game. Mallon played the leading part in the Purple's aerial attack, hurling seven passes, and catching two, and he slid over the line with the Purple's fifth touchdown in the third quarter. In the second half of the game the second and third string players were sent in, the entire squad of 30 men, outside of the injured, taking part.

Union's defense was entirely inadequate to cope with Williams' plays, and on the offense Heidorf was the only player to distinguish himself. He alternated with Captain Murray in punting, and made frequent short gains through the line.

Wesleyan-Amherst

Game Ends In Tie

Amherst employed the aerial attack much more than her opponent, but they were able to complete only four out of 20 passes, netting a total gain of slightly more than 40 yards. Wesleyan was unsuccessful in every one of the four attempts made to complete a pass. Both teams lost 50 yards on penalties.

Union Overcome

by 44-0 Margin

Heidorf opened the game by kicking off to Mallon, who ran the ball back to the 44-yard line before being downed. Monjo made five yards and Burger added two, but on the last down Monjo punted to Heidorf, who was tackled on the 28-yard line. The Garnet advanced to the 40-yard line on three plunges and an off-side penalty, but this marked the furthest limit of the visitors' advance during the afternoon. Williams took the ball on downs, and Mallon hurled a 20-yard pass to Pense, who was halted 25 yards from the goal line. Wilson and Mallon made four yards apiece, and Burger broke through the line for first down. On a delayed cross-buck Wilson plunged through to the 4-yard mark, but Williams was penalized 15 yards for holding. Mallon uncorked two forward passes to Wilson, who slid over the line on the second pass. Fargo kicked goal. Williams 7, Union 0.

Monjo kicked off to Heidorf on the Garnet 5-yard line, who returned it ten yards and then punted to Williams' 40-yard line. Monjo returned the kick and Heidorf made three yards through the line. Murray's punt was partially blocked, but Bellingier caught it for Union and was downed on the 32-yard line. Union made seven yards in three attempts before the quarter ended.

Murray punted to Monjo on Williams' 42-yard line, and the Purple halfback raced down the sideline for 33 yards before being tackled. A penalty for holding cost 15 yards. A pass was incomplete, and then Mallon passed to Richmond for a seven-yard gain. Richmond lost seven yards on an attempted end run, giving Union the ball on downs. Wilson intercepted Heidorf's pass, and Mallon lost five yards around right end. Monjo punted and Heidorf kicked back, losing five yards on the exchange. After several line plays failed, Mallon tried a drop kick from the 35-yard line, which fell short. Union worked the ball from the 20- to the 35-yard line on two penalties and two line plunges, but Heidorf was tackled trying to make a pass, and Murray's punt was hurried because of a poor pass from center. Mallon ran the kick back five yards, and Richmond punted to Union's 5-yard line, where Heidorf gained five yards before punting back to midfield. Richmond gained nine yards through the line. A pass, Mallon to J. Wilson, netted 15 yards. Monjo made eight yards through center on a fake play, Richmond added two more, and Wilson dashed off ten to the 3-yard line. On the next play Wilson went over for a touchdown. Fargo kicked goal. Williams 14, Union 0.

Monjo kicked off to Heidorf, who ran back 15 yards before being downed on the 29-yard line. On an open formation play Heidorf fumbled, and Jones recovered for Williams on the 24-yard line. Wilson and Monjo made five yards, and Mallon gained eight on a pass to Richmond. A short pass, Richmond to Mallon, gained no ground, so Mallon dropped back to the 20-yard line and kicked a pretty field goal. Williams 17, Union 0.

Heidorf ran Monjo's kickoff back for ten yards when the half ended. Union developed a fumbling streak at the opening of the third period. Monjo kicked off to the 5-yard line, and Heidorf ran back to the 18-yard mark. A fumble by Mosher lost 12 yards for Union, and a second fumble spoiled Murray's punt, which Jones broke through and blocked. The ball rolled over the goal line where Healy fell on it for Williams. Fargo kicked goal. Williams 24, Union 0.

Monjo kicked off again to Heidorf, who dropped the ball but recovered on his 7-yard line. Heidorf made five yards off tackle, but was thrown without gain on an end run by Healy, who cleverly avoided the interference in getting his man. Murray tried to punt, but Fargo blocked the kick, and Healy again fell on it as it rolled over the line. Fargo kicked goal. Williams 31, Union 0.

Heidorf kicked off for Union, the ball dropping into Humes' arms on the Williams 40-yard line. Richmond punted to Union's 27-yard line, and on the next play Clark, at right end for Williams, threw Heidorf for a 15-yard loss. Murray punted to Williams' 48-yard line. Richmond tore through center for 11 yards, and a long pass from Mallon to Clark landed the ball 19 yards from Union's goal. Richmond's five-yard gain was offset by a penalty for off-side play. Mallon made eight yards on a pass from Richmond. Monjo hit the line for a yard, Richmond made two gains of two and six yards, and Mallon plunged over for a touchdown from the 1-foot mark. Humes kicked goal. Williams 38, Union 0.

Monjo started another march for the goal line when he caught Heidorf's kickoff on his 17-yard line and dashed to the center of the field before being tackled. Richmond reeled off 12 yards, and Brigham, who had substituted for Wilson, made nine yards in two tries. Richmond made another three, and then slid off tackle for a 13-yard run to the Garnet 13-yard line. Brigham and Richmond each contributed two yards as the quarter ended.

Practically the entire second team was in the field at the opening of the last period, and third string players were sent into the contest with great regularity. Brigham opened up with a two-yard gain, and Monjo added three, but Union held and received the ball on downs. Two plays gave Union four yards, and Heidorf kicked to Burger on the Garnet 37-yard line. It took ten plays to get the ball across for the last touchdown, Monjo finally placing it squarely on the last chalkmark on the last down. Humes missed goal, his kick hitting the upright. Williams 44, Union 0.

With the third team in the field behind him, Monjo kicked off to Heidorf, whose forward pass was intercepted by Parker. Monjo gained six yards, a penalty cost ten, and Olmsted made four. Wightman's punt rolled over the goal line. A trick forward pass from Union's 20-yard line grounded, and Simons tackled Heidorf for a ten-yard loss when the Union quarterback could not decide which end to run around. Heidorf punted, and Chapman gained five yards on two plays through the line. Hoffman tried a drop kick, which fell short as the final whistle blew. The final score was, Williams 44, Union 0.

fense made them give up the ball on downs. At this point Dickey made one of the spectacular plays of the game when he recovered a wild pass from center in back of the Purple goal and kicked it before the opposing ends broke through. The half ended with the pigskin near the center of the field.

Wesleyan kicked off at the beginning of the second half and Williams, after making one first down was forced to punt. Receiving the ball on their 45-yard line the Red and Black again made effective use of the tandem formation and succeeded in advancing within the shadow of their opponent's goal. Williams punted back, and after the ball seceded up and down the field several times the quarter came to an end with the ball on Wesleyan's 45-yard line.

In the first few minutes of the final period it was once more the tandem formation of the Red and Black which enabled them to carry the pigskin from beyond the center of the gridiron for the only touchdown of the entire game, most of the credit for the score being due to the stellar work of Riday the Wesleyan quarterback. Their try for a goal was unsuccessful. The home team kicked off and Dickey ran the ball to the Williams 30-yard line. From this point the Purple forced the Red and Black to their 20-yard line and failed to make a first down by only half an inch. During this advance Bourne of Williams ran for 20 yards through a broken field. Wesleyan ran the ball back to the 35-yard line and the game came to an end.

The lineups of the two teams were as follows:

Williams 1925		Wesleyan 1925

Contracts Awarded For The 1923 'Gulielmsonian'

Britton '23, editor-in-chief of the 1923 Gulielmsonian, is the originator of the cover design for this year's book, which will portray the Grace Hall portico. The volume will be bound in dark maroon with a Morocco finish, and the cover sketch will be stamped in gold. The David J. Molloy Company, of Chicago, will make the cover, while the contract for the printing has been given to the Eagle Printing and Binding Co., of Pittsfield.

New title plates of an extremely decorative character are being made by the members of the art department of the board, and six two-color pages will be included. Inasmuch as the editors have decided not to have a humorous section this year, the number of pages will be somewhat less than last year's Gul, and the book will be about the size of the volume of two years ago.

Church Hears Deputation

Featuring a negro monologue by H. M. Rounds '23, and magic by McGrath '23, an entertainment was given by a deputation from the Williams Christian Association at the Church in South Williamstown last Friday night. Piper '25 gave several solos on the banjo and mandolin, while a quartet, composed of Johnson '22, H. M. Rounds '23, Bileiko '24 and Stoddard '25, sang a number of College songs. At the conclusion of the program several popular selections were rendered by an orchestra, in which were Johnson '22, H. M. Rounds '23, Fay, Marshall and Piper '25.

MR. GEORGE CREEL TO LECTURE FORUM

Speaker is Head of Committee on Public Information and Noted Author

'DISARMAMENT' TO BE TOPIC FOR DISCOURSE

Service in Public Welfare Has Given Lecturer Unusual Experience

Taking as his subject "Disarmament," George Creel, editor and author, and perhaps best known to the public as Chairman of the Committee on Public Information during the war, will deliver an address before the first meeting of the Forum next Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Jesup Hall. This committee of which Mr. Creel is chairman, carried on one of the greatest advertising campaigns in history during the war.

Mr. Creel has given some interesting points on the work of the committee. "Our job," Mr. Creel writes, "was to make the fight for public opinion, both at home and abroad. In the United States, we worked through motion pictures, posters prepared by the mobilized artists of America, through great war expositions, pamphlets prepared in cooperation with three thousand picked historians, through the syndicated articles of the leading novelists and essayists, through loyalty leagues that went to the heart of thirty-three foreign language groups, and by a score of other ways. Our offices were in every capital in the world outside of the Central Powers. Each day, we sent to our representatives from three to five thousand words by wireless and cable for use in the foreign press. We drove through the enemy censorship by use of the aeroplane, the balloon, the kite, and the mortar gun, and more indirectly, through the press of Switzerland, Denmark and Holland."

Previous to his work on this Committee, Mr. Creel had ten years experience as editor of the Kansas City Independent, the particular aim of which was political reform. From Missouri he went to Colorado where, as editor, organizer and speaker, he led the progressivist forces that won the Initiative, Referendum, Recall, Workmen's Compensation, Mothers' Compensation, and a score of similar laws. As police commissioner of Denver he made important contributions to the solution of the Commercialized Vice problem, and also played a prominent part in penitentiary reform, helping to work out the Honor and Trust system.

Mr. Creel is the author of Children in Bondage, in support of child labor laws, Wilson and the Issues, Ireland's Fight for Freedom, How We Advertised America, and The War, the World and Wilson. Mr. Creel, through his work has had the opportunity to study at first hand underlying conditions both in this country and abroad, and his service in public welfare has given him a background from which he can speak with authority.

The Rev. Hugh Black, D. D., Professor of Practical Theology at the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, will preach at the regular service next Sunday morning in the Thompson Memorial Chapel. Dr. Black has made several visits to Williamstown and is well known to Williams men.

Dr. Black, who was born in Scotland, came to the United States in 1906. He secured his preliminary education at the Rothesay Academy at Glasgow University. In 1887 he received the Master of Arts degree from the Free Church College in Glasgow, and was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1908 by Yale. Both Princeton and Glasgow Universities conferred the same degree upon him in 1911, and in 1917 he was honored by the University of Pittsburgh with the Doctor of Literature degree. FLONZALEY QUARTET PLAYS HERE SUNDAY

Famous Musicians to Make Tenth Appearance Through Gift of Mr. Delano

Internationally famous in its reputation, the Flonzaley Quartet will give a concert open to undergraduates and the public in Grace Hall Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. This recital will mark the tenth opportunity which the College has had to hear these master musicians through the kind generosity of the late Eugene Delano '06 and his son, Mr. Mauro Delano.

Mr. E. J. de Coppel, a musical critic of New York City was responsible for the organization of the quartet a number of years ago when at his home in Geneva, Switzerland he brought together four musicians for a private concert. Such was the success which was won by these men that in a remarkably short time their fame had penetrated to every corner of Europe and shortly afterwards to all parts of America.

Each one of the instruments used by the quartet is of the rarest of its kind and all of them were collected by Mr. de Coppel in his extensive travels. One of the violins is a priceless Stradivarius, and the other two are the handiwork of the great Italian Guadagnini.

Unchanged for the last few years, the quartet is composed of the following men, each a master of his particular instrument: Adolfo Betti, first violin; Alfred Poehon, second violin; Louis Bailly, viola; and Iwan D'Arheambeau, violin cello.

For Sunday evening the program which has been selected is as follows:

Underclass Teams Start Work for Annual Game

In preparation for the annual Freshman-Sophomore football game to be held on Weston Field on Monday, November 21, the 1924 team will begin practice next week. The freshman squad will hold several practice sessions before the day of the game, although training will not be as strict as during the season just completed.

Boynston '23 has been secured to coach the sophomore team, which will meet in the baseball cage after the regular varsity practice every afternoon. The yearling eleven will attempt to perfect its plays under the direction of Head Coach Fulle.

Girl Scouts Conduct Sale

Girl scouts of Williamstown will conduct a travelling food sale throughout the town on Saturday morning, and in the afternoon will sell doughnuts from a stand or motor truck in a prominent position at the Williams-Amherst game. The funds raised are for the benefit of the Girl Scouts.

PRELIMINARY TRIALS TO BE HELD MONDAY

To Choose Teams for Triangular Debate Against Wesleyan and Amherst

Nine men will speak in the preliminary trials to be held next Monday afternoon at 4:15 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Auditorium to choose the teams which will meet Amherst and Wesleyan in the annual triangular debate, to be held this year on December 9. Members of the Faculty will act as judges, and each speaker will be allowed five minutes in which to uphold or to attack some phase of "Limitation of Armaments," the subject chosen for the triangular debate.

All men who have hitherto taken part in at least two varsity debates are considered as on the debating squad, and from their number the teams will be chosen for the debates of this year. The men adjudged the best speakers in Monday's trials will be used to fill up any deficiencies due to lack of former members of the squad. Zalles '22 will assign men to the teams. Following is the order of speakers Monday: Herron '24, Proctor '23, Northrup '22, Dickinson '22, Phelps '22, M. S. Barton '24, Stephens '23, Rankin '23, MacNair '22.

HARRIERS TO ENTER N. E. INTERCOLLEGIATES

Williams Sends Seven-Man Team to Boston for Annual Race
on Saturday

Williams will enter a seven-man team in the New England Intercollegiate Cross-country meet which will be held this morning at 10 a. m. at Franklin Park, Boston. Adams '22, captain of the harriers, Fasse, Fitcher, Webb '23, and Swan '24 have been definitely picked to enter the race, and two more men will be picked from the squad to make the trip to the Hub City.

Little is known of the strength of the teams which will oppose the undefeated Williams aggregation, but past experience has shown that Massachusetts Institute of Technology usually turns out an excellent team. Dangerous competition is expected from the teams which will be entered from New Hampshire State University, Bates, Colby, and Bowdoin Colleges as these institutions spend much more time upon cross-country activity than the average New England College.

Although it is less possible to "dope" cross-country meets than most other sports, the Williams harriers, undefeated thus far, should make a favorable showing at Boston tomorrow. In their first meet of the season, Middlebury went down to an inglorious defeat, 15-45, Williams taking all of the first five places despite the difficulty and unfamiliarity of the six-mile course. Springfield with a record marred by only one defeat in the past three years went down before the strength of the Purple runners to a 25-31 tally, Fasse proving an easy winner in the fast time of 27 minutes, 45 seconds over the long Williamstown course. Fasse again starred in the Wesleyan meet at Middletown when he broke the course record in 26 minutes, 42 1-5 seconds, followed by Fitcher five seconds later. The score of the meet was 19-36, Williams taking 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 6th, and 7th places.

Golf Club to be Closed

All undergraduates who have golf clubs in the lockers of the Taconic Club are requested to remove same before tomorrow as the Club is now being closed for the winter.

Delegation Pictures to Feature Next 'Graphic'

Photographs of six fraternity delegations of the class of 1925 will feature the November number of the Williams Graphic, which is to appear today, and will mark an innovation in the contents of the pictorial section of that publication. Other prominent photographs contained in the issue are of the varsity football team in action in the Yale, Middlebury, and Columbia games.

Following are the literary contents of this number: European Vignettes—prose, Morgan Seaman Campbell; The Alumni Adieu—prose, Van H. Cartmell '17; The Jordan's Chauffeur—story, Ernest Addison Moody; Sonnets, by Ernest Addison Moody and George Allen Mason, Jr.; Foets and Deductions About Tarn—prose, Robert Ellsworth McLane; Epicurus to L. . . .—poem, Kenneth Phillips Britton; Foul or Fair—story, Malcolm Campbell McMaster.

WILLIAMS CLASHES WITH RIVAL TODAY

Odds Favor Purple In Annual Battle With Amherst—Both Teams Strong

TWO POWERFUL LINES MEET IN TODAY'S GAME

Williams' Superior Aerial Attack
May Prove Deciding Factor
In Hard Battle

Amherst meets Williams in the crucial test of the year for both elevens this afternoon at 2:30 on Weston Field. The Purple and White invades Williamstown with a fast, hard-fighting eleven which has shown steadily increasing strength throughout the season, and will be met by an equally fast and aggressive team whose powerful attack crushed Columbia 20-0 and Union 44-0, and whose defense did not yield its opponents a single first down in the latter game.

The odds slightly favor Williams in the football classic of the year. Both teams have played Hamilton, Union, and Columbia, and in the last two games comparative scores show an advantage for Williams. The futility of making definite predictions in the light of comparative scores is shown by last year's game, but they at least furnish some indication of the merits of the teams. Amherst defeated Hamilton by the score of 20-0, while Williams defeated the same team 14-0, but the game was played in a driving rainstorm which made fast football impossible. The Purple and White won the game with Columbia by the narrow margin of 9-7, while Williams' 20-0 victory over the New Yorkers was impressive not only because of the size of the score but because of the unexpectedness of the victory. The Columbia game marked a turning point in the season, and Williams crushed Union 44-0 with a display of straight football and forward passing which the Garnet was helpless to resist, and with a defense which not only prevented the Union backs from gaining, but threw them for a total loss of 14 yards in the second half. Amherst barely defeated Union by the score of 6-0 when a touch-down came on a trick play in the first few minutes of play.

Amherst lost the first game of its season to Springfield Y. M. C. A. College by the score of 26-0 largely through the inability of its inexperienced backfield to cope with the forward passes of the visitors, and defeated Massachusetts Agricultural College 13-0. Two ties have been turned in by the Amherst team, the first a 0-0 affair with Tufts, and the second last Saturday when Amherst and Wesleyan battled to a 3-3 tie on Pratt Field. Williams played a scoreless tie with Bowdoin, and succumbed to Middlebury by a 7-3 score, and to Yale by the score of 23-0, in a game in which the fighting spirit and aggressive forward passing attack of the Purple were nevertheless impressive. Amherst has thus won four games, lost one, and tied two, while Williams has won three, lost two, and tied one. On the whole, however, the opponents of the Williams team have been the stronger, and the story of the season has been one of steady development, in which the crushing attack developed by

Trophies and Jinxes

Another year of Amherst-Williams contests is at hand. Today's football classic ushers in the annual competition for the coveted Trophy of Trophies, emblematic of all-around athletic supremacy. Last year Williams won the Trophy despite the handicap of a gridiron defeat, and a football victory with which to start this year properly will go far towards ensuring another triumphant outcome to the competition.

The Purple eleven has no easy task before it, for it faces foemen worthy of its steel, backed by the massed strength of all the loyal sons of Lord Jeff. But it cannot flinch. For five years no team has won a clear triangular championship. In 1916 Williams defeated both Amherst and Wesleyan, but the best that the undefeated team of the following year could do, was to tie Wesleyan after overwhelming Amherst. The student body and the large number of returning alumni with one voice demand another championship. There is only one result that will really satisfy, both here today and at Middletown next week—a triumphant Purple tinge to the setting sun.

We welcome the Amherst team and its followers most cordially. The finest sportsmanship can be produced only through the best and keenest of rivalries, and that is the spirit that both colleges wish to foster. Yet the very friendliness of the welcome prompts us to brace them against disappointment, and warn them that they face a very live Weston Field Jinx. Last year Williams met the Pratt Field Jinx and bowed before it. For five years the Purple has not won a football contest on Pratt Field, but it is six long years since Amherst has triumphed on Weston Field. A fortiori, how dare they hope to win today? In the 37 years that football has been played on Weston Field, Eph's sons have demonstrated their superiority to Lord Jeff's progeny in 12 out of 18 contests, while in the same length of time the aforesaid progeny have successfully repelled invaders at Amherst in only 5 out of 15 battles. And it is said that history repeats itself.

Rotogravure

With the present number THE RECORD brings forth its first issue of rotogravure for the inspection and criticism of its subscribers. It is the first step in this direction in the college newspaper field, and, like most first steps, it is inclined to be wobbly, even to the fond eyes of its proud parents.

The rotogravure section is not a departure in the traditional policy of THE RECORD, but rather a departure in method. It has long been customary to publish special, well-illustrated supplements at frequent intervals during the year, but now the great strides forward in photographic reproduction have caused the general abandonment of half-tone prints, and the concentrating of news and feature articles in the regular issue. By means of rotogravure the average picture may be reproduced with two or three times the clarity and delicateness possible in half-tone results. In the interests of progress and improved service for its subscribers, THE RECORD tries this innovation.

Although communications may be published unsigned if so requested, the name of the writer must in every case be submitted to the editor. The Board assumes no responsibility, however, for the facts as stated nor for the opinions expressed in this department.

SARTOR RESARTUS

To the Editor of THE RECORD,
Sir:

I have read with a great deal of chagrin the so called criticism of the October Graphic by one "A. H. L." I do not know who this chap is, but whoever he may be, he has done the Editorial Board of the Graphic and the College a great injustice. It is evident that his purpose is not so much to make a constructive criticism of the October number as to exploit his own assumed ability as a critic. His reference to the photographs is only a blind from which to take a shot at a conscientious and hard-working Editorial Board. While it would seem that Mr. Britton had been slightly overworked, yet the literary contributions were not such as to deserve the picturesque and untruthful characterization which the critic has bestowed upon them. To be specific, the examples of creative literature were neither anemic nor illiterate. It may be that "A. H. L." looks down upon the Editorial Board from the pinnacle of a faculty member, and yet it is hard to believe that even a member of the faculty could be so commonplace as to characterize any of the literary contributions as anemic or much less illiterate. The use of those adjectives indicates that the writer is more concerned in his use of picturesque and bizarre language than in an honest effort to aid the Editorial Board by genuinely constructive criticism.

Nor do I agree with him that the editorial is commonplace. On the other hand, I thought it was a manly production and that its attitude toward bootlicking and the value of popularity was correct and very refreshing. The critic seems to forget that October in Williamstown with all its outdoor attractions is a difficult period for creative literary effort. He seems to forget also that a destructive, unsympathetic review published broadcast through a college newspaper puts the magazine and its editors in a false and unfavorable light not only with the Freshman, who know nothing of its splendid achievements last year, but also with the parents and families of the first year men. Such criticism reflects also upon the college and seeks to give the impression that the Editorial Board is a bunch of boobs who cannot spell and whose only mission in life is to parade the lingerie of their young lady friends.

Finally let me say that as an example of commonplace, anemic and illiterate criticism, the contribution of "A. H. L." with its satire and extravagance of statement is about the cheapest thing I have seen in many a day.

MORE ABOUT THE PEERADE

To the Editor of THE RECORD,
Dear Sir:

In reply to a communication in a recent issue of THE RECORD signed by Messrs. Balke, Smeeth, and Blackmer, the 1922 Peerade Committee desires to make the following statements:

(1) Cards were mailed at least 24 hours in advance by the committee to all those men whose names were published as having been absent from the Peerade without excuse. The committee cannot assume responsibility for the delivery of the United States mail.

(2) Such selections are never made by any Peerade Committee from the three upper classes but only from those men who are in their second year at Williams.

(3) A list of those members of the sophomore class who were selected by the 1922 Peerade Committee was submitted to the chairman of the Student Council and approved by him.

The committee desires further to take this opportunity to urge again that the men in question be called before the Student Council to give the reasons for their absence.

EXHIBITION OF WAR PORTRAITS IS CLOSED

Famous Collection of Paintings Is Well Appreciated by Undergraduates

With a marked increase in attendance during the last few days, the exhibition of War Portraits, which has been open to the undergraduate body and the public for the past week, closed last Thursday afternoon, and will now be shown at Amherst College. The exhibition was presented at Williamstown through the generosity of Mrs. James C. Rogerson, wife of James C. Rogerson '92.

Throughout the week and a half that the exhibition was shown in Grace Hall, the sky was overcast, and therefore the portraits of the famous officials and generals of the World War, were not brought out under the best circumstances. However, the historical value and excellence of the work of art was clearly seen, and the collection was greatly appreciated by all who were able to see it. The portraits and painters of the collection have been enumerated in another issue of THE RECORD, as well as a criticism of the exhibition by the American Magazine of Art. Practically all of the portraits have been bought by cities of the United States and have then been presented to the general collection. Chief among these cities are Cleveland, Cincinnati, San Francisco, New York, and Chicago. That the opportunity to see this valuable and interesting collection of War Portraits was appreciated by the student body was amply shown by the large daily attendance from the opening of the exhibition on November 1 to the close last Thursday.

From Amherst, the collection will go to Cincinnati, Cleveland, and other cities in the Middle and Far West, and to the South.

W. C. A. STARTS WORK OF ORGANIZING CLUBS

Two Clubs Are Already Active Under Direction of Balke '24 and Mr. Scribner

Active work in organizing boys' clubs under the direction of the W. C. A. has not yet been actively started for the year, but several clubs which were organized in past years are now holding regular meetings. The organization of new clubs will begin in the near future when the gymnasium is available for basketball.

Two clubs, however, have been active for the past year. The first of these is under the supervision of Mr. Scribner of the New York Telephone Company. He has organized a Boy's Band, which holds weekly rehearsals under the supervision of a trained musician. Mr. Scribner, a musician of experience himself, has helped greatly in the work. Over ten instruments have been bought, at an approximate cost of $250, largely through the proceeds of two entertainments and dances given at the Williamstown Opera House. The second club is under the direction of Balke '24, who has organized the most active of any of the clubs at Clark Chapel, near Williamstown.

Musical Clubs Rehearse

Practice is being held regularly on Monday and Wednesday evenings by the Glee and Mandolin Clubs, and considerable progress is being made in learning the music chosen for the program, under the coaching of Mrs. Seeley. It is expected that after the close of the football season, more rapid progress can be made and by the time of the Christmas trip, all preparations will be completed.

INTERCOLLEGIATES

BARNARD ELECTS NEW TRUSTEE

In order to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mrs. A. A. Anderson on the Board of Trustees of Barnard College, Miss Mabel Choate, daughter of the late Joseph H. Choate, has been elected vice-chairman. Two other elections to the board were those of Deau Howard C. Robins of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and Howard C. Townsend, who became members of the executive committee of the board.

FOCH TO RECEIVE DEGREE

When Ferdinand Foch, Marshal of the French Armies and Generalissimo of the allied armies during the latter part of the great War visits Princeton on November 15, the University will confer on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. The program of the Marshal's visit, which he is making at the invitation of Princeton University as a whole, is now complete.

Williams Clashes With Rival Today

Coach Wendell in the last two games augurs well for success today.

Interest today centers in a battle between two unusually strong lines, both of which have shown great power. The Amherst line, though light, is strong. Clapp, Leete, and Worcester have all been putting up a scrappy game. During the past few games Winch has been playing center, while Leete has been shifted to end. Winch, although light, is developing into a strong lineman, while Leete was much in evidence during the Wesleyan game, receiving forwards and breaking up the offense of the opponents. Captain Davidson has shown himself a very valuable man in the line, and is exceptionally good on the receiving end of forward passes.

The performances of the Williams line have marked it as one of the strongest which has been developed for several years. Pease and Healy at the wing positions are playing for the first time on the varsity, but they have both shown flashes of brilliance. Healy in defensive work and in following the ball on fumbles, and Pease on the receiving end of forward passes. In Captain Fargo and Laws, the Purple has a pair of heavy, rangy tackles who are aggressive and experienced. Captain Fargo is probably the hardest and surest tackler on the team. Jones and Robinson are both heavy, and the latter especially has proved a strong point in the line. Boynton, although light for a center, contests Captain Fargo's claim to being the best tackler on the squad, and has shown brilliance in breaking up opposing plays and in getting down the field under punts.

Amherst has a practically new backfield which has been developed this year. For a time the absence of Zink at quarter was keenly felt, but Winslow has proved himself a good field general and able upon occasion to carry the ball himself. Of last year's varsity, Wing and Elliot are strong players, the former being particularly dangerous on a broken field. Jilison, of last year's squad, is playing half this year, and has succeeded in breaking away for long runs on several occasions.

The loss of Boynton was a serious blow to the Purple backfield, and Coach Wendell faced a serious problem to develop a powerful offense without him. Richmond, his running mate last year, is a very dangerous back once in the open field, but this year has not been able to break away consistently. He made a brilliant run in the Columbia game, however, and is likely to supply another at any time. Wilson, who was crippled at the beginning of the season, has been the star of the backfield in the last two games, and is valuable in offense and defense. Monjo has developed into a good punter, and is relied on for most of the line-bucking. Burger is light, but is a hard fighter, and is very good on the defense. Mallon at quarter is a clever open field runner, and has proved equal to Ben Boynton in accuracy in the forward passing game. His splendid field generalship has contributed much to the last two victories, and he can be counted on to use every opportunity in the game today.

An analysis of the two teams gives Williams the edge both in the strength of the line and in versatility of attack. Although Wiag and Jilison are dangerous, Amherst has shown very little in the way of a forward passing attack, in which department of the game lies Williams' main strength, and Mallon, Wilson and Richmond can easily be compared to the two Amherst men. Williams has last year's defeat to wipe out, and the reputation of Weston Field to defend, and a battle royal is expected.

The probable line-up of the two teams is as follows:

Williams		Amherst
Healy	l. e.	Davidson
Laws	l. t.	Adams
Jones	l. g.	Beenau
Boynton	c.	Winch
Robinson	r. g.	Worcester
Fargo	r. t.	Clapp
Pease	r. e.	Leete
Mallon	q. b.	Winslow
Monjo	l. h. b.	Reusswig
J. Wilson	r. h. b.	Wing
Burger	f. b.	Elliot

PERSONAL CRITICISM

Play of Eighteen Squad Members Is Characterized

Following are personal criticisms of the members of the Williams team:

Captain Edward A. Fargo, 1922—He plays consistently steady football and is one of the hardest and surest tacklers on the team. Has proved very valuable as a kicker of goals from placement.

John W. Barnes, 1921—A heavy and powerful lineman, who is developing steadily, and has already proved his worth in several games.

Charles A. Boynton, 1923—Is light for the center position, but has justified his choice by steady offensive work, and brilliant work on the defense. He has shown unusual ability in diagnosing opponent's plays, and is one of the best tacklers on the team.

Stores Brigham, 1922—A new back this year, but has shown decided ability in broken field running and in straight line plunging.

William C. Burger, 1922—A strong line plunger and receiver of forward passes. One of the gamest men on the squad and also one of the most conscientious.

John C. Byers, 1923—Another new man on the team who has won a place by hard work. He has weight and power and will develop into a strong guard.

Warren C. Clark, 1922—A heavy and rangy end, who has consistently improved at each performance, and has proved especially valuable on the offense.

Allan Healy, 1924—One of the fastest men on the squad, who has shown unusual ability in following the ball and in breaking up the end plays of opposing teams. With a little more experience Healy and Pease will be a formidable combination.

Samuel H. Humes, 1923—The heaviest man on the squad, but his weight handicaps his speed. A hard worker who has shown flashes of very good football, and is dependable at all times.

Sherman A. Jones, 1923—Has earned a regular berth on the team through consistently good work both on offense and defense, and is improving with each game.

James W. Laws, 1923—A hard, consistent player, who has fulfilled the promise he showed last year, when his main fault was lack of experience.

Horace T. Mallon, 1923—A clever open field runner, and invaluable on the sending end of the forward passes. He is handicapped by lack of weight, but his excellent field generalship has played a large part in Williams' victories thus far. Has de-

Edward R. Monjo, 1923—One of the most valuable men on the team for his all around ability. Has been doing all the punting for the team and is a hard line plunger and dependable defense man.

Harry M. Montgomery, 1922—A back who has been shifted to the line, and who has proved to be a big asset in the tackle position.

Walter F. Pease, 1924—Needs experience, but has won a regular position on the team by good work on the offense.

Charles S. Richmond, 1923—His strongest asset is speed and the ability to evade tacklers while going at full speed. Clever in forward passing, but has been unable to gain consistently this year.

James B. Robinson, 1924—One of the strongest men in a powerful line. His work both on the offense and defense has stamped him an unusually powerful guard.

John E. Wilson, 1922—Has proved versatile on the offense, and is valuable for his ability in picking holes through the line and in the forward passing game. Has shown brilliance in intercepting forward passes.

PURPLE COACHED BY WENDELL OF HARVARD

1912 Crimson Captain, Chosen for All-American Twice, Trains Williams Team

Following the resignation of Joe Brooks ex-'13 to coach the Columbia linesman, Percy Wendell, Harvard '13, and captain of the Crimson in 1912, was appointed mentor of the Williams team for the 1921 season. As assistants this year, Coach Wendell has had the services of Douglas Lawson, Harvard '13; Richard Lewis, Harvard '13; Moses Taylor, Harvard '13 and Richard O'Brien, Harvard '13, with Robert Fowler, formerly of the Harvard training staff as trainer.

These men constituted the coaching staff of the Williams eleven at the beginning of the season, with Lawson in charge of the linesmen, Lewis instructing the ends, with Head Coach Wendell in charge of the backfield, and exercising a general supervision over the entire field. Lewis was also released after the eleven had worked out the stiffness of the first part of the season.

Since the regular schedule began, the squad has been instructed by Lawson, in charge of the line, and Wendell working with the backfield. Boynton '21, widely-known captain of the 1920 Williams team, spent several days in Williamstown working with the regular coaching staff.

The result of the "division of labor" system of coaching has been the development of a well-balanced team, victorious in three games against Hamilton, Columbia, and Union, loser of two against Yale and Middlebury, and participant in a 0-0 tie with Bowdoin. A duplex coaching staff is something not entirely customary at Williams, as Joe Brooks and other coaches have worked alone with their teams in recent years.

Head Coach Wendell played with the Harvard team for three years at halfback, and was first All-American choice for his position for the last two years of his playing at Cambridge. During the year of his captaincy, Harvard defeated Yale 20-0 and was victor over Princeton 16-3.

Assistant Coach Lawson was a member of the Harvard squad for three years, and played regularly at tackle during his senior year in the 1912 season under the captaincy of Head Coach Wendell.

"Bob" Fowler, formerly a member of the Crimson training staff under "Pooch" Donovan, replaced "Doc" Barrett as trainer, the latter having gone with Brooks to Columbia as the Blue and White trainer.

DURFEE '23 NAMED MANAGER OF SOCCER

Aspirants for Team in Recently Recognized Minor Sport Organize

John R. Durfee '23 of Pottstown, Pa., was tentatively elected manager of varsity soccer for the season of 1922 at a meeting of all members of the class soccer teams held in Jesup Hall last Monday evening. General plans for this fall and for next year were also outlined at that time.

Durfee's election is subject to the ratification of the Student Council, and if his election is ratified he will be the official manager for the coming season. This unusual method of election was resorted to because no competition could be held so late in the year. No decision has yet been reached in regard to the election of an assistant manager.

Regular practice will be held this fall as long as the weather permits. Due to the lateness of the season no definite schedule will be arranged until next year, but, if possible, a series of unofficial games will be played with neighboring elevens in order to give the team practice in preparation for the regular season next fall.

Discuss World Problems

"China and Its Problems" was the subject of the illustrated lecture given last Monday evening in Griffin Hall by Count '22 before the World Problems groups of the Williams Christian Association. A series of three or four similar lectures are to be given during the year and are open to all who are interested in mission study and world questions.

NOVEMBER URGED AS MONTH OF DISCUSSION

Problems of Disarmament and the Far East Emphasized by Liberal League

November, urges the Intercollegiate Liberal League of Boston, should be made a month for the serious reflection by college students of the problem of disarmament now occupying so large a place in the eyes of the world in the Washington conference. In this connection, Mr. George Creed will address a meeting of the Forum in Jesup Hall on Monday evening.

Suggestions for the best manner for the consideration of this subject vary from mass meetings before which faculty members and visitors debate, to miniature Armaments Conferences made up of spokesmen supposedly representing the various nations attending the conference in Washington. The possibility of persons taking the matter up from the emotional standpoint is to be guarded against, in the opinion of the members of the league, for the question carries with it too many technical problems, and is one of the most complex and controversial ever attacked.

The tentative agenda of the conference as forwarded by the United States to the participating governments is in three paragraphs: (1) The limitation of naval armament with the basis of limitation and the fulfillment of conditions; (2) The rules for the control of the new agencies of warfare; and (3) The limitation of land armament. In addition, the discussion of the Pacific and Far Eastern question was prescribed. The latter included the questions relating to China and the principles to be applied in connection with her problem; also the application to such subjects as territorial integrity, the Open Door, and the Siberian problem. It is disarmament, however, rather than the Far East problem that is the chronic condition behind the call for the conference, and the League urges this fact to be held in mind by all attempting to follow the progress in Washington.

INTERCOLLEGIATES

BASKETBALL TO START SOON

Over 30 men reported to Captain Millar for the first practice of the year at Dartmouth last Saturday. Three members of last year's varsity, which was runner-up in the intercollegiate league, are available for the team this year, and five valuable sophomore players are also on hand to make up a strong five. Cullen, second highest scorer last season, and either Malcolm or Goldstein, of last year's freshman five, are expected to fill the forward positions; Shaneman and Watkins, freshman stars of last year, are the leading candidates for center; and Captain Millar, who led the team in his junior year, and Deep, another third year man, are the most likely men for the guard positions.

ADVOCATE COMMONS PLAN

The Amherst Student last week conducted a canvass to decide the attitude of the college in regard to the Commons question which resulted in a majority in favor of eating in the fraternities. At present a system of boarding houses is in vogue, but recently President Meiklejohn suggested having a College Commons. The custom of eating at the different fraternity houses has never been introduced at Amherst, but this vote clearly shows that the college is in favor of such a system.

ALUMNI FAVOR DISARMAMENT

The Alumni Council of Amherst College at its meeting last Saturday voted unanimously that the alumni of the college go on record as approving the purpose of the Washington conference for the limitation of armaments and that a copy of the resolution be sent to the President of the United States and to the Secretary of State.

AMHERST 1924 HOP ON DEC. 3

The committee is endeavoring to secure the best orchestra possible, and letters asking for bids have been sent to Paul Whiteman of the Palais Royal, Markel's orchestra, Bert Lowe, Cipriani, and Joseph Smith.

WILSON ONCE ON PRINCETONIAN

A fact of considerable interest has been discovered in the dusky archives of Princeton University. It is little known, but no less true that Woodrow Wilson was once a 'column conductor' of the Princetonian and that as such he wrote lines of snap and mirth. In his undergraduate days the former president edited a column of campus comment entitled 'Here and There' in the Princetonian. The present editor dug up this fact while delving into the old files of the paper.

POLO ASSOCIATION MEETS

At a recent meeting of the Indoor Polo Association held at the Biltmore Hotel in New York plans for the coming season were discussed. The meeting was attended by representatives from various universities and riding clubs throughout the East.

FALL REGATTA AT PRINCETON

Plans have now been completed for the annual Fall Regatta at Princeton. The program for the day will include two races, one for Freshman gig eights and one for four crews comprising the Varsity squad. The gig event will be run off over the one mile course but the Varsity race will be contested for two miles.

CORNELL BENEFITS BY WILL

Cornell University will be greatly benefited by the will of the late Prof. W. T. Hewitt, who died in London on Sept. 13. Among the articles that the University will acquire are all of the manuscript collections, including Prof. Hewitt's valuable collection of Cornelliens, also some manuscripts of Lydia Marie Child, the famous abolitionist and other autographed letters.

GREET FLONZALEY
QUARTET WARMLYRenowned Players Render Tenth Concert Through Generosity of Mr. DelanoPROGRAM FEATURED BY WORK OF OLD MASTERS
Beethoven and Mozart Numbers
Much Appreciated by Grace
Hall Audience

Enthusiastically received by an audience well sprinkled with undergraduates which packed Grace Hall to the doors, the Flonzaley Quartet gave its tenth recital last Sunday afternoon.

It was a concert by four masters, each one, however, playing as a part of a perfectly harmonious unit. In spite of the extreme refinement of technique, the mechanical part of the music never obtruded itself, but was entirely in the background.

The view of the fact that the very composition of a stringed quartet forbids the subliming and blending influence of a piano or organ, is nothing short of remarkable. Furthermore there seemed to be no field in which the quartet did not appear to be extremely able. Whether the passage suggested majesty, excitement, or peacefulness it was played with a feeling intensely musical and masterful.

Mozart's "Quartet in D Major" (K. 492), the opening number, presented a field of great breadth to the musicians. Hardly any other composition shows to better extent the deep understanding of the great German master in either the light or the serious realm of musical composition. The "Allegretto" with its wave-like swelling and receding tones was delightfully smooth and flowing, and in the most delicate passages the power of interpretation of the quartet was at its highest.

The "Allegretto" which followed, the swaying figures bowing and countering in the intricate figures of the dignified and courtly dance of times gone by. The "Allegretto" was both plaintive and majestic, its lively parts standing in marked contrast to a generally dreamy and meditative theme. In conclusion the "Allegretto" was light and fantastic, yet rich with it. It portrayed joyousness of a conservative, rather than of a reckless nature.

Boston Meet

HART OF BOWDOIN FIRST

Fase Leads Purple Runners, Finishing 14th—Winner's Time is 28:28 1-2

Williams was unable to gain more than seventh place in the annual New England Intercollegiate cross-country meet held last Saturday afternoon over the Franklin Park course at Boston. Contrary to expectations, the University of Maine harriers won the race, nosing out M. I. T., and Bates, which were expected to fight it out for first place.

Not only was the victory of Maine unexpected, but the individual triumph of W. S. Hart of Bowdoin was also a surprise to the spectators. Hart led the field of 80 runners over the five-mile course in the first time of 28 minutes 28 1-2 seconds, finishing 200 yards ahead of Raymond Baker of Bates, last year's New England champion. Doherty of Tufts was third.

Fase, as usual, was the first Williams runner to cross the finish line. He came in in the 14th position, immediately behind Kimball, the second Bates man to finish. Swan completed the course in 21st place, and the remaining Williams men finished in the following order: Fitcher, 32nd, Merriam, 41st, Captain Adams, 50th, Webb, 60th, and Seaman, 71st. Sanford carried his leg during the race and was forced to drop out before the finish.

Sanborn of M. I. T. took the lead at the start of the race and held it for almost a mile, when he was overtaken by Hart of Bowdoin. No Williams runner was among the contenders for the lead. Closely following Hart at the two-mile mark were Doherty, Sanborn, Flanders and Merer of Colby. These men set a remarkably fast pace over the rough course, which by over plowed land, turf, and wood roads. Seven

Press Comments Agree on Effectiveness of Aerial Attack in Amherst Game

'WILLIAMS AT TOP FORM'

'Amherst Showed Plucky Defense at Times But Was No Match for Purple—Post'

Comments on the Williams-Amherst football game last Saturday agree on the decisiveness of the contest and the all-around strength of the Purple team. The success of Williams' aerial attack despite the muddy condition of the field is emphasized in each press account of the game.

To quote the Boston Post, "The visitors were thoroughly outplayed, and besides being pushed back for three touchdowns, they were never dangerous themselves as a scoring proposition. . . . Amherst showed a plucky defense at times but was no match for the Purple as a team. . . . Williams did not lose much time in demonstrating the power of its attack."

The Boston Advertiser made the following remarks on the comparative showing of the rival elevens: "The home team was at top form in all departments of the game while Amherst's showing was a disappointment to its followers. Mallon ran the Williams team in fine style and also featured in broken field running. Richmond was a reliable man carrying the leather from scrimmage, while Boynton, Fargo and Pease starred on the line."

According to the Boston Globe the outcome was never in doubt. "It was a clean-cut victory for Percy Wendell's men, who outclassed their ancient foe in all departments, of the game except in that of punting, in which Elliot held his own with Monjo, the home team's crack kicker. The game was played on a sloppy field, but this did not prevent Williams from making an aerial attack which Amherst was at a loss to solve for a time."

Mallon, the Purple's quarterback, figured in some pretty open field running in returning kicks, which offset these losses to a certain extent, while the Williams ends covered Monjo's punts in telling style."

Mallon and Richmond were both star performers in the backfield for Williams. Richmond was perhaps the most consistent ground gainer for Williams after he entered the line-up, but Wilson and Burger were also reliable men in taking the pigskin. . . . On the line Capt. Fargo was a tower of strength, while Boynton and Pease also acquitted themselves with glory for the Purple."

Despite the unfavorable weather one of the greatest crowds in recent years turned out to see the battle."

The Springfield Republican is loud in its praise of the Purple team: "Percy Wendell presented a vastly better eleven than could be expected."

Prof. Droppers Honored at Banquet Last Friday

Over 70 members of the faculty and friends of the college attended a banquet given at the Canmore Rooms last Friday evening in honor of Professor Droppers, in recognition of the services he rendered to this country during the war while minister to Greece.

Professor Massey acted as toastmaster and addresses were made by President Garfield and Professor Wild. The former spoke of the excellent manner in which affairs were handled for other nations as well as for the United States by Mr. Droppers, while diplomatic relations were uncertain and complex. Professor Wild expressed the good fortune of the country at having a man of Professor Droppers' education and ability in a post of importance and responsibility at so critical a time.

NOTED LUTE PLAYER TO APPEAR THURSDAY

Mr. Thomas Wilfred Will Present His Famous Program of Old Songs and Ballads

OPENS THOMPSON COURSE

Foreign Musician is Called the Reincarnation of Ancient Troubadours

Presenting a program of songs and musical selections well varied both in language and period of composition, Mr. Thomas Wilfred, a notable foreign singer and musician, will appear next Thursday evening at 8:15 p. m. in Jessup Hall, in the number of the 1921-1922 series of the annual Thompson Educational Course in Entertainments. Mr. Wilfred has recently gained great distinction in the musical world for bringing back the ancient lute, the instrument of the old French troubadours, and has succeeded in learning the delicate art of playing this properly and stringently.

Thomas Wilfred's voice is full and richly-colored, and it is for the purpose of accompanying his old folk songs and ballads of all countries that he uses his twelve-stringed lute. This instrument is exceedingly long, is over two hundred years old, and gives forth a tone and sound very much like that of a harp. He has patiently learned to master this old and forgotten instrument, and much of his music has been gathered from dusty and yellow manuscripts written in tall letters and hidden in museums. American artists claim that Mr. Wilfred is a veritable reincarnation of the French and Venetian troubadour of the sixteenth and seventeenth century, who wandered from country to country with his lute, singing over his back by a snarl, and who recited the brave deeds of heroes, and songs of war and love. This type of musical program is distinctly an innovation, and it is probable that very few people have ever heard a lute played.

VICTORY IS DECISIVE

Purple Line Opens Up Big Holes and Fast Backfield Gains Consistently

PASSES PLAY LARGE PART

Punts and Drop-Kicks Hampered by Wet Field—Five Tries by Mallon Fail

Brilliant work on the part of the powerful Williams line, which tore up the Amherst defense and opened huge holes through which the fast, hard plunging backs were able to gain consistently, was the largest single factor in the crushing 20-0 defeat administered by the Purple to the Amherst five-yard line, and outplayed Amherst throughout the game, and the muddy field alone prevented a larger score.

The victory of the Williams team was even more decisive than the score would indicate. At no time during the entire game was the ball put in play behind the Williams 25-yard line, while Amherst never had possession of the ball behind its own 45-yard line. Williams scored three times. On two other occasions the Purple carried the ball to the Amherst five-yard line, and twice more had possession of the pigskin inside the Amherst 15-yard line. Five times Mallon attempted drop kicks, but owing to the heaviness of the ball and the muddy field he was unable to get his kicks off the ground. The ball three times rolled over the goal line and twice was blocked by Amherst lineemen.

The overwhelming superiority of the Williams team is indicated by the statistics of the game. Williams made 15 first downs by rushing and three more by the aerial route as compared to a total of three for Amherst. Williams gained a total of 288 yards by rushing, 105 yards by forward passes and 131 yards by running back kicks, while Amherst was able to gain only 42 yards by rushing, 40 yards by running back kicks, and did not complete a single forward pass. In kicking alone the Purple and White superior.

Mallon's punts did not gain as consistently as usual, many of them rolling offside after 20 or 30 yards, for an average distance of 34.8 yards. Two long forward passes from Mallon to Pease similar to that on Columbia's first touchdown was made on which the Williams team had made an irresistible march from its own 45-yard line to the Amherst goal line, in which the Amherst defense was torn to pieces. One of the most sensational plays of the game took place in the pass which paved the way for the first score. Williams tossed a long pass to Italy, who jumped for it at the same time as did an Amherst defense man. The ball was knocked into the air, and Pease picked it up before it had touched the ground and reached the four-yard line before he was awarded.

DISARMAMENT TOPIC OF CREEL'S ADDRESS

Former Chairman of U. S. Public Information Committee is Before Forum

Nov. 14—George Creel, formerly chairman of the United States Committee on Public Information during the Great War, will speak on "World Disarmament" before the Forum at 7.30 p. m. this evening in Jesup Hall. This will be the first meeting of this year of the series annually arranged by the Forum in the interests of the College.

Mr. Creel performed a service of world-wide importance as chairman of the committee which carried on such an extensive advertising campaign during the war. In a recent letter Mr. Creel tells of some of the work the committee accomplished:

"Our job was to make the fight for public opinion, both at home and abroad. In the United States we worked through motion pictures, through posters prepared by the mobilized artists of America, through great war expositions, through pamphlets prepared in co-operation with 3000 picked historians, through the syndicated articles of the leading novelists and essayists, through loyalty leagues that went to the very heart of 33 foreign language groups, and a score of other ways.

"Our offices were in every capital in the world outside of the Central Powers. Each day we sent to our representatives from 3000 to 5000 words by wireless and cable for use in the foreign press. These representatives were supplied with motion pictures, with posters, with literature, with speakers, and with window displays.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM TAKES SEVENTH PLACE

Maine Harriers Win New England Intercollegiate Title in Boston Meet

HART OF BOWDOIN FIRST

Fasce Leads Purple Runners, Finishing 14th—Winner's Time
Is 28:28 1-2

Williams was unable to gain more than seventh place in the annual New England Intercollegiate cross-country meet held last Saturday afternoon over the Franklin Park course at Boston. Contrary to expectations, the University of Maine harriers won the race, nosing out M. I. T., and Bates, which were expected to fight it out for first place.

Not only was the victory of Maine unexpected, but the individual triumph of W. S. Hart of Bowdoin was also a surprise to the spectators. Hart led the field of 80 runners over the five-mile course in the fast time of 28 minutes 28 1-2 seconds, finishing 200 yards ahead of Raymond Baker of Bates, last year's New England champion. Doherty of Tufts was third.

Fasce, as usual, was the first Williams runner to cross the finish line. He came in in the 14th position, immediately behind Kimball, the second Bates man to finish. Swan completed the course in 21st place, and the remaining Williams men finished in the following order: Fitcher, 32nd, Merriam, 41st, Captain Adams, 59th, Webb, 69th, and Senman, 71st. Sanford hurt his leg during the race and was forced to drop out before the finish.

Sanborn of M. I. T. took the lead at the start of the race and held it for almost a mile, when he was overtaken by Hart of Bowdoin. No Williams runner was among the contenders for the lead. Closely following Hart at the two-mile mark were Doherty, Sanborn, Flanders and Hendrie of Tufts, Baker of Bates, and Mercer of Colby. These men set a remarkably fast pace over the rough course, which lay over plowed land, turf, and wood roads. Seven

Underclass Teams Practice

Freshman football practice will be held daily this week in preparation for the Freshman-Sophomore game which will be played on Monday, November 21. No practice has been held for the past week. The Sophomore team has organized and will be coached by Mallon '23, who will take charge of the back field, and Boynton '23, who will work with the line. The 1924 men will practice every night this week in the cage.

Press Comments Agree on Effectiveness of Aerial Attack in Amherst Game

'WILLIAMS AT TOP FORM'

'Amherst Showed Plucky Defense
at Times But Was No Match for Purple'—'Post'

Comments on the Williams-Amherst football game last Saturday agree on the decisiveness of the contest and the all-around strength of the Purple team. The success of Williams' aerial attack despite the muddy condition of the field is emphasized in each press account of the game.

To quote the Boston Post, "The visitors were thoroughly outplayed, and besides being pushed back for three touchdowns, they were never dangerous themselves as a searing proposition. . . . Amherst showed a plucky defense at times but was no match for the Purple as a team. . . . Williams did not lose much time in demonstrating the power of its attack."

The Boston Advertiser made the following remarks on the comparative showing of the rival eleven: "The home team was at top form in all departments of the game while Amherst's showing was a disappointment to its followers. Mallon ran the Williams team in fine style and also featured in broken field running. Richmond was a reliable man carrying the leather from scrimmage, while Boynton, Fargo and Pease starred on the line.

According to the Boston Globe the outcome was never in doubt. "It was a clean-cut victory for Percy Wendell's men, who outclassed their ancient foe in all departments, of the game except in that of punting, in which Elliot held his own with Monjo, the home team's crack kicker."

The game was played on a sloppy field, but this did not prevent Williams from uncoiling an aerial attack which Amherst was at a loss to solve for a time. . . . Mallon, the Purple's quarterback, figured in some pretty open field running in returning kicks, which offset these boots to a certain extent, while the Williams ends covered Monjo's punts in telling style.

Mallon and Richmond were both star performers in the backfield for Williams. . . . Richmond was perhaps the most consistent ground gainer for Williams after he entered the line-up, but Wilson and Burger were also reliable when taking the pigskin. . . . On the line Capt. Fargo was a tower of strength, while Boynton and Pease also acquitted themselves with glory for the Purple.

Despite the unfavorable weather one of the greatest crowds in recent years turned out to see the battle."

The Springfield Republican is loud in its praise of the Purple team: "Percy Wendell presented a vastly better eleven than could

Over 70 members of the faculty and friends of the college attended a banquet given at the Commons Rooms last Friday evening in honor of Professor Droppers, in recognition of the services he rendered to this country during the war while minister to Greece.

Professor Maxey acted as toastmaster and addresses were made by President Garfield and Professor Wild. The former spoke of the excellent manner in which affairs were handled for other nations as well as for the United States by Mr. Droppers, while diplomatic relations were uncertain and complex. Professor Wild expressed the good fortune of the country at having a man of Professor Droppers' education and ability in a post of importance and responsibility at so critical a time.

NOTED LUTE PLAYER TO APPEAR THURSDAY

Mr. Thomas Wilfred Will Present
His Famous Program of Old Songs and Ballads

OPENS THOMPSON COURSE

Foreign Musician is Called the Reincarnation of Ancient Troubadours

Presenting a program of songs and musical selections well varied both in language and period of composition, Mr. Thomas Wilfred, a notable foreign singer and musician, will appear next Thursday evening at 8.15 p. m. in Jesup Hall, in the first number of the 1921-1922 series of the annual Thompson Educational Course in Entertainments. Mr. Wilfred has recently gained great distinction in the musical world for bringing back the ancient lute, the instrument of the old French troubadours, and has succeeded in learning the delicate art of playing this properly and stirringly.

Thomas Wilfred's voice is full and richly-colored, and it is for the purpose of accompanying his old folk songs and ballads of all countries that he uses his twelve-stringed lute. This instrument is exceedingly long, is over two hundred years old, and gives forth a tone and sound very much like that of a harp. He has patiently learned to master this old and forgotten instrument, and much of his music has been gathered from dusty and yellow manuscripts written in tablatune and hidden in museums. American artists claim that Mr. Wilfred is a veritable reincarnation of the French and Venetian troubadour of the sixteenth and seventeenth century, who wanders from country to country with his lute swung over his neck by a scarf, and who recited the brave deeds of heroes, and songs of war and love. This type of musical program is distinctly an innovation, and it is probable that very few people have ever heard a lute played.

VICTORY IS DECISIVE

Purple Line Opens Up Big Holes and Fast Backfield Gains Consistently

PASSES PLAY LARGE PART

Punts and Drop-Kicks Hampered by Wet Field—Five Tries
by Mallon Fail

Brilliant work on the part of the powerful Williams line, which tore up the Amherst defense and opened huge holes through which the fast, hard plunging backs were able to gain consistently, was the largest single factor in the crushing 20-0 defeat administered by the Purple to its old rival last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field. Williams outgained and outplayed Amherst throughout the game, and the muddy field alone prevented a larger score.

The victory of the Williams team was even more decisive than the score would indicate. At no time during the entire game was the ball put in play behind the Williams 25-yard line, while Amherst never had possession of the ball beyond its own 45-yard line. Williams scored three times. On two other occasions the Purple carried the ball to the Amherst five-yard line, and twice more had possession of the pigskin inside the Amherst 15-yard line. Five times Mallon attempted drop kicks, but owing to the heaviness of the ball and the muddy field he was unable to get his kicks off the ground. The ball three times rolled over the goal line and twice was blocked by Amherst linemen.

The overwhelming superiority of the Williams team is indicated by the statistics of the game. Williams made 15 first downs by rushing and three more by the aerial route as compared to a total of three for Amherst. Williams gained a total of 288 yards by rushing, 105 yards by forward passes and 131 yards by running back kicks, while Amherst was able to gain only 42 yards by rushing, 40 yards by running back kicks, and did not complete a single forward pass. In kicking alone was the Purple and White superior. Monjo's punts did not gain as consistently as usual, many of them rolling offside after 20 or 30 yards, for an average distance of 29.6 yards, while Elliot succeeded in averaging 34.8 yards.

Two long forward passes from Mallon to Pease similar to that on which the first touchdown was made at Columbia twice placed Williams in a position to score. The other score came after the Williams team had made an irresistible march from its own 45-yard line to the Amherst goal line, in which the Amherst defense was torn to pieces. One of the most sensational plays of the game took place in the pass which paved the way for the first score. Mallon tossed a long pass to Healy, who jumped for it at the same time as did an Amherst defense man. The ball was knocked into the air, and Pease picked it up before it had touched the ground and reached the four-yard line before he was downed.

'Bon Voyage'

Next Saturday Dr. and Mrs. Garfield sail for a two month's vacation in southern Europe. Many arduous duties devolved upon the President in his official capacity
as head of the Institute of Politics last summer, and the rest from irksome duties is a well-merited one. Plans regarding the personnel of the next Institute are well under way, and it is expected that this trip
will do much toward perfecting them.
THE RECORD but voices the sentiment of the student body in wishing President
Garfield a most enjoyable and fruitful vacation, profitable to him and the College alike.

Every project of student interest that has been advanced by the Student Council or other undergraduate bodies this year has received careful consideration from the President of the College. He has shown a gratifying willingness to meet student undertakings more than half way, and he has thrown the weight of his influence toward securing similar cooperation from the other members of the Administrative Committee and the Faculty. Professor Max-cy, who will serve as acting president during the next two months, has been likewise in close touch and sympathy with this attitude toward the student body, and we are confident that the remainder of the year will see the bonds of cooperation between Administration and students drawn tighter and tighter.

Wesleyan Yet Remains

Judging by the time-honored criterion
of victory or defeat in the Amherst game, Williams men are beginning to stamp the football season with the word "success."
There is cause for pride and satisfaction in the crushing of Amherst on Saturday, for Amherst is never an easy foe, and the score and statistics of the game leave no doubt as to the relative caliber of the two teams. Nevertheless, in the hour of victory it behooves us to look ahead without illusions to the next task. We still have to beat Wesleyan.

After the defeat of the Red and Black at
the supposedly helpless hands of Union,
Williams is prone to view the coming conflict with excessive confidence. We strongly suspect that over-confidence had much to do with Wesleyan's undoing at Schenectady. Williams teams have more than once been rudely awakened after counting the game won a week in advance.
Confidence in the ability of the team to conquer Wesleyan is proper, but it should be kept within reasonable bounds.

We have every reason to put faith in the coaches and trainer and the team.
Coach Wendell has skillfully succeeded in bringing the team to its best form at the right time, instead of showing a premature flash and then dying feebly in the all-important games. The exhibition of offensive and defensive line play against Amherst is a testimonial to both Wendell and Lawson, for they have developed a high degree of coordination between line
and backfield, instead of placing the brunt of the work on one department. That the team has trained faithfully is evident from its display of stamina in Saturday's hard struggle.

Confidence without over-confidence
should be the attitude of the student body toward the final game of the year. Full attendance and active support should indicate our confidence. But until the body of Wesleyan is laid beside the corpse
of Amherst we can only consider the season as good, and not yet successful.

In Prospect

Early this starts its week the Forum
year's program of intellectual stimuli.
The sessions of this body in the past have accomplished much in the way of initiating mental activity on the campus. They should form only a starting point for discussions, but as such they perform a very important function.

The program for the present year, which already includes such men as George Creel,
Glenn Plumb, Bainbridge Colby, and Raymond Robbins, promises much to those already looking ahead to the intellectual treats of a cold winter. The student body has made an investment in the Forum through the medium of the Non-Athletic Tax, and common business sagacity would suggest some attention to the merits of the investment.

WESLEYAN DEFEATED 7-0 IN LAST QUARTER

Union Springs Surprise by Scoring Victory Over Williams'
Final Opponent

After losing four successive contests, including its 44-0 defeat at the hands of the Williams team on November 5, the Union eleven, by a last-quarter attack, succeeded in overcoming Wesleyan 7-0 last Saturday at Schenectady. Union's open offense gained 62 yards in three plays, Heidorf, the Garnet quarterback, skirting
left end for the touchdown.

Although the Methodist team was favored to win easily, it was unable to get going on the slippery field and was outplayed in all departments of the game. Twice Wesleyan reached the 20-yard line of its opponent, but there Union held, and Scrig-gins' two attempts at drop-kicks from that point fell far short.

After three periods of scoreless playing,
Union received the ball on its 38-yard line.
On a delayed end run Heidorf made 39 yards; then on a fake line buck he threw a short pass to Rich, who ran for 25 yards before being downed. The third play of this strong attack was a left end run by Heidorf across the goal line, Heidorf also kicking the goal.

Preliminary Trials Held

Preliminary trials for the debating team
to meet Amherst and Wesleyan in the annual triangular debate on December 9
were held yesterday afternoon in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. As announced in a former issue of THE RECORD, the subject of the triangular debate will concern the disarmament question now being discussed at the Washington conference, but the specific question will not be made public until 36 hours before the time of the debate.

NOVEMBER 'GRAPHIC' REVIEWED BY CRITIC

Characterized as Promising But Deficient in Literary Atmosphere

(Courtesy of A. H. M.)

The Graphic for November continues to be rich in illustrations and advertisements.
Football predominates suitably to the season. There are attractive photographs of landscapes, fraternity freshman delegations, campus celebrities, and the like, of interest to the present and of future historical interest to the generations following. Some of them are sandwiched between the literary contributions, and some inserted in stories to which they have no reference. This last is somewhat unfortunate. It reminds one of the artful com-mingling of fiction and advertisements in popular magazines, though it may be that here the illustrations act as a lure to the reluctant reader.

European Vignettes is sprightly and entertaining, the author showing appreciation of beauty in landscape and villa, as well as an eye for detail. There is opportunity for the blue pencil of a critic, but the author might have used it himself with a little careful proof-reading. "Italy seems to have been the source of much that is fine" is a statement enduly cautious.

Mr. Britton's Epicurus is unworthy of the name, for the true Epicurus would have felt no envy at civilized comfort as depicted in the poem, nor would he have made any reference to the future life in which he disbelieved. No, the covetous poet is a would-be Sybarite out of funds, to whom the ancient Greek would have given some wholesome advice.

The freshman's first impressions of our college town are amusing and lively, and,
as is natural, somewhat fresh. When he gets his print of the "Coliseum," he should donate it to the classical department as something new in archaeology.

Mr. McMaster's story would seem more convincing if he had called it a dream.
Things happen that way in dreams, and do not surprise us at the time, though they do later. Conceding that, the tale is not badly told.

Mr. Moody's sonnet is musical and mystic, very simple, but telling. After a typical college story of the rich young man
in disguise and an impulsive girl who is rewarded for recklessness, the number closes with a sonnet which has some good lines, but needs to have the others worked over before it will say what it intends.
("Things dearer . . . than conscious pains" is surely not meant).

We miss an editorial page, an easy chair,
and we crave a more literary atmosphere.
Now that the picture part is achieved, it is time to vitalize the word-painting.

Noted Lute Player to Appear Thursday

Not only is Thomas Wilfred a musician,
but he is also a poet, story writer, inventor, soldier, and composer, and he, himself,
has a great deal of the fire, youth, imagination, and poetry of the medieval troubadour. His music is not paramount with him, for he considers the chords of his lute
to be merely the background for his exquisite songs and ballads, and he has the power to make the songs he is singing stand out as a picture before his audience.
The compositions he has selected were composed between the 13th and 17th centuries, and comprise English, Danish, and French songs.

Of the ability and power of Thomas Wilfred, the New York Sun says, "In his singing of the folk songs and ballads, Mr.
Wilfred discloses a delightful spirit and freshness, simplicity of style and changing moods admirably suited to the contents of the various songs. His quality of voice and the charming tone of the lute in his well-played accompaniments served to enhance the general effect of the old songs."
The Minneapolis Tribune says, "Such men
as Mr. Wilfred may, in time, affect more deeply the art life of America." In regard to his reception and popularity in foreign countries, The London Daily Chronicle
made the following announcement: "Queen Alexandra honored Wilfred, the lute player, with a command to appear at Marlborough House. . . . Queen Alexandra complimented Mr. Wilfred on the dramatic way in which the songs were rendered." And the Vort Land, of Copenhagen, printed the following: "King
Christian has asked Wilfred, the lute player, who is now at Copenhagen, to sing at the royal castle on Monday at the Gala Reception."

CHART OF WILLIAMS-AMHERST GAME

FIRST HALF

SECOND HALF

The work of the whole Williams line was brilliant throughout the game. The much heralded Amherst defense crumbled under a charge which drove it back on almost every play and opened big holes for the hard plunging but light Williams backfield. Captain Fargo, until he was hurt in the third quarter, played brilliantly on both offense and defense, and Robinson's work also stood out. During at least two of Williams' marches down the field, play after play was sent through these two men for large gains, while Amherst was never able to gain through their side of the line. Pease also broke up a large number of Amherst plays. Richmond, by virtue of his speed, gained the most yards, contributing a 32-yard run, the longest of the game. Wilson and Burger because of their defensive work and consistent line-plunging also deserve especial mention. Mallon played brilliantly, especially in running back punts, although his judgment in attempting so many drops when it was obviously difficult to get the ball off the ground, might be criticised. At the same time, however, the slippery condition of the ball made accurate forward passing almost impossible, which accounts for the large number of incomplete Williams passes. Wing, the dangerous Amherst broken field runner, never got started, and was taken out late in the second period due to an injury to his knee. Jillson played a very handy game for Amherst on the defense, while Captain Davidson upheld his reputation as a brilliant end. Burger, Mallon, and J. Wilson each made a touchdown for Williams, while Fargo and Mallon each scored once after touchdowns.

Fumbling was infrequent considering the condition of the field and the drizzling rain which fell during the greater part of the contest. Williams fumbled but once, and then recovered it, while Amherst offended three times, and on two occasions lost the ball, an Amherst fumble on its 25-yard line in the third quarter placing Williams in a direct position to score. Two penalties were inflicted on each team for offside play, each losing ten yards in this way.

Williams' first score came in the first quarter after the Purple had recovered the ball when Amherst blocked one of Mallon's attempts for a field goal. A forward pass from Mallon to Pease placed the ball on Amherst's four-yard line, and on the next play Burger slid over for the touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal. In the third quarter another long pass from Mallon to Pease advanced the ball from Williams' 40-yard line to Amherst's 10-yard line. On the next play, J. Wilson, aided by good interference from Pease and Richmond, went around right end for ten yards and a touchdown. Mallon failed to kick the goal. Soon after the fourth quarter opened Williams again scored, after a steady drive from the 45-yard line. Mallon went over for the touchdown. Williams threatened to cross the goal line again in this quarter, when, largely through sterling work on the part of Richmond, the Purple carried the ball from its own 45-yard line, after Monjo had intercepted a forward pass, to within two inches of the Amherst goal line. For the only time during the game the Amherst line was able to hold at this point, and Williams lost the ball on downs.

First Quarter

Monjo kicked off to Wing, who caught the ball on his ten-yard line and was downed on his 20-yard line. Elliott kicked to Mallon on the 40-yard line, and he returned it to the Amherst 45-yard line. Burger made four yards, six yards, three yards, and nine yards on four consecutive plays, placing the ball on Amherst's 23-yard line. A penalty for offside gave Williams first down and five yards. Wilson made three yards through centre, Monjo added one, and Burger took the ball to Amherst's ten-yard line. Fourth down and three yards to make. Mallon elected to drop kick, but his attempt from the 20-yard line failed. Amherst's ball on the 20-yard line. Elliott punted to Mallon, and Monjo returned the punt, the ball going outside on the 32-yard line. Elliott attempted a line plunge, was thrown for a loss, and punted to Mallon on the Williams 35-yard line. Burger, Wilson, and Mallon in three plays took the ball to the Amherst 33-yard line. Two line bucks failed, and a forward pass was grounded.

Mallon tried his second drop from the 40-yard line, but the ball was blocked and recovered by Williams. Pease failed to gain around left end, and on the next play Mallon tossed Pease a pass which placed the ball on the four-yard line. Burger went over for the touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal. Williams kicked off, and Elliott punted back to the 40-yard line. Mallon, taking the ball at this point, ran to the Amherst 30-yard line. Wilson and Burger contributed a first down in three line plays, but two more failed to make any considerable gain, and a forward, Mallon to Wilson, was grounded. Mallon tried his third drop from the 23-yard line; the ball rolled over the goal. Amherst's ball on 20-yard line. After an exchange of punts, the quarter ended. Score—Williams 7, Amherst 0.

Second Quarter

Amherst's ball on 20-yard line. Elliott punted to Mallon, and Monjo returned the punt. Amherst's ball on 30-yard line. Reusswig gained five yards and Wing failed to gain. Amherst again punted. Williams ball on Williams 32-yard line. Monjo, after two line plays, punted to Elliott on Amherst 30-yard line. Elliott, Wing, and Reusswig made first down in three plays, but the next two failed to gain and Elliott punted, the ball rolling out on the 35-yard line. Mallon tossed a forward to Pease for a 22-yard gain. Richmond advanced the ball five yards, and Wilson three more. Fourth down and two to go, but Mallon elected to punt, and Richmond kicked over the line. After two plays had failed to gain, Amherst punted to Richmond on 48-yard line. Richmond and Wilson made first down. Amherst lost five yards for offside play, and Richmond, taking the ball off right tackle, ran 35 yards to the Amherst eight yard line. Mallon recovered a Williams fumble. Three plays gained only five yards, and Mallon tried a drop from the 15-yard line, which failed. On the first play Pease tackled Wing for a five-yard loss, and Amherst punted to the middle of the field. Score—Williams 7, Amherst 0.

Third Quarter

Elliott kicked off to Wilson, who carried the ball back 23 yards to the 28-yard line. Two line plays gained only five yards, and Monjo punted out on the centre line. Amherst fumbled on the first play, and Wilson recovered for Williams. Mallon tossed a forward pass to Pease for a gain of 33 yards, placing the ball on the Amherst eight-yard line. Wilson circled right end for the second touchdown of the game. Mallon failed to kick the goal. Amherst kicked off to Monjo, who carried the ball from the 15 to the 45-yard line. Mallon made nine yards, but two forward passes were incomplete. Monjo punted out on the Amherst 17-yard line. Williams was penalized for offside play, and on the next play Amherst fumbled, and Laws recovered the ball for Williams. Wilson failed to gain, and two forward passes were incomplete. Mallon again tried a drop, which was blocked and recovered by Amherst on the 28-yard line. Sylvester made two runs of eight yards which gave Amherst first down, but the Purple and White punted. An exchange of punts ended the quarter. Score—Williams 13, Amherst 0.

Fourth Quarter

Williams ball on Amherst 45-yard line. A steady march down the field followed with Richmond making gains of eight, four, four, and eight yards, and a forward pass from Mallon to Wilson gaining 11 yards. Mallon took the ball over for the third score, and afterwards kicked the goal. Williams kicked off. Monjo intercepted an Amherst forward pass, and a steady march began to the Amherst goal line, Richmond gaining 32 yards in nine plays. The Amherst line held when the ball was two inches from the goal line, and Elliott punted to safety. During the remainder of the half there were numerous substitutions and neither team gained any definite advantage. The game ended with the ball on the Amherst 20-yard line.

"We drove through the enemy censorship by use of the aeroplane, the balloon, the kite, and the mortar gun, and more indirectly, through the press of Switzerland, Denmark, and Holland."

Previous to his work on this committee, Mr. Creel had 10 years experience as Editor of the Kansas City Independent, the particular aim of which was political reform. Here he fought every sham, assailing crookedness, wickedness, and graft wherever he found it.

From Missouri he went to Colorado, where as Editor of the Denver Post and then the Rocky Mountain News, he led the progressive forces that won the Initiative, Referendum, Recall, Workmen's Compensation, Mothers' Compensation, and a score of similar laws. As police commissioner of Denver, he made important contributions to the solution of the Commercialized Vice problem, and also played a prominent part in penitentiary reform, helping to work out the Honor and Trust systems.

Mr. Creel is the author of Children in Bondage, in support of child-labor laws, Wilson and the Issues, Ireland's Fight for Freedom, How We Advertised America, and The War, the World, and Wilson.

Quartet Warmly

For the central part of the program, two numbers by Ernest Bloch from his "Quartet in B Major" took the audience into an atmosphere weirdly unreal and imaginative. In the Allegro frenetico a state of chaos is reached almost at the start. Then alternate periods of storm and quiet follow in rapid succession, leading up to a wild and agitated ending. "The Pastorale" was full of charming echoes produced with increasing depth by the violin, viola, and violoncello. Towards the end, muted tones created an air of melancholy which soon faded into a perfectly peaceful finale.

Beethoven's "Quartet in D Major" with its overflowing melody and power offered a glorious and satisfactory ending to the concert. It was like the happy ending of a comedy on the stage after the strange and confused effect created by Bloch's compositions. The Allegro, the premier movement, was cheerful and exuberant throughout. For a few brief moments there was a serious passage, but soon its gaiety returned with added force. In all the many delicate parts of the Audante con moto there was a superb singing quality in the tonic effects. In other places majesty and sustained tones took predominance, but everywhere it was teeming with color. With the return of an Allegro movement the flowing vivacity of a lively dance could be felt, the ever present melody continuing to rise above everything else. Presto, the concluding part of the composition, made an intensely spirited ending, packed full and bubbling over with excitement. The program was as follows:

IDEALISM OF 1919 AGAIN TRIUMPHANT

Mr. George Creel Tells Forum Economic Exhaustion Forces Disarmament

ADVOCATES LEAGUE AS ONLY FINAL SOLUTION

'There Are No Large Navies—Only Comparative Strength Is of Any Avail'

"For two years we have been living in an era of triumphant materialism, but today actual economic exhaustion is forcing us to look for salvation to the very idealism which we rejected in 1919," declared Mr. George Creel, former chairman of the Committee on Public Information under President Wilson, before a well attended meeting of the Forum Monday evening in Jesup Hall. Mr. Creel, in addressing the first of the series of Forum meetings for the present year, in the course of which several other noted speakers will come to Williamstown, took for his subject "Disarmament."

"The third anniversary of Armistice Day gave cause for little of the rejoicing of the first," continued Mr. Creel. "Three years ago men had great dreams of a universal peace. When Wilson went abroad, the people throughout France and Germany worshipped him as they would have worshipped an idol. It was not a personal worship. It was because he represented a country which was strong enough to free them from their age old oppression, and which had declared its intention of doing so. But then that wonderful world spirit changed. It is idle to discuss the reasons for this change. We must now forget all reminiscences and all criticism and look ahead without parties and without politics."

"We have had two years of triumphant materialism. Idealism, seemed dead, but today it is again triumphant, and stern and hard necessity has done much in the triumph. Sixty-nine percent of all the national revenue at present is used to pay obligations ensuing from the war, whereas 15% is expended for public works, and 40% is sufficient for all the expenses of the government. Committee such as the Day committee, which are adopting measures for economy, which attempt to save money by seeing that government officials write on both sides of the paper, or buy ink a little cheaper, are futile. We could abolish the government, and save only 40% of the national revenue. What we need is a reduction of the expenses of war."

"Forced disarmament is today proving the salvation of Germany. She alone is permitted to concentrate her resources on the promotion of industry. All the other countries of the world are rushing to pre-

Novice Cross Country Race Won by Packard

Finishing over 200 yards in advance of a scattered line of entrants, Karl W. Packard '24 won the annual novice cross country race, held last Thursday afternoon over one half of the usual course, in the excellent time of 12 minutes and 28 seconds. R. Olson '24, A. Brayton '24, and C. W. Proctor '23 took second, third, and fourth places respectively.

Prizes for the first four places were donated by Spring Street merchants, and consisted of a Dunhill Pipe for first place, given by Cable Prindle, a gold and silver pencil for second, given by Quinn and Manley's, a necktie for third place, given by Nelson, Donin, and a pair of gold cuff links for fourth, given by Arthur Bastien. Sixteen men entered the race, which started in front of the Lassell Gymnasium and then led up Main Street, South Street, and back over the Taconic Golf Club course. The distance run was approximately two and a half miles over the route used by the varsity squad.

Packard was at no time pressed, maintaining the lead that he acquired at the start, and was not forced to exert himself at any point. The other three men who placed were likewise strong out with a distance of several hundred yards between each man, and finished in the same order that was taken at the start.

DR. HORTON ADDRESSES PHILOSOPHICAL UNION

'Psycho-Analysis' Subject of Talk by Boston Doctor Before Large Audience

Dr. Lydiard Horton '01, of Boston, addressed a meeting of the Philosophical Union last Monday evening in the Commons Room in Currier Hall on the subject "Psycho-Analysis." The attendance at the meeting numbered about one hundred persons, including several members of the faculty and some townspeople.

Dr. Horton, who is a specialist and practitioner well known in the eastern part of the state, has made an extensive study of the care and curing of mentally sick persons through analysis of the condition causing the disease and by taking the afflicted person into confidence in the nature of the ailment and thus obtaining his unwitting co-operation. This method is of recent development in medical circles but by this time has past the experimental stage and is acknowledged to be of merit by all who have made a study of it. An example of the way in which it is taken up, as given by the speaker, was of a man who was troubled with an advanced case of nervous twitching in the neck and shoulders. Dr. Horton studied the origin and cause of the trouble in conjunction with the patient, and in time a conclusion regarding its nature was reached by which he was able to treat and cure it.

In the course of his talk, Dr. Horton took up the topic of dreams and their meaning as well as their importance and influence. Several typical dreams were given and discussed, and interpretations were given of a nature that concurred with the discoveries of the Psycho-Analysts. The last hour of the meeting was given up to an open discussion engaged in by several of the faculty members and students regarding the merits of the field opened up by Dr. Horton.

To Discuss Greek Music

Mr. Sumner Salter will speak on "Classical Greek Music" at the second meeting of the Classical Society to be held next Monday evening at 8:00 p. m. in the Chapel Choir Room. He will also give several selections of Greek music on the bassoon and flute, while solos will be sung by Mrs. Howes and Muechenhaupt '22. The meeting will be open to the college.

St. John's Society to Meet Tuesday Evening

The Rev. Edward M. Thurlow of Williamstown will speak at the first meeting of the St. John's Society which will be held in Jesup Hall next Tuesday evening at 7:30 p. m. For his topic Mr. Thurlow has chosen "Some Recent Student Movements in China." In the course of his address the speaker will outline the so-called Renaissance movement among the younger student class in China as well as the student strike which was directed recently against the action of some pro-Japanese officials. An opportunity for open discussion will be offered after the talk.

In the course of the meeting the annual election of officers will also be held, and plans for the reorganization of the society along more definite lines of activity will be considered. Membership in the society is open to all undergraduates who are members of the Episcopal Church regardless of whether they attend Sunday services at the local church.

LUTIST APPLAUDED BY LARGE AUDIENCE

Thomas Wilfred's Recital of Folk Songs and Old Lute Music Most Artistic

INTERPRETATION SKILLFUL
Attractive Program Is Presented in First Entertainment of Thompson Course

Warmly applauded by a large and appreciative audience which filled Jesup Hall to the limit, Thomas Wilfred presented his recital of folk songs and old lute music last Thursday evening.

Artistic and yet vitally realistic and convincing in its presentation, Mr. Wilfred's concert earned his audience at times to the gloomy period of the Middle Ages and at times to the merry age of Queen Elizabeth. At no time was the musical part of the songs thrust to the foreground; it was always the spirit and feelings of the period portrayed with such a deep understanding and such a masterful ability that even one with the most barren imagination could scarce have failed to see real living people acting before his eyes.

Criticism of the various songs can contain nothing but praise, and the arrangement of the program which cleverly interrupted drama and seriousness with bursts of joy and cheer, calls for the greatest commendation. In the "Sumer Is Icomen in" written by a monk John Fornsete in 1225, which opened the concert, is seen the first traces of the employment of counterpoint in musical composition. Mr. Wilfred sang it so beautifully that the roughness and crudity added rather than detracted from its charm. "Come Lasses and Lads," the next number, is an Elizabethan dance tune which shows the picture of a May Dance in the woods in which all the young people of the countryside are joining. It has a cheerfulness and gaiety which, as interpreted by Mr. Wilfred, was truly contagious. "Ye Golden Vanities" the last song of this group, was without doubt the chef-d'oeuvre of the program from an artistic viewpoint. In dramatic and powerful style it tells an incident supposed to have happened in the travels of Sir Walter Raleigh. To characterize it in fewest words, it was graphic and stirring.

For a bit of lightness to relieve the tension of "Ye Golden Vanities," came two lute solos, Mozart's Minuet from the "Suite in E Flat" and a Scandinavian gavotte. In the Danish Fourteenth Century songs which followed, "Agnete and the Merman" is based on the old story of a mythical heathen who lives somewhere

ALUMNUS TO DELIVER ILLUSTRATED ADDRESS

Mr. Adolos Allen '87 Will Talk on Athens and Constantinople Before Forum

"Athens and Constantinople" is the subject of a talk to be given by Mr. Adolos Allen '87 of Stamford, Conn., Monday evening at 7:30 in Jesup Hall under auspices of the Forum. Mr. Allen is widely known as a traveler and lecturer, and his talk will be profusely illustrated with stereopticon views upon his topic.

Having recently returned from an extended tour through Greece and the Orient as an experienced traveler, careful observer and student of history, Mr. Allen is prepared to give illustrated lectures descriptive of these places of unique scenes, of sacred and historic associations. The speaker has lectured in this same connection under the Board of Education of New York City, also in the Philadelphia University Extension Course and in the Miss Spence School, New York City. The lecture to be given here consists of many beautiful slides of the historic buildings, temples and monuments of Athens and Constantinople, each of which will be explained by Mr. Allen.

Mr. Allen is a Williams man, having graduated with the class of 1878 and returned to receive his M. A. degree in 1887. While in College, Mr. Allen was vice-president of the Mills Young Men's Christian Association, a member of the Philotechnian Society and the Gasterodopa baseball team. After his graduation Mr. Allen entered the ministry and has been active in the cause of social betterment at Washington, D. C., Reading, Pa. and Cranbury, N. J. At Reading he founded the Young Men's Christian Association and the Law and Order Society, in addition to serving as pastor of several churches.

Alumnus to Preach Tomorrow

The Reverend George L. Richardson, D.D., '88, rector of the Diocesan Church of Saint Mary, of Philadelphia, Pa., will conduct the morning service in the Thompson Memorial Chapel tomorrow. Dr. Richardson will also speak at the regular W. C. A. meeting in Jesup Hall tomorrow evening at 7:30 p. m., his subject being "Student Problems of Faith, are They Real?" After graduating from Williams in the class of 1888, Dr. Richardson attended the Seabury Theological Seminary at Saint Paul, Minn., where he was ordained an Episcopal Minister. In 1918 Williams conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

TEAM FACES RED AND BLACK TODAY

Wesleyan Eleven Lost to Columbia and Union—Tied Amherst by 3-3 Score

WILLIAMS FAVORITE ON WESLEYAN FIELD

Purple Will Start Line-Up That Defeated Amherst—Drilled in Fundamentals

Ready for the final test of the year, the Williams eleven will line up against Wesleyan on Andrus Field, Middletown, Conn., at 2:30 this afternoon, in the 30th game played between the two colleges since the opening of relations in 1884. Although favored to win on the basis of comparative scores, Coach Wendell's men are expecting stiff opposition from the Red and Black, which has not lost to Williams on its own field since 1911.

Football critics make Williams their favorite in today's game, chiefly because of the showing made by both teams against common opponents to date. Columbia, which fell by a 20-0 score before the Purple, defeated Wesleyan 14-3. Amherst divided honors with the Red and Black by a 3-3 count, and the following week Williams decisively upset Amherst on Weston Field by the score of 20-0. Union, fell a 44-0 victim before the Williams attack, but succeeded in wresting a 7-0 victory from Wesleyan last Saturday.

Wesleyan has been able to win only one game thus far, and has tied three and lost three. The opening game of the season against Stevens Tech. resulted in victory for the Red and Black by a 13-0 score, straight line-plunging and trick plays turning the tide against the Engineers after they had held Wesleyan scoreless in the first half. Columbia overcame the Middletown team on a wet field by the score of 14-3, largely because of the inability of the light backfield to get started against the Columbia line. In the third game Wesleyan lost to Boston University after a hard fight, the score standing 7-0. This was the first defeat suffered by the Red and Black on Andrus Field in three years.

Wesleyan played tie games with N. Y. U., Tufts, and Amherst on three successive Saturdays, the scores being 7-7, 14-14, and 3-3 respectively. N. Y. U. was saved from defeat by a touchdown in the last period, and Tufts came from behind in the last quarter, scoring two touchdowns in rapid succession and missing a third by two yards as the game ended. Although outplayed by Amherst in the annual game between the two colleges, the Wesleyan defense prevented the Purple and White from crossing its goal line, and each team was held to a single field goal. Scriggins put Wesleyan in the lead in the third quarter with a 45-yard kick, but Elliott's placement kick from the 46-yard line tied the score at 3-3.

Union won an unexpected victory from the Red and Black by a 7-0 score last Saturday, Heidorf, the Garnet quarterback, carrying the ball over the line in a last-minute rally. Wesleyan was clearly outplayed by Union, although its defense was hard to penetrate.

Handicapped by the return of only three regulars of last year's eleven, Head Coach Fauver of Wesleyan has nevertheless developed a fast, hard-fighting team. Lack of experience has been the chief difficulty confronting the Middletown team during the season. In weight the Wesleyan and Williams teams are practically even. Scriggins, the Red and Black full-

"An Ounce of Prevention"

"I didn't think" is an expression so easy to say and yet so ineffectual after any emergency. Thoughtlessness is always deplorable and particularly so when the interests of many others are involved.

Of late there have been unmistakable evidences found in the libraries that men are sometimes smoking there. We wonder if those "single drugs" are ever accompanied by a thought of the risk involved.
Aside from the violation of the regulation that forbids smoking in public buildings, there is grave danger that the slow accumulation of years may be destroyed in a brief hour's time. In the older buildings, such as Lawrence Hall, a small flame kindled would sweep the structure in no time, and the present methods of fire-prevention would be utterly inadequate.
While we are awaiting the completion of our new, fire-proof repository, there is particular need for increased thoughtfulness and care. Safety first!

Efficient Managing

Not long ago a wave of sentiment was sweeping the campus against the practice of electing as manager the most "popular man" in the competition. Today the inevitable reaction is setting in, and one hears frequent comments to the effect that the hardest working slave is not ipso facto
the best manager, but that prestige, affability, and numerous other indefinable qualities do play some part even in securing efficiency.

Obviously, the ability to get along with the members of the team and others with the minimum of friction is a highly desirable quality in any manager. Yet the manager running the competition is unable to show in percentages any such qualities possessed by his competitors.
"Extra work," "field work," etc., are fixed mathematical percentages, and it is nearly impossible to rate a hard working competitor in "efficiency" because he does not mix well. The same is true of other qualities.

The chief fault with the present system seems to lie in the presentation of cold figures by the manager to each Sophomore class. The personal element is lacking in the case of the manager and is overemphasized in the case of the class.
Either the class conducts a popularity contest or else blindly follows the cold percentages which the manager himself may believe do not express the true value of the different candidates. No opportunity is given for personal explanation and calm consideration.

A plan recently presented before the Student Council demands consideration through its efforts to eliminate these unfortunate features and at the same time retain the benefits of the present method of electing. The plan, in brief, calls for competitions run as at present. At the end of the competitions, however, the manager, assistant manager, and captain of the sport in question will present their recommendations to the Athletic Council, together with a personal estimate of the abilities of the respective competitors.

The Athletic Council will recommend either two or three men in order of estimated merit for the undergraduate body to ballot upon.

The advantages of the suggested system lie in the fact that careful consideration is ensured by referring the percentages to a diversified, representative body which has the athletic interests of Williams thoroughly at heart. Consultation with the men most intimately in touch with the competitors will give the Council a fair basis for judgment. The elections continue to be College elections in the final analysis, and will retain the prestige that they deserve on that basis. The system is yet to be found which will be perfect in practice, but the amendment contemplated would seem to be a forward step in the right direction.

Sportsmanlike Losers

"All hail to the victors! The Williams football team and Williams' sportsmanship alike have our sincere praise. It would, of course, have suited us much better if the score had been reversed, but the ways of the gods are obscure and there is no grudge felt when the opponent is so keen but friendly a rival.

"Only four other classic football games in the country date back farther than the Williams-Amherst series. For 39 games, Williams men and Amherst met, have struggled fiercely for victory. First one team and then the other has been successful. But the winner never boasts nor does the loser ever complain."

Idealism of 1919 Again Triumphant

pare for another war, while German merchants flood them with German goods.
Germany does not pay as much for reparation as England or the United States are expending for armament. Expenses for armament are sucking the life out of France and Italy, and are proving an untold burden to Japan.

"Materialism is thus forced to face world exhaustion, world famine, world disappointment. We are driven back to the idealism we rejected by cold facts.
There is no such thing as a strong navy.
You might as well talk of a long stick or a big stone. It is all comparative. You can only have a strong navy if other nations consent to have weak navies. The idea of preparedness as a matter of insurance is a thing of the past. Inventors today can perfect explosives or gases which in a single night destroy the work of years. Battleships today are obsolete almost before they strike the water, for before they are launched we are planning new ones. We are throwing billions of dollars into a quicksand.

"Three years ago we turned away from the horror of it all. Today we are turning away from its futility. That is the reason for the present disarmament conference.
Wherever people gather in this country
they are demanding action and lots of it.
They demand that all naval programs be suspended. The sheer weight of public opinion so strongly expressed in the last two months was the force which compelled the proposition made by Secretary Hughes before the Disarmament Conference at Washington. It has been a great victory for public opinion, which swept aside official indifference at Washington. But the fight is not yet won. One thing must still be gained: to have all sessions of the Conference open, and all records published."

Mr. Creel then discussed the "mysterious" Pacific and far-Eastern question, which he said amounted to no more than the question of the pillaging of China by the great world powers, which has been going on since 1842. In a manner which delighted his audience for its lively humor
Mr. Creel traced the successive steps by which the powers have taken piece after piece of its territory. Another question which will be presented before the conference is the Chinese question—the proposition that all these powers get out of China once and for all, leaving her her own sovereign.

"The conference has started out nobly," Mr. Creel went on. "But even assuming that the question of naval disarmament and the Chinese question be definitely settled, we have not even begun to touch upon the question of land disarmament nor on the question of world peace. The membership of the conference is too limited for that. It consists now only of the five leading powers—The United States, England, Japan, France, and Italy. A Conference for world peace must contain representatives of all civilized nations.
And so when this conference is over, even assuming that it accomplishes all that it is humanly possible to accomplish, we will find ourselves back again exactly where we were in 1919 at Paris. I pray God that President Harding may have the courage to recognize this, and to lead us once and for all into what is the final solution to the problem, a League of Nations."

After the close of Mr. Creel's speech he answered many questions on topics having to do with things he had touched in it, chief interest centering on the Chinese question, and on the effect of naval disarmament on the different powers involved.

THAT'S OUR IDEA in making CAMELS—the Quality Cigarette.

Why, just buy Camels and look at the package!
It's the best packing science has devised to keep cigarettes fresh and full flavored for your taste.
Heavy paper outside—secure foil wrapping inside and the revenue stamp over the end to seal the pack-

And note this! There's nothing flashy about the Camel package. No extra wrappings that do not improve the smoke. Not a cent of needless expense that must come out of the quality of the tobacco.

Camels wonderful and exclusive Quality wins on back, has been the star of the team. His drop-kicking ability saved his team from defeat at Amherst, and will be a constant threat against the Purple this afternoon. Captain Butler and King are the best set of ends Wesleyan has possessed in ten years, and Parsons and Fricke in the backfield, and Foster at center, have played excellent games all the season.

The same Williams line-up that started against Amherst will oppose Wesleyan in today's contest. Coach Wendell has laid special emphasis on fundamentals in the work of the past week, devoting a part of practice every day to tackling, falling on the ball, charging, breaking through the line, and dummy scrimmage. The coach gave a blackboard talk to the squad on Monday, pointing out the faults in the game with Amherst. Practice on Tuesday was confined to dummy scrimmage and light signal drill, and on Wednesday the team went through the rudiments of the game. The only scrimmage of the week took place Thursday against the freshmen eleven, and this was followed by cheering practice and the annual bonfire marking the last official practice of the season. After a light drill yesterday afternoon, the squad of 22 men besides coaches, trainers, and managers left for the Hotel Bond, Hartford, Conn., the headquarters of the team before the game.

Wesleyan will rely largely on a strong defense to offset the superior ability and longer experience of the Purple. Supporters of the Red and Black are pinning their faith to the local "jinx" which vanquished Williams by the score of 16-0 in the last game played on Amherst Field, in 1919.

The probable line-ups of the two teams follow:

Laws	Smith
Robinson	Green
Boynton	Foster
Jones	Pyne
Fargo	LaGanke

THE WILLIAMS RECORD
"First in the College Field"

Rotogravure supplements in the metropolitan field have reached a high stage of development. In the college field they are a new departure, but the many advantages which this method of beautifying pictures combines fully warrants, we believe, its introduction into the realms of spires and gargoyles. These supplements, issued at the important buying periods of the college year, enjoy increased reader interest and a circulation treble that of the regular edition.

Enthusiastically received by an audience well sprinkled with undergraduates which packed Grace Hall to the doors, the Flonzaley Quartet gave its tenth recital last Sunday afternoon.

It was a concert by four masters, each one, however, playing as a part of a perfectly harmonious unit. In spite of the extreme refinement of technique, the mechanical part of the music never obtruded itself, but was entirely in the background. DISARMAMENT OF CREEL'S ADDRESS

Former Chairman of U. S. Public Information Committee is Before Forum

Nov. 14—George Creel, formerly chairman of the United States Committee on Public Information during the Great War, will speak on "World Disarmament" before the Forum at 7:30 p. m. this evening in Jesup Hall. This will be the first meeting this year of the series annually arranged by the Forum in the interests of the College.

Mr. Creel performed a service of world-wide importance as chairman of the committee which carried on such an extensive advertising campaign during the war. In a recent letter Mr. Creel tells of some of the work the committee accomplished:

"Our job was to make the fight for public opinion, both at home and abroad. In the United States we worked through motion pictures, through posters prepared by the mobilized artists of America, through great war expositions, through pamphlets prepared in co-operation with 3000 picked historians, through the syndicated articles of the leading novelists and essayists, through loyalty leagues that went to the very heart of 33 foreign language groups, and a score of other ways."

"Our offices were in every capital in the world outside of the Central Powers. Each day we sent to our representatives from 3000 to 5000 words by wireless and cable for use in the foreign press. These representatives were supplied with motion pictures, with posters, with literature, with speakers, and with window displays."

DR. HARRY P. JUDSON RECEIVES HIGH HONOR

Williams Alumnus Elected Head of American University Union for Coming Year

Harry Pratt Judson '70, President of the University of Chicago, has been elected head of the American University Union in Europe for the coming year, and in this position will direct the united effort of 50 leading American universities and colleges in their attempt to bring European and American institutions of learning into closer contact with one another.

With "clearing houses" of scholarship and administration soon to be established in New York, London, and Paris, the Union plans to use its influence in clarifying the international educational problems which are constantly arising. It will also appoint representatives in American institutions to aid foreign students in these places.

Associated with Dr. Judson, and constituting the administrative board of the Union are Presidents Hibben of Princeton, Lowell of Harvard, and Shunklin of Wesleyan, Professor Cumfrie of Columbia, Dr. Anson T. Stokes of Yale, and Henry R. Johnson of Princeton. Among those whose approval to the work of the Union is sought are President Harding, and many other prominent figures.

Press Comments Agree on Effectiveness of Aerial Attack in Amherst Game

'WILLIAMS AT TOP FORM'

'Amherst Showed Plucky Defense at Times But Was No Match for Purple'—'Post'

Comments on the Williams-Amherst football game last Saturday agree on the decisiveness of the contest and the all-around strength of the Purple team. The success of Williams' aerial attack despite the muddy condition of the field is emphasized in each press account of the game.

To quote the Boston Post, "The visitors were thoroughly outplayed, and besides being pushed back for three touchdowns, they were never dangerous themselves as a scoring proposition. . . . Amherst showed a plucky defense at times but was no match for the Purple as a team. . . . Williams did not lose much time in demonstrating the power of its attack."

The Boston Advertiser made the following remarks on the comparative showing of the rival eleven: "The home team was at top form in all departments of the game while Amherst's showing was a disappointment to its followers. Mallon ran the Williams team in fine style and also featured in broken field running. Richmond was a reliable man carrying the leather from scrimmage, while Boynton, Fargo and Pease starred on the line.

According to the Boston Globe the outcome was never in doubt. "It was a clean-cut victory for Percy Wendell's men, who outclassed their ancient foe in all departments, of the game except in that of punting, in which Elliot held his own with Monjo, the home team's crack kicker. . . . The game was played on a sloppy field, but this did not prevent Williams from working an aerial attack which Amherst was at a loss to solve for a time. . . . Mallon, the Purple's quarterback, figured in some pretty open field running in returning kicks, which offset these boots to a certain extent, while the Williams ends covered Monjo's punts in telling style. . . . Mallon and Richmond were both star performers in the backfield for Williams. . . . Richmond was perhaps the most consistent ground gainer for Williams after he entered the line-up, but Wilson and Burger were also reliable men in taking the pigskin. . . . On the line Capt. Fargo was a tower of strength, while Boynton and Pease also acquitted themselves with glory for the Purple. . . . Despite the unfavorable weather one of the greatest crowds in recent years turned out to see the battle."

Over 70 members of the faculty and friends of the college attended a banquet given at the Commons Rooms last Friday evening in honor of Professor Droppers, in recognition of the services he rendered to this country during the war while minister to Greece.

Professor Muxey acted as toastmaster and addresses were made by President Garfield and Professor Wild. The former spoke of the excellent manner in which affairs were handled for other nations as well as for the United States by Mr. Droppers, while diplomatic relations were uncertain and complex. Professor Wild expressed the good fortune of the country at having a man of Professor Droppers' education and ability in a post of importance and responsibility at so critical a time.

NOTED LUTE PLAYER TO APPEAR THURSDAY

Mr. Thomas Wilfred Will Present His Famous Program of Old Songs and Ballads

OPENS THOMPSON COURSE

Foreign Musician is Called the Reincarnation of Ancient Troubadours

Presenting a program of songs and musical selections well varied both in language and period of composition, Mr. Thomas Wilfred, a notable foreign singer and musician, will appear next Thursday evening at 8:15 p. m. in Jesup Hall, in the first number of the 1921-1922 series of the annual Thompson Educational Course in Entertainments. Mr. Wilfred has recently gained great distinction in the musical world for bringing back the ancient lute, the instrument of the old French troubadours, and has succeeded in learning the delicate art of playing this properly and stirringly.

Thomas Wilfred's voice is full and richly-colored, and it is for the purpose of accompanying his old folk songs and ballads of all countries that he uses his twelve-stringed lute. This instrument is exceedingly long, is over two hundred years old, and gives forth a tone and sound very much like that of a harp. He has patiently learned to master this old and forgotten instrument, and much of his music has been gathered from dusty and yellow manuscripts written in tablatute and hidden in museums. American artists claim that Mr. Wilfred is a veritable reincarnation of the French and Venetian troubadour of the sixteenth and seventeenth century, who wanders from country to country with his lute swung over his neck by a scarf, and who recited the brave deeds of heroes, and songs of war and love. This type of musical program is distinctly an innovation, and it is probable that very few people have ever heard a lute played.

VICTORY IS DECISIVE

Purple Line Opens Up Big Holes and Fast Backfield Gains Consistently

PASSES PLAY LARGE PART

Brilliant work on the part of the powerful Williams line, which tore up the Amherst defense and opened huge holes through which the fast, hard plunging backs were able to gain consistently, was the largest single factor in the crushing 20-0 defeat administered by the Purple to its old rival last Saturday afternoon on Weston Field. Williams outgamed and outplayed Amherst throughout the game, and the muddy field alone prevented a larger score.

The victory of the Williams team was even more decisive than the score would indicate. At no time during the entire game was the ball put in play behind the Williams 25-yard line, while Amherst never had possession of the ball beyond its own 45-yard line. Williams scored three times. On two other occasions the Purple carried the ball to the Amherst five-yard line, and twice more had possession of the pigskin inside the Amherst 15-yard line. Five times Mallon attempted drop kicks, but owing to the heaviness of the ball and the muddy field he was unable to get his kicks off the ground. The ball three times rolled over the goal line and twice was blocked by Amherst linemen.

The overwhelming superiority of the Williams team is indicated by the statistics of the game. Williams made 15 first downs by rushing and three more by the aerial route as compared to a total of three for Amherst. Williams gained a total of 288 yards by rushing, 105 yards by forward passes and 131 yards by running back kicks, while Amherst was able to gain only 42 yards by rushing, 40 yards by running back kicks, and did not complete a single forward pass. In kicking alone was the Purple and White superior. Monjo's punts did not gain as consistently as usual, many of them rolling offside after 20 or 30 yards, for an average distance of 29.6 yards, while Elliot succeeded in averaging 34.8 yards.

Two long forward passes from Mallon to Pease similar to that on which the first touchdown was made at Columbia twice placed Williams in a position to score. The other score came after the Williams team had made an irresistible march from its own 45-yard line to the Amherst goal line, in which the Amherst defense was torn to pieces. One of the most sensational plays of the game took place in the pass which paved the way for the first score. Mallon tossed a long pass to Healy, who jumped for it at the same time as did an Amherst defense man. The ball was knocked into the air, and Pease picked it up before it had touched the ground and reached the four-yard line before he was downed.

THE WILLIAMS RECORD
"First in the College Field"

Rotogravure supplements in the metropolitan field have reached a high stage of development. In the college field they are a new departure, but the many advantages which this method of beautifying pictures combines fully warrants, we believe, its introduction into the realms of spires and gargoyles.

These supplements, issued at the important buying periods of the college year, enjoy increased reader interest and a circulation treble that of the regular edition.

GREET FLONZALEY QUARTET WARMLY

Renowned Players Render Tenth Concert Through Generosity of Mr. Delano

PROGRAM FEATURED BY WORK OF OLD MASTERS

Beethoven and Mozart Numbers Much Appreciated by Grace Hall Audience

Enthusiastically received by an audience well sprinkled with undergraduates which packed Grace Hall to the doors, the Flonzaley Quartet gave its tenth recital last Sunday afternoon.

It was a concert by four masters, each one, however, playing as a part of a perfectly harmonious unit. In spite of the extreme refinement of technique, the mechanical part of the music never obtruded itself, but was entirely in the background. This, in view of the fact that the very composition of a stringed quartet forbids the subduing and blending influence of a piano or an organ, is nothing short of remarkable. Furthermore there seemed to be no field in which the quartet did not appear to be extremely able. Whether the passage suggested majesty, excitement, or peacefulness it was played with a feeling intensely musical and masterful.

Mozart's "Quartet in D Major (K. 499)," the opening number, presented a field of great breadth to the musicians. Hardly any other composition shows to better extent the deep understanding of the great German master in either the light or the serious realms of musical composition. The Allegretto with its wave-like swelling and receding tones was delightfully smooth and flowing, and in the most delicate passages the power of interpretation of the quartet was at its highest. One could easily visualize in the Minuetto movement which followed, the swaying figures bowing and courtesying in the intricate figures of the dignified and courtly dance of times gone by. The Adagio was both plaintive and majestic, its lively parts standing in marked contrast to a generally dreamy and meditative theme. In conclusion the Allegro was light and fantastic, yet rich within. It portrayed joyousness of a conservative, rather than of a reckless nature.

DISARMAMENT TOPIC OF CREEL'S ADDRESS

Former Chairman of U. S. Public Information Committee is Before Forum

Nov. 14—George Creel, formerly chairman of the United States Committee on Public Information during the Great War, will speak on "World Disarmament" before the Forum at 7.30 p. m. this evening in Jesup Hall. This will be the first meeting this year of the series annually arranged by the Forum in the interests of the College.

Mr. Creel performed a service of world-wide importance as chairman of the committee which carried on such an extensive advertising campaign during the war. In a recent letter Mr. Creel tells of some of the work the committee accomplished:

"Our job was to make the fight for public opinion, both at home and abroad. In the United States we worked through motion pictures, through posters prepared by the mobilized artists of America, through great war expositions, through pamphlets prepared in co-operation with 3000 picked historians, through the syndicated articles of the leading novelists and essayists, through loyalty leagues that went to the very heart of 33 foreign language groups, and a score of other ways. "Our offices were in every capital in the world outside of the Central Powers. Each day we sent to our representatives from 3000 to 5000 words by wireless and cable for use in the foreign press. These representatives were supplied with motion pictures, with posters, with literature, with speakers, and with window displays.

DR. HARRY P. JUDSON RECEIVES HIGH HONOR

Williams Alumnus Elected Head of American University Union for Coming Year

Harry Pratt Judson '70, President of the University of Chicago, has been elected head of the American University Union in Europe for the coming year, and in this position will direct the united effort of 50 leading American universities and colleges in their attempt to bring European and American institutions of learning into closer contact with one another.

With "clearing houses" of scholarship and administration soon to be established in New York, London, and Paris, the Union plans to use its influence in clarifying the international educational problems which are constantly arising. It will also appoint representatives in American institutions to aid foreign students in these places.

Associated with Dr. Judson, and constituting the administrative board of the Union are Presidents Hibben of Princeton, Lowell of Harvard, and Shanklin of Wesleyan, Professor Cunliffe of Columbia, Dr. Anson T. Stokes of Yale, and Henry B. Thompson of Princeton. Among those who have lent their approval to the work of the institution are President Harding, Viscount Bryce, President Millerand and Ambassadors, Whitlock, Harvey, and Child.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM TAKES SEVENTH PLACE

Maine Harriers Win New England Intercollegiate Title in Boston Meet

HART OF BOWDOIN FIRST

Fasce Leads Purple Runners, Finishing 14th—Winner's Time Is 28:28 1-2

Williams was unable to gain more than seventh place in the annual New England Intercollegiate cross-country meet held last Saturday afternoon over the Franklin Park course at Boston. Contrary to expectations, the University of Maine harriers won the race, nosing out M. I. T., and Bates, which were expected to fight it out for first place.

Not only was the victory of Maine unexpected, but the individual triumph of W. S. Hart of Bowdoin was also a surprise to the spectators. Hart led the field of 80 runners over the five-mile course in the fast time of 28 minutes 28 1-2 seconds, finishing 200 yards ahead of Raymond Buker of Bates, last year's New England champion. Doherty of Tufts was third.

Fasce, as usual, was the first Williams runner to cross the finish line. He came in in the 14th position, immediately behind Kimball, the second Bates man to finish. Swan completed the course in 21st place, and the remaining Williams men finished in the following order: Fitch, 32nd, Merriam, 41st, Captain Adams, 59th, Webb, 69th, and Seaman, 71st. Sanford hurt his leg during the race and was forced to drop out before the finish.

Sanborn of M. I. T. took the lead at the start of the race and held it for almost a mile, when he was overtaken by Hart of Bowdoin. No Williams runner was among the contenders for the lead. Closely following Hart at the two-mile mark were Doherty, Sanborn, Flanders and Hendrie of Tufts, Buker of Bates, and Mercer of Colby. These men set a remarkably fast pace over the rough course, which lay over plowed land, turf, and wood roads. Seven

The 1924 men will practice every night this week in the cage.

Press Comments Agree on Effectiveness of Aerial Attack in Amherst Game

'WILLIAMS AT TOP FORM'

'Amherst Showed Plucky Defense at Times But Was No Match for Purple'—'Post'

Comments on the Williams-Amherst football game last Saturday agree on the decisiveness of the contest and the all-around strength of the Purple team. The success of Williams' aerial attack despite the muddy condition of the field is emphasized in each press account of the game.

To quote the Boston Post, "The visitors were thoroughly outplayed, and besides being pushed back for three touchdowns, they were never dangerous themselves as a scoring proposition. . . . Amherst showed a plucky defense at times but was no match for the Purple as a team. . . . Williams did not lose much time in demonstrating the power of its attack."

The Boston Advertiser made the following remarks on the comparative showing of the rival elevens: "The home team was at top form in all departments of the game while Amherst's showing was a disappointment to its followers. Mallon ran the Williams team in fine style and also featured in broken field running. Richmond was a reliable man carrying the leather from scrimmage, while Boynton, Fargo and Pease starred on the line.

According to the Boston Globe the outcome was never in doubt. "It was a clean-cut victory for Percy Wendell's men, who outclassed their ancient foe in all departments, of the game except in that of punting, in which Elliot held his own with Monjo, the home team's crack kicker. . . . The game was played on a sloppy field, but this did not prevent Williams from executing an aerial attack which Amherst was at a loss to solve for a time. . . . Mallon, the Purple's quarterback, figured in some pretty open field running in returning kicks, which offset these boots to a certain extent, while the Williams ends covered Monjo's punts in telling style.

Mallon and Richmond were both star performers in the backfield for Williams. . . . Richmond was perhaps the most consistent ground gainer for Williams after he entered the line-up, but Wilson and Burger were also reliable men in taking the pigskin. . . . On the line Capt. Fargo was a tower of strength, while Boynton and Pease also acquitted themselves with glory for the Purple.

Despite the unfavorable weather one of the greatest crowds in recent years turned out to see the battle."

The Springfield Republican is loud in its praise of the Purple team: "Percy Wendell presented a vastly better eleven than could

Foreign Musician is Called the Reincarnation of Ancient Troubadours

Presenting a program of songs and musical selections well varied both in language and period of composition, Mr. Thomas Wilfred, a notable foreign singer and musician, will appear next Thursday evening at 8.15 p. m. in Jesup Hall, in the first number of the 1921-1922 series of the annual Thompson Educational Course in Entertainments. 'Bon Voyage'!

Next Saturday Dr. and Mrs. Garfield
sail for a two month's vacation in southern Europe. Many arduous duties devolved
upon the President in his official capacity
as head of the Institute of Politics last summer, and the rest from irksome duties
is a well-merited one. Plans regarding the personnel of the next Institute are well
under way, and it is expected that this trip
will do much toward perfecting them.
THE RECORD but voices the sentiment of
the student body in wishing President
Garfield a most enjoyable and fruitful vacation, profitable to him and the College
alike.

Every project of student interest that has been advanced by the Student Council or other undergraduate bodies this year
has received careful consideration from the President of the College. He has shown a gratifying willingness to meet student undertakings more than half way, and he has thrown the weight of his influence toward securing similar cooperation from the other members of the Administrative Committee and the Faculty. Professor Maxey, who will serve as acting president during the next two months, has been likewise
in close touch and sympathy with this attitude toward the student body, and we are confident that the remainder of the year will see the bonds of cooperation between Administration and students drawn tighter and tighter.

Wesleyan Yet Remains

Judging by the time-honored criterion
of victory or defeat in the Amherst game, Williams men are beginning to stamp the
football season with the word "success."
There is cause for pride and satisfaction in
the crushing of Amherst on Saturday, for Amherst is never an easy foe, and the score and statistics of the game leave no
doubt as to the relative caliber of the two teams. Nevertheless, in the hour of victory it behooves us to look ahead without illusions to the next task. We still have to beat Wesleyan.

After the defeat of the Red and Black at
the supposedly helpless hands of Union,
Williams is prone to view the coming conflict with excessive confidence. We strongly suspect that over-confidence had much to do with Wesleyan's undoing at Schenectady. Williams teams have more than once been rudely awakened after counting the game won a week in advance.
Confidence in the ability of the team to

conquer Wesleyan is proper, but it should be kept within reasonable bounds.

We have every reason to put faith in
the coaches and trainer and the team.
Coach Wendell has skillfully succeeded in bringing the team to its best form at the right time, instead of showing a premature flash and then dying feebly in the all-important games. The exhibition of offensive and defensive line play against Amherst is a testimonial to both Wendell and Lawson, for they have developed a high degree of coordination between line
and backfield, instead of placing the brunt
of the work on one department. That
the team has trained faithfully is evident
from its display of stamina in Saturday's
hard struggle.

Confidence without over-confidence
should be the attitude of the student body toward the final game of the year. Full attendance and active support should indicate our confidence. But until the body of Wesleyan is laid beside the corpse
of Amherst we can only consider the season as good, and not yet successful.

In Prospect

Early this starts its week the Forum
year's program of intellectual stimuli.
The sessions of this body in the past have accomplished much in the way of initiating mental activity on the campus. They should form only a starting point for discussions, but as such they perform a very important function.

The program for the present year, which already includes such men as George Creel,
Glenn Plumb, Bainbridge Colby, and Raymond Robbins, promises much to
those already looking ahead to the intel-

WESLEYAN DEFEATED 7-0 IN LAST QUARTER

Union Springs Surprise by Scoring Victory Over Williams'
Final Opponent

After losing four successive contests,
including its 44-0 defeat at the hands of the Williams team on November 5, the Union eleven, by a last-quarter attack,
succeeded in overcoming Wesleyan 7-0 last Saturday at Schenectady. Union's open
offense gained 62 yards in three plays, Heidorf, the Garnet quarterback, skirting
left end for the touchdown.

Although the Methodist team was favored to win easily, it was unable to get going
on the slippery field and was outplayed in all departments of the game. Twice Wesleyan reached the 20-yard line of its opponent, but there Union held, and Scrig-
gins' two attempts at drop-kicks from that point fell far short.

After three periods of scoreless playing,
Union received the ball on its 38-yard line.
On a delayed end run Heidorf made 39
yards; then on a fake line buck he threw
a short pass to Rich, who ran for 25 yards before being downed. The third play of this strong attack was a left end run by Heidorf across the goal line, Heidorf also
kicking the goal.

Preliminary Trials Held

Preliminary trials for the debating team
to meet Amherst and Wesleyan in the annual triangular debate on December 9
were held yesterday afternoon in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. As announced in a former issue of THE RECORD, the subject of the triangular debate will concern the disarmament question now being discussed
at the Washington conference, but the specific question will not be made public until 36 hours before the time of the debate.

NOVEMBER 'GRAPHIC' REVIEWED BY CRITIC

Characterized as Promising But Deficient in Literary Atmosphere

(Courtesy of A. H. M.)

The Graphic for November continues to be rich in illustrations and advertisements.
Football predominates suitably to the season. There are attractive photographs
of landscapes, fraternity freshman delegations, campus celebrities, and the like, of interest to the present and of future historical interest to the generations following. Some of them are sandwiched between the literary contributions, and some inserted in stories to which they have no
reference. This last is somewhat unfortunate. It reminds one of the artful com-mingling of fiction and advertisements in popular magazines, though it may be that here the illustrations act as a lure to the reluctant reader.

European Vignettes is sprightly and entertaining, the author showing appreciation of beauty in landscape and villa, as well as an eye for detail. There is opportunity for the blue pencil of a critic, but the author might have used it himself with a little careful proof-reading. "Italy seems to have been the source of much that is fine" is a statement unduly cautious.

Mr. Britton's Epicurus is unworthy of the name, for the true Epicurus would have felt no envy at civilized comfort as depicted in the poem, nor would he have made any reference to the future life in which he disbelieved. No, the covetous poet is a would-be Sybarite out of funds, to whom the ancient Greek would have given
some wholesome advice.

The freshman's first impressions of our college town are amusing and lively, and,
as is natural, somewhat fresh. When he gets his print of the "Coliseum," he should donate it to the classical department as something new in archaeology.

Mr. MacMaster's story would seem more convincing if he had called it a dream.
Things happen that way in dreams, and do not surprise us at the time, though they do later. Conceding that, the tale is not badly told.

Mr. Moody's sonnet is musical and mystic, very simple, but telling. After a typical college story of the rich young man
in disguise and an impulsive girl who is rewarded for recklessness, the number closes with a sonnet which has some good lines, but needs to have the others worked
over before it will say what it intends.
("Things dearer . . . than conscious pains" is surely not meant).

We miss an editorial page, an easy chair,
and we crave a more literary atmosphere.
Now that the picture part is achieved, it is time to vitalize the word-painting.

Noted Lute Player to Appear Thursday

Not only is Thomas Wilfred a musician,
but he is also a poet, story writer, inventor, soldier, and composer, and he, himself,
has a great deal of the fire, youth, imagination, and poetry of the medieval troubadour.
His music is not paramount with him, for he considers the chords of his lute
to be merely the background for his exquisite songs and ballads, and he has the power to make the songs he is singing
stand out as a picture before his audience.
The compositions he has selected were composed between the 13th and 17th centuries, and comprise English, Danish, and French songs.

Of the ability and power of Thomas Wilfred, the New York Sun says, "In his singing of the folk songs and ballads, Mr.
Wilfred discloses a delightful spirit and freshness, simplicity of style and changing
moods admirably suited to the contents of the various songs. His quality of voice
and the charming tone of the lute in his
well-played accompaniments served to enhance the general effect of the old songs."
The Minneapolis Tribune says, "Such men
as Mr. Wilfred may, in time, affect more deeply the art life of America." In regard to his reception and popularity in foreign countries, The London Daily Chronicle
made the following announcement: "Queen Alexandra honored Wilfred, the lute player, with a command to appear at Marlborough House. . . . Queen Alexandra complimented Mr. Wilfred on the dramatic way in which the songs were rendered." And the Vort Land, of Copenhagen, printed the following: "King
Christian has asked Wilfred, the lute player, who is now at Copenhagen, to sing at the royal castle on Monday at the Gala
Reception."

The work of the whole Williams line was brilliant throughout the game. The much heralded Amherst defense crumbled under a charge which drove it back on almost every play and opened big holes for the hard plunging but light Williams backfield. Captain Fargo, until he was hurt in the third quarter, played brilliantly on both offense and defense, and Robinson's work also stood out. During at least two of Williams' marches down the field, play after play was sent through these two men for large gains, while Amherst was never able to gain through their side of the line. Pease also broke up a large number of Amherst plays. Richmond, by virtue of his speed, gained the most yards, contributing a 32-yard run, the longest of the game. Wilson and Burger because of their defensive work and consistent line-plunging also deserve special mention. Mallon played brilliantly, especially in running back punts, although his judgment in attempting so many drops when it was obviously difficult to get the ball off the ground, might be criticised. At the same time, however, the slippery condition of the ball made accurate forward passing almost impossible, which accounts for the large number of incomplete Williams passes. Wing, the dangerous Amherst broken field runner, never got started, and was taken out late in the second period due to an injury to his knee. Jillson played a very heady game for Amherst on the defense, while Captain Davidson upheld his reputation as a brilliant end. Burger, Mallon, and J. Wilson each made a touchdown for Williams, while Fargo and Mallon each scored once after touchdowns.

Fumbling was infrequent considering the condition of the field and the drizzling rain which fell during the greater part of the contest. Williams fumbled but once, and then recovered it, while Amherst offended three times, and on two occasions lost the ball, an Amherst fumble on its 25-yard line in the third quarter placing Williams in a direct position to score. Two penalties were inflicted on each team for offside play, each losing ten yards in this way.

Williams' first score came in the first quarter after the Purple had recovered the ball when Amherst blocked one of Mallon's attempts for a field goal. A forward pass from Mallon to Pease placed the ball on Amherst's four-yard line, and on the next play Burger slid over for the touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal. In the third quarter another long pass from Mallon to Pease advanced the ball from Williams' 40-yard line to Amherst's 10-yard line. On the next play, J. Wilson, aided by good interference from Pease and Richmond, went around right end for ten yards and a touchdown. Mallon failed to kick the goal. Soon after the fourth quarter opened Williams again scored, after a steady drive from the 45-yard line. Mallon went over for the touchdown. Williams threatened to cross the goal line again in this quarter, when, largely through sterling work on the part of Richmond, the Purple carried the ball from its own 45-yard line, after Monjo had intercepted a forward pass, to within two inches of the Amherst goal line. For the only time during the game the Amherst line was able to hold at this point, and Williams lost the ball on downs.

First Quarter

Monjo kicked off to Wing, who caught the ball on his ten-yard line and was downed on his 20-yard line. Elliott kicked to Mallon on the 40-yard line, and he returned it to the Amherst 45-yard line. Burger made four yards, six yards, three yards, and nine yards on four consecutive plays, placing the ball on Amherst's 23-yard line. A penalty for offside gave Williams first down and five yards. Wilson made three yards through centre, Monjo added one, and Burger took the ball to Amherst's ten-yard line. Fourth down and three yards to make. Mallon elected to drop kick, but his attempt from the 20-yard line failed. Amherst's ball on the 20-yard line. Elliot punted to Mallon, and Monjo returned the punt, the ball going outside on the 32-yard line. Elliot attempted a line plunge, was thrown for a loss, and punted to Mallon on the Williams 35-yard line. Burger, Wilson, and Mallon in three plays took the ball to the Amherst 33-yard line. Two line bucks failed, and a forward pass was grounded.

Mallon tried his second drop from the 40-yard line, but the ball was blocked and recovered by Williams. Pease failed to gain around left end, and on the next play Mallon tossed Pease a pass which placed the ball on the four-yard line. Burger went over for the touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal. Williams kicked off, and Elliott punted back to the 40-yard line. Mallon, taking the ball at this point, ran to the Amherst 30-yard line. Wilson and Burger contributed a first down in three line plays, but two more failed to make any considerable gain, and a forward, Mallon to Wilson, was grounded. Mallon tried his third drop from the 23-yard line; the ball rolled over the goal. Amherst's ball on 20-yard line. After an exchange of punts, the quarter ended. Score—Williams 7, Amherst 0.

Second Quarter

Amherst's ball on 20-yard line. Elliott punted to Mallon, and Monjo returned the punt. Amherst's ball on 30-yard line. Reusswig gained five yards and Wing failed to gain. Amherst again punted. Williams ball on Williams 32-yard line. Monjo, after two line plays, punted to Elliott on Amherst 30-yard line. Elliott, Wing, and Reusswig made first down in three plays, but the next two failed to gain and Elliott punted, the ball rolling out on the 35-yard line. Mallon tossed a forward to Pease for a 22-yard gain. Richmond advanced the ball five yards, and Wilson three more. Fourth down and two to go, but Mallon elected to punt, and Richmond kicked over the line. After two plays had failed to gain, Amherst punted to Richmond on 48-yard line. Richmond and Wilson made first down. Amherst lost five yards for offside play, and Richmond, taking the ball off right tackle, ran 35 yards to the Amherst eight yard line. Mallon recovered a Williams fumble. Three plays gained only five yards, and Mallon tried a drop from the 15-yard line, which failed. On the first play Pease tackled Wing for a five-yard loss, and Amherst punted to the middle of the field. Score—Williams 7, Amherst 0.

Third Quarter

Elliott kicked off to Wilson, who carried the ball back 23 yards to the 28-yard line. Two line plays gained only five yards, and Monjo punted out on the centre line. Amherst fumbled on the first play, and Wilson recovered for Williams. Mallon tossed a forward pass to Pease for a gain of 33 yards, placing the ball on the Amherst eight-yard line. Wilson circled right end for the second touchdown of the game. Mallon failed to kick the goal. Amherst kicked off to Monjo, who carried the ball from the 15 to the 45-yard line. Mallon made nine yards, but two forward passes were incomplete. Monjo punted out on the Amherst 17-yard line. Williams was penalized for offside play, and on the next play Amherst fumbled, and Laws recovered the ball for Williams. Wilson failed to gain, and two forward passes were incomplete. Mallon again tried a drop, which was blocked and recovered by Amherst on the 28-yard line. Sylvester made two runs of eight yards which gave Amherst first down, but the Purple and White punted. An exchange of punts ended the quarter. Score—Williams 13, Amherst 0.

Fourth Quarter

Williams ball on Amherst 45-yard line. A steady march down the field followed with Richmond making gains of eight, four, four, and eight yards, and a forward pass from Mallon to Wilson gaining 11 yards. Mallon took the ball over for the third score, and afterwards kicked the goal. Williams kicked off. Monjo intercepted an Amherst forward pass, and a steady march began to the Amherst goal line, Richmond gaining 32 yards in nine plays. The Amherst line held when the ball was two inches from the goal line, and Elliott punted to safety. During the remainder of the half there were numerous substitutions and neither team gained any definite advantage. The game ended with the ball on the Amherst 20-yard line.

Disarmament Topic of Creel's Address

"We drove through the caemy censorship by use of the aeroplane, the balloon, the kite, and the mortar gun, and more indirectly, through the press of Switzerland, Denmark, and Holland."

Previous to his work on this committee, Mr. Creel had 10 years experience as Editor of the Kansas City Independent, the particular aim of which was political reform. Here he fought every sham, assaulting crookedness, wickedness, and graft wherever he found it.

From Missouri he went to Colorado, where as Editor of the Denver Post and then the Rocky Mountain News, he led the progressive forces that won the Initiative, Referendum, Recall, Workmen's Compensation, Mothers' Compensation, and a score of similar laws. As police commissioner of Denver, he made important contributions to the solution of the Commercialized Vice problem, and also played a prominent part in penitentiary reform, helping to work out the Honor and Trust systems.

Mr. Creel is the author of Children in Bondage, in support of child-labor laws, Wilson and the Issues, Ireland's Fight for Freedom, How We Advertised America, and The War, the World, and Wilson.

Quartet Warmly

For the central part of the program, two numbers by Ernest Bloch from his "Quartet in B Major" took the audience into an atmosphere weirdly unreal and imaginative. In the Allegro frenetico a state of chaos is reached almost at the start. Then alternate periods of storm and quiet follow in rapid succession, leading up to a wild and agitated ending. "The Pastorale" was full of charming echoes produced with increasing depth by the violin, viola, and violoncello. Towards the end, muted tones created an air of melancholy which soon faded into a perfectly peaceful finale.

Beethoven's "Quartet in D Major" with its overflowing melody and power offered a glorious and satisfactory ending to the concert. It was like the happy ending of a comedy on the stage after the strange and confused effect created by Bloch's compositions. The Allegro, the premier movement, was cheerful and exuberant throughout. For a few brief moments there was a serious passage, but soon its gaiety returned with added force. In all the many delicate parts of the Andante con moto there was a superb singing quality in the tonic effects. In other places majesty and sustained tones took predominance, but everywhere it was teeming with color. With the return of an Allegro movement the flowing vivacity of a lively dance could be felt, the ever present melody continuing to rise above everything else. Presto, the concluding part of the composition, made an intensely spirited ending, packed full and bubbling over with excitement. The program was as follows:

IDEALISM OF 1919 AGAIN TRIUMPHANT

Mr. George Creel Tells Forum Economic Exhaustion Forces Disarmament

ADVOCATES LEAGUE AS ONLY FINAL SOLUTION

'There Are No Large Navies—Only Comparative Strength Is of Any Avail'

"For two years we have been living in an era of triumphant materialism, but today actual economic exhaustion is forcing us to look for salvation to the very idealism which we rejected in 1919," declared Mr. George Creel, former chairman of the Committee on Public Information under President Wilson, before a well-attended meeting of the Forum Monday evening in Jesup Hall. Mr. Creel, in addressing the first of the series of Forum meetings for the present year, in the course of which several other noted speakers will come to Williamstown, took for his subject "Disarmament."

"The third anniversary of Armistice Day gave cause for little of the rejoicing of the first," continued Mr. Creel. "Three years ago men had great dreams of a universal peace. When Wilson went abroad, the people throughout France and Germany worshipped him as they would have worshipped an idol. It was not a personal worship. It was because he represented a country which was strong enough to free them from their age old oppression, and which had declared its intention of doing so. But then that wonderful world spirit changed. It is idle to discuss the reasons for this change. We must now forget all recriminations and all criticism and look ahead without parties and without politics."

"We have had two years of triumphant materialism. Idealism, seemed dead, but today it is again triumphant, and stern and hard necessity has done much in the triumph. Sixty-nine percent of all the national revenue at present is used to pay obligations existing from the war, whereas 1.5% is expended for public works, and 4.9% is sufficient for all the expenses of the government. Committee such as the Day committee, which are adopting measures for economy, which attempt to save money by seeing that government officials write on both sides of the paper, or buy ink a little cheaper, are futile. We could abolish the government, and save only 4.9% of the national revenue. What we need is a reduction of the expenses of war."

"Forced disarmament is today proving the salvation of Germany. She alone is permitted to concentrate her resources on the promotion of industry. All the other countries of the world are rushing to pre-

Novice Cross Country Race Won by Packard

Finishing over 200 yards in advance of a scattered line of entrants, Karl W. Packard '24 won the annual novice cross country race, held last Thursday afternoon over one half of the usual course, in the excellent time of 12 minutes and 28 seconds. R. Clason '24, A. Brayton '24, and C. W. Proctor '23 took second, third, and fourth places respectively.

Prizes for the first four places were donated by Spring Street merchants, and consisted of a Dunhill Pipe for first place, given by Cable Prindle, a gold and silver pencil for second, given by Quinn and Manley's, a necktie for third place, given by Nelson Domin, and a pair of gold cuff links for fourth, given by Arthur Bastien. Sixteen men entered the race, which started in front of the Lasell Gymnasium and then led up Main Street, South Street, and back over the Taconic Golf Club course. The distance run was approximately two and a half miles over the route used by the varsity squad.

Packard was not too time pressed, maintaining the lead that he acquired at the start, and was not forced to exert himself at any point. The other three men who placed were likewise strung out with a distance of several hundred yards between each man, and finished in the same order that was taken at the start.

DR. HORTON ADDRESSES PHILOSOPHICAL UNION

'Psycho-Analysis' Subject of Talk by Boston Doctor Before Large Audience

Dr. Lydiard Horton '01, of Boston, addressed a meeting of the Philosophical Union last Monday evening in the Commons Room in Currier Hall on the subject "Psycho-Analysis." The attendance at the meeting numbered about one hundred persons, including several members of the faculty and some townspeople.

Dr. Horton, who is a specialist and practitioner well known in the eastern part of the state, has made an extensive study of the care and curing of mentally sick persons through analysis of the condition causing the disease and by taking the afflicted person into confidence in the nature of the ailment and thus obtaining his unwitting co-operation. This method is of recent development in medical circles but by this time has past the experimental stage and is acknowledged to be of merit by all who have made a study of it. An example of the way in which it is taken up, as given by the speaker, was of a man who was troubled with an advanced case of nervous twitching in the neck and shoulders. Dr. Horton studied the origin and cause of the trouble in conjunction with the patient, and in time a conclusion regarding its nature was reached by which he was able to treat and cure it.

In the course of his talk, Dr. Horton took up the topic of dreams and their meaning as well as their importance and influence. Several typical dreams were given and discussed, and interpretations were given of a nature that concurred with the discoveries of the Psycho-Analysts. The last hour of the meeting was given up to an open discussion engaged in by several of the faculty members and students regarding the merits of the field opened up by Dr. Horton.

To Discuss Greek Music

Mr. Sumner Salter will speak on "Classical Greek Music" at the second meeting of the Classical Society to be held next Monday evening at 8.00 p. m. in the Chapel Choir Room. He will also give several selections of Greek music on the bassoon and flute, while solos will be sung by Mrs. Howes and Muechenhaupt '22. The meeting will be open to the college.

St. John's Society to Meet Tuesday Evening

The Rev. Edward M. Thirlow of Williamstown will speak at the first meeting of the St. John's Society which will be held in Jesup Hall next Tuesday evening at 7.30 p. m. For his topic Mr. Thirlow has chosen "Some Recent Student Movements in China." In the course of his address the speaker will outline the so-called Renaissance movement among the younger student class in China as well as the student strike which was directed recently against the notion of some pro-Japanese officials. An opportunity for open discussion will be offered after the talk.

In the course of the meeting the annual election of officers will also be held, and plans for the reorganization of the society along more definite lines of activity will be considered. Membership in the society is open to all undergraduates who are members of the Episcopal Church regardless of whether they attend Sunday services at the local church.

LUTIST APPLAUDED BY LARGE AUDIENCE

Thomas Wilfred's Recital of Folk Songs and Old Lute Music Most Artistic

INTERPRETATION SKILLFUL

Attractive Program Is Presented in First Entertainment of Thompson Course

Warmly applauded by a large and appreciative audience which filled Jesup Hall to the limit, Thomas Wilfred presented his recital of folk songs and old lute music last Thursday evening.

Artistic and yet vitally realistic and convincing in its presentation, Mr. Wilfred's concert earned his audience at times to the gloomy period of the Middle Ages and at times to the merry age of Queen Elizabeth. At no time was the musical part of the songs thrust to the foreground; it was always the spirit and feelings of the period portrayed with such a deep understanding and such a masterful ability that even one with the most barren imagination could scarce have failed to see real living people acting before his eyes.

Criticism of the various songs can contain nothing but praise, and the arrangement of the program which cleverly interrupted drama and seriousness with bursts of joy and cheer, calls for the greatest commendation. In the "Sumer is Iumen in" written by a monk John Fornsete in 1225, which opened the concert, is seen the first traces of the employment of counterpoint in musical composition. Mr. Wilfred sang it so beautifully that the roughness and crudity added rather than detracted from its charm. "Come Lasses and Lads," the next number, is an Elizabethan dance tune which shows the picture of a May Dance in the woods in which all the young people of the countryside are joining. It has a cheerfulness and gaiety which, as interpreted by Mr. Wilfred, was truly contagious. "Ye Golden Vanitie" the last song of this group, was without doubt the chef-d'oeuvre of the program from an artistic viewpoint. In dramatic and powerful style it tells an incident supposed to have happened in the travels of Sir Walter Raleigh. To characterize it in fewest words, it was graphic and stirring.

For a bit of lightness to relieve the tension of "Ye Golden Vanitie," came two lute solos, Mozart's Minnet from the "Suite in E Flat" and a Scandinavian gavotte. In the Danish Fourteenth Century songs which followed, "Agnete and the Mermaid" is based on the old story of a mythical beathen who lives somewhere

Mr. Adolos Allen '87 Will Talk on Athens and Constantinople Before Forum

"Athens and Constantinople" is the subject of a talk to be given by Mr. Adolos Allen '87 of Stamford, Conn., Monday evening at 7.30 in Jesup Hall under auspices of the Forum. Mr. Allen is widely known as a traveler and lecturer, and his talk will be profusely illustrated with stereopticon views upon his topic.

Having recently returned from an extended tour through Greece and the Orient as an experienced traveler, careful observer and student of history, Mr. Allen is prepared to give illustrated lectures descriptive of these places of unique scenes, of sacred and historic associations. The speaker has lectured in this same connection under the Board of Education of New York City, also in the Philadelphia University Extension Course and in the Miss Spence School, New York City. The lecture to be given here consists of many beautiful slides of the historic buildings, temples and inhabitants of Athens and Constantinople, each of which will be explained by Mr. Allen.

Mr. Allen is a Williams man, having graduated with the class of 1878 and returned to receive his M. A. degree in 1887. While in College, Mr. Allen was vice-president of the Mills Young Men's Christian Association, a member of the Philotechnian Society and the Gasterodopa baseball team. After his graduation Mr. Allen entered the ministry and has been active in the cause of social betterment at Washington, D. C., Reading, Pa. and Cranbury, N. J. At Reading he founded the Young Men's Christian Association and the Law and Order Society, in addition to serving as pastor of several churches.

Alumnus to Preach Tomorrow

The Reverend George L. Richardson, D.D., '88, rector of the Diocesan Church of Saint Mary, of Philadelphia, Pa., will conduct the morning service in the Thompson Memorial Chapel tomorrow. Dr. Richardson will also speak at the regular W. C. A. meeting in Jesup Hall tomorrow evening at 7.30 p. m., his subject being "Student Problems of Faith, are They Real?"

After graduating from Williams in the class of 1888, Dr. Richardson attended the Seabury Theological Seminary at Saint Paul, Minn., where he was ordained an Episcopal Minister. In 1918 Williams conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

TEAM FACES RED AND BLACK TODAY

Wesleyan Eleven Lost to Columbia and Union—Tied Amherst by 3-3 Score

WILLIAMS FAVORITE ON WESLEYAN FIELD

Purple Will Start Line-Up That Defeated Amherst—Drilled in Fundamentals

Ready for the final test of the year, the Williams eleven will line up against Wesleyan on Andrus Field, Middletown, Conn., at 2.30 this afternoon, in the 30th game played between the two colleges since the opening of relations in 1884. Although favored to win on the basis of comparative scores, Coach Wendell's men are expecting stiff opposition from the Red and Black, which has not lost to Williams on its own field since 1911.

Football critics make Williams their favorite in today's game, chiefly because of the showing made by both teams against common opponents to date. Columbia, which fell by a 20-0 score before the Purple, defeated Wesleyan 14-3. Amherst divided honors with the Red and Black by a 3-3 count, and the following week Williams decisively upset Amherst on Weston Field by the score of 20-0. Union, fell a 44-0 victim before the Williams attack, but succeeded in wresting a 7-0 victory from Wesleyan last Saturday.

Wesleyan has been able to win only one game thus far, and has tied three and lost three. The opening game of the season against Stevens Tech. resulted in victory for the Red and Black by a 13-0 score, straight line-plunging and trick plays turning the tide against the Engineers after they had held Wesleyan scoreless in the first half. Columbia overcame the Middletown team on a wet field by the score of 14-3, largely because of the inability of the light backfield to get started against the Columbia line. In the third game Wesleyan lost to Boston University after a hard fight, the score standing 7-0. This was the first defeat suffered by the Red and Black on Andrus Field in three years.

Wesleyan played tie games with N. Y. U., Tufts, and Amherst on three successive Saturdays, the scores being 7-7, 14-14, and 3-3 respectively. N. Y. U. was saved from defeat by a touchdown in the last period, and Tufts came from behind in the last quarter, scoring two touchdowns in rapid succession and missing a third by two yards as the game ended. Although outplayed by Amherst in the annual game between the two colleges, the Wesleyan defense prevented the Purple and White from crossing its goal line, and each team was held to a single field goal. Seriggins put Wesleyan in the lead in the third quarter with a 45-yard kick, but Elliott's placement kick from the 40-yard line tied the score at 3-3.

Union won an unexpected victory from the Red and Black by a 7-0 score last Saturday, Heidorf, the Garnet quarterback, carrying the ball over the line in a last-minute rally. Wesleyan was clearly outplayed by Union, although its defense was hard to penetrate.

Handicapped by the return of only three regulars of last year's eleven, Head Coach Fauver of Wesleyan has nevertheless developed a fast, hard-fighting team. Lack of experience has been the chief difficulty confronting the Middletown team during the season. In weight the Wesleyan and Williams teams are practically even. Seriggins, the Red and Black full-

"An Ounce of Prevention"

"I didn't think" is an expression so easy to say and yet so ineffectual after any emergency. Thoughtlessness is always deplorable and particularly so when the interests of many others are involved.

Of late there have been unmistakable evidences found in the libraries that men are sometimes smoking there. We wonder if those "single drags" are ever accompanied by a thought of the risk involved. Aside from the violation of the regulation that forbids smoking in public buildings, there is grave danger that the slow accumulation of years may be destroyed in a brief hour's time. In the older buildings, such as Lawrence Hall, a small flame kindled would sweep the structure in no time, and the present methods of fire-prevention would be utterly inadequate. While we are awaiting the completion of our new, fire-proof repository, there is particular need for increased thoughtfulness and care. Safety first!

Efficient Managing

Not long ago a wave of sentiment was sweeping the campus against the practice of electing as manager the most "popular man" in the competition. Today the inevitable reaction is setting in, and one hears frequent comments to the effect that the hardest working slave is not ipso facto the best manager, but that prestige, affability, and numerous other indefinable qualities do play some part even in securing efficiency.

Obviously, the ability to get along with the members of the team and others with the minimum of friction is a highly desirable quality in any manager. Yet the manager running the competition is unable to show in percentages any such qualities possessed by his competitors. "Extra work," "field work," etc., are fixed mathematical percentages, and it is nearly impossible to rate a hard working competitor in "efficiency" because he does not mix well. The same is true of other qualities.

The chief fault with the present system seems to lie in the presentation of cold figures by the manager to each Sophomore class. The personal element is lacking in the case of the manager and is over-emphasized in the case of the class. Either the class conducts a popularity contest or else blindly follows the cold percentages which the manager himself may believe do not express the true value of the different candidates. No opportunity is given for personal explanation and calm consideration.

A plan recently presented before the Student Council demands consideration through its efforts to eliminate these unfortunate features and at the same time retain the benefits of the present method of electing. The plan, in brief, calls for competitions run as at present. At the end of the competitions, however, the manager, assistant manager, and captain of the sport in question will present their recommendations to the Athletic Council, together with a personal estimate of the abilities of the respective competitors. The Athletic Council will recommend either two or three men in order of estimated merit for the undergraduate body to ballot upon.

The advantages of the suggested system lie in the fact that careful consideration is ensured by referring the percentages to a diversified, representative body which has the athletic interests of Williams thoroughly at heart. Consultation with the men most intimately in touch with the competitors will give the Council a fair basis for judgment. The elections continue to be College elections in the final analysis, and will retain the prestige that they deserve on that basis. The system is yet to be found which will be perfect in practice, but the amendment contemplated would seem to be a forward step in the right direction.

Sportsmanlike Losers

"All hail to the victors! The Williams football team and Williams' sportsmanship alike have our sincere praise. It would, of course, have suited us much better if the score had been reversed, but the ways of the gods are obscure and there is no grudge felt when the opponent is so keen but friendly a rival."

"Only four other classic football games in the country date back farther than the Williams-Amherst series. For 39 games, Williams men and Amherst men have struggled fiercely for victory. First one team and then the other has been successful. But the winner never boasts nor does the loser ever complain."

The Amherst Student.

Idealism of 1919 Again Triumphant

pure for another war, while German merchants flood them with German goods. Germany does not pay as much for reparation as England or the United States are expending for armament. Expenses for armament are sucking the life out of France and Italy, and are proving an untold burden to Japan.

"Materialism is thus forced to face world exhaustion, world famine, world disappointment. We are driven back to the idealism we rejected by cold facts. There is no such thing as a strong navy. You might as well talk of a long stick or a big stone. It is all comparative. You can only have a strong navy if other nations consent to have weak navies. The idea of preparedness as a matter of insurance is a thing of the past. Inventors today can perfect explosives or gases which in a single night destroy the work of years. Battleships today are obsolete almost before they strike the water, for before they are launched we are planning new ones. We are throwing billions of dollars into a quicksand."

"Three years ago we turned away from the horror of it all. Today we are turning away from its futility. That is the reason for the present disarmament conference. Wherever people gather in this country they are demanding action and lots of it. They demand that all naval programs be suspended. The sheer weight of public opinion so strongly expressed in the last two months was the force which compelled the proposition made by Secretary Hughes before the Disarmament Conference at Washington. It has been a great victory for public opinion, which swept aside official indifference at Washington. But the fight is not yet won. One thing must still be gained: to have all sessions of the Conference open, and all records published."

Mr. Creel then discussed the "mysterious" Pacific and far-Eastern question, which he said amounted to no more than the question of the pillaging of China by the great world powers, which has been going on since 1842. In a manner which delighted his audience for its lively humor Mr. Creel traced the successive steps by which the powers have taken piece after piece of its territory. Another question which will be presented before the conference is the Chinese question—the proposition that all these powers get out of China once and for all, leaving her her own sovereign.

"The conference has started out nobly," Mr. Creel went on. "But even assuming that the question of naval disarmament and the Chinese question be definitely settled, we have not even begun to touch upon the question of land disarmament nor on the question of world peace. The membership of the conference is too limited for that. It consists now only of the five leading powers—The United States, England, Japan, France, and Italy. A Conference for world peace must contain representatives of all civilized nations. And so when this conference is over, even assuming that it accomplishes all that it is humanly possible to accomplish, we will find ourselves back again exactly where we were in 1919 at Paris. I pray God that President Harding may have the courage to recognize this, and to lead us once and for all into what is the final solution to the problem, a League of Nations."

After the close of Mr. Creel's speech he answered many questions on topics having to do with things he had touched in it, chief interest centering on the Chinese question, and on the effect of naval disarmament on the different powers involved.

back, has been the star of the team. His drop-kicking ability saved his team from defeat at Amherst, and will be a constant threat against the Purple this afternoon. Captain Butler and King are the best set of ends Wesleyan has possessed in ten years, and Parsons and Fricke in the back-field, and Foster at center, have played excellent games all the season.

The same Williams line-up that started against Amherst will oppose Wesleyan in today's contest. Coach Wendell has laid special emphasis on fundamentals in the work of the past week, devoting a part of practice every day to tackling, falling on the ball, charging, breaking through the line, and dummy scrimmage. The coach gave a blackboard talk to the squad on Monday, pointing out the faults in the game with Amherst. Practice on Tuesday was confined to dummy scrimmage and light signal drill, and on Wednesday the team went through the rudiments of the game. The only scrimmage of the week took place Thursday against the freshman eleven, and this was followed by cheering practice and the annual bonfire marking the last official practice of the season. After a light drill yesterday afternoon, the squad of 22 men besides coaches, trainers, and managers left for the Hotel Bond, Hartford, Conn., the headquarters of the team before the game.

Wesleyan will rely largely on a strong defense to offset the superior ability and longer experience of the Purple. Supporters of the Red and Black are pinning their faith to the local "jinx" which vanquished Williams by the score of 16-0 in the last game played on Andrus Field, in 1919.

The probable line-ups of the two teams follow:

DR. GARFIELD TO SAIL FOR EUROPE TOMORROW

Will Visit Mediterranean Shore Towns, Italy and Greece
in Travels

November 18—President and Mrs. Garfield will sail tomorrow on the S. S. Canadonia, of the Cunard Line, from New York City, for a two months vacation of travel in southern Europe, visiting the important cities of Greece, Italy, and the shores of the Mediterranean Sea. In view of the fact that President Garfield was engaged during the past summer in the business of the Institute of Politics, permission was granted by the Trustees of the College of this vacation.

The smaller towns on the northern shores of the Mediterranean will be visited first before going to Naples and some of the other large cities of Italy.

This trip is to be taken ostensibly for pleasure, but it is expected that President Garfield will be unofficially considering prominent European statesmen for speakers and discussion leaders in the Institute of Politics for the summer of 1922.

out in the ocean, trying to steal the soul of a Christian girl so that he may be able to enter heaven when he dies. In striking contrast was "The Three Rascals" which came next, the oldest recorded jesters' song, rollicking and ludicrous.

Three old French songs which constituted the first part of the third group, were especially interesting because of the fact that the two first are now being sung in many parts of the land by the peasants. "Avec Mes Sabots" an Alsace-Lorraine marching song, though graceful, has a marked rhythm which Mr. Wilfred very ably interpreted. It has been treated by the French composer Louis Ganne in his "Marche Lorraine" which appeared about fifteen years ago. "Le Joli Tambour" is a jolly little fairy story sung in marching time, which comes from Brittany, is full of pathos and a sad mournful strain is always in the foreground. At times was felt the mystery and wonder for the great unknown lands beyond the seas which were felt by the people of the times. The final number of the programme "O No John" has probably been through more variations of tune than any other English folk song. Its theme tells of a girl who is told by her father to answer "No" to every man who seeks her hand. Finally a young man comes along who so contrives that she accepts him by her negative reply. It was quaint and captivating in every part.

The entire program was as follows:

II. Solo for the Arch Lute

FAMOUS LECTURERS SECURED BY FORUM

Spargo, Plumb, Holmes, Gerard, and Colby to be Included in Year's Program

STEREOPTICON VIEWS FEATURE SECOND TALK

'Athens and Constantinople' to be Title of Travel Lecture of Allen '78

Nov. 21—The Rev. Adelos Allen '78, of Stamford, Conn., will give the second Forum lecture of the year tonight at 7.30 p. m. in Jesup Hall, taking for his subject "Athens and Constantinople," and illustrating his descriptions with numerous stereopticon views of the two cities. The speaker has long been known as one of the ablest lecturers of travel experiences, and has recently returned from an extensive tour through Greece, and particularly Athens, where he has been studying further the present day conditions of these famous cities of antiquity.

In dealing with Athens, the metropolis of ancient Greek culture, the speaker will portray its condition in the days of the Acropolis, the Parthenon, the Propylaea, and the Erechtheum, and will also detail the beauties and splendors of its ruins of today, giving details and pictures of the most interesting parts of the city and the surrounding country. Constantinople, the seat of the powerful Eastern Empire under Constantine, will be discussed in the aspect of a representative city of the early eastern civilization, as contrasted with that of western Europe and Athens, and the beauties of the Harbor of the Golden Horn, the Mosque of Saint Sophia, and various temples and palaces will be particularly emphasized.

As a lecturer for the Board of Education of New York City, and in the Philadelphia Extension Course, Rev. Allen has had a wide and varied experience both in lecturing and traveling, and he has also been interested for a number of years in social betterment work in Washington, D. C., Reading, Pa., and Cranbury, N. J. He received his degree of A.B. from Williams in 1878, and his M.A. degree in 1887.

Glenn Plumb, initiator and originator of the Plumb Plan for Railroad Control, will speak on that subject at the third Forum lecture on December 12. He is the foremost authority on the practical and theoretical possibilities of this plan for Railroad Administration, and will present his ideas on the question as well as a thorough explanation of its advantages.

For the fourth lecture on January 9, John Hays Holmes, Harvard '02, will probably give a brief and inclusive presentation of the good and bad qualities of the Disarmament Plan. He is an editor and writer of great reputation, being associate editor of the Unitarian Advance and the Unity and he is now recognized as an eminent speaker and thinker on the pressing question of disarming the world.

On March 13, John Spargo will give the fifth lecture on some aspect of Economic Socialism, with which he has been interested for many years, and about which he has written several books and pamphlets. Last year Mr. Spargo spoke before the Forum on the subject of "Europe's Reconstruction Problem," and was one of the best and most interesting speakers of the

To Publish Athletic Records

The Graduate-Treasurer is preparing to publish the complete statistics of the athletic organizations now controlled by the Athletic Council of Williams College. The book containing these accounts will be dedicated to Dr. Frank W. Olds '76 of Williamstown who has been president of the Athletic Council since its organization twenty-five years ago. These records will go back to the very beginning of organized sports at this institution and in addition will contain the records of rowing and such forms of athletics in which the College no longer participates. The books will be bound in purple with gold lettering. Copies in paper will be $1.00 and those in cloth $1.50. The proceeds derived from the sale of these books will be turned into the Athletic Treasury.

Honor System Committee Chooses Rowse Chairman

Richard Edson Rowse '22, of Lexington, Mass., was elected chairman of the Honor System Committee at a meeting of that body held last Wednesday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time Frank Troutman Balke '24, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was chosen secretary.

Rowse prepared for Williams at Taft School, Watertown, Conn. Since his first year at College he has played on the varsity tennis team, and was elected captain last spring. In 1920 he was College doubles champion with Chapin '23. He also played on the varsity hockey team during his sophomore and junior years. He was elected to the Honor System Committee in his second year, and also was a member of the Musical Clubs and College Choir. Rowse is a member of the Delta Psi fraternity.

PROBLEMS OF FAITH OFTEN ARE IMAGINED

Dr. G. L. Richardson '88 Speaks to
W. C. A. on Some Causes of Troubled Faiths

BLAMES IGNORANCE MOST

Urges Distinction Between Essentials and Non-Essentials in Christianity

"Many problems of faith are not really true ones," said Dr. George L. Richardson '88 in his address before the meeting of the Christian Association in Jesup Hall last Sunday evening. "Furthermore," he added, "people wouldn't think that they had so many problems of faith if they would really think out religious matters for themselves."

In part Dr. Richardson's talk was as follows: "One time I heard a young alumnus of one of our large universities say at an address before some undergraduates on problems of faith, that those fellows couldn't have any problems because most of them had little or no information about the Bible or any sort of religious matters. While as a student I know that I did have problems, I have come to feel that there is a lot in what this alumnus said. Probably seven out of ten of these seemingly troublesome questions arise from ignorance or ignorance."

"We must not feel that only students have these so-called problems of faith. All sorts of men including those supposedly religious speak of religion, the Bible, and the creeds when they have never even taken the trouble to inform themselves on the most important and elementary facts of these things. It is especially younger people, however, who are confused because of plain laziness in not wishing to think for themselves. Perhaps a half hour's reading in the numerous books touching upon the subject would clear up almost all these supposed troubles."

"If laziness is one reason for what many believe problems of faith, a second cause may be found in the false teaching of ministers and Sunday school teachers. In some cases the emphasis has been laid where it does not belong; in others a wrong lead has been given which has brought about all kinds of trouble later. There are those who do not know, for instance, that Christianity is based on personal loyalty to Jesus Christ, and continue under the illusion that it is based on a book. It is not difficult to see that as there was Christian discipleship before the New Testament was written, it would still go on if there weren't any Bible. People who

New Class Contest Sought

Heywood '24, president of the Sophomore Class, spoke before a meeting of the Class held after Chapel last Sunday morning in Jesup Hall on the subject of creating a new contest between the Freshmen and Sophomores. He suggested several forms the contest might take, including a fight between the two classes for the possession of the football used in the interclass game and a pushball contest in the spring. It was decided to appoint a committee to investigate the matter, and to petition the Student Council to allow the addition of another underclass contest to the present list.

Sidelights and Press Comments on Saturday's Football Victory

Several unusual performances, one rather serious accident, and some humorous incidents during the course of the game provided additional interest for the 3500 spectators attending the Wesleyan game at Middletown last Saturday. Since the Wesleyan football management had reserved seats for only 100 men, a large part of the Purple cheering section had to stand during the entire contest and were so scattered that it seriously affected the volume of the cheers.

The annual Freshman Parade of the College was held immediately before the game. The Wesleyan "Whiffenpoofs" paraded around the field, led by a band and arrayed in a fantastic assortment of spectacular and amazing costumes. The lack of signs and posters made the procession rather unintelligible to the out-of-town spectators.

Grandstands Collapse

A section of the Wesleyan stands on the east side of Andrus Field crashed to the ground after the first few minutes of play, carrying down over a hundred spectators in a mass of splinters and broken boards. No one was seriously hurt, although several were badly shaken up and suffered minor injuries. Later in the game a part of the Williams section on the same side fell through, but the whole stand did not collapse as in the first case.

The Purple victory shows the largest margin on record and is twice as decisive as any previous defeat the Red and Black has suffered at the hands of Williams on Andrus Field. Saturday's game was the first instance of a Wesleyan defeat by Williams at Middletown since 1911 and the fourth since the opening of athletic relations.

Other large scores between the two teams occurred in 1900 and 1915, when Wesleyan triumphed by the respective tallies of 35-0 and 41-0. Last year Williams won by a margin of 50-14. This victory brings the total of games won to 14-12 in favor of the Purple.

Press Lauds Team

Newspaper accounts of the contest dwell strongly on the success of Williams' remarkable aerial attack as the outstanding feature of the game, and emphasize the unquestionable superiority of the winners.

The Springfield Republican speaks of the Purple's forward passing game in terms of high praise. It states: "Expert use of the forward pass enabled Williams to set Wesleyan down harder than any Williams team ever set a Wesleyan team down before."

3500 football fans sat by and watched the final game of the season for both teams turn from a contest to a rout. Williams gridiron teams have beaten Wesleyan badly before, and for that matter Wesleyan teams have won their share from Williams, but for one to score six touchdowns and the other to be able to do nothing at all in the way of retaliation is a new experience for these rivals who have battled each other now 29 times.

All through the game Williams plays went off like clockwork. Williams was so much stronger and more versatile on the offensive that it was only forced to punt four times. It is safe to say that in no previous games between these two colleges has been seen such a dazzling array of tosses completed.

It is only fair to give the Williams line credit for holding the enemy at bay for

OUTING CLUB TO TAKE FIRST HIKE OF SEASON

Leaving at 1.00 p. m. on Wednesday, Party Will Spend Night at Sucker Pond

Next Wednesday and Thursday have been set as the dates of the first organized trip of the Outing Club, which is to consist of a hike up Broad Brook to Sucker Pond and return by way of Heartwellville. Plans are being made also for a longer trip of three days to be taken December 21 to 23.

Leaving Jesup Hall at 1.00 p. m. Wednesday, the party will proceed up Broad Brook to the old county road from which it will join the Long Trail which leads to Sucker Pond. It is expected that the first night will be spent somewhere along the Long Trail as it is doubtful if the pond can be reached in one afternoon. All men who are interested in the trip should see Adams '22 before Tuesday noon. Those interested in the longer trip should sign up before December 11.

The Outing Club desires that all men who go on any hikes should procure trip cards at the club rooms and fill them out with certain data. Entrants in the mileage competition must fill these out in order to be properly credited. Trail information may be received from any of the officers.

SCORE MOUNTS TO 40-0

Successful Season

FIRST HALF HARD-FOUGHT

Team Shows Power in Third Period —Splendid Triumph for Wendell's System

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 19—Displaying a clock-like precision in all branches of the forward-passing game, Coach Wendell's eleven this afternoon gave Wesleyan the worst beating the Purple has ever administered to this ancient rival. Although outplayed at the start of the contest and almost fought to a standstill throughout the entire first half, the Williams machine developed its real power in the third quarter, and the score had reached 40 to 0 by the time the final whistle blew.

Andrus Field was crowded with alumni who had returned for the "Welcome Wesleyan" week-end, and the stage was set for a Red and Black victory, or at least a hard-fought battle. The game was called and half the first period played before the Williams cheering section arrived in its special train, only to find that no seats had been reserved. Wesleyan started out aggressively by taking the ball on downs on the Williams 25-yard line and forced the issue until nearly the end of the first quarter, when two fumbles paved the way for the first Williams score. After the second touchdown, which came a few minutes later as a result of straight football tactics, the scrappy Red and Black team rallied and barely missed scoring when Wilson intercepted a forward pass on his own five-yard line and carried the ball 30 yards, well out of danger. Soon after the intermission it became evident that Wesleyan had shot its bolt, and with Mallon's superb forward passing in the limelight, the Purple eleven easily turned its hard-earned victory into a complete rout. Thus ended the career of a team which, with its overwhelming victories over Columbia, Amherst, and Wesleyan, and its excellent showing against Yale, is entitled to a high place in the annals of Williams athletics.

Williams lost its star punter when at the start of the game Monjo kicked off and on the play wrenched his knee so badly that he had to be replaced by Richmond, who was forced to punt only five times during the entire contest. After an exchange of kicks, Williams failed to make six inches for a first down, and Wesleyan had the ball on the 25-yard line. Unable to gain through the line, Scroggins tried a drop-kick without success, and a moment later he failed to take advantage of a second opportunity when Mallon's pass from the 20-yard line was intercepted. Richmond punted out of danger, and two Wesleyan fumbles, recovered by Jones and Boynton, gave Williams the ball on the 25-yard line. Two passes, Burger to Mallon and Mallon to Burger, placed the ball on the one-yard line, and Burger carried it over for the first score. At the opening of the second quarter

Achievement

For the first time in five years a Williams football team has won the coveted triangular championship. Never before has the Purple prostrated Amherst and Wesleyan by two such decisive scores in the same year. Williams men everywhere experience a feeling of pride which has been kindled by the achievement of Captain Fargo's team. To attempt to enlarge on what has been accomplished would be too much in the nature of an anti-climax, but we may draw a few observations from the season just closed.

Williams was represented by a distinctly eleven-man team, in which individual brilliancy was always subordinated to the very necessary element of team-play. The fact that the men have become accustomed to work for and through each other is a happy augury for next fall. The scientific system of team-play inculcated in the players will be a great asset when the time comes to develop another eleven, and with most of the same players being drilled in the same methods by the same coaches, Williams would have cause to look forward eagerly to the 1922 season.

Furthermore, whatever sceptics still persisted in deploring Williams' playing "out of her class" and tackling such a powerful team as Yale, have been silenced once and for all by the results of this season. The Yale game was popular among the alumni and the College, and, so far from crippling the squad and bringing disaster on "little Williams," proved to be the physical and psychological stimulus needed to awake the team from its lethargy. With every reason to expect a powerful team next year, we urge that no opportunity be lost to arrange games with first class institutions, for by so doing not only Williams College but Williams football will benefit.

Taken all in all the 1921 season was a genuine success. It is not too early, however, to think of 1922 and to plan to make the coming season successful from every angle. Let us remember that in spite of recent heavy usage there is still plenty of noise left in the Old Chapel bell.

Harbingers of the Future

Ere this appears in print another epoch making event will have taken place. Weston Field and surrounding territory for miles about will have resounded beneath the impact of a titanic struggle. For the day at least, the Sophomore-Freshman football clash in the minds of its followers will have shoved all other world problems and aspirations into the background.

We can picture to ourselves the scene when the two strong under class elevens give of their best under the stimulus of strong class rivalry, while their supporters, out in full force, cheer them on to the last whistle. It is a very pleasing picture, too, for class spirit always proves a fertile breeding-ground for college spirit. The classes that have done the most to make Williams famous are those that have first been noted for their own underclass activities.

That we have some grounds for high expectations from the present under classes was shown in the recent Tug-of-War. The roll-call of 1924 just prior to that annual classic established a unique record—every able bodied member of the class present, save for those busy with varsity football practice. The second victory for a Sophomore class in 20 years was the immediate result of this turnout, combined with a carefully formulated plan of action. Nor was victory made easy by a docile Freshman class. Instead, the battle was carried from the Green River to the very shadow of the Gym. 1925 showed a commendable amount of fight, then, as well as earlier in the year.

Further outbreaks of class spirit cannot but be welcomed as happy omens for the college. 1924 and 1925 have both started well. The foundation is good, but greater tests and greater opportunities are ahead. If their spirit can be crystallized into active support of every Williams interest, if their activities can be coordinated and organized under inspiring leadership, if a closer class unity can draw tighter the bonds of individual friendships, then Williams has little to fear and much to expect during the next few years.

St. John's Society to Hear Address on China

Choosing as his topic "Some Recent Student Movements in China," the Rev. Edward M. Thurlow of Williamstown will address the first meeting of the St. John's Society at 7.30 p. m. this evening in Jesup Hall. The speaker will outline the so-called "Renaissance" movement among the younger class in China as well as the student strike which was recently directed against the action of some pro-Japanese officials.

The election of officers for the coming year will also be held, and plans for more definite lines of activity for the Society will be considered. All undergraduates who are members of the Episcopal Church are eligible for membership in the Society, even though they do not attend the services at St. John's Church in Williamstown.

1924 to Meet Freshman Eleven on Weston Field

Nov. 21—Weakened by the loss of Robinson, whose injuries in the Wesleyan game will probably keep him out of the contest today, the 1924 eleven will face the strong freshman team this afternoon at 4.15 on Weston Field in the annual underclass football game. Practice for the sophomores during the past week was limited to evening signal drills in the baseball cage and a light work-out Sunday afternoon. The freshmen have been holding regular practices since the final game of their outside schedule.

The teams will probably line up as follows:

Problems of Faith Often Are Imagined

have ideas of this sort haven't real problems of faith; while they may have felt it necessary to focus all their minds on questions involving business or ambition, they have not seen that it is likewise necessary to give all their thought to these questions concerning faith.

"Problems of faith are also caused even among conventionally religious people because of some moral disorders which they are not willing to give up. Faith, however, cannot live in a soul defiled. Moreover these are moral problems, not at all real problems of faith.

"What seems to be a paradox is nevertheless true in regard to Christian faith; it is simple and yet very complex. It is simple because it has its foundation on a few simple facts of human experience. These elemental truths are of primary importance. It is complex because it is old, and in those many years of its life it has been cluttered up with a vast number of unnecessary things as well as having gained many useful things. It can be compared to an old house which has been gradually choked up with a mass of bric-a-brac. If we were to live in such an old house we would throw out all these useless articles, keeping only what could be of use. Just so in the case of the Christian faith, we must grasp the comparatively few fundamental truths, and discard the rest. We must not be surprised if we find things in the Christian faith which are of no use to us although they may be of use to someone else. There is much of eternal value in faith, and we must grasp this with a death grip.

"In conclusion, problems of faith do exist, and may likely come to anyone. They arise from a lack of distinction between the essential and the non-essential."

just the fraction of a minute needed to execute the play."

The Boston Herald's praise of William's brilliant forward passing is unstinted: "Williams' wonderful attack and sensational forward passing swept the Wesleyan team off its feet. . . . The remarkable throwing of Mallon of forward passes with Richmond, J. Wilson, and Pease on the receiving end was the finest effort seen on the local field this year."

To quote from the Boston Globe: "In a game full of sensational forward passes the Berkshire team defeated Wesleyan 40-0 on Andrus Field today. The visitors were heavier than the home team, but excelled in skill and aggressiveness."

The New York Times makes the following comment on the game: "Williams opened up a wonderful showing of forward passes here today as the game progressed that swept the Wesleyan eleven before it."

The visitors displayed an aggressiveness and dash that was remarkable. The game was hard fought and substitutions were frequent. The throwing of Mallon in the forward passing and the receiving of Richmond were the finest things seen on the local gridiron this season. The Williams team played well as a whole, with Fargo, Mallon, Richmond, and Wilson doing the best work."

CALIFORNIA GAME UNDECIDED

"Tad" Jones, Yale football coach, declared last Saturday that it was impossible at this time to discuss the suggestion of a Yale-California game during the Christmas holidays. No official invitation has yet been received by the Yale authorities.

In view of the fact that Harvard made the trip to Pasadena less than two years ago, there is little chance of the Crimson team's playing California this year. An official statement from the Princeton Athletic Association declares that "the Princeton team has broken training for this season and would not consider an invitation to play another game this year."

Bury Wesleyan

ter Wilson made 40 yards in three plays, and after several successful line plunges by Burger, Richmond carried the ball over for the second touchdown. After Wesleyan had made two unsuccessful advances on the Purple goal-line, a number of intercepted passes, mainly in Williams territory, ended the half with the score 14 to 0, as Fargo had been successful in both attempts at goal.

Two long runs by Mallon and consistent gains by the other backfield men gave Wilson the chance to smash through center for the third touchdown, and Fargo again kicked goal. A fumble and a 30-yard run by Richmond on a pass from Mallon brought the ball near the goal-line again, but the Wesleyan line held and obtained the ball. After a short punt-out, two line bucks and a pass from Mallon to Richmond netted another score. A few moments later three passes placed the ball on the Wesleyan 30-yard line, and Pease grabbed a beautiful long throw from Mallon, sliding a yard or two over the line for the final score of the quarter. The final period uncorked a dazzling array of forwards by both teams, and Williams made its last score by the Mallon-Pease aerial route.

In spite of the difference in the two scores Wesleyan furnished stronger opposition to the Purple eleven than Amherst had been able to show on the previous Saturday. Undoubtedly the psychology of the occasion enabled the Red and Black team to make up in spirit for a large degree of what it lacked in science. Besides this, the efficient and heady defensive work of King and Captain Butler, on the ends, was largely responsible for compelling Mallon to resort to the aerial game in order to run up the score. The Williams line did not show quite the dash and speed that it did last week, but its work was consistently good, and Captain Fargo and Boynton were especially effective. Mallon's generalship, in mixing up the plays and in passing to different men, is decidedly not open to criticism, except for his almost disastrous toss from his own 20-yard line in the first quarter. He was at the center of most of the spectacular plays, and his throws always went to the man for whom they were intended with deadly accuracy. Burger and Wilson were reliable ground-gainers, and Richmond contributed some pretty broken-field running. In contrast to the variety of the Williams plays, and their complete reliance upon team-work, the Wesleyan formations were extremely simple, and most of them seemed to be centered about one man, Seriggins. The Purple defense did not allow him a chance to get started, and it is probable that therein lies much of the cause of the home team's overwhelming defeat.

First Quarter

Monjo kicked off to Wesleyan's 30-yard line, but on the very first play his knee was injured so badly that he was forced to leave the field, Richmond taking his place.

Adams made first down for Wesleyan on two plays off tackle. Fricke fumbled on the next play but recovered the ball on his 40-yard line. Adams gained a yard, and Fricke punted over the Williams goal line. Richmond punted immediately from the 20-yard line, the ball going out of bounds on Wesleyan's 45-yard mark. Failing to gain in three attempts, Fricke punted to Richmond, who made a fair catch on the Purple's 15-yard line. Williams could not gain through the line, and lost the ball on downs with six inches to go on the 25-yard line. Wesleyan tried three line plays, and on the fourth down Seriggins tried a drop kick from the 30-yard line, which failed.

Mallon attempted a forward pass from his 20-yard line, but Adams intercepted it for Wesleyan. Fricke made five yards, and Adams reeled off ten more for first down 19 yards from Williams' goal. Two plunges failed and Healy knocked down a pass, forcing Seriggins to try another drop kick from the 30-yard mark, which Fargo partially blocked. The ball was given to Williams on its 20-yard line. Burger made three yards and Richmond five, but on the last down Richmond punted out of bounds at midfield. Adams fumbled on Wesleyan's second play, and Jones fell on the ball for Williams on the 45-yard mark. Burger, Richmond, and Mallon made five yards and a Wesleyan penalty gave Williams first down. King threw Pease for a 12-yard loss on an end around end run, and Richmond punted to Wesleyan's 27-yard line, where Abbott fumbled and Boynton recovered for Williams. Two line plays were stopped, but Mallon made 16 yards on a beautiful pass from Burger. Another pass from Mallon to Burger brought the ball to the Red and Black 1-yard line, from which Burger slid over for the first touchdown of the game. Fargo kicked the goal. Score, Williams 7, Wesleyan 0.

Fargo kicked off to Adams who was downed on his 23-yard line as the quarter ended.

Second Quarter

Fricke punted to Williams' 45-yard line, where Wilson caught the ball and ran it back 15 yards before he was tackled. Wilson circled Wesleyan's left end for a 13-yard gain, and two plays later Wilson picked up Richmond's fumble and tore through tackle for ten yards and first down on Wesleyan's 15-yard mark. Richmond made three yards, Burger added three, and Burger made first down on a four-yard plunge. Richmond tried two line plays, and on the second carried the ball over for a touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal. Score, Williams 14, Wesleyan 0.

Fargo's kick-off sailed over the Red and Black goal line, and Wesleyan received the ball on its 20-yard line. After a five yard penalty Fricke punted to his 35-yard line, where Richmond made a fair catch. Wesleyan's line stopped two attempts to gain, and two long passes from Mallon to Pease failed, Wesleyan taking the ball on downs on its own 37-yard line. Fricke punted to Williams' 30-yard line. On an end run Richmond fumbled the ball and Adams fell on it for Wesleyan. Adams skirted right end for eight yards, but Parsons could not gain and a pass by Seriggins on the last down grounded, Williams taking the ball on downs ten yards from the goal. Richmond punted 45 yards, but Fricke ran it back 12 yards and Wesleyan started another advance on the Purple's goal line. Adams made four yards, and aided by a penalty Wesleyan made first down. Three plays by Seriggins, Fricke, and Parsons made another first down on the 30-yard mark. Adams and Fricke made nine yards, and Seriggins threw a ten yard pass to Smith, who was downed 11 yards from the goal. Adams gained five yards, but Wilson intercepted a pass from Fricke on the 2-yard line and dashed 33 yards before he was caught. A pass from Mallon fell into Fricke's arms, and he ran 17 yards, giving Wesleyan the ball on Williams' 43-yard mark. Laws tackled Fricke for a five-yard loss, and Burger intercepted Adams' pass. Mallon threw a pass to Wilson for a 15-yard gain just before the half ended.

Third Quarter

Seriggins kicked off to Wilson on Williams' 23-yard line, and the Williams half-back dashed to the 45-yard line before he was tackled. Mallon broke loose for the first of his long runs, rounding Wesleyan's left end in a 30-yard sprint, aided by wonderful interference. Burger gained two yards, and a running pass from Burger to Mallon gave the Purple first down on Wesleyan's 15-yard mark. Williams was set back 15 yards for holding, and Wesleyan captured the ball when LaGanke fell on Richmond's fumble. Adams and Seriggins made eight yards in three plays, the only gain made by Wesleyan in the entire quarter. Fricke punted to Mallon, who dodged back ten yards to the Williams 37-yard mark. Richmond gave a remarkable exhibition of broken field running, reversing his field twice and evading tackle after tackle for an eight yard gain. Wilson plunged through center for first down. Mallon made two yards, a pass from Mallon to Wilson made seven more, and Burger gained a first down with a five yard smash through center. Richmond made four yards, and on a fake buck by Richmond, Mallon dashed around right end for 22 yards, being nailed on Wesleyan's 13-yard mark. Two line plays by Burger, an offside penalty, and Wilson's smash through center gave Williams its third touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal. Score, Williams 21, Wesleyan 0.

Captain Butler ran back Fargo's kick-off to his 37-yard line, but on the second play Adams fumbled and Jones again recovered for Williams. Mallon shot a pass to Richmond, who zigzagged through the Wesleyan team for a gain of 30 yards, halting on the Red and Black 7-yard line. The Wesleyan line stiffened and beat back four assaults on the goal line, taking the ball on downs. Fricke punted out from behind the line, and Mallon planted the ball on Wesleyan's 17-yard line, from which two bucks by Richmond and a pass from Mallon to Richmond brought another touchdown. Fargo kicked the goal. Score, Williams 28, Wesleyan 0.

Fricke kicked off, and it required only six plays to bring the ball behind Wesleyan's line again. Richmond took the kick on his 18-yard line and ran it back to the 35-yard stripe. Wilson gained 15 yards on a pass over the line from Richmond. Richmond made a yard, and Mallon threw a 13-yard pass to Wilson. Brigham failed to gain, and Richmond's pass to Mallon netted seven yards. On the next play Mallon hurled a long pass from the 30-yard line to Pease, who made a great catch, shook off a Wesleyan tackler, and slid over the goal line with Williams' third score of the quarter. Fargo missed the goal. Score, Williams 31, Wesleyan 0.

Fargo kicked off to Giles, who carried the ball to his 20-yard mark as the whistle blew.

Fourth Quarter

Both teams abandoned straight football in the last period, each side attempting 11 forward passes, of which Williams completed five and Wesleyan one. Fricke hit the Purple line for a five-yard gain, but Burger intercepted Seriggins' pass with his bare hands. Mallon lost nine yards in attempting a pass, and Richmond's low punt sailed into Giles' hands after covering 12 yards. Giles ran it back five yards, and Adams added four, but two passes grounded and Fricke's punt went only 13 yards to Wilson. Richmond gained five yards, bringing the ball to midfield. A 15-yard pass from Mallon to Healy was called back because Williams was offside, but Mallon immediately hurled a pass to Pease, who covered 20 yards on the play. Burger and Mallon rushed the ball to the 20-yard line for first down, and Burger hit the line twice more for eight yards. On the last down Mallon lifted a beautiful pass over the line into Pease's arms, who touched it down for Williams' last score. Fargo's try for goal hit the post and bounded back. Score, Williams 40, Wesleyan 0.

Fargo kicked off to Smith, who gained 20 yards before being brought down on the 50-yard line. Two long passes by Seriggins went wide, and the Wesleyan fullback lost ten yards trying to send a third pass. Seriggins punted 60 yards over the goal line. Richmond shot a pass to Wilson from the 20-yard line, advancing the ball 20 yards. Richmond gained two yards, Burger made six, and on the third try Burger made first down. An 18-yard pass from Mallon to Richmond was nullified by an offside penalty, and Williams was set back to its 30-yard mark for holding. Atkins intercepted Mallon's long pass, and after grounding two attempted forwards, Seriggins again punted over the goal line. Starting on the 20-yard line, Mallon unleashed another passing attack, gaining ten yards on a throw to Richmond and 20 yards with Simons on the receiving end. His next pass was intercepted by Atkins, and on the following play Seriggins' pass was intercepted by Mallon, who carried the ball from midfield to the Wesleyan 25-yard line. A pass over the goal line grounded, giving the Red and Black the ball on its 20-yard mark. Seriggins threw a pass to Bickley for a five-yard gain, and in the last play of the game Seriggins punted to Mallon, who made a fair catch on his 45-yard line.

SOPHOMORES WIN UNDERCLASS GAME

Freshman Eleven is Overcome by 1924 Offense and Succumbs by 13-0 Score

MASON RESPONSIBLE FOR TWO TOUCHDOWNS

Substitute Back Picks Up Fumble and Races 35 Yards for First Tally

Out of the mud and darkness, a new hero rose from obscurity in the annual Freshman-Sophomore football battle held last Monday afternoon on Weston Field. G. A. Mason '24, entering the game as a substitute halfback in the second half, twice streaked down the field with the ball in his arms and crossed the Freshmen's goal line, enabling the second-year team to win an unexpected victory by the score of 13-0.

Although they were favorites at the start, the Freshmen were unable to hold back the furious charges of the Sophomore backfield, which during most of the game made large gains through the 1925 forward line. Kerr, Hoffman, and Stephenson excelled in the running attack, and Bourne and Dickey played well on the offense for the losers. The first year team was unable to sustain its attack, however, and fumbled frequently at inopportune moments, giving 1924 chances to score both its touchdowns in this manner.

Both lines stood up well at times, 1925 making a stand on its 10-yard line in the last quarter which would have deprived the Sophomores of their second touchdown but for an unfortunate break, when 1924 recovered one of its own fumbles two yards from the Freshmen's goal line. Kerr for 1924 and Dickey and Fisher for 1925 got off some long punts, but the passing was uniformly poor, and both attempts for field goals on the part of the losers were unsuccessful.

After battling through two scoreless quarters, the second-year team got its first break in the third period. With the ball in the possession of the Freshmen on their 35-yard line after Dickey had intercepted Kerr's long pass, Chandler fumbled, and Mason scooped the ball from the ground and raced across the goal line for what proved to be the winning score. Barnes failed to kick the goal. Mason made his second touchdown in the last period on a wide end run after 1924 had recovered its own fumble on the Freshman two-yard line. This time Barnes kicked the goal.

DR. ADOLOS ALLEN '78 DELIVERS TRAVELOGUE

'Athens and Constantinople' Subject of Forum Talk Last Monday Night

"Athens and Constantinople" was the subject of an address delivered by the Rev. Adolos Allen '78 before the second meeting of the Forum last Monday evening in Jesup Hall. The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon slides, a feature that lent additional interest to the absorbing talk. Outlining a trip through Greece and Western Turkey, the speaker laid special stress upon the chief cities of these countries.

Before taking up the subject of modern Greece, Mr. Allen briefly sketched the history of "the most brilliant land." "Ancient Athens," said the speaker, "was the seat of the highest development of the intellect and the love of beauty. Athens, although a city of only 20,000 people, produced some of the ablest men of all times. Sparta was the military power, Corinth was the naval power, but Athens was the seat of the soul. After being conquered by the Spartans, Athens lived on, held up by her former glory."

First views of Piraeus were shown. The city, five miles from Athens, is the ancient sea-port of the capital. Moving at once to Athens, slides portraying the Acropolis from different sides were flashed upon the screen. The impregnability of his hill was well illustrated, the steepness of the sides and the ease with which it could be defended from the summit being emphasized.

Dr. Thurlow Speaks at St. John's Meeting

"Some Recent Student Movements in China" was the topic of an address by the Reverend Edward M. Thurlow at the first meeting of the St. John's Society held last Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time John B. Northrup '22 was elected president of the society and Edwin Shuttlesworth '23, secretary.

Mr. Thurlow outlined the Renaissance movement among the younger student class in China as well as the student strike which was directed against the action of some Japanese officials. The characteristics of this transitional period were discussed, and the attempts of the rising generation to combat the state of affairs were reviewed.

After the address the plans for the work of the St. John's Society were discussed. The W. C. A. has agreed that the president of the Society shall have a place in its cabinet, and that the two organizations shall cooperate as much as possible in their work.

SOCCKER TEAM LOSES FIRST OUTSIDE GAME

All-Class Eleven is Defeated 4-2 by Scotias—Bad Snowstorm Hinders Game

Playing in a blinding snowstorm last Saturday afternoon on Cole Field, the All-Class soccer team of the three underclasses met defeat 4 to 2 at the hands of the Scotias of Beunington and Hoosick Falls. The game, which was the first played here with outsiders in two years, was close throughout and team work of a high order was frequently exhibited, in particular by the college line.

During the first half the playing was even and steady, two scores being made by each team. The first goal, shot by Sutton for the college, was the first score made against the visitors this year. The second goal for the college, shot by Greff, came at the very end of the period after a hard and wearing scrimmage which broke through the opposing line. A lead was given the visitors in the early part when their line of the second half broke through for a goal and the final score came with a successful penalty kick, allowed on account of holding by a college back. The work of Stevens at goal was excellent during this period, proving the best during the game. The style of play of the visitors was unfamiliar to the All-Class team and accounted to some extent for the outcome of the game. The line-up follows:

Scotias	All-Class
Cruickshanks	goal Stevens
Scott, G.	r. f. b. Greene, L.
Scott, N.	l. f. b. Bancker
Nichol	r. h. b. Harding
Dewar	c. h. b. Taylor
McGregor	l. h. b. Maxwell
Fraser, H.	outside r. Witcombe
Fraser, J.	inside r. Durfee
Whittet	c. f. Carr
McDonald	inside l. Greff
Dryburgh	outside l. Sutton

Substitutions: H. Greene for Bancker; Clarkson for Carr. Umpire, Neville. Time of halves, 30 minutes.

DR. BARBOUR SPEAKS ON "THE UNATTAINED"

Subject Suggested at Celebration of Tercentennial of Landing of Pilgrims

POSSIBLE RARELY ATTAINED

'Push On, Rejecting Neither the Old Nor the New, Ever Looking for the Truth'

Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, the chapel preacher of the morning, addressed the regular meeting of the Williams Christian Association Sunday evening in Jesup Hall, on the subject, "The Unattained." Dr. Barbour, who is president of the Rochester Theological Seminary, has been a frequent visitor to Williamstown, having spoken before the college at least once each year since 1906.

The subject chosen was suggested to the speaker at the time of the celebration of the tercentennial of the landing of the Pilgrims, when, in looking through old records, he ran across a deed that gave to Massachusetts the right to the whole country west to the "farther ocean." The fact of the failure of those to whom the grant was made to possess their rights appealed to Dr. Barbour as opening up several interesting thoughts.

In the realm of the intellectual life, the real grants within the reach of the mind are seldom attained, according to the speaker, for toil and patience beyond that ordinarily exhibited are required. In the realm of the senses too, rarely do we run across a person who has given the requisite amount of effort to accomplish the possible, comparable to the precedent of the Pilgrims in not attaining their possible possessions. In the realm of the Bible, remarked Dr. Barbour, men scarcely ever pursue their study to its furthest limits.

This idea may be developed in regard to the promotion of goodwill, said the speaker. "If ever I am remembered by people after my death, I would that it would be as a man who gave himself wholly up to the spreading of better relations between his fellows, without holding back anything from full devotion to this task." In the whole matter of searching for truth "let us push on, rejecting neither the old nor the new, always searching for the truth of what we think probable." Summing up his ideas of perfect attainment, Dr. Barbour quoted from Van Dyck:

"To think without confusion, clearly,
To love his fellow men sincerely,
To act from honest motives purely,
To trust in God and Heaven securely."

Widely Known Chemist To Address Phil Union

Dr. Laurence Andrews, Yale '75, of Williamstown, one of the foremost authorities on chemistry in the country, will address a meeting of the Philosophical Union on "Adventures of the Intangible" in the Currier Hall Common Room this evening at 8.00 p. m.

After receiving the degrees of M.A. and Ph.D. from Gottingen University, Germany, in 1882, he became professor of chemistry at the Iowa State College of Agriculture and subsequently at the State University of Iowa. Since 1904 Dr. Andrews has been engaged in research work, and from 1913 to 1914 acted as special investigator in canning for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Outing Club on First Hike

Eighteen miles under adverse weather conditions were covered last Wednesday and Thursday in the first organized hike of the year under the auspices of the Outing Club. The party, under direction of President Adams '22, arrived in Bennington by trolley Wednesday at 3.00 and covered the entire distance to Sucker Pond before nightfall, spending the night in the open. The ten-mile journey from Sucker Pond to North Adams was covered Thursday morning in a driving blizzard.

Hockey Season Begins With Practice in Cage

Practice for the 1922 hockey season officially began yesterday afternoon when all varsity squad candidates reported in the cage for a short drill in shooting goals, under the instruction of Captain Beckett '22. Work on repairing the Cole Field rink has finally been completed, and outdoor practice will be started immediately after the ice has formed, but until then daily drill in goal shooting will be held.

No coach for the team has as yet been obtained, but plans are now under way to secure the advice and aid of a Williams-town man who is interested in the game, and who has had considerable experience. With the exception of Irwin '21, who graduated, and Stephenson '24, who is ineligible at present, last year's successful combination will be intact for the start of the coming season. The hockey schedule for 1922 has not been completed as yet, though all but one or two dates are now closed.

FIVE MEN SELECTED FOR MYTHICAL ELEVEN

Fargo, Richmond, Boynton, Mallon and Robinson Picked for All-'Little Three' Unit

Five Williams men have been chosen for the All-"Little Three" football team, according to the Springfield Sunday Republican, while three Amherst and three Wesleyan players have been selected to complete the eleven. Captain Fargo, tackle, Richmond, halfback, Boynton, center, Mallon, quarter, and Robinson, guard, are the Williams representatives, Clapp, tackle, Elliot, fullback, and Worcester, guard, being the men chosen from the Amherst team, and Butler, end, Fricke, halfback, and King, end, the players picked from the Wesleyan eleven.

In review of the season for the three colleges, the Springfield Republican gives unlimited praise to the Purple team and Coach Wendell's system of training.

"Never before in all the long history of football games between the members of the so-called 'Little Three'—Williams, Amherst and Wesleyan—has any of the three eleven scored such decisive victories over both its respected rivals as did Williams this fall. The 20 points scored by Percy Wendell's men against Amherst's none and the 40 points scored by the Wendells against none for Wesleyan one week later set the highwater mark for finesse in the manner of one of the three beating the other two in one and the same season. Williams is the 'Little Three' champion, beyond the shadow of a doubt. This was the year of Williams's most complete triumph, a triumph for Coach Wendell and incidentally for the Harvard system, under which Wendell received his football education.

"The strength of an 'all team' picked from the 'Little Three' is to a large extent the strength of the Williams team augmented by the star players of Amherst and Wesleyan, three from each. Five Williams men are given places. Two of them (Continued on Fourth Page.)

Novice Swimming Meet To Be Held in December

Open to all undergraduates except those men who have won varsity insignia or who have won first places in former years, the annual novice swimming meet will be held from Monday, December 12, through Friday, December 16, at 4.15 p. m. in the Lasell Gymnasium. Preliminary trials will take place on the first three afternoons, and the finals will be held on the last two days.

A silver cup awarded each year by Francis E. Bowker '08 will be presented to the man scoring the most points in the meet. Following is the list of events, the order of which has not yet been decided: plunge, dive, 40-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 40-yard breast stroke, 40-yard back stroke, and 220-yard swim.

Basketball Practice Starts

Nov. 28—Practice for the Freshman basketball team will start this afternoon under Coach Shinnahan at 4.15 in the gymnasium and will be continued every afternoon for the rest of the week. Candidates for the varsity squad will probably be called out next Thursday afternoon for their first practice.

FOOTBALL BANQUET AT WILLIAMS CLUB

Wendell, Lawson, and Fowler Tell Willingness to Coach Next Year's Team

SIX TEAM MEMBERS ARE GUESTS OF CLUB

Enthusiasm Runs High Over Most Successful Season of Recent Years

Enthusiasm over the success of the football season and the prospects for next year's team ran high at a football banquet held last Wednesday evening at 7.30 at the Williams Club in New York City. Coaches Wendell and Lawson, Trainer Fowler, and Captain Fargo, Burger, Laws, Richmond, Simons, and Wilcox were the guests of honor at the banquet.

Coaches Wendell and Lawson and Trainer Fowler all expressed their willingness to return to Williams for another football season, and although, pending action by the Athletic Council at its next meeting, nothing can be definitely announced, it is probable that such will be the case. There is also a project on foot among members of the Williams Club to raise an amount of money sufficient to install the Harvard system of coaching at Williams, under which the seniors who play on the team for any given year will be enabled to come back for the next football season and act as coaches.

Max Berking, President of the Williams Club, acted as toastmaster at the banquet, at which the attendance was so great that the large dining rooms of the Williams Club were crowded to capacity. Henry S. Johnson led the cheers and songs, of which there were a great many in the course of the evening. All the guests of honor were cheered individually, as well as the Coaches who from time to time aided Coach Wendell in developing the team.

—Mr. Berking called on Coach Wendell for the first speech, and he responded with an appreciation of the co-operation of all concerned with football at Williams in turning out a successful team. He commented on the work of several of the players, especially praising Captain Fargo. He emphasized the fact that without that thing called football sense no team, no matter how well coached, can hope to succeed, and said that the Williams team of 1921 possessed that faculty to a marked degree. His entire speech is printed in another column of this issue.

Mr. Berking next called upon Captain Fargo to speak. He expressed his appreciation (Continued on Third Page.)

COACH WENDELL LAUDS 1921 FOOTBALL SEASON

Praises Work of Team and Managers Before Williams Club Football Banquet

Speaking before the football banquet held last Wednesday night at the Williams Club in New York City, Coach Wendell expressed his appreciation of the fine support which was accorded him by members of team and by the managers and assistant coaches, which made possible such a successful season. He commented especially upon the fine leadership and personal work of Captain Fargo. The entire speech was as follows:

"It is a pleasure to me, it gives me a feeling of deep satisfaction to receive congratulations from you all on what we accomplished this fall. As much as I dislike to take away any credit which comes to Douglas Lawson, Robert Fowler and myself, I must, nevertheless, say that the conditions under which we were working were good and the men who came out for football had a good amount of natural ability and football sense and they had what is all essential to a football team,—namely, guts.

"The conditions under which we were working were good as the graduate treasurer and the football manager had made adequate preparation. Supplies were on hand, manager competitors were running about eager to help in any way, the trips were well planned, everything went smoothly. Doug, Bob and I were able to devote our time and thought to our own work without concern of the many details (Continued on Fourth Page.)

'Work for the Night Is Coming'

With the passing of the Thanksgiving recess there comes a lull in the extra-curriculum activities of the College. For a short period of time competitions loose their grasp; athletics step to the rear and become chiefly a subject for conversation; week-end trips fade in importance with the vanishing of the necessary cuts and the necessary excuses for leaving town. Even the weather man conspires to deprive the undergraduate of his various outdoor activities.

All of which serve to remind us that the coming month is the best of the entire year for work. Recent warnings give proof of low marks to be pulled up. Good marks can always be bettered. Special topics come on apace. Everything combines to call us to work, which, even though it sometimes threatens to become a minor consideration, is, after all, our real purpose in coming to college.

In Retrospect

If "lives of great men all remind us," it surely follows that the past history of a great institution cannot be other than instructive to those who would learn. The old grad returns and speaks of bygone customs and curiosities, and we gasp in surprise that such things should really have been true at Williams and vainly wish that we knew the many incidents in its interesting history. Yet all lies open for the curious one who fears not to delve in the College Library.

The past may serve as an inspiration and guide for the present, wherever that proper information is available. On this very account it is unfortunate that the data concerning what has gone before must remain hidden away in the recesses of Lawrence Hall. The new library will strive to remedy this fault in part, but even the setting aside of a special room for the purpose does not insure frequent visits on the part of undergraduates to that room.

The list of Williams alumni contains many great names, but we class them simply as alumni, and forget them in the College life. At other institutions tablets mark the spots of their undergraduate activities. One comes on the tablet "Nathan Hale lived in this building" on the Yale campus, and similarly elsewhere. The Haystack Monument is perhaps the only reminder of undergraduate activities of the past that confronts the Williams student. Simple tablets at other spots commemorating men and deeds would not fail to add to the historic attractiveness of the College campus.

As another aid toward appreciation of and interest in the past THE RECORD will regularly reprint short items from its journalistic predecessors. Its own columns furnish data of ten years ago, The Weekly supplies the news of two decades ago, The Vidette (fortnightly) and The Quarterly both occupied the field a half-century back, and that hoary grandfather of them all, The Adelpi, "published every Thursday for one dollar," was printing its first issues in 1831. The intention is not, however, to limit quotations strictly to those years. Other interesting material from alumni and outside sources will be welcome at all times and is cordially solicited.

90 Years Ago at Williams

The present number of students in Williams College is 120.

It is a fact noticeable by the most superficial observer, that the prospects of colleges throughout the country are more flattering the present season than at any previous period. Numerous causes might be assigned for the fact. The prevalence of revivals of religion for a few years past—the gradual diminishing prejudices to a liberal education and the fears of a learned aristocracy giving way to the evidence of experience, are undoubtedly among the most prominent causes. Says the last Boston Recorder, "Dartmouth College has 60 in its freshman class—Amherst about the same number—Bowdoin more than 50—Burlington more than usual—and generally, so far as we have been able to learn, the classes entered this year at the New England colleges are uncommonly large—Harvard has but 60—the same number as Dartmouth and Amherst."

The Adelpi (1831)

1925 lost two chances to tally in the first half. Following Kerr's fumble on Dickey's punt in the opening quarter, the Freshmen carried the ball to their opponents' 21-yard line, where Chandler's try for goal failed. A little later 1924 captured the ball on the Freshmen's 40-yard line when Dickey fumbled Healy's kick, but on the next play Dickey intercepted Hoffman's pass and punted out of danger. Another pass by Hoffman was intercepted by Bourne 30 yards from the 1924 goal, but after failing to gain ground Fisher tried a drop kick, which failed.

Early in the third period Kerr threw a beautiful 30-yard pass to Pease, who was downed on the Freshmen's 35-yard line. A penalty set 1924 back 15 yards, and from that point until Mason's touchdown the game was chiefly a punting duel between Kerr and Fisher. Barnes kicked off following the touchdown, and Dickey caught the ball in his five-yard line, running it back to the 25-yard line before he was tackled. A punt by Fisher gave the ball to the Sophomores at the beginning of the last quarter.

Stephenson, Hoffman, and Kerr ripped off substantial gains toward the 1925 goal but on the 10-yard line the Freshmen held, and on the last down 1924 fumbled, recovering the ball for first down on the two-yard mark. Mason dashed around left end in the gathering dark for a touchdown, and Barnes added the 13th point with the ensuing goal. Darkness made the rest of the contest difficult both to play and to watch, and the game ended with the Sophomores in possession of the ball near the middle of the field.

In regard to modern Athens, several views of which were shown, Mr. Allen said, "The cities of this district are notably dirty, but Athens is the exception, being one of the cleanest in the world. The narrow streets which they have, are for the purpose of saving territory and producing shade, an enjoyment of no small value in southern Europe. The business district of Athens is particularly well equipped, having broad streets and all modern means of transportation."

The speaker outlined general conditions in Turkey, emphasizing the absence of enterprise, the excessive taxation, and the graft that prevails throughout the country. After showing several pictures of cities along the Bosphorus, Mr. Allen described Constantinople as "a beautiful city and beautifully located. The modern inhabitants are strong and healthy and make fine soldiers, as the Allies discovered." The lecture closed with a number of views of the city and surrounding country and a description of Constantinople's two fine schools, including the famous Robert College.

ciation of the work of the coaches in developing the team, and said that Coach Wendell minimized the work which he and his associates had done and did not take enough credit for himself. He said that he never played on a Williams team which was as well coached as was the present one, and commented on the advantage of having two coaches rather than one. In addition to praising the coaching during the past season, Captain Fargo laid much of the success of the team to the absolute co-operation between the members of the team, each of whom worked hard and well, to such a degree that in the majority of games it was most difficult to pick any particular star.

Mr. Makepeace, President of the Williams Alumni Athletic Association, who was next called on, expressed the willingness of the Williams Club to do everything in its power to aid the success of football and other athletics at Williams, especially as regards the coaching staff. He discussed the possibility of obtaining a coach for the freshman football team, and the installation of the Harvard system of coaching.

Coach Lawson gave a resume of the season. "The team," he said, "was at the beginning of the season like a collie pup. It had plenty of strength, but you couldn't get it made. The Middlebury game was the turning point of the season, for then the team was really stepped on for the first time, and its fighting blood was aroused. From that time on the real strength of the team began to show itself."

Trainer Fowler ended the list of speakers. He expressed his enjoyment of working with the team during the season, and said that it had maintained a uniform standard of excellent condition throughout the year. He said that he never dealt with a group of men who individually were as good workers and in as good physical shape as was the Williams team. He also praised Captain Fargo, saying that the only trouble he had was to keep him from overworking.

1921 Football Season

that were in the hands of the football manager and his assistants. The spirit of the undergraduates helped us; the week before the Amherst game it was running high. We had many loyal supporters among the undergraduates, but none of them were any more loyal than Cabe and Gus and the rest of Spring Street. To follow this team was to become interested in it. There were some disturbing instances, of course. There were one or two cases where men held their fraternity ahead of their college. 'Rush week' was very disturbing. It demoralized the Freshman football team for a week and hindered the progress of the Varsity team. I would like to see 'Rush Week' put off until the end of the season. We didn't, however, run into many troubles.

"It was a pleasure to work with the men who came out for football. When I was chosen to coach the Williams team of this fall, thanks to the efforts of Dezzio Wadsworth who did much work on my behalf as did John Garret, I expected to meet a good general run of men. The men I met were far above my expectations. They had a good amount of natural football ability. A coach cannot give a man football sense. He can say 'Be where the ball is' but he cannot teach a man to follow the ball as Ed Fargo was able to follow it. He can drill his men on forward pass defense, but he cannot teach a man to pick the ball out of the air the way John Wilson was able to. Boynton showed an unusual amount of football instinct. Every player had something with which to surprise us. Along with this ability the team had what I call 'guts'."

"Nowadays one hears that the times are not what they used to be. There seems to be an idea that as they don't raise cane, the undergraduates are not what they used to be. I don't know what the undergraduates do to raise hell nowadays. I don't know that they do anything. I don't think they do. But that doesn't make any difference. There was just as much good stuff in this year's Williams' football squad as a man wants to see. It was hard to arouse this team but when aroused they fought hard. Billy Burger came out of a scrimmage one day and said, 'Gosh! How I love it!' Doesn't that sound old-fashioned?"

"With the natural ability, with the fight the men had, and with the keenness to learn and the intelligence that they showed we were able to turn out a nice playing team."

"It is not necessary for me to tell you that Ed Fargo was a good captain, or that Doug Lawson was a good line coach, or that Bob Fowler was a good trainer. Ed Fargo led by example. The set expression on his face in times of stress meant more to the men than any words could have meant. The men knew he was on the field. They felt his presence. This Williams team had a personality and Ed Fargo made the most of it."

"Those of you who did not see the line play have probably heard about it. There is no need for me to tell you how well Doug Lawson coached them. He made the most of the ability the men had. It was pretty to watch the line play. I know you appreciate what he has done."

"There is no need for me to speak of Bob Fowler and his work. I think we out-conditioned every team we played, and with the exception of one man who broke his leg in the first part of the season there was not a man unable to play in the Amherst or Worcester games. Besides being an athlete himself, Bob has had many years' experience in training. He was at Harvard under Pooch Donovan for eight years and he was at Princeton with Keene Fitzpatrick. He coached the Princeton cross country team. He can coach hockey, basketball and swimming, and knows a good deal of football detail."

"I must have Lawson with me next year if I return and I must have Bob Fowler, and I also want to be able to have an end coach come to Williamstown once in a while. I hope that matters will be straightened out and that we will be back at Williamstown next fall."

"Thank you for the pleasure which you give me this evening and for the honor which you pay me."

Five Men Selected For Mythical Eleven

are backs and three linemen. Amherst and Wesleyan each place two linemen and one back.

"For the ends there can be no getting around the fact that Wesleyan offers the two best, both as a pair and as individuals."

"For the tackles we have Clapp of Amherst and Capt. Fargo of Williams. Here is a husky pair of linemen, powerful and active. They are there at intercepting passes and their play was more noticeable than that of any other two in the bigger games, though Smith of Wesleyan was a hero in his Williams game. Worcester of Amherst and Robinson of Williams are picked for the guard positions. Here is a place the correct playing of which too often goes unnoticed. A guard seldom has a chance for glory, less chance than the player at any other position on the gridiron. Clapp and Worcester, however, formed the strongest part of the strong Amherst line, while Fargo and Robinson put their men out of the play time and again in their Amherst game. To Worcester and Robinson there was nothing new in breaking through the offensive line and blocking kicks.

At center Charlie Boynton was the surest passer of the lot. He is a more aggressive type than either of the others and is a power on the defense. At giving the ball to his backs he was consistently good and that is a big percentage of the work of a center. Boynton, however, was never content with merely passing accurately and was always busy while the play was in progress. Furthermore, he was often to be seen sifting through to snare plays behind the opposing line.

"Mallon of Williams is a clever quarterback in every way. He tore off long runs in most of his games, not only after catching punts but from scrimmage as well. As a forward passer he showed remarkable judgment in picking the spot to throw the ball as well as in the actual handling of the leather. With Richmond, also of Williams, in the same backfield with him we have a top-notch combination for the forward pass. The most productive way of working the overhead would be with Mallon tossing the ball to Richmond, but Richmond has done some pretty passing himself, with Mallon on the receiving end.

RAYMOND ROBINS ADDRESSES FORUM

Famous Social Economist, Strike
Arbiter and Industrial Expert Here Monday

SPEAKER SUCCESSFUL
BEFORE AT WILLIAMS

'The Democratic Solution for the Industrial Problem' Will be Subject

Lieut. Col. Raymond Robins, of Chicago whose exceptional accomplishments while commanding the American Red Cross Mission in Russia during the recent revolution raised him to the height of national fame, will speak on "The Democratic Solution for the Industrial Problem" in Jesup Hall Monday evening at 7.30 p. m. under the auspices of the Forum. Mr. Robins is well known to Williams, having conducted here in March, 1916, a series of lectures on the opportunities of service for college men.

The speaker's long record of achievements, his varied and interesting life, and his extraordinary experience during the war are excellent qualifications for his ability as a lecturer. As commander of the Red Cross Mission in Russia and special unofficial representative of the American Government for communication with the Soviet Government in Russia in the spring of 1918, his assurances of the Bolshevik strength came as a shock to casual observers of the revolution in America. He fought bitterly to delay the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty and prevent the shipment of raw materials from Russia to Germany in the first months of the Bolshevik regime. Mr. Robins played an important part in the founding of the Progressive Party and was its first candidate for the United States Senate from Illinois. He was deeply interested in the success of his party during its short life, acting as chairman of the Illinois Progressive State Committee and as temporary and permanent chairman of the Progressive National Convention in 1916. He was a member of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Convention during the presidential campaign of 1920. From time to time Mr. Robins has been employed as an industrial expert and a strike arbitrator, serving for several years as investigator of unemployment and superintendent of the Chicago Municipal Lodging House. His capacity as a leader of a social evangelistic campaign in the colleges and universities of North America

CASTS SELECTED FOR THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS

Rehearsals for 'Cap and Bells' Christmas Trip Already Under Way

Definite casts for the three one-act plays to be presented by Cap and Bells during the Christmas vacation have finally been selected, and from now on, daily rehearsals will be held in Chapin Hall, in preparation for the first performance in Albany on December 21. As previously announced, the plays are to be given in Albany, Brookline, Portland, Fall River, Bridgeport, Stamford, and Hartford, and according to recent plans a final presentation will be given in Saratoga Springs in February.

The Crimson Cocoon, by Ian Hay Beith, Ryland, by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman and Thomas Wood Stevens, and The Game of Chess, by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman are the one-act plays that have been selected for presentation, and rehearsals of these are now under the direction of the new dramatic coach, Mr. T. S. Wood, who recently arrived in Williamstown to aid in the choosing of casts.

In addition to the original schedule, the performance in Stamford, Conn., has recently been added, which will take place December 27 in the Woman's Club Auditorium, under the management of Miss Catherine Sherrill. It is also expected that the same plays will be presented at the Skidmore School of Arts, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., either February 11 or 25, where both afternoon and evening performances will be given.

Rev. H. E. Adriance Will Conduct Morning Chapel

The Rev. Dr. Harris E. Adriance '83, of the Church of the Son of Man in New York City, will deliver the sermon at the morning chapel service tomorrow. For many years Dr. Adriance has been a regular preacher at Williams.

After graduating from Williams in the class of 1883, Dr. Adriance attended the Princeton Theological Seminary, receiving from there the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1889. His first pastorate was the Presbyterian Church in Pelham Manor, New York. Resigning from this position to undertake settlement work in New York City under the auspices of the Union Theological Seminary, he was later called to the non-sectarian Church of the Son of Man of which he is now minister. Dr. Adriance is a member of the Holland Society, and of the Williams and University Clubs of New York City.

COL. WHITTLESEY '05 TAKES LIFE AT SEA

Distinguished Graduate Mentally Depressed by Great Shock of Recent War

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles W. Whittlesey '05, of Pittsfield, Mass., his mind weakened by brooding over sufferings he saw others endure as a result of the Great War, and by the recent mental strain he went through as an honorary pall bearer at the funeral of the Unknown Hero, took his own life last Monday, when he disappeared from the steamship Tolosa, on which he had sailed Saturday from New York, for Havana, Cuba. He was the commander of the famous "Lost Battalion" during the war in the Argonne, and for his exceptional bravery was one of the few men awarded the Congressional Medal.

While at Williams, Col. Whittlesey was much interested in all college activities, being a member of the Weekly board, the Lit Board, and the Record Board for two years each, and holding the position of Assistant Editor-in-Chief of the last-named publication in his senior year. He was also Editor-in-Chief of the Guillemotian his junior year, and received the Lit Prize his second year. He was a member of the Gargoyles Society and the Delta Psi fraternity.

After leaving Williams, Col. Whittlesey entered the Harvard Law School, from which he graduated in 1908, and then started a practice in New York City. He was one of the first men to enlist and train at Plattsburg and went to France as a major in the 308th Infantry. As commander of the "Lost Battalion," which was besieged by the Germans for six days, he delivered his crisp and now famous reply in refusing an invitation to surrender, and for his bravery, he was made a lieutenant colonel and was later awarded the Congressional Medal on the Common in Boston. Since his return from overseas, Col. Whittlesey has been engaged in practicing law in New York, and his intention of leaving for Havana was unknown to his business associates.

According to friends of Col. Whittlesey, the sufferings and terrors of the war had had a lasting effect upon his mental capacities, although his nature and attitude were generally cheerful and natural. His mental depression was evidently greatly aggravated by the impressive ceremonies of the Unknown Hero's funeral on Armistice Day, and it is thought that this produced the culmination of his brooding. A memorial service for Col. Whittlesey will probably be held in New York City on Sunday afternoon, which will be under the auspices of his old battalion and war comrades, and it is also expected that a service will be held in Pittsfield at a later date.

Train Agencies Awarded

By action of the Student Council Tuesday evening, the agency for the special trains to and from New York during the vacation was given to H. M. Montgomery '22 and E. Holmes '23. The agency for the Buffalo special returning to Williamstown was awarded to McLoud '22. No applications were received for a Chicago train.

Professor Morton to Speak

Professor A. H. Morton will address the regular meeting of the Williams Christian Association tomorrow evening at 7.30 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. His subject has not yet been announced.

STUDENT COUNCIL TO CONTROL ALL DANCES

Faculty and Undergraduate Body Vote Power to Representative Body

DECISION IS UNANIMOUS

Change of Control Promises More Flexible Policy in Regard to Houseparties

All power in regard to the regulation of houseparties and dances at Williams was given to the Student Council by a unanimous vote of the College meeting which was held on Thursday night in Jesup Hall. Previous to the meeting the College administration had signified its willingness to turn over the control of this difficult matter to the Student Council on condition that the undergraduate body approved of the arrangement, and gave its support to the Council in any decisions it will be called upon to make.

Lyon '22, chairman of the Student Council called the meeting to order at 7.35. He stated the situation in regard to houseparties and mid-semester dances as follows: "For some time it has been felt that the houseparty situation at Williams has been unsatisfactory. The suggestion that the power in this matter be given to the Student Council originated in the Heads of the Houses Committee. This, however, would involve the recognition by the student body of the Student Council's control in the matter, and a decision to co-operate with it in its future decisions. The faculty are willing to turn the power over to the Student Council on this condition."

Praise for Wendell

"The man who, next to Gil Dobie of Cornell, in our opinion came through the hard grind with the most satisfactory record is Percy Wendell, coach of the Williams team. Considering the fact that this was his first year at Williams and that he had no phenoms to work with, Wendell achieved remarkable results."

GUIANA TO BE TOPIC OF NOTED NATURALIST

Illustrated Lecture by Mr. William Beebe is Second Number of Thompson Course

Illustrating his lecture with colored stereopticon slides of pictures taken by himself, Mr. William Beebe, Director of the Tropical Research Station and Honorary Curator of Birds of the New York Zoological Society, will speak Tuesday evening at 8.15 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Auditorium in the second number of the Thompson Course. His subject will be "A Naturalist in the Guiana Jungle."

After having completed his post-graduate course at Columbia University in 1899, Mr. Beebe was in that year appointed Honorary Curator of Birds of the New York Zoological Society. He is a member of many ornithological societies and the author of the following books written from personal experience in scientific investigation: Two Bird Lovers in Mexico, The Bird, The Log of the Sun, Our Search for a Wilderness, Tropical Wild Life, Monograph of the Pheasants and Jungle Peace. Mr. Beebe has also written 69 scientific papers or monographs since 1916 in his capacity as Director of the Tropical Research Station, his most recent contribution being an article in the December number of the Atlantic Monthly.

Although widely known as a leading authority upon tropical research, Mr. Beebe has confined himself almost entirely to writing and rarely lectures before public audiences. The most striking features of his books are his unusual and poetic point of view and his beauty of description. He is a combination of a good writer, a trained scientific observer, and an adventurous traveler, and in his books he has revealed the mysteries of distant countries with a vivid descriptive power that is due to his personal experience in wild jungles and among rudely civilized peoples.

Theodore Roosevelt, in reviewing Mr. Beebe's Jungle Peace, described the book in the following manner: "Mr. Beebe's volume is one of the rare books which represent a positive addition to the sum total of genuine literature. . . . This volume was written when the writer's soul was sick of the carnage which has turned the soil of Northern France into a red desert of horror. To him the jungle seemed peaceful, and the undying war among its furtive dwellers but a small thing compared to the awful contest raging among the most highly civilized nations of mankind. . . . The jungle he herein describes is that of Guiana, and in the introductory chapters he gives canoes of what one sees sailing southward through the lovely islands where the fronds of the palms thrash endlessly as the warm trade blows. . . . He gives records of extraordinary interest in language which has all the charm of an essay of Robert Louis Stevenson. . . . Whatever he touches he turns into the gold of truth rightly interpreted and vividly set forth."

1925 to Hold Debate Trials

Trials for those freshmen who are desirous of entering the 1925 debating team will be held on Monday afternoon at 4.15 in Chapin Hall. The subject for the trial debate will be "Resolved, that College Latin should be required for the A. B. degree." Each competitor will give a five-minute speech on either side of the question. Mr. Taesch and a committee of seniors will act as judges. The three members and the alternate chosen will hold a debate with the sophomores some time before the Christmas vacation.

DISARMAMENT TOPIC FOR TRIPLE DEBATE

Amherst, Wesleyan, Williams Will Discuss Timely Question
December 9

On the general question of "The Abolition or Limitation of Armament," the annual Amherst-Wesleyan-Williams triangular debate will be held next Friday evening at 8 p. m. in Jesup Hall. Professor C. L. Maxey, acting president of the college, will preside at the Williams-town contest.

Schauffer, Terry, Zalles '22, and Helfrich '24 will represent Williams in the debate, although these men have not as yet been assigned to defend a definite sides of the question. Decision was reached at a conference of representatives of the three colleges to reduce the size of the teams from three men to two, with the option afforded any or all colleges to send an alternate if they so desire. As a result of trials held this week for alternate positions, Dickinson and Phelps '22 were chosen for these positions. Judges for the discussion in Jesup Hall have been appointed as follows: Professor C. W. Coombs, of Worcester Polytechnic Institute; Mr. John E. Howell, Head of the English Department, Troy High School, Troy, N. Y.; and a third man yet to be determined.

Simultaneously with the speaking at Williamstown, the Williams negative team will oppose Amherst's affirmative at Amherst and the latter college will send a negative team to argue with Wesleyan's affirmative at Middletown. Under the

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

Overheard at the Williams Club

"If Doug and Bob come back to Williams next season, I will surely be there."
—The head coach.

"I will be on the job next season if I have to be wheeled back in a baby carriage."
—The line coach.

"Percy and Doug and I have been called the Three Musketeers. Wherever they go, I go, too."
—The trainer.

And so the Athletic Council at its last meeting signed all three for another season. Unbridled optimism concerning the coaching prospects for the 1922 football team reigns today among Williams undergraduates and alumni. The prospects for good material for the team itself are likewise regarded as bright, with a large percentage of the present team returning next fall. Yet "there is many a slip—" and battles harder and more bitter than any Amherst or Wesleyan game lie ahead for the football squad—namely, the semi-final and final exams. Until these virile enemies have been met and overcome, caution is necessary in making predictions for next year.

Honor and Condole

The news of Colonel Whittlesey's death under such tragic circumstances will bring sadness to Williams men. As Commander of the Lost Battalion, Colonel Whittlesey stands foremost on the list of Williams heroes in the World War, and his country awarded him its most distinguished honor, the Congressional Medal. His death was a direct result of the war. He was a man "who never feared machine guns, but succumbed to inner terrors." Williams will honor him as she does her other sons who gave their lives for their country.

Colonel Whittlesey died in a war to end war, and his very death forcefully reminds us that the war has not yet passed out of our lives, that we cannot, must not, forget it. It was not what he endured in the war, but what he endured since which drove this brave man to death. "Thought of the disabled, the jobless, the friendless, the widowed, burdened his mind." And those thoughts bring home to all of us the realization that the thing which caused the suffering must not occur again. His death serves as a call to disarmament. It challenges us to do all in our power, by our writing and by our actions, to further the success of the Conference for Disarmament which now holds the attention of thinking people throughout the world.

Another Step Along Plank Four

Additional proof of the growing sympathetic spirit and co-operative attitude on the part of the College Administration toward the present undergraduate body was shown in their decision on the dancing question. Student Self-Government of the right sort, sane, cautious, and wholesome, is being given the proper emphasis by this action.

In accepting the power and responsibility, the Student Council is undertaking a considerable burden of work. The detailed duties which are involved are not lightly to be assumed or executed, but we are confident the Council has accepted the labors involved with the interests of the entire college at heart. Disagreements and misunderstandings are bound to arise, and it is well to remember that destructive criticism will never help, and only hinder the work of the Council.

Entire power must necessarily rest with the Student Council, if it is properly to be held accountable. It is this complete control that Administration and students have jointly agreed to place in the hands of a representative, responsible body. Just as rapidly as the undergraduate body, both as a unit and as individuals, demonstrates its capacity to restrain and adequately control its actions so rapidly may a liberal policy be formulated by the Student Council. Conversely, every excess, every failure on the part of a single individual to control himself, means so much added stringency in the attitude of the Student Council. That body will possess the power and will be held strictly accountable, but in the last analysis, the students themselves must assume the responsibility for their freedom or lack of freedom as regards dancing.

10 Years Ago at Williams

Speaking from the foot of the Soldier's monument on Main Street last Monday afternoon, Miss Emma Goldman, the noted anarchist, explained the purposes of the anarchistic movement.

Ainslie '14 was mentioned in an article in yesterday's New York Tribune discussing "All-Eastern" football selections.

The fourth presentation of The Duke of Killarney by Cap and Bells was enthusiastically received by a large and appreciative audience in Hartridge Auditorium at Plainfield, N. J., last Wednesday evening. Brackett '15, in spite of his height and poor vocal qualities, gave a remarkably good interpretation of the part of Lady Henrietta.

MR. SALTER SPEAKS ON OLD GREEK MUSIC

Classical Society Hears History and Selections of Music of Greece

Mr. Sumner Salter addressed the Classical Society last Monday evening in the Choir Room of the Chapel on the subject "Classical Greek Music." Assisting in the reproduction of certain fragments of ancient music were Mrs. Howes, Mr. Shreiner, Mr. T. C. Smith, Mr. T. H. Proctor, and Muekenhaupt '22.

At the opening of his talk, Mr. Salter remarked that perhaps the reason that so little has been found out up to the present time concerning the music of the Greeks is that Greek students have been too little versed in musical knowledge to comprehend the musical remains which they have discovered in their studies, while musicians have been, on the other hand, too little familiar with the Greek language to make use of the relics that have been found. The story of the origin of music according to the legend of Hermes and his lyre of the tortoise shell was told by Mr. Salter. This lyre the speaker thinks consisted originally of but four strings. Later more were added until the full complement of eleven were used. Music came to hold a high place in the life of the Greeks. No boy was brought up without a thorough knowledge of the fundamentals as they were then conceived. At an early date considerable progress had been made in the science, and what now corresponds to our melodic scale was developed.

Two Homeric hymns for which musical settings had been composed from ancient sources in Venice about the beginning of the 17th century were sung by Mrs. Howes. The settings without doubt give a good idea of the original. At the present time, there are 33 of these hymns in existence, of which only two have been set to music. Mr. Shreiner sang in the original an ode of Pindar, typical of the early odes. Music has been found for the chorus of "Orestes" of Euripides, which was also sung by Mr. Shreiner. A hymn to Apollo, the longest and most important of the ancient selections, discovered at Adelphi in 1893, was sung by Muekenhaupt. The last selections given as interpretations, and sung by Mrs. Howes, consisted of three short hymns of invocation. With these last hymns, all knowledge of music is closed for over a thousand years.

PHILOSOPHICAL UNION EXAMINES INTANGIBLE

Paper Read by Dr. Andrews Which Treats Several Phases of Theory

"Adventures of the Intangible" was the subject of a paper read by Dr. Laurence Andrews, of Williamstown, before the Philosophical Union at a meeting last Tuesday evening in Currier Hall. Following the lecture, an unusually hearty discussion over the points advanced by Dr. Andrews in his talk was engaged in by those present.

Opening with a few generalizations in explanation of his subject, Dr. Andrews spoke of the place prejudice has come to play in modern life and philosophy, and remarked that one of the undeniable signs that show culture and education is the possession of a wide range of plausible prejudices. However, prejudices founded upon single experiences are usually false, whereas the more valuable come from a series of experiences through which runs a single element of truth. The speaker compared these last prejudices to mathematical progressions, ever increasing to a limit, truth. In inquiring into the reactions that come after prejudices to form truth, Dr. Andrews quoted the definition that "truth is a concept that conforms with certainty."

At this point, the speaker illustrated his ideas with various equations borrowed from physics on which he based a discussion of the nature of force and energy, both prominent in the realm of the intangible. Modifications and combinations were made in these equations, bringing out relationships that exist theoretically. The statement was made that up to the present time, insufficient experimentation had been made to determine the certainty of the common laws of attraction and gravitation. For some phases of the problem, actual proofs have been worked out, but for others, such as the case of bodies in motion withdrawing from each other, the researches have not been precise enough to verify the attraction laws in all conditions.

Going further in his "adventures," Dr. Andrews attacked the nature of time in relation to space. From the remarks of the speaker would arise the belief that the element known as time occupies the same relation to space that the conjectured fourth dimension holds to the three actually known dimensions.

As a hypothetical case a being in a two-planned world was imagined who apprehended the presence of a third plane, but was unable to comprehend such. Thus, from his three-planned world, man is able also to apprehend an additional plane, but is unable to comprehend its relationship to the others. This was pointed out as time.

"The Student Council has as yet formulated no definite policy in regard to the houseparty question. It will have the power to say how many parties each house or class may hold, and may regulate the hours at which each dance shall end. Under the present system there are no mid-semester dances. Under the control of the Student Council permission to hold such parties may be obtained by a petition. The control of the matter by the Student Council will mean a more flexible dancing policy, more liberal or more stringent as circumstances may require." Questions from various men at the meeting served to clear up several matters which were not understood. The Student Council has not as yet drawn up any definite policy in regard to houseparties, but will, whenever it is consistent with its duty to the College authorities, be guided by what it conceives to be the general sentiment of the undergraduate body as determined through the medium of the Heads of the Houses. No definite promises have been made on the assumption of this power by the Student Council, and in all specific cases it will have an entirely free hand. In the matter of general policy, however, the Council will be guided by the desires of the College Administration on the subject.

The motion that the student body delegate to the Student Council the power in regard to the regulation of houseparties was made by Grant '22 and amended by Lyon '22. Preston '22 moved the question in a speech which summarized the sentiment of the meeting,—that the Student Council have complete power in regard to the matter regardless of any difference of opinion on the campus in regard to any of its decisions.

INTERCLASS LEAGUE GAMES TO COMMENCE

Seniors Meet Juniors and Fresh- men Face Sophomores This Afternoon

Basketball will be ushered in to hold the center of the athletic stage at 2.00 p. m.
this afternoon when the Seniors face the Juniors in the opening of the interclass series for 1921. The four class teams have been practising all the past week, and the varsity squad will get into action for the first time next Monday.

Keen competition is promised in the interclass race, which will continue until the Christmas recess. An unusually large freshman squad has reported for work, and threatens the supremacy of the 1924 quintet, which last year won the championship without dropping a single game.
The Seniors and Juniors have the advantage of longer experience in playing together than their rivals, and this fact may offset the better material in the 1924 and 1925 squads.

Freshman practice began last Monday afternoon, when 30 candidates reported in the Gymnasium. The yearling players have been drilling an hour a day under the supervision of Coach Shanahan and Captain Wilson of the varsity, and some promising individual material has been discovered. The champion Sophomore team reported on Tuesday, and has had several workouts in preparation for the 1924-1925 game which will follow the 1922-1923 contest this afternoon. The Seniors have been practising since Tuesday, and the 1923 squad held its first workout Wednesday afternoon.

The schedule of the interclass league is
as follows:

Saturday, December 3—1922 vs. 1923
1924 vs. 1925
Wednesday, December 7—1922 vs. 1924
1923 vs. 1925
Saturday, December 10—1922 vs. 1925
1923 vs. 1924
Wednesday, December 14—1922 vs. 1923
1924 vs. 1925
Saturday, December 17—1922 vs. 1924
1923 vs. 1925
Monday, December 19—1922 vs. 1925
1923 vs. 1924

Raymond Robins Addresses Forum

brought him to Williams on his last visit.
Mr. Robins' four day campaign at Williamstown in 1916 was an unqualified success, when he spoke on "College Men and Civic Leadership," "Mastery and Power" and "Faith" before audiences that taxed to the utmost the seating capacities of the Jesup Hall Auditorium. Editorials written at that time reflect the impression which Mr. Robins left upon Williams undergraduates. A quotation from the RECORD of March 13, 1916 reads as follows: "Because Raymond Robins is a forceful speaker and a manly man, he appeals to men, regardless of their convictions, or lack of them. He bases his talks upon personal experiences of so varied a nature that, laying aside entirely their connection with social problems, they are in themselves entertaining and instructive as anecdotes from an unusual life." In the editorial column of the RECORD for March 16, 1916 is found
"Raymond Robins has not disappointed Williams men. A fighter to the very core, he inspires his hearers with the graphic recital of his uphill battle against political corruption and economic evils. The four hundred men who welcomed Mr. Robins last Tuesday and the four hundred and fifty who crowded Jesup Hall last evening need no incentive to make them attend the closing addresses today and tomorrow.
But those other fifty men, who thus far have wasted two opportunities, we again urge to associate themselves with Williams College, for Williams College is backing Raymond Robins."

provisions of the agreement, the particular phase of the question which will be discussed in the debate will be sent by night leges on Wednesday night preceding the debate, arriving in the respective colleges on Thursday morning, when the message

Each team will be given exactly 36 hours question.

Olmsted '22, manager of the team, is negotiating for additional debates next Spring, among which are the Brown-Dartmouth-Williams triangular league contests which will probably be held during the latter part of April. Arrangements are being formulated for a debate with Princeton if possible, either a dual contest or a single debate at Princeton being considered. It is probable that there will be one other debate during the season, but as yet, no definite plans have been formulated.

Arrangements have been completed for a schedule of six concert-dances to be given during the Christmas recess in Springfield, December 21, East Orange, December 22, Bound Brook, December 23, Montclair, December 27, Philadelphia, December 26, and in the new ballroom of the Hotel Plaza, New York City, December 28. Tickets for all concerts may be procured from Foster, Greiner, Miller, and Saunders '21 or from the College Pharmacy.

Chapman and Greer are leaders of the Glee and Mandolin Clubs respectively. Under the direction of Mrs. Chas. F. Seeley, who has coached the organization through several successful seasons previously, the Clubs have reached a high degree of excellence in a program of classical and semi-classical music. Compositions of the present day have not been neglected, for the Williams College Orchestra, under the leadership of Luedke '22, occupies a prominent place on the program with the rendition of a number of the most popular dance pieces with original variations. Other features of the program are selections of a lighter variety by an octet of Glee Club members and a bass solo by Chapman '22. The program in full for the North Adams performance, which will remain essentially the same for the Christmas series of concert-dances, is as follows:

1. Come Fill Your Glasses Up Patterson '06
2. Yard by Yard Brown '09, Wood '10 Combined Clubs
3. Autumn's Dance from "Peer Gynt Suite" Grieg
4. Scandinavian Toselli
5. Mandolin Club
6. Hark, The Horn Awakes the Morn Pandegger
7. Glee Club

SOCCER TEAM LOSES TO NORTH ADAMS 5-4

Visitors Overcome 3-0 Lead With Aid of Heavy Wind—Durfee Makes Three Goals

Playing in a stiff wind which proved a severe handicap to both sides in turn, the All-Class soccer team went down in defeat before the North Adams team by a score of 5-4 on Cole Field last Saturday afternoon. In the first half, with the wind at their backs, the Williams players amassed a 3-0 lead, but North Adams came back strongly in the closing period and gained a hard-earned victory.

Williams won the toss and elected to defend the west goal, favored by a westerly gale. After 15 minutes of play, during which time the ball was almost continually in the visitors' territory, Witcomb scored for the Purple, and Durfee made two more goals before the period ended. North Adams took advantage of the change of goals in the second half, and piled up four goals in quick succession. Durfee evened the count with his third successful shot, but the winners were able to shove the deciding tally through the goal in the last few minutes of the game.

The work of the forward line was the outstanding characteristic of Williams' playing. The backfield, particularly the fullbacks, were unable to stop the North Adams attack, and were continually drawn out of position by the skillful passing of the visiting forwards, who showed themselves more expert at handling the ball than the Williams players. Durfee did the most effective work for the losers, scoring three goals, and making the only tally scored against the wind during the entire contest.

American History To Be Required for Admission

Hereafter History E, American History, will be accepted as an entrance requirement in all five admission groups instead of History A, Ancient History, although the latter will be accepted as a required subject for the next three years. This change came as a result of extensive statistics compiled from members of incoming classes.

Dr. Carl W. Johnson, Assistant Dean and Acting Registrar of the College, gave the following statement to the Record: "At a meeting of the Faculty held November 7, the Faculty voted that American history be substituted for Ancient History as a subject required for admission to Williams College, the Ancient history being retained as an elective, and that a footnote be inserted in the catalogue advising the incoming student to offer Ancient history as an elective. Up to and including September 1924, Ancient history will be accepted in lieu of American history if candidates wish to offer it."

RAYMOND ROBINS TO SPEAK BEFORE FORUM

Noted International Figure Will Discuss Present Problems of Industry

Dec. 5—With "The Democratic Solution for the Industrial Problem" as his subject, Lieutenant-Colonel Raymond Robins of Chicago, whose series of lectures conducted in Williamstown in the spring of 1916 on the opportunities of service for college men was extremely interesting and instructive, will address the Forum at a meeting to be held tonight at 7.30 p. m. in Jesup Hall. Mr. Robins has for many years been interested in national affairs, having been, during the war, the commander of the American Red Cross Mission in Russia, and also, in 1918, the representative of the United States with the Soviet Government and an ardent enemy of the Bolshevik regime.

His political experience is no less varied than that of his national and international interests, for Mr. Robins was one of the chief instigators in the formation of the Progressive Party, and was the first candidate for the position of United States senator from Illinois to be nominated by that organization. He maintained an active interest in that party for several years, and was chairman of the Illinois Progressive State Committee, and also chairman of the Progressive National Convention in 1916. In the presidential campaign of 1920, Mr. Robins was a member of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Convention, and

PURPLE PLAYERS ON MYTHICAL ELEVEN

Fargo, Boynton, Richmond, Pease and Mallon are Honored by Newspapers

Three choices have been made during the past week for various all-teams, two of these including Williams gridiron men and the third favorable mention of two of the players.

According to the Columbia Spectator, selecting from Columbia's opponents this season, Boynton, center, and Pease, right end, have been chosen for the first team. For the second team, Fargo was picked for left tackle, and Richmond for full back. Comments on the men chosen are as follows: "Boynton of Williams is the selection for pivot on the first team. The play of the Purple's center, while not particularly brilliant, has been consistently good throughout the season." In the selection of Pease the comment was made that "perhaps he was a bit outstanding" from the other players in his position. Fargo, according to the Spectator, was "one of the outstanding tackles."

For the Hartford Courant's All Connecticut Valley team Boynton, Mallon, and Fargo were chosen. Mallon and Richmond also receive favorable mention in the selections for the Springfield Republican's All-Eastern Eleven, being designated in the same class with such players as Barehet of Navy, French of Army, Conroy, captain-elect of Navy, Garrity and Lourie of Princeton, O'Hearn of Yale, and Wilson of Penn State, as "backs of importance."

TRIANGULAR DEBATE TO BE HELD FRIDAY

General Question is on Policy of Limitation of All World Armaments

TO MEET WESLEYAN HERE

Schauffler, Terry, Zalles '22 and Helfrich '24 Will Comprise Williams Teams

Undertaking the discussion of some particular phase of the general topic, "The Abolition or Limitation of Armament," Williams will face Amherst at Amherst and Wesleyan in Jesup Hall next Friday evening at 8.00 p. m. in the annual Amherst Wesleyan Williams triangular debate.

Professor C. L. Maxey, acting President of the College, will preside at the Williams-town debate between the Williams affirmative and the Wesleyan negative teams; and Professor C. W. Coombs of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Mr. John E. Howell, head of the English Department of the High School at Troy, N. Y., and a third man not yet chosen will act as the judges for this contest.

Schauffler and Terry '22 with Dickinson '22 as alternate will uphold the affirmative side of the question for Williams in Jesup Hall. The negative team which will oppose Amherst at Amherst is composed of Zalles '22, Helfrich '24, and Phelps '22, alternate.

Similar to the new plan which was first tried last year, the specific wording of the topic for the debate will be released by night letter tomorrow evening, reaching an official in each of the three institutions on Thursday morning. In this way each team will have only 36 hours to prepare the particular question for the debate.

PRACTICE STARTS

Six Members of 1921 Basketball Team Expected to Report

December 5—Varsity basketball practice will begin this afternoon at 4.15 in the Lasell Gymnasium, and will be held every afternoon at this time throughout the week. The men who will try for places on the 1922 team are not exactly known as yet.

Six members of last year's team will probably come out for practice: Hyde '22, left forward, Wilson '22, left guard, Boynton '23, right guard, Wightman '23, right forward, and Blackmer '24, right forward. Of the substitutes, Bianchi '22, center, Kellogg '22, right guard, Kellogg '24, left forward, and Pease '24, right guard will probably enter the practice also. Any other men who are interested in trying out for the team, with the exception of Freshmen, are urged to come out this afternoon.

Hockey Squad Holding Daily Practice in Cage

Hockey practice for the 1922 squad has been held every afternoon in the baseball cage, under the direction of Captain Beckett '22, in preparation for the coming season, and from all indications, Williams will again be represented this winter by a successful hockey team. The schedule of games is still undergoing changes, but dates have been definitely arranged with Amherst, Columbia, R. P. I., Springfield College, West Point, and Yale, and it is probable that a game will be played with M. I. T. and the Albany Country Club.

Drill in goal shooting has constituted the practice so far, but outdoor work will be started as soon as the ice is formed. In addition to Captain Beckett, Buell, and Rowse '22, and Clark, Richmond, and Stephenson '23, all of whom won letters last year, there is some fairly promising material in the lower classes. Both Bigelow and Stephenson '24 are ineligible at present, but among the freshmen, Horwill, Lowes, and Spencer '25 have been doing excellent work, and others are improving daily. After the Christmas vacation the squad will be put, and a training table will be started immediately after the outside drill is possible.

FAMOUS NATURALIST TO SPEAK ON GUIANA

Mr. William Beebe to Give Illustrated Lecture in Thompson Course

Mr. William Beebe, Director of the Tropical Research Station and Honorary Curator of Birds of the New York Zoological Society will speak on "A Naturalist in the Guiana Jungle" this evening at 8.15 p. m. in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. The address, which constitutes the second number of the Thompson Course of entertainments, will be profusely illustrated by colored stereopticon slides of pictures taken by the lecturer.

Mr. Beebe is perhaps better known to the public as an author of personal experience in scientific investigation than as a lecturer, in which capacity he rarely appears. In addition to many scientific papers and monographs written since his appointment as Director of the Tropical Research Station, he has written the following works: Two Bird Lovers in Mexico, The Bird, The Log of the Sun, Our Search for a Wilderness, Tropical Wild Life, Monograph of the Pheasants, and Jungle Peace.

The lecturer is widely known as a leading authority upon tropical research and is a member of many ornithological societies. He is a combination of a good writer, a trained scientific observer, and an adventurous traveler, and in his books, (Continued on Third Page.)

Mr. Willard E. Hoyt, treasurer of the College, served as treasurer of the Institute during its sessions here. Mr. James E. King '12 one of the editors of the Boston Transcript, was official press representative. Prof. Karl E. Weston '06 was secretary of the Institute and Prof. Walter W. McLaren served in the capacity of chief secretary of conferences.

"Skylands," the country home of the late Francis Lynde Stetson '67 in the Ramapo Hills of New Jersey, has been sold to Clarence Lewis, of Blair and Co., New York City. As this piece of property was included in the residuary estate which was bequeathed to Williams College, the proceeds, amounting to $250,000, will go to the College.

ELECT BOYNTON '23 FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

Varsity Center is Brilliant on Defense—Has Played Two Years on Team

HAS WON LETTERS IN THREE MAJOR SPORTS

Several Newspapers Have Placed Him at Pivot Position on Selected Teams

Charles A. Boynton '23, of Waco, Texas, was elected captain of the 1922 football team at a meeting of the present letter men held last Friday at Kinsman's Studio. Boynton, who has played center on the varsity for two years, is a brother of Ben Boynton '21, who captained the team in 1919 and 1920 and who was selected as All-American quarterback by Walter Camp in 1917.

Boynton has been a consistently good defensive player throughout his career, and shared with Captain Fargo the line honors this year. His passing has always been excellent, and he has shown great ability in getting down the field under punts. Probably his greatest value to the team has been as a roving center, in which capacity he has exhibited good generalship in breaking up opponents' plays.

Many newspapers have rated Boynton's work at center highly. The Springfield Republican named him as center on the all-star team of Amherst, Wesleyan, and Williams this season, and the Hartford Courant gave him this position on its All-Connecticut Valley eleven. Both the Columbia Spectator and the Wesleyan Argus have placed him ahead of every other center met by their respective teams during the past season.

Boynton prepared for Williams at the Waco High School, where he played center on the football team for three years, and was captain in his senior year. At Williams he has won his varsity letter in football, baseball, and basketball. He was center and captain of the 1923 freshman football team, and has held down the pivot position regularly on the varsity for two years. He was guard on the basketball team last winter, and won his letter as an outfielder on the baseball nine. In addition, Boynton has played on his class basketball team. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

1922 AND 1924 WIN FIRST CLASS GAMES

Seniors Win Over Juniors, 18-12, and Sophomores Nose Out Freshmen, 11-10

Team	W	L	Pct.
1922	1	0	1.000
1924	1	0	1.000
1923	0	1	.000
1925	0	1	.000

Victories were won by 1922 and 1924 in the first round of the interclass basketball series played last Saturday afternoon in Lasell Gymnasium. The seniors won over the juniors, 18 to 12, and the sophomores defeated the freshman team by the score of 11 to 10. Loose playing with poor shooting, always noticeable at the start of the season, characterized both games.

In the 1922-1923 game, the juniors early took the lead and held it until the middle of the second period, when an offensive on the part of the seniors turned the outcome of the game. Bianchi and Richmond starred for the victors and Mallon and Fasse put up a good fight for the juniors. The line-ups for the teams were as follows: 1922—Wolfe lf, B. Kellogg rf, Bianchi c, Luedke lg, Richmond rg; 1923—McAneny lf, Mallon rf, Vilas c, Hoyt lg, Fasse rg; substitutions: 1922—Greer; 1923—Stephenson.

In the first half of the 1924-1925 game, a decided advantage was held by the losers, but a long shot from the middle of the floor by Jayne and several successful foul shots by Kellogg, in the second period, won for the sophomores. The line-ups follow: 1924—J. Kellogg lf, B. Greer rf, Jayne c, Pease lg, Johnson rg; 1925—Reed lf, Cook rf, Dowling c, Dunham lg, Dugan rg; substitutions: 1924—Gregory; 1925—H. Brown, H. Fisher.

A Forgotten Rule

In the Rules for Awarding Insignia there is a section taken from the By Laws of the Williams Athletic Council which of late years has been forgotten, or, at least, has fallen into disuse. This reads, "In Football and Baseball, the 'W2nd' shall be awarded to such members of the squad as the Coach, Captain, and Manager shall recommend to the Athletic Council."

At the last meeting of the Athletic Council it was proposed that this rule be revived, and that the "W2nd" be awarded this year to several football men who failed to win their "W's", but who have worked hard and consistently for the team during their years of eligibility. No definite decision was reached on this matter, however, and THE RECORD wishes to urge that the Council carry through the proposal and award such "W2nd's" as the Coach, Captain, and Manager shall deem just.

It would seem unnecessary to advance arguments in regard to this matter. In every college, and on every squad there are men who strive to the best of their ability, but who are unable to win straight letters, although they have, in some cases, contributed as much to the success of the team as those who have been successful. It is obvious to all that they deserve some recognition for their efforts. Many other colleges award the secondary letter. Chief among them, perhaps, are Harvard and Yale. This year at Williams, especially, certain men deserve recognition, and it is a fitting time to put this rule once again into force.

THE RECORD would make one suggestion, however, in regard to the awarding of secondary letters. The honor attached to them will to a large degree be inversely proportional to the number given out. In order that they may carry with them the honor that they should, we suggest that there be an amendment to the rule, either written or understood, that secondary letters be awarded only to seniors. If a man who has another year in college wins a secondary letter, and if the following year he wins a straight "W", the secondary letter immediately falls low in his estimation. This falling into disrepute will inevitably communicate itself to others, and the purpose of the award, to give honor to some who deserve it, but who have not been able to win the highest honor, will be destroyed. In this way, also, numbers will be reduced, and the "W2nd" will bring honor secondary only to the "W" itself.

Minor Sports

Football, with its attendant emotions, has been laid to rest, and we have now entered the arena of minor sports. Hockey, swimming, and basketball all beckon to their loyal devotees, and the spirit and support of the college are no longer focused in the heroic limelight of the grid-iron but diffused amongst the more intimate surroundings of the rink, the pool, and the court. The very atmosphere has changed from one of unified devotion to the "one and only" team, to a spirit of widely-varying activity, of many strivings toward the common end of victory for Williams. The winter campaign is on.

Memory need not travel very far back to find a fitting goal for the hockey team to aim at. Last year's septet achieved an unforgettable record. With all but one of that team again on the ice, we may safely consider the outlook alluring, particularly if the need for a coach is recognized and properly satisfied. Men who love the combination of a game well-played and Williams triumphant, are already looking forward to more than one treat this winter.

For swimming, we entertain hopes—little more. Here we find a past that is barren of glories to encourage emulation; a present that is pinched and cramped by the inadequacy of swimming facilities; a future depending almost entirely on the individual efforts of a faithful, and often unappreciated, team. We can only bespeak for the swimming team the active interest of the College, for in this way much can be done to reverse the outcome of recent years.

Basketball is always a problematical game, and we hesitate to make any prophecy concerning it. Certain it is that more men get their exercise in basketball than in any other winter sport, so that regardless of victories or defeats, the season will be valuable. Coach Shanahan, has given evidence of his ability to develop a winning team. He deserves the confidence of the College, without which no coach or team will ever be really successful.

A new tributary was recently added to minor sportsdom at Williams. After a long period of probation, soccer has been officially welcomed by the College, and the first varsity soccer team will take the field next fall. In 1916, efforts to establish the English game as a minor sport failed because it was believed that the small number of men engaged in it did not warrant the added expense to the College. That soccer has increased greatly in popularity since that time is shown by the large number of men who took part in the interclass series this year. There remains, nevertheless, an obligation on the followers of soccer. They must justify the extra expense not only by building up a winning team, but also by sound financial management. To expect a winning eleven for the first year or two would be far too sanguine; but in the meantime nothing will serve to install the new sport in the confidence of the College so much as a sane and efficient management. This accomplished, winning teams will follow.

There is food for thought in regard to soccer and other minor sports next year, but there is no time like the present for participation in them. The winter months constitute a fertile field for the athletically inclined both indoors and out, and far from suffering by the absence of a major sport on the program, they offer a wide opportunity for everyone to plunge heartily into some branch of sport. To lie idle while the snow is on the ground is to lose a sterling chance for the exhilaration that comes with enjoyable physical exercise.

By defeating Amherst last Saturday on Weston Field, Williams won the football championship of the New England tri-collegiate league for 1901. It is the first football championship that Williams has won in ten years. The final score of the game was 21 to 5 in favor of Williams.

Attention has been called to the fact that several of the instructors are in the habit of keeping their classes until the very end of the hour. It has always been customary to let the classes out at least five minutes before the end of the hour. It is true that five minutes is allowed after the hour begins, but this is a small margin for those who have to go from one of the upper floors of Hopkins to one of the laboratories.

Last Friday evening, Amherst defeated Williams in the pool tournament held in J. A. Goodrich's rooms.

The annual North Adams run was held Saturday, November 23, with about fifteen entries. Sheldon, 1901, finished first in 23 minutes, 55 seconds, with McMillan, 1903, second and Mears, 1903, third. Dec. 6, 1901. The Weekly.

RESOLUTIONS

At a special meeting of the Board of Governors of the Williams Club held in New York City on Thursday, December 1, 1921, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Responsive to the intensity of grief felt by the men of our college fellowship at the death of Colonel Charles W. Whittlesey, a graduate of Williams in the Class of 1905, we, his fellowmembers of this Board, in behalf of the Williams Club, of which he was Vice President, extend to his family that deep sympathy which is quickened by the sorrow of our own hearts.

He was so closely affiliated with the activities of this Club that it is of historical interest and importance to set down in our permanent records certain facts with reference to the personality of this man, the significance of whose life and death has so profoundly stirred his fellow-citizens that events of lasting international import may be affected thereby.

We loved him as a friend; always ready to give to others, he asked naught for himself. We valued his counsel and respected his judgment. We knew him as a devoted son of the College, ever loyal to her interests, alert in thought and action to further her well-being and prosperity.

His wide reading had given him an unusual knowledge of English letters and of the literature of other lands, endowing him with vision and deepening the natural idealism of his heart and intellect. The open book of nature spread on hill and stream and woodland he loved to study and to enjoy. He possessed the attributes of all that is finest and noblest in American manhood. The modesty and refinement of his bearing intensified among us the realization of his true worth. And yet we little knew the man.

Before the war we never thought of him as one who would bear arms but rather as an earnest advocate of the attainment of higher planes in the progress of civilization through resort to peaceful measures only. But when the crisis came he put aside the practice of his profession as a lawyer and was among the first to offer himself as a soldier in the greatest armed conflict within the knowledge of man.

The record of his achievement is known to every continent. Strict but implicitly just as a disciplinarian, by the strength of his personality and example, he won the devotion of his troops, and as Major of the 308th United States Infantry in the Argonne Forest, he carried his battalion through an experience almost unparalleled in military annals, thereby placing his name for all time in that little group of immortals internationally recognized as the heroic figures in the world's history. Both privately and publicly he disclaimed any personal title to renown, and invariably emphasized the service and sacrifice of those under his command.

Signally honored by the President and Congress of the United States and by the Republic of France, acclaimed by the press and public of America, fame and honor in the years of youth were his. Wealth and political prestige were assured if he would but accept them. He chose rather to minister unto others. His return to civil life was characterized not by personal aggrandizement but by self-immolation, not by acquisition of fortune but by charity for the poor, help for the maimed, and sympathy for the suffering. Faithful to his idealism, he counted no cost too great to his purse or to his health if he could relieve the pain or assuage the grief of others.

By his death the strength and beauty of his character have been so vividly revealed to all men that the public press, editorially, in grateful, tender and sympathetic tribute to his memory, expresses the indebtedness of this country to him and voices the belief that great as has been his service in life, by the sacrifice of his untimely death he has pleaded for world comradeship in arguments more eloquent than any tongues of living men can utter. Who shall say that the idealism of his heart will not be realized and that by his death he has not contributed to the winning of a greater victory for his fellow-men than that ever attained by the conquest of forces in battle?

Reverently, gratefully, lovingly, the men of his College cherish the recollection of association and friendship with Charles W. Whittlesey, whose passing from among us we mourn, the impress of whose character upon us we shall ever sense, and who "being dead yet speaketh" to us.

We direct that these resolutions be transmitted to the family of Colonel Whittlesey, that they be posted upon the bulletin board of the Club, and we request that they be published in the WILLIAMS RECORD, the Williams Graphic, and in the Williams Alumni Review.

By order of the Board of Governors,
Max B. Berking,
President.

Attest:
James B. Greene,
Secretary.

Arrangements for the North Adams concert next Friday evening are in charge of a committee composed of Dr. Herbert H. Gadsby, principal of Drury High School, Mr. James M. Chambers, director of music of North Adams Public Schools, and Sayen '22, manager of the Musical Clubs. Tickets for the concert will be $1, $.75, and $.50.

The Williams College Orchestra, featuring S. A. Jones '23, saxophonist, has been enlarged and improved and promises to repeat its great success of last season when the Clubs visited North Adams, Pittsfield, Boston, Providence, Montclair and East Orange, N. J. and New York City. In addition to its regular part on the program, the Orchestra will furnish music for dancing after the six concerts on the Christmas schedule.

Beginning the series of Christmas season concert-dances, the Clubs will appear in Springfield, on Wednesday evening, December 21, when a performance will be given in the ballroom of the Hotel Kimball at 8.15 p. m. The concert will be followed by a dance for which the Williams College Orchestra will supply music. Arrangements for this performance are in charge of E. Converse Lincoln '14, local manager who has consented to cooperate with the undergraduate management in making the Springfield concert a success. Tickets are $2 each.

The second performance of the trip will be given at East Orange, N. J., on Thursday evening, December 22 at the Woman's Club. Here it is expected that the Clubs will receive the usual warm reception that has characterized their visits to East Orange, Montclair, and New York City in the past few years. As will be the case in all of the concerts of the Christmas series, a dance will follow the performance. Henry M. Halsted, Jr. '18 is local manager for the East Orange concert, for which tickets are $2.

For the first time in the history of the Clubs, Bound Brook has been included in the 1922 itinerary, and a concert-dance at the Middlebrook Country Club on Friday evening, December 23 constitutes the third of the six appearances of the Clubs. At this concert the Clubs will be guests of the Country Club. George V. LaMonte '10 has accepted the local management of the affair.

Suspending activities until after Christmas in order to allow as many men as possible to spend the holiday at their homes, the fourth concert will be held in the Foyer of the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, Pa. on Monday evening, December 26. Philadelphia, though not a city entirely new to Musical Clubs activities, has not been included on the schedule for several years, and with recent improvements in the organization of the Clubs and with the addition of the special features enumerated above, this concert-dance should prove a highly enjoyable and successful affair. Alexander M. Swain '09 is in charge of local arrangements for the Clubs in the Quaker City. Tickets are being sold at $1.50.

Tuesday evening, December 27 will find the Clubs returning to the metropolitan district, and at that time, a concert and dance will be given in Montclair, N. J. at the Montclair Club. Here the Clubs should meet with another enthusiastic greeting, if past performances can be taken as indications. Carlton W. Cox '17 is local manager of this concert, for which tickets are $2.

Closing the 1922 season, the Clubs will give their final concert-dance in the New Ballroom of the Hotel Plaza, New York City, on Wednesday evening, December 28. Little need be said of the continued success of Musical Clubs affairs in New York, for previous concerts and dances have always drawn capacity houses, and indications are that the concert-dance of this season will be even larger and better than ever before. Leonard Newborg '16 is in charge of arrangements for the concert at the Plaza, and tickets are $2.50, with no seats reserved on the main floor.

For several years has been a noted strike arbitrator and industrial expert throughout the United States. His knowledge and intimate relationship with the facts and actual data of the topic which he is to lecture upon this evening, give Mr. Robins a position of unqualified authority on such industrial and social questions of the present day, and his view point has been widely broadened by his connection with both the political and international interests which he has always maintained. He has long been noted as a lecturer, and has gained prominence through his well-known social evangelistic campaigns in the colleges and universities of the country.

In 1916, Mr. Robins spoke on "College Man and Civic Leadership," "Faith," and "Mastery and Power" in his four day series, and his ideas and excellent lectures were greatly appreciated by the undergraduate body, upon whom a deep impression was left.

Famous Naturalist to Speak on Guiana

he has revealed the mysteries of distant countries with a vivid descriptive power that is due to his personal experience in wild jungles among rudely civilized peoples.

Theodore Roosevelt, in reviewing Mr. Beebe's Jungle Book, described the book in the following manner: "Mr. Beebe's volume is one of the rare books which represent a positive addition to the sum total of genuine literature. . . . This volume was written when the writer's soul was sick of the carnage which has turned the soil of Northern France into a red desert of horror. To him the jungle seemed peaceful, and the undying war among its furtive dwellers but a small thing compared to the awful contest raging among the most highly civilized nations of mankind. . . . The jungle he herein describes is that of Guiana, and in the introductory chapters he gives cameos of what one sees sailing southward through the lovely islands where the fronds of the palms thrash endlessly as the warm trade blows. . . . He gives records of extraordinary interest in language which has all the charm of an essay of Robert Louis Stevenson. . . . Whatever he touches he turns into the gold of truth rightly interpreted and vividly set forth."

'Cercle Francais' Meets

Assistant Professor J. N. Cru addressed the Cercle Francais last Thursday evening at the Zeta Psi house on the subject of "La Race Francaise." A discussion on the advisability of producing a play in French took place and the subject was left for further consideration. Light refreshments were served. The Cercle wishes it understood that attendance at its meetings is no longer dependent on invitation but that all interested in French are welcome.

Organ Recital Will Be Given Wednesday

Including such well known composers as Bach, Handel, Rubenstein and Schubert, the two hundred and thirteenth weekly organ recital will be rendered by Mr. Summer Salter on Wednesday afternoon at 4.15 in Chapin Hall. Two especially popular works, Schubert's Serenade, and Rubenstein's Rêve Angélique, from Kammermusik Ostrau, are on the program of the afternoon.

The entire program is as follows:

Concerto in G minor, George Frederick Handel
Chorale—"Adora Thyself, O Fond Soul," J. S. Bach
Messe de Mariage, Theodore Dubois
Serenade, Franz Schubert
Rêve Angélique, Anton Rubenstein
Marche Russe, Oscar E. Schunke

'Graphic' Has First Birthday

Dec. 5—Exactly one year ago today the Student Council gave permission to the editors of the old Literary Monthly to revise and reorganize their publication, changing its name to The Williams Graphic and Literary Monthly. The success of the periodical is evident from the fact that the circulation has increased five fold within the period of a single year, being now about 1000 copies contrasted to the 200 copies circulated under the old regime. When the change was made the Lit was in debt, and the management of the Graphic has already absolved this debt and has placed the publication on a sound financial basis.

New York Special to be Run

Announcement has been made that a special train will be run from Williamstown to New York at 4.15 p. m. on December 21 if 125 men will make the trip. A return special will leave the Grand Central Terminal for Williamstown at 12.25 a. m. on January 5 and will arrive in time for chapel. Agency for the trains is in the hands of H. M. Montgomery '22 and Holmes '23.

Seniors to Hold Smoker

Plans for a Senior Class smoker are being made by a committee of six men made up of Brandeis, D. Dewey, S. Phillips, Seor, Wallace and Youngman '22. It is intended to hold the affair at the earliest possible date, probably next Saturday evening. An invitation has been extended to hold the get-together in the Delta Kappa Epsilon house, and this will probably be accepted. The holding of the smoker will reinstate a custom that has not been followed for several years.

LOYALTY TO TRUTH BEST FOR RELIGION

Professor Morton Shows W. C. A.
Progress Towards Present Conception of God

"Be loyal to truth always," said Professor Asa H. Morton in his address before the meeting of the W. C. A. on "Religion and Superstition" in Jesup Hall last Sunday evening.

In opening the question of the place which superstition has in our religion today, Professor Morton first read selections from the Bible to show the heightening of the conception of religion with time up to the speech of St. Paul to the Athenians in the "Acts of the Apostles." Seeing the altar to the unknown god to whom the Athenians sacrificed when they were in doubt as to the author of an act, Paul in a diplomatic way tells them that this unknown God who is so powerful is the God of the Christians. This God he defines as a God in whom we live and move and have our being.

"The Greeks had the same word for religion and superstition. Religion and magic have also been interwoven, and the task of separating these other two words from religion has never been completed fully. There was a distinction between superstition and religion at the time of Cicero.

"Each one of us knows pretty well what religion means to us, namely our attitude towards God. Superstition means to us something that is partly magic or else a belief which we cling to when it has no rational foundation. We can never get rid of faith, for we must believe what we cannot prove. As for a distinction between faith and credulity, we have never been able to tell where one leaves off and the other begins.

"All through the ages we have been trying to purify our faith of the superstitious element, and progress is being made. It is a fact, at least, that we revert to a lower type of religion if we become superstitious. We must be loyal to truth at all costs, for no God who is worthy of our devotion will wish us to be liars or hypocrites. If in our own experiences or by the experiences of others or through the sciences we find some truth, we must hold to it. The less superstition we have the better for us."

Underclass Debate Will Be Held After Vacation

Dec. 5—Because of the nearness of the triangular debate, the annual Freshman-Sophomore debate has been postponed until after the Christmas recess. Trials for candidates for the freshman team on the subject, "Resolved, that college Latin should be required for the A. B. degree" will be held this afternoon at 4.15 p. m. in Chapin Hall, each man being allowed a five-minute speech on either side of the question. Mr. Tausch and a committee of seniors acting as judges will select the team which will consist of three men and one alternate. Trials for the sophomore team will probably be held just prior to the Christmas recess, but as yet no definite date has been set.

COLLEGE NOTES

McKelvy '24 has entered the competition for second assistant manager of hockey and swimming.

Richmond '22, Kellogg '24, and Reid '25 were recently elected captains of the senior, sophomore and freshman basketball teams respectively.

Proctor '23 and Pease '24 have been awarded the agency for freshman toques which will be placed on sale December 12.

Fraternity Election: Delta Psi—Hall '25.

INTERCOLLEGIATES

HARVARD HONORS FOCH

Marshal Ferdinand Foch was granted the honorary degree of LL.D. during his visit to Harvard University last week, and in his speech of thanks he mentioned the great record that was made by Harvard during the recent war and praised the high scholastic standing maintained by the faculty and students of Harvard. In the opening address, Pres. Lowell recalled the famous deeds of the General when acting in his official capacity in France and welcomed the hero to the University.

LARGE WRESTLING SQUAD

Over 170 men are practicing daily at Cornell for the wrestling team, most of them in preparation for the Novice Meet to be held Dec. 16. A Freshman schedule is in process of completion, this being the first year in which the University will be represented by a Freshman team.

RUSHING AT BROWN INTRICATE

Fraternity rushing at Brown is more complicated this year than ever before. Failure to agree on a standard system has resulted in the following situation: five fraternities have been rushing and pledging since October 5th; two others have been rushing since December 1st and will continue until December 15th; and twelve others have been rushing since December and will continue until December 8th. Of the first five fraternities, only one has placed pledge buttons on its Freshmen, thus further complicating the situation.

RIFLE TEAM HAS BIG SCHEDULE

Facing a difficult schedule of 18 inter-collegiate contests, the Yale Rifle Team started its winter season last week when it reported for preliminary drill on the indoor range of the University, and from now on, daily practice will be held until late spring when the schedule is completed. All matches will be determined by telegraph or cable, and the principal colleges and universities which Yale will face are Cornell, Columbia, Dartmouth, California, Princeton, Harvard, and Oxford.

NO GAME WITH CALIFORNIA

Under the present conditions, it is expected that Cornell will be forced to refuse the offer made by the California Tournament of the Roses Association to finance a game with the University of California, to be played on New Year's day, in Pasadena, since the management of the Cornell eleven has definitely stated that the season is closed and that training and practice will not be resumed. It was hoped that this would be the annual East vs. West football game which has featured the famous Tournament of the Roses for the past few years.

HARVARD HOCKEY STARTS

Over 125 men reported for the initial practice of the Harvard University hockey squad last week, and regular drill was immediately started in the Arena rink which has been used by Harvard teams for several years. Captain Owen and Coach Clavin addressed the candidates, stating that light practice would be held at the start of the season, but that after the Christmas vacation, intensive work would be begun in which results would determine selection of the varsity team.

Mt. Holyoke Choir Will Give Christmas Concert

On next Friday evening, the Vested Choir of Mt. Holyoke College will give a Christmas Carol Concert in the South Congregational Church of Pittsfield. The choir, which is made up of 70 voices, is conducted by Miss Julia B. Dickinson, and accompanied by Professor William C. Hammond at the organ and Miss Mildred Holt on the harp. Tickets, which are $1.50 each, may be secured at the door.

To Sell Christmas Seals

Christmas seals will be on sale at the fraternity houses and at the stores on Spring Street in the near future. The proceeds will be used under the direction of the National Tuberculosis Association for combating consumption and its allied diseases.

Change in 'Graphic' Contents

Three changes have been announced in the contents of the Williams Graphic as printed in the last issue of The Record. An essay entitled "Reflections of an Undergraduate," by Edgerton G. North has been added, and a poem, "The Query of Argana," and the "Letters from Labrador," will not be included in this issue.

Correction in 1909 Score

In the issue of November 19th of The Record, the score of the Williams-Wesleyan game in 1909 was wrongly given as Wesleyan 7, Williams 6. The score should have read: Williams 7, Wesleyan 6. Williams overcame its opponent's lead in the second half and scored a touchdown.

Service for Whittlesey

In memory of Lieut.-Col. Charles W. Whittlesey '05, who committed suicide on November 27, by jumping overboard from the steamship Toloa, a memorial service was held last Saturday in the 71st Regiment Armory in New York City. Father Halligan, former chaplain of the 308th Infantry, conducted the services.

Raymond Robins Suggests Federal

CONDEMNS FORCE IN ECONOMIC DEALINGS

Property Rights Subordinate to Human Rights, Says Noted Industry Expert

"I propose, as the democratic solution of the industrial problem, a graduated income tax, a graduated inheritance tax, a land tax on unimproved increment, and a special branch of the federal government organized for the purpose of putting before the public unbiased facts about all industrial disputes in the country." These suggestions were made before the Forum last Monday evening by Mr. Raymond Robins, well-known social economist, strike arbiter, industrial expert, and former head of the American Red Cross Mission in Russia.

"The struggle for economic freedom now occupying the attention of the world," declared Mr. Robins, "is the third great world movement, vying in importance with the struggles for religious and political freedom of former times. Industry in America is carried on under the capitalistic system, which has certain advantages and certain defects which we must consider before we can reach a solution."

"The advantages of the American capitalistic system are these: First, it allows freedom for the economic producing idea, freedom for the creative mind. Second, it develops the outdoor, fact, business mind, in contradistinction to the indoor, legalist, precedent mind. This outdoor type of mind has probably done more for American business life than anything else. Third, it tends to put square men into square holes and round men into round holes, thus constantly increasing efficiency of production. Fourth, this system of production actually produces. Modern capitalism has solved the problem of production and has given the world an economic surplus, which is an invaluable step toward improving conditions of morality, education, and living conditions among the laboring classes."

"There are certain dangerous tendencies and difficulties, however, in the capitalistic system," continued the speaker, "the first of these is the tendency to monopoly, a perfectly natural tendency where age, with its desire for peace, takes the place of"

FAMOUS NATURALIST LECTURES ON GUIANA

Mr. William Beebe Talks on Animal Life, Natives and Scenery of Tropics

Taking as his subject "A Naturalist in the Guiana Jungle," Mr. William Beebe gave a lecture accompanied by illustrations from stereopticon slides last Tuesday evening in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. The keynote of his discourse was the idea that one can travel in the jungles of Guiana with as much safety and physical comfort as anywhere in the United States, and the stories of its unpleasant and shifting climate and the dangers from the wild animals are entirely false.

The principal part of the lecture consisted of stories of the animal life, the natives, and the unusual beauty of the British Guiana jungle, with the illustrative slides. "In spite of the vast resources of this part of the tropics, there is very little industry going on," said Mr. Beebe. "Because of the difficulty of transporting the gold and diamonds, which form the chief resources of the country on account of the inaccessibility of the places, little exploring is done for these treasures except by the natives who paddle up the rivers and spend a few weeks getting some small diamonds or nuggets of gold, and then return to the villages to exchange their discoveries for money and to live in comparative luxury until their funds are exhausted."

"One of the most unusual traits of the inhabitants of Guiana is their love of the sound of a typewriter. They are mystified more by this than anything else, and"

Novice Swimming Meet Will Start Next Monday

First trials in the annual novice swimming meet, in competition for the Bowker Memorial Swimming Trophy, presented yearly in memory of Francis E. Bowker Jr. '08, will be held next Monday afternoon at 4.30 p. m. in the Lassell Gymnasium pool. All members of the undergraduate body who have not won varsity swimming insignia or a first place in a previous novice meet are eligible to enter.

Entry lists will be posted over the weekend, on which all men wishing to swim in the meet can signify their respective events. Preliminary trials for these entrants will be held on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of next week, while final heats will be run off on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. As yet the definite events for each day have not been determined, but the following will be held: 40 yd. dash, 40 yd. breast stroke, 40 yd. back stroke, Fancy diving, plunge, 100 yd. dash, and the 220 yd. swim.

VARSITY BASKETBALL PRACTICE COMMENCES

25 Men Report to Coach Shanahan
Monday—Nine Veterans on 1922 Squad

At the beginning of regular Varsity basketball practice last Monday afternoon in the Lassell Gymnasium, 25 men reported to Coach Shanahan. The squad will be cut to 13 or 14 today, and the men who survive will undergo intensive practice in preparation for the season's schedule which will open on January 16, and which will probably include ten games in all.

Nine members of last year's squad, of whom five were regulars of the 1920 quintet, are eligible and have reported this year. Captain Wilson '22 and Boynton '23, guards, Hyde '22 and Blackmer '24, forwards, and Fargo '22, center were all awarded insignia last year, and Fleming and Hyde '22, Pease '24 are guard candidates of varsity experience, whereas Bianchi '22, has worked previously as substitute center. Jayne and Kellogg '24 among the new men are showing good form in the forward and center positions respectively. Other members of the squad at present are as follows: Centers—Vilas '23, Parkhill '24; Forwards—Rose '22, Mallon '23, Blackmer, Greer, Herron '24; Guards—Fleming, Wolfe '22, Witcombe '23, Gregory, Healy, Johnston, Taylor '24.

Coach Shanahan is optimistic about prospects for the success of the season, for in addition to considerable good material on the present squad, he finds basketball possibilities in six members of the 1925 class whose work he has been watching during the interclass series. The men, who, if they succeed in keeping eligible after midyears, may be given an opportunity of trying for places on the squad include Beckwith, Cooke, Duggan, H. C. Fischer, Ide, and Read '25. Following the custom of last season, there will be no training table for members of the basketball squad, the Coach feeling that with care on the part of the individual players, the inconvenience and extra expense of special board can be avoided.

Williams Asked to Enter Intercollegiate Ski Meet

Invitations have been extended the Williams Outing Club by the winter organization of the Lake Placid Club to participate in the ski and snowshoe meet, to be held at Lake Placid on December 31, which is an intercollegiate affair in competition for a trophy awarded by President Harding. All men who are interested in making the trip should see Adams '22, president of the Outing Club, for estimated expenses and further details.

Skiing, snowshoeing, and skating races will feature the day, and at present it is expected that practically all of the prominent Eastern colleges and universities will be represented in these events. Provision for the entertainment of the guests has been made by the officials of the "The Sno-Birds" as the club is called, and award of the cup is to be made on the basis of the number of points scored by each college in the six events of the day. Special members privileges will be extended all college representatives in regard to accommodations, and invitations to the Ski-Jumping contest on the day previous to the College Day have also been given.

WILLIAMS DEBATER ILL

Phelps '22 to Take Place of Zalles on Purple Negative Team
at Amherst

Dec. 9—Williams negative team faces Amherst at Amherst, and the affirmative team Wesleyan in Jesup Hall at 8.00 p. m. this evening in the annual Amherst-Wesleyan-Williams triangular debate.

Worded and sent by Mr. M. O. Hudson, of Cambridge, the particular question which will be under discussion was received in Williamstown last Wednesday morning at 8.00. It reads as follows: Resolved: "That the manufacture of arms and ammunitions of war by private enterprise should be prohibited by international agreement."

Opposing the Williams affirmative team which is composed of Schauller and Terry '22 with Dickinson '22 as alternate, the Wesleyan negative team which will speak in Jesup Hall is made up of the following men: Carleton F. Hubbard '22 of Center Moriches, L. I. (Capt.); Rising L. Morrow '23 of West Pawlet, Vt., with Frederick C. Reich '22 of Jersey City, N. J. as alternate. Due to the sudden illness of Zalles '22, Phelps '22 who was acting as alternate for the Williams negative will now make one of the main speeches against Amherst at Amherst. Helfrich '24 will be the other principal speaker in this contest.

Professor C. L. Maxey, acting President of the College, will preside at the Williamstown debate, and the three judges which have been chosen are as follows: Professor C. W. Coombs of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Mr. John E. Howell head of the English Department of the high school at Troy, N. Y., and Dr. Laumelet Andrews of Williamstown, well known as a research worker in chemistry.

Rules for the debate under the new system of a two man team provide for main speeches of 12 minutes, with a rebuttal of eight minutes for each man.

Ohmsted '22, manager of debating has announced that it will be impossible to arrange a debate between Princeton and Williams which had been contemplated.

To Dedicate 1923 'Gul' To Prof. Asa H. Morton

Prof. Asa H. Morton, for 28 years a member of the Williams College faculty, both in the Romance Language and Theology departments, and at present the Barclay Jermain Professor of Natural Theology, was chosen the member of the faculty, to whom the 1923 Guldimensian is to be dedicated, at a meeting of the board of that publication held last Tuesday evening. A graduate of Wabash College and several foreign universities, Prof. Morton was called to Williams in 1893, at which time he was an instructor in the Romance Language department. He attained his present professorship in 1910, and has received the degrees of M.A. and L.H.D. from Wabash College in 1883 and 1900 respectively, and also was granted an M.A. degree from Williams in 1896.

G. E. PLUMB TO SPEAK ON RAILROAD CONTROL

Originator of Plumb Plan for Railroads to Address Forum
Meeting

Glenn E. Plumb, well-known lawyer and originator of the Plumb Railroad Plan, will address the fourth meeting of the Forum, which will be held next Monday evening in Jesup Hall at 7.30. Mr. Plumb will take for his subject "Democratic Control and Operation of the Railroads."

Glenn E. Plumb is perhaps best known as the deviser of the Plumb Railroad Plan, which was adopted by the organized railway employees associations for the reorganization of railways, and which caused wide-spread discussion throughout the United States two years ago. This plan proposed to place a committee of fifteen men in control of the railroads of the country, five of whom were to be railroad employees. Included in the plan was a proposal that a certain portion of the profits of the railroads be distributed each year among the railway employees.

Mr. Plumb, who is at present the Counsel for the Railroad Brotherhoods, has been associated with the railroads, and with railroad officials and employees for years, and knows his subject intimately from both sides of the question. He is giving speeches on the subject on which he will speak to the Forum on Monday night and on the subject "Industrial Democracy" throughout the country during the present winter, and comes to Williams from Rochester, where he addressed two large meetings.

Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

At a meeting of the Record Board held last Thursday evening in the Press Room, Jesup Hall, Greenville S. Sewall, 1923, of Rye, N. Y., and Herbert McAneny, 1923, of New York City, were elected to the positions of First and Second Associate Editors respectively. These men will succeed to the positions of Editor-in-Chief and Managing Editor, respectively, next spring.

At the same time, Lyndall F. Carter, 1924, of Neeham Heights, Mass., and Robert W. Powell, 1924, of Springfield, Mass., were elected to the editorial board as a result of the third competition from the class of 1924.

Ours to Reason Why

A great Armament Conference is writing history in indelible words at Washington day by day; the world's future peace may be made or marred this very month by the representatives of three powerful governments. It is not the past and its mistakes that are under consideration; it is the future and its possibilities,—the very future for which the college men of to-day will later expend their best energies, and whose accounts they must finally audit, making good the deficit, or profiting by the gain.

Yet what an air of unconcern and cheerfulness, credulous optimism one frequently sees in evidence about the campus. Meanwhile the Conference delegates are endeavoring to turn from the mires and quicksands of mistaken past policies and are groping for firm footholds in the darkness of an untried future. Where a single misstep may mean disaster, careful vigilance must be exercised and every advance or backward step should be scrutinized with care. College students would seem more competent than any other class to undertake this duty and it is gratifying to see such interest as has been aroused in various quarters. Viewed as a whole, however, it is disquieting to witness the amount of ignorance rampant about seats of learning as regards the practical aspects of disarmament. At Williams this week, ample opportunity for remedying such a state of ignorance is being afforded. In addition to the sidelights thrown upon the Conference by the daily press, an inter-collegiate debate promises an attempt to define some of the problems of disarmament, while Dr. Tarr's address before the W. C. A. next Sunday evening should help clarify the Eastern situation. Such is the light of understanding promised for those who now can but "see as through a glass, darkly."

In this connection THE RECORD takes pleasure in reprinting below the interesting evidence of the intimate concern Williams students took long ago in international affairs. Although a full month's sail from the shores of the Old World in 1798, they recognized a real danger to this country in the French Revolution and its aftermaths. To-day a month suffices to circle the world, the radiogram flashes almost instantaneously to the uttermost parts of the earth, and dare we affirm that foreign upheavals are any less menacing to American ideals?

124 Years Ago at Williams

President John Adams, Sir:
Though members of an Infant Institution and of little comparative weight in the scale of the Union, we feel for the interest of our country. It becomes every patriotic youth in whose breast there yet remains a single principle of honour, to come forward calmly, boldly, and rationally to defend his country. When we behold, Sir, a great and powerful nation exerting all its energy to undermine the vast fabrics of Religion and Government, when we behold them inculcating the disbelief of a Deity, of future rewards and punishment; when we behold them discarding every moral principle and dissolving every tie which connects men together in Society, which sweetens life and renders it worthy enjoying; when we behold them brutalizing man that they may govern him,—as friends to Humanity, as sharers in the happiness of our fellowmen, as Citizens of the world, our feelings are deeply affected. We commiserate the fate of our European Brethren; we weep over the awful calamities of anarchy and atheism.

But when we behold this Nation, not contented with its vast European dominions, but endeavoring to extend its Colossian empire across the Atlantic, every passion is roused; our souls are fired with indignation. We see that their object is universal domination; we see that nothing less than the whole world, nothing less than the universal degradation of man, will satisfy these merciless destroyers. But be assured, Sir, we will oppose them with all our youthful energy and risk our lives in defence of our country. Untaught in the schools of adulation, or the courts of sycophants, we speak forth the pure sentiments of independence. We give you our warmest approbation. We behold with true patriotic pride the dignified conduct of our Chief Magistrate at this alarming crisis. We are highly pleased with the moderation, candor, and firmness which have uniformly characterized your administration. Though measures decisive and energetic will ever meet with censure from the unprincipled, the disaffected, and the factious, yet virtue must eternally triumph. It is this alone that can stand the test of calumny; and you have this consolation, that the disapprobation of the wicked is solid praise.

At this eventful period our eyes are turned upon you, Sir, as our political Father, and under Providence we rely on your wisdom and patriotism, with the co-operation of our national Council, to perpetuate our prosperity, and we solemnly engage, that while our government is thus purely and virtuously administered, we will give it our whole support.

These, Sir, are the unanimous sentiments of the Members of Williams College, who, though convinced of the evils of War, yet despise peace when put into competition with National Freedom and Sovereignty.

Signed by a committee in behalf of one hundred and thirty students of Williams College.

President Adams' Reply

Williams College, June 19, 1798.

Gentlemen:
I have not been less surprised than delighted with an address from 130 students of Williams College, presented to me by the president pro tempore of the senate, Mr. Sedgwick.

So large a number in so recent an institution, as it shows the flourishing circumstances of our country at present, affords a most pleasing prospect of young citizens in a course of education, for the future government, instruction and service of the country.

The composition of your address, shows a respectable sample of your literary talents, as the principles and sentiments it contains do honour to your heads and hearts.

It is impossible for the unperverted mind of youth, to see the world filled with violence, as it was before the flood, and every virtue and every principle trampled under foot, without feeling his soul fired with a generous indignation. Your readiness to oppose the torrent, with all your youthful energy, and risk your lives in defence of your natural right, is greatly to your honour.

The testimony of your opinion, in favor of the candor, firmness, and moderation of my administration, is the more valuable, as you have not been educated in the school of adulation, and speak the pure sentiments of independence.

When your eyes are fixed upon me, as your political father, you at once excite all the affections of my heart, and make me sensibly feel my own insufficiency for the arduous duties of that important character. With the co-operation of the National Councils, and the virtues of our citizens, I despair not, of the continuance of our national prosperity. The talents and energies of the rising generation are a sure pledge of our safety and the growing importance of America.

John Adams.

FORUM COMPETITION

To the Editor of THE RECORD.

Elsewhere in this issue of THE RECORD appears the notice of a competition to be run by THE Forum for the office of Secretary-Treasurer. The competition will be short and will consist mainly in meeting speakers and in advertising the meetings. It will be open to sophomores and will end in March, but inasmuch as the program is already made out and the speakers come only every two weeks, there will be comparatively little work to be done.

The Forum offers an unexcelled opportunity for the College to learn of the important affairs of the outside world. It aims to bring before the audience both sides of many large questions, to present the matter in its entirety and to allow the student to arrive at a conclusion on the basis of complete information. It is an effort on the part of the students to carry out to a small degree the tradition founded by President Garfield in the Institute of Politics. The meetings are always open and are followed by questions.

This competition offers to the sophomores an opportunity to ally themselves with one of the organizations in the College which has the strong support of the students and faculty, which stands for intellectual leadership for Williams and which presents before the College the best speakers obtainable.

Hiram W. Lyon,
President.
Ernest G. Angevine,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Mr. Salter Gives First Organ Recital of Year

With a program of wide appeal Mr. Sumner Salter gave his 213th Organ Recital at the opening number of the annual series in Chapin Hall last Wednesday afternoon.

Picking almost at random we find the majesty of Handel's Concerto in G Minor contrasted with the serene and beautiful calmness of what is perhaps Bach's greatest Choral, Adorn Thyself, O Fond Soul. Another very effective combination of selections was Anton Rubenstein's Rêve Angélique teeming with now a plaintive and now a fantastic sweetness, which immediately preceded Schubert's Serenade, a paradise of melody and undoubtedly one of the finest products of the voluminous work of this great master of the piano, which has been ably transcribed by Mr. E. H. Lemare.

The complete program was as follows:

Concerto in G Minor
Larghetto
Allegro G. F. Handel
Chorale—"Adorn Thyself, O Fond Soul" J. S. Bach

Messe de Mariage
I. Entrée du Cortège
II. Bénédiction Nuptiale
III. Offertoire
IV. Invocation
V. Laus Deo (Sortie)

Rêve Angélique Théodore Dubois
Serenade Anton Rubenstein Marche Russe Franz Schubert
Oscar E. Schminke

No Clear Days Found in Month of November

According to observations made at the Williams College meteorological station, the past month had an unusual amount of cloud, rain, and snow, but was practically normal in temperature. For the first time in 40 years not a single day during November was clear, there being 23 cloudy and seven partly cloudy days, a clear day being defined as a day on which the clouds cover less than three-tenths of the area of the sky.

The highest temperature during the month was 68 degrees on the 19th, equaling the record for the past 20 years. 18 degrees was the lowest temperature observed, which is above the normal, and the average temperature during the month was 37.5 degrees, the normal being 37.1 degrees.

As compared with the normal rainfall of 2.43 inches, 4.58 inches fell during November, and the total snowfall was 7.4 inches, the normal amount of snowfall for this month being only 4.6 inches. The November snowfall has been surpassed only once during the past 20 years, in 1910 the snowfall for November being 18.3 inches.

Forum Starts Competition

Sophomores intending to enter the competition for Secretary-Treasurer of THE Forum are requested to report Sunday after chapel in Jesup Hall. The competition will be short and will consist of meeting speakers, putting up posters, attending meetings and other small matters connected with THE Forum. The election will be by the College body and the competitors will be recommended by the officers.

creative, competitive youth. Monopoly and the attendant loss of competition slows up the human mind in improving industry. Legal inhibitions will never have any effect on monopolies; they are effective only against labor.

"The United States ought to work, as it did with success during the war, on a service basis rather than a profit basis. The service basis is at the root of Henry Ford's great success, for he realized that the more people he interested in his product the farther his business would go. He has fairly earned his $100,000,000 profit because he is giving better service than any of his competitors. The romance of modern capitalism is to seek to reduce cost of production, to reduce hours of labor, and to increase wages.

"There are three ways of dealing with industrial civil war between employer and employee. The two unsatisfactory ways are by strikes and by state regulation. The method best suited both to economic and human advantage is for the employer to keep his working conditions always a step ahead of economic conditions. Hurt, Schaffner, and Marx, the clothiers, tried the profit principle and were met with a strike. Now they have adopted the servire principle; they are paying $1,000,000 more in wages for one and one half hours less work per man, and are turning out better suits at less cost.

"The worst evil of modern capitalism is the tendency to treat human labor power like a mere commodity. Large scale production lessens the human element in industry, and frequent strikes are caused by the refusal of laborers to meet the inhuman demands of their employers. The solution to this problem is embodied in these words of President Lincoln in his first message to Congress, 50 years ago: 'Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor and could never have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital and entitled to much the more consideration.' Capital is property; labor is personal, and has a soul. The rights of property must give way to the rights of men. More concretely, where the lives of human beings are at stake, we who are capitalists must give up our dividends if necessary to give children a chance for a decent human life.

"Another evil tendency that must be overcome is the class movement of the Old World which is now menacing the social order of the United States. We have a tendency to combat ideas with force, inherited from the war. The only thing that can overcome a wrong idea is a right idea. Force can conquer only force. One trouble with our treatment of Bolshevism in Russia is that we are trying to apply force against a movement which is composed partly of ideas. We are helping to stamp Bolshevism into Russia, not out of it.

"We must respect the rights of the minority as well as those of the majority. We must not prohibit people from free speech by force. Force will never work, for it puts passion in the place of reason."

Mr. Robins then outlined his proposals for the solution of the industrial problem, declaring that by means of them "we will move toward liberty and individual responsibility rather than toward regimentation and control."

In reply to a question on the internal condition of Russia, Mr. Robins emphasized the gravity of the famine situation in that country, declaring that five million people are starving now, and that ten million will die this winter unless greater efforts are made to alleviate the distress than are being made now. "At the outbreak of the war," said Mr. Robins, "the upper class seven percent of Russians controlled the vast resources of the country, but the actual management was carried on by one percent of the people, composed of German and Austrian business men. When the war started, these all departed, expecting to return soon as conquerors, but they did not return, and the business of Russia collapsed immediately. The economic collapse of Russia, therefore, dates back to the Czar's regime, and no one has been found capable of rebuilding the economic system."

will sit for hours and listen to the clicking keys. The natives have been dying off in large numbers from influenza, and although the attacks are not severe, the ablest men rather than the women and children have been the victims of the disease."

Mr. Beebe showed many pictures of unusual animals peculiar to this region, where are to be found specimens of animal life which in all other places have been dead for centuries. For this reason Guiana is of particular interest to the student of nature who wishes to investigate the interesting habits of these unusual beasts.

Included in the lecture were several pictures of the country with its highly colored vegetation and other phenomenal beauty. Particular mention was made of a falls 810 feet high, five times the height of Niagara.

Sophomores LeadersIn Interclass Series

In the senior-sophomore game, very much better team work and form was exhibited by both teams than in the games on Saturday. The defensive part of the 1921 five showed real basketball, and J. Kellogg and Jayne were able to take advantage of every opening given by the opposing team. Bianchi and Richmond were the mainstays of the losing team but were unable to keep even with the sophomores. The teams lined-up as follows: 1922—B. Kellogg lf, Lucdeke rf, Bianchi c, Lyon lg, Richmond rg; 1921—J. Kellogg lf, B. Greer rf, Jayne c, Pease lg, Johnson rg; substitutions: 1922—H. Greer, E. Johnson, Vroman; 1921—Herron, Parkhill, Gregory, Webb, Packard, Taylor, Henly.

For the greater part of the first period of the 1923-1925 game, no scores were made by either team, the ball passing across the floor and allowing few attempted shots. Mallon finally scored for the Juniors but the freshmen followed almost immediately with a basket and a foul, bringing the score to 3 to 2 for the half. The lead was taken by the upperclassmen early in the second period and held to the end. For the winners, Mallon was the most valuable man, and Cook played consistently for 1925. The line-ups were: 1923—Mallon lf, Ward rf, Vilas c, Whitcombe lg, Fnsee rg; 1925—Reid lf, Cook rf, Dowling c, Dugan lg, Mains rg; substitutions: 1925—Ide, Beckwith.

Born in the town of Clay, Washington County, Iowa, in 1866, Mr. Plumb prepared for college in his home state. He graduated from Oberlin College in 1891, and then went to the Harvard Law School, where he studied in 1891 and 1892. He received the degree of LL.B. from Northwestern University in 1893. Since that time Mr. Plumb has conducted a successful law practice in Chicago, in his best known case acting as counsel for the city of Chicago in the well-known Blair vs. Chicago, or "99 year case." He is a member of the Iroquois Club of Chicago, and the Columbia Country Club of Washington, and is a member of the Masonic order.

Musical Clubs Give Performance Tonight

Arrangements for the trip of the Musical Clubs during the Christmas recess are progressing favorably, and indications point to a most successful trip during the holiday season. Tickets for all concert-dances are on sale by Foster, Greene, Miller, and Saunders '21.

Returns from patroness invitations promise a large crowd at all performances of the trip, and it is likely that the number who will patronize only the dances will exceed previous attendances. The College Orchestra, under the leadership of Luedke '22, and featuring Sherman A. Jones '23 as saxophonist has been finally engaged to accompany the Clubs on the trip and will provide music for dancing at all of the six cities on the itinerary.

Arrangements for concert-dances during the holidays are in charge of local committees of alumni, who are cooperating with the undergraduate management for the success of the concerts. E. Converse Lincoln '14 is chairman of the Springfield Committee with Edward T. Broadhurst '01, Herbert L. Frink '15, Malcolm C. Sherwood '14, John D. Smart '18, and E. P. Taylor '21 as his assistants. These men are in charge of the concert-dance at the Hotel Kimball on Wednesday evening, December 21.

Henry M. Halsted Jr. '18 is chairman for the East Orange concert committee for the performance of December 22 at the Orange Woman's Club. Other members of the committee are Randolph P. Debevoise, Charles K. McFarlin '12, and Oliver Y. Lee '20. For the concert dance at the Montclair Club on Tuesday evening, December 27, Carlton W. Cox '17 is local manager, assisted by Henry R. Johnston '09, Clarence C. Abbott '14, Stanley Phillips '17, Edwin Powers '18, and Willard G. Kluger '18.

George V. La Monte '10 is local manager for the Bound Brook affair at which the Clubs will be the guest of the Middlebrook Country Club. A committee of Club members is assisting Mr. LaMonte with his work of making plans for the reception of the Musical Clubs.

Plans for the performance in the Foyer of the Academy of Music in Philadelphia on December 26 are in charge of Alexander M. Swain '00. Members of the committee which is assisting him are Rev. Charles A. Anderson '12, Felton Bent '05, Quincy Bent '01, W. Curtis Bok '19, J. Danforth Bush '09, Winthrop P. Buttrick '09, James K. Cain '07, William M. Canby '01, Winthrop B. Greene '02, Lewis C. Lillie '09, Arthur W. Lincoln '05, Albert T. McAllister '17, Robert L. McLean Jr. '19, Rev. Charles P. H. Nason '02, William K. Paton '15, Rev. George L. Richardson '88, Christopher L. Ward '20, Henry L. Whittemore '07, and J. Randall Williams '00.

For the New York concert-dance in the New Ballroom of the Hotel Plaza on Wednesday evening, December 28, the local committee, headed by Leonard W. Newborg '16, is being assisted by the Alumni Advisory Committee on Dramatics and Musical Activities of the New York Williams Club. The latter committee is under the direction of Dan H. Arnold '10 chairman, with Professor Karl E. Weston '96, Francis J. Danforth '00, Francis S. Hutchins '00, George E. Hite '11 '08, Henry R. Johnston '09, Stanley M. Babson '12, and Van H. Cartmell Jr. '17 as members. Max Berking '02, president of the New York Williams Club and Woodruff Suttin Jr. '93 are members ex-officio of this committee. The following alumni comprise the local committee for the Plaza concert: Hon. Clark Williams '02, Morgan A. Jones '04, Joseph W. Brooks '13, William D. Wyckoff '14, and Roland Palmado '17.

Wallace graduated from the Central High School of Springfield. Since coming to Williams he has been a member of the track squad for two years, a member of the swimming team, Honor System Committee, and the religious work committee of the W. C. A. This year he is secretary of the senior class, editor-in-chief of the Purple Cow, and a member of Gargoyle. He is a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Montgomery prepared for Williams at the Evanston High School where he took an active part in athletics. In his first year at Williams, he played on the freshman football team and managed the class baseball team. He has played on the varsity football team for three years and has been a member of the No-Deal Committee, the Press Club and the Graphic. This year he is managing editor of the Purple Cow, and a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Gargoyle societies. Montgomery is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Wilson entered Williams from Westfield High School where he played on the football, baseball, and soccer teams. In Williams he has been a member of the varsity football team for three years, and has played on his class football and baseball teams and the varsity basketball team of which he is captain this year. At present he is vice-president of the senior class, secretary of the Student Council, and vice-president of the Outing Club. He is a member of the Gargoyle society and the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Pick 1925 Debating Team

As a result of trials held last Monday afternoon in Chapin Hall, a first and second Freshman Class debating team were selected by a committee of judges consisting of Mr. Tausch, Terry and Zalles '22. The following teams were chosen: first team; Fiske, Keep, Sterling, Dugan, alternate; second team: Frost, Hawkins, McLaury, Brodhead, alternate.

Outdoor Hockey Practice Started on Leake's Pond

As a result of the sudden lowering of temperature at the beginning of the week ice was formed on Leake's Pond, and, though the surface was rough and soft, outdoor hockey practice was held there last Wednesday afternoon. Little actual scrimmage was attempted, the drill being confined to goal shooting and skating practice, but harder work is to start immediately after the return from the Christmas vacation.

Negotiations for several additional tentative dates are still under way, though publication of the entire schedule cannot be made until final ratification by the Athletic Council has been completed.

Issue Second Rotogravure

Featuring final football pictures of the team in action, and of the team itself, and musical clubs and Cap and Bells photographs, the second issue of the Rotogravure section of the Record will appear on December 17, and will be even larger and more inclusive than the first issue which appeared in November. Circulation of the feature section of that number reached the 5,000 mark, and it is expected that this number will be far exceeded with the next section, which is to be more varied and more finished than the first attempt into the new field of journalism.

Will Discuss Parallelism

Professor James B. Pratt will address the meeting of the Philosophical Union to be held this evening at 8.00 p. m. in the Commons Room in Currier Hall. His subject will be "Psycho-physical Parallelism."

INTERCOLLEGIATES

TO GIVE PLAYS AT 14 CITIES

Plans for the Christmas trip of the Princeton Triangle Club have been definitely decided, and the performance will be presented in 14 cities, two more than last year. Three shows will be given in New York, and two in Chicago. The trip will start December 17, and will end December 30, and the main cities visited will be Cincinnati, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, New York, and Pittsburgh.

ASSOCIATION REORGANIZED

Complete reorganization of the hockey associations of Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Penn State, Princeton, and Yale was made at a meeting held last week in New York at which time the new Intercollegiate Ice Hockey Association of America was formed. This league is for the purpose of governing the contests between these universities, and will also have the power to formulate all rulings for the actual play.

26 GAMES SCHEDULED FOR YALE

Final approbation was given the Yale University basketball schedule by the Intercollegiate Basketball League last week, and the 1922 season will comprise 26 games, including the Christmas training trip of eight games. Informal practice has been held for the past two weeks, but no definite combination has as yet been selected, and under the new coaching system, it has been decided to drop the annual interclass series which up to this year has been a feature of the early winter drill.

Rev. Y. Y. Tsu to Preach

Rev. Y. Y. Tsu, of the Union Theological Seminary of New York City, will conduct the morning service in the Thompson Memorial Chapel tomorrow. Dr. Tsu has preached at College for several years.

PLUMB DECLARES RAILWAYS RUINED

Forum Speaker Says U. S. Railways Are Completely Bankrupt at Present

PREDICTS AGITATION FOR FEDERAL CONTROL

Roads Think Present Powers Will Pay Fabulous Prices to Acquire Properties

Declaring that the railroads of the United States were at present absolutely bankrupt, "physically, mentally, morally, and financially," Glenn E. Plumb, originator of the plan of government railroad administration which bears his name, addressed the Forum last Monday evening in Jessup Hall. Mr. Plumb predicted great agitation for government ownership of railroads during the next six months, and suggested a remedy by which government control could be put into effect without payment of the fabulous price which the private owners of the American railways will doubtless ask for their lines.

The speaker stated that there were 265,000 miles of railroads in the United States at the present time, owned by 2000 private corporations, of which 165, controlling 90% of the mileage and 95% of the business, earned over a million dollars a year. "Under the private ownership which the roads now enjoy," said Mr. Plumb, "rates are now 100% higher than they were four years ago." The Interstate Commerce Commission, founded to regulate rates, have been so crippled by legal limitations restricting their power, that these bodies are almost completely helpless to remedy the situation.

In explanation of his statement that the railroads of America were entirely bankrupt, "physically, mentally, morally, and financially," Mr. Plumb explained his terms. The railroads admit that they are financially bankrupt, their credit is gone, and they cannot command private capital to rebuild their equipment, a large part of which is in deplorable condition. The Interstate Commerce Commission, which is now checking up on the first class roads of the country, estimates that from observation of conditions on 24 roads already investigated, the assets of the entire

MR. BOTSFORD PRAISES FOOTBALL MANAGEMENT

Columbia Game Not as Lucrative as Last Year—Money Saved on Yale Trip

Together with comments by Mr. E. H. Botsford '83, Graduate Treasurer, and a comparison with the 1920 season, the budget for football during the past fall has appeared, showing an unexpended balance of $651.22. Mr. Botsford's statement follows:

"An analysis of the season's account and comparison with the 1920 season shows that the necessary expense of the trips to Hamilton College and Wesleyan was greater than for the corresponding out-of-town games with Union and with Amherst in 1920, but that seven hundred and fifty dollars was saved in the trips to New Haven and New York as compared with the trips to Cambridge and New York last year. Likewise five hundred dollars was saved in general supplies. This made possible the payment of the additional coaches under the agreement with the Athletic Council, the total expense for the two years being practically the same. In the matter of incomes the large decrease is directly charged to one item—the very disappointing returns from the Columbia game. In 1920 this game yielded nearly six thousand dollars. In 1921 the returns were twenty-two hundred dollars. Had the New York game yielded two thirds as much as the previous year, the football season would have paid all expense leaving the two thousand dollar appropriation from the student tax free for other sports. In fact the unexpended balance of the budget appropriations was six hundred fifty dollars.

Boynton is Star in Game for Professional Eleven

Ben L. Boynton '21 the former Williams football and baseball captain, was the outstanding star for the Washington, D. C., Senators in a football game against the Cleveland Tigers last Sunday at American Legion Park, Washington, D. C. Two minutes before the final whistle of the contest, Boynton threw a 45-yard forward pass which won the game 7-0 for the Senators.

"The erstwhile Williams College quarterback ran through and about the opposition, passed and punted in pleasing style, and checked many assaults of the westerners," according to the Washington Evening Star of December 12. "As a fitting climax to a day of great play, Benny, just two minutes before the end of the game, shot the winning pass, and then made it a perfect day by booting the point that gave the local professionals the victory. Had it not been for Boynton's all-around performance it is doubtful if a home victory would have been scored."

SEVERAL CHANGES IN 1922 HOCKEY SCHEDULE

Columbia, Yale, and Albany Country Club Added to List—Prospects Good

Eight games have been scheduled for the hockey team by Manager Cruise '22, and a ninth game with Middlebury on February 25th is under consideration. Practice has been held every afternoon this week on the Cole field rink, and from present indications Williams will be represented by a successful hockey team again this winter.

Practice during the past week has been principally drill in goal shooting, and team work formations. A practice match between teams chosen from the candidates out has been held almost every afternoon, and the team is rounding into shape very fast. After Christmas vacation a cut in the number of candidates will be made and the squad will cat at a training table in Currier Hall.

The schedule is the same length as last year's, but includes games with four different teams, while Dartmouth, Harvard and M. I. T. have been dropped from the list. The schedule as ratified by the Athletic Council is as follows:

January 7, R. P. I. at Williamstown
January 14, Springfield College at Williamstown
February 2, Amherst at Williamstown
February 4, Albany Country Club at Williamstown
February 14, Amherst at Amherst
February 15, Yale at New Haven
February 18, West Point at West Point, N. Y.
February 25, Middlebury (not definitely arranged)
March 4, Columbia at Williamstown

Resolution Adopted in Col. Whittlesey's Memory

In appreciation of Colonel Whittlesey, '05, who took his own life as a result of mental depression on November 28 while on board steamship bound for Cuba, the following resolution was adopted by the men who were in college with him at a meeting at the Williams Club on December 2:

The members of the classes of Williams College—1902, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907 and 1908—join in this expression of deepest sorrow in the loss of Charles W. Whittlesey, of the Class of 1905, whose death has brought to its close a splendid friendship started during undergraduate days in Williamstown. Such a friendship, growing and strengthening as the years have passed, is a rare one. Its memory will be treasured and will be an inspiration in the years to come. His greatest worth, always hidden under a shield of innate modesty, was revealed in new and unexpected ways as acquaintance with him developed. It was expressed in ceaseless service to his fellowmen. Publicly honored as few have been, esteemed and respected beyond measure by fellow citizens, his heart turned him from greater prominence and advancement that he might devote his energy and talents to the service of others.

SENIORS TO DISPORT 'ROUND YE YULE LOG

Committee Has Kept All Plans Secret, Though Rumor is Now Rampant

FOREIGN TALENT IMPORTED

Tasty Dishes and Souvenirs to Feature Great Riot of Joy for Staid Seniors

With the tinkling of sleigh bells and a general slinking off of snowy flakes from shaggy coats, which will presage the gay Christmas festivities held in the ancient manner, the members of the class of 1922 will disport themselves next Sunday night at 8.00 p. m. in the Delta Kappa Epsilon House with many divers pleasures and enjoyments, which at present are being kept with the greatest secrecy by the committee which is in charge. As originally announced, the greatest show on earth was to take place on Saturday evening, but the fact that Cap and Bells is to give preliminary performances of the Christmas plays before the faculty on that night has necessitated the change to the evening of the Sabbath.

Inklings of the stupendous entertainment have leaked out through traitorous channels, however, and we have discovered that the best talent in the town has been procured at a terrific expense for the sole pleasure of the senior class. Even nifty and eager souvenirs for all members have been secured at great effort, and it is thought by the committee, at least, that the quality of the performance and general geniality and joviality will be such that no detail of the splendid evening will ever be forgotten by any member of said class. It must be that the party is to be in the nature of a surprise, and that the souvenirs will be in the form of this mysterious surprise. However, perhaps, this is merely to add to the original and trick touches of the party, and will not be for the memory book at all.

As the one and only feature of the evening, which it is expected will put the entire senior class in a state of universal beatitude, the committee has secured the services of Mr. Hoyt and his famous, even notorious, galaxy of curly haired maidens who will romp and dance and sing throughout the long evening. This is merely a rumor, according to the committee's final statement concerning the question, but it is hoped by every loyal senior that such will be the case, for the fame and popularity of Mr. Hoyt and his bevy is world-wide; in fact the king of Italy has expressed great appreciation over the performance and has awarded the company several marks of his great gratitude for the great pleasure that was given him by their appearance. It is even rumored that some sort of financial report will also be presented by the combined company with Mr. Hoyt leading the festivities. At present, mystery and doubt are rife as to what will finally be dished out to the seniors, but the committee is very confident that the general performance and evening geniality and good fellowship will know no bounds, and that the exuberance of spirit of all the members is likely to produce serious results.

Besides the appearance of Mr. Hoyt and

Complete Plans for 1923 'Gulielmsonian' Announced

Featuring the Institute of Politics, and differing from the essential arrangement of the 1922 issue only in the omission of a humorous section, the 1923 Gulielmsonian will in all probability be ready for distribution next May 30.

Britton '23, editor-in-chief of the publication, has designed the cover, which is to be made with a morocco, wine-colored finish embossed and stamped in gold. The pages will be encircled by a panel effect which is the work of Hurley '23. Four full-page colored inserts will be placed before the main divisions of the book, and in addition to the usual amount of photographs and snapshots of scenes at College there is to be a considerably larger number of characteristic senior poses.

1924 MAINTAINS LEAD IN INTERCLASS SERIES

Seniors Defeat Juniors But Lose to Freshmen Who Also Win Over Sophomores

Team	W	L	Pct.
1924	3	1	.750
1922	2	2	.500
1925	2	2	.500
1923	1	3	.250

1924 retains the leading position in the interclass basketball league, and the seniors and freshmen follow with a percentage of .500 each, as a result of the third and fourth rounds of the schedule, which were played on Saturday and Wednesday afternoons in the gymnasium. On Saturday, the sophomores thoroughly defeated 1923 by a score of 17 to 4 and the seniors fell before 1925 by an even more decisive score, 27 to 4; on Wednesday, the freshmen triumphed over 1924 in the best played game of the season, 11 to 8, and the seniors defeated the juniors, 8 to 6.

In the 1922-25 game, on Saturday, Reed and Cook were chiefly responsible for piling up the 27 points for the freshmen but the defensive part of their team worked very well and the two baskets for the seniors were from long shots by Richmond and Northrup. No score was allowed the juniors in the first half of the 1923-24 game although 11 points were run up by Kellogg and Greer for the sophomores. The playing on both sides was loose and careless and the game was considerably inferior to the 1922-25 battle. McNeny and Hamilton scored for the juniors in the second period and Jayne and O'Brien ran the 1924 score up to 17. The line-ups were: 1922—Luedeker lf, H. Greer rf, Bianchi c, Vroman lg, Richmond rg; 1925—Reed lf, Cook rf, Fisher c, Beekwith lg.

RECORD TO CARRY ON WORK OF PRESS CLUB

Two Organizations Will Finally be Merged Into One Under Present Plan

MORE EXTENSIVE SERVICE WILL RESULT FROM CHANGE

Members of Present Club to Continue as Auxiliary Publicity Committee

By a recent agreement THE RECORD will gradually take over the duties of the Williams Press Club, and the latter organization will finally be completely subsumed in the former. By this step THE RECORD will become the only official medium of publicity for news concerning Williams and not only will serve the student body and alumni through the issues of the paper, but will henceforth send out news to newspapers and preparatory schools.

The step was taken as a result of the decreasing interest which has been shown in the Press Club in the last few months, and will release members of the Club whose college work has conflicted with their duties on that organization. The members of the present Club who desire to continue with their work will constitute the Auxiliary Publicity Committee of THE RECORD. No further competitions will be held for membership in the Press Club, and THE RECORD will have assumed all the duties of that organization by 1923 with the graduation of the members of the Auxiliary Committee. The assignment editor of THE RECORD will assume the position corresponding to that of Chairman of the Press Club, and will assume all the duties which went with that position. An additional man will be elected this year to the sophomore board of THE RECORD in consequence of the extra work involved in these new duties. Hereafter each class will furnish seven instead of six men to serve on THE RECORD, who will be elected by regular competitions.

Montgomery '22, the Chairman of the Press Club, and Edson '22 have resigned. Carr, L. M. Greene, and H. P. Perkins '23 will constitute the Auxiliary Publicity Committee of THE RECORD, while Powell, the other member of the Press Club has recently been elected to the sophomore

GARFIELD HONORED BY KING OF ITALY

Awarded Order of Italian Crown Through Recommendation of Signor Tittoni

As a further recognition of his work in originating and carrying out the plan of the Institute of Politics which was held in Williamstown during the past summer, President Garfield has recently been appointed by the King of Italy a Commendatore of the Order of the Crown of Italy. This appointment was made at the recommendation of Signor Tomaso Tittoni, President of the Italian Senate and an Italian delegate to the Institute.

The Order of the Crown of Italy was also recently conferred upon Mr. Willard E. Hoyt, Mr. James E. King '12, Professor Walter W. McLaren and Professor Karl E. Weston but they were made Cavalieri, while Dr. Garfield's award is a higher grade of the same order.

At present President Garfield is traveling in Europe on a much-needed vacation and is also seeking men prominent in European politics to speak at the second session of the Institute this summer. The Institute, which was made possible through the generosity of Mr. Bernard Baruch, will also be held during the summer of 1923, the funds being sufficient for three sessions in all.

In the second issue of the Rotogravure section, appearing today, the pictures of the four men first honored by the Italian King appear, but owing to the fact that the announcement of Dr. Garfield's appointment was made public only very recently, his picture does not appear in the pictorial issue.

Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

At a meeting of THE RECORD Board held last Thursday evening in the Press Rooms, Jesup Hall, Milo H. Olin 1924, of Perry, N. Y., was elected second assistant business manager. At the same time Grove F. Newhard Jr., 1924, of St. Louis, Mo., was elected to the editorial board as a result of the final competition from the class of 1924.

Improved Publicity

Educational institutions with the highest cultural aims are bound to a large degree by the same rules of etiquette that apply in the case of the more honorable professions. They feel that their positions and calling place them above the needs of commercial advertising in the generally accepted sense of the word.

Williams College in its fullest sense is composed not only of undergraduates and faculty members, but of that larger host known as the alumni. With this in mind, it is not difficult to see that the widest publicity is desirable, if all loyal members of the College are to be kept well informed and united by a common bond. Such an aim raises publicity above the level of advertising. Were commercial aims only to be sought, far better advertising would be secured by hiring superior athletes, and sending teams, almost professional in nature, as far afield as the Pacific Coast.

With this conception of the duty involved, THE RECORD assumes complete charge of all Williams publicity. Through its own columns it serves more alumni than undergraduates at the present time, and through the medium of the metropolitan dailies it hopes to reach nearly every graduate of the College. The Press Club has been weighted down by lack of prestige and superabundance of work. It has struggled nobly in its thankless task, and many eulogies might well be spoken over the recumbent body before it is laid away for its last rest. Many a conscientious member has given days and days of his time in the aggregate for the sake of fuller publicity. It is scarcely too much to say that the Press Club has rendered more service and received less proportionate notice than any other organization in College.

Through the adoption of the new system, Williams news, in a more accurate form, will be published more rapidly and with infinitely less difficulty than before. THE RECORD possesses the full facilities for the work, facilities which the Press Club has been forced to borrow heretofore at odd times. The work will be unified and simplified by having all assignments made by a single head, and each article handled for both College and metropolitan press by a single individual. Such a system likewise fixes responsibility in a highly desirable fashion.

The transition from an old to a new system is necessarily rough and laborious, and THE RECORD requests the indulgence and co-operation of both undergraduates and alumni in the interim.

'Dux Femina Facti'

Smith College is on the point of making an interesting experiment along academic lines which will merit the close attention of the college world. From year to year arguments crop up as to what is the best method to arouse intellectual curiosity and reach that academic millennium of Senior courses with "absolute freedom" and yet "compelling interest." It is this problem which our neighboring institution in Northampton seeks in part to solve.

Under the new plan at Smith a student with an average of B or better at the end of Sophomore year may have an opportunity of choosing intensive work—reading and writing reports,—with fortnightly supervision, instead of going to classes her last two years at college. The plan differs from the Honor Schools of England in the fact that a broad field of subjects are covered in the first two years, and the specialized fields are only taken up during the last two years. In addition it will be wholly optional, and only the best students will be eligible to elect that system, giving it a distinct advantage over the present method constructed for the undiscoverable "average" student.

No college of men would be willing to admit that it does not possess students above the average, and the same reasoning upon which the Smith plan is based would appear to be applicable elsewhere. It is even possible that this may supply the happy medium between the much praised but apparently unattainable Oxford system, and the modern college's "prep school" methods which students and professors alike deplore, and perpetuate. Under the present system, as President Neilson has phrased it, "the ablest students, the most valuable assets of the College and of the country, are liable either to fall into habits of intellectual loafing or to occupy their too abundant leisure with a disproportionate amount of non-academic activities." The willing student under the contemplated plan is able to graduate with the power and method of mastery of some important line of knowledge rather than a potpourri of miscellaneous scraps of information. The plan in question frees the student from the interruptions of frequent tests and examinations.

There is an old, familiar saw reminding us of the ease of leading a horse to water, but of the impossibility of making him drink. One sometimes wonders if American educational institutions do not fly in the face of this maxim in attempting to lead youth to the fount of knowledge and then force him to swallow.

10 Years Ago at Williams

Williams' hopes of repeating last year's victory over Princeton in the annual hockey game between the two colleges played in the St. Nicholas Rink, New York, on the evening of December 22, were disappointed in the last minute and a half of play when McKinney netted the third goal for his team and won the game for the Orange and Black. Superior team-work on the part of the Princeton players kept the puck for the most part in the Williams territory, although the defense of the Purple goal tender prevented a large score. Van Gorder also featured for Williams, while McKinney, though his face was badly cut during the first few minutes of the second half, led the winners.

In accordance with the wishes of Mr. Alfred C. Chapin, the donor of the new auditorium, the cornerstone of Grace Hall was laid at 2 p. m. on Tuesday, December 20, with no attendant ceremonies, President Garfield putting the stone in place. The copper box inside the stone contained the current issues of all the student periodicals and of the official publications of the College as well as the previous issues of the RECORD in which the news of the new auditorium was published.

How do they get that way?

ASK the man with the big income his "secret of success," and you will generally find that it is some copy-book maxim known to everybody.

"Be sure you are right, then go ahead."

"If anything is in your way, go over it."

"Learn something about everything and everything about something."

Trite! Anybody could give you as good advice. It simply means that success is not a problem of discovering some obscure short-cut. The path is plain enough, but only alertness, energy and self-discipline will push you along it.

All this holds a special force for you because what you do at college will influence what you do afterwards. If you start right, the chances are you will finish right.

You can begin now to earn your place in the high-salaried class. Each honest day's work in laboratory and lecture hall will bring you nearer. It will help you to master the fundamentals of your profession—so that later on you may handle problems more easily and make decisions more quickly and surely.

Then and only then, in proportion as you clear your mind of detail, can you give time and energy to those larger questions of policy in engineering, selling, management and finance, which fix the executive's market value.

On Wednesday, the senior-junior game was close throughout and was better played than either game on Saturday. Ward evened the score early in the second half, which had started 6-4 in the seniors favor, but Northrup shot a winning basket for the seniors in the last minute of play. The line-ups of the teams were as follows: 1922—Richmond lf, Greer rf, Bianchi c, B. Kellogg lg, Lyon rg; 1923—McAneny rf, Mallon lf, Hoyt c, Witecombe lg, Sewall rg; substitutions: 1922—Northrup; 1923—Ward.

The sophomores were handicapped against the freshmen by the loss of Kellogg, who injured his leg in the first few minutes of play. No score was allowed them during the first period, in which the 1925 ran up seven points. Herron made the first basket for 1921 early in the second half by a long floor shot. Two more unusually long shots by Greer and Gregory followed. Fisher scored for the freshmen and in the last minute of play Beckwith scored, bringing the freshman total to 11. The teams lined up as follows: 1924—H. Greer lf, J. Kellogg rf, Jayne c, Johnson lg, Gregory rg; 1925—Reed lf, Cook rf, Fisher c, Dugan lg, Mains rg; substitutions: 1924—Herron, Healy; 1925—Brown, Ide, Beckwith.

Resolutions Adopted in Col. Whittlesey's Memory

Cool in thought as in action, undisturbed in the midst of clamor and turmoil, he was known as one of the clear-thinking men of these days. Steadfast in purpose, tireless in activity, his life was marked by sacrifice for the betterment of mankind. In the last full measure of devotion it was consecrated to that ideal.

His spirit lives, its inspiration grows, the ideals which he held dear have been quickened. In loving tender memory we mourn the loss of a friend. In great awakening do we learn the lesson of his life.

board of THE RECORD, and will thus automatically continue his work in connection with the Club.

Under the new system the double effort required to write separate articles for THE RECORD and for the Press Club will be eliminated, and in every case the man who is assigned to report any happening of interest for THE RECORD will also cover it for the newspapers, thus combining the two pieces of work. Under the control of THE RECORD an effort will be made to obtain more thorough publicity than has been possible heretofore. Not only will Williams news be sent to various newspapers which are accustomed to print news from the Berkshire colleges, but whenever a man gains some honor at Williams who comes from some place outside of this general zone, the news will be sent to the newspapers of the city from which he comes, and will be sent to his preparatory school. THE RECORD will assume the new duties immediately, and all news service will henceforth be under its control.

his figures, it is said that an exceedingly tasty repast will be served to all those present, and that this exquisite conglomeration has been obtained from either Sherry's or the Williamstown Coffee House conducted by Jinkslinks, the eminent Italian spaghetti merchants. What the committee really wanted published, however, was the fact that the entertainment would be of such a nature that the most upright New England consciences and religious scruples would in no way be jarred by a Sunday performance. All is rumor, which may be true or absolutely fallacious, but the one undisputed fact is that geniality, spirit, and fellowship will be everywhere apparent around the jovial Yule Log of the Class of 1922.

Furthermore, in the serious vein, this Senior Class Smoker is the first that has been attempted in some years, and is an innovation in class activities and entertainments. As yet it has not been decided whether another will be given, that depending on the success of the first, but the hope seems to be general that more may be held in the future, and that a new class custom may be established.

Plumb Declares

Railways Ruined

American railroad system, though valued on paper at 31 billions of dollars, cannot be worth more than half that sum at the present time in their depreciated condition.

Regarding their physical bankruptcy, Mr. Plumb stated that after the government had relinquished their war-time control and returned the roads to their private owners, return for six months till September 1, 1920 was guaranteed the roads. In this period, the roads took on hundreds of new employees, trebled their repair bills, and turned in a deficit for the government to make good. By April 1, 1921, the roads were forced to discharge 637,000 employees, with a saving in wages of over $1,000,000,000, but instead of giving the public the benefit of the reduction in force, they kept their increased rates. At this point, the speaker stated that four representative first-class railways had from 26-42% of their equipment in unserviceable condition, and the average of the roads of the country is 20%, with the condition of the tracks and roadbeds proportionally deficient. "We will make up the deficit of the railroads in lives, not in dollars," said Mr. Plumb, and cited five recent wrecks all of which were attributed to imperfect equipment.

The railroads have proven themselves mentally deficient in the past few months, denying the law of diminishing returns, expecting to be able to take out more profit than they put in, and entertaining great delusions that their wealth exceeded 30 billions, when actually it is little over ten.

In refusing to obey Congressional laws, except as they do not interfere with the profitable operation of roads, and in setting aside the rights of their employees without allowing them to bring suit against the company in the law courts without instant discharge, the railroads have proved morally bankrupt, said the speaker. The railroads have consistently obeyed those laws which are in their favor, and have as regularly disregarded those federal precepts which prevent them from acquiring fabulous wealth for their owners.

Mr. Plumb claims that now is the time for public ownership, but holds that such a condition of affairs cannot possibly come without a crisis, and he believes that the recently threatened strike of railroads was intended to create such a crisis. The fact that the strike was averted was entirely due to the fact that some of the roads weakened and withdrew from the plan.

In offering a remedy for the railroad situation as it now stands, Mr. Plumb said that only government ownership, operation, and control would solve the difficulty that confronts the American roads at the present time. He recommended that the government purchase the complete ownership of all the railways at a price set by a board of appraisal and subject to judicial review in the federal courts. The plan suggested by Judge Anderson of Boston, whereby the government would absorb all of the debts of the roads and pay the remainder of the price in equity was cited, and it was noted that Canada took over the Grand Trunk lines in this way, and finding no equity, absorbed the debts alone. According to Judge Anderson, Mr. Plumb said, the equity for the American roads would not exceed two billions of dollars.

The speaker applied the provisions of the Massachusetts Bill of Rights to the present railway situation, that state the essence of the democratic control of railroads. These provisions that the government should exist for the common prosperity and good of the people, that no man or group of men should receive compensations out of proportion to the service rendered, and that the prime purpose of the government is to protect the right of all men to make a lawful living were offered as evidence of the failure of railroads to perform their duties. "The idea of democracy in industry," said Mr. Plumb, "is stated in these ideas. A corporation should exist for service, and not primarily for profit."

The railroads have been operating against the bill of rights in considering labor as a commodity to be bought at the lowest possible price, when it is manifestly true that labor is human effort expended in human service. Mr. Plumb declared that every man from the president to the water-boy of the track gang was a human laborer and entitled to just treatment accordingly.

Proposing a rational system for government control, Mr. Plumb said that the corporation of the government rail operation organization should consist of 2,000,000 men working co-operatively for the common good of the consumer, themselves, and the welfare of the roads. He advocates a board of a reasonable number of members, to be composed equally of one-third classified labor, one-third capital, and one-third public representation. The presence of the public representatives would serve to keep rigid honesty in all transactions, he claimed.

"For the common good, then," said Mr. Plumb in closing, "not for classes, a corporation that secures its members the full benefit of the gains which they produce is the good company. The exercise of the government function in accordance with democracy and Christ's precepts will preserve America a free land."

Prof. Pratt Lectures on Parallelism Before Union

"Psycho-Physical Parallelism" was the topic of a lecture by Professor Pratt last Tuesday evening in Currier Hall before a meeting of the Philosophical Union. Professor Pratt first treated in a highly technical manner the various theories of parallelism between the mind and body, ending with a thorough treatment of the idealistic theory of parallelism. A discussion of the question with different interpretations and theories was then conducted.

At the next meeting of the Union Dr. Brinsmade will speak on the conservation of energy, treating the subject along the lines of parallelism of the mind and body.

Rev. Harry L. Everett '05 to Lead Chapel Services

The Reverend Harry L. Everett '05, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Jersey City, N. J., will conduct chapel services Sunday morning. Dr. Everett will also address the regular weekly meeting of the W. C. A. Sunday evening at 7.30 in the Jesup Hall Auditorium, taking as his subject "The Pragmatic Value of the Christian Religion."

Dr. Everett is a Williams man, having graduated with the class of 1905. While in college he was interested in Cap and Bells, as a member of its casts for four years and as its president during his senior year. He held the business managership of The Record, was Class Day Orator at the Commencement of 1905, and was a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity. After graduation Dr. Everett entered the Union Theological Seminary in New York City at the same time serving as an assistant at the Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn. He became pastor of St. Paul's Congregational Church in Brooklyn in 1908 and transferred to the First Congregational Church in Jersey City in 1910, where he has since remained.

During his residence at Jersey City Dr. Everett has been a leader in every public spirited enterprise in that city. He was the organizer of the Friday Evening Forum and has the distinction of being the pastor of the largest Congregational church in New Jersey. His interest in the Baptist mission in Williamstown while he was in college was later reflected by his prominent part in the establishment of the First Baptist Church here a few years ago.

Debates Planned with Cornell and Syracuse

Dual debates with Cornell and Syracuse are being arranged for sometime next spring to take the place of the Princeton-Williams contest, which was being planned for February and which has been cancelled due to a new ruling of the Princeton authorities against 36-hour debates. In addition to these two contests, Manager Olmsted '22 is making arrangements for the annual Brown-Dartmouth-Williams debate, which will be held in April, the exact date to be announced later.

HEALY '24 LEADS IN NOVICE SWIM TRIALS

Wins Two Events and Qualifies On Four Others—Mottor '25 in Second Place

With first places in both the 100-yard dash and the 40-yard back stroke, Healy '24 led the field with 10 points in the annual swimming meet for the Francis E. Bowker Memorial Trophy, at the end of the first three days of competition last Thursday afternoon, and Mottor '25 with six points was second, while Rubino '22 with five points was third. Finals in the 220-yard swim, diving, and the 40-yard breast stroke will be held later in the week, and the winner of the Trophy will be determined on Saturday, with the final heat of the 40-yard breast stroke.

Following is a summary of the trial and final heats held last Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons:

Audience Delighted With Christmas Music Recital

Christmas in Sicily was the most popular of the Christmas selections rendered by Mr. Sumner Salter in his 214th Organ Recital last Wednesday afternoon in Chapin Hall. The program included a wide range of holiday music and was enthusiastically received.

Mr. Salter opened the recital with Guilman's Sonata in D minor, whose imposing introduction of diminished chords leads to the quiet charm of the second movement, which is enhanced by the interpolation of the distant strains of a choral. The next selection, A Rose Breaks into Bloom, is rich in a quaint simplicity which pervades the whole piece. Following this came a rhapsody by Ropartz and Noel sur les Flutes in monotonous similarity.

The beautiful sounds of the yuletide bells in Christmas in Sicily mingled with the carol strains and interrupted by the droll music of fifes, delighted the audience. The recital fittingly closed with the majestic Hallelujah Chorus of Handel, an incomparable composition which is always popular.

HARD SCRIMMAGE IS GIVEN VARSITY SQUAD

Improved Passwork Noticeable in Stiff Workout—Kellogg '24 Injures Knee

Displaying marked improvement in passwork and shooting, the varsity basketball team was tested out by Coach Shanahan in a hard scrimmage last Thursday afternoon in the Gymnasium. Two 15-minute periods were played, the regular team easily outplaying the second string men.

Except for another scrimmage next Monday, Coach Shanahan plans to give the squad little more than elementary work until after the Christmas recess. He is unwilling to get the men in first-class condition only to have them set back by their rest during the holidays. Intensive work will start directly after vacation in preparation for the first game to be played here on January 16.

During the past week two changes have taken place in the roster of the varsity squad. Bianci '22 has been added as substitute center, and Kellogg '24 who injured his knee in a class game last Wednesday, is out of the game until after Christmas. Among the men who are showing up well on the second squad are Wolfe '22 forward, Greer '24 forward and Parkhill '24, center. They were the main attack of the scrubs in the scrimmage of last Thursday.

Fourteen Fraternities Plan House Party Dances

Plans have been completed by eleven fraternities for holding afternoon and evening dances on Wednesday, February 1, and Thursday, February 2, preceding the Sophomore Frolics on Friday evening. A varsity basketball game and the annual Winter Carnival under the auspices of the Outing Club will also be held during the recess.

Alpha Delta Phi, Delta Psi, and Sigma Phi, are giving their parties in conjunction and are planning to entertain with two evening dances and a ten-dance. Chi Psi and Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Kappa Alpha and Zeta Psi are also holding their parties together and will entertain with similar dances. Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, and Psi Upsilon are giving dances alone on Wednesday afternoon and evening and Thursday night while Delta Upsilon, Phi Sigma Kappa, and Theta Delta Chi have decided to give house-parties but have not as yet completed arrangements.

Six colleges have been invited to be participants in the Winter Carnival taking place on Friday and Saturday and an unusually attractive program is being planned by the committee for these two days. Dartmouth has already expressed her intention of sending two or three contestants and similar work is expected from Amherst, Colgate, McGill, Middlebury, and the University of Vermont, the other colleges invited. In addition to the regular program for the Carnival, which embraces ski and snowshoe races and ski jumping, there will be an exhibition on the use of skis by an expert from the Northern Ski Company.

Harvard to Try New Plan

In order to give men who finish their college course in the middle of the academic year a chance to begin their business training at once, the Harvard Business School will experimentally adopt a new policy of admitting a group of college graduates on January 30, 1922. The program of work for the men entering at this time will be so adjusted that they will be able to complete the regular course for the degree of Master of Business Administration in the usual time of two years, graduating in January 1924. It is the aim of the administration to accommodate men who have finished their regular courses in three years and a half, so that they will not have to wait till September to begin their business training.

Further rehearsals for the tentative casts will be held as often as possible during the time remaining before the date of presentation. Mr. Albert Cru is acting as coach.

ONE BRAND-ONE QUALITY-One Size Package

All our skill, facilities, and lifelong knowledge of the finest tobaccos are concentrated on this one cigarette—CAMEL.

Into this ONE BRAND, we put the utmost quality. Nothing is too good for Camels. They are as good as it's possible to make a cigarette.

Camel QUALITY is always maintained at the same high, exclusive standard. You can always depend on the same mellow-mild refreshing smoothness—the taste and rich flavor of choicest tobaccos—and entire freedom from cigarette aftertaste.

And remember this! Camels come in one size package only—20 cigarettes—just the right size to make the greatest saving in production and packing. This saving goes straight into Camel Quality. That's one reason why you can get Camel Quality at so moderate a price.

Here's another. We put no useless frills on the Camel package. No "extra wrappers!" Nothing just for show!

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And their added cost must go onto the price or come out of the quality.

One thing, and only one, is responsible for Camels great and growing popularity—that is CAMEL QUALITY.

'CAP AND BELLS' IS PREPARED FOR TRIP

Club Scores Pronounced Hit at Private Presentation in Chapin Hall

SUCCESS LARGELY DUE TO MR. WILLIAM T. WOOD

Seven New England Cities to be Visited on Christmas Trip of Dramatic Club

Prospects of a highly successful Christmas trip for Cap and Bells were confirmed at the enthusiastic reception accorded the three one-act plays, "Ryland," "The Game of Chess," and "The Crimson Cocoon," at a private presentation in Chapin Hall last Saturday evening before an audience composed of the faculty, members of the Cap and Bells Alumni Advisory Committee, and several invited undergraduates. Saturday's performance was a fitting climax for a long period of careful preparation and rehearsing in which every effort of the club has been exerted to make the production a success.

All three plays were produced under the direction of Mr. William T. Wood, an amateur of more than professional experience. Mr. Wood has given generously of his time and effort, simply for his love of the dramatic art and his interest in the development of it. Beginning his own career on the amateur stage when still at the College of the City of New York and Columbia, where he graduated in 1890, Mr. Wood has kept in touch with the drama ever since. He was one of the founders of the "Strollers," a company of amateur actors that delighted their friends in New York for years. He was also one of the students at David Belasco's famous "Lyceum School," where he acted with the subsequently starred Mary Anderson. During his years there he acted with many who later became professionals, among them James K. Hackett, Mrs. James Brown Potter, Minna Gale Haynes and Rosalie Bloodgood. Of recent years Mr. Wood has been one of the moving spirits in the Amateur Comedy Club in New York, probably the oldest and the best known amateur organization in the country. He is also a member of "The Players" Club and several other social clubs in New York. With Mrs. Wood he has been stopping at the Williams Inn, and both he and his wife have given unsparingly of their energy and experience to make the Cap and Bells production the success which Saturday's audience proclaimed it. In recognition of their invaluable services toward the success of the plays a handsome silver bowl was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Wood by Cap and Bells at an informal reception held immediately after the performance on Saturday in the reception room of Chapin Hall. Mr. Wood was also elected an honorary member of Cap and Bells.

JUNIOR FIVE BADLY BEATEN BY FRESHMEN

Sophomores Continue in Lead in Interclass Basketball, but Freshmen Gain

Team	W	L	Pct.
1924	4	1	.800
1925	3	2	.600
1922	2	3	.400
1923	1	4	.200

Victories for the two underclasses comprised the fifth round of the interclass basketball series played Saturday afternoon in the gymnasium; the seniors were defeated by the sophomores by a score of 16 to 6 and the freshmen conquered the juniors 27 to 10. With only one more round to play, the title of the league is clinched by the lower classes, of which the sophomores have the advantage.

Roughness featured the 1922-24 game, in which hard playing by 1924 gave no opportunity for the seniors to regain the lead which had been taken by the winners early in the game. Three baskets by B. Greer

Second Hard Scrimmage Given Varsity Yesterday

With a stiff practice scrimmage yesterday for two periods of fifteen minutes each, the work of the varsity basketball squad was discontinued until after the Christmas recess. Regular practice has been held every afternoon from 4 to 5 p. m., Coach Shanahan giving the men drill in passing and shooting primarily.

The work of the squad has steadily improved during the past week, and the team has developed an encouraging smoothness and precision that augur well for a successful season. Signal drill has been emphasized more during this week than previously, but intense work will begin directly after the vacation in preparation for the first game to be played against Wesleyan at Middletown on January 14. Regular scrimmage will be held every afternoon with the second team.

Through an error of the Athletic Council, the name of Hyde '22 was not included in the members of last year's squad who received the regulation 'BWB', but this award has since been made, and he is practicing daily with the present varsity squad. As previously announced, the first game of the 1922 schedule was to be with Knox, but recent changes have fixed that game with Wesleyan at Middletown on January 14, while the second game will be played at home at a later date.

DR. EVERETT SPEAKS AT MEETING OF W. C. A.

Subject Under Discussion is 'The Pragmatic Value of Christian Religion'

In a short informal talk on the subject of "The Pragmatic Value of the Christian Religion," Dr. Harry L. Everett addressed a meeting of the W. C. A. last Sunday evening in the Jesup Hall Reading Room.

Dr. Everett opened his discussion by attacking the belief in the absolute God as set forth by H. G. Wells in his "God, the Invisible King." "If the God revealed in the Bible from Genesis to Revelations is set up as an absolute standard, hundreds of inconsistencies may be found. Passages can be found in the Bible to support almost anything, and it is these passages, which seem to support what we know to be wrong, that are used in spite of the fact that countless passages support the contrary idea. The Bible now is used as a prop and every passage is treated as if it were actually handed down to us by God himself."

From this subject the discourse turned to the miracles of Christ. "These miracles," said Dr. Everett, "were never used by Jesus as arguments of divine power, so whether we believe in them or not, our belief in his divinity is not affected. Christ's commands were to do certain things and you would be saved, and not that the belief in any certain miracle would insure the salvation of the soul."

When questioned on his belief in the miracles, Dr. Everett said, "The miracles of Christ are proved today scientifically to be impossible, but by this word even the scientist will grant that he means 'impossible' according to the few laws which man has been able to work out. To a spirit which could transcend these laws of man the miracles might be considered as possible as anything, and under this light it is credible that they really took place."

When the smoke of a three-hour encounter with Lady Nicotine cleared at the Delta Kappa Epsilon House last Sunday night, not a man who was present had anything but praise for the remarkable entertainment produced at short notice by the Senior Smoker Committee. The few members of 1922 who weren't there were either over conscientious Phi Betes or were unavoidably detained by the Infirmary. Only the unprecedented purity of the production and the absence of a relapse of the College Catalogue by the Dean prevented the affair from assuming the proportion of a regular college smoker.

Ludeke's famous Jazz Purveyors were on hand in full force to provide the charms of music, and they did it with much vim and vigor amidst thunderous applause. Following a general get-together on the main floor of the D. K. E. House, the company adjourned to the Dining Hall on the second floor, where the regular program began immediately.

H. M. Rounds '23, just arrived from Boston, in the costume of a negro parlor snake, presented a long line of unusual experiences, and gave a realistic description of the effects of the roadbed of the B. & M. which delighted all present, especially those who are contemplating a vibratory massage on that road next Wednesday afternoon.

57 varieties of Buckners, otherwise the well known company of Buckner and Buckner '24, attired in tuxedo coats and army trousers (the latest approved style—see Vanity Fair), who rendered several kinds of music, good and bad, with the precision of the one man that they seem to be. During the highly emotional part of a classical selection, the twins became badly scrambled, but extricated themselves in time for a final wallop at the keys of the piano. (For Sale—by the D. K. E. 16 Juniors Selected to Lead Cheering at Games

Sixteen juniors have been selected to enter the competition for positions as College cheer leaders. Six men will be chosen in June from the number remaining in the competition and of this group, one will be elected by the men themselves to serve as head cheer leader for the ensuing year.

Active work in leading cheers will begin immediately after the return from the Christmas holidays and will be continued until the close of the baseball season in June when the final cut will be made. A preliminary cut to ten men will be made earlier in the year and this number will have the responsibility for leading cheers at all baseball games and track meets. The sixteen juniors who have been recommended are: J. Anderson, Baxter, Bennett, Chapin, Chapman, Clark, Holmes, Morse, Olmsted, Parker, Partington, Quintance, Shuttleworth, Stowers, Thacker, and Wightman.

CRITIC LAUDS 'CAP AND BELLS' ONE-ACT PLAYS

'Ryland,' 'The Game of Chess,' and 'The Crimson Cocoon' Receive Praise

Comprising a costume play, a melodrama, and a farce, this season's program of Cap and Bells is varied enough to satisfy the most exacting.

At the opening performance, the costume play was the least successful, but the difficulty appears to be in the play rather than in the presentation. This type of drama can overcome its inherent artificiality only by intensity of emotional appeal or by penetrating truthfulness in its revelation of fundamental human nature. Ryland furnishes neither source of interest. It is at odds with itself. The game and the stake are esthetically incompatible. Nor is satire revoked from the incompatibility. Not even the veracity of Mr. Towne as Mary Ryland, the effectiveness of Mr. Harding as Angelica, or the expressiveness of Mr. Clark as Ryland, could wholly rescue the play.

A degree of improvement might result were the enunciation in some cases clearer, and were there less attempt, in certain lines, to imply a mode of speech that is neither modern nor Georgian, and is for the most part not understandable by the auditors. With possible pedantry I venture to add the suggestion that the Christian name of Fielding, Ryland's pupil, be changed from Henry (as the author of the play mistakenly has it) to Thomas, which would be historically accurate, and would place a palpitating assistant beyond possibility of confusion with the great novelist.

The Game of Chess captured the audience, despite the essentially theatrical nature of the device upon which the plot hinges. If Mr. Youngman gained deserved approbation by an ease and precision that triumphed even over merrily whiskers, Mr. McAneny was equally commendable in the taste and unlabored moderation he exhibited in a role that must tempt the actor to saw the air. The other parts were well taken; the whole performance went smoothly.

After melodrama, farce. Even the old, old jokes, redolent of the tobacco smoke

Wassail

I. The old north breeze thro' the skeleton trees,
Is chanting the year out drearily;
But loud let it blow, for at home we know
That the dry logs crackle cheerily;
And the frozen ground is in fetters bound,
But pile up the wood, we can burn it,
For Christmas is come, and in every home
To summer our hearts can turn it.

II. And far and near, o'er the landscape ear,
From casements brightly streaming,
With cheerful glow on the fallen snow
The ruddy light is gleaming.
The wind may shout as it likes without;
It may bluster but never can harm us;
For a merrier din shall sound within,
And our Christmas feeling warm us.

Chorus—Wassail! wassail! here's happiness to all, abroad and at home, Wassail! wassail! here's happiness to all, for Christmas is come!

—Old Xmas Carol.

Christmas Time

"The time draws near the birth of Christ. The moon is hid, the night is still; The Christmas bells from hill to hill Answer each other in the mist."

The cares of the mundane world drop away before the wonder of it all. Hour tests and special topics are forgotten, and good will and content reign supreme for a brief period. It is the holiday season we have been long expecting; it is the time of festivities about which we will long reminisce. But most joyous of all, it is a royal home-coming for each of us, the one time in all the year when every distant sojourner gladly bends his steps toward the home hearth.

Even staid little Williamstown, which most students will remember as a drear and barren desert at such a time, responds to the Yule-tide spirit. The very faces of its inhabitants seem more jovial and care-free than we have ever known them. The "deserted village" would take on a new aspect for many an undergraduate, could he only peep within its homes and see, mayhap, that hard-shell professor (whose life he believes he knows to its very blackest bottom) perched astride a rickety ladder, hanging the tin horns atop the Christmas tree, the cynical shell replaced by a benignant Santa Claus smile. The Seniors have already rejoiced together in proper holiday spirit, and many Christmas banquets have been held about the campus, but these are only preludes to the joys in store in a multitude of distant homes.

There are also opportunities not to be forgotten. First and foremost, there is that pleasure each one can bring the fond family as they proudly welcome home their college boy. Then there is the young hopeful, ensting about for the college of his choice, who only awaits the right word at the right moment to decide upon Williams. A reference to the football season can scarcely fail to win his heart. For the intellectual elders, light mention of the Institute of Politics gains admiration.

In short, THE RECORD wishes holiday success to its readers in every way. Many they discover that those who hang the mistletoe understand its significance, may they find their golf stockings overflowing beyond all expectation, and may they achieve that rest before the cheery Yule log of which we all dream. God save you, gentle readers, and give you all a merrie Christmas.

Worthy Representatives

Hard conscientious work and excellent coaching have produced finished performances which promise to gain both the Combined Musical Clubs and Cap and Bells well-deserved success on the ambitious Christmas trips on which both organizations will embark this Wednesday. Hearty co-operation on the part of alumni and friends of Williams in every city which will be visited is sure to insure large and appreciative audiences, and the performances themselves are ample reward.

Cap and Bells presents acting both in the large and small parts of a uniform excellence unusual in college productions. For its sheer power of acting and the striking quality of staging and lighting effects "The Game of Chess" is one of the most impressive of the productions of Cap and Bells in recent years. Combining elements of stern tragedy and brilliant comedy, the program chosen promises to be unusually successful.

The Musical Clubs will present a well-balanced entertainment which earned high praise from critics at the trial performance. Taken together, both organizations will represent Williams in a way which will more than satisfy all Williams men.

50 Years Ago at Williams

The necessary expenses for tuition, room rent, and incidentals, amount to about $125.00 a year.

Base Ball in Williams is dead. But as long as Williams endures, as long as her undergraduates breathe this grand mountain air, she will count among them men of muscle, skill, and endurance in physical sports.

Ball has disappeared only to make way for boating. The past year has seen a Williams six in the water, instead of a Williams nine in the ball field.

The all-important question with us at present is: "would sliding seats be an advantage to our crew." With what wisdom our English friends, and Harvard, and Yale have adopted them remains to be seen.

Skating has been vigorously agitated and an association formed. . . . All students to be notified of the whereabouts of good ice, by various colored balls suggestive of different localities, and hoisted from the euphony of West College.

The promptness with which the college returned almost to a man, and the energy and cheerfulness with which it applied itself to its usual work, are resistless arguments in favor of a longer Thanksgiving recess than the old fashioned three days. Six days at Thanksgiving are a golden mean, neither too few or too many. My no Williams Catalogue henceforth fail of noting them in its list of vacations.

From Albany the club will go to Brookline, where it will appear at Whitney Hall on December 22 at 8.15 p. m. For this performance and the dance that will follow it Mr. Henry W. The plays are being given in honor of the three-hundredth anniversary of Moliere's birth. Following are the casts for the plays:

Some of Committee Chosen

To serve as a committee for the annual College Smoker which will take place in the spring, the following men have been appointed: Baxter, Britton, Hilton, and Jones '23; Herron, Mason, and McMillan '24. Three men will be appointed later from 1922 and one man from 1925.

Seniors Make Merry At Christmas Smoker

At the close of this part of the program, the ceremonies were interrupted by the advent of a telegraph messenger, bearing tidings of love, esteem, and jealousy from the absent President of the College. At the same time, Secor '22, chairman of the Committee read another telegram from the Hoyt's Review Company which was to appear in the show. "Stuek in Blackinton. Couldn't find a restaurant. Lost our lunch. Hope for success. Hoyt."

After this, the program was again interrupted to allow the audience to partake of a generous collation which was served by the committee.

Professor Maxcy, representing the 'Clerical' and 'serious' element, spoke on the unusual excellence of having an affair where faculty and students could gain co-operation, which is exactly what the college administration wants, and which is highly conducive to the training for good citizenship for which Williams strives. He was warmly applauded.

Next on the bill was the act of the "Filthy Four," composed of Chapman '22, base, Wells '22, baser, H. M. Rounds baser yet, and Holmes '23, too base for words. They first rendered the 'Dummy Line' a tragic panygyrie dedicated to the Boston and Maine Railroad, which sang the praises of an unknown beauty. They were enoored five times and finally closed with the Biblical Baseball Battle Hymn.

Local Movies, cinematographed by Wood '23, and featuring the "Life and Adventures of our own purified Roscoe Arbuckle, Zuber '23 at College," were shown with great success. The local version of Hank Mann was shown amidst hisses greater than those accorded the pictures of US going to chapel at 7.50. The movies closed with a tragic comedy of life in the Canadian woods acted by some unsung heroes.

Lyon '22, president of the class, made a closing speech in which he praised the work of the Committee and emphasized the congeniality, so necessary to any successful class, which the affair generated. He, then, took a vote as to whether more smokers should be given, and the affirmative reply was unanimous. The meeting closed with the singing of the Class Song, and of the Mountains. The committee in charge consisted of Secor '22, chairman, Brandeis, D. Dewey, S. Phillips, Wallace, and Youngman '22.

Hilton '23 has charge of the Springfield special, which will leave Williamstown with the regular 4.16 p. m. train, and will go to Greenfield, where a special engine will be attached. With a stop at Northampton, the train will arrive in Springfield at 7.10 p. m., or an hour and 20 minutes before the first regular train.

Fargo '22 has the agency for the Chicago train, which will leave the La Salle Street Station of that city at 8.25 a. m. on Wednesday, January 4, and will go to Albany where it will be attached to the New York special train. Tickets will be on sale at the station, and all men who have signed up will be notified during the vacation of the arrangements made.

McLoud '22 has been awarded the agency for the Buffalo special. This train will leave Buffalo at 10.15 p. m. on January 4, and with the Chicago train will be joined to the New York train at Albany at 4.55 a. m. Thursday. Tickets will be on sale at the Buffalo station.

and beer of countless music halls, were carried by the verve of the actors in The Crimson Cocoon. Where all of the participants did excellently, it seems almost invidious, although just, to select for special mention the adequacy and naturalness of Mr. Dodge, the supple femininity of Mr. Trounstone, and the villainous villainy of Mr. Carter.

The setting of the three plays was all that setting should be—significant, effective, but never obtrusive. The general competence of the actors is sufficient indication not only of their own aptitude and industry, but also of the unwearied skill with which they have been coached.

Running the gauntlet is easy when there's nothing to criticize—not even the price!

and others by Jayne, Gregory, and Webb, as opposed to one for the seniors by Richmond, accounted for a score of 10 to 2 at the end of the first period. In spite of a slight rally in the early part of the second half when baskets were shot by Lyon and Richmond, the lower classmen increased their lead, Jayne scoring four points and Gregory two. The team lined-up as follows: 1922—Richmond lf, H. Greer rf, Vroman c, Northrup lg, Lyon ag; 1921—Herron lf, B. Greer rg, Jayne c, Pease lg, Gregory rg; substitutions: 1922—Landeke; 1924—Parkhill, Healy, Webb, Johnson, Taylor, L. O'Brien.

Team work of a high order was shown by the freshmen in the 1923-25 game, especially during the second half, when 20 points were rolled up with comparative ease. Fisher was the individual star of the game, scoring ten points for his team. Mallon made three of the baskets for the juniors and proved the outstanding member of his combination. The first half was hard fought and close, ending seven to four for the winners, and it was not until the second period that the underclassmen showed their real power. The line-up was: 1923—Mallon lf, McAneny rf, Ward c, Hoyt lg, Laws rg; 1925—Cook lf, Reed rf, Fisher c, Dugan lg, Minns rg; substitutions: 1925—Bicknell, Brown, Ide, Bowling.

HOCKEY PRACTICE OFF

Warm Weather Handicaps Regular Work for Squad

As a result of the recent mild weather, the hockey team has been unable to hold regular work-outs during the past week on Cole Field. Daily practice will be resumed again if the ice hardens before vacation.

Before the weather became unfavorable last week, the team was drilled every day in goal shooting and in playing various formations. In addition to this form of practice, there have been a number of games between the varsity and scrub teams. During Christmas vacation several rinks will be made on Cole Field, and when College reopens in January, the squad will begin intensive training in preparation for the first contest of the season, which will be with R. P. I. in Williamstown on January 7. Immediately after vacation a cut will be made in the number of candidates, and those who are retained will eat at the training table in Currier Hall.

Novice Finals Postponed

Finals in the novice swimming meet for the Bowker Memorial Trophy will be held on Monday and Tuesday afternoons, instead of on last Thursday and Friday as previously announced, and the winner will be determined as the result of these last heats. Finals in the 40-yard dash and the 40-yard breast stroke will be held on Monday, and those in the 220-yard swim and the fancy diving will be held on Tuesday, the other events having already been completed.

FAMOUS MUSICAL TRIO WILL APPEAR THURSDAY

Mordegia Novelty Act Presents
Accordion, Violin, and Piano Selections

TO OFFER VARIED PROGRAM

Leader of Group is One of Most Noted Accordionists in This Country

Presenting a varied and unusual program of piano-accordion numbers, violin selections, solos, readings, musical monologues, and bits of exceptional piano trickery, the Mordegia Novelty Trio, which has received enthusiastic ovations at every appearance in a recent tour of the United States, will give their noted musical act next Thursday evening at 8.15 p. m. in the Thompson Entertainment Course for 1922. The Trio consists of Sig. Pietro Mordegia, accordion virtuoso, Miss Jane Golding, soprano and violinist, and Miss Christine Wisner, reader and pianist.

Pietro Mordegia, who is one of the greatest piano-accordionists in the country, is the leader and stellar performer of the group, and through constant practice has also become an exceedingly accomplished pianist at a comparatively recent date. When his father first settled in America, he was a proficient accordion maker, and consequently Pietro was brought up in musical surroundings which gave him an opportunity to study the intricate accordion and to become one of its finest masters. When he was further advanced in his musical studies, his parents gave him the advantage of taking up piano work under competent instructors, but Mordegia always preferred his father's accordions to any other similar forms of study. He has played in practically all of the great musical centers of the world, and his fine harmony and expression have everywhere gained him a pronounced success in all his entertainments. His repertoire is inexhaustible, for he starts with a medley of grand opera, and then carries his audience through patriotic airs, ragtime and popular selections, and southern melodies and folk songs, in the entire length of musical interpretation. It has often been said of him that "if you close your eyes you hear a full band," and that the volume and tones of his accordion are a remarkable feature of his playing.

According to a definite classification, the Mordegia Novelty Trio would come under the head of a vaudeville act, though the real artistic qualities of the music they present put them in a far better position than the ordinary musical performance. Their charm lies in the fact that both the music

BASKETBALL SQUAD IN FIRST HARD PRACTICE

Every Member of Squad is Given Chance to Play in Opening Scrimmage

Resuming practice after the Christmas vacation, the varsity basketball squad was put through the first scrimmage of the season last Saturday afternoon. With all the members of the squad participating in the workout except J. Kellogg, who was kept out by minor injuries, ample opportunity was given to get an idea of how Williams will show up in the contests for this winter.

In the forward position Blackmer played an excellent game. By his swift, steady passing and accurate shooting he showed great promise of being one of the mainstays of the team in the coming games. Although not playing such a spectacular game as Blackmer, Wightman did good, consistent work at left forward, alternating with Hyde who was substituted several times during the scrimmage. Hyde also gave a good account of himself, and is expected to put up a hard fight against Wightman for the forward berth.

Fargo and Jayne were both given opportunities to prove their worth at center, and both came up to the expectations of Coach Shanahan in filling that position. Fargo turned his ankle towards the end of the practice, but the injury is not severe enough to keep him off the floor for more than a day or two. Jayne played a skillful

TO FOUND WOODROW WILSON ENDOWMENT

Pres. Garfield Heads College Committee Helping to Raise
$1,000,000 Fund

President Harry A. Garfield is to head the committee at Williams College that is to assist in raising a fund of a million dollars or more to be known as the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, according to an announcement made yesterday by Professor Stephen P. Duggan, of the College of the City of New York, who is chairman of the educational committee of the Foundation. Working with President Garfield will be professors, instructors, and students organized as a committee that will give to members of the College an opportunity to become founders of the endowment from which annual awards are to be provided each year for "meritorious service to democracy, public welfare, liberal thought, or peace through justice."

The committee from colleges and universities follows:

President E. A. Alderman, University of Virginia; President James A. Blaisdell, Pomona College; President Marion LeRoy Burton, University of Michigan; Dean P. L. Buck, University of Nebraska; Prof. W. C. Bagley, Columbia University; Prof. Katherine Lee Bates, Wellesley College; Prof. John R. Commons, University of Wisconsin; President H. W. Chase, University of North Carolina; President L. D. Coffman, University of Minnesota; President William H. P. Faunce, Brown University; Dean Guy Stanton Ford, University of Minnesota; President Harry A. Garfield, Williams College; Prof. William Ernest Hoeking, Harvard University; President Henry N. MacCracken, Vassar College; President J. H. Main, Grinnell College; President Alexander Meiklejohn, Amherst College; President Sidney E. Mezes, College of the City of New York; President W. A. Nielson, Smith College; Prof. Edward A. Ross, University of Wisconsin; President M. Carey Thomas, Bryn Mawr College; and President Mary E. Woolley, Mount Holyoke College.

The committee is about equally divided between Democrats and Republicans, and includes those who voted for Mr. Wilson and those who did not. They are serving on the committee, Dr. Duggan said, "because of their adhesion to Mr. Wilson's ideals of human freedom and international cooperation and will work in a wholly non-partisan spirit to secure support among teachers and students in colleges and universities for the purposes of the Foundation, confident that the appeal will be particularly acceptable to that constituency."

In outlining the plans for the cooperation of the Educational Committee in the campaign Dr. Duggan said:

"A movement in favor of exalting the work of Mr. Wilson will appeal particularly to teachers and educators generally. Mr. Wilson was a teacher almost up to the time that he became President, and he did not stop his teaching even then. I think even his bitter enemies will admit that his explanation of the ideals of the Allies during the war was probably more potent than any other influence in keeping up the morale of the fighting allied people during the war."

"The educational committee that has been formed is working at the present time in every college of the country with committees of professors and students who will seek, among college men and women, founders of this endowment to reward meritorious service to democracy, public wel-

SUBMARINE DECISION OF DEEP SIGNIFICANCE

First of Articles on Washington Conference Shows Menace to English World

By WILLIAM HARD

(This is the first of a weekly series of articles on the Washington Conference by Mr. Hard, a brilliant and experienced American Journalist, author of The Women of Tomorrow, and joint author, with Col. Robins, of Raymond Robins' Story of Bolshevik Russia. He is now reporting the Conference for Asia, the New Republic, and other periodicals, including several college newspapers.)

Last week in the Washington Conference was a disastrous one for the English-speaking nations. The question of the submarine has upset the British in Europe, and there will soon be a realization of the fact that the question of the submarine has also upset the Americans in the Far East.

This conference was called to discuss armaments of all sorts. The question of land armaments was withdrawn from all important consideration by the speech of Premier Briand of France. The only part of it left was the matter of chemical warfare. It is very doubtful if the conference will be able to lay effective restrictions on chemical warfare or on preparation of materials for chemical warfare.

The question of air armaments has never reached the conference. The air experts here gathered are unemployed.

The question of naval armaments has remained therefore the one question dominating the conference in the matter of the

OUTING CLUB PLANS FEBRUARY CARNIVAL

Dartmouth and Vermont to Send Teams—Other Colleges Will Probably Enter

Dartmouth has already arranged to send two or three representatives to take part in the Winter Carnival which will be held by the Outing Club on February 2 and 3, and the University of Vermont has entered six men. Although Amherst and McGill have found it impossible to send entrants for the carnival, it is expected that a number of representatives will be on hand from Colgate, Cornell, and Middlebury.

The reason that Dartmouth will be unable to send more than three men is that the time of the carnival conflicts with the time of mid-year examinations at the New Hampshire college. The Sno-Bird's Carnival, however, which was held at Lake Placid, N. Y. in December, was won by a team of only three Dartmouth men, and accordingly the contestants from that college are much to be feared.

Entry blanks have already been sent out to the colleges that have been invited, and the blanks must be returned before January 21. The Outing Club is now preparing entrance cards for the men in College who expect to enter any of the events in the carnival, and these cards will be distributed to the fraternities and eating

PROF. DUTTON SPEAKS TO W. C. A. ON 'FOOLS'

Speaker Points Out Distinction in Modern Conceptions of Folly

"Fools" was the subject of an address by Professor George B. Dutton before the regular weekly meeting of the Williams Christian Association last Sunday evening in Jesup Hall. The problem developed in the talk was the determination of a distinction between two sorts of folly found in the present day conceptions of romanticism, democracy, and Christianity, one of which is, according to the speaker, to be esteemed while the other is to be condemned.

"The romantic fool in comparison with the fool of Christianity" was the explanation given by Professor Dutton as the significance of the subject. "The romantic fool" was used to represent a certain tendency in romanticism to exalt various elements of folly which at the same time flout rationality. "Due to this tendency, there has arisen," said Professor Dutton, "a barrier between intelligence and virtue." In romanticism, whatever is considered "good, usually bears with it an impression of obtuseness." A parallel case was given in the illustration that in the modern mind, Lincoln is often remembered and esteemed more for having been at one time a rail-splitter than for being the possessor of an unusual intellect.

In referring to the Bible, two types of folly are discernible. In Corinthians we find one of these illustrated when St. Paul says: "If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God." Here, according to the speaker, is illustrated the essence of romanticism, of democracy, and of Christianity; and yet it is a condemnation of wisdom! On the other hand we find in the Bible the usual condemnation of folly in the fact that in a parable the rich man who laid up for himself great treasures in the shape of riches was called, by the founder of Christianity, a fool. Professor Dutton gave examples that can be taken as illustrating the preferable kind of folly. Bunyan, when he faced the conventionality of his time by holding a belief different from the established church, was undoubtedly a fool in a certain light. Likewise, John Brown in attempting to gain arms for the slaves at Harper's Ferry, opposed the rationality generally accepted. Christ himself, in a worldly scale of values, may be considered a fool.

"There is a certain kind of living, opposed to the usual, customary acceptance of laws and conventions, a kind of living that may be styled folly and still is estimable. Where the praise of folly found in romanticism is indiscriminate, that folly which is praised in the Bible is perceptibly different from that which is there condemned." In praising folly, the Bible refers to the flouting, not of rationality, but of accepted conventions, and this type of folly is entirely rational when referred to an unworlly scale of values, according to the speaker. In conclusion, Professor Dutton emphasized that the more the world is viewed with its limited values and range, the more appears necessary the place in men's natures of that "divine" folly which can impel the undertaking of the seemingly impossible and can kindle in men the spirit of real romanticism, democracy, and Christianity.

Mr. A. L. Cru to Read Paper

SEASON OPENED BY VICTORY IN HOCKEY

Superior Teamwork Results in 9-1 Win for Purple Over R. P. I.
Sextet Saturday

BECKET SCORES FOUR POINTS FOR WILLIAMS

Losers Kept on Defense Throughout Game—Tierney Secures Single Tally

Holding their opponents on the defensive throughout the three 15-minute periods of the first game of the season, and displaying good teamwork considering the poor condition of the ice and the lack of preliminary practice, the Williams six-man hockey team easily defeated Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute on Col. Field last Saturday afternoon by the score of 9-1. The visitors' single tally came in the second period on a shot by Captain Tierney that dribbled by Richmond at goal.

Badly cut up by the players' skates, the rough ice hindered the passing and shooting of both teams, but in spite of this difficulty the Williams sextet worked well together and presented a strong attack, especially in the first period, when the six veterans of last year's team held their opponents scoreless while tallying four times. The clever passing of Clark was responsible for several of the winners' scores.

Captain Becket was easily the star of the contest, scoring four times and leading his team on both offense and defense. His ability in carrying the puck through the opposing team and his hard and swift shooting were large factors in downing the visitors. Clark played consistently well at wing, and Rowse and Stephenson showed steadiness. Buell's ability in breaking up the attacks of the losers added to the defense of his team, although he showed weakness in shooting.

Lack of teamwork was the primary fault of the losers, whose individual efforts were unable to penetrate successfully the strong defense of the Purple. During the greater part of the game the puck was in their own territory, and they could not hold the offensive except for occasional one-man attacks which were easily blocked. Captain Tierney at center and Dureau and Ferrey at the wings played well individually, but showed lack of practice in teamwork. Breithaupt, on the defense, broke up many advances of the winners, but could not carry the puck consistently. At goal, Robbins did excellent work, stopping many shots from all angles. Poor passing and weak coordination resulted in the defeat of the visitors.

WITTSTEIN TO FURNISH MUSIC FOR PROMENADE

Twelve-Piece Orchestra to Play For Friday Evening Dance
in Gymnasium

Wittstein's Orchestra of New Haven has been definitely procured by the committee in charge to furnish the music for the Sophomore Promenade on Friday evening, February 3, the last day of the midwinter house-parties. Twelve pieces have been contracted for, including "Eddie" Wittstein himself, Yaffe on the violin, and "Sleepy" Hall on the banjo, thus securing for the Prom Wittstein's best orchestra.

The dancing will begin at 9.00 Friday evening and will continue until 6.00 Saturday morning, although, should there be enough sentiment to warrant the taking of a collection of $60, provisions have been made for keeping the orchestra an additional hour. Twenty program dances will precede the supper which will be served, as usual, at about 2.00 in the morning. After this intermission during which the repast will be served there will be informal dancing until 6.00. Admission charges will be $9.00 for couples and $7.00 for stags, and a class tax of $1.00 has been levied on the members of 1924 to help defray the expenses of the entertainment.

Eugene Morgan, the steward at the Phi Sigma Kappa house, has been secured by the Prom Committee to be the caterer for the supper. The decorating has been entrusted to the Atlantic Decorating Com-

Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

Stay the Axe

Over a considerable period of years Postmaster Dempsey has proved himself to be one of the best federal employees that Williamstown has ever had the pleasure of seeing in office. If our system of government were ideal, mere changes of the balance of power in national politics should hold no terrors for such proved servants. But unfortunately there is a "spoils system" that disregards the theory that shifts of power from one party to another are but for the purpose of checking up on delinquents.

THE RECORD but expresses the sentiments of the College, Republicans and Democrats alike, in its hope that the efforts to retain Mr. Dempsey in office may prove successful. The publications, in particular, with the vast amount of mailing matter they send out and receive, can bear witness to the uniformly courteous, efficient treatment, and the spirit of cooperation which has characterized the post office under the Dempsey regime.

Vacation Dates

One of the annual spring complaints which never fails to rouse a storm of protest when it is too late to undertake remedial measures is the time for the Easter vacation. Year after year students depart from Williamstown with high hopes for that recess only to return with a decided grouse and varying maledictions on a fruitless vacation spent at home when few other friends are there.

The vacation does not pretend to divide the second semester accurately in half, it very evidently does not aim to send students home for the most fundamentally religious festival of the year, and we sometimes wonder if there is any other time or reason for its location other than the fact that it is a part of a long-standing college law and hence akin to those of the Medes and the Persians as regards variability. This year for the first time undergraduates at a distance were permitted to enjoy New Year's Day in its entirety in their own home without the harassing thought of a train to catch before evening.

It was a highly appreciated privilege, entailing no sacrifice of college work, and along the same line THE RECORD would like to propose for the serious consideration of the Board of Trustees at its January meeting the proposition of changing the dates of the Easter vacation in the future so that they include Easter day itself.

This year Easter Sunday falls on April 16, and the vacation includes the week from April 5-12. A hasty census of our chief neighboring colleges shows that the Cornell vacation is the only one that at all coincides with that of Williams. Dartmouth's vacation begins on March 31, Amherst also divides the semester more evenly by taking the week prior to April 6, while Wesleyan, Harvard, Princeton, Brown, Columbia, M. I. T., and the majority of other colleges pick later dates which include Easter Sunday within the recess period. In view of these facts it would seem desirable to postpone the dates of the Williams vacation one week unless strong and hitherto unexplained grounds for retaining them at the present time should be brought forward. This change would set the vacation from April 12 to April 19, with Easter day as the central point.

Radicals and Radicals

It is a pleasure to print the communication in an adjoining column because it furnishes such an apt illustration of the sentiments frequently expressed by alumni of the College who must perforce know but a single side because of their remoteness from Williamstown. It is THE RECORD's misfortune that it is only able through its news columns to outline briefly talks delivered before the student body, and that it is unable to portray the spirit in which they are received, the attitude of the audience, or even the refutations frequently made from the floor.

We would like to italicize the first sentence of Mr. Pettit's fourth paragraph, and then underscore the first two words. But how is one to become a "student of the Plumb Plan," if not by seeking information? Should one desire a full exposition of the Industrial Court in Kansas, it is scarcely conceivable that Alexander Howatt, lying in prison because of that Court, would be summoned in preference to Governor Allen, its originator. Glenn Plumb, the originator of the Plumb Plan, has been summoned before the intellectual body of Williams College. The other side of the question will be presented by a railroad executive later in the spring.

One of the best treatments for radicalism as for any other infection or disease is to bring it into the light of day. Free airing of doctrines never accomplished one-tenth the ill effects that secret intrigue has effected. The pity of it is that our alumni cannot attend in person some of these meetings which they deplore, and see the doctrines they deery stumble and falter before the amused gaze of all. Last spring, for example, a noted socialist speaker was quite literally "floored" by refutations from a number of undergraduates, being finally forced to throw up his hands and admit defeat. Human nature is prone to easy beliefs in those things about which it knows little. Most sentimental natures are drawn toward radical viewpoints simply because of meagre information. Nothing could be more healthful than to have a full exposition of any given radical doctrine, for it is then that its fallacies stand forth most clearly.

Mr. Pettit is falling into grave error in advocating action by the College authorities to suppress speakers of a socialistic nature. He quotes Russia and fails to remember that it was a very similar suppression under an earlier autocratic regime that makes that distraught land such a beautiful example for all conservatives to point to at present. Harmless burning powder once ceased becomes terribly powerful. From the student point of view, the best advertising a socialist speaker could have would be suppression by the College authorities.

It is suggested that the student body be taught more "practical ideas as a foundation for their business life." This is one of the most modern topics of the day, and one in which business men should be particularly fitted to advise. THE RECORD regrets the fact that Mr. Pettit did not develop the topic further or more explicitly, and it would welcome further suggestions. Here is room for really constructive criticisms. As regard radicalism, we cannot but close with a mental reservation that the one who merely asks for a fair hearing for even a faulty case is not promoting the evil effects of radicalism with half the effect that another may achieve by demanding a one-sided, autocratic presentation, or preferably no hearing at all.

10 Years Ago at Williams

Professor Kellogg of the Biological Department has been called out of town to give expert testimony in damage suits of considerable interest brought by oystermen against various eastern manufacturing companies. In 1908 Prof. Kellogg was called by the oystermen to show that the water might, and in fact did, cause the destruction of the oysters. In 1911 Professor Kellogg again appeared for the oystermen, and the largest verdict obtained in Rhode Island for many years was rendered there. He has been retained as a shell-fish expert to testify in the oystermen's interests.

The Williams College Musical Clubs will give a concert at the Masonic Temple in North Adams, on the evening of January 22, where they will be guests of the Masons at a reception and dance.

At a meeting held on Monday evening, December 18, the Aeronautical Society voted to purchase a balloon for the use of the members, as soon as the necessary funds are available. In order to secure the amount, which is $700, it is planned to solicit subscriptions from the members of the society.

A meeting of the Good Government Club was held in Jesup Hall last Monday afternoon. Republican and Democratic political conventions similar to those held here four years ago will be held about the first of May. The meetings will come on successive evenings and will be in charge of the Current Politics Committee. Mock presidential elections will be held under the auspices of the Good Government Club at the time of the regular national elections next fall.

The Dante Club met last night at the home of President Garfield to read cantos seven and eight of the Purgatorio. Prof. Howes read a production entitled "The Personal Character of Vergil," and Rev. Stevens presented a paper on "The Doctrine of Grace."

DEPLORES RADICAL SPEAKERS

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir:

As an alumnus of Williams I cannot refrain from surprise that the College authorities would allow any such radical and socialist as Glenn E. Plumb in Williamstown to talk before the student body in an endeavor to inculcate in their young minds such revolutionary and Bolshevik principles as laid down in his railroad plan.

If we are going to allow such men as this man Plumb to run this Government with their impossible and impractical ideas, we will find ourselves worse off than Russia because we would be supposedly intelligent beings in chaos instead of ignorant ones.

It seems to me high time that college authorities became more practical and less theoretical, and taught the student body practical ideas as a foundation for their business life awaiting them, as they have to learn, often by sad experience, that practice and not ideal theories govern this world's business, therefore why not have this groundwork already in advance of necessity, rather than have their minds loaded up with a lot of radical rubbish.

Any student of the Plumb plan cannot fail to realize the utter uselessness and impossibility of it. It would just start the ball rolling towards the social revolution desired and a second Russia.

There is altogether too much of this demoralizing propaganda allowed to flourish in our colleges where the young minds, without experience, are most receptive, instead of an insistence on study of substantial and true government in the most practical manner. We would not now be suffering from the effects of the arrogance of labor had it not been for radical and impractical ideas developed and allowed fruition by a school teacher president of these United States.

Any one of the students who would like first hand practical information on labor and what its power spells in anarchy can come right down here to West Virginia for study and when he goes back to Williamstown no Plumb plan or any other plan which means nationalization of any industry, and that means labor control, will appeal to him.

and aggressive game, and contributed much to the strong showing made by the varsity. Coach Shanahan will have difficulty in choosing between Fargo and Jayne, for both of these men are reliable and can be depended upon to put up a strong fight at center. Bianchi was also tried at center and used his height to advantage in this place.

Captain Wilson filled the position of right guard in a convincing manner. Continually breaking up formations used by the opposing team, Wilson often displayed brilliant playing and a thorough knowledge of the game. The other defensive berth was filled during most of the scrimmage by Pease, for whom Boynton was substituted later. As a whole the varsity showed promise in the scrimmage, although the players lacked the accuracy in passing and shooting which more intensive practice ought to give. At times the team work was ragged but the playing was as good as was expected for an early season exhibition.

In preparation for the opening contests of the season with Wesleyan in Middletown, Conn., next Saturday and with Knox College in Williamstown on the following Monday, Coach Shanahan will drill the men for two hours every afternoon this week and will probably hold another scrimmage tomorrow afternoon.

limiting of weapons of warfare. Naval warfare includes many weapons. The weapon of the capital ship has been put under the limitation of 500,000 tons for Great Britain, 500,000 tons for the United States, 300,000 tons for Japan, and 175,000 tons each for France and Italy. This limitation will have peculiar advantages for Japan and for France and peculiar disadvantages for Britain and for America unless there is at the same time a limiting of submarines. But the events of this week have brought forward the French demands regarding submarines and have seemed to make a limiting of submarines impossible.

At this moment the conference cannot limit submarines. But if it cannot limit submarines it will not be able to limit anti-submarine craft. Among anti-submarine craft we must number the seaplane and the destroyer. Mr. Balfour has made it clear that if the French build large numbers of submarines the British will be obliged to organize anti-submarine craft in large numbers. But if the British are free to organize them, so are the Japanese. These craft, however, if they include destroyers and seaplanes, are useful also against capital ships. The Japanese therefore will be free to equip themselves with a great resistance against capital ships. The Americans meanwhile have limited themselves to the ratio of five capital ships to Japan's three. It is accepted doctrine among naval men that a war between the United States and Japan would have to be fought in the Far East where the ambitions of Japan are located. It would be an aggressive war by us and a defensive war by Japan, navally considered. It follows that the situation created by present developments in the Conference is manifestly enormously advantageous to Japan. We have limited the capital ships which are the only ships that can take an aggressive command of the sea and we have not been able to limit the little ships (whether under the sea or on the surface of the sea or in the air) which are able to counteract the capital ships.

The more this conference proceeds, the more it becomes plain that we are going to find the limiting of armaments an extremely difficult technical problem if it is approached simply as a technical problem. The more this conference proceeds, the more it becomes plain that justice and a sense of accomplished right between nations will be highly necessary to the state of mind which will not demand prodigious armaments. This justice and this sense of accomplished right have not yet been reached, nor can they be reached till European questions as well as Far Eastern questions have been more fully adjusted. The next international conference will have to consider those questions—questions embracing the whole world—and consider them in a larger assembly of nations. That is the special lesson of the last discouraging week.

Ask Retention of Dempsey

In view of the fact that Patrick J. Dempsey, postmaster of Williamstown, is likely to be removed from office, on account of his Democratic leanings, in favor of a Republican candidate, a petition for his retention has been drawn up for circulation by several of his friends in town. All students who desire to signify their protest against this action of removal from office may sign this petition.

Though they are all trained artists in the musical world, there is nothing of the stereotyped in their presentation or program, and audiences are struck by the appeal of the unusual and original. It is an All-Star Trio, versatile in a high degree, who present a popular list of selections in a popular manner, though their strange living and strange natures influence the entire presentation in a singular and life-like way.

The main divisions of the program to be presented next Thursday evening are selections from songs and stories of the strange folk of Europe, folk-songs of the gypsies, the warm music of southern Italy, wild violin harmonies of wandering bands, and readings picked from various phases of true and every-day life.

Early in the first period Clark succeeded in carrying the puck down the rink to the goal, where he made a neat pass, to Becket, who shot the goal. After several threatening attacks by Ferrey and Dureau, Becket again scored, following up a shot by Stephenson, and a minute later Rowse added another point. Holding their opponents continually on the defensive, Buell and Stephenson each made tries for a goal but missed. As happened continually throughout the game, many attempts at long shots were spoiled by the rough condition of the ice. With only a few minutes of play left, Becket scored his third point from a scrimmage directly before the goal.

Rowse opened the second period with a successful shot from another scrimmage in front of the losers' goal. The playing in this period was ragged and uneven, due largely to the poor ice. Becket and Stephenson led the Purple attack, going through the opposing team on many occasions but missing their tries at goal. Captain Tierney broke away for a clear shot at half time, and the elusively bounding puck passed Richmond at goal for R. P. I.'s only score of the game. The last tally of the period was made by Stephenson on a long shot from near the center of the rink, making the score 6-1.

Several changes in the Purple line-up were made at the opening of the third and final period, Pressprich doing the best work of the substitutes. As in the two earlier periods, the play was almost entirely in the losers' territory, the Williams goal being hardly threatened. Becket carried the puck again down the rink for another goal and Clark tallied soon after. Tierney showed up well in this period, but lacked support from his team. The final point of the game was scored by Hemphill on a shot made from a difficult angle in the last few minutes of the contest.

The line-up of both teams follows:

Williams	R. P. I.
Clark	Lw. Dureau
Stephenson	C. Tierney (Capt.)
Rowse	r.w. Ferrey
Buell	l.d. Breithaupt
Becket (Capt.)	r.d. MacIntyre
Richmond	g. Robbins

Goals—for Williams, Becket (4), Rowse (2), Clark, Hemphill, Stephenson; for R. P. I., Tierney. Substitutions—Williams, Crosby for Buell, Phelps for Richmond, Hemphill for Rowse, G. Dewey for Stephenson, Buell for Crosby, Pressprich for Dewey; R. P. I., Quinn for Dureau, Ewing for Quinn, Dureau for Ewing. Time, three periods of 15 minutes each. Referee, Peacock of Pittsfield; timer, Prindle.

MORDEGLIA TRIO GIVES VARIED ENTERTAINMENT

Accordion Virtuoso is Assisted by

ACCORDION EXPLAINED

Third Number of Thompson Course Is Well Received by Large Audience

In a program ranging in its variety from grand opera selections through comic musical monologues, serious and humorous impersonations, concert solos, popular and folk songs, even to jazz, the Mordegia Trio entertained an enthusiastic audience which filled Jesup Hall last Thursday evening in the third number of the Thompson Course. Sig. Pietro Mordegia, the piano-accordion virtuoso and leader of the Trio, was ably supported by Miss Jane Golding, soprano and violinist, and Miss Christine Wisner, reader and pianist.

The program of the evening opened with selections from Aida, Samson and Delilah, Faust, and William Tell, in which the harmonies and melodies were excellently interpreted by each musician, the accordion being particularly interesting and fascinating because of its unfamiliarity to most listeners. Ave Maria was chosen as the second number in order to demonstrate the great possibilities of the piano-accordion in intricate chords.

A series of impersonations was then begun by Miss Wisner who appeared in a monologue, "The Mallet's Masterpiece," a short legendary sketch in play form of the creation of the Venus de Milo. Sig. Mordegia followed in comic impersonations of a moving-picture pianist, popular variations on Rubenstein's Melody in F, in which a duet played with the hands and feet featured, and finally a correct imitation of cathedral chimes.

Solos by Miss Golding, Miss Wisner and Sig. Mordegia followed, each exhibiting skill in rendition on the violin, piano, and accordion, respectively. After playing several ballads, Sig. Mordegia explained the use of the accordion, an instrument weighing 25 pounds and priced at $400, the

SWIMMING SCHEDULE RATIFIED BY COUNCIL

Williams Will Meet Dartmouth for First Time—Coach to Be Appointed Soon

1922 SWIMMING SCHEDULE

February 11—Dartmouth at Hanover.
February 18—Wesleyan at Middletown.
February 24—Amherst at Amherst.
February 25—Springfield Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield.
March 4—Williams-Amherst-Wesleyan triangular meet at Springfield.

Recently ratified by the Faculty Committee and the Athletic Council, the 1922 swimming schedule contains five meets, all of them away from Williamstown. In the first meet of the season Williams will face Dartmouth at Hanover on February 11 for the first time in the history of swimming at Williams, but Wesleyan, Amherst and Springfield Y. M. C. A. College are old opponents.

A prominent feature of the schedule is the final meet between Williams, Amherst, and Wesleyan, the first triangular meet to be held since 1914, when the last Amherst-Brown-Williams meet took place. Amherst, Brown, Wesleyan, and Springfield easily defeated Williams last year, while Springfield Y. M. C. A. College won by one point.

For the first time since swimming was established as a sport at Williams, a coach for the team is to be secured. The ratification of his appointment by the Faculty Committee on Athletics is expected within a few days. In addition to the five regular meets, several members of the team will be chosen to compete in the annual New England Intercollegiate to be held in Boston, and also in the National Intercollegiate, which are to take place some time during March in Philadelphia. Membership in the National Association was granted last October at a meeting of the Association held in New York.

Witcombe Chosen Soccer Captain for 1922 Season

Wallace H. Witcombe '23, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., was elected captain of the varsity soccer team for 1922 at a meeting of the all-class team held in Jesup Hall last Monday evening. Manager Durfee '23 also announced definitely that a soccer schedule is being arranged with other colleges for the season next fall, and that accordingly soccer will be conducted as a recognized minor sport for the first time next year.

Witcombe prepared for Williams at the Masses School, Stamford, Conn., where he played soccer for five years, being captain in his senior year.

ROOSEVELT IS FAMOUS FOR HIS PERSONALITY

Prof. T. C. Smith Delivers First Tuesday Lecture on Noted
Historical Figure

With the interesting and modern subject of "The Place of Theodore Roosevelt in American History," Prof. T. C. Smith of the History Department delivered the first number of the 1922 Tuesday Lecture Course, last Tuesday afternoon in the Thompson Physical Laboratory, before one of the largest audiences that has attended such a lecture in recent years. Prof. Smith presented chiefly the singular traits of the great statesman which differentiated him from all other noted men of our history, and dwelt particularly on his intense personality, vigorous sense of fair-play, and on his aggressiveness, both in domestic and political matters.

"Since Theodore Roosevelt took as his criterion of life the question as to whether or not a certain act was playing fair and was practical, he has become Saint Theodore along with Saint George and Saint Abraham, the other great leaders of the welfare of the United States. Any personal possessions that were ever dear to him are now being preserved with great care, and after his death, 30 books, 124 articles, and 26 poems have appeared, attesting to the fact that Roosevelt has gained a position in present day history which is equalled by few of America's national figures. 'Where there is smoke there is fire,' and we can easily see that his true character and personality thoroughly warranted the popularity that he has recently acquired.

Bowdoin First Opponent on Purple Relay Schedule

Practice has been held every day this week on the board track, except Wednesday when the snow kept the men inside, and the men are fast rounding into shape. As in previous years, Williams will in all probability send a team to Boston on February 4 to run against Bowdoin, and will also place entries in the B. A. A. meet the same day, although these plans have not been formally ratified by the Athletic Council.

About 30 men are reporting to Coach Seeley every day for practice, and judging from the material now out, Williams will be represented by a strong relay team this winter. Richmond '22, Stowers '23, and Miller and Snell '24 are among the most promising candidates who are reporting. In addition to those in the three upper classes, Conklin, Keep, and Post '25 are among the freshmen reporters who should develop into good runners under the training of Coach Seeley.

Talk on Provençal Poetry

Prof. Albert Cru of the Language Department will read a paper on "Provençal Poetry of To-day" at the next meeting of the Whitney Society, to be held Monday evening, January 16, at 8.00 p. m. in the Faculty Club. The subject will deal chiefly with the various types of dialects and topics which are employed by the literary men of that district of France.

Olmsted is Prom Chairman

William F. Olmsted '22, of Yonkers, N. Y., was elected chairman of the Senior Auxiliary Promenade Committee at a meeting of that body Monday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time James B. Williams '22 of Williamstown was elected treasurer of the committee.

Edward A. Fargo, Jr., '22 of Evanston, Ill., was recently presented with the Brooks Memorial Medal by Acting-President Maxey as a result of the decision reached by the committee of award composed of Professor Wild, Coach Wendell, and Manager Blake. This is the third award of the medal, Ben L. Boynton '21 and W. C. Burger '22 being the first and second recipients, respectively.

This medal is given yearly in memory of Captain Belvedere Brooks '10, who was killed at Villesavoye, France, on Aug. 21, 1918 while serving with the 308th Infantry. It is to be presented each year as soon as convenient after the football season to that member of the team whose work shall have been the greatest credit to the College. Further conditions are that no man shall receive the medal more than once, and that the recipient is to be selected by a committee composed of the chairman of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, the football coach, and the football manager.

(Special correspondence to THE RECORD from the Disarmament Conference at Washington.)

By WILLIAM HARD

The net total of the Washington Conference so far may be defined as (1) a compromise, and (2) a British compromise. This is not to be understood as implying that a compromise is a bad thing, or that a British compromise is a bad thing; nor is it to be understood as implying that Mr. Hughes has succumbed to anything that could be called the wiles of British diplomacy. It is not British wiles but general circumstances which have produced a situation of compromise and a situation of outstanding British influence.

The situation of compromise is illustrated in all three of the principal phases of the work of the Conference so far. In the matter of China the freeing of the Chinese government from the various foreign treaty rights which it regards as encroachments on its sovereignty is to be conducted for the most part in states and not in one great crash of emancipation. SPRINGFIELD SEXTET TO PLAY HERE TODAY

Red and White Will Open Hockey Schedule at 2.30 Today
on Cole Field

January 14—In the second game of the season, the Williams hockey team will oppose the Springfield College sextet at 2.30 p. m. this afternoon on the Cole Field Rink. The visiting team has lost the only game played this winter, an exhibition contest with the Springfield Hockey Club last Saturday afternoon, by an 8-1 score.

Captain Leonard, veteran center of the Springfield team, for the past three seasons, is the nucleus of the team and the most consistent and aggressive player. Courtney, at left defense, the only other regular of the 1921 team who will be in the lineup today, is well versed in the game and has been assisting coaching as well as holding down his position. Houston, goal tender, a mainstay of the second team last year, bids well to make a good showing this year. Lang, a Canadian of considerable experience at right defense, played well last Saturday in the exhibition, but seemed to lack essentials of teamwork. Hamn and Reid, wings, have had little opportunity to show their ability, but promise well. The game with the Purple today is the first on the regular Springfield schedule.

The Williams sextet has had hard scrimmaging against the seconds throughout the week, during which the men were given instruction in a few of the finer points in which they seemed weak last Saturday against R. P. I. The team as a whole has played well in practice each day, and it is doubtful if there will be any radical

'Cap and Bells' to Give Plays During Houseparty

In accordance with the usual custom Cap and Bells is planning to present its program of three one-act plays on the second evening of the mid-winter houseparty. Ryland, The Game of Chess, and The Crimson Cocoon will be brought before the student body for the first time on Thursday evening, February 2, at 8.30 p. m. in Chapin Hall.

With one exception the casts for the plays have not been changed since the Christmas trip. Baxter '23 is taking the role of Miss Nancy Jalstiek in The Crimson Cocoon, in place of Thompson '24, due to the ineligibility of the latter. Rehearsals for the houseparty show will begin in the near future. Prices for the performance have been fixed at $1.50, $1.00, and 75 cents. All seats in Chapin Hall will be reserved except those in the balcony, which will sell for 75 cents. Fraternity drawings for blocks of reserved seats will take place next Thursday at 7.30 p. m. in Jesup Hall. Each fraternity is requested to send a man to draw for his house. Seats may also be reserved by calling the Cap and Bells office in Jesup Hall any evening between 7.30 and 8.30 p. m., beginning Saturday, January 21, and they will also be on sale after that date at the College Pharmacy.

'Class Book' Elects Ewing

Hampton D. Ewing, Jr., '22 of Yonkers, N. Y., was elected chairman of the 1922 Class Book at a meeting of the board last Monday evening in Jesup Hall. Ewing prepared for Williams at the Yonkers High School. He has been a member of the RECORD board since freshmen year and is a member of the Senior Auxiliary Promenade Committee.

QUINTET MATCHED AGAINST WESLEYAN

Williams Team in Good Shape for First Contest This Evening at Middletown

RED AND BLACK HAS PLAYED FIVE GAMES

Clark, Stevess, Tech, and Connecticut Aggies Have Lost to Ancient Rival

With a team well-drilled and in good working order considering the early stage of the season, Williams will face Wesleyan in basketball on the latter's floor this evening in the opening contest of the 1922 schedule.

In one way it would appear that the Red and Black had a decided advantage over the Purple in that Saturday's game will be the sixth on its schedule. Added to this, it is uncertain whether Fargo will be able to play for Williams on account of an injury to his ankle received last Saturday. Coach Shandhan is, however, quite optimistic about the progress which the team has shown up to the present time: "The varsity showed up very well in the practice game last Saturday, and they also had a good snappy workout last Tuesday. Wesleyan only beat us by a mighty small margin last year, and I think that we will put up a fight and be in the game every minute this year. I am well satisfied with the work of the team."

Of those who have been showing up very favorably in practice, Wightman and Blackmer as forwards, and Jayne both in center and guard positions, have all three been doing noticeably good work. Bianchi has been out with a cold, but is now back and may make the trip to Middletown as a substitute center even if Fargo is able to go. Jayne will act as substitute both for center and either of the guard positions.

WILL CONTRIBUTE TO WILSON FOUNDATION

College to Join With Town Committee—To Reward Distinguished Service

In cooperation with the Williamstown committee of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, opportunity will be given the student body to contribute to this fund at any time next week. The two-fold purpose of the Foundation is to recognize the services of Ex-President Wilson in striving for cooperation of the liberal forces of mankind, and with the income to make frequent awards for meritorious service to democracy, public welfare, liberal thought, or peace through justice.

Created by popular subscription and not by any house-to-house canvass or "drive," the fund sought is "$1,000,000 or more" and is to stand in recognition of the national as well as the international services of Mr. Wilson. Various subsidiary organizations throughout the country will seek to place the facts about the Foundation before as many persons as possible. They are anxious to receive a large number of contributions of necessarily small amounts such as one dollar, or even a quarter or a penny from those who are in sympathy with the movement but can afford no more. No arguments will be employed upon those who do not wish to join in this "free-will offering," as it is to be called. After the money has been raised, a non-partisan and representative Board of Trustees will be entrusted with its permanent administration, but the awards will be made by a differently constituted non-partisan committee of 25 members.

Franklin D. Roosevelt is chairman of the national committee of the Foundation, and Hamilton Holt is executive director. Among the members of the executive committee are Cleveland H. Dodge, chairman, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Henry Morgenthau, Adolph S. Ochs, Frank L. Polk, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise. Of the Williamstown Committee, the honorary chairman is Professor Garrett Droppers, the executive chairman Miss Grace Perry, and the

Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

From Noon to Noon

Economy and efficiency are two of the strong planks with which the new administration in Washington is gaining praise. These two virtues are being preached more strenuously by many a fond parent as well, alarmed at the growing cost of son's education.

"Get your money's worth at College" is very excellent advice for Williams, but it still fails to take account of one of the most easily attacked expenditures, namely, the excessive cost of getting to and from Williamstown. Since stage-coaches have passed away, and rapid transportation has come to stay, undergraduates have become accustomed to leaving Williamstown at the earliest possible moment and returning as late as practicable. Unfortunately there are no trains before 7.30 a. m., and but few after 4.00 p. m., the conventional opening and closing hours of College.

The natural result has been the growth of special trains. Starting as a luxury, they have assumed the position of an expensive necessity, the usual "special" fare from New York to Williamstown being $11.50 in contrast to the regular day fare of $6.94. This sum, small in the individual case, reaches a surprising total when multiplied by the mass of the undergraduate body and then by the number of vacations.

The Boston and Maine Railroad, after over half a century's connection with Williams College, still seems disinclined to change its schedules to fit College hours, so it would seem that Mahomet must again proceed to the mountain. The most approved modern method of procedure at many colleges is to set noon as the hour for opening and closing, a system admirably fitted to Williamstown where the majority of trains run between 9.30 a. m. and 3.30 p. m.

We can already picture the Faculty's pleased smile at this suggestion and their cheery acquiescence: "Fine—you can leave at noon instead of 4.00 p. m. Wednesday and return on a Wednesday noon rather than Thursday morning—Just the same length of time!" But the actual number of hours of vacation is decreased, and one evening, invaluable to any youthful Alonius, is lost. The storm of protest then aroused in the undergraduate ranks is likewise easy to picture. The final result will be a continuance of the present expensive, inefficient system.

Must affairs continue so, or may we face the condition fairly and discard the afternoon and morning hours of the respective closing and opening days? Brilliant recitations can hardly be expected the morning following the hectic experience of a night ride on the New York Special; these recitation hours are the least productive of the entire year. Stricter regard for the exact limits of the vacation might well go hand in hand with the extension due to train schedules. Precedent for the foregoing is found in the Thanksgiving recess where a one day holiday was extended four hours each way with beneficial results, longer absences being allowed only in exceptional cases. If this be food for thought, we respectfully request the Faculty and Trustees to make the most of it.

Politics Again

The attention of THE RECORD has been called to the possible misinterpretation of a recent editorial entitled, "Stay the Axe," as meaning that Postmaster Dempsey is in danger of being expelled from office. In point of fact, Mr. Dempsey's commission expires Jan. 24, 1922, and the use of the term was such as would be employed in a big corporation should the question come up of dropping a worthy official at the end of the term for which his salary is drawn. The efficient, satisfactory manner in which the post office has been run under the present management demands careful consideration before such action is taken.

Education by the Hour

"The student, like the wage-earner, is paid by the hour. He has his day's work cut out for him, and every hour he misses is chalked up against his pay-roll. Only the time-clock is lacking for him to punch as he enters and leaves the hall of learning. But the professor is both foreman and time-keeper; and he does his job well.

"Pay day comes around only twice a year in the University. In February and in June the grand reckoning is made, and the student marches boldly up to seek his reward. If he has been a good workman, steady at the job, he is paid accordingly. But his sins of omission, too, are amply repaid; and usually he finds that his pay has been cut because now and then he has failed to report for duty.

"America as a nation is supposed to be mechanically inclined. We like to do things in job lots, perhaps because there are so many of us and so many things to do. We try to make our products all measure up to a uniform standard. The college student is a product as well as a workman. The college is the factory, and when it has finished with a man it puts him on the market, with a label attached bearing a couple of letters to indicate what particular variety of product he is.

"If an education consists of a specified number of hours spent in the class room, with notebook in hand and pencil busy, then the system in vogue falls not far short of the ideal. The professor knows to a hair's breadth whether Mr. So-and-so has received three hours' worth of education in his course, and by adding up what Mr. So-and-so has done it is a problem of simple arithmetic at the end of four year's time to determine whether he measures up to the standard. If he does, he gets his degree; if not, he departs uneducated.

"If on the other hand the purpose of a university is somewhat broader than the purpose of a factory—if an education is something more than drinking in knowledge by the hour—are we not stressing too heavily the requirements, till they become the chief end in the life of the student? The mechanism of a college course sticks out all over it. It is what the student sees, because it is made the most conspicuous thing in sight.

"If there really is a deeper reason for the existence of a university, why cannot the student be let in on the secret? Not by a high-sounding address at the beginning of the year, surely, but by finding it in his daily contact with those who dole out to him his morsels of knowledge. Could it not be done, even under our wholesale system of education?"

50 Years Ago at Williams

The College Cabinet has lately received a number of additions which are skeletons of a Lion, Kangaroo, Beaver and Tetoway; the skull of a Beaver; the armor of an Armadillo; and the rest of the Central America Birds. The Natural History Laboratory in the basement of Griffin Hall is approaching completion; and it now shows that it is to be a commodious, well-lighted and convenient work-room for practical students of Natural History.

The Alumni of this College, resident in New York City and vicinity, held their annual re-union and dinner at Delmonico's on the evening of the 28th ult. Between seventy and eighty were present, among whom were the Hon. E. C. Benedict, W. C. Bryant, Emory Washburn, Gen. Garfield, D. D. Field, Judge Colt, Prof. Bascom, S. I. Prime, D.D., H. W. Field, D.D., R. R. Booth, D.D., E. Kempshall, D.D., S. H. Tyng and others.

We were not a little surprised a short time since, at seeing an article in one of our leading journals, recommending the removal of Williams College from Williamstown, on the ground of its being so far removed from the principal lines of travel as to render it difficult of access. We cannot conceive how any person should consider the place difficult of access, unless he had been reading the account of the town about 1815, as given by one of our distinguished Alumni in the introduction to Dr. Durfee's valuable History of Williams College, in which he says: "During my residence in College, nothing in the form of stage-coach or vehicle for public communication ever entered the town. Once a week a solitary messenger, generally on horseback, came over the Florida Mountain, bringing us our newspapers and news from Boston and the eastern part of the State. Once in a week a Mr. Green came up from the south, generally in a one-horse wagon, bringing the county newspapers, printed at Stockbridge and Pittsfield; and by some similar mode, and at like intervals, we heard from Troy and Albany. With the exception of these, not a ripple of the commotion that disturbed the world outside of these barriers of hills and mountains ever reached the unruffled calm of our valley life." Roosevelt is Famous For His Personality

"Roosevelt was a student, particularly of history, and at an early age he wrote several pamphlets and books on that general subject. However his literary endeavors will be remembered chiefly for his stories of his hunting experiences and of his life in the great out-of-doors. And it is both through his keen intellect and through his inherent character that he developed his four doctrines or theories of the chief executive office: 1. Fair Play should at all times be predominant in all national affairs; 2. Action of the government should be swift and free in order to secure this spirit of fair-play; 3. Threats and force should be employed unhesitatingly to maintain fairness; 4. The chief executive must be practical to secure the proper results. These political doctrines are exceedingly foreign to those of other presidents preceding Theodore Roosevelt, but he preferred to apply his own personal, dynamic traits to his governmental work, and it is this fact, more than any other, that renders his life of service so striking. "His foreign policy and affairs were of a distinctive nature, for he maintained with his characteristic aggressive habit that the safety of the United States in international intercourse depended wholly on the efficiency and size of our navy. It was through this policy that he acquired for the government the rights on the Panama Canal strip, and at another time he paraded the entire United States Navy around the world to show the foreign powers our fighting strength. With his usual aggressiveness he settled firmly the question of the boundaries of Alaska, and succeeded in having his own fixed lines established. He always wanted peace backed by force—our force."

"To Theodore Roosevelt the executive office was a broad field in which he could do anything that agreed with his sense of fair-play and practicality, and in this respect, in this utter disregard for the traditions of legality, he differed from other statesmen. Accordingly, during the Great War, he radically differed with all the watchful waiting policies of Pres. Wilson, and raged at the thought that he could do nothing for his country at this time. But it can only be admitted that he had his faults, which history in time will obliterate, and that the chief of these was his great egotism. He was also very stubborn, never admitting that an opponent could ever be in the right, and never retracting his charges when he later found himself to be in error. To all Americans, however, his name will ever remain a sacred memory, and we shall always think of him as a man who preached to others what he practised for himself."

Present Fargo '22 With Brooks Medal

Fargo prepared for Williams at the Evanston High School, where he was active in Football and Basketball, which sports he has continued to participate in at College. He has held down the position of right tackle on the football team for the past three seasons, serving as captain last fall, and played center on the basketball team for three years. He was also President of his class in his Junior year, a member of the No-Deal Committee in 1919, for two years on the Student Council, and a similar time on the Fire Brigade, with the rank of captain this year. He is a member of the Gargoyles Society, and the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

In praise of Fargo, Coach Wendell said at the football banquet at the Williams Club of New York City last November: "It is not necessary for me to tell you that Ed Fargo was a good captain. He led by example. The set expression on his face in times of stress meant more to the men than any words he could have spoken. This Williams team had a personality, and Ed Fargo made most of it."

House Dances to End at 5

In accordance with a plan suggested by the Student Council and agreed to by all of the fraternities giving houseparties this winter, all house dances on February 1 and 2 will end at 5 a. m. the next morning if there have been other activities earlier in the evening, and otherwise at 4 a. m. Thirteen houses are planning to hold houseparties either alone or in conjunction with some other fraternity, and all have secured the services of outside orchestras to provide music for their dances.

Conference Results

Mainly Compromises

can government itself is unwilling to make any immediate full surrender of its treaty rights in China.

In the matter of the Anglo-Japanese alliance we have secured an abrogation of that particular alliance through the so-called four-power treaty signed between America and Britain and Japan and France; but we have done it only through accepting in that same four-power treaty, a form of words which many British and Japanese and French statesmen and journalists regard as committing us to a new alliance. Myself, I have been among those who deny that this form of words constitutes an alliance. I am obliged to observe now that it is a form of words which gives an impression of alliance to some of our foreign friends.

In the matter of the limitation of naval armaments, we have been able to limit ships and aircraft carriers; but there is no present substantial prospect of any limitation either by ratio or by absolute quantity on aircraft themselves, or on cruisers, destroyers, submarines, or mines.

The compromise regarding China is a victory for American policy in that it represents an advance toward the freeing of China but it is an even greater victory for British policy in that it represents precisely that gradual method of freeing China which the British have always favored.

The compromise regarding the Anglo-Japanese alliance is a victory for American policy, in that it rids us of that alliance; but it is an even greater victory for British policy in that it binds us through the four-power treaty to an active participation in conferences, and to at least a search for

"adjustments" and "understandings" in those conferences regarding the Far East where the British have long wanted our diplomatic presence in friendly conjunction with the diplomatic presence of the Japanese.

The compromise regarding the limitation of naval armaments is a victory for American policy in that it represents a certain act of progress toward limitation but it is an even greater victory for British policy, in that in the course of the submarine discussion the sentiment of America was, in a certain sense, turned away from France and turned toward Britain, thus promoting the Anglo-American understanding which is the supreme aim of British statesmanship.

Diplomatically considered, the circumstances have been somewhat favorable to the Americans and especially favorable to the British. Morally considered, the Conference has produced the customary compromise between, on the one hand the millennium, Nirvana, and the Elysian fields; and on the other hand, the world, the flesh, and the devil. We may congratulate ourselves that the theory and the faith represented by the millennium had some saving grace and effect among us; and that the facts of a jealous, and suspicious, and distrustful international flesh-pot world did not win every point on the table.

Quintet Matched

Against Wesleyan

the only eligible veterans whom Coach Stellar has had as a nucleus, but Conway, Moore, Parsons, and Russell all have played before. In addition to these A. K. Fricke, Hillyer, and Gregory have all shown up well. Hartman and Hosdowich who graduated last year are being missed in the lineup. In the season thus far, Robertson has stood out easily above all the others as an extremely fast and aggressive player. The Wesleyan team has defeated Chrk, Stevens, and the Connecticut Agricultural College, which vanquished both Harvard and the Army, falling only before the terrific attack of Springfield, 17-25, last Wednesday. In the Connecticut Aggies game, which was only won by a 20-19 score, Robison as right forward was high scorer for the victors. The guarding of Conway and the splendid work of Moore at center were also features of the game.

An interesting forecast of the Williams game appeared in the December 1 issue of the Wesleyan Argus: "Williams had a good team last year, made up mostly of men in the lower classes, so that they will present an experienced team, probably as hard an opponent as will be met during the year."

The probable lineup for this evening's game is as follows:

WILLIAMS		WESLEYAN
Blackmer	r.f.	Robison
Wightman, Hyde	l.f.	Robertson (Capt.)
Fargo, Jayne,
Bianchi	c.	Moore
Wilson (Capt.)	r.g.	King, Davenport
Boynton, Pease	l.g.	Conway

Dr. Sewall '93 Will Fill Pulpit Sunday Morning

Rev. Dr. Charles G. Sewall '93, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Rye, N. Y. will conduct the Sunday chapel services tomorrow in the Thompson Memorial Chapel. Dr. Sewall has been a regular preacher before the student body for several years, and is well known to Williams men.

After graduating from Williams, Dr. Sewall studied at the Union Theological Seminary, from which he graduated in 1898. He held the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church of Albany, N. Y., and resigned this position to become pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Rye, N. Y., which position he now holds.

At the Vesper Service on Sunday, Dr. Sewall will hold communion services for all those who desire to attend.

Vermont Unable to Send Team to Winter Carnival

Word has been recently received from the University of Vermont announcing inability to send to the Winter Carnival the six men who previously had been entered in the events. This action was found necessary because of the conflict of the date of the Vermont examinations with the two days of the Carnival. Dartmouth has already arranged to send two or three representatives, and similar word is expected from Colgate, Cornell, and McGill, the three colleges yet to be heard from.

Entry blanks have been distributed to the fraternity houses and to the Commons Club, and all men who are desirous of participating in the Carnival should fill in these cards as soon as possible. The Outing Club will collect these blanks Saturday, January 21.

Freshmen Awarded Sweaters

Sweaters were awarded to 21 members of the Freshman football team at a meeting of the class of 1925 Tuesday evening in Jesup Hall. Inasmuch as the Athletic Council has not yet awarded numerals to the Freshman track and basketball teams, sweaters have been provisionally awarded to the members of those two teams who are to be given their numerals. The following members of the football team will receive sweaters: Beckwith, Bourne, Brownell, Chandler, H. C. Clark, Davis, Dickey, Dunham, Evans, Farnsworth, Ide, King, Leete, Ludeman, Makepeace, Motter, Pearson, Post, Reed, Sterling, and Rudolph, manager.

Prize Plays to be in January 21

More time has been given in which to hand in the one-act plays for which a prize of $50 has been offered by Cap and Bells, the final date having been changed from January 14 to January 21. The finished plays must be turned in to Clark '22 not later than that day.

To Talk on Archaeology

Dean Howes will entertain the Classical Society at 8 p. m. next Tuesday evening at his residence with a brief program on the subject of archaeology. Professor Wild, the first speaker, will be followed by Stephens '23, who will speak on "Recent Archaeological Discoveries and Their Bearing on Philology." A social meeting will follow.

SPRINGFIELD SEXTET FALLS BEFORE PURPLE

Hockey Team Easily Defeats Red and Black—Williams Team-work Improved

FINAL SCORE IS 8 TO 1

Rowse and Clark Score Twice for Purple—Becket Strong in Defensive Play

In a game marked by improved team-work rather than individual brilliance, the Williams hockey team won its second victory of the season last Saturday afternoon by defeating the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College sextet on the Cole Field rink by the score of 8 to 1. Although Springfield's lone tally came at the beginning of the third period, the visitors were decidedly outclassed after the first few minutes of play and were not able to keep the puck away from their own goal.

Weakness in offensive play was largely responsible for the downfall of the visiting team, whose wings could not penetrate the strong Williams defense. Improvement in the Purple's passing game was more noticeable in the first two periods than in the last, when the contest developed into a general melee in which attacks were made in mass formation from both sides. Little criticism could be made of the condition of the ice, which was hard considering the mildness of the weather.

Captain Leonard, at center, was by far the fastest man on the Springfield sextet, but was hampered by lack of support from his teammates. The playing of Courtney and Wall at the defensive positions in breaking up the Purple attacks was good. Huston played an excellent game at goal for the visitors. The Springfield goal tender made 51 stops during the game, most of them from shots made by Stephenson, Clark, and Becket.

Rowse, who scored twice for the Purple, played a strong game at right wing being especially effective on getting rebounds and following up the puck. Stephenson played a brilliant offensive and defensive game, although he missed many chances to pass which would have resulted in scores. His breaking up of Springfield attacks was a feature of the game. Clark played his usual consistent game at wing and kept

MISSIONS IS SOLUTION OF FAR EAST PROBLEM

Prof. Latourette Talks to W. C. A. on Chinese and Japanese Situation

Christian missions as a means to the solution of the Chinese and Japanese problem was the key-note of an address by Professor Kenneth S. Latourette, D. Willis James Professor of Missions at Yale, at a meeting of the W. C. A. last Sunday evening in Jesup Hall. Prof. Latourette has been actively engaged in missionary work on the faculty of Yale-in-China, and has been prominent in other oriental missions. "Japan, with its fifty millions of people huddled together in a country of about the area of the state of California only 20 to 25 percent of which can be put under cultivation, has two means of escape from its present condition," said Prof. Latourette. "The first is emigration, which is discouraged by almost every nation; the second is to become an industrial nation. In order to facilitate the latter course Japan must have some place on which to draw for her raw materials and also a market for the finished product.

"China is the nation which is most suited to provide Japan with these necessary raw materials," continued Prof. Latourette. "Although an able people, the Chinese are under the unfortunate circumstance of possessing a corrupt and disintegrating government. But China, with its coal beds, iron mines, and silk and wool industries, offers the necessary materials, and she is likewise potentially the greatest undeveloped market in the world.

"Japan's scornful and hostile attitude toward her neighbor has caused so much friction that no speedy solution can be found for affairs. An ease of the tension in the Far East is all the Washington Conference can effect. A change of heart in Japan must be brought about before any

Burlesque, Revue, and Vaudeville for Smoker

According to plans recently announced by Chairman Britton '23, the annual College Smoker, which will take place about April 1, will be in the nature of a combined revue, burlesque, and vaudeville show. Three more men have been appointed to the Smoker Committee in addition to those already announced, making the complete committee: H. M. Montgomery and Wallace '22; Baxter, Britton (chairman), Hilton and Jones '23; Dodge, Gallaudet, Herron, Mason, and MacMillan '24; and Solby and Sterling '25. The committee has secured W. D. Coleman and Luedke '22 as Musical Directors of the production. The Production Committee is to consist of Ayer '23 and Brynton '24, Stage Managers, Jeffrey '24 Electrician, and Taylor '23.

TWO WEEK-END TRIPS FOR 'CAP AND BELLS'

Glens Falls, Skidmore, New York, and Probably Waterbury to be Visited

In its first appearance before the student body this season, Cap and Bells will present its program of three one-act plays on Thursday evening, February 2, at 8.30 p. m. in Chapin Hall. Besides this performance the Corporation has decided to give the plays in Glens Falls, N. Y. on February 10, in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., on February 11, and in New York City and either Waterbury, Conn., or Poughkeepsie, N. Y. on March 3 and 4.

Ryland, The Game of Chess, and The Crimson Coconut, the same plays that were given on the Christmas trip, will make up the program for the mid-winter houseparty performance.

Pricing for the houseparty presentation have been fixed at $1.50 for the first 19 rows in the orchestra, $1.00 for the rest of the seats downstairs, and 75 cents for the balcony seats. All orchestra seats will be reserved, and those in the balcony will be unreserved. Fraternity drawings for blocks of reserved seats will take place next Thursday at 7.30 p. m. in the W. C. A. office in Jesup Hall. It is requested that one man from each fraternity be present at that time to draw for the order of choice of seats and also to select the block which his fraternity will occupy. The public sale of tickets will begin on Saturday, January 21, when they may be obtained at the College Pharmacy, from competitors, or may be reserved by telephoning the Cap and Bells office, Williamstown 13-M, between 7.30 and 8.30 p. m. that evening.

The performance in Glens Falls on the evening of Friday, February 10 will take place in Parish Hall. It will be under the local management of Kellogg '22, and will probably be followed by a dance. The next day the plays will be presented at both a matinee and evening performance in the Skidmore Auditorium in Saratoga Springs, for the benefit of the Endowment Fund of the Skidmore School of Arts. Although the Corporation voted to give the plays in New York City in the Plaza Hotel on March 3 and in either Waterbury or Poughkeepsie on the next day, these dates and places are only tentative, and no definite plans have been made as yet.

The Cap and Bells Corporation also decided at its meeting held last Friday evening to present three one-act plays in the spring probably just before the spring recess. The casts of these plays are to consist in the main of freshmen, in order to discover the dramatic ability in the class of 1925. Trials for the casts will be held soon after mid-years, and all freshmen who are eligible in the Dean's office at that time are eligible to compete.

Wilson Foundation Notice

Contributions to the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, the purpose of which was outlined in the last issue of The Record, will be received at any time this week. One man will be appointed to explain the purposes of the Foundation in each fraternity and enting house and to receive donations. Each contributor will receive a certificate of membership in the Foundation.

PURPLE FIVE TO MEET KNOX AND SPRINGFIELD

Monday Evening's Contest First on Eastern Trip of Galesburg Quintet

SPRINGFIELD YET UNBEATEN

Boston University, Wesleyan and Brown Have All Bowled to Red and White

Monday, Jan. 16—Strengthened by the experience gained in its game with Wesleyan, the Williams basketball team will face Knox College of Galesburg, Ill., this evening at 8.00 p. m. in the Lasell Gymnasium, and Springfield Y. M. C. A. college tomorrow evening at 8.00 p. m. in the same place.

In spite of the fact that both of these teams are probably as formidable aggregations as the Purple will be obliged to meet in the course of the entire season, last Saturday's defeat, in which the Williams quintet faced a team which had already played five times, nevertheless made plain the fact that Coach Shanahan's men could play a first-class brand of basketball even at such an early date. Comparative scores do, without doubt, give a marked advantage to both of the visitors.

Escorted to the station by the faculty, the entire student body, and the R. O. T. C. military band, the Knox basketball team set out last Thursday from Galesburg, Ill. on an eastern trip of two weeks, the first of its kind ever undertaken by a western college basketball quintet. The game with Williams with which the eastern schedule opens, is looked upon by Knox as one of the most important in the itinerary.

CANNES MAY ASSIST U. S. ARMS CONFERENCE

Rival Foreign Parley for French-British Entente to be Big Factor in Council

(Special correspondence to The Record from the Disarmament Conference at Washington.)

By WILLIAM HARD

The most notable circumstance about the Washington Conference this week has been the transfer of interest away from the Washington Conference to the Conference at Cannes. At Cannes the Supreme Council of the Prime Ministers of the Allies has been working out a plan for safeguarding France against a renewal of German aggression, while at the same time insuring to Germany and to all Central Europe, an opportunity for financial and general economic recovery. At Washington, meanwhile, the negotiations continued between the Chinese and the Japanese regarding the terms on which the few surviving members of Japanese influence in Shantung, could be extinguished. The Chinese have triumphed distinctly over the Japanese in the Shantung affair, without ever spending the life of one Chinese soldier on it. They, little by little, from 1915, to-date, have built up such a propagandist back-fire throughout the world against Japanese

Thirty Men Report Daily for Board Track Practice

Track practice was held on the boards every day last week with the exception of Wednesday, when the snow kept the men indoors, and judging from the progress being made, Williams will be represented by a fast relay team this winter. The practice has consisted principally of starts and six-lap runs, while towards the end of the week Coach Seely matched two-man teams for two-lap races.

About 30 men are reporting daily, among the most promising of whom are Phillips and Richmond '22, Stowers '23, Dodge, Perkins, and Miller '24, and Driscoll, Kepp, and Post '25. Mendes '22 has not been out for several days because of a week's nuckle, but this injury should not keep him out very long. Richmond '22, Stowers '23, and Miller '24 have been elected captains of their respective class teams.

WINNERS IN CARNIVAL WILL RECEIVE MEDALS

Outing Club Invited to Participate in Dartmouth and Pittsfield Contests

In addition to the Williams Carnival on February 3 and 4, winter-sport enthusiasts of the College will be given further opportunities to display their proficiency on skis and snowshoes at two later contests in Pittsfield and Hanover, N. H. Invitations have been extended to the Outing Club to enter the ski-jump event at the Pittsfield Winter Carnival on February 4 and to send a team to the Dartmouth festivities on February 10 and 11.

The Outing Club committee has perfected arrangements to offer during the Thursday and Friday of houseparty week one of the main attractions of the recess to the fair visitors. Medals are to be given to those placing first in all nine of the events, a ski cross-country race of approximately three and a half miles, a 200-yard ski dash, a 200-yard snowshoe dash, a ski potato race, a snowshoe obstacle race, a ski relay race, a snowshoe cross-country race, a ski proficiency contest, and a ski jumping contest.

Men have been slow in signing up for the events on the entry cards which have been distributed to the fraternities and eating houses, and those considering entering the contests are reminded that the blanks will be collected next Saturday. The committee urges all men who have had experience on either snowshoes or skis, whether they are experts or not, to enter the Carnival, for in so doing they will help to promote the success of the festivities by increasing the number of entrants. Dartmouth has already accepted the invitation of the Outing Club and will send to Williamstown a three- or four-man team, and Middlebury, Colgate, and Cornell are yet to be heard from.

The Pittsfield Chamber of Commerce has extended to all undergraduates the privilege of entering the ski jump event in the Pittsfield Winter Carnival to be held under its auspices on the Saturday afternoon following the Williams Carnival. For this event the Chamber of Commerce of that city has just completed the construction of a new jump from which it is possible to make a leap of 100 feet.

Entry blanks have been received from Dartmouth for the Hanover Winter Carnival on February 10 and 11, and all Williams men are invited to participate in the numerous events taking place on these two days. The Outing Club will choose a team of three or four men after the local contests and will send them to Hanover to represent the College. All men, however,

WILLIAMS QUINTET LOSES CLOSE GAME

Season Opens as Wesleyan Takes Stiff Contest From Purple by 16-14 Score

FOUL SHOTS WIN FOR RED AND BLACK FIVE

Aggressive Attack of Williams Team Gains Lead at End of First Period

Williams opened the season by losing a hard and closely contested game to Wesleyan last Saturday night in the Fayerweather Gymnasium, Middletown, Conn., by a 16-14 score, the Purple having led the winners 10-8 at the end of the first half. The defensive work of both quintets was excellent, and the fact that Wesleyan was victorious rather proved their ability in foul-shooting than general offensive excellence.

Blackmer led the individual scoring for Williams with a goal and four fouls to his credit, the fouls being scored out of five trials in the first half, and in addition he played an aggressive game throughout. Jayne, who replaced Fargo at center for this game, played a consistent game and scored a goal in each half. The work of both Boynton and Captain Wilson in guarding was excellent notably in the first half. Hyde, who replaced Wigdman at right forward in the second half, played a hard game, and scored the final goal for the Purple.

Robertson, captain of the Wesleyan quintet, was the outstanding star of the Red and Black, netting eight fouls out of 15 tries and scoring a goal in each half. The winners played with fair consistency, though their passing was wild throughout and they missed several easy shots during the game.

Williams started well in the opening half, and after seven minutes of play Blackmer caught a goal that made the score 2-1, placing the Purple in a lead which it held throughout the half. Robertson scored Wesleyan's point in the first few minutes of the period on a foul. Jayne's basket made the score 4-1 before the Red and Black could score again. After ten minutes of

WILLIAM N. C. CARLTON TO BE NEXT LIBRARIAN

Recommended by Library Council for Position Vacated by Miss Price

William N. C. Carlton, former librarian of the Newberry Library of Chicago, has been recommended by the library council of the Faculty to fill the position left vacant by the resignation of Miss Christine Price, present librarian. Miss Price's resignation will take effect together with the appointment of a new librarian when she goes to California for a vacation with her family, eventually to take up library work on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Carlton's appointment is still subject to the ratification of the Board of Trustees, and this will in all probability be done at the next meeting of the board during the latter part of this month or the first part of February. Miss Lucy Osborne, cataloger of the library, plans to study and travel for a period of about six months, after which she will return to take charge of the Chapin collection in the new Stetson Library.

The new librarian was born in England, coming to the United States in 1882 where he began work as an assistant in the Public Library of Holyoke. Later he accepted a position as librarian and English instructor at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. In 1909 he was called to a position as librarian of the Newberry Library in Chicago which he held until very recently. He is at present engaged in making a survey of the Public Library of Hamilton, Ontario, and is expected to arrive in Williamstown about February 1.

Mr. Carlton is the author of several books, among which are Poems and Letters of Lord Byron, and The Origin and Character of Icelandic Sagas. He has also made contributions from time to time to The Library Journal, The Encyclopedia Americana, Educational Review and others.

Basketball Starts and Scores

The basketball team made a satisfactory opening to the 1922 season last Saturday evening. To lose by the narrow margin of two points on their opponent's floor to a stronger aggregation which already had the experience gained through several victories partakes rather of the nature of a moral victory. It is unfortunate that the season opens with three of the most difficult games of the entire schedule bunched in the first four days, but the early indications promise a successful basketball year, taken all in all.

In the Wesleyan contest the Purple actually outplayed their rivals on the floor, scoring 10 points via that route to their opponents' 8, and it was only Wesleyan's ability at shooting goals from foul that staved off defeat for the Red and Black. Basketball must be kept a clean game at all costs, but the present count in scoring makes it possible all too often for the team which is outplayed on the floor to win the game if one player is an expert foul shooter. Dr. Edgar Fauver, President of the Society of the Physical Directors in Colleges and present head of the Wesleyan Athletic Department, has come out in favor of the simple remedy of increasing the score for a goal from the floor to three points, that for a personal foul to two points, and allowing one point for goals on technical points. The best team and not the best foul shooter would then be sure of victory.

Non-Political Managers

Some time ago the Student Council drew up a new system of managership elections calling for the final selection by the Athletic Council of a maximum of three candidates, from which number the student body should elect a second assistant manager. The system failed of immediate adoption because of the expressed unwillingness of the Athletic Council to assume such extra duties, unless it be the manifest and lasting desire of the student body that that organization should do so.

Prior to bringing the subject up for further consideration, inquiry has been made with respect to systems employed at other institutions. The interesting result has been to show that, out of all those investigated, none retain the rather archaic, hit-or-miss method employed at Williams. The various systems reported fall under two general classifications, those in which the student body nominates and some small organization elects, and those in which the student body elects from nominations made by another body. Yale and Amherst are representative examples of the first method. At the former institution the Sophomore Class elects eight second assistant managers, from whom the Board of Control, an athletic governing body almost without student representation, later elects the assistant manager and manager. At Amherst the final election is made by the Student Council, assisted by the manager, assistant manager, captain, and coach of the team concerned.

Bowdoin illustrates the second of the two methods. There the manager of the team reports to the Athletic Council the list of men who have been working, in order of their excellence. The Athletic Council, similar in makeup to its Williams prototype, then secures from the College office the grades of the various men and some notes as to their general standing in College. It nominates one more candidate than is to be elected, the associated students electing from the number so chosen. The latter system has worked particularly well in practice.

At Williams the unusual prestige enjoyed by the managers makes it preferable to retain for them the honor of the college elections. Adequate safe-guard and check may be imposed through the medium of a deliberative body which selects two or three candidates from the list of competitors for submission to the College body. Although this body might be the Student Council, there would always be objection raised on the grounds that politics are nearly always present in a purely student organization and that the Council will have sufficient duties without venturing into the athletic field.

The Athletic Council, on the other hand, is a body particularly devoted to the welfare of Williams athletics, and in addition enjoys the advantage of being more non-partisan, an advantage already appreciated at other colleges. Too often the Williams Athletic Council has been left in the position of the owner of the stable who locks the door after the hostler has decamped with the contents. It is time they were given a real voice in the selection of proper hostlers. In this capacity they should have the proper assistance: the manager, the assistant manager, captain and coach of the sport under consideration.

The advantages of such a system have been enumerated in these columns ere now, and are too numerous to bear repetition. It remains for the student body to indicate their strong approval and unqualified support of the Athletic Council as the proper intermediary body. Early opportunity should be made by the Student Council for the expression of this desire. In the face of such a sentiment we are confident the Athletic Council would accept this unsolicited responsibility, and another mark of progress would be chalked down in the athletic history of Williams.

20 Years Ago at Williams

The outlook for a fast relay team is bright for of last year's winning team there are in college Captain O'Neill, Mears, and Crawford.

Hamilton W. Mabie '67, one of the college trustees, and associate editor of the Outlook, will speak at the Y. M. C. A. meeting next Sunday evening on "The literary career as a life work."

It cannot but give satisfaction to the whole college to learn of the unusual success which Cap and Bells made at Syracuse and at Auburn during the first part of the Christmas vacation. Plays have been produced by Williams men since 1872 but it is safe to say that none of them have met with a more cordial reception than "The Private Secretary."

Williams started the basketball season last Saturday with a 44 to 13 victory over Drury in the Mark Hopkins gymnasium, North Adams.

This Junior is learning to be a banker

IF you are putting in three hours a day in the electrical lab, don't be surprised twenty years later to find yourself promoting a public utility bond issue. Or if you start in newspaper work, as like as not later on you will turn to manufacturing or advertising or law.

You don't know where opportunity or inclination will lead you. This fact has a great deal to do with your work at college—not so much the things you learn as the way you learn them.

Don't think of education as a memory test in names and dates and definitions. That knowledge is important, but only as an incidental. Of far greater value is the habit of getting at underlying laws, the basic principles which tie facts together.

The work of the pioneers in electrical experiment, at first glance confusing, is simplified once you realize that much of it hinged upon a single chemical phenomenon, the action of the voltaic cell.

Analyze your problems. Look for fundamentals. Learn to connect a law or an event with what went before and what comes after. Make your education a training in logical thinking.

This ability to think straight, whether acquired in Engineering or Arts, is the biggest thing you can get at college. Its aid as a means to success applies equally to whatever work you take up—since mental processes are the same everywhere. It is the power which enables a mechanic to become sales manager, a lawyer to head a great industrial organization. Develop it, if you would be ready when your big opportunity comes.

his man out of the running most of the time. Captain Becket played a steady game at defense, although only one of his shots was successful. His speed and agility in carrying the puck the length of the rink was an immense help for the Purple forwards and a large factor in the outcome of the game.

The Purple sextet was somewhat slow in getting started at the beginning of the first period but soon showed the superiority of its teamwork. Open skating and free passing by both sides throughout this period provided plenty of interest for the spectators. Richmond's sensational stop of one of Lindsey's short shots was a feature of the game at this time. Clark scored the first goal for the Williams aggregation. Buell carried the puck the length of the rink for the Purple's second tally. Springfield staged a rally at this point, but a score was prevented by Stephenson's defensive playing. Rowse followed up one of Becket's shots, putting it in for Williams's third goal. Stephenson scored at the end of the period on a long shot.

Springfield was obviously on the defense in the second period and was unable to keep the puck out of its own territory. Both sides scrimmaged extensively and seldom resorted to a passing game. Rowse made the only score of the period, pushing the puck in from a close mix-up in front of Springfield's goal. Huston did remarkably well in preventing many Williams scores at this time.

Lindsey made Springfield's only score at the beginning of the third period, shooting from in front of the Purple's goal. Clark and Rowse scored in quick succession following Lindsey's shot. More fouls were made in this period than in the rest of the game. Each team fell back on scrimmage playing and long shots.

All of the first team except Captain Becket and Richmond were taken out in the last five minutes of play, Hemphill, Dewey, Pressprich and Peekham being substituted. Hemphill made the last goal for Williams.

The line-ups and summary are as follows:

WILLIAMS	SPRINGFIELD
Clark	Starr
Rowse	Lindsey
Stephenson	Leonard
Buell	Courtney
Becket	Wall
Richmond	Huston

Substitutions—Williams: Hemphill for Rowse, Dewey for Stephenson, Pressprich for Clark, Peekham for Buell. Springfield: Quinlan for Courtney. Individual scores: Rowse 2, Clark 2, Becket 1, Buell 1, Stephenson 1, Hemphill 1, Lindsey 1. Referee—Peacock of Pittsfield. Timekeeper—Prindle. Time of periods—15 minutes.

"REQUIESCAT IN PACE"

To the Editor of The Record:

Feeling that the Williams Hat Clubs are becoming more and more of an unpleasant mirage on this great American desert, we the undersigned members of the present organizations, feel that, beginning with the class of 1925, they should be laid peacefully away to rest, with the appurtenances thereto, in the immediate future, for the following four reasons:

1. With the passing of the old days when men could drink like gentlemen, the sole object of Hat Club banquets has become uncontrolled consumption of rotten liquor, taken in clear defiance of the law of the land. Such an object can no longer possibly offer justification for their continuance.

2. The production of Hat Club banquets under these extraordinary circumstances has necessitated a per capita tax exceeding $25, not including the cost of the hats, a wholly unwarranted expenditure.

3. The undesirable political elements in the formation of the Clubs has been constantly on the increase. This has not only involved unfair selections, but also serious disruptions of class and delegation unity as well as of personal friendships.

4. Undue prominence is given to underclassmen at a period too early to prove their worth for such prominence. The real achievements of college life necessarily follow the end of Sophomore year, and men cannot be justly selected for real distinction before that time, and if so selected, frequently prove incapable of properly assimilating such honors.

It is possible that stringent action on the part of the Hat Clubs themselves might eliminate the first three evils, leaving them solely honorary organizations, but the fourth fundamental objection would still remain. Unless some concrete and valuable purpose can be shown to be served, other than mere prominence about the campus, we believe that prompt extinction is the only justifiable course.

BANGS-PETTIT ARGUMENT

To the Editor of The Record:

If Mr. Pettit does not wish radicalism to spread among the undergraduates and alumni of Williams he should not write letters to THE RECORD. I have never been a radical and never expected to be one but I must confess that after reading Mr. Pettit's epistle I called up Socialist headquarters and asked if they had a place for me. Has any radical ever painted a blacker picture of the business world?

After reading what practical men (to which Mr. Pettit so proudly allies himself) have accomplished in West Virginia—that democratic land where "sound ideas" are inculcated upon miners' minds by machine guns—one turns with relief to the front page of THE RECORD to discover that efforts are being made to perpetuate the ideals of a "school teacher" president.

Still, as any thorn may have its rose, good may come even from West Virginia, and Mr. Pettit's communication serves its purpose. Does it not do much to still the complaint that the college student of today is intellectually inferior to his fellow of twenty years ago?

Missions is Solution of Far East Problem

agreeable solution can be obtained, and Christian missions must do the work in bringing about this transformation. As it is the primary duty of Christian missions to bring the largest life to the human race, missionary work should appeal to the ambitious college graduate of today. Here is the greatest field of opportunity for men of real ability and industry. The man who settles down to the routine business life with the one ambition to make money is short-sighted.

Williams Quintet Loses Close Game

hard play, the score stood six-all, but Williams netted four baskets to Wesleyan's two, which left the score at 10-8 at the close of the half.

Wesleyan played a better game in the second half, and Williams weakened considerably. Three fouls caged in quick succession by Robertson put the Wesleyan quintet in the lead, 11-10, soon after the opening whistle of the half. Jayne recovered the lead for the Purple with a timely goal, but the lead did not exist for long. Two goals by Robertson and King brought the Wesleyan total to 15, and a foul by Robertson finished the Wesleyan scoring. Hyde, who was sent in for Wightman in the second half, caged a goal shortly afterwards, but the timekeeper's whistle prevented further scoring and the game ended, Wesleyan 16, Williams 14.

The lineups follow:

WILLIAMS	WESLEYAN
Blackmer	Robertson (capt.)
Wightman	Robinson
Jayne	Moore
Wilson (capt.)	King
Boynton	Conway

Final score—Wesleyan 16, Williams 14; Goals from floor—Jayne 2, Robertson 2, Blackmer 1, Conway 1, Hyde 1, King 1, Wightman 1; Goals from foul—Robertson 8, Blackmer 4.

Substitutions: Williams—Hyde for Wightman; Referee—Garvey of Illinois. Scorekeeper: Webb of Williams.

Purple Five to Meet

Knox and Springfield

Every bit of information that could be gleaned about the record and style of play of the Williams team has been closely studied by the coach and players.

Knox's team is considered one of the most formidable aggregations in the west. With the University of Chicago falling in defeat before the basket tossers of the Galesburg collegians, followed by a decisive victory over Coe College of Iowa last Saturday, this team has scored a rapid rise to prominence thus early in the season. Many sport critics are predicting a name for Knox such as Centre won after its defeat of Harvard.

All of last year's regulars are back on the team this year. Capt. Crabbe and Ludwick hold the guard positions. Campbell is center, with Albino and Negley as forwards. Four substitutions will make up the squad of nine. They are Craig, forward; Murphy, center; Shuler and Kessenich, guards.

Enroute to the East, Knox played Millikin University at Decatur, Ill., on Friday and Walsh College at Crawfordsville, Ind. Saturday. The Williams game is followed by Dartmouth on Jan. 17 and Wesleyan on the 18th. Knox will meet Brown on Jan. 21, Yale on Jan. 24 and the Army on Jan. 25. A hard schedule of midwestern colleges will follow the eastern trip, the season closing on March 1. "The team is in good physical condition," said Coach Sam Barry just before leaving. "Unless the days and nights of steady travel wear them out, the men should be able to make a good showing. The fact that they play five games in the first six nights of the trip, makes it seem likely that they will perform more creditably in the latter part of the trip than at first."

"However, this trip is wholly in the nature of an experiment. It is the first time that an institution of the college type has gone east with a basketball team. The style of play and the manner of officiating is vastly different in the east from what we are used to in the west, and I don't care to make any predictions. I am confident that the men will do credit to themselves and to Knox, however the scores come out."

Coach A. G. Johnson of Springfield College has at his disposal several veterans which compose the nucleus of the 1922 basketball team, and the first string lineup, made up entirely of experienced men, is beyond doubt, the fastest combination brought together by this institution for some time. There have been only three games played by the Red and White this season, but these were all victories. Boston U. was easily defeated in the first game 33-20, Wesleyan fell 25 to 17, and Brown was overwhelmed last Saturday, 43-21.

From the squad which represented the local college last year Civileto and O'Donnell are the only men missing, the latter having graduated, and the former having left the basketball floor for the boxing ring. O'Donnell's former position in the forecourt and Civileto's place at guard have been efficiently filled. Lush '23 is expected to jump at the top-off in the Williams game. He played both games this year and has shown up exceptionally well on the defense.

Allen and Watters make one of the best guard combinations which Springfield has had for some time. Watters has been doing effective work as a stationary guard, and Allen has been the feature of all games in which he has played during the past two seasons because of his clever floor work. Although a backcourt man, he has a fairly high scoring record.

Capt. Bennett and Guyer, the regular forwards, may possibly be unable to appear against Williams. Bennett has been hampered with a bad knee and Guyer is not in the best condition as a result of a collision with some seats in the Wesleyan game last Wednesday. They both have able substitutes. Oosting was used for Bennett recently and played a stellar game. Walmer is the other sub-forward.

The Red and White has developed an exceptionally strong defense, as well as an offensive which was able to penetrate the five-man protection which Boston U., Wesleyan and Brown threw around their hoops.

In last Saturday's game with Brown, Watters and Lash in the back court were especially noticeable in the practically impregnable defense which they created. Towards the end of the contest the Red and White put in an entirely new team which worked well enough to measure up to Coach Johnson's best expectations. It included the following men: Hulick, lg.; Stevens, r. g.; Parkhurst, c.; Hanson, l. f.; and Spile, r. f.

Coach Shanahan will avail himself of about the same squad as that which he took to Middletown. Fargo's ankle will probably be well enough to enable him to play in at least one of the contests. Jayne and Bianchi will substitute for this position. Captain Wilson and Boynton will play the regular guard positions, with Pense and Jayne as subs. In the forecourt Blackmer, Wightman, and Hyde will take care of the Purple's offense.

Cannes May Assist

U. S. Arms Conference

possession and Japanese use of the rights formerly belonging to Germany in Shantung, that now we see the Japanese hoping desperately that they will be at least able to retain over the railway in Shantung, the mere financial supervisory rights which British foreigners exercise over several railways in other parts of China. The Chinese victory in Shantung is really virtually complete. Besides Shantung one other subject has engaged the attention of the Washington Conference. The naval and other experts have been drafting the details of the five-power treaty limiting the naval armaments of Britain, the United States, Japan, France and Italy. It is feared that certain of these details cannot be satisfactorily set down until in France there is a ministry formed to succeed the ministry of M. Briand, and to issue detailed instructions to the French delegation in Washington on disputed and unsettled points. If M. Briand should succeed himself, and should himself become the head of a new solidified ministry, the instructions from Paris to the French delegation at Washington might be resumed promptly, but they also might contain certain changes in matters regarded as already fixed. The accord between M. Briand and Mr. Lloyd George, for a harmony between French interests and British interests in Europe might lead France to make concessions in the matter of submarines, and to accept a lower limit on French submarine power than has hitherto been thought possible. French policy regarding submarines is based really on the possibility of a break between France and Britain. If that possibility of a break is succeeded by the certainty of a sort of entente, then the French might be able to think of abating their submarine prospective and potential power. Thus by a great irony, a stroke of old-fashioned diplomacy—a defensive entente between France and Britain—may promote the new-fashioned limiting of armament at Washington. Cannes, besides being a rival to Washington, may in fact be an assistant to it.

Editorial Contest Being

Held for All College Men

In order to arouse the active support of every male undergraduate in the United States and Canada to Liberal Arts Courses, and to refute the popular claim that a four-year cultural course is time misspent, Pi Delta Epsilon, Honorary Collegiate Journalism Fraternity, has announced as the subject for its 1921-22 Intercollegiate Editorial Contest, "The Practical Value of a Cultural Education."

To the three winners of this contest who will be chosen by a trio of prominent metropolitan newspaper editors, will be presented a gold, silver and bronze medal respectively by President Harding, former editor and present owner of the Marion (Ohio) Star, and a member of the fraternity. In addition to these coveted medals, Certificates of Merit will be awarded to the first prize-winners in each college and university represented.

Editorials by Williams men should be handed to Schaeffer '22 at the Delta Kappa Epsilon House. The general rules for the contest are as follows:

1. The contest is now open and will close Feb. 15 at midnight. 2. Editorials submitted may not exceed 500 words. 3. Type, or write legibly on one side of the paper only. 4. Write an assumed name on upper right corner of each sheet. 5. On the face of the envelope, write this assumed name, enclosing a sheet of paper on which is written your own name, age, home city, class, and local address and telephone number, and seal envelope, pinning or clipping it to your editorial.

Prof. Cru to Read Paper

Mon., Jan. 16—Mr. Albert Cru of the French Department will read a paper on "Provençal Poetry of Today" at the meeting of the Whitney Society which will be held in the Faculty Club at 8.00 p. m. this evening. The subject will deal chiefly with the various types of dialects and topics which are employed by the literary men of that district of France.

Owing to the resignation of Sayen '22 as Chairman of the W. C. A. Finance Committee, the collection of the remaining part of the Soochow Fund has been placed in the hands of Durfee '23. All future remittances should be mailed to him, but checks should still be made out in Sayen's name.

SWIMMING PRACTICE
TO COMMENCE TODAYProspects for Successful Team Encouraging—Coach Not Yet Chosen

Mon., Jan. 16—Beginning tomorrow afternoon, daily swimming practice will be held in the Lasell Gymnasium in preparation for the first meet, that with Dartmouth on February 11 at Haver. A meeting of all men interested in swimming is to be held this evening.

Prospects for a successful season are, on the whole, encouraging. Captain Jones is a sure point winner in the plunge, and there are several veterans of the 1921 team who have shown up well in the preliminary practice already held. Kerr, eligible for the team this year, Olmsted, and Wilcox are out for the 220-yard swim, and Larkin and Miller will take care of the 100-yard dash. Sanford is the only regular who is trying out for the 50-yard dash, and Luedeko and Wallace were members of last year's relay team. Rounds and Webb are trying out for the dive. There is plenty of opportunity for new material, especially in the 50-yard dash and the relay team.

As yet, the Faculty Committee has not appointed a swimming coach, but such action is expected in the near future. No practice will be held during the examination period.

Dances to End at Fixed Time

All fraternity dances on February 1 will end at 4.00 a. m. the next morning and the dances on February 2 will end at 5.00 a. m., contrary to the statement in the last issue of THE RECORD.

Correction

In the notice of the appointment of the Senior Promenade and Supper Committee which appeared in the issue of THE RECORD of January 10, through a mistake the list of names of the two groups were reversed.

SMALL MARGIN GIVES GAME TO SPRINGFIELD

Red and White Quintet is Victor by 26-24 Score in Fiercely Fought Contest

PURPLE FIVE STARTS WELL

Holds Opponents to Tie in First Half but Weakens Early in Final Period

In a game undecided until the last whistle, the Williams basketball team was poked out by Springfield Y. M. C. A. College 26 to 24 last Tuesday evening in Lasell Gymnasium. It was the third contest of the season to be dropped by a two-point margin.

From the very start it was evident that the Red and White quintet was an especially strong and well oiled machine. Although their passing took a slight slump in the second half, it was on the whole excellent. In fact the only department of the game where the visitors showed any real signs of insecurity was in their defense. In Guyer, who played left forward, Springfield had a steady scorer, and Allen, left guard, in addition to playing well in the backcourt, made frequent dribbling sallies right up to the Purple's basket, showing clever footwork in dodging and running.

Williams' side of the game was much brighter in the first period than in the second. In the latter part of the contest when the play on both sides became faster and more aggressive, the Purple showed a decided tendency to wild passing and careless shooting. Just as the team was getting under way again the final whistle blew. Blackmer was conspicuous in scoring for the home team, especially in the first period. Captain Wilson played a consistently fine game in the backcourt.

Within a few seconds of the opening of the contest Boynton scored for Williams. The ball remained for some time in Springfield's territory, and then for a brief moment passed to the other end of the court, only to be carried back once again. Blackmer made two consecutive free tries, and shortly afterwards shot the second basket for the Purple. With the ball seeing-sawing from one basket to the other, Guyer of Springfield, aided by Captain Bennett, made the initial tally for the visitors, adding to it a minute later a free throw. With the opportunity to make two more foul scores, Guyer missed the second, and

BISHOP FISKE WILL PREACH NEXT SUNDAY

Rev. W. D. Mackenzie to Conduct Services on Following Sunday Morning

On the two Sundays that come during the mid-year examination period, the morning chapel services will be conducted by the Right Reverend Charles Fiske, D.D., and by the Reverend William D. Mackenzie, D.D., who will appear in the pulpit tomorrow and the following Sunday respectively. The former is at present Protestant Episcopal Bishop Co-adjutor of Central New York, and the latter has been President of the Hartford, Conn., Theological Seminary since 1904.

Bishop Fiske graduated from St. Stephen's College, Annandale, N. Y., in the class of 1893, receiving the degree of A.B., and from the General Theological Seminary in 1896 with the degree of B.D. From the latter institution he has since received the degree of S.T.D., that of D.D. from St. Stephen's College in 1912 and the degree of L.L.D. from Syracuse University in 1916. After serving as Deacon and priest of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Trenton, N. J. and rector of a church in Westfield, N. J., he was appointed assistant in the Mt. Calvary Church of Baltimore in 1900. The next year he became rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, Philadelphia, and the year following, rector of a church in Somerville, N. J.; in 1908 he was called to be rector of St. John's Church, Norristown, Pa., and in 1910 rector of the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Baltimore. In 1915 he was consecrated Bishop Co-adjutor of Central New York, his present office. Dr. Fiske is the author of The Perils of Respectability, The Experiment

Musical Clubs to Lose Services of Mgr. Sayen

At the annual business meeting of the Musical Clubs held last Thursday evening in Jesup Hall, the resignation of Sayen '22 as manager of the organization to take effect February 1, was accepted with expressions of regret on the part of the Clubs. At the same time, the Musical Association decided to forego further activity for the 1921-22 season, feeling that decisions recently rendered against them have grounds for such action. The failure of a petition asking that the organization be allowed to start their Christmas trip two hours before the appointed time because of a change of timetables, making necessary the chartering of a special train to transport the Clubs to Springfield in order that they might arrive in time for their concert, and the more recent refusal of a request that the annual houseparty performance in February be an affair in which both Cap and Bells and the Musical Clubs should take part, were stated as the principal reasons for the termination of the Club's activities for the year and for the proffered resignation of the Manager.

RICHMOND IS ELECTED LEADER OF GLEE CLUB

H. C. Lawder Will Head Mandolin Club—Miller and Foster
Also Elected

Charles S. Richmond, '23 of Chatham, N. J., and Hervey C. Lawder '23, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., were elected leaders of the Glee and Mandolin Clubs respectively for the coming year at a meeting of the combined Musical Clubs last Thursday evening in Jesup Hall. At the same time Creighton S. Miller '24, of Marshall, Mich., and Andrew J. Foster '24, of Stamford, Conn., were chosen respectively as second assistant business manager and second assistant press manager of the combined clubs.

Richmond prepared for Williams at Blair Academy where he played on the football and track teams and was a member of the Student Council. At Williams he has played on the football team for three years, has been a member of the track and relay teams for the last two, and has been a member of the Glee Club for the last two years. In addition, he was captain of his class basketball team this year and secretary of the Varsity Club. He is a member of the Gargoyle Society and the Sigma Phi fraternity.

Lawder came to Williams from Mt. Vernon High School. In College he has been a member of Cap and Bells and is Photographic Editor of The Record. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Miller prepared for Williams at the Hackley School. At Williams he has been a member of the track team and his class football and relay teams. This year he is secretary of the Sophomore Class and a member of the Boy's Work Committee of the W. C. A. He is a member of the Chi Psi fraternity.

Foster came to Williams from Stamford High School. This year he holds the position of treasurer of the Gun Club. He is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

1925 Elects Two Officers

Hubert C. Brown of Glens Falls, N. Y., was elected 1925 baseball manager, and Harold L. Plumley of Meriden, Conn., was chosen class singing leader at a meeting of the Freshman Class in Jesup Hall last Wednesday evening. At the same time the class voted to ratify the 1925 baseball schedule presented to it for approval and levied an increased class athletic tax upon its membership to meet the demands of the coming season.

Discuss Provençal Poetry

"Provençal Poetry of Today" was the subject of a paper read by Mr. Albert Cru of the French Department at a meeting of the Whitney Society held last Monday evening at the Faculty Club. Mr. Cru spoke of the Renaissance of the Provençal language, emphasizing especially the works of the poet, Frederick Mistral. Several selected poems in Provençal were also read. The usual informal discussion followed the meeting.

MIND AND MATTER MAY BE PHYSICAL CONCEPTS

Dr. J. B. Brinsmade Explains "The Conservation of Energy" to Phil Union

Taking the subject, "The Conservation of Energy," in connection with its relation to the Mind and Body problem, Dr. J. B. Brinsmade of the Physics Department presented a paper at a meeting of the Philosophical Union held last Wednesday evening in the Commons Room, Currier Hall. A thorough explanation of the fundamental principle of the physical law of energy was followed by the more complicated and interesting concept of the fact that the same law can also be applied theoretically to problems of the mental sphere.

"Distance, time, and force are three basic principles of physical science, though it is particularly with force that the law of the conservation of energy is connected. The measure of work is the amount of force applied multiplied by the distance through which the point of application moves, and it is with the phenomenon of work that we are interested when dealing with problems of the law in question. A rough definition of the conservation of energy is included in the statement that no energy, the capacity for doing work, is ever lost or gained, and that the work expended in foot-pounds must always be equal to the work accomplished in foot-pounds, disregarding friction. Particularly is this fundamental concept applicable to the phenomena of heat, since the exact number of units of thermal change can be definitely determined. Stated in these terms the law requires that the amount of energy gained by one object in a change of state is exactly proportional to the amount of energy lost by the body which produces that change. It was through experiments in thermal physics that the great concept of the conservation of energy was discovered, and it is through this method that it can best be explained. "Though we know that it applies to all things about us on this sphere, we cannot be sure that it is also applicable universally, and a great dispute over the truth of the law was occasioned by the action of radium and the emanations proceeding from it. With the idea of the conservation of energy in mind, it is difficult to see how the mental organs can operate an imagin-

Four Games Arranged for 1925 Basketball Schedule

Four games have been scheduled for the freshman basketball team, winners of the interclass basketball series, by Manager Fischer, and have been approved by the class and the Athletic Council. The playing of four games with outside teams is a distinct departure from past custom and the schedule, as now arranged, provides that all the games be played in Williams-town.

The schedule, as formally ratified, includes games with Dartmouth Freshmen on February 18, Williston Seminary on February 25, Union Freshmen on March 4, and Springfield Freshmen on March 11. The class basketball squad which is practicing daily in preparation for the season consists of Beekwith, Bergen, H. Brown, Dowling, Dugan, Dunham, H. Fisher, Ide, Mains, and Reed.

Colby '90 Receives Praise as London Dinner Speaker

Bainbridge Colby '90, Secretary of State under President Wilson and at present enjoying a vacation abroad, was highly praised in an article by T. P. O'Connor, M.P., in a recent issue of The London Times in which Mr. O'Connor reviewed a dinner given by the Knights of the Round Table a few days before. The ex-Secretary of State was described as being as typically New York as Mr. Harvey, the present American Ambassador to England, is Vermont.

The writer of the article spoke of Mr. Colby's "elegant air which is so characteristic of the New York citizen," and declared that "his handsome face and figure" were "set off by clothes that the young Disraeli might have envied." His ability as an orator also received laudatory comment, his method of speech being likened to "the sonority of Gladstone and the clear-cut simplicity of Mr. Asquith."

Mr. Colby recently entered a law partnership with ex-President Wilson with offices in New York and Washington and has agreed to speak before the Williams Forum later in the year.

IDEA OF PROGRESS IS TREATED IN LECTURE

Mr. Tausch Traces Development
In Second Number of Tuesday Course

Tracing the historical development of "The Idea of Progress" from the early Greek conception down through the Middle Ages, the Renaissance, and to modern times, and showing its significance in relation to the thought of the present generation, Mr. Tausch delivered a paper at the second Tuesday lecture of this year last Tuesday afternoon in the Thompson Physical Laboratory.

"Starting with the early Greek doctrine," said Mr. Tausch, "the idea of progress was not popular. Many scholars such as Seneca believed in the hopeless corruption of the human age. No such thing as continual progress was possible. After 72,000 years the earth was supposed to return to its original state of culture to begin the circuit again, no lasting advance having been made.

"The main thought in the Middle Ages turned toward religion. Since the world was expected to end at any time, the popular doctrine was that of treasuring up virtue for the life to come. Thus the direction of development changed from the ancient order of the circle to a straight line more nearly like the line of progress adopted in our times.

"Medieval absorption in the other world was destroyed in the Renaissance, and life on this earth became an end in itself regardless of the hereafter. Soon Francis Bacon broke away from the traditions of the ancients in science, followed by Descartes who propounded the doctrine of the invariability of the laws of nature. In spite of Rousseau's check on the progressive idea through his supernaturalism and radicalism, Fontenelle's theories, Comte's positivism, Darwin's evolution theories and Herbert Spencer's philosophy strengthened the idea."

Leaving the history of the subject, Mr. Tausch spoke of the present division of progress into social and individual progress. "Professor Carver of Harvard believes that civilization is a storing up of surplus energy by men who produce more than they consume. The goal of all effort is the survival of the group. Dean Inge of St. Paul's stresses the development of the individual in order that social order may be improved."

PURPLE FIVE LOSES FIRST HOME CONTEST

Knox Basketball Team Wrests 33-31 Victory From Williams
Monday Night

WILLIAMS DEFENSE STRONG

Guarding of Team Keeps Down
Tally Threatened by Shifty Attack of Visitors

Slightly superior teamwork and greater accuracy in shooting on the part of the visitors caused the defeat of the Williams basketball team, 33-31, in a closely contested game played last Monday evening against Knox College in the Lasell Gymnasium. The strong defensive work of the Purple quintet was instrumental in keeping the score to the close margin by which the winners achieved their victory.

Early season greenness partly accounts for the defeat at the hands of Knox, the opponents having tallied five victories so far this season, whereas the game was but the second of the year for Williams. The game was hotly contested throughout, and the Purple five succeeded often in penetrating the powerful defense of the visitors with an aggressive passing attack. Blackmer proved a dependable scoring machine in himself, caging five floor goals and 13 from the foul line, thus accounting for 23 of Williams' 31 points. Captain Wilson played a stellar game at right guard, persistently breaking up the shifty offense of the visitors, and in addition scoring two pretty goals from the center of the floor. Boynton and Fargo gave able support to the Williams defense and with consistently good floorwork and passing aided materially the scoring of the forwards.

For the visiting team, Albro, a fast forward, was preeminently the individual star, netting six field goals and 11 fouls, a total of 23 points that just equalled the performance of Blackmer, the Williams high scorer. Campbell, center for Knox, played an excellent offensive game, caging four field baskets. The Knox teamwork was excellent, and the quintet showed an unusually well-developed faculty for following the ball.

In the opening half of the game, the visitors scored first on a spectacular shot by Albro. Two baskets and a foul, all scored by Blackmer, placed Williams in a leading position which it maintained throughout the half. At the end of five minutes of play, Williams was in the lead, 7-5. Half

WEAVER WINNER IN ORATORICAL CONTEST

Second Prize of Annual Freshman Public Speaking Event is Won by Owen

In the Freshman Prize Speaking Contest held last Monday afternoon in Chapin Hall, Mortimer G. Weaver, of Washington, D. C., and Kenneth A. Owen of Schenectady, N. Y., were awarded the first and second prizes respectively. The prizes consist of $20.00 and $10.00 and are offered by the trustees of the College annually to members of the freshmen class for excellence in public speaking.

This contest always takes place at the termination of the Public Speaking Course, occurring this year in January and forming the last mass-meeting of the course. Prof. Lieklider, head of the Public Speaking Department, presided over the meeting, and the judges were Profs. Clark, Morton, and Taylor. Before and after the declamations, Mr. Sumner Salter played several selections on the organ.

All of the speeches were remarkably well delivered, and the decision of the judges as to the winners was necessarily close. The list of the candidates and the titles of their speeches follow:

Lochner—Kellogg's Spartacus to the Envoys.
Frost—Burke's Closing Speech Against Warren Hastings.
Phillips—Briand's Address Before the Lotus Club of New York.
Weaver—Foch's Address to the American Legion at Kansas City.
Blackburn—A Soldier of France (Anonymous).
Dugan—Borah's The Policy of Washington.
Wells—Patrick Henry's The Call to Arms.
Owen—Riley's Caught in the Maelstrom.

"Can Spring Be Far Behind"

To profit from the sage counsels of others is, perhaps, too much to ask of the average college man, who has so carefully schooled himself to ignore the fact that others have already trod the paths whereon he plods. There is that indefinable feeling that in our little pure democracy it would be unfair to profit by the weary efforts that others have expended—it smacks too much of starting at the top of the ladder.
Thus a man is seldom expected to take advice. For him to do so would cause a far greater sensation than if he should disregard it.

Failure to profit by his own experiences, on the other hand, would seem to portray a certain excessive amount of bull-headedness. That is what makes it so pathetically humorous to hear men grumble at the tremendous amount of work that they have allowed to pile up on them. It is such an ancient story—quite one of our best traditions. For years, the same man, or his predecessor, has said exactly the same thing, and displayed the same ingenious wonder at his own procrastination.

Another period of judgment is upon us.
There arise, already, the constantly swelling cries of the about-to-be-damned, that large family of which the consistent "genus poolroomus" and the continual habits of the cinema are such typical specimens.
The inexorable law of survival of the fittest decrees that certain must fall by the wayside. To such we can only wish a tearful Ave atque Vale, and "see you next fall."

Toward the remainder our sentiments constitute something of a youthful, undying optimism, quite unwarranted by any past or present experience. By heroic efforts The Record refrained from suggesting any New Year's Resolutions to the student body on the first of this month.
Now that all the Christmas money has been spent, however, it seems safe to risk presenting the following simple, solemn oath:

Resolved, that I will hereafter this spring prepare each class before and not after the hour of said class.

(Signed) John Doe, '22, '23, '24, '25.

Of course it is not to be expected that this resolution will be observed any longer than the average will power succeeds in swearing off cigarettes. The call of the cue and the reel is too strong. Still, every week counts, and helps cut down on the hours of "boning" required next June.
Meanwhile, winter has truly come. Each student has his own account to settle.

A Supervised Policy Needed

The sudden, unexpected termination of the season for this year's successful Musical Clubs is the result of an unfortunate series of decisions, some of which, at least, are questionable, being based on misunderstandings and incomplete knowledge.
It is too late to correct the situation this year, but there are lessons to be drawn for the future.

The real need is for a perfectly definite policy to last over a considerable period of years, enforced by some proper supervisory body. The Non-Athletic Council at present seems to be the logical organization to assume such duties. Conflicts have arisen periodically in the past between Cap and Bells, the Musical Clubs, and other organizations, and such disagreements will continue to occur in the future unless some fair, constructive, and enduring plan is adopted at the present time.

10 Years Ago at Williams

Two periods were necessary to decide the hockey game Saturday afternoon which resulted in a victory for the Springfield Training School over Williams by the score of 3 to 2. Owing to the poor quality of the ice on the rink, the game was played on Leake's pond. Field '12 scored both points for the varsity in the first half.

Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne of Auburn,
N. Y., a former member of the New York State Public Service Commission, will address an open meeting of the Good Government and Economics Clubs on Friday evening at 8.00 o'clock in Jesup Hall. His subject will be: "College Men and Politicians."

The construction committee of the Aeronautical Society is planning to repair the flying bob that it may be ready for use next week.

The Athletic Council has decided to have the electric lights at Weston Field rink turned on each evening at 7.30 o'clock and skating will be allowed until ten o'clock when the current will be turned off.
Varsity hockey games, however, will not be allowed at night.

Since March 17 falls this year on Sunday, it has been decided to hold the annual night-shirt parade on Tuesday, March 19.
This will allow a brief respite between the cane contest and the ceremonies of the hatchet burial.

An "inter-table" basketball series has been organized at the Commons.

Owing to recent carelessness in the use of the swimming pool, Captain Doan requests that all students refrain from throwing soap in the tank.

the second semester. Roger Babson, of the Babson Statistical School at Wellesley Hills, will probably speak also during the spring term.

FROM COACH COOMBS

To the Editor of The Record,
Sir:

In view of the approaching mid-year examinations I am taking this opportunity to write a few words addressed to all Williams undergraduates in general, and especially to those intending to come out for baseball next Spring. It is imperative that each of you take all pains to pass every one of his examinations, for upon this may depend, in a very large degree, the success of our nine in the Spring season. In addition to the baseball men, every Williams man interested in the athletic prowess of his alma mater should do all that is within his power to see that these men are eligible to start at the opening practice in the cage.

I am making my plans to arrive in Williamstown about the middle of February, and shortly after I shall call out the men whose names appeared in the issue of The Record of last October 18th. This must not be taken to mean that other undergraduates are to be in any way barred from competing for the team, for I shall watch every man in College who has any baseball ability whatsoever, and might conceivably even go to the intramural players to pick a few for the varsity squad. It is with the hope that I may with the greatest possible speed develop those men who up to the present time, have shown the greatest promise, that I am calling out only the men on this list. We ought to have a winning team, and I firmly believe that we shall have one if we are to have the whole-hearted cooperation of each member of the undergraduate body.

Most sincerely yours,
John W. Coombs.

The following freshmen have entered the competition for the second assistant business managership of The Record:
F. V. Adriance, Bozoian, Fay, Fitzpatrick, Herbert, MacMaster, Mitchell, Norton,
Parker, and J. Schmidt.

NUMBER OF WARNINGS INCREASED THIS FALL

Statistics Show 68 Percent of Students Were Warned and Many Ineligible

Statistics received from the Dean's office show that 68% of the men in College received either a D or an E warning in some course, a figure slightly higher than last year when 64% of the student body were warned. The figures also indicate that a greater number of men were rendered ineligible last November than were a year ago.

The Freshman class leads the list with 77% of its members warned. Then follow the sophomores with 69%, the juniors with 68% and the seniors with 49%. Three or more warnings were sent to 32% of the freshmen, 33% of the sophomores, 20% of the juniors, and 6% of the seniors. 24% of the student body was warned in at least three subjects as compared to 21% in November, 1920. Two freshmen and one sophomore received four E warnings, while one freshman was the recipient of five.

Owing to warnings, 26% of the incoming class were rendered ineligible for extra-curriculum activities as compared to 25% of last year's class. 32% of the sophomores, 21% of the juniors, and 8% of the seniors also became ineligible.

Struggle for Control of Intercollegiate Athletics

Determined in character, a nation-wide struggle for the control of intercollegiate athletic contests was launched at the annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association recently held in New York City.

From the very start this organization has at no time exerted any actual control but has offered a rather idealistic form of regulation for contests between the various colleges of the country. Having been treated as an ineffectual unit by the Amateur Athletic Union at the Olympic Games in 1920, the Association under the leadership of its President, Dr. Palmer E.

Pierce, declared that it would take the matter of the control of athletic meets into its own hands and that only records made in meets run under the rules and supervision of the organization would be regarded as authentic. In this stand the N. C.
A. A. will be opposed by the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America which now has control of all track and field sports, including the certifying of world's records and other records in these sports.
The N. C. A. A. has split into an aggressive group and an anti-aggressive group, but until the question is settled there will be two national titles in several branches of sport, both claiming to be the official organization for the United States.

Track Men Selected for Four Class Relay Squads

As a result of time trials held on the board track last Wednesday afternoon class relay squads were selected in preparation for the annual inter-class relays, which will be run off in the first part of February. Daily practice for these men as well as for the varsity relay and distance squads, will be held at 11 a. m. during the examination period.

Adams, Mendes, Richmond, Seaman, and Wolfe '22, Fitch, Mackie, Newton, Stowers, and Webb '23, Brayton, Clason, Dodge, Miller, O'Brien, Perkins, and Wishard '24, and Baxter, Conklin, Driscoll, Keep and Onthank '25 were picked by Coach Seeley to represent their respective classes in the relays and will compete for places on the four-man teams. Final selection of the teams will be withheld until a few days before the relays.

Yale University is planning to spend approximately $300,000 for improving its track facilities. The erection of concrete stands, a house containing 2,400 lockers and the construction of a new track on the site of the old freshman football field are included in the plans. The new track is to be 24 feet wide and is to include a 220-yard straightaway with 30 yards at each end for stopping and starting.

KNOX DEFEATS WESLEYAN

The Knox College basketball team of Galesburg, Ill. defeated the Wesleyan quintet last Wednesday night at Middletown, Conn., by the score of 27 to 23. Capt. Robertson of Wesleyan scored 15 points for his team from the foul line, but even this was not enough to overcome the score piled up by Albro and Campbell for Knox.

YALE LOSES IN HOCKEY

The Yale hockey team was forced to bow to the sextet from the Massachusetts Agricultural College by a score of 3 to 2 in a game played last Wednesday at New Haven. M. A. C. forged into lead early and held it throughout the contest in spite of determined efforts on the part of the Yale players. An odd feature of the game was that all but one of the goals were shot by defense men.

Small Margin Gives Game to Springfield

Hyde immediately scored for Williams. The play centered around the Red and White's basket again, but Guyer and Captain Bennett were able to break away and score twice for the visitors. Blackmer missed a foul basket. Allen, the Springfield left guard, now broke loose for a long dribble up the entire length of the floor, which finally put the ball in his opponents' basket. This was followed in short order by Blackmer's score, after which the ball was carried back and forth, each team making frequent tries. Fargo added two more points to Williams score by a long shot from the middle of the court. Allen netted the winners another basket. Guyer was successful in two free tries. Jayne was substituted for Fargo at center for the Purple. Blackmer missed two shots from the foul line, and the half closed a tie, 14-14.

At the start of the second half Wightman of Williams took Hyde's place at left forward. The home team seemed to have lost its stride, and the ball hovered dangerously close to its basket for some minutes. Finally Williams directed a drive against the Red and White and Blackmer scored by a backhand shot. This was followed closely by Jayne's basket, and then the ball returned to Purple territory. With a fairly short interval between each score, Captain Bennett and Watters made a basket apiece for the Red and White, and Guyer added two more. The home team showed unmistakably wild passing. Bennett scored again, thanks to fine team work and then relinquished his position to Oosting. The play livened up considerably, and Wightman scored. Fargo was put back in place of Jayne, and Captain Bennett of Springfield went back into the game, displacing Allen. Pease was substituted for Boynton in the Purple lineup. Guyer scored after several attempts which uncovered a weakness in the Williams backcourt. Blackmer made the last score for the losers by a free throw, and in about two minutes the whistle ended the game.

The lineup was as follows:

WILLIAMS	SPRINGFIELD
Hyde, Wightman l. f.	Guyer
Blackmer r. f.	Bennett (Capt.)
Fargo, Jayne c.	Oosting
Boynton, Pease l. g.	Lash
Wilson (Capt.) r. g.	Allen
	Watters

Score—Williams 24, Springfield 26.
Field goals—Blackmer 5, Guyer 5, Bennett 3, Allen 2, Fargo, Jayne, Boynton, Wightman, Watters. Goals from fouls—Blackmer 6 out of 10, Guyer 4 out of 8.
Time of halves—20 minutes. Referee—Young.

Though this in the last analysis is not in conflict with the fundamental principle of physics, yet there must be some configuration in the mind at some time during the operation, and the name mental energy might well be applied to this hypothetical form of phenomenon. If such a situation exists, the theory of dualistic philosophy is shattered, for the Mind and Matter would be brought into the same physical universe, and would be considered as similar concepts."

Purple Five Loses First Home Contest

A minute later, Albrow evened the count by caging two fouls, but the ball was in play again only a few seconds before Blackmer placed the Purple again in the lead by dropping another foul. The score saw-sawed back and forth for several minutes, Blackmer and Albrow doing all the scoring. Jayne was substituted for Fargo at this point and he played an aggressive game throughout the half. On the next play, Wilson put the Williams team in the lead by caging a beautiful shot from the center of the floor. Blackmer scored twice on foul goals, Albrow dropped one in for Knox, and Wilson duplicated his mid-court performance just as the half-time whistle blew, leaving the score Williams 19, Knox 15.

In the second half the Knox quintet was in better form, and Fargo returned to center for Williams. Under the close guarding of its opponents, the Purple was frequently unable to find openings to the basket from close range. Blackmer began the scoring for the half, sinking a floor goal from about a quarter of the length of the floor after the ball had been in play slightly over a minute. Albrow scored three fouls in succession, cutting down the Purple lead to three points. The score ran up evenly until shots by Campbell and Craig, the latter having been substituted for Negley of Knox, and a foul shot by Blackmer brought the tally to a tie, 31-31, with about two minutes to play. At this point in the game, the visitors manifested a speedy passing attack which resulted in a goal by Campbell, giving them a two-point lead which Williams proved powerless to overcome in the few seconds of play that remained. The final whistle found the score, Knox 33, Williams 31.

The summary follows:

WILLIAMS	KNOX
Wightman	l. f. Negley, Craig
Blackmer	r. f. Albrow
Fargo, Jayne	c. Campbell
Boytton	l. g. Crabtree (Capt.)

Wilson (Capt.) r. g. Ludwig, Kesseneck
Score: Knox 33, Williams 31. Goals from floor—Blackmer 5, Albrow 5, Campbell 4, Craig 2, Wightman 2, Wilson 2. Goals from fouls—Blackmer 13, Albrow 11. Time of halves—20 minutes. Referee—Young.

Rendering seven numbers by famous composers, Mr. Summer Salter gave his 216th organ recital last Wednesday afternoon at 4.15 p. m. in Chapin Hall. Included in his numbers were two selections by two of America's best known musicians, several pieces composed by foreign musicians for the organ.

PROM GUESTS TO SEE 'CAP AND BELLS' PLAYS

'Ryland,' 'The Game of Chess,' and
'The Crimson Cocoon' Will Be Presented

FIRST PRESENTATION HERE

Program is Same as That Played On Successful Trip Taken
Last Christmas

Having received great ovations at each of the seven cities visited in the recent fifty-fifth Anniversary Christmas tour, Cap and Bells will repeat tonight, for the benefit of the houseparty guests, the performance of the three-one-act plays, Ryland, A Game of Chess, and The Crimson Cocoon, at 8:30 p. m. in Chapin Hall. An unqualified success was gained by the clever presentation of the plays through the trip, which was the most extensive that has been attempted since the War, including Albany, Brookline, Portland, Fall River, Stamford, Bridgeport, and Hartford.

It was through the untiring efforts and interest of Mr. William T. S. Wood, who coached the production of all three of the plays, that this remarkable success was attained, and in recognition of the service that he rendered Cap and Bells, a silver loving cup was presented to him, and he was also elected an honorary member of the Cap and Bells Corporation. According to the Fall River News, the plays were "admirably presented in every detail and of the highest order, both as to dramatic conception and interpretation," and the Albany Knickerbocker Press says that it was "an amateur performance as finished as many professional stage productions."

Perhaps the best of the three plays is the tragedy, The Game of Chess, by Goodman, which is featured by an intense and interesting battle of wits between a Russian governor and a Russian peasant, in which the nimble nobleman finally outwits the slow-minded rustic. The acting of McManey '23 and Youngman '22, who take the two leading parts, is particularly commendable and was praised many times in press reports of the vacation tour. One commentator writes that "every part was excellently done, but it would be hard to conceive, even on the professional stage, a finer bit of work than that of Youngman as Alexis. Every movement, even the manipulation of his cigarette, helped in the interpretation."

Ryland, by Goodman and Stevens, is a comedy-tragedy, and is centered about the person of Ryland, who is making every effort possible to save himself from being hanged for forgery. When he attempts to gain an intercession through his acquaintance, Angelica Knuffman, his wife appears and creates an awkward situation which is highly amusing. The color, costumes, and picturesqueness of this play make it particularly interesting.

BOWDOIN WILL RACE PURPLE RELAY TEAM

Six Williams Track Men Entered in Boston A. A. Games Next Saturday

Six men will represent Williams at the Boston Athletic Association games to be held next Saturday in the Boston Arena, in which most of the leading colleges of the East are to be represented. A relay team composed of Mackie, Mendes, Richmond and Stowers is to race Bowdoin in a dual event, and Adams will enter in the mile and Miller in the sprints.

In the Bowdoin-Williams relay, the competition promises to be exceptionally keen. Bowdoin has defeated the Purple in both the last two years. Two years ago, Williams and Brown were both beaten by the Maine college and last year Williams and Worcester were defeated. The Bowdoin team is weakened this year by the loss of two veterans, one of whom was Goodwin, a competitor in the 1920 Olympic Games. The prospective runners have shown promise but have not come up to the ability of the former men.

The race is to be a regular one mile relay, each man running a quarter of a mile. The two veterans of the Bowdoin team are Captain Hunt and Palmer. The other two positions will be filled from Wescott, Mason, Butler, Southwick, Perkins, and Small.

Outing Club Carnival Off

Owing to the improbability of a snow-fall sufficiently heavy for skiing and snow-shoeing, the carnival of the Williams Outing Club scheduled for Friday and Saturday of this week has been cancelled. It has not yet been decided whether an attempt will be made to hold the event at a later date.

Feb. 1—Enger for victory after experiencing three defeats by the narrow margin of two points, the Williams basketball team will meet the Boston University quintet at 8 p. m. this evening in the Lasell Gymnasium. The contest is the opening event of the mid-winter Houseparty period and will be followed by dances in most of the fraternity houses.

From the results of the games already played this season it would appear that Williams has considerable advantage over the Boston aggregation. Both teams have lost all their contests, but Williams has been outscored by only two points in each case, whereas B. U. has been defeated by Holy Cross 41-25, Springfield 33-20, Vermont 49-22, and M. I. T. 34-15.

Coach Shanahan is planning to shift the Williams line-up in the game this evening, starting Captain Wilson at left forward instead of at right guard, and using Jayne at center. Pease and Boynton will fill the guard positions, with Fargo substituting for one of them later in the game. Blackmer will remain at right forward.

In the first game of the season the Purple was nosed out by a 16-14 score by Wesleyan at Middletown on Jan. 14, after having led the winners 10-8 at the end of the first half. On the following Monday Knox College of Galesburg, Ill. won a hard fought contest with a total of 33 points against 31 for Williams, and the next evening Springfield College emerged the victor by a 26-24 count. The Wesleyan game was lost on fouls rather than by the quality of the playing. The game with Knox was one of the best exhibitions of basketball that has been seen in the Lasell Gymnasium for some time, and was not decided until the final whistle. The contest with Springfield was characterized

Fraternities Extend Welcome to Mid-Winter Houseparty Guests

Mid-winter houseparties are once more ushered in, as approximately 200 guests invade the Berkshires to take part in the three-day festivities which will culminate in the Sophomore Prom on Friday evening. Thirteen fraternities will entertain with dances on Wednesday and Thursday evenings and tea dances on Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Of the thirteen fraternities which have invited guests Alpha Delta Phi, Sigma Phi and Delta Psi are combining their entertainments, while Chi Psi and Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Zeta Psi and Kappa Alpha are forming two more combinations. The remaining houses which are entertaining guests are Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Psi Upsilon and Theta Delta Chi.

Festivities will commence with the Boston University basketball game this evening, after which dances will be held at the Beta Theta Pi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Psi Upsilon, Sigma Phi, Theta Delta Chi and Zeta Psi houses. On Thursday afternoon tea-dances will be held at the Beta Theta Pi, Chi Psi, Delta Psi, Kappa Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Psi Upsilon and Theta Delta Chi houses. That evening Cap and Bells will present three one-act plays in Chapin Hall after which there will be dancing at the Alpha Delta Phi, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Kappa Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Psi Upsilon and Theta Delta Chi houses. On Friday afternoon there will be a tea-dance at the Chi Psi house.

The music for the parties will be furnished as follows: "Sid" Reinhart's orchestra from Boston for the Alpha Delta Phi, Delta Psi and Sigma Phi dances; Hills-Boulanger orchestra including members of Paul Whitman's and DeMonico's orchestras at the Beta Theta Pi house; Ohio State Sextet orchestra at the Chi Psi and Delta Kappa Epsilon dances; Wittstein's orchestra at the Kappa Alpha and Zeta Psi parties; Leo Reisman's orchestra of New York at the Phi Delta Theta house; Cipriano of New Haven at the Phi Gamma Delta house; the Arthur Krans orchestra of New York at the Phi Sigma Kappa house; Wittstein's orchestra including "Sleepy" Hall at the Psi Upsilon house; and Walter Johnson's orchestra of Boston at the Theta Delta Chi house.

The music for the Promenade on Friday evening in the Lasell Gymnasium will be furnished by Wittstein's orchestra of New Haven, including "Sleepy" Hall and "Yaffi." Dancing is scheduled to begin at 9:00 p. m. and the 20 dances on the program will be completed at 1:00 a. m. when refreshments will be served in the various boxes. Cutting in will be allowed after the first encore of the program dances, and from 1:00 a. m. until 6:00 a. m. the dancing will be informal.

The Atlantic Decorating Company of Boston has the contract for decorating the Gymnasium. Purple and gold will be the predominating colors. Fifteen booths will be attractively fitted up for the guests. Grilled arch work before the boxes, decorative shields on the posts, and streamers and oriental lanterns suspended from the ceiling will complete the ornamentation. The favors will consist of gray calf-skin card-cases embellished with the class numerals and the college seal.

The patronesses for the Prom are as follows: Mrs. H. A. Garfield, Mrs. S. O. Dickerman, Mrs. W. H. Doughty, Mrs.

WILLIAMS SEXTET TO MEET AMHERST

Purple to Face Old Rival Today and Albany C. C. on Saturday in Holiday Games

LOSS OF RICHMOND IS HANDICAP TO WILLIAMS

Amherst Has Won Two of Six and Albany Three of Six Games Played Thus Far

Two home games are scheduled for the hockey team for the remainder of the week, with Amherst on Cole Field at 2:00 p. m. today, and with the Albany Country Club next Saturday. Indications are that both games will be very closely contested, especially since the Purple sextet will have to play both games without the services of Richmond '23 at goal.

The squad has had very little regular practice during the examination period, but the men have kept in training and have been on the ice whenever possible. As yet a man has not been definitely picked to take Richmond's place, but in all probability Mackie '23 will start at goal. With this change, the same men who started the last two games will start this week's contests: Clark, l. w.; Rowse, r. w.; Stephenson, c.; Buell, l. d.; Beckett, r. d.; Mackie, g.

The Amherst hockey team has thus far had a rather unsuccessful season, having won only two of the six games it has played. The Purple and White has been defeated by Cornell, Dartmouth, Hamilton, and Massachusetts Agricultural College, while it has beaten Bates and Springfield College. Springfield, the only team both Williams and Amherst have played, fell before the Purple and White by a 5-1 score in a game played on their own rink, while Williams beat the same team 8-1 on Cole Field. The Amherst team has improved steadily, however, and a close game is expected this afternoon.

Two freshmen, Lawson at left wing, and Allison at left defense, are playing with the visitors, and both men have been putting up a fine game so far this season. Plimpton, goal, has been the individual star of most of the games, especially in the M. A. C. game, when he stopped all but one of 50 shots at the goal. Davidson, at center, has proved particularly strong on the offense, and Captain Worcester, right defense, has played a steady consistent game all season.

The game on Saturday with the Albany Country Club will test the ability of the Williams team to the limit. The visitors have a team composed of old college stars, which is a stronger organization than the team which the Purple defeated 4-0 last year. AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY DISCUSSED IN LECTURE

Professor Brinsmade Differentiates Types of Cameras Employed in Great War

"Airplane Photography" was the subject of the address given by Professor James B. Brinsmade before the second meeting of the Tuesday Lecture Course in the Thompson Physical Laboratory Tuesday afternoon. From his previous knowledge of photography and from his research work during the period of the War, Prof. Brinsmade was amply qualified to give an interesting and detailed description of the advances that were made along these lines and to relate some of the methods that were used, illustrating the technical points of his lecture by slides, photographs, and charts.

"The art of airplane photography had its birth during the Great War," began Prof. Brinsmade, "and it was there that we find it developed to its present high state of efficiency. Airplanes were early found to be the best means of scouting, and occasional pictures were taken by the observers on their flights. Both the Germans and the Allies, however, soon began to realize the immense value of the pictures that were taken, and devised anti-aircraft guns and built fast offensive planes in order to force the slower scouts (Continued on Second Page.)

The Houseparty Girl

"Fort Mass., Feb. 2, 1750—The present 3-day Truce came near to rupture this day, when the allowed festivities of the Red-Men with in the stockade would have past beyond control, save for the intervention of Omnipresent Providence. Mayhap it were the remarkable Tom-Tom beating of the new Medicine Man brought over yon eastward trail from the Mohawk tribe, or more like the forbidden, purloined Lie-Water, drunk in defiance of strik orders by the Fort Authorities—certain it be that orderly Dance about ye blazing embers soon turneth to Indian Orgies, beyond all credence. Were it not for the afore-mentioned Arrival, divinely appointed, of many quelling waters in shape of Fall Storm, verily I should have trembled for mine own scalp."

Diary of Col. Eph Williams.

The above authentic leaf from Eph's Diary gives us a fair idea of the first Williams houseparty. Yet it seems as if a good many interesting details were omitted possibly expurgated. To modern eyes, for example, the most striking point of note is the complete lack of comment as to the actions, attractions, or antics of any feminine element, whether it be Indian maidens in particular, or squaws in general.

Were Col. Eph to add another leaf to his Diary after witnessing tonight's revelry can there be any doubt as to where the chief emphasis would fall! The ladies, Heaven help us! Only vaulting ambition leads one to attempt an editorial on the subject. Great artists have succeeded in making masterpieces by treating one woman at a time, but a plurality of them has never been the theme or subject of any successful work. Yet for better or for worse, individually or collectively, they will compel our attention for the next three days.

How little information is really handed down to us by history. It is a fairly well authenticated fact that both Solomon and Henry VIII were rather renowned for their houseparties, yet they have left us no precious legacy of advice or data. Bacon did rather sagely advise us that the time for a young man to marry is not yet, and for an old man never. Milton, too, thought little of women, though specific advice from him is rare. When angel Azazel took a human wife, according to the Miltonic tradition, he became straightway a companion of Satan, which is the poetic way of saying he went straight to hell. On the other hand, Burns showed considerable warmth on the other side of the question. Perhaps only a paradoxical definition, the most useless of the indispensable, fits this complicated subject, woman.

Now the way is prepared to announce the big event for which all the athletes of the Filtmore and the Opera House have been training. If every dog has his day, that of the tea-bound has certainly arrived. All the way from where it is parted amidst and slicked back with bear's grease to where the pointed toes of gumboot pumps brilliantly protrude, each Romeo is lit up like a new saloon. If the figure is ambiguous, the subject is not. The bright lights shine only upon brave men and fair women, to put it modestly. Grave intelligence of Williams unbend into revelry, expiring until high dawn like Yale hoy models, or Amherst imitators. Come are these serious, dumb, despairing faces, which belonged but a day gone by to the ragged slaves of many exams.

What could have wrought such a transformation? "Twere beyond the power that even Circe showed when with her syntetic gin she made men swine for the true answer in all its loveliness, look about you and find it in their every flashing eye, reflecting a hundred moods per minute, in their every radiant face, shining with a grace transcendent, in their every nymph-like form, slim and lovely beyond earthly measure, in their ever twinkling feet, ever luring onward. And now for three fast-fleeting days, may old Williams be like Merliu's city, "built in music, therefore never built at all, and therefore built forever."

Aerial Photography Discussed in Lecture

ing craft to seek a much higher altitude. With the increased distance from the ground, an improved and more accurate form of camera was found necessary.

The first step in the improvement of the camera was the addition of handles and grips so that the operator could hold it out at a greater length from the plane and the substitution of buttons for levers, obviating the necessity of his removing his gloves to make the exposure. Then, in order to take a larger picture, cameras of greater focal length were manufactured, ranging in size from 10 to 50 inches. To penetrate the haze that renders photography at this height difficult, fast emulsions and color filters were devised that would take exposures in 1-100th of a second, and other provisions were made to meet atmospheric conditions. Of the 26 principal types of cameras used by the opposing forces, all but two or three used plates instead of films.

"Germans, French, and British alike experienced difficulty in freeing the camera carriages from vibration and the prints from the resulting blurring, and two methods were employed to remedy this defect. The French suspended their carriages inside the planes by rubber fastenings, and the British mounted theirs inside the fuselage, packing the struts in resilient rubber blocks. Even this did not eliminate the vibration and it remained for the Americans to discover that only angular vibrations affected the pictures and that this could be done away with by supporting the carriages at their center of gravity, overcoming the vibration of translation caused by the wind.

"Already for reconnoitering purposes and for making aerial maps, the so-called 'mosaics,' aerial cameras have proved themselves indispensable, and in the future they show equal promise to revolutionize the art of map-making, substituting themselves for the present clumsy methods of the surveyor."

left wing, both played with Yale in 1919, the former captaining the team. Montgomery, right wing, is an old Princeton man, and F. McNamee, right defense, played with Williams in 1915. P. McNamee, goal, and Wheeler, center, have both played with the Albany Country Club for a number of years. Of six games played so far this year, the visitors have lost half, being defeated by West Point, Albany Academy, and the St. Nicholas team of New York City. They later defeated the two last-named teams, however, and have also beaten the Pittsfield Country Club 4-0. The game will be played on the Cole Field rink, and will be called at 2.30 p. m.

In a ballot taken on January 11, the class of 1924, at Yale University, the first to adopt the honor system in the Academic Department of the University, voted overwhelmingly in favor of keeping the present system. ticularly interesting and charming, and the work of Clark '22, President of Cap and Bells, and that of Harding '24 was everywhere highly commended.

Of a different style from the other two plays, The Crimson Cocoon, by Ian Hay Beeth, is a pure farce, and deals with the struggle made by a waiter in a restaurant to get sufficient money to marry a cook, in the same place of employment. Many amusing situations arise, and the sketch is full of real humor and characterization. Dodge '24 as the waiter takes his part very cleverly, and his interpretation of the cockney language never failed to bring laughter during the Christmas trip.

by the great number of fouls which were called.

In the opening period of the Boston University-Holy Cross game on January 6 the B. U. five played well, but in the second half the Worcester team came back and won 41-25. In the next three contests also B. U. was completely outclassed, and Springfield, Vermont, and M. I. T. had little difficulty in rolling up big scores against their inexperienced opponent. Vermont took the B. U. five completely off its feet in the first few minutes of play by fast passing and accurate shooting. After five minutes Vermont led 14-0. The B. U.-M. I. T. contest was marked by personal fouls, in which both teams had their share.

Captain Graves, who plays left forward for the Boston quintet, has proved one of the most consistent scorers for the team, and Worcester at left guard and at right forward has displayed excellent ability on both defense and offense throughout the season. Jenkins is a dependable man at center and is expected to show up well in the game this evening.

DISTINGUISHED MEN AT ALUMNI DINNER

President Angell of Yale, Exeter and Andover Head, and Dr. Garfield Speak

NORMAL ATTENDANCE OF ABOUT 500 AT BANQUET

Professor Morton Representative of College-Waldorf Hotel Scene of Conclave

Speeches by President Angell of Yale University, President Harry A. Garfield '85, Dr. Stearns, Principal of Phillips Andover Academy, and Professor Asa H. Morton of Williams featured the annual Banquet held last Friday evening in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City. Max B. Berking '02, President of the Williams Club, called the alumni meeting to order and introduced the toastmaster, Lewis Perry '08, who is at present Principal of Phillips Exeter Academy.

Henry R. Johnston '09 led several songs between the speeches, and Carl J. Austrian '14 furnished the music on the organ. The class of '09, winner of the Reunion Cup at the Alumni Dinner last year, again received the prize for having the largest percentage of members present. Winthrop Carey '07 finally making the award after keeping each class in anxious suspense. The total attendance was about 500.

President Angell of Yale, the first speaker introduced by the Toastmaster, laid much stress upon the close relations between Yale and Williams, not only in the aims and principles of the two institutions but also in the type of men they seek to graduate. He highly praised the Williams football team that played Yale last fall and declared that more thrills were given the Yale supporters than was comfortable. The speaker brought out further the ties between Yale and Williams by the statement that the first Presidents of Williams were Yale graduates and therefore working to a large degree upon Yale ideals.

After the award of the Reunion Cup, President Garfield, who returned last Monday from his two months' vacation abroad, spoke at length upon the late Lord Bryce, who had written him shortly before the former's death. "Lord Bryce," the speaker said, "was a man of the very highest culture and mental development." Dr. Garfield also declared that the full plans for the second session of the Institute of Politics were not yet ready for publication. (Continued on Third Page.)

'CAP AND BELLS' WINS HOUSEPARTY APPROVAL

Critic Finds Improved Interpretation in Actors' Portrayal of Their Roles

The success which attended the first performances of the three one-act plays, presented this season by Cap and Bells, and the flattering criticism which they received during the Christmas trip attracted a large audience to Chapin Hall, Thursday night for the annual mid-winter performance. On no previous occasion has a House Party audience shown its interest in a dramatic production by such rapt attention and spontaneous enthusiasm.

Since the initial performance in Williamstown, last December, the actors in every instance have improved their interpretation of the various roles and it is evident that the experience acquired during the trip has resulted in a fuller comprehension of the possibilities of the characters and situations in the plays presented. This was especially true of "Ryland" and "The Crimson Cocoon" which were somewhat overshadowed at the opening performance by the dramatic appeal of the "Game of Chess". The former in particular has gained greatly in unity and dramatic effect and the play, as presented Thursday evening, had a more compelling human interest than its inherent artificiality would lead one to expect. This was due in a large measure to Mr. Clark who succeeded in giving a distinctly sympathetic personality to the somewhat shifty Ryland. Both in diction and in the distinction of his acting his work was an

Daily Swimming Practice Held for Dartmouth Meet

Swimming practice is being held regularly under the direction of Coach Fowler in preparation for the meet scheduled for next Saturday with the Dartmouth team at Hanover. The meet is to be a part of the Dartmouth Mid-Winter Carnival festivities and will be held in the new University pool.

Practice during the week has consisted of workouts in starts and turns and drill in breathing and sprints. A training table is being arranged to begin the latter part of this week. Hard practice is to be carried on throughout the week. Among the most promising candidates reporting are Captain Jones, Luedke, Rounds, Wallace, Kerr, Olmsted, Sanford, and Shaw.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE CONTAINS 17 GAMES

Athletic Council Recognizes Three New Track Records—Fowler to Coach Swimming

April 12—Columbia at New York.
April 15—Middlebury at Williams-town.
April 22—West Point at West Point.
April 26—Yale at New Haven.
April 29—Union at Williamstown.
May 3—Vermont at Burlington.
May 6—Trinity at Williamstown.
May 12—Wesleyan at Middletown.
May 13—Princeton at Princeton.
May 18—Amherst at Amherst.
May 20—Hamilton at Williamstown.
May 24—Harvard at Cambridge.
May 27—Wesleyan at Williamstown.
May 30—Amherst at Williamstown.
June 14—Vermont at Williamstown.
June 15—Dartmouth at Williamstown.
June 17—Norwich at Williamstown.

Seventeen games, nine of which are to be played at home, comprise the 1922 baseball schedule as ratified by the Athletic Council at a meeting held on January 21. At the same meeting the appointment of Robert Fowler, trainer of last season's football team, as coach of swimming was made, and three track marks made last spring were officially recognized as Williams records.

Noticeable in the baseball schedule is the fact that the southern trip, taken in former seasons during the spring vacation has been arranged. The schedule has also been cut down, as last year 22 games were planned. The new opponents appearing on the new schedule are Columbia, Middlebury, Vermont, and Norwich. The only extended trip will be made on May 12 and 13, when both Wesleyan and Princeton will be played.

Fowler has already arrived in Williamstown and is holding regular practice for candidates in preparation for the meet with Dartmouth which is scheduled for next Saturday. Two of the track records recognized by the Council tied former marks and the third established a new record. In the 100 yard dash event at Amherst on May 21, Miller equalled the 10 second time of Paterson '06, Callahan '08, Gutterson '04, Driscoll '15, Austin '17, and Hayes '16. Beckett tied the record in the discus throw of Thomas '10 in the N. E. I. C. A. A. meet with 110-1-2 feet. Chapin broke the former pole vault record held by Peabody '04 with a jump of 11 feet 3 inches.

BUSINESS DISCUSSED AT ALUMNI MEETING

Advisory Council and Loyalty Fund Committees Hold Annual Conferences

In connection with the annual Williams Alumni meeting held last Friday in New York, two committee meetings were held at the Williams Club. At 10.00 a. m. the midwinter meeting of the Advisory Council of the Society of Alumni took place, and an hour later the Loyalty Fund Association met to hear the report of the Treasurer.

Owing to the recent illness of Chairman Frederick Geller '83, Francis H. Dewey '76 presided at the meeting of the Advisory Council. The eligibility of nominees for the alumni ballot as candidates for Alumni Trustee 1922-1917 was first discussed. The ballot is to be sent out by the Alumni Secretary, E. Herbert Botsford '82, next month. The question of student loans was considered, with the recommendation that such loans should not begin to bear

B. U. FIRST VICTIM OF WILLIAMS FIVE

Ragged Contest With Boston Team Won by 30-21 Score After Hard Struggle

LONG SHOTS AND POOR TEAMWORK MARK GAME

Blackmer Scores 20 Points, Harris of B. U. 12—New Combination Unsuccessful

After dropping the first three basketball games by a two-point margin, Williams broke its losing streak by defeating Boston University 30 to 21 in the Lasell Gymnasium last Wednesday evening. Due to the fact that the examination period severely hampered the team's regular practice, the Williams quintet did not play as good a game as against its previous opponents, Knox, Springfield College, and Wesleyan.

The Williams line-up at the beginning of the game differed materially from that of previous games, Captain Wilson starting at left forward, and Pease taking Wilson's position at left guard. The team played this way for most of the first half, and managed to keep about even with the visitors. At this time Wightman replaced Wilson at left forward. Wilson took his regular guard position, and Fargo went in for Jayne who started the game at center, and with this combination, the play of the Purple team was very much improved.

The game as a whole was loosely played, both teams missing many easy chances to (Continued on Third Page.)

DEBATING TEAM WILL TAKE WEEK-END TRIP

Contracts Made for Debates With Hamilton and Syracuse on February 24-26

With a view to stimulating increased interest in debating as an extra-curriculum activity, the Faculty Committee on Administration has granted permission to the Adelphe Union to conduct a week-end trip with debates on Friday and Saturday evenings. Olmsted '22, manager of the varsity team, has contracted for debates on Friday and Saturday, February 24 and 25, when Williams will meet Hamilton at Utica and Syracuse at Syracuse respectively.

The question for both of these debates, in which Williams will take the affirmative, is as follows: "Resolved, that it should be the policy of the United States to claim full payment of the debts owed her by the Allied Nations." The team that will represent Williams will be picked this week and will consist of three regular speakers and an alternate.

Plans for additional activity in the field of debating are under way at present, and a conference will be held in Boston shortly to decide upon the date and the question for the annual Brown-Dartmouth Williams triangular debate.

No date has been set as yet for the annual underclass debate, but it will probably be held during the latter part of February. The question for discussion will be: "Resolved, that the United States should grant independence to the Philippine Islands within five years." The 1924 team will hold the affirmative against the freshman negative team. The first-year team is composed of the following: Fiske, Keep, Sterling (captain), with Dugan as alternate. The sophomore team has not been chosen as yet. Plans are under way to effect a meeting of the freshman team with a team of Amherst yearlings some time during the latter part of March.

SOOCHOW MEMBERSHIP SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Letter Received From Mr. Hayes Reports Recently Added Improvements

From an organization of only 70 members two years ago to an association with a membership of over 1,800 is the achievement of "Williams-in-China," according to a letter received by THE RECORD from Mr. Egbert M. Hayes, the general secretary of the movement. The complete letter, in which Mr. Hayes thanks the undergraduates for their support in the Soochow campaign, follows:

January 3, 1922
"Your letter of November 27th reached me in Soochow a little over a week ago just after I had attended the dedication of the new Y. M. C. A. building in that city. I wish you and every other member of the Williams Christian Association who had a part in securing your gift to the Soochow Association might have been present with me. Just a little over two years ago, we organized the Association in Soochow with seventy members, all of whom were Christians. We had no money to start with and no Chinese Secretaries—Mr. W. W. Brockman, a brother of the famous Fletcher S. Brockman, and myself being the only members of the staff.

"Because of a slight advantage in the language due to the fact that my birthplace was Soochow, I was asked to be General Secretary. Within two years, during one of which I was away in America, our staff increased from two to ten, with a Chinese General Secretary taking my place on my departure. Within this same period, a sum of more than $40,000 was raised in Soochow and a membership campaign was conducted in which 1,800 members were secured and $20,000 more taken in. The budget for 1922 is $17,500.

"Williams College has the distinction of helping to support a work which is unique in China, not only in the rapidity of its development, but also in its thoroughly Chinese leadership. With a Chinese General Secretary who has completely won the hearts of the leading men of all departments of the city's life, with a building which has been erected from Chinese funds and with the local expenses borne entirely from funds raised in the same way, you will readily see that the work is already on a very strong foundation. The need of funds from abroad is due to the fact that we need not simply one foreign Secretary but two or three to work in Soochow, partly for the training of Secretaries to develop a metropolitan organization and partly for the development of work in secondary cities nearby. In this way the Secretarial staff at Soochow can exert a very great and beneficial influence over a large territory.

"There are in Soochow at present Bible classes in four government schools with 150 members. There are 100 in the evening school studying English and commercial subjects. Besides these there are 100 government school students who are receiving free instruction in English. The auditorium with a seating capacity of more than 500 has been over crowded each Sunday as leading speakers have been explaining to the audiences many of our most progressive ideas in Religion and Social Organization.

"The Student Secretaries of the Soochow Association are cooperating with the Student Y. M. C. A. in the five mission schools (Continued on Third Page.)

Head of Department of Physical Education to Take Office Next September

TRUSTEES ALSO RATIFY SELECTION OF LIBRARIAN

Herbert Lehman '09 Gives $10,000 for Development of New Athletic Policy

As a step in carrying out the policy of athletic control recently proposed by the Athletic Council, Mr. Guerdon U. Messer was appointed director of athletics at a meeting of the Board of Trustees held in the Williams Club, New York City, last Friday afternoon. The appointee, who is at present Director of Physical Education at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, will come to Williams next September and will be given a chair in the Faculty as Professor of Physical Education.

A gift of $5,000 each year for two years was received from Mr. Herbert Lehman '09 to enable the trustees to begin at once the development of the new athletic policy. This is distinctly separate from the alumni fund which is being raised through the efforts of Mr. Charles D. Makepeace '00 for the salaries of major sport coaches. The report of the committee for investigating possible changes in the commencement program was also read at the meeting. A committee will be appointed by President Garfield upon the nomination of the faculty to work out the details of this year's commencement program. The policy of housing alumni and their wives in college dormitories during commencement week was strongly approved. A plan for serving meals to the alumni at that time through the college Commons was brought up and discussed.

The recommendation of the library council of the faculty that Mr. William N. C. Carleton be appointed to the position of librarian left vacant by the resignation of Miss Christine Price was accepted. Mr. Carleton was appointed to the rank of full Professor with a seat on the faculty and will take up his work with the beginning of the present semester. He and Mrs. Carleton are occupying Prof. Wahl's house on Main Street.

VIOLINIST TO APPEAR IN THOMPSON COURSE

Maximilian Pilzer Accompanied by Francis Moore, to Give Recital Thursday

Maximilian Pilzer, one of the foremost American violinists of the present day, and at different times concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic and Russian Symphony Orchestras, and Francis Moore, accompanist, will give a recital in Chapin Hall next Thursday evening, February 9, at 8.15 p. m. in the fourth of the annual series of Thompson Course entertainments.

Although a young man, Mr. Pilzer has already won for himself a nation-wide reputation as a true master of the violin. In fact the New York Tribune goes as far as to compare his cleanness and clarity of tone to that of the great Zimbalist, and without exception the press comment everywhere has also given testimony to his excellent technique. The New York Times gives him unstinted praise as a soloist: "His tone was warm and sympathetic always, with rich quality and ample volume. He displayed sound and serious musicianly intelligence throughout, and the ability to meet the various styles his numbers called for." No less complimentary is the criticism of the New York Press: "Pilzer has a fine command of the mechanics of his instrument: a tone, smooth, mellow, expressive temperamental vigor and animation—grace and elegance of style." Reviewing the presentation of Wieniawski's Faust Fantasy which will constitute one of the numbers of Thursday's concert, the Chicago American spoke of Pilzer as "One of the most interesting personalities."

More of a Welcome

Plans are under way for the complete furnishing of the dormitories, and at their recent meeting the Board of Trustees expressed their approval of the idea of making these furnished rooms available for alumni and their families at Commencement time. Such a step is certain to help bind together Williams graduates into a finer, closer family. A real obstacle in the way of securing suitable accommodations, which prevents many alumni from returning each year, will have been removed. When all the dormitories are open for alumni occupancy at a nominal sum, and good food is served cheaply in a great common dining hall such as the Gymnasium would provide, alumni will be attracted back each spring in greater and greater numbers. Such provision may not be capable of immediate arrangement, but each advance in this direction is worthy of heartiest commendation.

"It Can't Be Done?"

Terpsichore and her companions flitted this way last week and have but recently sped off for other parts. The first house-party entirely under student control at Williams is now a matter of reminiscent sighs and grateful letters. Its real importance must lie in the lessons it teaches for future action rather than in the pleasant day-dreams of past actions that it will continue to evoke for some time.

The recent affair must have been a very real disappointment to many a carping critic and blue prognosticator. Numerous were the alumni and faculty members who predicted nothing short of a debauch under student regulation. Many were the students who denied the possibility of an enjoyable house-party where liquor did not flow like water and jazz did not run rampant till pure exhaustion should forbid.

And what did happen? It was well summed up by a worried boot-legger outside the Prom: "Shucks! You might think them fellows was to a dance in their own home!" Not only was excess prominent by its absence with regard to drinking but in the matter of hours of dancing as well. The schedule this year was a full six hours shorter than last year, and the majority of students averaged six to seven hours of sleep per day, heretofore an almost unknown experience. A new record was likewise set in financial lines, the average per capita expenditure being less than during any house party period since the war.

The success of the present reign of festivities is testified to by the multitude of expressions of keen appreciation that may be heard about any house or dormitory, by the lack of fagged-out countenances and hang-over headaches, and by the plans already being discussed for the next house party, which must be "just as good." Behind all worthy results there is ever an active agency, and in this case it seems to have been the pleasure or spirit of the student body itself which was finding expression. Its agencies were the Student Council, the Prom Committee, and the heads of the various houses. To these THE RECORD extends its sincerest congratulations for a job well handled and well executed. "A good time was enjoyed by all!"

20 Years Ago at Williams

The Williams College trustees at a meeting held at the Hotel Manhattan, New York City, last Friday elected the Rev. Henry Hopkins of Kansas City, Mo., president of the institution to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Dr. Franklin Carter. The result of the election, which was unanimous, has been received with a feeling of general satisfaction by faculty and alumni, especially those of the older classes who know Dr. Hopkins best.

Williams completely outclassed Hamilton in basketball Wednesday night in the gymnasium, winning by the score of 70 to 16. Captain Vose was the particular star of the evening.

The basketball team maintained its excellent record last Saturday by defeating Brown University at Providence by the score 45 to 19.

Morris K. Jesup, the donor of Jesup Hall, is a member of a committee of prominent business men of New York City, who are to entertain Prince Henry of Germany when he comes to this country to represent the Kaiser at the christening of his new yacht.

COMMUNICATIONS

Although communications may be published unedited if so requested, the name of the writer must in every case be submitted to the editor. The Board assumes no responsibility, however, for the facts as stated nor for the opinions expressed in this department.

To the Editor of THE RECORD,
Sir:

THE WILLIAMS RECORD of January 12th at hand, and I must admit surprise and regret that personalities should be allowed to creep into a discussion entirely otherwise. The letter published has not only nothing to do with the original subject matter discussed by me, but goes into personalities entirely without interest to the subscribing alumni.

It is very evident that this young man has been out of College just long enough to think he knows it all, and willing, with apparent abandon, to make misstatements, which are self evident misstatements on the face of them. It simply shows his ignorance of the true facts of the case as well as demonstrating that he is not yet "dry behind the ears."

All statements made by me were from facts personally gleaned, whether desired by me or not, for practically everything I have invested in operating coal companies in this state, and experience I would willingly shift to Mr. Bang's young shoulders is the basis of my statements. I am not a West Virginian and am not prejudiced in favor of this State in any way, but my business is here and I am living here to look after it.

The only way Mr. Bangs can get any consideration from me is to demonstrate to me that his deductions are based on actual knowledge gleaned from personal contact with the facts, and from his misstatements it is easy to see this request would be impossible to fulfill. If he wants to know who introduced machine guns into this State I can easily prove that it was the United Mine Workers.

As I do not care now to waste time further on this side discussion, or the matter I first wrote about, unless with someone who knows what he is talking about, and since you have had the ill-taste to publish a letter of personalities and slurs by a total stranger, I am no longer interested in the WILLIAMS RECORD and desire my subscription to be cancelled, same to take effect on receipt of this communication.

WILLIAMS FAILS TO SCORE IN B. A. A. MEET

Bowdoin Wins Mile Relay When Richmond Stumbles Before Reaching Stowers

In the Boston Athletic Association games held last Saturday in the Boston Arena, Williams, represented by Mendes, Mackie, Richmond and Stowers, was forced to yield to Bowdoin in the mile relay, while Miller was unable to do better than qualify for the semi-finals in the forty-yard dash, and Adams failed to score in the handicap mile. The Hunter Mile, the big event of the meet, was won by Joie W. Ray of the Illinois Athletic Club, whose time was 4 minutes, 20 2/5 seconds.

In the Bowdoin-Williams event, Bowdoin had the pole, Palmer being their lead-off man with Mendes as opponent. Mendes seemed to be the faster man, but Palmer clung to his position and handed a five-yard leadway to Webster, whom Mackie opposed. The latter was unable to keep up the pace in the last lap when Mason took Webster's place with a 20-yard lead. Richmond then entered the race and made a desperate bid on the third and last lap and came up almost even with Mason. Just before he reached the restraining line Richmond staggered and fell allowing Bowdoin to make 25 yards before Stowers could receive the baton. The interval was too great for Williams' last man and Hunt finished for the winners by a 35-yard margin in 3 minutes, 40 seconds. In the 40-yard dash, Miller was beaten out in the semi-finals by Desch of Notre Dame, and inasmuch as only the winner was taken from each heat for the finals, Miller was unable to compete.

DR. ZELIE '87 URGES FRANKNESS OF SPEECH

'Modern Hypocrisy' is Subject of Excellent Address Before
W. C. A. Meeting

Stating that one of the most disagreeable qualities of the modern man is to be hypocritical in discussing virtues and in failing to acknowledge good qualities, the Rev. John S. Zelie, D.D., '87, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Troy, N. Y., spoke before the W. C. A. meeting in Jesup Hall Sunday evening, on the subject of "Modern Hypocrisy."

"The new and modern type of hypocrisy, a well-defined phenomenon of the characteristics of this generation, is manifested by the cloaking of our real and personal feelings and the putting foremost in our thoughts and speech of what public opinion may approve. This form of cant is everywhere in evidence. We often hear the seemingly frank statement 'I have no religion' from those whom we know to possess all that religion holds sacred. The wail is often heard from those of the old school, 'Where is the modern generation going to?' and yet those who are loudest in condemnation in their hearts know that human nature has not changed. The American citizen hates to be accused of acting from high motives and he hates to be religious, although his actions and conduct may contradict his words."

"No man should be obliged to say more than he thinks, and it should be a matter of honor to say as much as he thinks. By creating a feeling of frankness we may clear away the shadow of artificiality that clouds our atmosphere and we may make this world a better place for those living in it."

218th Organ Recital to Be Presented Wednesday

Assisted by Mrs. G. E. Howes, who will render two songs by Rachmaninoff and Rimsky-Korsakoff, Mr. Sumner Sauter will present his 218th Organ Recital next Wednesday afternoon at 4.15 p. m. in Chapin Hall, and the program is exceptionally well balanced both as to composers and the periods they represent. My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice, from Samson and Delilah, and Andante con moto from the Unfinished Symphony are the better known selections in the program, and the Song of India which will be sung by Mrs. Howes, is also one of the old popular songs in praise of the beauties and charms of a land. The 125th anniversary of the birth of Franz Schubert, composer of the Unfinished Symphony, was celebrated last week, and the death of Camille Saint-Saens, who composed Samson and Delilah, occurred in 1921, so the program has an added interest in the list of composers represented.

Following is the program in detail:
Toccata and Fugue in D Minor

Andante con moto Franz Schubert
Air—"My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice"
Clair de Lune Camille Saint-Saens
Fantaisie Sigrid Karg-Elert
Songs (a) In the Silence of Night Theodore Dubois
(b) Song of India Sergei Rachmaninoff Organ Overture in D, William Faulkes

Two Hockey Games Cancelled

Poor ice and unfavorable weather conditions necessitated the cancellation of the two hockey games scheduled for the past week. The first game was to have been played with Amherst on Thursday, and the second with the Albany Country Club on Saturday. The postponed game with Amherst may take place tomorrow, but definite arrangements have not been made as yet.

tistic success and marks the climax of a praiseworthy record in college dramatics. Mr. Harding's Angelica Kauffman was a radiant vision and his portrayal of this capricious artist excelled in a certain arch sophistication and lightness of touch as delightful as it is rare in the interpretation of feminine roles by men. The admirable support of the other members of the cast gave the play an artistic importance quite independent of its charm as a costume play which presented a series of colorful pictures at all times a delight to the eye.

The really remarkable acting in "The Game of Chess" had the rare distinction of raising a startling melodrama to the level of tragedy. Mr. Youngman's Alexis Alexandrovitch was a thoroughly consistent rendering of a different role acted with consummate subtlety and authority. At all times he was a commanding figure, aristocratic and cruel, dominating and rendering almost convincing a highly improbable situation. Mr. Maxwell brought to the role of Constantine an attractive stage presence and a high seriousness which served as a foil for the cynicism of Alexis. Pitted against the cold calculation of the Russian governor the peasant, as played by Mr. McAneny, was a veritable triumph of emotional acting which gripped the audience by its psychological truth and controlled intensity. With a sense of the fitness of things which few professionals exhibit Mr. McAneny resisted the lure of repeated curtain calls and discreetly refused to come to life to enjoy the plaudits of a genuinely enthusiastic audience.

As Robert, the waiter, Mr. Dodge bore

the brunt of "The Crimson Cocoon" which enjoyed the usual success of the obvious. Around the imperturbable waiter of the Soho restaurant, played with unflinching cleverness and a keen sense of proportion, revolved the fantastic intricacies of the farce. The anarchist and his feline wife were a startling couple admirably portrayed by Mr. Carter and Mr. Trumaine while each of the other actors made a spirited contribution to the "side-splitting" fun which delighted the audience and rounded out a well balanced program of plays. The smoothness of the performance in all respects is worthy of high commendation, especially as in the past there has frequently been a tendency to "let down" after the grand tour. In this connection credit should be given to the stage management which spared the audience the annoyance of long waits between the plays and carried out the many details of the stage arrangements without hitch or confusion.

All three plays were admirably staged with effective settings, costumes and accessories and the entire production was distinguished to a marked degree by a finish and good taste which reflects the highest credit on the superior coaching and direction of Mr. William T. Wood under whose direction the plays were produced.

tion and would not be announced until complete. The appointments of Professor William N. C. Carlton as Librarian and Guerdon N. Messer as Professor of Physical Education and Director of Athletics were also announced by Dr. Garfield, who added that Herbert H. Lehman '99 had made a gift of $5,000 a year for two years for the support of the new department of Athletics. After Dr. Garfield's speech a preliminary report was made of the Williams Memorial Endowment Fund Campaign.

Dr. Stearns, an alumnus of Amherst College and Principal of Phillips Andover Academy, was the next speaker introduced. He brought out the importance of the classics in education and declared his hope that Amherst and Williams would never abandon the old fundamental requirements.

The final speaker, Professor Asa H. Morton, gave many amusing anecdotes relating to the difficulties of a college professor's life and in addition made a further plea for the humanistic system of education. The banquet was brought to a close with the singing of "The Mountains."

score. The visitors used a five-man defense to great advantage, and their short passes were usually fast and accurate, but they seemed unable to score when they had a chance, and gained almost all of their points on long shots, the work of Harris, their center, being particularly noticeable in this regard. Williams' teamwork was flashy but not consistent, while the shooting was inaccurate, in spite of the fact that Boston University was never in the lead during the whole game.

The work of Blackmer on the offense and from the foul line, and some very close guarding by Boynton and Wilson were the outstanding features of the game from the Williams point of view. Blackmer accounted for 20 of the 30 points scored by Williams, shooting four baskets and scoring 12 points on fouls. For Boston University, Harris, center, and Pettigill, right guard, did the best work. Harris usually got the jump on both Fargo and Jayne, and was also very accurate with his long shots, four of the six baskets he shot being from the middle of the floor.

A summary and the lineups follow:

Williams	Boston University
Wilson	L.F. Cochrane
Blackmer	r.f. Feldman
Jayne	c. Harris
Pease	l.g. Freeman
Boynton	r.g. Pettigill

Final score—Williams 30, Boston University 21; Goals from the floor—Harris 6, Blackmer 4, Boynton 1, Fargo 1, Feldman 1, Jayne 1, Wightman 1, Wilson 1; goals from fouls—Blackmer 12, Feldman 7. Substitutions—Boston University—Graves for Cochrane, Lorry for Pettigill—Williams—Fargo for Jayne, Wightman for Wilson, Wilson for Pease. Referee—Young. Time—20 minute halves.

Soochow Membership Shows Big Increase

and are greatly strengthening the work which is being done by them. A community church is now holding its meetings each Sunday morning in the Association auditorium. There are 500 boy members, and the American Minister, Hon. Chas. R. Crane was so much impressed with the opportunities for service among them that he contributed $5,000 to make possible certain additions to the Boys' Building.

"The Restaurant, in which delicious American meals are to be had, is crowded with some of the best men of the city. The best people in Soochow spend a large part of each day in tea houses, so the Association is particularly fortunate in its recent purchase of a tea house on the foremost business street directly in front of the new building. This will give a large opportunity to serve these men socially under wholesome conditions. Many of the leading young men of the city have been gathered together in a civic club which now has sixty members and holds weekly social and educational meetings. Some of the members are going weekly to a match factory to make the life of the boys who are toiling there a little more worth living.

"I am sending herewith a copy of the prospectus of the new building which is very poorly printed but may indicate something of what is being done. Under separate cover, Mr. Brockman is sending you some pictures which will further help to make Soochow more real to Williams men.

"In behalf of the whole membership of the Soochow Association and the Secretaries, I wish to express most hearty thanks for your splendid support of our work. I only regret that I myself am not there to share in the great things that are happening and will continue to happen in the next few months. On my return to China three months ago, I was asked by our General Secretary, Dr. David Z. T. Yui, to come into the Student Volunteer Movement and help out during this year of very great need. How long I shall continue in this work, I cannot say. Mr. Brockman, my colleague in Soochow is to go home on furlough this June. This will leave Soochow without a foreign Secretary so that it may be necessary to send me back there at that time. However, I am deeply interested in the work in that city and I shall do all in my power to promote it even though I may be kept in this position.

"I wish it were possible for Williams to have its own representative in Soochow very soon. A Mr. Winston, Donald Winston, I believe, from Williams came through Soochow on his way around the world within the past few weeks and became very much interested in what he saw. Would it not be possible for him to come out next fall as your representative? He could settle down in Soochow and study the language in a modern language school right there, and be in touch with your work right from the beginning of his life in China.

"Will you kindly accept this letter not only as an answer to yours but as a message to the Williams Christian Association through you and through the other officers of the Association? With sincere appreciation and very best wishes."

Dr. Messer's accurate knowledge of many branches of intercollegiate sport, his past experience as director of athletics in other places, and his wide acquaintance with men in corresponding positions at other colleges are positive assurances of his success at Williams. He was born in 1887 in Berlin, Ontario, of parents temporarily absent from the United States. After graduation from the high school at Springfield he entered the Springfield international Y. M. C. A. training school and thus entered definitely upon his present sort of work. He became well known at this time as an expert in basketball, and his thesis on that subject, published by Spaulding, has become the recognized authority.

PARTITION AND PEACE IS NAVAL PRINCIPLE

Consequences of Five-Power Naval Limitation Treaty Are Outlined

By WILLIAM HARD

The five-power naval limitation treaty may be said to have the following consequences:

The United States gains for itself the prestige of a really quite considerable voluntary restricting of its own power. Able financially to out-build Britain, it contents itself with an equality with Britain, and it even for a certain length of time surrenders to Britain, a certain margin of superiority in capital ship tonnage. Able to overwhelm Japan in the Far East, it binds itself not to build capital ships exceeding Japan's in tonnage, total by more than "five to three," and it thereby deprives itself (as long as that ratio persists) of all power to take the initiative in an offensive naval war against Japan in the Far East.

The decision to accept a naval equality with Britain can be defended on other than moral grounds. Britain's coal stations and oil stations and naval bases, scattered throughout the world, are so numerous and so strategically located that in order to conduct a successful offensive naval war against a fleet possessing them and using them, we should be obliged to have a fleet certainly at least twice as large. But long before we had built a fleet twice as large as Britain's, we naturally would find ourselves in a war with Britain; because Britain manifestly would not be so stupid as to await inactively the completion of American naval plans which could destroy the British Empire. Our financial ability therefore to out-build Britain is in a way balanced by Britain's ability to stand us off through its strategic strength of position in Europe and Africa and Asia. The reasonable thing then—aside from all questions of the morals of the matter—would be to come to a compromise. The compromise of equality means that Britain cannot offensively fight us in American waters; and that we cannot offensively fight Britain in European or African or Asiatic waters.

The situation therefore becomes the following one: In the waters surrounding the body of land called North and South America, there will be one great fleet. In the waters surrounding the body of land called Europe and Africa and Asia, there will be one great fleet possessed by a set of islands lying off its extreme western shores and another fleet three-fifths as great, possessed by a set of islands lying off its extreme eastern shores. Each of these three fleets, being unlimited by the treaty as to its total tonnage of submarines and of small surface vessels and of aircraft, can make itself invincible defensively in its own region. Each of them, being strictly limited by the treaty as to its capital ships, is deprived of all effective power of offensively leaving its own region, unless new scientific discoveries should give to submarine and to small surface vessels and to aircraft a much greater radius of unsupported offensive action than they now possess.

In other words, we see a sort of partition of the seas. The United States takes the American seas. The British Empire takes the European and African and southern Asiatic seas. Japan takes the Far Eastern seas. The United States has possessions in the Japanese region. The British Empire has possessions in the Japanese region and in the American region. Japan has possessions in only its own region. This Japanese strategic advantage is counterbalanced in some degree by an accepted Japanese inferiority in capital ships. "The sea is one," said the old proverb, "and there can be only one dominant fleet." We now attempt by means of the limitation of capital ship tonnage to repeat that proverb and to say "The sea is three and it shall have three dominations on it in three invincibly defended regions."

This result shows no abandonment of the idea of the use of armed force in the world but it shows, nevertheless, a strong move toward preventing that idea from necessitating a world-wide war for the establishment of a single world-wide dominating rule. The credit for that degree of advance must be granted primarily to the United States and then incidentally to the quarrel between France and Britain regarding submarines. The limitation program of the United States curtailed the offensive power of fleets in capital ships. The quarrel between France and Britain prevented all curtailment of the defensive power of fleets in small craft under the seas and on the surface of the sea and in the air. Offense is clipped. Defense is left free and the principle achieved might seem in hope to be: "Partition and Peace."

INTRAMURAL LEAGUES START PLAY SATURDAY

Basketball Series to Begin With Eight Games—Cup Will be Awarded Winner

Play in the intramural basketball leagues will begin next Saturday afternoon when eight games will take place in the Lasell Gymnasium. Each team will be charged an entrance fee of $1.50 to defray the expense of a silver cup which will be presented to the winner by the Basketball Association.

As in previous years, any undergraduate who has not won varsity insignia in basketball or who is not now a member of the varsity squad is eligible to take part in the games. In order that all the games scheduled may be played off before the Easter vacation, a rule has been passed that no game may be postponed longer than two weeks after the date for which it was originally scheduled. Because of possible conflict with varsity practice, the games scheduled for next Saturday are subject to change by the basketball management.

The leagues each consisting of eight teams have been made up as follows: League A—Delta Kappa Epsilon, Delta Psi, Faculty, Sigma Phi, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Sigma Kappa, and Chi Psi; League B—Alpha Delta Phi, Beta Theta Pi, Commons Club, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Alpha, Theta Delta Chi, Psi Upsilon and Zeta Psi.

The following games are scheduled to be played off next Saturday afternoon: 2:00 p. m.—Delta Kappa Epsilon vs. Delta Psi; Faculty vs. Sigma Phi; 3:00 p. m.—Phi Delta Theta vs. Phi Gamma Delta; Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Chi Psi; 4:00 p. m.—Alpha Delta Phi vs. Beta Theta Pi; Commons Club vs. Delta Upsilon; 5:00 p. m.—Theta Delta Chi vs. Zeta Psi; Kappa Alpha vs. Psi Upsilon.

thoritative treatise on the game. From 1909 to 1911 he gained his first experience as Director of Physical Education for the public schools at Birmingham, Alabama. At the Worcester Academy, Worcester, where he served as Professor of Physical Education from 1911 to 1917, he reorganized the system of athletics and was instrumental in having a new gymnasium built there. His next position was that of general inspector of Physical Education for New York State, which he filled at intervals between the years 1917 and 1920. Dr. Messer served for a year during the war as a physical educator in the Army. Since 1920 he has been Professor of Physical Education at R. P. I.

The plan of general reorganization of athletics at Williams into a unified system under control of the Athletic Council was decided upon by the trustees on October 6. The Athletic Council will continue to function as the final authority in connection with physical education and athletics, but will be headed by Dr. Messer, who will also serve as chairman of the Faculty Committee on Athletics. It is understood that Dr. Messer will act in close cooperation with the major coaches and will in addition assume some of the duties formerly taken care of by the Graduate Treasurer. The new athletic director will at once take up the development of intra-mural and inter-class sports and will pursue a vigorous policy in connection with the development of minor sport teams.

PRESENT PETITIONS CONCERNING AUSTRIA

Seek to Delay Payment of Debt to United States—Urged by Austrian Crisis

Due to the inability of Austria to meet her debts to the United States and to the fact that Austria is on the verge of starvation, resolutions have been distributed by the W. C. A. among all the eating houses in College petitioning Congress to enact special and immediate legislation for the suspension of Austria's debt to the United States for at least 20 years. These resolutions are to be signed and one sent to each of the following men: Henry Cabot Lodge, David I. Walsh, and Allen G. Treadway, Washington, D. C.

This action has been taken as a result of the failure of the Senate Finance Committee to report the Foreign Funding Bill back to Congress. On December 12, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon advanced objections to the bill on the ground that certain of its provisions would react harshly on those nations whose financial status might be regarded as less favorable than that of others. As it stands now the bill may not be reported for some time and its passage and application are certain to be delayed for a considerable period. A most dangerous situation is created for Austria by this delay. Her ability to supply her starving population with food stuffs for this winter depends on immediate action of the creditor powers in postponing the date of payments of the credits advanced for relief purposes two years ago and granting priority on a new loan. The other European countries with the exception of Italy have agreed to subordinate their claims on Austria to this new loan. Usually the foremost in all philanthropic work, the United States in this case is holding back the movement in as much as Italy has declared herself in favor of the loan provided the United States agrees.

The United States is the key note to the situation. Immediate action by her will save the lives of the starving Austrian population. For this reason, the W. C. A. points out the resolutions must be signed and sent to Congress at once if they are to be effective.

PURPLE TO MEET AMHERST TONIGHT

Williams Will Face Old Rival Here In Fifth Contest of Basketball Season

COMPARATIVE SCORES ARE AGAINST VISITORS

Amherst Has Lost, by Large Margin, Three of Four Games Already Played

Williams is a slight favorite in the fifth basketball game of the season which will be played against Amherst in the Lasell Gymnasium at 8 p. m. this evening.

Although each team has lost three of the four games already played, Williams was defeated only by a margin of but two points in each, whereas Amherst was completely outclassed by Trinity, 37-23, by Harvard, 48-27, and by M. I. T., 25-15. The victory of the Purple quintet over Boston University, 30-21, shows a small additional advantage over the visitors, whose only victory of the season was gained by nosing out Clark College, 29-27. The fact that both of the teams that will clash tonight are accustomed to playing on small courts serves to balance the odds somewhat, and the visitors attribute their defeat at the hands of M. I. T. in a large measure to the size of the floor, which necessitated an extensive dribbling game, perfected by the Boston engineers, but entirely foreign to the Purple and White quintet.

Eames, Captain Elliott, and Wood, at right forward, left forward, and left guard respectively, have all done excellent work, in scoring for the visiting five. Wood, especially, though primarily a defensive man, has caged difficult field goals on several occasions, and has shown considerable skill in his regular department. Captain Elliott has been exceedingly effective in scoring from the foul line, and Eames has shown ability in swift offensive attacks. Lamberton, a sophomore at center, shows promise.

Commenting upon the work of the Williams squad during this week, Coach Shumaker reports that the men have displayed a very creditable brand of basketball. The practice on Monday afternoon was somewhat slow, but the scrimmage on Tuesday showed the Purple quintet in the good form that has prevailed throughout the practice of the week. Captain Wilson is being tried in a forward position with Blackmer in an effort to develop a better balanced combination, though a trial of this plan in the game with Boston University failed to show an improvement in the work of the team. Pease will fill Wilson's regular place at guard, but the line-up will otherwise remain unchanged.

EIGHT GAMES START INTRAMURAL SERIES

Silver Cup Will be Awarded Team Winning Championship of Two Leagues

Unless varsity basketball practice should interfere and necessitate a change in the present program, the Intramural Basketball Series will start today at 2.00 p. m. in the Lasell Gymnasium, when the first round of eight games is scheduled to be played. To the final winner of the series, the championship team of the two leagues, a silver trophy will be presented by the Basketball Association.

As is the customary arrangement, all men who have not previously won varsity basketball insignia or who are not, at the time of the intramural games, members of the varsity basketball squad, are eligible to play. It is hoped that the entire series will be completed by the Easter recess, and the Association urges that as few games as possible be postponed, in order to facilitate the elimination of the greatest number of teams on scheduled time. To encourage the prompt playing of the games, an additional proviso has been made in the regulations of the series to the effect that no game may be postponed longer than two weeks after the date on which it was originally scheduled to be played. To cover the expense of the silver cup which

'EPHRAIM WILLIAMS' SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Professor Buffinton Presents
Life of Founder in Fourth
Tuesday Lecture

Emphasizing the fact that the founder of the College owed his military and political position more to his intimate acquaintance with influential men of his time than to any remarkable ability of his own, Professor Buffinton read a paper entitled "Ephraim Williams" as the fifth number of the Tuesday lecture course held in the Thompson Physical Laboratory last Tuesday afternoon. The speaker clearly outlined the chief points in the founder's life, dwelling particularly upon the fact that his fame rests not so much upon his military career as it does upon the success of the "free school" which was founded in 1785 in accordance with the provision of his will.

Professor Buffinton first outlined the sources of information about "Ephraim Williams" showing how until 30 years after his death no attempt whatsoever was made to find out anything about his life. In 1801, Ebenezer Fitch, first president of the College, wrote a very brief account of his life, but it was not till Professor Arthur Perry published his Origins of Williams-town in 1894 that we have a really well-balanced account of the chief points of the founder's life.

"For us who bear the name of Williams men," said the speaker, "the study of the life of the founder of our College will ever prove an interesting subject."

Ephraim Williams was not primarily a soldier, certainly not a mercenary soldier, not primarily a business man dealing in lands, but a frontiersman who gave his life in defense of the frontier from the French and Indian menace.

First and last he was a man of adventure.

"The fact," said Prof. Buffinton, "that Ephraim Williams was acquainted with men in authority in civil and military service proved to him a great aid in his advancement for he was constantly in close and intimate touch with those in positions of influence. In 1745, for instance, he was placed in command of a line of forts reaching from the Connecticut River to the Hudson although up to this time he had had very little military experience, certainly not enough to warrant his appointment to such an important position. This appointment he received through Governor (Continued on Third Page.)

Battery Work Will Start

Battery practice for candidates for the varsity baseball team will commence in the batting cage on February 15, according to an announcement made by Captain Hoyt at a meeting of the last fall's squad Monday evening in Jesup Hall. Coach Coombs is expected to arrive in Williams-town about February 25 and will call out all remaining candidates on March 1. It is expected that "Chief" Bender, former Philadelphia Athletics pitcher, will be in Williamstown for the first few days of the season to aid Coach Coombs.

MAXIMILIAN PILZER DELIGHTS AUDIENCE

Violinist Shows Rare Mastery of Technique in Varied, Well-Chosen Program

MR. MOORE ALSO APPLAUDED

Shows Exceptional Power Both as Accompanist and in Rendering of Solos

Exhibiting a superb mastery of violin technique in a program of famous compositions, Mr. Maximilian Pilzer gave a recital before a large audience last Thursday evening in Chapin Hall as the fourth number of the Thompson course of Entertainments. He was assisted by Mr. Francis Moore, pianist, who, in addition to displaying remarkable skill as an accompanist, showed exceptional genius as a soloist.

In the first selection, Cesar Franck's Sonata A major, the art with which the two musicians maintained harmony and rhythm was admirably demonstrated. The coordination of the two instruments was perfect, each contributing its share to produce one effect, each balancing and strengthening the other. Mr. Pilzer's great skill in brilliant and florid music was evident at the opening of the recital. Intricate and difficult arpeggios, runs and trills were abundant in almost all the selections and all were rendered with exceptional finish and power.

Mr. Moore delivered three piano solos with an encore as the third number of the program. Rachmaninoff's Prelude G Minor and two of Liszt's most difficult compositions were excellent material on which to demonstrate Mr. Moore's dexterity as a soloist.

The final selections by Mr. Pilzer were of an exceptionally brilliant character and such as to call for unusual artistry in rendition. The light, swift strains of Chopin's Minute Waltz contrasted well with Pilzer's own Berceuse of tenderness and sweetness. Kreisler's La Gitana in its wild nature called for great interpretative art, and Matheson's Air G string showed the violinist's keen perception of the artistic in dignity and majesty the theme.

The final number of the program, Bazzini's Ronde des Lutins, was the proper culmination for such a series of fancy and intricate compositions. It was delivered with all the delicacy and finish of a virtuoso possessing a technique which is found only in the masters of the violin.

The entire program is as follows:

1. Sonata A major Cesar Franck
Allegretto ben Moderato Allegro
Recitative Fantasia
Allegretto poco mosso

Bianchi and S. Richmond Elected by Senior Class

Albert W. Bianchi, of New York City, was elected 1922 class baseball manager, and Charles S. Richmond, of Chatham, N. J., was chosen class singing leader at a meeting of the fourth-year men in Jesup Hall Wednesday evening. At the same time Youngman '22, business manager of this year's Class Book, announced that a Junior competition will commence in the near future for the business managership of next year's publication.

Ewing '22, editor of the Class Book, also announced that questionnaires will be distributed, probably next Tuesday, to the seniors at the various fraternity and eating houses, and that replies to these must be mailed to him before Saturday, February 18. By the same date each member of the Senior Class must secure and send in two personal write-ups. These accounts, which should range from 180 to 230 words in length, are to be written by two separate men and should be as distinctive and original as possible.

DISCUSSES CHANGES IN ELECTION SYSTEM

Student Council Also Acts Upon Petitions and School Committee Plan

Plans to take the nomination of candidates for varsity athletic managerships from the hands of the Sophomore Class and to reorganize the Undergraduate Schools Committee were discussed at a meeting of the Student Council held last Thursday evening in Jesup Hall. These and other matters of importance will be presented to the Student Body for ratification at a college meeting to be held next week.

Under the provisions of a motion passed by the Council, the Undergraduate Schools Committee will undergo reorganization, having a chairman elected to preside over a committee composed of the presidents of the several school clubs. In order to perpetuate this form of organization, the committee will select three juniors, who will be voted upon by the College, the one receiving the greatest number of votes to be chairman of the committee next year, and to be responsible for the performance of his duties to the Student Council.

The plan for the change in managerial election systems, though not definitely acted upon, provides for the choosing by either the Athletic or by the Student Council of three men to be voted on by the college instead of five by the Sophomore Class as at present. It was further voted by the Student Council that the man receiving the second highest number of votes for the varsity baseball managership from the class of 1924 be chosen assistant soccer manager to act next Fall.

Permission was granted Youngman '22, business manager of the 1922 Class Book, to conduct a competition for members of the present Junior Class for the managership of the 1923 edition. The manager will be chosen from the squad of competitors by the members of the present 1922 Class Book board.

A vote of thanks was tendered by the Council to the 1924 Prom Committee for their efficient and commendable management of the Sophomore Prom on February 3. The petition of the Delta Upsilon fraternity which held no houseparty during the midyear recess to hold a one-night dance on the evening of February 21 was granted.

Perry '18 to Address W. C. A.

Edward T. Perry '18, former President of the W. C. A. will address the regular meeting of the Association tomorrow evening at 7.30 p. m. in Jesup Hall. His subject has not yet been announced.

At present Perry is studying at the Hartford Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn. In behalf of the drive for Armenian relief conducted a year ago last fall, he spoke at Williams on his experiences during his year of work on the American Relief Commission in the Near East.

While at Williams, Perry, besides being President of the Williams Christian Association, was managing editor of The Record and of the Handbook and a member of the No-Deal and Honor System Committees.

WILLIAMS SEXTET DEFEATS AMHERST

Hard-fought Game Results in Victory Through Superior Team-work

CLEVER WORK BY LOWES IS FEATURE OF CONTEST

Amherst Skaters Show Individual Brilliance, but Team Play
Lack Power

Williams continued the winning streak in hockey by defeating Amherst last Thursday afternoon on Cole Field by the score of 2 to 0 in a fast and close game. A rather noticeable slump in form of the Purple sextet was evidenced, the one redeeming feature being the work of Lowes at goal, but on the other hand Amherst put up a game fight and was never far inferior to the winning team.

The home team appeared on the ice with a changed lineup, Lowes playing goal in place of Richmond, who at present is sick, and Stephenson '24 starting at center in place of Stephenson '23, who recently pulled a tendon in his leg, and will be unable to play for a few more days. The loss of Richmond from the line-up was amply made up for by Lowes, who played a wonderful game at all times, making numerous stops, many of them of a brilliant nature, and often checking what seemed sure Amherst tallies. Stephenson also performed very creditably, both on the offense and defense, although he missed a few opportunities to score. Captain Becket, as usual, was one of the stars of the game, carrying the puck repeatedly down the ice, and only several fine stops by Plimpton, the Amherst goal, kept him from scoring. However, his pass to Clark, who was directly in front of the cage accounted for the first tally of the game.

The line of the home team was not up to its usual standard, and did not work together as it had in previous contests, while the defensive play of the team was as good as could be wanted. Many opportunities were lost by the Purple to take shots at the goal, and in direct contrast to this was the way the Amherst sextet made the most of every chance. Taken as a whole, the game was very fast and well played, and in spite of the fact that the Williams team was below par, it was still a shade better than the visitors.

Capt. Worcester, at center, and Davidson, at right wing, were the best performers for Amherst, especially the latter, who frequently skated the length of the rink only to be stopped by the Williams defense. The general speed of the Purple and White team was clearly shown by the fact that they were the first aggregation

SWIMMERS TO FACE DARTMOUTH SATURDAY

Opponents Known to Have Strong Team—First Meet of Year For Williams

Ten Purple swimmers led by Capt. Jones are to take the trip to Hanover next Saturday to meet the Dartmouth team in their new natorium. The contest is to form a part of the Dartmouth Mid-Winter Carnival program.

No basis for comparison of the two teams is available as this will be the first meet of the season for Williams, but Dartmouth is known to have an unusually strong combination this year and in her first meet of the season, with Springfield, shattered three tank records.

The probable entrants for the Green are: relay—Ellis, Dempsey, Bolles, Taylor; 50 yd. dash—Bolles; 100 yd. dash—Taylor, Eiche; 220 yd. dash—Eiche, Carlisle; plunge—Bird, Farnsworth; dives—Weed. Captain Bird is a strong performer for the team, having plunged the length of the 60 foot tank in the Springfield meet in 24.25 seconds. Eiche in the 220 yd. dash made the remarkable time of 2m 38s.

For the Purple the entrants are as follows: relay—Luedcke, Sanford, Healy, Kerr; 50 yd. dash—Sanford, Healy; 100 yd. dash—Miller, Olmsted; 220 yd. dash—Kerr, Wilcox; plunge—Captain Jones; dives—Rounds, Webb.

Unworked Mines

Considered from the detached point of view, one of the most amusing things on the Williams campus is the horde of Prep School Clubs. Ten or more in number, they occupy more space in the Guttemen than does football. Indeed, that would seem to be their chief raison d'être and virtue, if it may be called a virtue.

On the other hand, there is the need, now fully recognized by the Student Council, of keeping Williams in close touch with the many preparatory schools from which men are drawn. The obvious agencies for this work are the clubs in question, those whose chief duties at present consist in holding a meeting to elect officers and arranging a banquet once a year. If new life and real organization can be inculcated into these bodies, there will be no need for further complicating the already over-burdened extra-curriculum field.

The proposed plan seems quite feasible. Proper prestige and sufficient authority will be given the Preparatory School Chairman by placing his office in the list of college elections. At Amherst and Princeton, for example, that office is one of the most coveted on the campus. In making up the personnel of a nominating committee, it is difficult to conceive of one better qualified than a body composed of heads of all school clubs, men who have been a year in office and know the qualifications necessary for the position.

The possibilities and vistas of such service which are bound to open up before the future fortunate incumbent of such an office are countless. He will be responsible for organizing his committee, composed of the heads of school clubs, into an efficient, business-like unit, constantly at work spreading the name and fame of the College wherever it should be known. Deputations to the respective schools, publicity in the school papers, and inter-scholastic meets and contests of various kinds attracting the attention of preparatory schools to Williamstown, are but a few of the many worth-while fields into which the Committee may venture.

As a matter of general practice, the latter part of the spring would seem to be the best time for holding the necessary college election. The need at present, however, is for immediate action in order that the Committee may start functioning promptly. As soon as the student body signifies its approval of the creation of such an office, an election should be held for the position, preferably not later than the football managership elections which occur the last week in February.

Graphically "Speaking"

Far be it from the benevolent and kindly mind of THE RECORD to injure in any way by the printed word one of its sister publications at Williams! We aim always to co-operate and to assist. But a paper, as a man, cannot see its ideals shattered without at least a word of protest. The last issue of The Graphic, that estimable publication to which we have always turned as our model of literary perfection, rouses us from our silence and impels us to offer a word of friendly criticism.

Once, in the months gone by, another critic suggested that The Graphic employ a proof-reader, and his words of wisdom were taken amiss. One only needs to glance at the last issue of The Graphic to see that such good advice produced a result which was "negligible." But we of THE RECORD, being "optimists," once again "beseech" The Graphic to mend its ways, and to search for that humble but necessary animal, the proof-reader, whose keen eye might detect the really glaring mistakes in spelling and punctuation which have crept into its columns.

Although we lay no claim to the title of literati, and make no pretence that we are fit judges, the literary material in the last Graphic seemed to us of good quality if somewhat scanty, of too high a grade to be so rudely marred by mistakes which are as needless as they are prominent. If we look at the question from another angle, we realize that The Graphic goes to alumni and friends of Williams, to other colleges and to preparatory schools as the literary representative of the College, carrying with it in a very real way the reputation and prestige of the College. We do not judge The Graphic by its last issue, but of late the tendency has been towards the standard of the last issue, which was unworthy of Williams.

We suggest, then, and it is rather to help than to injure, that in the future The Graphic eliminate unnecessary mistakes from its columns by systematic and careful reading of proof. Also, we wonder whether more literary talent could not be unearthed and the volume of material thus increased if the Board of The Graphic, both as a board and as individuals, undertook a positive campaign for such material, instead of adopting a rather passive attitude of hope that inspiration and articles will come unasked.

50 Years Ago at Williams

Two hundred Doctors of Divinity, Editors, Judges and members of Congress—all graduates of Williams College, met last night at Delmonico's and ate a big reunion dinner.

Hon. E. C. Benedict, our silver-haired Senator elect, in place of "Thunderbolt" Norton, presided. By his side sat William Cullen Bryant, of the Post; Dr. Prime and C. A. Stoddard of the Observer; Henry M. Field of the Evangelist; George Perry, of the Home Journal; Washington Gladden of the Independent, and the following well-known gentlemen: General Garfield of Ohio; Governor Washburn of Massachusetts; Chief Justice Field, etc.

"The Williams Review" advertises New York divorce lawyers. Is the Review anticipating the advent of the "coming woman?" Cap and Gown.

The above puff was paid for by the same firm. What will sharp advertisers resort to next?

The following has been added to the blue laws of South Hadley:—All young ladies visiting Amherst will be deprived of their pocket-handkerchiefs, immediately on entering the town, by the accompanying teacher.

'Ephraim Williams'Subject of Address

or Stoddard, a distant relative and great friend of his. Due to the outside help he had in both political and military ways, the speaker declared that it could not be fairly said that Ephraim Williams was a self-made man.

But by no means all of Colonel Williams' life was spent in military activity. While he was a youth his family moved to Stockbridge where his father soon became the leading man of the town, and when he grew older Ephraim assumed his father's position in that settlement. The principal source of his income was the buying and selling of land, and from this business he amassed the money which resulted later in the foundation of the College bearing his name. "From his transactions in land," said the speaker, "it appears that Ephraim Williams was a capitalist, a promoter on a small scale."

In summing up the points of the founder's character, Professor Buffinton said, "Ephraim Williams possessed native endowments which fitted him better for a political than a military career. He possessed to a remarkable degree the ability to win over men of all classes. He had a taste for books, and often lamented the want of a liberal education." But in spite of his generosity, his benevolence, and the other amiable qualities of his character, in spite of the boldness and courage of his military career, the fame of Ephraim Williams rests principally upon the success of the College of which he was the founder.

Williams SextetDefeats Amherst

to oppose Williams this year who were not out-skated.

Meeting its first real opposition of the year, the Williams sextet found difficulty in getting started, the first few minutes of play being nothing more than a rough scrimmage, but the team soon found itself, and was able to combat the playing of its opponents. Flashes were shown on both sides, and sometimes it seemed that there would be more scoring, but the defensive work of each team was too strong.

Starting with a rough scrimmage, the game soon became better when both teams settled down into their stride, and the improvement in the team work became more noticeable, the puck going back and forth from one territory to the other. Exceptional stops by both goal guards marked the first half, and it was not until the end of that period that Capt. Becket carried the puck down to the Amherst goal and passed it to Clark, who made the shot. The Amherst team started off the second half with a rush and seemed determined to tie the score, only to meet better opposition from the ultimate winners than shown during the previous period. Rowse accounted for the second and last score of the game towards the middle of this half when he skated the length of the rink, and eased the puck on a difficult shot from the sideboards. Several substitutions were made during this period, Pressprich and Hemphill going in for Clark and Rowse, respectively, while Kingman and Sylvester were used by Amherst for Hunter and Lawson. The game ended with Amherst trying to score, while the Purple was content with holding her ancient rival to a score that meant her defeat.

The line-ups and summary are as follows:

Williams	Amherst
Clark	Hunter
Rowse	Davidson
Stephenson	e. Worcester (Capt.)
Buell	Lawson
Becket (Capt.)	r. d. Allison
Lowe	g. Plimpton

Substitutions—Williams: Pressprich for Clark, Hemphill for Rowse. Amherst: Kingman for Hunter, Sylvester for Lawson. Individual scores: Clark 1, Rowse 1. Referee—Peacock of Pittsfield. Timekeeper—Prindle. Time of periods—20 minutes.

Students' Tours Organized

A group of four International Students' Tours to foreign countries, membership in which is open to students and instructors in American colleges and universities, has been organized for the summer of 1922 under the auspices of the Institute of International Education. Each of the tours, in addition to being under the general sponsorship of the Institute, is also under the special auspices of the appropriate international society in this country, as follows: Students' Tour to Great Britain, The English-Speaking Union; Students' Tour to France, Federation de l'Alliance Francaise; Students' Tour to Italy, The Italy American Society; Students' Tour to The Scandinavian Countries, The American-Scandinavian Foundation.

The details of administration are being handled by Mr. Irwin Smith, Director of the International Students' Tours, 30 East 42d Street, New York City, to whom all inquiries should be addressed.

Economic Tour Planned

An extensive tour of the industrial, commercial and financial centers of England, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany and Switzerland is being organized and directed by the American Express Company. This tour is open to the business man, instructor or student and it will be under the direction of experienced business men and economists. The purpose of the tour is to widen the perspective of the American business man, and to establish closer contact with European commercial and financial interests.

The tour, which will take sixty-five days, will cover the most important commercial and industrial centers of England, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany and Switzerland. The days will be filled with excursions to harbors, banks, factories, Chambers of Commerce and Stock and Produce Exchanges, and many of the evenings will be taken up by conferences and lectures conducted by representatives of the American Express Company, by local business and government officials, and by members of the faculties of local universities.

Track Practice Held Daily

Practice for the Purple track team this week has consisted entirely of daily routine work in starts and sprints on the board track. The squad reporting has been slightly enlarged and consists now of about 40 men. All but distance men take about a quarter of a mile run at the end of the workout and the others finish off with a slightly longer run. This sort of practice is to be continued until weather conditions are more favorable.

218th Recital Presented by Mr. Salter Wednesday

Normal Snowfall and Cold Periods Mark Past Month

Professor Millham's summary of the meteorological observations at the Williams College Station shows that the month of January was cold but about normal in snowfall. The average temperature for the month was 18.6 degrees, which is considerably below the normal temperature of 23.1 degrees.

The highest temperature during the month was 46 degrees on the fifth and the lowest was 12 degrees below zero on the morning of the 26th. Neither of these temperatures is at all extreme or unusual, inasmuch as the highest and lowest temperatures ever observed during January for the last twenty years are 63 degrees and 24 degrees below zero respectively. The rather low average temperature for the past month has been surpassed four times in the last 20 years, the record being held by the famous January of 1918 with the average of only 11.5 degrees for 31 days. The mercury fell to zero or below nine times and there was an unbroken succession of six zero nights from January 23 to the 28th with the minimum temperatures of 2, 6, 8, 12, and 10 degrees below zero, one night being exactly zero.

The total precipitation (rainfall and water-equivalent of snowfall) was 1.56 inches which is somewhat below the normal fall of 2.43 inches. The total snowfall was 14 inches which is rather close to the normal figure of 11.3 inches, and there were nine clear, 11 partly cloudy, and 11 cloudy days during January. Rain or snow fell on nine days.

Dean Charles R. Brown of Yale to Lead Chapel

Charles R. Brown, D.D., Dean of the School of Divinity at Yale University, will conduct the morning service tomorrow in the Thompson Memorial Chapel. For many years Dr. Brown has preached regularly at Williams, speaking last year at a W. C. A. meeting on "Religion as a Fundamental Interest in Life."

Dean Brown is a famous authority on Biblical literature, having made a trip through Egypt and Palestine in 1897 for the study of that subject. He has lectured on ethics and similar topics at Leland Stanford, Yale, Cornell, and Columbia Universities, and is the author of many books, among which are the following: The Main Points, the Cap and Gown, The Young Man's Affairs, The Modern Man's Religion, and The Quest of Life. For fifteen years before his acceptance of the position of Dean of the Yale School of Divinity in 1911 Dean Brown held the pastorate of the First Congregational Church of Oakland, Cal.

Sophomores Elect Fenner and Archer to Positions

Election of Charles M. Fenner, of Meriden, Conn., as 1924 baseball manager and of Warren I. Archer, of Lee, as singing leader took place Thursday evening in Jesup Hall at a meeting of the sophomore class. Heywood '24, president of the class, announced that there would be a meeting later in the month to select the candidates who will appear on the college ballot for the managerships of class football, hockey, and swimming.

Sophomore Debaters Picked

Craig '24 was chosen captain of the Sophomore debating team, and Herron, Wishard, and Chase '24 were picked for the members at a meeting held last Wednesday afternoon in Jesup Hall. The debate between the sophomore and freshman teams, will be held in the latter part of the present month in Jesup Hall, and the question will be "Resolved: that the United States should grant the Philippine Islands their independence within five years." The first year team will be captained by Sterling '25, and will consist of Fiske and Keep '25 in addition, with Dugan as alternate.

To Discuss Nervous System

"The Role of the Nervous System," a further discussion of the Mind and Body Problem which has been the main topic of the last two meetings of the Philosophical Union, will be the subject of a talk by Dr. Frederick H. Howard at the next meeting of the organization to be held Monday evening at 7.30 p. m. in the Common Room. The usual informal discussion will follow.

Stadium Capacities Varied

American universities which have completed athletic stadiums within the decade, or have provided for their construction, include California, Ohio State, Yale, Illinois, Stanford, Chicago, Washington, Princeton, Kansas, Pittsburgh, and the City College of New York. Of these, Yale's stadium cost $100,000 and seats 70,000; Washington spent $600,000 and can seat 60,000; California is spending $900,000 to seat 60,000; Illinois is planning a combined stadium and amphitheater to cost $2,500,000; and Ohio State raised $1,250,000. No stadium yet completed has been large enough to meet the immediate demand for seats. These facts, together with the recent discussion by President Lowell of Harvard University, on the relationship of intercollegiate athletics to the university, indicate two opposite trends which are likely to clash in the future.

Choose Varsity Debaters

Schauffer and Terry '22, and Helfrich '24 were chosen to represent Williams in debates with Hamilton and Syracuse on February 24 and 25 respectively at a meeting of the Adelphe Union held last Monday evening in Jesup Hall. Trials will be held in the near future, for the position of alternate in these debates, which will take place at Utica and Syracuse.

SEXTET TO FACE YALE AND AMHERST ON TRIP

Williams Favored to Repeat Former Victory Over Purple and White Team

W. STEPHENSON INJURED

Yale Weakened by Loss of Shiras, Speiden, and O'Hearn—Reid Star of Blue Team

Williams will face the Amherst and Yale hockey teams Tuesday and Wednesday respectively at Amherst and New Haven. The Purple sextet showed a noticeable slump in the last contest but it is expected that they will have regained their usual form for this trip.

Stephenson '23 has an injured leg, but hopes to be able to play in the Amherst game and will undoubtedly play against Yale. It is probable that J. Stephenson will play left forward with Clark playing center and in the Yale game with W. Stephenson holding down the other offensive position. Loves has shown remarkable ability at goal and will capably take the place of Richmond, who is sick. Buell and Becket will fill the defensive positions and should provide a hard combination for the opponents to solve. The team has worked out constantly for the last week and is in perfect condition with the exception of W. Stephenson.

The Purple is favored to win the Amherst game, having won the first contest 2-0. Thus far, the Purple and White have lost five games and won three. Williams beat Springfield 8-1 while Amherst defeated them in two games, 5-0 and 2-0. Amherst also overcame Bates 3-1 and lost to Dartmouth 2-0; M. A. C., 1-0; Cornell, 4-0; and Hamilton, 2-1.

Amherst has a strong team with a star in Plimpton, the goal tender, who has shown unusual ability this season. The team has been shifted around several times and the exact line-up for the Williams game is not definite. Worcester and Davidson have proved themselves a strong combination on the ice as offensive men, and when Worcester played defense, Hunter has taken his place and has been a good running mate for Davidson.

'CAP AND BELLS' ON TRIP OVER WEEK-END

Success Previously Made by Club Repeated at Glens Falls and Saratoga

Living up to the excellent name made for itself on its Christmas trip and at the recent houseparty performance, Cap and Bells entertained large audiences in Glens Falls, N. Y. last Friday evening and in Saratoga Springs, N. Y. on Saturday afternoon and evening. Ryland, The Game of Chess, and The Crimson Coconut again comprised the program of the performances.

Having improved their interpretation of the various roles through the experience gained on the Christmas tour, the members of the casts acted with an ability which astonished their audiences. As in previous performances, The Game of Chess was the best received of the three productions, its melodramatic intensity making it especially pleasing.

The Parish House, where the plays were presented in Glens Falls, was filled to its capacity for the Cap and Bells performance, which was followed by dancing until 2 a. m., the music for which was furnished by the College orchestra. Kellogg '22 was the local manager in Glens Falls.

Attempting the first matinee performance that has been given by the Club this year, Cap and Bells gave the plays on Saturday afternoon in Skidmore Hall for the benefit of the Skidmore School of Arts Endowment Fund. The shows were put on in the same auditorium in the evening, and were followed by dancing until 11:30 p. m.

All those who took the Cap and Bells trip were received with extreme hospitality by the alumni and friends of Williams, who generously opened their homes and entertained the members of the casts and the managers. The cordiality of the people of Glens Falls and Saratoga Springs contributed in a large measure to the success met with on the recent trip.

Prof. J. N. Cru to Speak Upon 'Courage and Fear'

"Courage and Fear in Battle according to Tradition and in the Late War" will be the subject of Professor J. N. Cru in the fifth number of the Tuesday Lecture Course to take place this afternoon at 4:30 p. m. in the Thompson Physical Laboratory. Professor Cru obtained leave of absence from College in 1914 to join the French Army, serving with a fighting unit as corporal and sergeant from August, 1914, to February, 1917. After being transferred to liaison duty first with the British and later with the American Army, he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant and served with the French High Commission at Washington, 1918-1919, returning to Williams in 1919.

M. I. T. AND HARVARD ARE NEXT OPPONENTS

To Face Purple Quintet in Boston on Thursday and Friday Respectively

CRIMSON MORE DANGEROUS

Has Won 10 of 15 Games Played in Present Season—Defeated M. I. T. 31-27

Encouraged by the recent victory over Amherst and strengthened by a five-day rest, the Williams basketball team will face the powerful M. I. T. and Harvard quintets at Cambridge on Thursday and Friday respectively. Under the tutelage of Coach Wachter, Harvard has developed a strong aggregation which has been unusually effective in shooting baskets from the middle of the floor.

This is M. I. T.'s second year of varsity basketball, and a fairly strong five has been developed by Coach Allen. The Engineers opened the season by losing to Worcester Tech 43-18 in a game marked by the lack of teamwork on the part of M. I. T. The next games resulted in defeats at the hands of Clark University, 22-20, and M. A. C., 22-9. Tufts lost to the Engineers 35-25 with Tonon and Blood starring for the winners, and in the following contest they defeated the B. U. five, 34-15, as compared with a 30-21 victory by Williams over the same teams. Harvard won from M. I. T. 31 to 27 in a contest marked by a final rally by Tech which threatened to give them the victory. Showing an unusual change in form and an ability formerly dormant, the Tech team rolled up 20 points to 18 for the strong M. A. C. quintet. Storb starred for the Engineers, excelling in passwork and in shooting. On Feb. 1, the M. I. T. five defeated the New Hampshire State team 26 to 20 and on Feb. 3 they beat Amherst 25-15 in a loosely played game in which they outclassed their opponents.

Tonon, Blood and Storb are the stars of the M. I. T. aggregation although in recent games Davidson has been substituting for Tonon. The team is strong on the defense, and Williams will be at a great disadvantage due to the large size of the court in the Walker gymnasium, which necessitates a larger amount of dribbling than is called for in Lasell gymnasium.

Williams will probably start the same line-up as that used against Amherst. Coach Shanahan is fairly well satisfied with the present combination and is unlikely to make any radical changes. Kellogg played well against Amherst and will possibly substitute as forward during the games. The line-ups are as follows:

WILLIAMS	M. I. T.
Blackmer	r. f. Davidson,
	Tonon, Bates
Wightman, Hyde	l. f. Storb, Boyer
Fargo, Jayne	e. Coleman, Bretting
Wilson (Capt.)	r. g. Hubbard (Capt.)
Boynton, Pease	l. g. Blood, Cook

With a record of 10 victories in the 15 games played to date, Harvard appears to be one of the strongest teams to be faced by the Williams basketball team this season. Coach Wachter's men have steadily improved in teamwork and scoring.

Junior Meeting Postponed

Owing to a lack of sufficient numbers, the junior class meeting scheduled for last Friday evening for the purpose of electing a class singing leader and baseball manager was postponed. A meeting will be held some time this week.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF COLLEGE TONIGHT

Honor System Committee Will Make Semi-Annual Report—Offers New Plans

SUGGESTED BY COUNCIL

Changes in Managerial Nominations Proposed—School Committee Reorganized

Two resolutions concerning the reorganization of the Undergraduate Schools Committee and a new system of managerial nominations will be brought up before the student body for ratification at a College meeting tonight in Jesup Hall at 7:30. At the same time the semi-annual report of the Honor System Committee, including all violations of the Honor System together with the action taken in each case, will be read.

Under the provisions of a motion passed by the Student Council at its last meeting, the Chairman of Undergraduate Schools Committee, an organization composed of the presidents of the various school clubs, will be elected by the student body at a regularly scheduled election. According to this plan, the committee will choose annually three members of the Junior Class, from which number the College will elect the Chairman for the ensuing year who will be responsible for the performance of his duties to the Student Council.

The plan for the change in managerial nominations provides for the selection of three candidates by the Student or Athletic Councils instead of five by the Sophomore Class as at present. The manager as usual is to be elected by the College.

Perhaps enough has already been said, in public and private, concerning the technical errors in the January number of the Graphic to bring about a reform; certainly the glaring inaccuracies in spelling and punctuation are distracting to such a degree that the subject matter is often lost sight of. Nor is there any contribution of such distinctive merit as to compel attention, unless perhaps it be Mr. Cobb's Letters from Labrador. In spite of their occasional pedagogic information these have the genuine ring of personal letters from a friend who sees the details that individualize his experience and who writes with a zest for his work that is infectious. "The Peddler" is a vivid sketch of village life on the Bosphorus with touches that mark it as the work of one more intimately acquainted with his subject than a casual tourist could be. Mr. North's story is better than the title or the Purple Cow illustration at the end would suggest. His theme of conventionality versus art is perennially interesting, but the dual character of the girl as ballet dancer eager for

SHAW'S 'CANDIDA' TO BE PRESENTED FRIDAY

Shakespeare Playhouse to Offer Next Thompson Course Performance

WORK OF COMPANY PRAISED

Performances Hold High Reputation in Many Colleges Throughout Country

"Candida," by Bernard Shaw, will be produced by the well-known Shakespeare Playhouse actors of New York next Friday evening at 8:15 in Chapin Hall under the auspices of the Thompson Course. As in the other numbers of this course, the public is invited, but until the beginning of the performance the central part of the hall will be reserved for members of the student body and the faculty.

The Shakespeare Playhouse has made many visits to colleges in all parts of the country and has been received with flattering praise by both the public and the press. The company was founded in 1918 by Mr. Frank McEntee for the purpose of forming a group or association of artists and finished performers to stage from time to time not only Shakespearean plays, but also the best of modern drama. During the past three years productions of such distinction have been presented in New York City under the direction of Mr. McEntee, that the New York Times comments: "The performances of the Shakespeare Playhouse are among the most tasteful Shakespearean productions which New York has been privileged to see." The New York Evening Post says: "The Shakespeare Playhouse has justified its origin and existence."

A noteworthy object of the director, which has been warmly received by many noted educators, is to place his productions within the reach of educational centers. In his presentations at these centers, he affords the students an interesting and instructive addition to their courses and activities. It has been the aim and is now the achievement of the Shakespeare Playhouse to be regarded as a necessary part of each year's work in certain educational centers. In connection with the work of the company in the colleges, Professor Charles G. Maphis of the University of Virginia, said "We want your company for a full week next summer." At the University of North Carolina Professor Frederick H. Koch described Mr. McEntee's troupe as "the finest all-around company of performers I have ever seen in a University performance."

Chapin 11th in Tennis Rating

According to the first ranking of intercollegiate tennis players made by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, Chapin '23 is placed eleventh on the list of the leading college and university players in the entire country. Only four Easterners are ranked above Chapin. They are Femo of Harvard, Fischer of U. of P., Williams of Yale, and Werner of Princeton.

Union to Meet at 8.00 Mon.

Feb. 13—Dr. Frederick H. Howard will continue the discussion of the Mind and Body Problem, the theme of the last two meetings of the Philosophical Union, in an address on "The Role of the Nervous System in Life" before that organization at 8:00 this evening in the Commons Room, in Currier Hall. The talk will be followed by the usual informal discussion. The time of the meeting was incorrectly stated as 7:30 p. m. in the last issue of The Record.

QUINTET CONQUERS AMHERST BY 32-10

Poor Teamwork and Unnecessary Roughness Mar Play of Both Sides

BLACKMER AND WILSON LEAD PURPLE SCORING

Numerous Substitutions are Made in Williams Team—Outcome Never Doubtful

In a loosely-contested and slow game, the outcome of which was never in doubt, the Williams basketball team easily defeated the Amherst quintet 32 to 10 last Saturday night in the Lasell Gymnasium. The game was marred by rough playing and lack of teamwork, especially on the side of the visitors, who were outplayed in every department of the game.

Coach Shanahan put the Williams aggregation on the floor with the same line-up as started the season: Blackmer and Wightman at the forward positions, Fargo at center, and Captain Wilson and Boynton doing the guarding. Captain Wilson and Blackmer were again stars for the Purple, the latter coming within one point of scoring half the points for his team, while Capt. Wilson was effective as a guard, and at the same time made three baskets. Kellogg, who was substituted for Wightman, played a fast and clever game at forward, and accounted for six points.

Stewart and Eames were the outstanding players for Amherst, between them doing all the scoring for the Purple and White, and at the same time showing considerable all-around ability. Amherst devoted herself mainly to a guarding game, but in this department was only partially successful as is shown by the final score, while on the offense tried almost entirely to score by long shots from the center of the floor, after being forced to this style of game by the close guarding of Wilson and Boynton.

Blackmer was so closely guarded that only twice was he successful in shots from the floor, but a fair degree of accuracy in foul shooting is testified to by ten points made by him from free throws. Although watched by the Amherst players as far as scoring, he managed to make many passes that were instrumental in scores made by team mates. With the exception of Boynton

PERRY TALKS BEFORE W. C. A. ON RELIGION

Alumnus Puts Emphasis on Need of Seriousness in Service and Thought

"Religion" formed the general subject of an informal talk by Edward T. Perry '18 at a meeting of the W. C. A. held last Sunday evening in Jesup Hall. The speaker, who at present is a student at the Hartford Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn., emphasized the need for the college man to consider seriously the question of religion, and in that connection, service to others and fairness to one's own spiritual nature.

"The reason that the W. C. A. did not mean more to the students when I was in College," said Perry, "is that the men did not know what religion is—they had no vital touch with God. The highest side of our lives is the spiritual nature, but this is usually the one which is most neglected. Prayer should not be slighted. It is a real and essential thing in our lives and we are neither fair to ourselves nor to God when we treat it in the customary indifferent manner. Talking with God is like talking with a personality, and in this intercourse with him we should surrender ourselves to do anything which he wants us to do."

"Courage is essential in our endeavors," Perry continued. "Too often we look around us for support and do not rely on the strength of our own convictions. When we are not willing to launch out toward what we know is right, we cannot expect to achieve anything worth mentioning. Dissatisfaction with lack of reality is prominent everywhere in the world, and we can appease this desire for reality if we will give ourselves up to God and sacrifice ourselves to service, which is the greatest joy."

How Will You Vote?

The approaching College meeting promises to be one of the most significant of the year in its potentialities. The Honor System committee will make its first annual public report of cases handled, the question of establishing a new campus office in the shape of a Preparatory School Chairman will be decided, and the advisability of placing managerial elections under the province of the Athletic or Student Councils will be considered.

Honor is ever a difficult word, hard to define, and correspondingly hard to enforce. The success that has attended the workings of the Honor System here have been such as to give the College cause for just pride, and the report of the Committee will be awaited with interest. The announcement of cases handled affords an opportunity for inquiry into the causes for such infractions of the honor agreement and for suggestions as to possible remedies.

Preparatory school affiliations are recognized as being of primary importance and there seems little question that the proposed position will be created to further the proper advance of this work. The plan has been carefully formulated and considered by the Student Council before being brought to the attention of the College body. With power of nomination in the hands of the heads of school clubs and a final check residing in the Student Council, the position appears to be well cared for.

The question of changing the system of managerial elections presents greater difficulties because the present system has been long established. The advantages to be found in removing the power of selection from the hands of the Sophomore class have been considered at length heretofore in these columns, and need no recapitulation. The immediate problem is the selection of a proper body to receive such authority. Both the Student Council and the Athletic Council have been proposed. The Student Council seems obviously unfitted since it is wholly unconnected otherwise with athletic affairs. Its province lies in a very different line of student activities. The very fact that each member will be acquainted with every candidate under consideration is bound to influence his judgment and diminish the importance of the manager's recommendation.

The Athletic Council, on the other hand, is an organization peculiarly bound up with Williams sports, a body which must stand behind each manager, and profit or lose through the manager's ability or lack of ability. Its more mature composition insures a fair, judicial decision in the selection of candidates. With three undergraduate members, in addition to the manager, assistant manager, captain, and coach of the sport under consideration, it will have ample opportunity for securing full data upon which to base its decision. All in all, the Athletic Council seems to be the logical body to assume this responsible position, and The Record strongly urges such a decision on the part of the College body.

The Dollar Yard Stick

"Williams possesses a $500,000 chapel." You often have heard such a remark. Has it ever struck you as incongruous that the commercial yardstick should be used even in measuring a sacred edifice?

The world is inclined to measure everything by the same monetary standard. "Does a college education pay?" is another question one frequently hears. The nations are waking up, not so much morally as financially, to the fact that war is an evil. Men value their fellow-men largely upon the size of their incomes rather than upon the results of their achievements. If Gladstone were to live in our day, the fact that he received but £60 for "The Vicar of Wakefield" would brand him as merely an inferior literary artist. A painting must sell for $5,000 or more, before its master can be rated as truly "great" today. Even in our consideration of such matters as the honor system we like to remark that honesty is the best policy, and there is a saying, though not over-observed at Williams, that time is money—"the vulgarst saw that ever disgraced a nation," George Gissing said.

Financial measurements are important because the collecting of the wherewithal is an essential item in life. It is so essential that we are inclined to forget that money or possessions are not an end but a means. The need is not for more money, but for more life. The educated men in a community are entitled to set the standard of values. It is the function of a liberal education to give them the proper basis for judgment. It is the peculiar function of the cultural college to give them the means of measuring non-material affairs.

We can scarcely expect the great scientific schools to turn out men equipped with other than hard, scientific modes of measuring. The duty devolves upon cultural institutions like Williams to teach their students that results in most fields cannot be measured by the returns in dollars and cents. The money involved can never serve as the proper criterion of the value of a chapel, a piece of literature, a painting, a life nobly lived.

10 Years Ago at Williams

Five houseparties will join in the mid-winter festivities, which will be held over the coming week-end. The guests of the Delta Psi, Phi Delta Theta and Delta Delta fraternities will arrive on Friday afternoon and will be entertained at the various houses until Monday morning. House dances will be held on Friday evening, and on the following day the guests will attend the hockey and basketball games and the Musical Clubs Concert.

At the regular winter meeting of the Trustees of Williams College, which was held this afternoon in the Hotel Manhattan, eleven of the fourteen members of the Board were present. Chief among the matters under discussion was the movement for raising $1,000,000 for the present needs of Williams, and $2,000,000 to place the college upon proper financial footing. After attending to many routine matters, the Trustees voted to increase the present scholarship stipends each by the sum of $25.00.

On Monday at 8 o'clock the Good Government Club will hold an important meeting in the Jesup Hall reading room for the discussion of the work to be done by the club in connection with the Child Welfare Exhibit in North Adams, March 13-16.

On account of examinations the next freshman tea will not be given until Thursday, February 13. This will be the sixth of the series given for the members of the class of 1916 under the auspices of the W. C. A.

Miss Eveleth of the Library Staff has been granted a leave of absence till the first of July. Her place will be filled by Miss Christine Price, Simmons College, 1912.

Sextet to Face Yale and Amherst on Trip

The line-up is as follows:

WILLIAMS		AMHERST
J. Stephenson	l. w.	Hunter
Rowse	r. w.	Kingman
Clark	c.	Davidson
Buell	l. d.	Worcester (Capt.)
		Lawson
		Sylvester
Becket (Capt.)	r. d.	Allison, Titus
Lowes	g.	Plimpton

Yale has won five games, including two victories over Princeton, and has lost seven. The Blue players first tasted defeat at the hands of the St. Nicholas team, which defeated Yale by the decisive score of 5-1. Griscom, O'Leary, and Reid all played spectacular games in this contest, while Bell, the Eli goal, made 27 out of 32 stops. O'Leary was decidedly the individual star of the Columbia game, which Yale won in easy fashion, 10-2. The two successive games played with the University of Pennsylvania were divided. Yale winning one, 8-3, and losing the other, 4-2. In the next game Yale fought M. I. T. to a hard-earned 1-0 victory, which was followed by a 7-0 defeat at the hands of Boston College. Two defeats of Princeton, 4-3 and 1-0, showed the power of the Blue team. Bates was defeated 5-3. Yale has lost the last two games played, losing to Dartmouth 1-2, and to Harvard 2-6.

Shirns is out of the game temporarily due to an injury to his knee. Speiden is out of the game for the rest of the season on account of a sharp attack of influenza and will be replaced by Buckley, who has also been out of the game up to this time because of being on probation. O'Leary has not been playing on the Yale team since Christmas as a result of an injury received early in the season.

The team will probably line-up as follows:

WILLIAMS		YALE
W. Stephenson	c.	Reid
J. Stephenson	l. w.	Farnsworth
Clark
Rowse, Pressprich	r. w.	Chisholm
Buell	l. d.	Griscom (Capt.)
Becket (Capt.)	r. d.	Buckley
Lowes	g.	Vogel

ing power, defeating Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and New Hampshire State, both dangerous contestants for the Eastern Intercollegiate Championship, by the scores of 31-17 and 41-33 respectively.

Harvard defeated M. I. T. 31-27, Fitts, the Crimson center, shooting six field goals in the contest. Captain McLeish and Gordon, forwards, have starred in practically every game of the season, the former displaying excellent ability in tallying on free tries. The team has developed a dangerous scoring power on shots from mid-court that has been a large factor in the many victories of the Crimson. Yale was outclassed 26-13, M. A. C. was defeated 33-20, and Amherst was decisively beaten by the score of 48-27. Harvard's only defeat in her last six games came at the hands of Dartmouth Saturday night at Hanover, the Green team winning an exciting contest 28-20.

The line-ups are as follows:

WILLIAMS		HARVARD
Blackmer	r. f.	Gordon
Wightman, Hyde	l. f.	McLeish (Capt.)
Fargo, Jayne	c.	Fitts
Wilson (Capt.)	r. g.	Rudofsky
Boydton, Pease	l. g.	Black, Tulbot

Finds Last 'Graphic' Mediocre in Quality

money and as Miss Strebor of the Baltimore and the society column is unfused, unconvincing. In addition the headwriter Neberg is overemphasized. While Mr. Lyles does not escape conventionality in his essay "On Late Hours," it is agreeable reading with its literary flavor. The editorial is seasonably ebullient and fashionably primitive, but with a characteristic air of insignificance.

The verse section is of somewhat more than average merit. Yet Mr. Britton's metaphor suffers from a confusion that is more than poetic license. And the Cynic's Diary shows changes of mood that in so short a span destroy totality of effect. The form of Mr. Moody's Hymn to the Sun is especially pleasing, and Mr. Perkins has essayed an interesting ethical dialogue in The Query of Arjuna.

As usual the Graphic presents an excellent appearance from the appropriate cover photograph to the last advertisement. The pictures are interesting and show up as well as in any college magazine. With so much of promise, it is to be hoped that the editorial board will be more zealous in discovering contributors among those too modest or too indifferent to take the initiative; and above all that somehow the pages will look less like the examples for correction in an intelligence test.

ton, who played a guarding game almost exclusively, the entire Williams team did its share of individual scoring, Fargo starting the game off with a basket. Never after that time was the Purple headed, but the lead was rapidly increased until the outcome was unquestioned. After Blackmer and Wilson caged the ball in quick succession, the game became more rough and disorganized, and the half ended with the score 16 to 4.

Williams began the second half with the substitutes that had been put in the game before the closing of the first period, Jayne, Kellogg and Pease going in for Fargo, Wightman, and Boydton, respectively, and with this line-up the game proved close for a short time, but soon the Purple shooters began making more points, with Kellogg and Blackmer accounting for most of the scores. The contest became more sluggish during this period, and only at rare intervals did either team show enough form or aggressiveness to arouse great interest on the part of the spectators. With the substitution of Wightman, Hyde, and Fargo for Kellogg, Blackmer, and Jayne, respectively, and Kyle for Walker, the game livened up for the last few minutes of play, the contest ending with Williams victor by a score of 32 to 10.

The summary and line-ups are as follows:

Williams		Amherst
Wightman	l. f.	Walker
Blackmer	r. f.	Eames
Fargo	c.	Stewart
Boydton	r. g.	Phelps
Wilson (Capt.)	l. g.	Whitney

Final score—Williams 32, Amherst 10; Goals from the floor—Wilson 3, Kellogg 3, Eames 3, Blackmer 2, Fargo 2, Wightman 1, Stewart 1; goals from fouls—Blackmer 10, Stewart 2. Substitutions—Williams—Jayne for Fargo, Kellogg for Wightman, Pease for Boydton, Hyde for Blackmer, Amherst—Kyle for Walker. Referee—Stewart. Time—20 minute halves.

DARTMOUTH SWAMPS PURPLE SWIMMERS

Williams Team is Conquered 43-7 by More Experienced and Faster Squad

With a team extremely well-balanced in all events, Dartmouth college had little difficulty in overwhelming the Williams Swimming team by the decisive score of 43-7 last Saturday afternoon in the Spaulding Pool at Hanover, New Hampshire. Captain Jones' second place in the plunge was the only place other than a third that the Purple team gained, though the relay was narrowly lost by but a few yards.

By taking a first place in the plunge, Bird, captain of the Dartmouth aggregation, established a new record for himself, since he administered to Jones of Williams the only defeat he has received in three years. Bird traveled the 75 feet in 56 seconds, while Jones, on his first attempt, made 74 feet and on his second, was forced to stop in the middle of his plunge, due to an attack of coughing. Equally close was the finish of the 50-yard dash in which Healy was nosed out by a few inches at the finish and was given a third place by the judges. All four entrants in the event were abreast the entire distance and final decision was difficult and somewhat doubtful.

Employing the old method of leading a man on at a fast pace, Dartmouth managed to secure the two first places in the 220-yard swim, though the fight between Kerr and Hudson for second place was undecided until the final yard. Eiche of Dartmouth, winner of the race, drew Kerr on at a fast pace, Hudson remaining content with last place for the first four laps, then the latter, in a final burst of speed, passed Kerr and crossed the line second. Reed and Little of Dartmouth easily outclassed Webb and Rounds, who had had no spring board practice, in the dives, and Taylor and Ellis had little trouble in winning the first two positions in the 100-yard dash, Taylor covering the first 50 yards in better time than was made in the preceding 50-yard dash. The Dartmouth relay team, composed of Dempsey, Eiche, Bolles, and Taylor, won the 200-yard relay in the fast time of 1 min. 46 seconds, though the Williams team of Healy, Kerr, Laedeke, and Sanford was not far behind. Following is the summary of the events in detail:

50-yd. dash—won by Dempsey (D), Bolles (D), second, Healy (W), third, Time, 27 seconds.

220-yd. swim—won by Eiche (D), Hudson (D), second, Kerr (W), third. Time, 2 min. 41 sec.

Fancy Diving—won by Reed (D), Little (D), second, Webb (W), third.

100-yd. dash—won by Taylor (D), Ellis (D), second, Miller (W), third. Time, 1 min. 35 sec.

Plunge—won by Bird (D), Jones (W), second, Farnsworth (D), third. Distance, 75 feet in 56 sec.

200-yd. relay—won by Dartmouth, (Dempsey, Eiche, Bolles, Taylor). Time, 1 min. 46 sec.

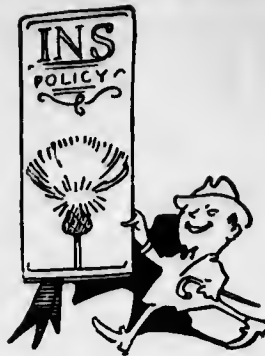

Greene '23 Wins Williams' Single Score at Carnival

Though the Williams Outing Club was represented by six men at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival, held last Friday and Saturday at Hanover, N. H., L. M. Greene '23, with a second place in the obstacle race, succeeded in winning the only score that Williams gained. Contestants from McGill, Middlebury, Ottawa, Vermont, and Dartmouth also competed in the carnival, which was handily won by Dartmouth, and the Williams team, having had practically no opportunity for practice, was far outclassed.

Carleton of Dartmouth won the ski-jumping, off the newly erected slide, with a jump of 120 feet, though Crosby '23 of Williams negotiated a 90-foot jump in a very creditable fashion. Greene was slowed up somewhat in the obstacle race by the fact that he was unfamiliar with the course and with the obstacles, and was forced to do some experimenting, before attempting the difficulties set in his way. Williams failed to place in the other ski and show-shoe events.

INTRAMURAL SERIES OPENED ON SATURDAY

Simga Phi, Alpha Delta Phi, Kappa Alpha, and Zeta Psi Lead in Both Leagues

Individual brilliance and concentrated mass play was in evidence, rather than developed team work, in the four spirited contests which marked the opening of the intramural basketball season in the Lasell Gymnasium last Saturday afternoon. More than usual enthusiasm was demonstrated by the large number of spectators who lined both sides of the gymnasium during all of the games.

Four of the eight scheduled contests had to be postponed until a later date, three in League A and one in League B. Sigma Phi took the lead in League A by defeating the Faculty aggregation in a one-sided 26-16 game, in which Ward played best for the winners. Alpha Delta Phi took the measure of Beta Theta Pi in a close and hotly contested game by the score of 6-4. Parkhill and Vroman scored for their respective teams. Kappa Alpha had little trouble in defeating Psi Upsilon by the score of 17-5, Sewall making most of the winning baskets. Livingston and Dugan played well for Zeta Psi, who defeated Theta Delta Chi by the score of 12-8.

This week's schedule for the intramural series has been arranged by Assistant Manager Bixby as follows: Wednesday, 5.00 p. m.—Delta Kappa Epsilon vs. Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Delta Phi vs. Theta Delta Chi. Thursday, 5.00 p. m.—Delta Psi vs. Phi Gamma Delta, Beta Theta Pi vs. Zeta Psi. Friday, 5.00 p. m.—Sigma Phi vs. Chi Psi, Commons Club vs. Kappa Alpha. Saturday, 4.00 p. m.—Faculty vs. Phi Sigma Kappa, Delta Upsilon vs. Psi Upsilon.

Announcement has been made by the management that hereafter in case a scheduled game is to be postponed, Bixby '23 must be notified at least a day in advance by the team which is unable to play. Failure to do this will result in the forfeiture of the game by the team upon whose account the game is not played. Postponed games are not to be played off at the discretion of the house managers, but will be regularly arranged for by the varsity management, which must be consulted before a postponed game is finally played. Definite times for playing the four games which were postponed last Saturday afternoon will be assigned by Assistant Manager Bixby.

Mr. Salter Will Deliver 219th Recital Wednesday

Four selections from English, Russian, French, and German composers will be rendered at Mr. Sumner Salter's 219th Organ Recital to be held in Chapin Hall Wednesday at 4.15 p. m. The program is particularly well balanced, as the light strains of Mendelssohn's Musik To "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be offset by one of Tchaikowsky's more serious symphonies and Boellmann's Suite Gothique.

The complete program is as follows:
Suite Gothique Leon Boellmann
Andantino on modo di Canzona
Peter Iljitch Tchaikowsky
The Lost Chord Sir Arthur S. Sullivan
Musik To "A Midsummer Night's Dream"
Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy

Classical Society to Meet

"Recent Archaeological Discoveries Bearing on Philology" will be the subject of a short address to be delivered by Stephens '23 at a meeting of the Classical Society next Thursday at 8.00 p. m. at the home of Dean Howes. Professor Wild may also give a brief talk on a subject as yet unannounced. The remainder of the meeting will be in the nature of a social gathering, and refreshments will be served.

Relay Team Prepares for Am. Legion Games

In preparation for the American Legion Games, which will be held in the East Armory, Boston, on February 22, Coach Seeley is holding regular work-outs of the track team every afternoon. Although the details have not yet been definitely arranged, Williams will probably enter a team in a return relay race against Bowdoin, and also one man in the distance runs and one in the 100-yard dash, just as in the recent B. A. A. meet. The most promising candidates for the relay team are Mackie, Mendes, Perkins, Richmond, and Stowers. Miller will probably be entered in the 100-yard dash.

Thirteen Complete Studies

According to announcements from the Dean's office, the following men have completed their requirements for graduation and left College: Cameron, Castle, Humphreys, Irwin, Jarrett, Kellers, North, Ostrander, Phelps, Prime, Rosenwald, R. W. Smith and Wells '22.

Correction

The announcement in the last issue of THE RECORD that the second basketball game with Wesleyan would be played to-night was an error due to the fact that the first game with Wesleyan was originally scheduled for this evening but later changed to January 14. The second Wesleyan game will be played here on March 3.

TECH AND HARVARD WIN CLOSE GAMES

Final Rallies Defeat Purple Five in Cambridge—Blackmer Is Highest Scorer

LOSES TO M. I. T. 27-18
AND TO CRIMSON 40-35

Play of Basketball Team Well-Balanced—Kellogg Badly
Wrenched Knee

Displaying a strong, well-balanced attack and streaks of unusual brilliancy, the Williams basketball live lost a closely-fought game to M. I. T. last Wednesday night by a 27 to 18 score and on the following evening to the strong Harvard team by a 40-35. Both contests were undecided until the last few minutes to play, especially the Harvard game in which the Purple team scored more field goals than their opponents.

Unaccustomed to playing on a large court, the Williams team was unable to find its passing game in the contest against Tech, but in the small Harvard court the general floor-work of the Purple five was faster and better than in any previous game. Captain Wilson and Boynton played fast and heady games at guard, although they were considerably slowed up in the Harvard contest by the strictness of the referee. Blackmer was closely guarded in both contests and was unable to score as heavily as usual, but he broke away in the game with the Crimson for eight field baskets. His passes went well in the second half of the M. I. T. contest but showed up to better advantage against Harvard. The work of Fargo was a feature of the games, his shooting was accurate and his passing fast, and he used his superior weight to advantage against both opponents. Kellogg played a stellar game against M. I. T. and figured in most of the plays while he was on the floor. He wrenched the ligaments in his knee in the second half and will be unable to play for the rest of the season. Wightman could not find himself against the Engineers, but the Harvard court was more suited to his style of play and he scored heavily in this game.

Williams started the scoring in the M. I. T. game Wednesday evening in the Walker Gymnasium, Cambridge, when Fargo caged the ball after a scrimmage under the Tech basket. Blackmer added a foul before the first M. I. T. score came. (Continued on Fourth Page.)

OUTING CLUB CARNIVAL WILL BE HELD FEB. 22

Crosby and G. Brown Will Represent Purple at McGill on February 25

Plans are being made by the Outing Club to hold on Washington's Birthday the carnival which was originally scheduled for February 3 and 4 but was postponed on account of scarcity of snow. Arrangements are also being made to send Crosby '23 and G. Brown '25 as entrants in the McGill winter carnival, which will take place on February 25 in Montreal, Canada.

Both Brown and Crosby showed up well in the contests at Dartmouth last week, although neither of them managed to score any points. Crosby made some excellent ski jumps, one of them distancing more than 90 feet. More than these two men may be entered in the McGill Carnival by the Outing Club, however.

Unlike the carnival planned for house-party time, the one next week will be for Williams men alone, since no invitations have been extended to other colleges to participate. The program of events as prepared by the Outing Club includes ski and snowshoe cross-country races on Wednesday morning and ski and snowshoe dashes, a snowshoe potato race, and ski proficiency and jumping contests in the afternoon.

Entrance cards similar to the ones posted in the fraternities and eating houses for the house-party carnival will be distributed again. The Outing Club especially urges that all men who are interested sign up to take part in the various contests whether they are expert in skiing and snowshoeing or not.

Recent Discoveries in Archaeology Discussed

"Recent Archaeological Discoveries in Italy and Greece and Their Relation to Philology" was the subject of a paper read before a meeting of the Classical Society held at Prof. Howes's residence last Thursday evening by Stevens '23. The meeting, which was the best attended of any held during the year, was followed by the usual informal discussion and social gathering.

Prof. Wild gave extracts from Prof. McDannell's speech "New Life From Italy and Greece" given at the recent meeting of the American Archaeological Association in Ann Arbor, Michigan, which he attended. Letters from Kenneth Scott '21, now studying at the American School for Classical Study at Athens, Greece, describing his work, and from Prof. Hill, head of the American School for Classical Study, were read at the meeting.

WILLIAMS LINE-UP INTACT

Sextet Has Found Strong Opposition in Two Defeats During Present Week

Having lost games to Amherst, 3-2, and to Yale, 4-0, last Tuesday and Wednesday, the Williams hockey team will meet the sextet of the United States Military Academy at West Point this afternoon at 2 p. m. Though almost no comparative scores are available, the team that the Purple will meet today is known to have considerable strength, and the heavy schedule of two successive games earlier in the week is expected to lessen the chances of a victory over the Cadets.

Eight games of the Military Academy's schedule have been played to date, and of these, seven have been victories for the Service men. Hamilton, Colgate, Springfield, Massachusetts Agricultural College, and three teams of professional or semi-professional standing, including the sextet of the Albany Country Club, have fallen before the superior work of the Gray and Gold. The lone defeat of West Point was at the hands of the strong Dartmouth team. The only basis for comparison is found in the game with Springfield College, a team which both West Point and Williams easily defeated, the latter by an 8-1 margin.

West Point's sextet is composed of men who have not represented the Academy on the rink previous to this year, but the significance of this fact is considerably diminished by the record that has been attained thus far this season. The team of the Cadets is captained by O'Connell, who plays at center. Marinelli and Stout constitute a strong defensive pair, and Peterson and Wood have shown up excellently in the wing positions. Katner will be at goal in this afternoon's game.

For Williams, there will be little or no change in the original lineup, which Captain Becket has announced tentatively. Clark and Rowse will hold down the wings, with W. Stephenson at his usual pivot position. Buell and Becket will be in the defense positions, with Lowes at goal. Rowse and Becket both showed up exceedingly well in the earlier games of the week, especially in the Yale contest, in which they led the Williams offense.

The lineups follow:

WILLIAMS	WEST POINT
Clark	l.w. Wood
Rowse	r.w. Peterson
W. Stephenson	c. O'Connell (Capt.)
Buell	d. Stout
Becket (Capt.)	r.d. Marinelli
Lowes	g. Katner

Battery Work Begun in Cage

Preparatory to Coach Coombs's arrival about February 25, preliminary battery practice for candidates for the varsity baseball team was held Wednesday and Thursday afternoons in the baseball cage. The following men were called out and reported to Captain Hoyt at this time: Cobb and Wolfe '22, Holmes and Ruether '23, Gregory '24, and Bernhard and Fisher '25. Practice for all candidates will commence with the arrival of Coach Coombs and "Chief" Bender.

Amherst Makes Up for Defeat of Last Week—Yale's Victory is 12th of Season

Williams suffered defeat in hockey at the hands of Amherst and Yale by the scores of 3 to 2, and 4 to 0, respectively, last Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, the first contest being held in Amherst and the second in New Haven. W. Stephenson starred for the Purple team in the game against Amherst, and Lowes, defender of the cage in the engagement against Yale, exhibited some fine goal tending which did much toward keeping down the score of the winners.

The game in which Amherst was able to retaliate for her 2-0 defeat by Williams, last week in Williamstown, was exciting and hard fought. In the first period there was no scoring on either side, but in the second Hunter and Worcester tallied twice for Amherst, and Stephenson scored for Williams. Worcester again scored for the winners in the third period, his goal being followed quickly by Press. (Continued on Third Page.)

1925 TEAM TO MEET DARTMOUTH FRESHMEN

Williams Quintet is in Excellent Condition—Close Game is to be Expected

In the first game of their schedule, the freshman basketball team will meet the Dartmouth 1925 quintet in the Jassell Gymnasium at 8.00 this evening, encountering in the team from Hanover one of the most formidable of the opponents that it will have to face.

The Dartmouth yearlings are represented by a strong aggregation, but the advantage that they possess in having already played three scheduled games will be offset by the experience that the class league victors received in the Interclass. (Continued on Fourth Page.)

'Vanity Fair' is Title of Smoker Coming Next April

"Vanity Fair," a burlesquous revue, is the title of the 1922 College Smoker show which will be unveiled to the critical eyes of the College Body shortly before the Spring recess, probably on Monday evening, April 3, in the Jassell Gymnasium. The Committee, of which Britton '23 is chairman, is now at work on the various acts of the novel production, and music and lyrics of unusual excellence are being prepared.

Trials for the cast will be held during next week, and at the same time intensive drill for the chorus will also begin, the following men having been picked for their unusual beauty and grace: Girls—Harding and Hunter '24, and Comstock, Hopkins, Marshall, Melane, and Post '25; Men—Olmsted, J. S. Prescott and Shores '24, and Adams, Beckwith, Herbert, and Hibbard '25. Men who have had any dramatic experience at all are urged to report for the cast trials, the exact time of which will be announced in a subsequent issue of THE RECORD.

TO PRESENT 'CANDIDA' IN THOMPSON COURSE

Actors of Shakespeare Playhouse
Have Staged Plays Before Many Colleges

ALL FINISHED PERFORMERS

Cast Formed Entirely of Artists With Experience in Recent Stage Successes

Friday, Feb. 17—With a cast composed entirely of actors of prominence, "Candida," by George Bernard Shaw, will be presented by a company from the Shakespeare Playhouse, New York City in the fifth Thompson Course entertainment this evening at 8.15 p. m. in Chapin Hall.

Mr. McEntee, Director of the Shakespeare Playhouse, who will himself appear in the cast of "Candida," as Eugene Marchbanks, has had a very unusual career in Shakespearean plays, having played upwards of 75 roles, including Hamlet, Shylock, Malvolio, and Prospero; and he has also acted in a large number of modern plays. He has been assisted in this work by such stars as Tyrone Power, Edith Wynne Mathison, Walter Hampden, and Pedro de Cordoba. Mr. McEntee was formerly Associate Director with Henry Jewett at the Copley Theatre in Boston.

Miss Laura Walker, who will play the part of Candida in this evening's performance, has also acted as leading lady in a number of successful plays, among which can be mentioned "The Whirlwind," "The Man Who Came Back," "The Masque of Hamlet," recently at the Comedy Theatre in New York, and with Arthur Byron in "The Ghost Between" at the Maxine Elliott Theatre. In addition to this Miss Walker appeared a year ago as Portia in her own production of "The Merchant of Venice" in matinees at the Longacre Theatre.

Mr. Leonard Willey has impersonated a number of important roles in the past few seasons. He was with Cyril Maude in "Grumpy"; with John Drew in "Major Pendennis"; played Lord Windermere with Margaret Anglin in "Lady Windermere's Fan"; and also acted in Maeterlinck's, "The Burgomaster of Belgium." Besides this, Mr. Willey has played Orlando in "As You Like It," and has been featured during the past season in. (Continued on Third Page.)

Choose Date for Debate

Monday afternoon, February 27, is the date decided upon for the annual underclass debate. Three speakers and an alternate will constitute each team, and ten minutes will be allowed for a main speech and four minutes for rebuttal. As yet the judges have not been selected, but in all probability several of the Faculty will act in that capacity.

Etheridge Chosen Alternate

As a result of trials held Tuesday afternoon in Jesup Hall, Etheridge '24 was chosen as alternate for the team to debate Hamilton and Syracuse February 24 and 25 respectively. Schnuffer and Terry '22, and Helfrich '24 have already been selected as the three speakers.

REVISE METHOD OF NAMING CANDIDATE

Competitors for Managerships to Be Nominated by Decision of Athletic Council

SCHOOLS COMMITTEE
WORK IS REORGANIZED

New Organization to Be Headed by Chairman Elected by Vote of College Body

If the Athletic Council accepts the recommendation of the Student Body in regard to the nomination of candidates for the second assistant managerships of athletic teams which was adopted at a college meeting held in Jesup Hall last Tuesday evening, candidates for managerial positions will be selected in the future by the Athletic Council and the manager, assistant manager, and captain of the sport in question, instead of by the Sophomore Class, as is the regulation at present.

In addition to the change in the method of selecting managerial candidates, the College ratified a resolution of the Student Council for the reorganization of the Undergraduate Schools Committee, and unanimously accepted the semi-annual report of the Honor System Committee for the first half of the current year.

The change in the method of selecting managerial candidates is subject only to the approval of the Athletic Council to become a part of the Rules of Undergraduate Activities. The resolution, as proposed by Schnuffer '22 and amended at the proposal of Youngman '22, will supersede Section 6 of the Election of Assistant Managers of Major Teams, and Article 2, Section 3, and Article 3, Section 3 of the Election of Assistant Managers of Minor Teams, and reads as follows:

"A committee composed of the manager, assistant manager and captain shall submit to the Athletic Council a detailed record of the candidates' work and of their qualifications for office. The Athletic Council, in consultation with the above named committee which shall act as a part of the Council for the purpose of selection, shall select from this list of candidates not less than two, nor more than three, men; these names to be published in the next issue of THE RECORD in the order of the Council's recommendation.

"The provisions of this article shall take effect in all managerial elections subsequent to May 1, 1922.

PURPLE SWIMMERS TO FACE WESLEYAN TEAM

Red and Black Mermen Have Won Victories in Three of Five Previous Meets

Facing an experienced team which has won by decisive scores three of the five meets already held this season, and which is built around one fast man, the Williams swimming team will meet Wesleyan this afternoon in Middletown, Conn. The Purple swimmers are somewhat handicapped by the fact that the Dartmouth meet, held last Saturday, was lost by the overwhelming score of 43-7, but a complete reorganization of the team, which has been effected this week, is expected to present a better balanced squad.

In place of Sanford '24, who formerly swam the 50 yd. dash, Motter '25 has been substituted, and Sanford is to enter the 100 yd. dash, taking the place of Miller '22. Wilcox '22 will also swim the 100 yd. dash with Sanford, taking the position formerly held by Olmsted '24, who will take the 220 yd. swim with Kerr '24. The other entries will be similar to those in the Dartmouth meet, though an extra plunger may be taken on this trip. Hard practice throughout the week has resulted in a marked improvement in all events, and changes in the line-up have been made as a result of time trials held last Thursday afternoon.

Wesleyan has already met Stevens, R. P. I., Springfield, Yale, and Amherst, and were able to win the first three contests by large scores, and narrowly lost the. (Continued on Third Page.)

Our Platform for Williams

Improved Publicity.
The "Williams Triangle."
Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

At a meeting of THE RECORD Board held last Thursday evening in the Press Rooms, Jesup Hall, Wilnot K. Bell, 1925, of Pleasantville, N. Y., John E. Brown, Jr., 1925, of Columbus, Ohio, and Graham L. Sterling, Jr., 1925, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., were elected to the editorial board as a result of the first and second competitions for the class of 1925.

A Fable of Difficulties

Once upon a time a little sub-freshman came to Williams to visit and learn all about the glorious big institution of which he was already dreaming such bright dreams. As he walked down the street clasping tightly the hand of his adored friend and hero, the Purple "W" wearer who lived next door at home, his eyes were caught by a curious sight, and the following dialogue ensued:

1922—What are those funny looking drill caps, and why do they wear them?

1923—Well, you see, some of the best fellows get together and form a club, and then they wear the hats to distinguish themselves by. At least, I guess that's the principal reason—it's nice to look prominent.

1922—But why should they want to form clubs?

1923—Oh, I don't know. Just for social entertainment.

1922—What kind of social entertainment? Danes?

1923—No, not exactly. Oh, hang it! You'll understand when you come up here.

1922—Do you make lots of friends that way?

1923—Oh yes, quite a few. Of course, there are quite a number of other fellows who paid their money and didn't even get hats, and they naturally always feel a little sore.

1922—Then it costs money to join these clubs?

1923—No—Yes—Well, anyway more than it's pleasant to admit. I guess it is worth it, though.

1922—Then why don't you belong?

1923—I do.

1922—But you aren't wearing a hat

1923—Well, to tell you the truth, times are changing, and I guess I've been finding it too hard to answer questions just like you have been asking me.

1922—Oh!

Intelligence vs. Illiteracy

THE RECORD announces with pride that the results of the intelligence test secretly conducted in these columns last week were eminently satisfactory. Fully half the College noticed the interesting introduction of Mr. Gladstone's name, and notes have come in from alumni and even from one preparatory school.

Fears had been previously entertained lest a hidden rotting away were taking place in the whole intellectual College body, coming to light only occasionally, as in the last Graphic. Such apparently unwarranted forebodings may now be definitely discontinued. Indeed, last Wednesday evening a motley mob of students from every class, armed with pencils large and small, and copious copy paper, might have been seen bending industriously to work in Jesup Hall in answer to the Graphic's call for proofreaders. Intellectual pedantry kept watchful guard, though the spectre of illiteracy stalked in the dark background. The twenty who considered themselves worthy to enter the contest averaged no less than five mistakes in spelling in fifteen words. The highest total was two-thirds incorrect.

While we no longer fear for the intelligence of Williams men, we must express concern over their literacy. Will it be necessary to set English tests for all Freshmen with the required course following for all who show need, or will it be desirable for a College of culture to revert to that peculiar old idea of teaching Rhetoric to all its students? This dilemma we cheerfully pass on to you.

The Weather.—While nought is heard without but the blasts of old Boreas, lustily tuning his pipes to an air more sonorous than ever came from the fiddle strings of Paganini, and while the air is darkened with snow flakes playing many a merry gambol and cutting up many an antic caper, with a blazing pile of fuel on the hearth we feel able to bid defiance to the "geltings of the pitiless storm." Why after once falling can't the snow be contented to remain in statu quo, and not oblige us to see such formidable intrenchments forming before our doors mountainous pile of snow—as if the time was arrived when "Alps on Alps arise."

Williams College.—The second term commences today. A number of the Students have returned and the prospects are fair for an increase of numbers and a prosperous term.

RELATION OF MIND TO BODY AGAIN DISCUSSED

Phil. Union Hears Dr. Howard Give Address on "The Role of the Nervous System"

Continuing the discussion of the Mind and Body Problem taken up at the last meeting, Dr. Frederik H. Howard addressed the Philosophie Union last Monday evening on the subject, "The Role of the Nervous System." The usual open debate which followed the main address of the evening was interesting and extensive, and was not narrowly confined to the subject originally under consideration.

The topic of Dr. Howard's talk was the role played by the nervous system in reflex action and in the behavior of animals. The speaker first took up the point of view, which assumes the behavior to be mechanically determined by the environment and structure of the animal. This theory would deny will power or even choice of action.

Among many ideas expressed in the informal discussion following Dr. Howard's paper, Dr. Lancelot Andrews, a noted chemist residing in Williamstown, upheld the absolute applicability of the usual conception of the law of conservation of energy. Dr. Andrews quoted many of his own and other chemical experiments to uphold his stand.

'FEAR WAS APPARENT IN WORLD WAR'—CRU

Fourth Tuesday Lecture Presents Conditions of Courage in Recent War

With the statement "I have yet to meet the man who is not the prey of abject fear" as the fundamental idea and nucleus of his paper, Prof. J. N. Cru of the Language Department presented the fourth number of the Tuesday Lecture Course last Tuesday afternoon in the Thompson Physical Laboratory, taking as his subject "Courage and Fear in Battle According to Tradition and in the Late War." Professor Cru served with the French, British, and American armies for five years in the recent European conflict, and was engaged for a time in liaison duty and later as a member of the French High Commission in Washington.

"A comparison between the courage described in eloquent terms of the medieval chivalry and the present fighting man is impossible," said Prof. Cru, "since the personal element has altogether vanished, and War, has advanced to such a monstrous and horrible degree. During a modern battle, the power and death-dealing capacity of man's inventions are so great that a soldier is forced necessarily to fear for his life and cover before the tremendous machines of destruction. Before the enemy gun fire it is not a question in the present day of maintaining the medieval heroic and romantic attitudes, but rather of attempting to escape the rain of bullets, and in accordance with this evident tendency the trenches were first utilized for the furtherance of protection. However, there is a great deal of difference between the words Courage and Fear, for Courage is the possession of a self-sacrificing attitude while fear is the lack of it, and therefore, it was a marked trait of the poilus in the recent war that they were afraid but courageous.

"It is the fact that death is always lurking near them that induces soldiers of the present time to be more fearful than those of ancient Rome and Greece, for they realize that there is a possibility of their death while they are shaving, eating, and praying, and not alone, as formerly, while they were in hand to hand conflict. The mental strain and fatigue resulting from the presence of the unknown and unseen at all times was the one element that the higher authorities were perpetually attempting to combat, and was known as 'upholding the morale' of the company.

"Such military courage is of two types: active courage goes over the top and gets recognition for the so-called superhuman bravery, while passive courage stays behind and requires the greater amount of nervous energy and moral fibre. Those men who were valiant, courageous, and brave in the recent War," said Prof. Cru in conclusion, "were those soldiers who were afraid, but who, with a spirit of self-sacrifice, subordinated this fear to the higher instinct of fighting for their country."

219th Recital Marked by Four Noted Compositions

Four selections by noted composers were rendered by Mr. Sumner Salter in his 219th Organ Recital Wednesday afternoon in Chapin Hall. Tchaikowsky's Andantino in modo di Canzona, unique in its variance of quality, offset the mystic and fascinating combinations of Sullivan's The Lost Chord and Mendelssohn-Bartholdy's musical picturization of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," so rich and melodious in tone.

Mr. Salter's complete program was as follows:
Suite Gothique Leon Boellmann
Andantino in modo di Canzona Tchaikowsky
The Lost Chord Sir Arthur S. Sullivan

Amherst and Yale Win Hockey Games

prich, who made the final point for the visitors. Davidson and Worcester played well for Amherst as did Plimpton at goal. Yale's victory over the Purple sextet on Thursday marked the twelfth successful engagement of the season for the winners. Rowse and Captain Becket lead the Williams attack, and likewise showed excellent form in their attempts to stem the Yale tide. Bulkley, Reid and Norris contributed the main features to the victory for the winners, which was due rather to excellent team play than to any individual superiority. More than two complete teams were used by the Blue and White during the contest, but by their well-planned combinations they were able to maintain the advantage consistently.

The line-ups and summaries of the games follow:
Amherst Game:
AMHERST
Davidson r. w. Hemphill Worcester (Capt.) c. Stephenson

Allison r. d. Becket (Capt.)

meet to Amherst by the score of 39-32. Stevens was easily beaten on January 7 by the score of 39-14, and the meet was featured by the breaking of the 220 yd. record by Williams, captain of the Wesleyan team. Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute was defeated, 34-19, and again Captain Williams starred for the winners with two firsts in the 50 yd. dash and the 100 yd. dash, and later in the season Springfield Y. M. C. A. College was trounced 35-18, aided by the work of two new men on the Wesleyan team. In the fourth meet of the season, Yale University, Intercollegiate Champions for the past two years, swamped the Wesleyan team, 46-7, though the quality of the Yale swimmers allows no comparison between the two teams. At Amherst a close meet resulted in a victory for Amherst, 39-32, and again Williams starred for the losers.

Following are the probable entrants:
50 yd. dash—Williams, Dallavo (Wesleyan), Healy, Motter (Williams).
100 yd. dash—Williams, Dallavo, (Wesleyan), Sanford, Wilcox (Williams).
220 yd. swim—Pilat, Thomas (Wesleyan), Kerr, Olmsted (Williams).
Plunge—Southwick, Strickland (Wesleyan), Jones (Williams).
Dives—Morgan, Foster (Wesleyan), Rounds, Webb (Williams).
Relay—Pilat, Thomas, Dallavo, Williams (Wesleyan), Healy, Kerr, Wilcox, Sanford (Williams).

"Opportunity" at the 48th St. Theatre, and in "The Six-Fifty" at the Hudson Theatre. He will play the part of The Reverend James Major Morell in "Candida."

Mr. Henry Mowbray, who takes the role of Loxy Mill this evening, has spent all but the last four years of his stage experience in Australia, where at different times he supported Margaret Anglin and Nance O'Neill. His first appearance in this country was in "Grumpy" with Cyril Maude. Since then he has acted Charles Cherry's part in "Scandal," and early this season played with Lola Fisher and William Courtenay in "Honors Are Even" at the Times Square Theatre.

Miss Gertrude Linnell is, in addition to being an actress, an artist, designing scenery and costumes in her spare moments. In this work she has been associated with Selwyn & Co., The Goldwyn Co. and the Greenwich Village Theatre. She will take the part of Prosperine Garnett in this evening's performance.

Mr. Henry Neville who will play Mr. Burgess, is also an Australian actor with 25 years of stage experience in his own country, the Orient, and the United States. While in the Orient he assumed important roles in a repertory of more than 45 plays, and in this country he has appeared with Marie Tempest in "A Lady's Name"; and with Lyn Harding in "The Devil's Garden," "Seven Days' Leave" and "The Garden of Paradise."

In order that undergraduates may have an opportunity to get a good view of the stage, a section in the central part of Chapin Hall will be reserved for the College until the beginning of the performance.

The entire cast is as follows:

The Reverend James Major Morell
Leonard Willey
Candida Laura Walker
Eugene Marchbanks Frank McEntee
Mr. Burgess Henry Neville
Loxy Mill Henry Mowbray
Prosperine Garnett Gertrude Linnell

Revise Method of Naming Candidate

"In the case of minor elections the Council shall submit not less than three, nor more than four, candidates."

The resolution of the Student Council for the reorganization of the existing Undergraduate Schools Committee was passed as follows:

"The Preparatory Schools Committee shall consist of the Preparatory Schools Chairman and the Presidents of all School Clubs that are recognized by the Student Council.

"The officers shall be a President and a Secretary-Treasurer.

"The president shall be chosen from the incoming Senior Class at a college election to be held during the first week of April. The secretary-treasurer shall be chosen by the Preparatory Schools Committee from among its own membership at the first regular meeting thereafter.

"The outgoing Preparatory Schools Committee shall serve as a nominating body and shall submit the names of not less than three, nor more than four, candidates for the position of President. The nominations must be published in The Record at least one week prior to the college election.

"The chairman shall be accountable to the Student Council for the general policy of the committee, and for the efficient discharging of his duties. The Student Council shall have the power to remove the chairman for neglect in administering the responsibilities of his office, and the power to appoint a successor until the College shall make a new election.

"The Chairman for the coming year shall be elected at a time set by the Student Council."

The report of the Honor System Committee for the first half of the present college year was unanimously accepted. Only one case of alleged violation of the Honor System was reported to the committee, and on investigation this charge was found to be groundless.

There being no further business, the meeting closed with the singing of The Mountains.

on a long shot by Boyer. Blackmer missed from the foul line but in the scrimmage, Kellogg tallied. The next Williams score came on an easy shot by Blackmer on a pass from Fargo. In a scrimmage in mid-floor, Wilson and Boyer collided head on, the Purple captain receiving a bruised temple and the nose of the Tech forward being broken. Tonon was substituted for Boyer and after a clever passing attack Cook tallied for the Engineers. Kellogg increased the Purple lead by a pretty goal from the middle of the court and Blackmer scored again after an exhibition of excellent passing on the part of the Williams forwards. Tonon and Cook tallied for the Engineers and a goal by Fargo completed the scoring for the half. The period ended with the score 15-9 in favor of Williams.

Kellogg was hurt in jumping early in the second half and Wightman was substituted. Davidson, who had replaced Storb, started the scoring by engaging a long shot but Blackmer followed by a very pretty basket on a pass from Wilson. Davidson then scored twice, one shot from under the basket and a long throw from the center of the court. Bretting and Cook were resubstituted for Blood and Coleman, but Bretting was almost immediately put out on personal fouls. The speed and roughness of the game increased. Davidson tied the score on a long shot. Boynton was put out on personals and Pease substituted. Williams was unable to tally again although M. I. T. added four baskets and a foul to their score in a whirlwind finish which the Purple was unable to stop. Coleman scored twice on a quick cut from center to the left of the basket where he received a pass from mid-floor, and Tonon pushed two in from scrimmage. Williams took numerous shots at the Tech basket and the play was remarkably fast in the M. I. T. territory, but the Purple five was unable to cage the ball. The game ended with Tech leading 27-18. The Engineers played a three man offense with two guards back, and the Williams team was forced to adjust their play to meet this attack which accounts largely for the fact that Wilson and Boynton did not score.

The complete summary follows:
WILLIAMS l. f. M. I. T.
J. Kellogg r. f. Boyer
Blackmer c. Storb
Fargo e. Bretting
Wilson (Capt.) l. g. Cook
Boynton r. g. Metcalf
Final score—M. I. T. 27, Williams 18; goals from the floor—Davidson 4, Blackmer 3, Tonon 3, Coleman 2, Cook 2, Fargo 2, Kellogg 2, Boyer 1; goals from fouls—Blackmer 4, Davidson 3. Substitutions—Williams—Wightman for Kellogg, Pease for Boynton; M. I. T.—Tonon for Boyer, Davidson for Storb, Coleman for Bretting, Blood for Cook, Hubbard (Capt.) for Metcalf, Cook for Blood, Bretting for Coleman, Coleman for Bretting. Referee—Kelly. Time—20 minute halves.

The game with Harvard in the Hemingway Gymnasium, Cambridge, was very closely contested and, in the number of field goals shot, Williams excelled. The Purple players were unused to the strict style of the referee and were called many times on technicalities. There were 13 fouls on Williams men in the first half, of which McLeish shot 12. Lowenthal and McLeish played the best offensive game for the Crimson while Blackmer was the individual Purple star with eight field goals and five fouls to his credit.

Lowenthal at left forward started the scoring with a basket on a pass from McLeish and followed it with a lucky shot. Wilson dribbled the ball almost the length of the floor and caged a pretty basket. McLeish missed his first basket from the foul line on his fifth try but he scored a field goal from the scrimmage on a pass from Love. Blackmer tallied from mid-floor but McLeish again got free and scored. Wilson caged the ball for the second time on a pass from Wightman, and Blackmer followed with a difficult corner shot after Fargo had dribbled the ball the length of the court. Blackmer tallied twice more, once on a shot from mid-floor and once on a pass from Fargo. Love ended the period with a basket from scrimmage. Harvard led at half time 22-18 but 12 of the Crimson tallies had come from fouls.

Wightman opened the second half with a long shot into the basket, but the Crimson five staged a sharp rally and scored five goals from scrimmage, three by Lowenthal, one by McLeish and one by Black. The Purple offensive stiffened at this point and Fargo, Blackmer, Wilson and Wightman tallied in quick succession. Black caged a long shot but Blackmer evened it up. Lowenthal scored from a scrimmage under the Purple basket and Blackmer again tallied. Wightman caged a long shot making the score 36-35 for Harvard, but Miller and Rudofsky scored for the Crimson five, giving them the game 40-35.

The complete summary follows:
WILLIAMS l. f. HARVARD
Wightman r. f. McLeish (Capt.)
Blackmer c. Lowenthal
Fargo e. Love
Wilson (Capt.) l. g. Black Boynton r. g. Rudofsky
Final score—Harvard 40, Williams 35; goals from the floor—Blackmer 8, Lowenthal 5, McLeish 3, Wightman 3, Wilson 3, Black 2, Love 2, Fargo 1, Miller 1, Rudofsky 1; goals from fouls—McLeish 12, Blackmer 5. Substitutions—Harvard—Sipp for Love, Miller for Black. Referee—McGuinness. Time—20 minute halves.

1925 Team to MeetDartmouth Freshmen

Series in December and in the intensive practice of the last five weeks. Dartmouth has defeated Tilton Academy 51 to 15 and followed this victory by a more overwhelming one over Tabor Academy in a 51 to 9 score. The Green team also met the strong Sullfield School quintet at Hanover on Tuesday. By the one-sided scores in the two previous games Dartmouth has given evidences of her strength and will undoubtedly offer formidable opposition to the Williams Freshmen. Although considerably disturbed by the loss of Captain Sailer due to ineligibility, Coach Zahn hopes to send to Williamstown a reorganized team that will be substantially as strong as the one that faced Tilton and Tabor before the examination period.

Practicing daily from 4.00 to 5.00 p. m., with scrimmages against the varsity twice a week, the Williams yearling quintet will be in excellent condition for the game. In the last matches against the College team, the 1925 men played their opponents almost to a standstill and have constantly been improving their brand of team-play. The loss of Cook because of injuries and of Fisher from ineligibility has been unfortunate, but with the rest of the squad in good condition Captain Reed has been

WILLIAMS FIVE WILL FACE GARNET QUINTET

Union Has Won Six and Lost Five Games—Was Defeated 22-19 By Wesleyan

PURPLE FAVORED TO WIN

Williams Team is at Top Form Although Beaten by M. I. T. and Harvard

To-morrow night at 8 p. m. the Williams basketball team will oppose the Union College quintet in the Linsell Gymnasium. Both teams have been defeated by Wesleyan, Williams by the narrow margin of 16-14, and Union by the more decisive score of 23-19.

Union has had a fairly successful season thus far, having won six contests out of a total of 11. The visitors have played four more games than Williams, for they opened their season on December 10 and also took a short trip during the Christmas vacation. In the first three games the Garnet played, it came out victorious, defeating New York State College 38-12, Albany Law School 28-19, and Niagara University 15-14.

After these victories, Union suffered a mid-season slump, losing to five aggregations, including Crescent A. C. by the count of 26-19, Rochester 25-16, and Wesleyan 26-19. But in the last two contests the Garnet came back and overwhelmed its traditional rival, Hamilton, 27-12, and the University of Detroit 35-18.

Union began its season with three veterans, Captain Rinaldi, and Schwartz, guards, and Drohan, center, and these men have played consistently good basketball in all the games. Captain Rinaldi, especially has been the star, combining excellent work on the defense with brilliance in shooting. In the last game, Rinaldi caged four goals from the floor, besides making good on nine out of 13 tries from the foul line. Drohan, the center, has had his share in the scoring, too, and is one of the most dependable men with the visitors.

Although Williams has been nosed out of the two last games it has played, losing to M. I. T. 27-18 and to Harvard 40-35, the five day respite it has had should have put it back on its feet in time to win over Union. J. Kellogg played a stellar game against M. I. T., but wrenched the ligaments in his knee and will not be able

1922 TRACK SCHEDULE APPROVED BY COUNCIL

Union, Wesleyan, and Amherst Will Be Opponents of Williams in Dual Meets

April 29—Union at Schenectady.
May 6—Wesleyan at Middletown.
May 13—Amherst at Williamstown.
May 20—N. E. I. C. A. A. at Cambridge.
May 27—I. C. A. A. A. at Cambridge.

Ratification of the 1922 Track schedule was accomplished last week at an Athletic Council meeting. At the same time consideration of the third indoor meet that Williams will participate in took place, and although several were discussed, nothing definite was decided upon.

The schedule for the coming season is practically the same as last year's, while the dates have been slightly moved forward so that the team will have a better opportunity to take part in intercollegiate meets. Union, Wesleyan, and Amherst will be the Purple's opponents in the dual meets, the first two being away, while Amherst will be met on Weston Field. Entries will be made in the N. E. I. C. A. A. and I. C. A. A. A. meets, both of which will be held in Cambridge in the latter part of May. Prospects for the coming season seem bright and indicate another successful year for Coach Seeley.

Prof. Wild to Speak Today

"The Dynamics of the Living Past" is the subject which Professor Wild will present in the sixth number of the Tuesday afternoon lecture course which will be given in the Thompson Physical Laboratory at 4.30 p. m. this afternoon.

Outing Club Carnival To Be Held Tomorrow

Arrangements have been completed by the Outing Club for a winter carnival on a small scale to-morrow, if weather conditions are favorable. The contests will be participated in only by Williams men.

The carnival was originally scheduled for houseparty season and was to be held on February 3 and 4, but the scarcity of snow at that time necessitated its postponement until now. Already a large number of men have signed up for the various events on the entrance cards which have been distributed in the various fraternities and eating houses, and entries may be made up to the actual starting of the events.

In the morning the events will consist of snowshoe and ski cross-country races, which will probably start in front of the Greylock. The ski jumping and proficiency contests in the afternoon will take place on Cemetery Hill, and the other afternoon events will be held where the snow is best suited for them.

The program of events is as follows:
10.30 A. M.—Ski cross-country race, Snowshoe cross-country race.
2.30 P. M.—Ski dashes, Snowshoe dashes, Snowshoe potato race, Ski proficiency contest, Ski jumping contest.

WESLEYAN SWIMMERS WIN DUAL MEET 26-24

Narrow Victory of Red and Black Shows Great Improvement in Purple Team

With a decidedly marked improvement over the showing made against Dartmouth in the meet on February 11, in which the lack of experience was a great handicap, the Williams swimming team narrowly lost to Wesleyan last Saturday afternoon, at Middletown, Conn., by the slight margin of a 26-24 score. Though the Purple aggregation took but two first places in the entire meet, those of the relay and plunge, it was far better balanced than the opposing team, and succeeded in gaining points by the fact that it took three second and five third places.

Captain Williams of Wesleyan was the high point-scorer of the meet with firsts in the 40 and 100-yard dashes, which were made in remarkably fast time, but, with the exception of Pilot, who won the 220-yard swim, the Red and Black squad was practically without other good material. This condition accounts for the fact that Williams took every third place possible and the majority of second positions, while Wesleyan gained four of the possible six firsts.

However the most encouraging feature of the meet was the victory of the Williams relay team, composed of Wallace, Kerr, Sanford, and Healy, which won their event by a few scant inches in the most exciting race of the afternoon. The short lead given to Healy by the previous three Purple swimmers was too much for Williams of Wesleyan to overcome, and the event, 160 yards, fell to Williams in the fast time of 1 minute 23 1-5 seconds. Captain Jones easily won the plunge, doing the 60 feet in 28 seconds, and thereby nearly broke his own record of the pool made there last year. Due to the fact that the Williams divers have had no opportunity to use a springboard in practice this year, the fancy diving was the only event in which the visiting team took a third place alone, and it was this handicap which resulted, in a large measure, in the loss of the meet.

Following is the summary of the events in detail:

40-yd. dash—won by Williams (Wesleyan), Healy (Williams) second, Sanford (Williams) third; Time, 19 4-5 seconds.

Fancy Diving—won by Morgan (Wesleyan), Foster (Wesleyan) second, Webb (Williams), third.

220-yd. swim—won by Pilot (Wesleyan), Kerr (Williams) second, Olmsted (Williams) third. Time, 2 min. 48 sec.

100-yd. dash—won by Williams (Wesleyan), Sanford (Williams) second, Wilcox (Williams) third. Time, 59 1-5 sec.

Plunge—won by Jones (Williams), Southwick (Wesleyan) second, Rubino (Williams) third. Distance, 60 feet in 28 1-5 sec.

160 yd. relay—won by Williams (Wallace, Kerr, Sanford, Healy), Wesleyan second. Time, 1 min. 25 2-5 sec.

SHAW'S 'CANDIDA' IS COMMENDED BY CRITIC

Pet Ideas of Playwright Flavor Amusing Drama Presented by Shakspeare Players

COMEDY IS WELL PRODUCED

Introduction of the Drama Into Thompson Course is Cordially Welcomed

Bernard Shaw came to town again last Friday night, and, unflinching by North Pole weather, the cold magnificence of Chapin Hall, and a cathedral town audience, aired practically all his pet ideas. They are not new ideas nowadays, these darlings of Mr. Shaw, and they have no constructive value at all; but that past master of the showman's business can make even the multiplication table itself an anarchistic document, and when he says, darkly, "Three times nine is twenty-seven," everybody suspects some wicked intent, and cries eagerly, "Do it some more!"

Candida, however, who made her first bow to Williams on Friday evening, is a comparatively harmless and entirely charming lady, and no souls were lost, I venture to say, during her two hours' visit. The play, indeed, although it sets forth the very essence of Shaw's "Doctrine of Reality" in all its branches—the doctrine of disillusionment; the doctrine of woman as the agent of the "Life Force,"

Track Team Entered in American Legion Games

Seven track men, including a relay team, and three men to take part in individual events, will go to the American Legion Games in Boston tomorrow to represent Williams. A strong opponent is expected to oppose the Purple relay team in the Boston University combination, as it recently defeated Tufts in a meet held in Boston.

Mendes, Perkins, Stowers, and Richmond will compose the Williams relay team, and Maekie, who is to be taken as a substitute, will be entered in the 440-yard run. Miller is entered in the 50-yard dash, in which event he will find strong opposition; and Fisce is to run in either the one-mile or three-mile handicap races, but the one he will enter will not be definitely decided until the night of the races.

The Williams team will also be entered in another meet some time in the early part of March, but definite arrangements have not yet been made.

DARTMOUTH FRESHMEN DEFEAT 1925 QUINTET

Superior Teamwork and Excellent Defense Defeats Williams in First Game

Displaying a well developed attack and an excellent defense, the Dartmouth 1925 quintet easily defeated the Williams freshman five by a 25-12 score in a slow and uninteresting game in Linsell Gymnasium last Saturday evening. Reber and Goas starred for the visitors while the playing of Captain Reed and Dugan for Williams prevented the Dartmouth team from increasing the score.

Dartmouth scored first, Reber making a goal from the floor within the first few minutes of play. Goas followed with Dartmouth's second score and Dowling accounted for Williams' first tally. At no time during the game was Dartmouth's lead threatened, the score being 14-5 in Dartmouth's favor at the end of the first period, Reber and Edwards tallying. In the second half several substitutions were made by Williams, Beckwith going to center in place of Dowling, and Danham and Ide returning to right guard and right forward in place of Beckwith and H. C. Brown. Better teamwork was displayed by Williams in this period although the Dartmouth freshmen ran their score up to 25, Chapman, Freidman, Goas and Wiley each accounting for a goal from the floor, and Goas tallying three foul goals. The Dartmouth yearlings showed an exceptionally fine ability in breaking up the Williams offense, only three goals from the floor being made by the latter, one each by Dunham, Dugan and Reed and one foul goal by Dunham making the final score 25-12.

The score is as follows:
WILLIAMS 1925 DARTMOUTH 1925
Dunham, rg Reber, lf
Dugan, lg Freidman, rf
Dowling, c Edwards, c Reed, lf Walker, rg
Ide, rf Goas, lg

Final score—Dartmouth 1925 25, Williams 1925 12; goals from floor—Reber 4, Reed 3, Goas 2, Chapman 1, Dowling 1, Dugan 1, Edwards 1, Freidman 1, Wiley 1; goals from foul—Goas 5, Dunham 1, Reed 1; substitutions—Dartmouth: Chapman for Edwards, Wiley for Reber; Williams: Beckwith for Dunham, H. C. Brown for Ide, Dunham for Beckwith, Beckwith for Dowling, Ide for Brown. Referee—Sullivan. Time—20 minute halves.

Debating Team to Meet Hamilton and Syracuse

Schauffler and Terry '22, and Helfrich and Etheridge '24, the latter serving as alternate, will represent Williams in debates against Hamilton and Syracuse on the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, that it should be the policy of the United States to claim full payment of the debts owed her by the Allied Nations," next Friday and Saturday evenings at Clinton and Syracuse, respectively. Leaving here early Friday afternoon, the Williams speakers will reach Clinton in time to debate at 8.15 p. m. The time for the second debate has also been set for 8.15 p. m.

WILLIAMS SEXTET TIES WEST POINT

Two Extra Periods Fail to Break 3-3 Score in Exciting and Well-Played Game

Marinelli Stars for Army While W. Stephenson Features Attack of Visitors

In the fastest and most interesting game played this season, the Williams hockey team was held to a 3-3 tie by West Point Military Academy last Saturday afternoon on the Stuart Bank, West Point, and for two extra four-minute periods a fierce but fruitless battle was waged to break the tie resulting from the regular 45 minutes of play. Completely recovered from the effects of two defeats sustained during the early part of last week at the hands of Amherst and Yale, the Purple team showed the best form of the year, and succeeded in developing a strong passing offensive game.

Heretofore the individual work of the hockey team has been in evidence more than any cooperative passing and bunched offense and defense, but the defeats brought to light in the two defeats last week, and the practice held subsequently in that connection, produced a marked improvement in the style of playing displayed by the Purple squad. However, West Point has one of the strongest hockey teams in the East, having been defeated by the championship Dartmouth aggregation by the narrow margin of 2-1, and in their center, Marinelli, the Military Academy has a fast and aggressive player who was easily the star of the Army team. W. Stephenson played an excellent game for the visitors, making the first goal of the game and at all times maintaining the fast pace which was set by the West Point players; and Clark and Becket both made better showings than in any previous games this year.

Fast playing and accurate passing featured the game. With the ice in excellent condition, the Army started play at the fastest pace any opponent has heretofore set the Williams sextet. After seven minutes of scrimmage, W. Stephenson caged the first goal of the game, and

SWIMMING TEAM HAS TWO MEETS IN WEEK

Amherst and Springfield College Are Last Two Opponents This Season

In the third meet of the 1922 season, the Williams swimming team will face Amherst, at Amherst, Mass., tomorrow evening, and though the Purple squad has been defeated by Dartmouth and by Wesleyan, all indications point to a close result. Next Friday afternoon the team will swim Springfield Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield, Mass., and since both Amherst and Wesleyan have already defeated the Springfield swimmers by fairly decisive scores, Williams should have little difficulty in winning the fourth contest of the year.

With three victories to its credit out of five meets already held this season, the Amherst aggregation is exceedingly strong, since it was defeated only by the fast Dartmouth and M. I. T. squads. Springfield, Union, and Wesleyan succumbed by the scores of 30-23, 42-10, and 39-32 respectively, while Dartmouth scored a 42-26 victory, and M. I. T. one of 36-32. Captain Damon of Amherst has throughout the season been the one stellar swimmer of the team, and has taken first places in both the 50 and 100-yd. dashes in every meet, breaking the Amherst record in the Wesleyan contest by doing the 100-yd. dash in 58 seconds. Other good material, however, is lacking on the Blue and White squad, and it is in consideration of this fact that the Williams team is hopeful of a possibility of a narrow victory. However, Damon was the intercollegiate champion in the 50-yd. dash last year, and has been the high point-scorer in every meet to date

An Archaic System

Grave criticisms have been levelled at college men of late. President Lowell accuses football of assuming an unjustified prominence at seats of learning. Nicholas Murray Butler calls the modern college "a high-class country club." Prof. Siler of New York University claims that "enjoyment of luxury and ease for four years and a little study on the side constitutes satisfactory fulfillment for requirements of a college degree nowadays." The Philadelphia Public Ledger editorially decries the profligacy of the modern college generation, taking as its starting point the necessity for banning of motor cars at Princeton.

Thus from all over the country come criticisms of the college man in general and of his attitude toward his studies in particular. Perhaps such accusations have been hurled by succeeding indignant elders at each previous college generation in turn; perhaps elements of unrest or increasing luxury have perverted present student bodies beyond all past precedents. In either case, the disease, if disease it be, has stood in need of careful diagnosing and accurate prescription of the proper antidote.

The remedy most frequently suggested is the placing of more emphasis upon scholarship. This is without doubt the general answer to the question, but it is a large order to fill, and the proper choice of method is all-important. The Record is gathering data at present with reference to the precise scholarship situation at Williams, and hopes to offer more concrete suggestions along this line in the near future. But before considering remedies it seems wise to consider the causes which have taken emphasis from scholarship.

Innumerable minor causes have been suggested, from movies to motor cars, but a fact generally overlooked is that ever-growing emphasis upon classroom attendance has been a stable factor running through every situation, bringing into prominence the other alleged causes. Time was at Williams when swearing was a crime severely punished, when Faculty members were required to attend chapel, and ability to write "true Latin prose" was a prerequisite. Those times have passed, but the archaic system of compelling classroom attendance has not passed. On the contrary, additional emphasis is constantly being laid upon it.

It is a conservative estimate to state that from one-third to one-half of the college body are called into the Dean's office each semester to account for "over-cuts." The entire time of one stenographer is occupied by the work of keeping track of these cuts, and the college is paying the salary of a dean to a man who is forced to spend the major portion of his time admonishing students with regard to their cuts, or lack of cuts.

The present system is not only wasteful but unjust in that it does not recognize that the college man has risen to man's estate, and is, or must be made, a responsible being. Lectures, recitations, and laboratory work are not ends, but means to an end. They are aids in securing some of the intellectual results for which colleges have been instituted. The student should be given the freedom of judging for himself to what extent he must use these aids to get the desired results.

If good citizenship is one of the qualities Williams strives to inculcate in its students, then responsibility is the prime requisite that must be stressed in their development. It is the irresponsible vote so frequently bought that good government fears. So, too, if there is an undergraduate who makes no intellectual advance, and shows no interest in making any, he has no right to retain his lodgings in the college building, for which he pays but a trifle, or to call himself a member of the college body. The Record favors giving entire freedom to students in the matter of attendance, but with the understanding that those who fail to attain a fair degree of scholarship will be required to withdraw comparatively early in the academic year.

The faculty have recognized the mental balance of the college man by establishing a Senate, by turning over certain matters of student regulation to the Student Council, by placing disciplinary power in the Honor System Committee. Surely in all this there is some indication that students are more than Lowell or Butler would make them out, that they have other interests besides athletics and social engagements. But in the matter of whether he fails to attend three or four classes in a semester, one of least important affairs of the man's college career, he is restricted by rigid laws that are at times emphasized upon a par with the Ten Commandments. Here the faculty seems to throw overboard, all belief in the student's mental equilibrium.

Once the supervision of the faculty over the cuts a man takes is removed, the responsibility will be placed squarely where it belongs. Failure to pass his examinations will be sufficient proof that the man's sense of responsibility is not sufficient to let him take his place in the ranks of college men going forth to a death-grip struggle with the greatest problems the world has ever known. If other institutions follow the example of Dartmouth in making the man who has flunked out an intellectual outcast, then those men who do not deserve the privilege of a college education will not be able to clog up classroom work as they do today.

20 Years Ago at Williams

The Williams-Amherst relay race at the B. A. A. meet was the most exciting event of the evening, Williams winning in 3 minutes, 12 seconds, the fastest time of the night. Jones of New York University cleared 6 feet $\frac{3}{4}$ inches from scratch in the high jump. Blackmer of Williams and Glidden of Harvard, each with a handicap of 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches, cleared the same height thus tying for second place.

Does it hurt much to own one?

THERE is a campus saying that if a man has won a Phi Beta Kappa key or other honorary fraternity emblem, he had better keep it out of sight when he goes looking for a job.

Still there are men who ranked high at college and who haven't turned out altogether failures in life. Strange though it may seem, more and more such men are winning positions pretty high up in the commercial and industrial world.

Call it chance. Say they succeeded in spite of their scholarship. But, seriously, is it too much to trace a logical connection between a man's proficiency in getting ready for his vocation and his success in that vocation?

Surely it is common sense that the better grip you get on your work now, the more easily you can handle the big jobs later on.

This question of scholarship is far bigger than whether you like a certain emblem and the men who wear it. The value of the emblem is what it stands for—knowledge and the ability to think straight.

Develop this ability where and how you will, but develop it—because in the world of affairs they reward it liberally four minutes after, Clark succeeded in getting the second for the Purple team. In the last half minute of the period, Stevenson of West Point made the first goal for the Army, and the 15 minutes ended with the score 2-1 in favor of Williams. In the second period, J. Stephenson secured a goal after 10 minutes of play, but this was quickly followed by one of Stout of the Army. this season, so that Amherst will have in him an effective scorer who should get a first in both of his events and should aid in the time made by the relay team. Great encouragement is afforded, however, by the improvement shown in the practice held last week of the Williams team, and the strongest squad of the year will face the ancient rival tomorrow, since considerable experience has been gained from the two previous meets already completed.

Comparatively little is known of the Springfield swimmers, except that they have been defeated by Wesleyan, 35-18, and by Amherst, 30-23. Practically the same team that faced Williams last year will represent the Y. M. C. A. College; and in view of the fact that better time is being made by the Purple squad this season than last, it is probable that a victory will be gained in this last dual meet of the year.

BARITONE WILL RENDER POPULAR SONG CONCERT

C. E. Lutton, Accompanied by Grant-Schaefer, is Next Thompson Course Artist

Popular selections will predominate in the recital of songs which Charles Edwin Lutton, baritone singer of Chicago, will present as the sixth number of the Thompson Course entertainments on Friday evening at 8.15 in Chapin Hall. The accompaniments will be played by Mr. Grant-Schaefer of Williamstown, who, having been Mr. Lutton's teacher for a great many years, is amply qualified as his assistant at the piano.

With the end in mind of offering an especially interesting program, selections of popular Old English, Irish, and Negro Songs have been chosen, in addition to a number of selections of a miscellaneous and humorous character. Such songs as Sidney Homer's Casey at the Bat are always received with enthusiasm by college audiences, and Mr. Lutton's program abounds with numbers equally as effective. The entertainer is known as one of America's best interpreters of all sorts of Folk Songs, and his Old Irish and English readings are of exceptional value. A large proportion of the songs to be presented are humorous in character, and all are popular.

The complete program will be as follows:

EXPRESSES NEED OF 'SERVICE TO OTHERS'
Bishop Stearley Addresses W. C. A. on 'Supplementing the Peace Conference'

"Service to others" was the keynote of Bishop Wilson R. Stearley's talk last Sunday evening at the regular meeting of the Williams Christian Association, his subject being "Supplementing the Peace Conference." "All who feel an allegiance to the Christian Church must do their part," he declared, "in establishing a world condition of service to others that will bring about a lasting peace among nations."

Dr. Stearley first discussed the common habit of "too quickly forgetting great accomplishments, as shown by the rapid passing of the strong enthusiasm for a Peace Conference as soon as the Conference was over." He said that the most significant fact of the Conference was the discussion of war in terms of peace.

"Another important result of the Conference is the new idea of service to a nation's colonies that has been developed, an idea that is sure to result in a closer bond between peoples. Yet more than a Peace Conference," declared Dr. Stearley in conclusion, "is necessary in bringing about a lasting peace. Everyone must in his daily life follow out the policy of service to others and thus supplement the work of the Conference in fostering the idea of a universal peace."

After a lapse of 26 years, lacrosse is again to become a University sport at Princeton. This decision was reached recently by the Committee on Outdoor Sports, but it has yet to be ratified by the Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Albert Nies, who is coach of the soccer team at Princeton, will be the mentor of the new sport.

More than usual interest was exhibited by the large number of spectators at each game.

Phi Gamma Delta defeated Phi Delta Theta 22-20 in the first game and Delta Psi 16-14 in the second. Zeta Psi completely outclassed Beta Theta Pi in an 18-2 game. Phi Delta Theta defeated the strong Delta Kappa Epsilon quintet 9-8, McAnany starring for the victors. The strong Alpha Delta Phi aggregation defeated Theta Delta Chi 12-8, while Sigma Phi narrowly defeated Chi Psi 13-12, Reed tallying for the winners. Delta Upsilon playing off a postponed game defeated the Commons Club 10-5 in which Greer '24 starred.

Shaw's 'Candida' is Commended by Critic

the aggressor, the protector; the doctrine of natural instinct as the fundamental principle of all action (they might all, by the way, be summed up in a revised statement of Barrie's title "What every woman knows and few men suspect")—conceals the bitterness of these medicines in a thick sugar-coating compounded of clever characterization, simple humor, highly seasoned dialogue, and a real plot, so that the dose is swallowed with innocent relish by persons of the most conservative appetite. "Solution of the old triangle situation by common sense," remarks one American critic. "The victory of la femme selon Titien over the Scandinavian virago, this triumph of Candida over Nora!" exclaims M. Maurice Muret. Poor old Ibsen, and smart Mr. Shaw, who parades his cosmic notions in a clergyman's drawing-room, while pillars of the Established Church of conventional ideas throughout all the world laugh and applaud. Let them read Mau and Superman, and grow wise.

It seems to me that the clever people of the Shakespeare Playhouse do not put quite enough physic in the pill. At least the drug is too deeply concealed in the sugar-coating. A smack of the bitter would make the sweet doubly sweet, and assure patients that they were really taking medicine. Miss Walker's Candida, for example, is more loving wife, more tender Mrs. Morell with her individual husband to cherish and protect, than world mother and agent of the Life Force. One misses, somehow, the universal application; she is not (to twist Browning's phrase to cover the case) "any wife to any husband." Mr. Willey, who did not equal Miss Walker in artistry, seemed, in spite of that fact, more the "Everyman" of Shaw's parable. Mr. McIntee's Marchbanks, although it was by far the most skilful, the most artful and finished impersonation of the entire performance, does not exhibit the playwright's conception of that character. Marchbanks is an embodied idem, with all the youthful bloom, the wistfulness, the pathos of a mistaken idea struggling in a hostile world. In certain other respects he is cousin to Ariel or Peste, the clown of Twelfth Night; there is the same fantastic imponderability and a hint of a similar mystic significance. Mr. McIntee had a little of this elusive quality, but he made it effeminate and touched it too heavily with primary comic colour. This, "though it make the unskilful laugh, cannot but make the judicious grieve."

The others in the cast, with no apostolic responsibility to preach the Shavian gospel, performed more acceptably their less difficult but no less interesting and important tasks. Mr. Mowbray's curate would be a welcome guest at the most exclusive tea-tables in Barchester or Williamstown; Mr. Neville's Burgess, not an easy role, was an admirable character sketch; and "Prossy" was so well done that we wish she might have had more lines.

The whole performance, although it moved a bit too slowly, with occasional voices from the prompter's box, was marked by that artistic seriousness, that air of intelligence and good breeding, which have given the Shakespeare Playhouse its well deserved reputation. It should become a permanent fixture in the Thompson Course, wherein it scored a triumphant success in a season of unusual brilliance.

The enthusiastic appreciation of an audience largely undergraduate in character proves that the college taste relishes the best modern dramatic art, and that we need not, and should not, rely any longer upon comic appeal of the flying custard pie variety, dramatic tension furnished by blonde heroes snatched from the teeth of buzz-saws, and the pathos of a church choir singing "Nearer my God to Thee" behind a (paper) stained glass window while the Prodigal Son weeps without in a (paper) snowstorm.

The College is again heavily indebted to the generosity of Mrs. Thompson, who has so often brought the best of the metropolis to this Berkshire fastness, and to Mr. Weston, whose labors for our pleasure have been for so many years unselfish and indefatigable.

WILLIAMS FIVE LOSES SLOW GAME TO UNION

Purple Tossers in Severe Slump Meet Defeat at Hands of Garnet Team

BLACKMER IS HIGH SCORER

Rolls Up Nineteen Points for Varsity With Four Baskets and Eleven Fouls

Showing only an occasional flash of offensive play, the Williams Basketball team bowed in defeat to Union last Wednesday evening, 27-23 in a ragged contest played in Lasell Gymnasium. Coordination was plainly lacking in the work of the Purple quintet.

Union, though at times exhibiting a tendency to wild shooting and passing, had a marked advantage in its team work, and its ability to shoot quickly from cramped positions. Williams, on the other hand, was slow in getting rid of the ball, and showed unmistakable signs of individual play.

Blackmer, in spite of the heavy guard laid upon him by the visitors, was able to score 19 of the 23 points made by Williams. Out of these, four were baskets from the floor and 11 goals from free tries out of a possible 15. The only remaining bright spot for the Purple was the guarding of Captain Wilson, which was consistently good, but not as brilliant as usual.

For Union, Nitchman, playing at left forward, was easily the star shooter, accounting for 16 points from eight baskets. Captain Rinaldi at left guard was responsible for nine additional points, one a basket and the other seven fouls. In addition to this, he displayed exceptional ability in passing.

For nearly five minutes after the opening whistle neither team made any sort of active dispute for possession of the ball, and Williams seemed entirely unable to pass. Blackmer and Captain Rinaldi each scored a free try for Williams and Union respectively. Suddenly Nitchman broke loose and tossed the first basket for the visitors. Rinaldi followed this up with another foul. At this point the game grew much faster and Williams staged one of her active spurts. Several times Blackmer broke free for a short dash only to be halted by the Garnet defense as he was about to shoot. An additional tally was made for Williams when he threw his second free try. Abruptly the Purple defense seemed to crumble and Simmons and Rinaldi each scored a basket for the visitors. A second spurt was made by Williams, but to no avail. Nitchman tossed (Continued on Third Page.)

KNOWLEDGE OF PAST ADVOCATED BY WILD

'Dynamics of the Living Past' is Subject Presented at Sixth
Tuesday Lecture

Declaring that "maturity of mind depends upon a knowledge of what has gone before us," and that "the past is the world's one great corrective of national and international conceit," Professor Wild spoke on "The Dynamics of the Living Past" as the sixth number of the Tuesday Lecture Course before a large audience in the Thompson Physical Laboratory last Tuesday afternoon. By apt illustrations drawn principally from literature and the history of classical times, the speaker pointed out that "the past is a release from the howling present, a mind opener, a giver of perspective, and a corrector of false estimates of ourselves and of our own times."

The speaker defined the past as "the body of elapsed time, the great preterite of existence. Sweeping from the events of this morning back to the beginning of things, it has no just demarcations in the mass. Today has its artificial line that marks it off from yesterday, and no one can say where the present ends and the past begins. It is all relative, and depends on the point of view. . . . We know but little about the various fields of the past; in fact, in many respects our knowledge is just beginning."

"There are many ways of looking at the past," claimed Professor Wild, "and, in general, people may be divided into four (Continued on Third Page.)

Percentages Announced For Hockey Competition

Recommendations of candidates from the Sophomore class for the second assistant managership of hockey and of swimming have been announced by Manager Cruse '22 of the hockey team as a result of the recent competition. Five men will be nominated by 1924 when that class meets for this purpose next Monday, and the men nominated will then be voted upon by the student body. The candidate receiving the highest vote at the College election will become second assistant manager of either hockey or swimming, as he chooses, and the man receiving the second highest vote will be second assistant manager of the other sport.

The ratings are as follows: Group I—Bonyng, 97%; McKelvy, 97%; Fawcett, 96%; Merrill, 96%; Starr, 93%; Group II—Canby, 89%; Buck, 88%; Ayer, 87%. Group III—Fuller, 78%.

WILLIAMS WILL FACE M. I. T. SEXTET TODAY

Red and White Has Well-Balanced Team—Season Marked With Varying Success

LAST GAME ON HOME RINK

Williams Will Line Up as at West Point—Team in Good Shape for Contest

In the last hockey game of the schedule to be played in Williamstown, the varsity sextet will meet the M. I. T. team on Cole Field rink this afternoon at 2.45. Although the Cambridge skaters have had far from a successful season, they are represented by a strong aggregation and are expected to offer considerable opposition in today's contest.

A summary of the principal games played by the Engineers shows that victories are credited for them against Yale and M. A. C. and defeats have been administered by Harvard, B. A. A., Boston College, and M. A. C. The first game of the series with M. A. C. was a 6 to 0 victory for the Cambridge men, but in the second game they were not so fortunate, coming out at the short end of a 3 to 2 count. Harvard overwhelmed them 9 to 2, the Boston Athletic Association team defeated them 7 to 1, and Boston College, their chief rival, has twice triumphed, by 3 to 2 and 6 to 1 scores. In the only game from which the comparative strength of the two aggregations may be deduced, M. I. T. on January 7 defeated Yale 1 to 0 in a very close and exciting contest. Five weeks later the New Haven sextet outplayed the Williams team to the tune of a 4 to 0 victory. By the results of these two games the Engineers would seem the favorites for today's contest, but the Yale team is known to have been noticeably weak at the beginning of the season. Scanning the outcome of the games played later in the year, the superiority of the Cambridge team becomes less evident, with perhaps the Purple in better condition than its opponent.

Prof. Cleland to Speak Before W. C. A. Meeting

Professor Herdman F. Cleland will address the W. C. A. tomorrow night at 7.30 in Jesup Hall on the subject "Evolution and the Bible."

He received the degree of Ph.D. from Yale in 1901, and during the same year was instructor at Cornell University. The following year he was called to Williams, and was made Edward Brust Professor of Geology and Mineralogy in 1911. One of his recent works is a text-book for Colleges and Universities entitled Geology, Physical and Historical.

Friday, Feb. 24—Maintaining the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, that it should be the policy of the United States to claim full payment of the debts owed her by the Allied Nations," the Williams debating team will face Hamilton at Clinton, N. Y. this evening at 8.15 and Syracuse University in Syracuse, N. Y., tomorrow evening, at the same time.

Leaving Williamstown early this afternoon, the Williams speakers, Schauffler and Terry '22, and Helfrich '24, with Etheridge '24 as alternate, will arrive in Clinton, N. Y., in time to meet the Hamilton negative team composed of Dean Alfange, Vincent R. Smalley and Harold M. Hartness '22, and Alan D. Lehmann '25, alternate, at 8.15 in the College Chapel. In this debate each of the speakers will be allowed nine minutes for the presentation of his main argument and later six minutes in rebuttal. The names of the men who have been selected to judge upon the merits of the two teams are as follows: Freeman H. Allen, Ph.D., Professor of History and Politics at Colgate University; The Hon. August Merrill, a graduate of Syracuse University and now an attorney at law in Utica, N. Y.; (Continued on Third Page.)

WILLIAMS SWIMMERS SUCCUMB TO AMHERST

Three Tank Record Shattered in Fast Meet Won Decisively
by 34-19 Score

With the breaking of three tank records as the main feature of a fast though one-sided meet, the strong Amherst swimming team defeated Williams for the eleventh consecutive year last Wednesday afternoon at Amherst, Mass., by the decisive score of 34-19. Captain Jones of Williams shattered the tank record in the plunge, Captain Damon of Amherst broke the former time in the 50-yd. dash by 2-5 of a second, and the Amherst relay team took the record for that event in the fast time of 1 minute 44 seconds.

European Students in Great Need of Relief

For the purpose of relieving the severe straits in which the students of Austria, Hungary, Germany, and neighboring countries find themselves in the aftermath of the war as regards food, clothing, and living conditions in general, the World's Student Christian Federation is campaigning for funds to relieve the situation. Highly successful campaigns have been carried on at Princeton and other colleges and universities as well as in the more prominent preparatory schools in the country.

Over 100,000 students in European countries are in dire need of assistance, and it is the plan of the W. S. C. F. to provide them with adequate food and clothing. Relief for Russian students alone will cost $300,000, and nothing can be done until money is obtained for this valuable work which is so important to the complete reconstruction of the countries involved.

FAMOUS BARITONE TO RENDER SONG CONCERT

Charles Edwin Lutton to Present
Sixth Number of Thompson
Course Tonight

Feb. 24—Presenting a popular program made up for the most part of English, Irish, and negro songs, Mr. Charles Edwin Lutton, baritone, of Chicago will entertain the College in the next number of the Thompson Course at 8.15 tonight in Chapin Hall. Accompanied by Mr. Grant-Schaefer of Williamstown, his former teacher, Mr. Lutton will sing selections from his extensive repertoire ranging from the comic to the serious.

In writing of a concert given in Evans-ton, Ill., The Music News says: "Beside having a remarkably good voice, Mr. Lutton has much more—he has the ability to make his audience smile or laugh. Just as he puts in his work more or less of facetious humor, but he is far from being merely a comedian. He is a genuine actor and can compass a wide variety of expression, causing tears and sighs just as readily as smiles and laughter."

"Mr. Lutton," comments another critic, "makes his presentation of folk songs un-canny in fidelity to text meanings and impressiveness of picture making. His voice is under intense control and is decidedly adapted to the range and quality of his songs, and this fact added to his interpretive ability makes his concerts well received everywhere."

Mr. Lutton is ranked as one of the best interpreters of all sorts of folk songs and his Irish and Old English readings are meritoriously well rendered. The program for this evening includes a great number of delightful old compositions and an abundance of songs of a facetious nature, which should prove very entertaining.

The complete program will be as follows: Praise the Lord with Exultation (Psalm 117) Grant-Schaefer
Children of Men (Russell)

Sydney King Russell

Coach Coombs and 'Chief' Bender May Arrive Today

Coach Coombs, accompanied by "Chief" Bender, former star pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics and more recently manager of the New Haven Eastern League club, is expected to arrive in Williamstown today to commence baseball practice. Battery candidates have been working out in the cage under Captain Hoyt, '23 for the past week, and the entire squad will be called out March 1.

Cobb and Wolfe '22, Holmes '23, Gregory '24 and Bernhard '25 have shown excellent form in the workouts, while the list of catchers consists of Reuther and Stephenson '23, and Fisher '25. Two more men Clark '23, and Stephenson '24, will be added to the list of batterymen at the close of the hockey season.

Mr. Johnson to Give Lecture

"The Land of Enchantment" will be the subject of the next Tuesday Lecture to be given by Stephen S. Johnson next Tuesday at 4.30 p. m. in the Thompson Physical Laboratory. The lecture will be illustrated by numerous slides.

MILLER BREAKS TAPE IN 50-YARD HANDICAP

Williams Sprinter Comes in Ahead of Thompson of Dartmouth and Bernie Wefers

Increasing its lead at every lap, the Purple relay team flashed to an easy victory over Boston University in a 1400-dual relay at the American Legion Games held in the East Newton Street Armory, Boston, last Wednesday afternoon. Miller '24, one of the three single entries sent to represent the College, proved to be the "dark horse" of the meet by taking first place in the 50-yard open handicap, winning over Bernie Wefers, Jr., New York Athletic Club, and Earl Thompson, Dartmouth.

Mendes '22, G. F. Perkins '24, Richmond '23, and Stowers '23 ran the relay in the order named, each man running two laps. Mendes, although he did not draw the pole, took the lead at the end of the first lap and finished 15 yards ahead of his opponent. The Boston team, composed of Mathewson, Davis, Akin, and Woodward, did not press the Williams runners after the first lap and finished fully 40 yards behind Stowers at the end of the relay. Williams' time was 2 minutes, 54 and 3-5 seconds.

Among Miller's more noted opponents in the 50-yard handicap dash, who were either eliminated in the early heats or defeated in the finals were Andrew Kelley, N. Y. A. C., who was given 1 yard, Carter of Brown, who started from scratch, Thompson of Dartmouth with a handicap of 1 yard, Kelley of Boston College running with a handicap of 1 yard, Walter Downey of the Paulist A. C. of New York, 1 1/2 yards, and Bernie Wefers of the N. Y. A. C. running scratch. Miller won from Carter of Brown in the second heat and in the first semi-final heat. Carter, Fitzsimmons of Holy Cross, Thompson, Wefers, Downey, and Miller lined up for the final heat, which the latter won in the excellent time of 5 and 4-5 seconds by a margin greater than his handicap of two yards, followed by Fitzsimmons and Downey. Of the other single entries sent to the meet Mackey '23 finished fifth in the 440-yard handicap dash behind E. T. Hornel, and Cass of Boston College, and (Continued on Fourth Page.)

M. A. C. FIVE TO MEET PURPLE IN BASKETBALL

Line-Up of Williams Team May be Shifted Before Ninth Game of Schedule

In an effort to emerge from the slump suffered against Union last Wednesday, the varsity basketball team will face the Massachusetts Agricultural College five in Lasell Gymnasium at 8.00 p. m. this evening. Although the visiting team showed no extraordinary power in its early season games, it has developed a fast attack that has given it victory in its last four encounters.

Judging from the records made by both teams to date M. A. C. is the more powerful combination although both the visitors and the Purple have shown sudden reversals of form during the season. M. A. C. won two games at the start of the year, defeating M. I. T. and Trinity without difficulty, but the Connecticut Aggies halted the Massachusetts team's spurt with a 32-13 setback. M. A. C. then dropped three more contests to Tufts, Harvard, and M. I. T., before finding its stride and winning five consecutive victories from Boston University, Tufts, Middlebury, Connecticut Aggies and Northeastern. Williams has had less success, losing to Wesleyan, Knox and Springfield by two-point margins, overcoming Boston University and Amherst, and again succumbing to M. I. T., Harvard and Union.

The Spirit of the Founder

The man who graduates from any college carries with him the distinguishing characteristics of four years' association and contact with the traditions of his Alma Mater. There is something, for example, that enables even a casual observer to notice the difference between a Princeton and a Dartmouth man. It is an indefinable air, perhaps a manner of talking or a point of view, but it is at once noticeable. This essence of what might be termed collective individuality is without doubt the mark of so-called "college spirit." Where it had its origin, whether it has been formed from the class of men from which the college has drawn its students, or whether by the action of the institution's environment upon the men, it is at times difficult to say. But in any case, there is a useful and inspiring tradition which assigns to the founder of a college all the qualities that go to make up this latter-day "spirit" of the institution which he has founded, and in this light the founder becomes an ideal from which all who later benefit by his philanthropy may draw inspiration.

The men of Williams are proud to acknowledge that their spirit springs from that of Ephraim Williams. He was a representative American of the finest sort, a clean-living, hard-fighting frontiersman. Because of his extraordinary lust for adventure, which he satisfied by going to sea at the age of 18, he unfortunately lacked a liberal education. He regretted this thoughtlessness later and made up for it by bequeathing to posterity an institution whose sole aim is liberal education. Ex-Governor Guild has said of him, "He died the happiest death a man can die, the death of Cushing in his battery at Gettysburg, killed at the head of his men. . . . Here was a man, a type of highly successful leadership in the smaller world of the 18th century, yet pausing on his way to death to aid those who lived after him, not to get more for themselves out of the world, but to make themselves fitter to live in the world."

We undergraduates are prone to forget the spirit of Ephraim Williams, Armigeri. His remains lie under the altar steps in the Thompson Chapel, we see his name on a small tablet in Griffin Hall and on a reproduction of his will, which may be examined in the Library. He is referred to in several of the lighter college songs, but to most of us he is a figure, heroic but hazy and remote. There is no one thing in the life and customs of the College that brings him to mind in the fullness of all for which he stands.

On February 24, 1714, Ephraim Williams was born. This was just 207 years ago, for under the present calendar, the date of his birth would have been March 6, 1715. Is it not fitting that one of these days should be devoted to the formal recognition of the magnanimous spirit of the one who established this college? Every year some day should be set aside by the college body, students and professors alike, to the memory of Ephraim Williams.

In 1800 Nathan Jackson, a relative of the mother of Ephraim Williams, provided a fund to be used annually for a banquet for the entire college in honor of the Founder's birth. This custom fell by the wayside, but was later reinstituted in the shape of a first-class entertainment and suitable exercises commemorating the name of Colonel Williams provided once every four years to afford each college generation the opportunity of attending one such function. The last celebration of this kind was held in 1919.

Such observances are worthy as far as they go, but the mere passage of years should not be allowed to diminish the observance of the Founder's spirit. It seems hard, for example, to require the class of 1923 to go through four years at Williams before being permitted to share fully in this highest tradition which we possess. It may not be possible to hold elaborate annual celebrations, but some simple ceremonies each anniversary, effective through their very simplicity, would help bring home the fact that the spirit of the founder is alive in very truth to-day.

50 Years Ago at Williams

We are glad to be able to say Boating is not dead yet. The enthusiasm is not yet exhausted, though it may, perhaps, be a little drowsy. At present, all's quiet on the Hoosac; the clock is frozen in, the boathouse deserted, the boats neglected; but this is no sign that our oarsmen have given up. A visit to the Gymnasium any afternoon, will show this very plainly. Here these mighty men of muscle may be seen in hot pursuit of the glory that is only to be obtained by the highest physical development.

The Philotechnian Society was presided over by Pres. Doughty. Dunhought '74 read a fine essay, which was followed by the debate on the question, "Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States should be so amended as to recognize the existence of God."

"As long as our Faculty in opposition to the Christian sentiment of the land, offering no reason save that they have the power, deprive the students of innocent pleasure with each other, publicly, in the light of day, at the gymnasium of Amherst College, so long some will continue to seek sinful pleasure with the vile, secretly, in the darkness of night, at brothels of Northampton, Holyoke, and Springfield, so long will the scenes of the past few weeks and months be re-enacted in our midst."—Amherst Student. How is this for affection?

The Khedive of Egypt has started a seminary for the daughters of the lending people of that ancient land. The young ladies will be taught without the veil. Feb. 24, 1872. The Vidette.

SIDES WITH MR. PETTIT

To the Editor of THE RECORD:

Sir:—As a lover of Williams, I cannot refrain from commenting on the letters of James Pettit, '04, your editorial "Radicals and Radicals," and particularly another letter dealing in personalities, all of which have been published recently in the RECORD.

I should like it understood right from the start that I stand squarely behind Mr. Pettit. I have been more than surprised that men like Spargo and Plumb should be allowed to speak before the student body, not because of the men themselves or the ideas they represent, but because the student body, as I see it, is not well able to withstand the flood of impractical idealism. For socialism—radicalism is nothing more or less than impractical idealism.

While I was an undergraduate your editorial "Radicals and Radicals" would have been subscribed to by me without question, but after being out of college fifteen years I put it down as puerile effervescence—harmless, perhaps, but just talk. It misses the point altogether.

Back on the farm in New York State, Father had many thorough-bred horses. In the winter these horses were kept under cover and the very finest care taken of them. They were given the best hay and grain but the fare was never changed, only the finest feed given them every day. I have seen these horses get loose in the Spring and deliberately hunt out some decayed straw, or decayed vegetables which were utterly unfit for food for them, and eat it gluttonously. I would not call one of these horses fed up on fine hay, a good judge of straw or fresh vegetables. I do not believe a confirmed vegetarian a good judge of beefsteak. A babe in arms I should not take as a connoisseur of plum pudding.

Likewise I do not think the average undergraduate, steeped as he is in theory, a good judge of the practicability of railroad legislation even though both sides are presented. He leans naturally toward the theoretical. Nor do I think it wise to supplement the idealism of the study at Williams with more highly impractical idealism in the evening. The undergraduate is subjected to idealism at Chapel every morning and twice on Sundays. In logic, philosophy, political economy, literature, and nearly all lectures in the class room he has idealism poured into him until he reeks with it—until his better judgment is submerged in an ocean of unworkable theories. As a certain Professor used to say, "Theoretically yes, practically no" expresses the position of the average man coming from Williams and the line of differentiation is dim, indeed. I believe that it takes the average Williams man five years or more to rid himself of the "ism" disease deadly enough in any youth, but aggravated by too much theory at college.

I am not decrying idealism but I think the ordinary curriculum of Williams furnishes plenty. I do not believe Williams has any place at all for the impractical theories of men like Spargo or Plumb. Their ideas are all right if you have the perfect man—and given that kind of an individual any old theory will work. In place of such men let me suggest that you have some authority on the subject talk on "Practical Horseshoeing" or "The Modern Plumber," so that the graduate, while reaching for the moon with one hand, may hang on to good old Mother Earth with the other. There is a vast difference between ideals and ideas.

R. H. Case '07.

Amherst Professor Will Conduct Sunday Service

Albert Parker Fitch, D.D., Professor of the History of Religion and Biblical Religion at Amherst College, will be the preacher of the morning tomorrow in the Thompson Memorial Chapel. Dr. Fitch has been a regular preacher at Williams for several years, and is one of the most popular with the undergraduate body.

After graduating from Harvard University in 1900, Dr. Fitch entered the Union Theological Seminary, from which institution he received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity in 1903, and at the same time was ordained to the Congregational Ministry. His first pastorate was at Flushing, L. I., where he remained until 1905, when he was called to the Mount Vernon Church in Boston. Dr. Fitch was elected President of the Andover Theological Seminary in 1909, and remained there until 1918 when he was called to Amherst in 1918. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Amherst College in 1909, and by Williams College in 1914. He is the author of The College Course and the Preparation for Life; Can the Church Survive in the Changing Order?; and Religion and the Undergraduate.

Carnival Again Postponed

Due to unfavorable snow conditions, it was found necessary to cancel the annual winter carnival of the Outing Club which was to be held last Wednesday, Washington's Birthday. This is the second time that the affair has had to be postponed due to poor weather. The officers of the Outing Club have not as yet set another date for the Carnival.

Williams Five Loses

Slow Game to Union

a basket for the Garnet, and soon afterwards Rinaldi pitched a foul. The ball seceded for a few brief moments and then Nitchman made another tally. Suddenly Blackmer, free momentarily from the opponents' guards, shot the first floor basket for the Purple, followed after a brief interval by another. The ball returned to Williams territory. Nitchman scored, and the half ended 17 to 9 in favor of Union.

Williams appeared more determined, and her playing tighter as the second period opened. Blackmer made a free try. The ball passed from one end of the court to the other and back again. Rinaldi scored from the foul line, and a few moments later Captain Wilson dribbled the ball up the entire length of the court for a basket. Rinaldi and Blackmer each made successful free tries for their teams, and Nitchman evened Wilson's basket by a short plunge through the Purple defense. Rinaldi and Blackmer again scored fouls. Hyde was substituted for Wightman. Williams now took another brace, and the play on both sides became more aggressive. Blackmer tossed a beautiful backhand shot for a basket, but Nitchman soon retaliated with one for the Garnet. Blackmer scored two tries from the foul line. Faber was substituted for Schwartz in the Union lineup. Blackmer caged a long shot, and the ball stayed for a while in the shadow of Union's basket. Nitchman, however, suddenly getting possession of the ball, dribbled down the floor for a basket. Fargo tossed the last basket from the floor; Blackmer made a free try; and the final whistle blew with the score 27-23 in favor of the Garnet.

The lineup was as follows:

WILLIAMS	UNION
Wightman, Hyde l.f.	Nitchman
Blackmer r.f.	Simmons
Fargo c.	Bellinger
Wilson (Capt.) l.g.	Rinaldi (Capt.)
Boynston r.g.	Schwartz, Faber

Score:—Williams 23, Union 27; Goals from the floor:—Nitchman 8, Blackmer 4, Fargo, Wilson, Simmons, and Rinaldi 1. Goals from fouls:—Blackmer 11 out of 15, Rinaldi 7 out of 15. Referee, Herron of Springfield. Time of halves, 20 minutes.

Knowledge of Past Advocated by Wild

classes regarding their viewpoint of it. . . . There is a large class, made up of the unthinking and the uneducated, who are wholly indifferent to it; it means nothing to them; they have no traffic with it. . . . For the second group, the past exists, definitely and vividly, but is cleft from the present by an enormous gulf. In their minds there is a sense of impressiveness, but no sense of connectedness.

"To a third group the past is under foot, a known and recognized solid foundation, built up in the process of ages on the lives and institutions of men who have lived their little span; but it is dead—all dead except for the verdure of the present. It is accepted as a great historical fact, nothing more. . . . To those of the fourth group, however, the past is not a dead matter, but a living force, throbbing in the present. They know not only that the present is the immediate phase of the past, but also that all the phases of today's civilization are produced by the energies of yesterday, and that, so far from being dead, the past is the most life-filled thing there is."

The speaker then turned to a consideration of some of the values of the past, showing how, by entering the past, one may escape the "screeching present,"

how, in addition to being a "sanitarium for the nervously prostrated victims of the present," the past is also a place of bracing mental activity where the processes of the mind are not involved with today's routine. Professor Wild also maintained that a study of the past gives one perspective, "bringing one into the white air of neutrality," and showed how many of today's most pressing problems might be more easily solved if we had that freedom from prejudice that is gained from a knowledge of the past.

are veterans, all except Hayden and Dalton having played on last year's team. The outstanding star for them has been Captain Nickle, who is rated as being an exceptionally dependable cage-tender. Without him, according to press reports, Boston College's 6 to 1 triumph over its old rival a week ago would have developed into a walk-away. Dalton at center has proved himself a very capable player, accounting for M. I. T.'s lone tally in the Boston game. The Institute team is a well-balanced combination, although it has been unfortunate in its games with its stronger opponents and will offer formidable opposition to the Williams team.

The Purple will be represented by the same line-up that faced West Point a week ago, when the strong Army sextet was held to a 3-3 tie score. Loves will remain at goal; W. Stephenson and Rowse will occupy the forward positions; Clark will be at center; and Captain Becket and Buell will be mainstays in the defense. Although unable to practice on the ice during the first part of the week, the team is in excellent trim and is confident of exhibiting the same power that was in evidence at West Point.

The probable line-ups of the two teams will be as follows:

WILLIAMS	M. I. T.
W. Stephenson l. w.	Taylor
Rowse r. w.	Hayden
Clark c.	Dalton
Buell l. d.	DuVernet
Becket (Capt.) r. d.	MacNeil
Loves g.	Nickle (Capt.)

and The Hon. Henry D. Williams, a graduate of Cornell, and at the present time also practicing law in Utica.

After spending tonight in Clinton, the Purple speakers will proceed to Syracuse the next morning. Here they will face a negative team from the University composed of the following men: Irving G. Kennedy '22, Bruce Lowry '22, Everett Schults '24, and J. P. Murray, alternate. Up to the present time it has been impossible to obtain the definite list of judges, but it is possible that the first three men from the following group will be chosen: Dr. Wicke, Principal of the Syracuse High School; Mr. Stillwell, a Syracuse Attorney; Judge Devendorf, a justice of the court of Syracuse; Mr. Hancock, President of the City Bank; Mr. Hughes, Superintendent of the Syracuse Public Schools; and The Rev. H. H. Hadley, Rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in that city. In this debate each speaker will be allowed 10 minutes for the presentation of his main subject, and six minutes for a rebuttal. The team will leave Syracuse Sunday noon for Williamstown.

FRESHMEN TO MEET WILLISTON SEMINARY

Yearling Squad Shows Marked Improvement in Preparation for Second Game

Playing their second scheduled game of the season, the freshman basketball team will meet the Williston Seminary quintet at 8.00 p. m. in Linsell Gymnasium. In this game the freshmen will have an opportunity to recover themselves from last week's 25-12 defeat by the Dartmouth 1925 team.

Although the Williston team began the season with practically no experienced men, Coach Denman has developed a formidable quintet which has already a creditable list of victories over teams ranging from high schools to college freshmen. Williston has defeated the strong Springfield College freshmen and the Easthampton High School team. However, the Williston players were forced to a 31-28 defeat in a hard-fought game played against the Springfield College Seniors on Jan. 22. The Suffield School, Milford School, Cushing Academy, and Hopkins School are among the teams already played by the Williston five this season.

Unfortunately handicapped by the ineligibility of Maines and Fisher and Cook's injury, the freshman team has been practicing daily from 4.00 to 5.00 p. m. under the direction of Coach Shanahan, varying the usual drill by scrimmage with the varsity. Development in passing and shooting have been the aims of the last week's practice, and satisfactory improvement has been noticed especially in the work of Captain Reed and Brown.

The probable line-ups will be:

WILLIAMS 1925	WILLISTON SEM.
H. C. Brown r.f.	Sholtz
Reed (Capt.) l.f.	Boutillier
Dowling c.	Meade
Dunham r.g.	Strong
Dugan l.g.	Miles

Williams Swimmers

Succumb to Amherst

By the eight points gained in the relay the first event, a Purple and White victory was assured since it afforded too great a handicap for the Purple swimmers to overcome. Captain Jones easily made 74 feet in his first attempt in the plunge, which broke the former record of 72, and far surpassed the Amherst entrants, who managed to do only 57 feet. Rubino, who has shown remarkable improvement in the last two weeks, took second place for Williams with a plunge of 62 1-2 feet on his second attempt, thereby outdistancing his own previous record. Webb took second place in the diving, doing excellent work in consideration that no opportunity for practice has been afforded, and Healy gained a third place in the 50-yd. dash, which was easily won by Damon of Amherst. In the 100-yd. dash, Damon again took the first position and Sanford gained a third for Williams, though the Amherst captain did not make as good time in this event as was expected. Kerr won the 220-yd. swim, and with a third place taken by Olmsted, the Purple made a better showing in this event than in the others, though all the heavy scoring made by Williams was centered in the plunge.

Two first places in the 220-yd. swim and in the plunge were the only initial positions gained by Williams, and not sufficient second and third places were taken to overtake the lead in points gotten by Amherst in the relay. The Purple and White aggregation was stronger and better balanced than was expected, though the team is built about Damon and the relay squad, and Amherst succeeded in taking several second and third places that the visiting team had previously counted on. The meet as a whole was exceedingly fast, as is attested to by the fact that three records were broken by wide margins, but the Williams swimmers made a showing equal to that presented in the Wesleyan meet, though a far stronger team was encountered.

Following is the summary of the events in detail:
Relay—won by Amherst (Leete, Meyers, Barker, Damon). Time 1 min. 44 secs.
(New tank record).
50-yd. dash—won by Damon (A), Meyers
(A); second, Healy (W); third. Time, 24 2-5 secs. (New tank record).
Diving—won by Bristol (A); Webb (W), second; Lamel (A), third.
220-yd. swim—won by Kerr (W); Leete
(A), second; Olmsted (W), third. Time,
2 min. 57 2-5 secs.
Plunge—won by Jones (W); Rubino (W), second; Soule (A), third. Distance, 74
ft. in 60 secs.
100-yd. dash—won by Damon (A);
Evans (A), second; Sanford (W), third.

M. A. C. Five to Meet Purple in Basketball

over the Purple. M. A. C. divided two games with the M. I. T. quintet that defeated Williams 27-18, capturing the first by a 22-9 count and dropping a return game by the close score of 20-18. Harvard triumphed over the Aggies to the tune of 33-20, and had greater difficulty in vanquishing Williams, 40-35. Boston University has fallen before both teams, losing to M. A. C. 34-17, and to Williams 30-21.

Every man on the Aggies' team has shown up as a star player at some time during the season. Captain Gowdy and Bike are reliable guards, and Tumey from the foul line and Smith from the floor have proved themselves a heavy-scoring pair of forwards. Marshman, the regular center, is at top form after making a slow start.

Coach Shanahan has not made definite selections for the contest this evening, as he has given the squad a severe shake-up after the poor showing made against Union on Wednesday. He has turned his attention since that time chiefly to strengthening the guarding, as the backcourt defense was particularly vulnerable in the last game. The coach announced definitely that no freshmen will be used in the line-up, but it is possible that any member of the first team squad will be called upon to start the game against Massachusetts Aggies.

The probable line-ups follow:

WILLIAMS	M. A. C.
Wightman, Hyde	l. f. Smith
Blackiner	r. f. Tumey
Jayne, Fargo	c. Marshman
Wilson (Capt.)	l. g. (Capt.) Gowdy
Boynton, Pease	r. g. Bike

WILLIAMS SPLITS DEBATES ON TRIP

Purple Loses to Hamilton Friday but Wins From Syracuse on Following Evening

ARGUE CANCELLATION OF DEBTS OWED U. S.

Decisions Are Unanimous in Both Contests—Opponents Excel
in Delivery

On the first two-night trip ever taken by a Williams debating team, the Purple lost unanimously to Hamilton at Clinton Friday evening and won a clean-cut victory over Syracuse, at Syracuse, the following evening. The subject, which was the same in both debates, was "Resolved, that the United States should claim full payment of the debts owed her by the Allied Nations," and Williams upheld the affirmative in both cases.

Besides the three speakers, Schauffer and Terry '22, and Helfrich '24, Etheridge '24, alternate, and Olmsted '22, manager, also took the trip. At Hamilton the winning team, composed of Alrange, Snalley, and Hartness '22, brought forward three main points to prove its case, declaring that Europe could not pay the debts owed to the United States, that if she could pay, the American markets would be flooded with European goods, which would be disastrous to the United States, and lastly that these debts are but our just contribution to the winning of the war and that we owe it to humanity to cancel them. Alrange was the outstanding speaker for Hamilton especially in rebuttal, and the team as a whole showed excellence in delivery.

Five chief arguments were offered by the visiting team: first, that failure to claim payment of the debts would add fuel to the armament race, secondly, that cancellation would establish a dangerous precedent for the future, thirdly, that such a step would interfere with the integrity of international finance, fourthly, that cancellation would be but a gift from the taxpayers of America to the leisure class of Europe, and lastly, that the Vanderbilt plan would be preferable as a remedy for the situation. Helfrich for Williams showed the greatest ability in direct argument, while Terry in rebuttal proved an able counter to the winners' arguments. A unanimous decision in favor of Hamilton was given by the judges, who were Dr. Freeman H. Allen, Professor of History and Politics at Colgate University, Hon. August Merrill (Continued on Third Page.)

COOMBS TO CALL OUT SQUAD ON WEDNESDAY

Will Start Baseball Practice With Material Picked at Close of Fall Season

With the arrival of Coach Coombs in Williamstown last Saturday, practice for the 1922 baseball season took on a more active turn. Battery practice is being held in the cage every afternoon, and tomorrow those men will report who were selected by the coach last fall to comprise the regular squad.

Coombs took active charge of the pitchers and catchers yesterday, although they have been practising under Captain Hoyt for over a week. "Chief" Bender, who was expected to arrive with Coombs, will not reach Williamstown until March 12, and will then assist in training the battery candidates until March 15. The following men are expected to report for work tomorrow, in addition to those who have been working out regularly: Dunn, Elliott, and Harder '22, Bixby, Mallon, Mellen, Monjo, and Ward '23, L. Buck, Fincke, Newhard, and O'Brien '24, and Cook, Dugan, Freeman, Reed, and Sabin '25. Other promising candidates will be available at the close of the hockey and basketball seasons.

There is little likelihood that the squad will be able to do any outdoor work until late in March. Coach Coombs will attempt to make up for the late start during the spring recess, however, when the team will have a week's intensive training. Details of the spring training trip have not as yet been perfected.

European Students to Be Aided by Relief Campaign

In order to provide decent living conditions for the hard-pressed student population of central and western Europe, the World's Student Christian Federation is conducting a campaign for funds among the colleges and universities of this country. Not only will food supplies be furnished to those in dire need, but also efforts will be made to improve the actual conditions under which almost the entire college population has been forced to continue their studies in the countries of this section of Europe.

Last year by the efforts of this organization, over 70,000 students were aided and given the opportunity to remain at their institutions of learning; and this year, if their campaign is successful, over 100,000 will be reached. That the need for assistance is still great is evident from Sir Philip Gibbs's statement that, in the famine region of Russia, all the lectures in the universities are held between ten and twelve o'clock at night, since both students and professors must spend the entire day searching and working for food. Conditions everywhere in this part of the world are the same. If the student of central Europe is to be educated, the college man of America must lend him aid.

SPRINGFIELD SWAMPS WILLIAMS SWIMMERS

Only Two First Places Taken by Purple—Relay Team Loses
by Scant Margin

Displaying a decided improvement over their showing made against the Purple last year, and presenting far superior and stronger opposition than was expected, the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College swimming team defeated Williams last Friday evening in the McCurdy Natatorium at Springfield, Mass., by the decisive score of 33-17. The Purple swimmers were able to take but two first places, those in the 40-yd. dash, the 100-yd. dash, and the diving, and managed to amass a score large enough to prevent any possible victory in the relay from winning the meet for Williams. In that event, however, Springfield early took the lead, and finished several yards before the last Williams swimmer, making the excellent time of 1 minute 23 seconds for 160 yards. Though the final score of the meet would seem to indicate that the Purple aggregation was far outclassed by Springfield, it by no means shows how close the events actually were, for in each of the two dashes and the relay, the Williams men were but a touch behind the leading Springfield swimmers.

Healy and Sanford finished third in the 40- and 100-yd. dashes, respectively, and Webb gained only the third position in the diving, though he was displaying the best form he has shown during the entire season. Captain Eastwood, of Springfield, won the 100-yd. dash in the fast time of 60 1-5 seconds, and also swam (Continued on Third Page.)

Greene '23 Scores at McGill

By winning third place in the ski obstacle race, Greene '23 succeeded in scoring the only point for Williams in the McGill Winter Carnival, which was held in Montreal, Canada, last Friday and Saturday. Crosby '23, the only other man entered in the carnival by the Outing Club, was unable to place in the ski events in which he participated. The meet was easily won by the Dartmouth team, which doubled the score made by McGill. Middlebury College took third place.

Freshmen Elect Baldwin

Alfred G. Baldwin '25, of Amityville, N. Y., was elected to represent the Freshman Class on the Honor System Committee at a class meeting last Friday evening in Jesup Hall.

'AGGIE' TEAMWORK NOTABLE

Blackmer Again Stars for Purple but is Hampered by Gowdy's Work at Guard

In a fast and furious game in which the visitors assumed the lead early in the contest and managed to hold it throughout, the Massachusetts Agricultural College quintet defeated the Williams basketball team, 24-21, last Saturday evening in the Lasell Gymnasium. The playing of the "Aggie" five was featured by the scoring ability of Tumey and the guarding of Captain Gowdy, Blackmer being the outstanding star of the Williams five both in floor work and in tallying.

Two goals from the floor by Tumey in the first five minutes of play gave the M. A. C. team a 4-0 lead, which was brought to a four-all tie by two fouls and a clean shot from the midfloor by Blackmer soon afterwards. Smith caged a floor goal within a few minutes, and from then on the "Aggie" lead was practically safe, though always by a small margin. Wilson's neat shot from the floor was quickly followed by a counter tally netted by Bike on quick pass work, a department in which the visitors were somewhat superior to the Purple. Blackmer netted a foul goal and Tumey split a double try, making the score 14-9. A long run down the court brought Blackmer within shooting distance and he scored another goal from the floor shortly before the half-time whistle blew, leaving the score at the end (Continued on Third Page.)

PERFORMANCE WILL BE GIVEN IN PLAZA HOTEL

'Cap and Bells' to Play in New York Friday and Waterbury
on Saturday

Making the second week-end trip of the year, Cap and Bells will present performances in New York and Waterbury next Friday and Saturday, respectively. Mr. William T. S. Wood has returned to coach the plays for a few days before the trip.

Leaving for New York Friday morning, the company will be entertained at dinner that night by the Williams Club of New York City. Following the dinner, three one-act plays will be presented at the Plaza Hotel at 8 p. m. The plays are "The Crimson Cocoon," "A Game of Chess," and "Ryland," all of which have already been presented successfully at numerous performances. R. M. Gildersleeve '15 is chairman of the committee in charge of the New York performance and is being materially assisted by D. H. Arnold '10, chairman of the Alumni Advisory Committee of Cap and Bells. The advance sale of tickets indicates that the presentation will be well attended.

The next day, Saturday, the plays will (Continued on Third Page.)

Purple Will Send Team to Hartford Industrial Meet

In addition to the relay team, four men will take part in individual events at the track meet to be held under the auspices of the Hartford Industrial League in the Marine Armory of Hartford, Conn., at 7.30 tonight. Among the other colleges taking part in the meet are Amherst, Brown, Colby, Wesleyan, and Yale.

The relay team, composed of Mendes, Perkins, Richmond, and Stowers, will probably meet the teams of both Amherst and Brown in a triangular race, although it has not been definitely decided as yet. Mackie, besides making the trip as a substitute for the relay, has been entered in the 600-yard run, while Miller, winner of the 50-yard dash at the American Legion games last week, will face a strong field in the 75-yard dash. Adams and Fawcett will represent Williams in the one-mile run.

PURPLE HOCKEY TEAM OUTPLAYED BY M. I. T.

Powerful Tech Sextet Overcomes Williams by 2-0 Score in Rough Game

Outplayed by superior team work and a strong defense, the hockey team lost its last home game of the season to the well-balanced M. I. T. sextet last Saturday afternoon on Lake's Pond by the score of 2-0, although a third shot was considered a goal by many of the spectators. After the first period the contest developed into a battle between the rival goal guards, in which Capt. Nickle of the visitors lived up to his wide-spread reputation.

In DuVernet and MacNeil the Engineers presented a stronger defense than the Purple forwards were able to penetrate. Although the Williams players showed great proficiency in carrying the puck individually, they did not seem to have the ability of working well together and were not often able to get within scoring distance of their opponents' goal. Capt. Nickle at goal broke up every Purple attack which was not stopped by the other Red and White defense men, although he was put off the ice three times for kneeling in front of the goal. At least one Purple score was probably prevented by Nickle's fouling in this manner. Aside from the defense men, Dalton contributed most to the Engineer's victory by his all-around playing at the center position.

Clark played a steady game at left wing, but no member of the Williams team in any sense starred. Capt. Becket played with his customary agility and speed and was always successful in carrying the puck into the Red and White defense, but was unable to score. After his substitution in the third period Buell showed up well in the defense position in carrying the puck and in shooting.

The first period opened without advantage to either team until MacNeil's score on a short shot put Williams on the defensive. Many long shots were made after this from both sides; and both goal guards showed up well in this period. Dewey was substituted for W. Stephenson. Better team work was in evidence among the Purple players in the second period, and the puck was kept near the Red and White goal. Dalton scored next for the (Continued on Third Page.)

PROFESSORS' SALARIES TO GET MOST BENEFIT

One-Third of Amount Will be Devoted to Construction of New Gymnasium

Plans are nearing completion for an endowment fund drive to be conducted among the alumni this spring for the purpose of raising $1,500,000, this sum to be devoted in part to provide adequate endowment for the salaries of Williams professors and partly to improve facilities for the physical education of the undergraduate body. April 18 has been set for the opening of the campaign, which will continue until May 9, in the hands of an alumni committee appointed by the Board of Trustees.

Approximately $1,000,000 of the amount to be raised will be used in endowing the salaries of members of the Faculty. The schedule of salaries has already been increased since the war through voluntary gifts of the alumni, through the Loyalty Fund created for this purpose, and through a pledge of $200,000 by the General Education Board contingent upon the raising of the rest of the amount. The purpose of the campaign will be to make good this pledge and to establish a firm foundation for the increased salaries, which will then be more nearly on a par with those in institutions of the standard and size of Williams.

The remaining $500,000 to be raised by the endowment campaign will be expended primarily in the erection of the Williams Triangle, the mammoth gymnasium whose plans and proposed athletic equipment have been described in previous issues of THE RECORD. Among the features contemplated in the new gymnasium are an indoor baseball diamond, basketball and squash courts, and the latest and best gymnastic equipment.

The alumni committee in charge of the endowment drive was chosen by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, and consists of the following men: Arthur H. Masten '76, chairman, E. Dimon Bird '97, Charles D. Makepeace '00, George E. Cullinan '01, Charles M. Davenport '01, Max B. Berking '02. (Continued on Third Page.)

FEELS LIVING GOD IS PROVED BY EVOLUTION

Professor Cleland Before W. C. A.
Replies to Recent Attacks on Darwinism

"Evolution, far from discrediting God, shows us that He is now present in the Universe," asserted Professor H. F. Cleland in his lecture on "Evolution and the Bible," delivered before the most heavily attended W. C. A. meeting of the year in Jesup Hall last Sunday evening.

"Recent discussion on evolution," said Professor Cleland, "has culminated in a bill now before the legislature of Kentucky which will make it a misdemeanor for anyone to teach this theory in any of the schools of that state. Mr. W. J. Bryan has also recently written a book entitled, 'In His Image,' in which he takes occasion to attack Darwinism, something which very evidently he knows nothing about. Men of this type maintain that faith is different from reason. Darwin devoted his whole life for the sake of truth and to justify his life we have St. Paul's statement, 'Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.'"

"Our religious beliefs have been constantly undergoing changes, and without doubt they will continue to change as time goes on. Roger Williams was driven from Massachusetts once for reasons which would indeed seem trivial to us today.

Intellectual Leadership.
Increased Cooperation between Students, Faculty and Alumni.

A Dust-Covered Art

Instruction in good citizenship is one of the things upon which Williams prides itself most. Some of its graduates have gone forth to take a prominent part in public life; others have applied the same qualities less directly but none the less significantly in private life. Chief among these qualities are classed the ability to think intelligently and constructively, to express such thoughts in words, and to carry out those thoughts in actions. The first and last named abilities have been rather carelessly provided for, but little emphasis has been placed upon instruction in the second department of late in comparison with former decades.

This fact has been rather forcibly brought home by the recent trip of the Williams debating team to Hamilton and Syracuse. At the former institution the judges felt that Williams had presented the stronger case, but unanimously awarded the verdict to Hamilton because of its superior delivery. The fact that three years of public speaking are required of each Hamilton student, and that in the course of that three years he usually addresses the entire college body as many as thirty times, suggests a possible explanation of that superiority. Hamilton may be extreme, but at Syracuse the home team again held the edge in delivery and Williams only won its unanimous verdict there through greater argumentative ability. At Syracuse a regular coach of debating is maintained who devotes his entire time to public speaking classes and forensic training. This is similar to the system at Colgate, where one man receives $5,000 annually for simply noting as debating coach, and employs assistants to train other students in various types of public speaking.

The Williams list of debating victories since the war is a long one, but careful observers have commented upon the fact that the advantage in delivery has almost invariably lain with the opposing team. Is the explanation for this found in the fact that Williams men are naturally inferior at delivery, or simply that they are untrained? We incline to the latter view. There seems to be a distinct need for a debating coach, for definite instruction in the art of public speaking.

A plentiful number of undergraduates will in the course of time come into contact with the workings of legislative assemblies or of judicial courts. It would be a rash prognosticator who would point to any individual student and say that that student would never in the course of his life have to address an intelligent audience, never have to respond to an after-dinner toast. Yet the average undergraduate knows little or nothing of the forms of procedure in such cases, and the facilities for learning are utterly inadequate.

Professor Licklider has done commendable work in training Freshmen, but a course with no credit involved does not command respect or serious effort, and the very size of the Freshman Class has necessitated the calling in of inexperienced help. It is unjust to lay the burden of this department upon a professor the major portion of whose time must be devoted to the higher branches of the English department, so that Public Speaking is necessarily a sideline. The proper training in oratory of 150 or so Freshmen, the giving of advanced courses in various types of public speaking, the coaching of debating teams, and the development of Commencement and Moonlight orators comprise sufficient work to occupy the entire time of at least one man. There is a very real need for a trained expert in this line, one whose full ability might be concentrated here. Were the right man secured, it is even possible that he might take over the work of coaching Cap and Bells productions. For the present, however, the crying need is for a combined Coach of Debating and Professor of Public Speaking.

A Word to the Wise

Cuts taken carelessly at the present time count just as heavily as those in the midst of an athletic season. The member of an athletic organization who refuses to make the small sacrifice of conserving his cuts now is guilty of disloyalty. To athletes in particular we commend for careful consideration the following paragraph printed May 31, 1920:

"An almost unprecedented condition has prevailed this spring in regard to athletic teams, which has in many cases been detrimental to success. Men have been prevented from making trip after trip not because of ineligibility due to low scholarship, but merely on account of lack of cuts. And in almost every case this want of cuts has been due to carelessness on the part of the men concerned, not because of illness."

10 Years Ago at Williams

At a meeting of Cap and Bells held last Monday evening in Jesup Hall articles of incorporation were drawn up before Judge Tenney. All of the articles were accepted by the Club with the exception of one clause which was amended to sufficiently extend the powers of the coach with reference to the conduction of rehearsals and the casting of parts.

The first round in the College chess tournament must be played off by Friday.

Plaas for the second annual inter-collegiate balloon race have not yet fully matured, but arrangements are at present under way to start the contest from Kansas City during the summer vacation.

Five copies of the petition to the United States Senate to adopt without amendment the pending treaties with France and England have been sent by President Garfield to Mr. Charles F. Thwing, President of the Intercollegiate Peace Association. The petition, which circulated among the members of the college body, contained the names of over 150 undergraduates.

Committee Nominates Four

Bowen, Clark, Humes, and Olmsted '23 were nominated for the position of President of the Preparatory Schools Committee at a meeting of the Senior Committee held last Tuesday night. In accordance with the resolution recently passed at a College meeting, these four nominees will be voted upon by the College body at the next meeting.

WILLISTON DEFEATS 1925 IN BASKETBALL

Game Grows Exciting as Visitors Hold Score to 14-13—Brown Stars for 1925

Owing to the fact that very inaccurate foul-shooting prevented them from gaining any considerable score, and that all aggressive attack failed to penetrate the opposing defense, the Williams Freshman basketball team was defeated by the quintet of Williston Seminary last Saturday evening in Lasell Gymnasium by the narrow score of 14-13. The 1925 squad showed the same faults that were apparent in the Dartmouth game, and lacked all semblance of co-operation and offensive team-work in taking the ball down the floor to the opposing basket.

Williston took the lead at the opening of the game when good passing and team-work gave the ball to Meade, who made an easy basket. Unable to carry the ball through the opposing defense, Williams tried long shots, one of which Brown caught from beyond the middle of the floor. Meade made a goal from foul and then Scholtz carried the ball up the floor for another score, giving the visitors a 5-2 lead. A goal by Beckwith and two more by Brown put the Freshmen ahead, but Scholtz quickly overcame this with two goals just before the half ended.

With the score 11-9 against them, the Freshmen started the second half with a better grade of playing, and Reed was able to make an easy score. After Dugan's fourth personal foul, Bergen entered the game as substitute in his position. A foul shot by Meade put the visitors one point in the lead. Scholtz and Reed each scored one more each, and the game ended with the visitors playing entirely on the defensive.

The complete summary is as follows:

WILLIAMS 1925	WILLISTON
Reed (Capt.)	l. f. Meade
H. C. Brown	r. f. Boutellier
Dowling	e. (Capt.) Strong
Dugan, Bergen	l. g. Miles
Beckwith	r. g. Scholtz

Final score—Williston 14, Williams 1925—13; goals from floor—Scholtz 4, Brown 3, Reed 2, Meade 1, Beckwith 1; goals from foul—Meade 4, Brown 1; substitutions—Williams: Bergen for Dugan. Reference—Sullivan. Time, 20 minutes first half, 15 minutes second half.

1923 AND 1924 AHEAD IN INTERCLASS RELAYS

Championship to be Decided Next Saturday—Varsity Runners on Both Teams

In the preliminaries of the annual interclass relays held on the board track last Saturday afternoon, the Junior and Sophomore defeated the Senior and Freshmen teams, respectively, thus qualifying to take part in the races which will decide the interclass relay championship. The date for the final race between 1923 and 1924 has not as yet been definitely set by Coach Seelye, but will probably be fixed as next Saturday afternoon.

In the opening race between the Sophomores and Freshmen, the outcome was in doubt until the last lap, when Perkins passed Keep on the farther straightaway and finished first by a margin of seven yards. Winning the toss, the Sophomores took the pole at the start, and Mason gained a yard on Onthank, the 1925 captain. O'Brien increased the sophomore lead and sent Wishard off three yards in advance of Driscoll. But Driscoll, running an excellent race, passed Wishard and gave Keep, the freshman anchor man, a three-yard advantage, which was slowly diminished on the last lap. The time for this race was 3 minutes, 48 seconds.

At the beginning of the Junior-Senior race, Mackie, although he had the pole, lost three yards to Mendes, but Wolfe, the second senior runner, could not maintain the pace, and Webb was enabled to give Fasce a five-yard lead, which was not overcome by Adams, the third Senior to run. Thus the final quarter-mile started with Stowers several yards ahead of Richmond, the senior captain. Richmond ran a fighting race, but could not cut down the distance between them, and Stowers finished first by a comfortable margin, making the time for the mile 3 minutes, 45 seconds.

Seniors Late in Write-Ups

Thirty seniors have as yet failed to hand in their personal write-ups for the Class Book to Ewing '22, and a small percentage have not returned the prints of their individual pictures to Kinsman. They are requested to attend to this matter at once, inasmuch as the delay is withholding necessary work on the book.

Williams SplitsDebates on Trip

of Syracuse University, and Hon. Henry D. Williams of Cornell University.

Williams used substantially the same arguments at Syracuse as at Hamilton, benefitting by the defeat the evening before. The second Syracuse team met Harvard the same evening on the question at Albany, N. Y., defeating the latter 2-1. The delivery of the Purple speakers at Syracuse showed great improvement and power, Schauffer being the strongest Williams debater there and by his rebuttal clinching the debate for the visitors. The Syracuse team was composed of Lowry, Schults, and Kennedy, the latter displaying the greatest ability both in rebuttal and in direct argument. The same three points as those offered by Hamilton were brought forth by Syracuse with the addition of the argument that America will lose the moral leadership of the world by not cancelling the debts owed her by the allied nations. In contrast to the decision of the evening before, the debate was unanimously awarded to Williams by the three judges, the Rev. Bernard C. Clausen, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Professor Henry H. Denham, Principal of the Vocational High School, and Mr. J. O. Whitecomb, a noted publisher, all of Syracuse.

The defeat of Syracuse Saturday, except for an adverse decision given in her debate with Colgate Wednesday evening, was the first defeat suffered in the past two or three years by the former institution. A reception was given the Williams debaters at Hamilton by Professor Calvin L. Lewis, who acted as Chairman of the debate.

anchor man on the relay team, though Healy, swimming the same position, overtook his lead slightly in the last 40 yards of the race. Jones made the length of the tank in 10 seconds less time than was taken by the nearest Springfield entrant, though he did not do as well as he did at Wesleyan in a pool of the same distance. Eastwood, A. Buckema, J. Buckema, and Nichols starred for the opposing team, forming the relay squad and composing practically all the entries in the dashes.

Following is the summary of events in detail:

40-yd. dash—won by A. Buckema (S); Nichols (S), second; Healy (W), third. Time—20 4-5 sec.

220-yd. swim—won by Olmsted (W); Kerr (W), second; J. Buckema (S), third. Time—2 minutes, 51 2-5 sec.

Diving—won by Livingston (S); Abercrombie (S), second; Webb (W), third.

100-yd. dash—won by Eastwood (S); Nichols (S), second; Sanford (W), third. Time—60 1-5 sec.

Plunge—won by Jones (W); Baer (S), second; Rubino (W), third. Distance—60 feet in 31 1-5 sec.

Relay—won by Springfield (Nichols, A. Buckema, J. Buckema, Eastwood). Time—1 min. 23 sec.

of the period: M. A. C. 14, Williams 11.

Jayne was substituted for Fargo at the beginning of the second half, and the play began auspiciously for the Purple, Blackmer caging a neat goal within thirty seconds of the opening of the period, making the score 14-13 in favor of the visiting quintet. A long shot by Marshman put M. A. C. two points further in the lead, several long shots being missed by narrow margins by the Williams team. Tumey's goal and foul in rapid succession was followed by a similar performance by Blackmer, changing the tally to 19-16. Bike and Wilson each dropped a goal, and Fargo was resubstituted for Jayne when the score stood at 21-18. A foul shot by Tumey increased the "Aggie" lead one point; and Hyde was substituted for Wightman of Williams and Roser for Tumey of M. A. C. Tumey replaced Roser again within a minute, and his two fouls, sandwiched between a basket from the floor and a foul by Blackmer made the final result: M. A. C. 24, Williams, 21.

Play was fast throughout the game on both sides, Captain Gowdy of the M. A. C. five doing especially commendable work in guarding Blackmer, preventing that Williams star from scoring a great deal more than he actually did. Fouls, personal and technical, marred the game somewhat. Blackmer dropped seven foul goals in eight tries, whereas Tumey, of M. A. C. was able to cage only eight in 13 attempts. Though the "Aggie" five was well coached and seemed slightly superior in teamwork, the co-ordination of the Purple team was very commendable, and the game was exceedingly interesting throughout. Superior passing by the opponents and the attempt to play too many long shots from the floor, combined with the failure of the Purple in several cases properly to follow up attempts, was in a large measure responsible for the defeat of the Williams team.

The summary follows:

WILLIAMS	M. A. C.
Wightman, Hyde	Smith
Blackmer	Tumey, Roser
Fargo, Jayne	Marshman
Wilson (Capt.)	Bike
Boydton	Gowdy (Capt.)

Field goals—Blackmer 5, Tumey 3, Bike 2, Smith 2, Wilson 2, Marshman 1. Goals from foul—Blackmer 7 out of 8, Tumey 8 out of 13. Time of periods—20 minutes. Referee—Young of Adams.

be given in Leavenworth Hall, Waterbury, Conn. at 8 p. m. According to arrangements made by J. A. Coc, Jr., '20, chairman in charge of the Waterbury performance, St. Margaret's School for Girls and the students of the Taft School will attend the show en masse. There will be no matinee in either New York or Waterbury, but informal dancing will follow both performances. The company, composed of the same men that took the Saratoga trip, will return to Williamstown Sunday evening, March 5.

Alumni Undertake to Raise $1,500,000 Endowment Fund

Marvin A. Chapman '03, and Herbert L. Gutterson '04. The committee has inaugurated a comprehensive fund-raising plan, embracing the use of every alumnus of the College. The movement will be largely personal and without "drive" features. A series of conferences in divisions, states, and districts, and finally in cities and communities in which there are five or more Williams alumni, will be employed to bring the needs of the College before each individual alumnus.

The fund of $1,500,000 will be known as The Williams War Memorial Endowment, and is to be dedicated to the 44 Williams men who died in the War. At present efforts are being made to organize the numerous alumni forces for the campaign.

ments. The God of the New Testament is a God of love and forgiveness. Which conception is the right one? If faith be superior to reason how is one to make his decision?

"The Church has usually opposed the results of scientific research because of reasons of faith. Galileo, for instance, was forbidden to teach that the earth was round. When Darwin stated the theory of evolution in his 'Origin of Species,' published in 1860, the Church believed that the book was a direct attack upon its own person in that it denied the fall of Adam and the infallibility of the Bible. Nevertheless, Henry Ward Beecher, one of the most fearless and one of the greatest preachers whom this country has known, accepted evolution as a religious principle. Beecher believed that the Bible was the gradual and progressive unfolding of human knowledge through the ages. Lyman Abbott, another famous divine, calls evolution the history of a process, or an account of God's way of doing things. The thought which I wish to leave with you is that evolution shows that God is with us now. It justifies Christ's belief that His Heavenly Father is always working in us and about us."

Purple Hockey TeamOutplayed by M. I. T.

Engineers. Pressprich was substituted for Rowse and Hemphill for Clark. The Purple sextet took the offensive in the third period and came close to scoring at three different times. Nickle was penalized successively for kneeling in front of the goal to stop several likely shots made by the Purple pucksters in their effort to tie the score at this time. Buell was substituted for J. Stephenson in the last period.

The line-ups and summary of the game are as follows:

WILLIAMS	M. I. T.
J. Stephenson	c.
Clark	l.w.
Rowse	r.w.
Becket (Capt.)	l.d.
W. Stephenson	r.d.
Lowes	g.

WHICH PRICE?

ONE kind of price, expressed by a set of figures preceded by a dollar mark, represents the largest amount of money a printer thinks he can get out of you and still receive your business. In transactions such as this, all the emphasis is laid upon the notations on your scratch pad and the printer's estimate sheet.

Many, however, fail to realize what lies back of this printer's estimate. While he is granting you a reduction of a few cents on some point he is busily at work with his mind figuring out where he can save those few pennies.

Perhaps, he will substitute a poorer grade paper, or what is more frequently and less noticeably done, he will use a lower grade ink. Or perhaps he will employ old type, whose face has been battered by many years' wear, instead of new, clear cut fonts. Finally, instead of using his good presses, he may put your job on a machine which is inaccurate and sadly in need of repair.

Besides these, there are numerous other 'tricks of the trade' by which your printer can beat you at the game.

What you gain on your memo pad, you lose in his shop

The second price, too, is a set of figures, but on what a different basis is the transaction conducted. There is no memo pad, and the estimate sheet is a mere matter of record.

Instead of a 'contest' over figures, there exists a broad mutual understanding between your printer and yourself. You accept his estimate because you know that it is his bond, that every specification will be filled to the letter and that all the skill and energy of his organization will be exerted to make the finished product match the price.

In return for this whole-hearted co-operation you allow him a fair margin of profit sufficient to create incentive.

When you lose your memo pad, you gain in his shop

Improved passwork, marred by faulty shooting, marked the two games in the third round of the intramural basketball series played in Lasell Gymnasium last Saturday afternoon. More than the usual rivalry and interest were shown both by the contesting teams and by the spectators at each game.

Two of the four contests scheduled for Saturday in League A, had to be postponed. Plying off a postponed game, Phi Sigma Kappa defeated Chi Psi 15-13, Thursday evening. Two periods of five minutes each were necessary to decide the final outcome of the game, in which Bianchi and Mendes starred for the victors and Lyon and Webb for Chi Psi. Beta Theta Pi took the measure of Theta Delta Chi in a closely contested game by a 7-6 score, Vroman starring for the victors. In the second game, the Commons Club defeated Psi Upsilon 16-8, Fincke and Fasse scoring the majority of the points.

The schedule for this week is as follows: Saturday, 2.00 p. m.—Delta Kappa Epsilon vs. Faculty, Sigma Phi vs. Delta Psi. 3.00 p. m.—Phi Delta Theta vs. Phi Sigma Kappa; Phi Gamma Delta vs. Chi Psi. 4.00 p. m.—Alpha Delta Phi vs. Commons Club, Beta Theta Pi vs. Delta Upsilon. 5.00 p. m.—Theta Delta Chi vs. Kappa Alpha, Zeta Psi vs. Psi Upsilon.

Freshman Plays to be Given

Pursuant to the policy employed in the past few years of giving a group of short one-act plays with their casts composed for the most part of freshmen, Cap and Bells has decided to present on Friday evening, March 31, in Chapin Hall, three sketches, which will be selected within the next week.

Trials for all freshmen interested will be held Tuesday evening at 7.30 p. m. in Jesup Hall, and all upperclassmen who have previously been members of Cap and Bells casts and who are desirous of taking part in the plays, should hand their names to President Clark '22 before Tuesday. Mr. Wood, who coached the productions given during the Christmas trip, will also assist in presenting the new plays, and Zalles '22 is to be in charge of the presentation.

To Hold Boy's Club Banquet

Under the auspices of the Boys' Work Committee of the W. C. A., the Second Annual Banquet for the Boys' Clubs of Williamstown and the vicinity will be held on March 16 in either the College Commons or the Town Hall. The idea of having a dinner for the boys of the neighborhood was first tried last year, and proved such a success that it was decided to make it an annual affair. About 125 men in College are invited, and each is expected to bring a boy. Entertainment will be offered in the nature of speeches and music.

'Land of Enchantment' Is Tuesday Lecture Subject

Mr. Stephen S. Johnson of New York City, a member of the U. S. National Park Commission, will give an illustrated talk on the seventh number of the Tuesday Lecture Course today at 4.30 p. m. in the Thompson Physical Laboratory, taking as his subject "The Land of Enchantment." By this title the lecturer has reference to the Colorado River plateau region of Utah and northern Arizona, which was extensively visited by him during the past summer.

Mr. Johnson, a successful business man, has chosen photography for his vocation, and has become one of the best known amateur cameramen in the country. His specialty is the making of colored slides for stereopticon work, and he will accompany his lecture with various views of the great Colorado Plateau. This is the only illustrated lecture that has been offered in the course this year, and it will doubtless prove equally as interesting as Mr. Johnson's talk given last year on a similar subject, that of National Parks.

1924 Debaters Will Meet Freshmen on February 27

Feb. 27—Craig (captain), Herron, Wishard, and Chase, (alternate), compose the Sophomore debating team which will meet the Freshman team in the annual underclass contest tonight at 8 p. m. in Chapin Hall. These men will support the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, that the United States should grant the Philippine Islands their independence within five years," and will be opposed by the freshmen team of Sterling, (captain), Dugan, Keep, and McLaury, (alternate). The length of the speeches will be 10 minutes, with four minutes allowed for rebuttal. Professors Morton and Wild, with another member of the Faculty to be chosen later, will officiate as judges.

PURPLE RELAY MEN DEFEAT OLD RIVALS

Williams Takes Easy Race From Wesleyan and Amherst at Hartford

MILLER FIRST IN DASH

Varsity Sprinter Comes in Ahead of Fast Field in 75-yard Event Tuesday

Taking the lead at the start and increasing it at each lap, the Purple relay men won an easy victory over Wesleyan and Amherst at the Industrial-Athletic Meet and Relay Carnival held at the State Armory, Hartford, Conn., last Tuesday evening. At the same meet Miller '24, crack Williams sprinter, took first place in the Intercollegiate 75-yard dash, equalling the Armory record of 8 seconds flat for that event and defeating such well-known sprinters as Carter of Brown University.

The Williams-Amherst-Wesleyan race was one of eight four-man relays in the meet. Mendes, the first man off the mark for Williams, at the end of the first quarter-mile had secured a slight lead over Richards of Wesleyan, who was about two yards ahead of Wiag, Amherst's first runner. The Purple quartet was never headed, Stowers finishing at least ten yards ahead of Wesleyan's last runner, while Amherst finished a poor third. The Purple's time for the mile was 3 minutes and 45 seconds. Mendes '22, G. F. Perkins '24, Richmond '22, and Stowers '23 ran the relay in the order named. Adams '22 and Fasse '23 failed to place in the mile.

Miller's record of eight seconds was made in the finals of his event, when he was forced to his limit to head Carter, of Brown, finishing only about one foot in advance of the Brunonian. Carroll of Brown finished third. Carter had also equaled the record, when he was forced to the eight second mark to head Feldman of Yale in the second preliminary heat. Coombs, the Yale freshman who recently came into prominence because of his victory last Saturday over "Bob" McAllister, New York's "flying cop," and Bernie Wefers, finished fourth in the finals. The Yale man had pulled a tendon in his trial heat and was unable to show his full strength.

Of the six colleges represented, Williams finished third in number of points, being

UNDERCLASS DEBATE IS WON BY FRESHMEN

1925 Successful in Opposition to Granting of Independence to Philippines

By a two to one vote of the judges, the decision in the annual underclass debate, held Monday evening at 8 p. m. in Chapin Hall, was awarded to the Freshman team, composed of Sterling (Captain), Keep, and Dugan, who upheld the negative side of the question, "Resolved, That the United States should grant the Philippines their complete independence within five years." The decision of the judges, Professors Morton and Wild and Assistant Professor Galbraith, was based upon the superior presentation and force of proof of the 1925 debaters.

Declaring that it is the approved intention of the United States to grant the Philippines their independence as soon as the islands are able to govern themselves, the Sophomore speakers, Craig (Captain), Herrou, and Wishard, sought to prove that already practical self-government exists in the Philippines, a self-government that has worked beneficially during the past few years. The rebuttal of Craig contained the main strength of the losing team, his summing-up being especially effective.

The negative debaters based their argument upon the unfitness of the Philippines for self-government because of their geographical and racial divisions, their openness to foreign aggression or assimilation, and their inability to exert the practical self-government that has been allowed them since the first Wilson Administration. Sterling was the outstanding speaker for the winners and showed ability in presenting his points forcibly and clearly.

President of Rochester Seminary to Preach Here

Morning chapel to-morrow will be conducted by the Rev. Clarence A. Barbour, President of the Rochester Theological Seminary of Rochester, N. Y. Dr. Barbour has been a regular speaker at Williams for several years and gave the baccalaureate sermon at the 1920 Commencement.

Dr. Barbour graduated from Brown University in 1888 and from the Rochester Theological Seminary in 1891. Ten years later he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the University of Rochester and the same degree in 1909 from Brown University. For eight years he served as pastor of the Lake Avenue Baptist Church of Rochester and since 1915 has been President of the Rochester Seminary. He has written several religious books, including The Bible in the World of Today, Principles and Methods of Religious Work for Men and Boys, and Making Religion Efficient.

PROMINENT RAILROAD EXECUTIVE TO SPEAK

Ivy Lee, Pennsylvania R. R. Official, to Address Forum Next Monday

Ivy Ledbetter Lee, Advisor in Public Relations to the Association of Railway Executives and the Pennsylvania Railroad, will address the next meeting of The Forum, which will be held at Hall at 7:30 p. m. next Monday evening, on the subject "The Railroad Crisis, with Special Reference to the Plumb Plan." In his address, Mr. Lee will present a different phase of the railroad situation than that brought out by Glenn Plumb, who addressed the Forum last semester.

Mr. Lee graduated from Princeton in the class of 1898, after which he took up post-graduate work at Columbia and Harvard. For several years he served on editorial staffs of a number of New York newspapers, taking charge of the publicity of the Citizens' Union of New York City in 1903. In 1906 Mr. Lee accepted a position which put him in charge of the publicity of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and two years later established a publicity bureau for that company. In 1909 he resigned his position with this company to take up work with Harris, Winthrop and Company, Bankers, but returned to the Railroad three years later as Executive Assistant to the President.

In 1915 the speaker became a member of the personal advisory staff of Mr. John D. Rockefeller. In addition to his work as advisor to Mr. Rockefeller in matters of public relations, Mr. Lee also serves in a similar capacity for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Freshmen to Meet Union 1925 Quintet

In the third game of the season, the freshman basketball team will oppose Union 1925 this evening at 8.00 o'clock p. m. in the Lasell Gymnasium. Williams 1925 was defeated in both of the former encounters, the first time by Dartmouth by a 25-12 score, and the second time by Williston Seminary by a margin of one point, the final score being 14-13.

The Union freshmen have played seven games so far in their schedule, and up to the contest with Pawling Academy this week, have won three and lost three encounters. Dodd and Barnes have shown up to the best advantage in the foregoing games, and the practice under Coach Murphy has aimed at rounding up the other players into equal form in order to produce a strong combination.

The practice which the Williams freshmen have had since their defeat last Saturday evening has aimed at strengthening the co-operation and offensive team work of the quintet. In the Dartmouth game, inaccurate foul-shooting prevented the freshmen from gaining any considerable score, and attempts have been made in the practice of the past week to bring up the grade of this part of the playing.

The teams will probably line-up as follows: Williams 1925—Reed (Capt.), I. F.; H. C. Brown, r.f.; Dowling, c.; Dugan, l.g.; Beckwith, r.g.; Union 1925—Crocker (Capt.), Cornell, I. F.; Leitzell, r.f.; Barnes, Dodd, c.; Knight, l.g.; Stanley, r.g.

WILLIAMS FIVE WILL MEET WESLEYAN AGAIN

Purple, Once Defeated by Red and Black, Should Make Better Showing Tonight

March 3—Marked improvement has been shown in the practice of the varsity basketball team during the past week, and Coach Shanahan is optimistic about the outcome of the game with Wesleyan at 8.00 p. m. this evening in the Lasell Gymnasium. In the first game with the Red and Black played at Middletown, the Williams quintet succumbed to their opponents to a 25-17 score.

Of 14 games played thus far this season, Wesleyan has won 10, defeating Clark, Stevens, Connecticut Agricultural College, Union, Hamilton, University of Maine, Tufts, Amherst and Williams. The Red and Black five lost to Springfield, Knox, and Massachusetts Agricultural College. In a two game series with Brown, each team won once, Wesleyan by a 39-22 score and Brown by a 38-25 margin. Comparative scores are available for five games. Springfield defeated Wesleyan 35- (Continued on Third Page.)

Coach Coombs's Letter

To the Students of Williams College:

Last year through the columns of The Record I solicited the aid of every man in Williams College to encourage each man upon the baseball squad to train; to criticize, to improve, if he did not. On the whole I believe that the idea and the spirit of the training rules were closely followed. I hope, however, that each member of this year's squad will follow the rules even more diligently. Clean living and strict training are absolutely necessary to success, especially upon the athletic field.

I am sorry to state, nevertheless, that last spring I saw two very promising candidates smoke. I censured them very severely and saw fit to retire them from the squad for the balance of the season. I trust such an occasion will not arise during this spring. The men upon the squad MUST TRAIN. If they do not, I feel that there are many others in College with medium baseball ability who would gladly stop smoking and adhere to rules in order to obtain that coveted prize, a letter. I want every undergraduate, every alumnus, and every friend of Williams College to have the fullest confidence in the men placed upon the baseball field. They will have this assurance only if they are certain that the men are in the best possible physical condition.

I am positive that the team which will represent the college this year will be far better than that of last season. I will work as earnestly as possible and do all that I can to bring this about. Training begins tomorrow evening, (Sunday). Your co-operation and support of the training rules and regulations are eagerly sought.

Thanking you in advance for your hearty consideration of this request, I am very sincerely,

John W. Coombs,

Coach.

1923 Will Meet 1924 This Afternoon in Relay Finals

Having defeated the Senior and Freshmen relay teams respectively the Junior and Sophomore teams will compete for the interclass relay championship at 2.30 this afternoon on the board track. The same men who ran in the preliminaries last Saturday will compose the two teams, the 1923 combination consisting of Mackie, Webb, Fasse, and Stowers, running in the order named, and the 1924 team being made up of Perkins, Mason, O'Brien, and Wishard. From the times of the two teams made in the preliminaries, it would appear that the Juniors are slight favorites, for their time for the mile was 3 minutes and 45 seconds, in comparison to the time of 3 minutes and 48 seconds made by the Sophomores. Each man will run three laps, or a quarter of a mile.

WILL MEET COLUMBIA IN LAST HOCKEY GAME

Blue and White Sextet is One of Speediest Metropolitan Aggregations

With chances only very slightly in its favor the Williams hockey team will face Columbia at New York City this evening at 8.00 p. m. in the last contest of the season. The Blue and White sextet is generally considered to be one of the fastest in the Metropolitan district. Starting its schedule without any coach, and after having had only three opportunities for practice, Columbia fell before Yale, 10-2. In comparison to this there is the mid-season victory of the Eli over the Purple by a score of 4-0. Shortly after this the Blue and White secured the services of Tom Howard, a veteran Canadian star, as coach. Then followed a victory over Princeton, 4 to 3, but close upon the heels of this, a defeat at the hands of U. of Penn, 5-4; and shortly afterwards, a 4 to 3 setback from Hamilton. Dartmouth, with its powerful aggregation, was held to a scoreless tie by the New York skaters, and in the last game played, Columbia administered a 5-1 drubbing to R. P. I. Even at that, the triumph of the Purple over R. P. I. at the start of the season, 9 to 1, is somewhat more decisive. In summary, the Columbia team has lost three games, won two, and tied one. Williams, on the other hand has won three, lost three, and tied one, giving it scarcely a noticeable advantage.

Williams lineup will be radically changed from that used in the game against M. I. T. last Saturday. W. Stephenson will replace Rowse at right wing, and Captain Becket will fill Stephenson's former position at right defense. Buell will take care of Becket's place in previous games at left defense.

Baseball Candidates Begin Practicing Under Coombs

Starting last Wednesday afternoon when Coach Coombs called out the varsity squad for active work, baseball practice has continued every afternoon in the cage. Although activities have been confined thus far to throwing and fielding, the pitchers will be in condition next week to pitch for batting practice.

With Cobb '22, Holmes '23, Gregory '24, and Bernhard and Sablin '25, the pitching squad shows promise of developing under the tutelage of Coach Coombs into a dependable staff. All of these men are showing up fairly well for this early in the season, and should display a marked improvement over the pitching material of the last two years. The receiving end of the battery promises to be well filled with Burger '22, Ruether and Stephenson '23, Stephenson '24, and Fisher '25 as candidates for the back stop position, and of these men Ruether and Fisher have been demonstrating the most marked ability. Judging from the form shown by several new men, the seven letter men for the remaining positions will be hard pressed to retain their positions.

Dr. Proctor to Give Address

Dr. Proctor will address a meeting of the Philosophical Union next Monday evening at 8 p. m. in the Commons Room in Currier Hall. He will take as his subject "Determinism."

STUDENT RELIEF DRIVE LAUNCHED

College Body Unanimously Agrees To Aid Foreign Friendship Movement

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY PORTRAYS CONDITIONS

Purposes and Uses of the Fund Also Described—Campaign is Universal

With the initial pledges amounting to a considerable total, and a large portion of the College Body still uninvolved, the Williams Drive in the Student Friendship Fund was launched, as a result of the vivid portrayal of middle European conditions by Mr. W. H. Tinker, Executive Secretary of the Relief Committee, at a college meeting held last Thursday evening in Jesup Hall. The speaker described his four impressions of university life gained while investigating Germany, Austria, Hungary, Switzerland, and France last winter, and outlined the friendly, sportsmanlike, Christian purposes of the Fund.

Mr. Tinker's first impression was that of the immense congestion in every city in middle Europe, in which thousands of refugees and students have filled to overflowing the previously crowded streets. As a result of these conditions, rents and prices are at great heights, while wages have descended to correspondingly low levels, and the colleges and universities are as equally congested by the ardent European search for knowledge. Tremendous poverty, particularly among the students and professors, was the speaker's second impression, and it was stated that in some countries money has depreciated 1000 times in value, thereby making the student's little money shrivel to practically nothing. Few students have rooms; none of the rooms have heat; only one meal a day, provided by donation; and a universal lack of clothing are some of the appalling conditions with which a European student of today is confronted. As a political element, the great hatred, which these countries and men bear for other countries neighboring to them, is an astonishing factor, and it is one of the highest aims of the Student Friendship Fund to be able to break down the national barriers now existent between these various governments. As a final impression, Mr. Tinker discovered that the European College man, in general, is an unselfish and fine type who is only too willing to forget his

BIG BROTHER BANQUET TO BE HELD MARCH 16

Boys' Work Committee of W. C. A. Plans Dinner for 110 Williamstown Youths

Under the auspices of the Boys' Work Committee of the W. C. A., the second annual Big Brother banquet will be given to about 110 Williamstown boys by an equal number of College students on Thursday evening, March 16, at 6.30 at the Williamstown Opera House. The objects of this gathering are to promote a more friendly feeling between the community and the College, to arouse greater interest in the Boys' Work department of the W. C. A., and to afford the boys of the community the opportunity of meeting the College students.

The invitations to the dinner have been issued, and upon receipt of the reply from each student a boy will be assigned to him as a guest for the evening. Two dollars will be charged each invited student to defray the expenses of the banquet for himself and his guest. Some well-known member of the community will act as toastmaster, and three speakers will be chosen to represent the town, the boys, and the College body. Music and entertainment will be furnished by the students.

The clubs of which the Boys' Work Committee has charge are the Tigers, The Williamstown Boys' Band, St. John's Boys' Club, Clark Chapel Boys' Club, White Oaks Outing Club, and the Boys' Outing Club. The 110 boys who are expected to be entertained at the dinner are all members of these organizations.

A Step Toward the Ideal

THE RECORD takes pleasure in printing in an adjoining column Professor Weston's discerning analysis of the present situation at Williams. It not only comprehends virtually all the facts in the situation, but in its attitude it is representative of a very considerable section of Faculty thought.

The opinion that conditions are at present unsatisfactory seems to be held quite widely among both professors and students. The only question is as to whether a suitable remedy has yet been found. A system of voluntary attendance is generally recognized as being the ideal, and no criticism of it as such has been voiced. It is when practical application is suggested upon a student body which is neither ideal nor perfect that serious objections arise in the minds of those who for years have been forced to combat this fallibility in the modern undergraduate.

Years ago little attention was paid to attendance, and the instructor's satisfaction with the student's work was the requirement emphasized. Some natural abuses arose under those conditions, and the present closely restricted system is the outgrowth of attempts at reform. It is to be questioned, however, whether a reform movement has not overstepped its goal when it ceases to make any considerable distinction between as widely separate quantities as an A man and a D man, or even a Senior and a Freshman. 100% and 50% are different, just as are 17 and 21.

Paternalism has always been the distinctive feature of American education in contrast to European education. We like to train up our lads carefully, pedagogically speaking, rather than to permit them to grow up wild and elip them later. There is a very real danger in the first method, however, which is very difficult to avoid. That is the danger of cultivating such delicate hot-house plants that they are later incapable of healthy existence away from the place of their nurture. This danger is not being wholly avoided in American colleges. Professors wring their hands over the irresponsibility of the average college student with an automobile accelerator under his foot and a few class cuts still remaining at his disposal. But where, pray, has a sense of responsibility been inculcated in him by curriculum pursuits? He is told what he is to study, where and when he must appear, and the only missing link in the chain of commands is the specification of the exact hours of supervised study he is to use in preparation. Should we then be surprised that students have erected a university of their own, a university which secures results, whatever may be argued concerning the value of those results, and which at the same time teaches a very real responsibility? The manager of an athletic team, the editor of a college journal, the leader in student activities of nearly any kind, finds opportunity in these various fields to express his own individuality, to absorb values in his own undisturbed way, and to cultivate responsibility, for the student body is not much interested in means but it inexorably demands results. It is natural under these circumstances that the ambitious man should turn to extra-curriculum pursuits.

In advancing in these columns the suggestion of a system of voluntary attendance, THE RECORD was but pointing out the ideal. In any discussion, no matter how materialistic the subject, it is well to keep relative values and the goals striven for in mind. The practical problem in Williams today involves other considerations, but the ideal should be kept ever before us as a goal.

In arriving at a practical solution, two considerations demand attention. The first is the fact that a proper college life matures a man, and the second is that there are varying grades of men, ranging from those in whom no trust can be laid safely to those who are capable of assuming successfully vast burdens of responsibility. With these considerations in mind, THE RECORD would like to propose for concrete discussion the following system of classroom attendance:

(1) Freshmen—95% attendance required as at present. (2) Sophomores—attendance required as at present, except that present 10% men receive 15% cuts. (3) Juniors—95% attendance required for men with average below C, 90% for those with average above C and below B, 80% for those B or better. (4) Seniors—95% for men with average below C, 85% between C and B, and no required attendance for men with an average of B or better. Some such system has been suggested many times before. Its chief claim to consideration lies in the fact that it strives to place responsibility upon the individual who has proved himself worthy of responsibility.

One of our students has been expelled for robbing our venerable President of some of his early fruit, and being caught engaged in a game of whist.

Perhaps no American Poet has ever obtained equal approbation with Bryant. From his first publication, which was in 1808, until the present time, his writings have always been received with pleasure. And in this instance, the commendation of the public has not been undeservedly bestowed. It is true that Bryant has faults, but they are spots upon the sun, which only increase its brilliancy.

Well may Williams College be proud that the voice of Bryant has echoed through her halls, and that the stream which wanders near her base, will be immortalized in his song.

CLASS-ROOM ATTENDANCE

To the Editor of THE RECORD:
Sir:—Your courteous request for my opinion in regard to the editorial entitled "An Archaic System" in which THE RECORD advocates giving the students entire liberty in the matter of class room attendance, is at hand.

I welcomed the editorial in question as another evidence of the earnestness and idealism with which the entire question of student self-government has been treated by THE RECORD during the present year, but I dismissed it, rather summarily perhaps, as quite impracticable under existing conditions. Your letter forces me to analyse the snap-shot judgment of my first reading.

No one would be rash enough to maintain that conditions in any American college are satisfactory. Countless rules and regulations, irksome alike to students and teachers, have been framed to meet existing conditions. These rules mean the salvation of the unaimed, the halt, and the blind, in whose interests most of them have been formulated, if indeed salvation consists in merely getting a college degree, as many parents and students appear to believe. Educationally, they are frequently wrong as well as unjust to the serious minded student to whom unlimited freedom in all matters academic might safely be given. The methods of conducting most courses are largely determined by the presence of a large proportion of unwilling students who, to quote the editorial in question, "elog up the class room work" and the serious student has a perfect right to complain that he is neglected and not given a fair opportunity to get the most out of his courses. THE RECORD is entirely correct in its analysis of the situation but it suggests a drastic remedy to remove the unfit which would, I fear, result in wholesale slaughter and indignant protests. Perhaps, however, this is merely professional timidity born, of long experience with Trustees, Alumni, and anxious parents.

That optional class room attendance would succeed in the case of serious students is proved by the fact that in some courses at Williams visitors attend classes with the same regularity and derive quite as much benefit from the courses as the students duly enrolled and obliged to attend. In my mind the advisability of greater freedom in attendance becomes a practical question of what proportion of the student body is intellectually serious and responsible. It can be made so by greater liberty. As long as extra curriculum activities dominate the American college and lack of intellectual curiosity prevails, so long in my opinion attendance at classes must be insisted upon unless we deliberately propose a drastic reduction in the number of students. Outside interests and intellectual sluggishness would present obstacles to proper attention to work which the average student would fail to overcome without external pressure.

To give specific answers to your three questions I would say:
First: That the present system is not ideal inasmuch as it is too paternal and does not cultivate personal responsibility which, as THE RECORD points out, should be one of the most important objects of a college education.

Second: That modifications might be introduced in the case of honor students or those who, by some method, can be proved responsible. A step in this direction has been taken already as can be seen in the ten per cent cut regulation and in the fact that students of high standing are granted many academic privileges contrary to the established rules.

Third: That under existing conditions a radical departure from the present usage is not practicable.

The student is not alone to blame for these conditions. It is more especially the fault of the American public and their attitude toward things intellectual. In this country, I believe, we expend more money on educational plants and at the same time take collegiate education less seriously than any other country. There are, however, hopeful signs. Such an advertisement as that of the Western Electric Company, published on the same page as the editorial under discussion, shows that business is beginning to take education seriously. If the public, especially the business world, will insist on the importance of serious scholastic effort, the intellectually lazy student with his gentleman's grade of C will vanish out of the land and I for one would be willing to vote for THE RECORD's radical suggestion in regard to liberty of attendance at college exercises.

A STUDENT RESPONSE

To the Editor of THE RECORD:
Sir:—With all respect to Messrs. Pettit and Case, we must admit that their communications and the editorial on "Radicals and Radicals" has landed us smack up against the alternatives of chewing a post or writing to THE RECORD. The latter expedient is easier on the teeth, which will do as a raison d'être for this note.

It has taken much self-possession and plain "nerve" to "sass back," knowing all the time how much like "puerile effervescence" the talk of such babes in arms as ourselves will sound to men of the world; but out it must.

We wonder whether Mr. Case has stopped to think that there are a few of us in college today who have experienced a own needs in aiding those of another. Following the presentation of actual conditions with an outline of the work of the foreign representatives of the Fund, Mr. Tinker described the organization of a post in any European University, and definitely stated the immense advantages accruing from the contributions being given by 21 countries to aid fellow students in 11 other nations. The young men who are to be affected by this movement are the best life in Europe, and it is a political and Christian duty to play the sport and help lift our conquered foes from their present low level.

Secor '22 made the motion that Williams take a part in the Student Friendship Drive, and it was accepted practically unanimously by the College Body. Blake '22, chairman of the Student Council Committee on the movement, described the method to be employed in canvassing the College, and the meeting adjourned with the singing of the "The Mountains."

headed by Yale and Brown, and defeating Colby, Holy Cross and N. Y. U. The Blue showed exceptional strength in the distance events, taking eight points in the mile run, three in the 600-yard event, and three in the two-mile race. Harold C. Catbill, the "Flying Parson" of Boston, smashed the Armory 1,000-yard mark set by Baker of Yale, negotiating the distance in 2 minutes, 16 1-5 seconds. Harvey A. Mayer, of New York University, took the 600-yard event in 1 minute, 20 2-5 seconds, lowering the former record made on that track.

The summary of heats in the 75-yard Intercollegiate dash is as follows:

First heat—won by Carroll, Brown; second, Nevins, Brown. Time 8 1-5 seconds.

Second heat—won by Comins, Yale; second, Fitzsimmons, Holy Cross. Time 8 1-5 seconds.

Third heat—won by Carter, Brown; second, Feldman, Yale. Time 8 seconds.

Fourth heat—won by Miller, Williams; second, Perlman, N. Y. U. Time 8 2-5 seconds.

Final heat—won by Miller, Williams; second, Carter, Brown; third, Carroll, Brown. Time 8 seconds.

Williams Five Will Meet Wesleyan Again

17 and Williams 26-24; Knox defeated Wesleyan 16-14 and Williams 33-31; Wesleyan defeated Union 26-19, and Union defeated Williams 27-23; Williams defeated Amherst, 33-10, and Wesleyan also defeated the Purple and White, by a 42-12 score. Massachusetts "Aggies" won over both Wesleyan and Williams, winning the former game by a 34-19 score and the latter, last Saturday night, 24-21. The teams would seem to be fairly evenly balanced, and the game promises to be a fast one.

The line-up of the Red and Black for tonight's game will include Captain Robertson, the high scoring star of the team, and Robison as forwards. Parsons and King will fill the guard positions, and Moore will jump center for the Middletown quintet.

Coach Shanahan has announced that the line-up of the Williams team will remain practically the same, with Wightman and Blackmer at forward, Wilson and Boynton in the guard positions. He is undecided as yet whether to play Fargo or Jayne at center. Although the opposition offered by the 1925 quintet has not been as lively as it might be, the team has shown a greater spirit of teamwork throughout the week, and the accuracy of the forwards is gaining steadily.

The line-ups will be as follows:

WILLIAMS	WESLEYAN
Wightman	l. f. Robertson (Capt.)
Blackmer	r. f. Robison
Fargo, Jayne	c. Moore
Boynton	l. g. King
Wilson (Capt.)	r. g. Parsons

Will Meet Columbia

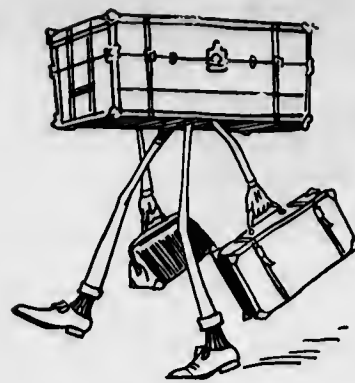

In Last Hockey Game

In the Blue and White line-up Captain Anderson, playing right defense is easily the most spectacular player, and in addition to his general ability, has accounted for most of Columbia's scoring. Rogers, a native of Canada who plays center has also a splendid record behind him, and is an exceptionally fast skater. In Jennings, the goal tender, the Manhattan team has one of the best men it has had in several seasons.

The complete line-ups of the two teams are as follows:

WILLIAMS	COLUMBIA
Stephenson, J	c. Rogers
Clark	l. w. Church
Stephenson, W.	r. w. Rollins
Baell	l. d. Squires
Becket (Capt.)	r. d. Anderson (Capt.)

'CAP AND BELLS' TO APPEAR IN NEW YORK

Dramatic Club to Give Performances at The Plaza and in Waterbury

Mar. 3—In its 12th and 13th presentations of "Ryland," "The Game of Chess," and "The Crimson Cocoon," Cap and Bells will give a performance in the Plaza Hotel, New York City, at 8 p. m. this evening and in Leavenworth Hall, Waterbury, Conn., at 8 p. m. tomorrow evening.
The same program has been successfully presented on a trip during the Christmas vacation and on a recent week-end trip to Glens Falls and Saratoga Springs.

The casts of the plays left for New York this morning, and to-night they will be given a dinner by the Williams Club of New York. R. M. Gildersleeve, '15, chairman of the committee in charge of the performance to-night, and D. H.
Arnold, '10, chairman of the Alumni Advisory Committee of Cap and Bells, have declared that judging from the number of tickets sold large audiences will probably witness the plays. Dancing will follow the performance.

To-morrow afternoon the Cap and Bells men will leave New York for Waterbury, where all arrangements for their reception have been made by J. A. Coe, Jr., '20, the local manager. It is expected that students from St. Margaret's School for Girls and from the Taft School will make up a large part of the audience. There will be informal dancing after this performance also.

Mr. William T. S. Wood, who coached the plays this season, has been in Williamstown for the last few days accompanied by Mr. Arnold, and has been aiding in the final rehearsals.

What you should know about a Fountain Pen

A FOUNTAIN PEN is nothing more or less than a writing instrument which carries its own supply of ink. It is virtually a tube containing ink, with a pen point inserted in one end of it.

The difference in efficiency between one make of fountain pen and another lies in how closely they approach perfection in controlling automatically the flow of ink from the tube to the pen point during the act of writing.

Thirty-eight years ago, Mr. L. E. Waterman invented Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen. It was the first fountain pen with a device that in scientific conception and practical application automatically controlled the flow of ink from the barrel to the point of the pen. It did this with a degree of perfection never before known and which, to the present moment, has never been equalled.

This device is the famous Waterman spoon feed and it can be found only in

WILLIAMS SEXTET BOWS TO COLUMBIA

Purple Loses 5-3 Contest to Blue and White Team Saturday at New York

EARLY ADVANTAGE OF VISITORS IS OVERCOME

Winners Rally After First Period and Prevent Further Score by Opponents

New York, March 4.—In the final game of the season for both teams, the Williams hockey team went down to a 5-3 defeat at the hands of the Columbia University sextet this evening at the 181st Street Ice Palace, in this city. After outplaying their opponents 3-1 in the first period, the Purple sextet suffered a fatal slump which the strengthened Blue and White team used to good advantage by gaining the lead in the second frame and scoring a final goal in the last period.

Williams showed clear superiority in the first period, both in teamwork and in shooting ability. Columbia appeared unable to maintain a strong offensive at this time, and the Purple players easily kept the upper hand. Buell shot the first goal for Williams after five minutes of play, scoring on a long shot from the middle of the rink. Columbia tied the count a minute later when Rollins, the Blue and White left wing, broke loose from a mid-rink scrimmage and made a successful shot on a pass from Anderson. W. Stephenson was the next to score, his close shot from near the Columbia goal on a pass from J. Stephenson, giving Williams the lead again. For the rest of this first period the play was chiefly in the Blue and White territory, and Jennings, the winners' goal-tender, by his excellent defense work, prevented a much larger score. Near the close of this period J. Stephenson tallied the final goal for the Purple sextet from scrimmage, the score at the end of the period being 3-1.

Columbia took and maintained the offensive at the start of the second period, the winners' teamwork being exceptionally good. Rollins and Church led the attack for the home team and worked well together. The former scored early in this period, and Church secured the third tally for Columbia, tying the score at 3 all. With two minutes to play, Rogers gave Columbia the lead with another goal. Williams was unable to score because of excellent guarding by Jennings, who stopped twelve tries in this period. GOOD PROGRESS MADE DURING WEEK IN CAGE

Plans Being Made for Permanent Camp for Baseball Squad's Southern Trip

Commenting upon the work of the baseball squad at the windup of the first week of practice in the cage, Coach Combs expressed himself as "well satisfied with the way that things have gone thus far." "Of course," he added, "it is still much too early to say anything very definite!"

Plans are now being formulated for the trip to be taken during the spring recess, and an effort is being made to find the best possible location. Instead of playing various games in the course of the trip, the squad will be in a permanent camp for almost the entire week, leaving only in time to meet Columbia in New York City on April 12. Between 20 and 25 men will go south, and in this way an opportunity for intensive practice will be offered to a comparatively large group of players. The convenience table will not be started until after the return of the squad from the south. Training rules became effective last Sunday evening.

Now that the pitching staff of six men is in working order, the fielding practice taken up last week will be changed to batting practice for this week, giving at the same time a desirable change in routine. This method of alternating the work of the squad from week to week will be pursued as far as possible while the men are indoors.

Among the twirlers Bernhard '25 has been showing up especially well, and Sabin, the other freshman member of the staff, (Continued on Third Page.)

College Presidents Meet For Discussion of Sports

At the instigation of President Meiklejohn of Amherst, who has recently proposed drastic measures in regard to college athletics and their coaching, a meeting was held at the Richmond Hotel, North Adams, last Saturday afternoon, of Pres. Garfield, of Williams, Pres. Sill of Bowdoin, Pres. Shankland of Wesleyan, and Pres. Meiklejohn, to discuss the condition of sports in the New England Colleges.

No definite steps were taken, though reports of the general circumstances at each of the institutions represented were given, and it was decided to hold another similar meeting at the Kimball Hotel, Springfield, Mass., on March 21st, to which additional New England college presidents are to be invited. Pres. Garfield stated that athletics at Williams were in a perfectly healthy and normal condition, but it is desired to accumulate further opinion on the subject of Intercollegiate Athletics before any definite measures are taken. Pres. Meiklejohn has arranged these meetings in order to clearly define athletic conditions as they are today, and to ascertain what changes, if any, would improve their standing for the best interests of all Eastern Institutions.

WILLIAMS TO ENTER TRIANGULAR CONTEST

Swimming Team to Face Amherst and Wesleyan in Springfield Saturday

In the first meet of its kind ever held between the three colleges, Williams will swim against Amherst and Wesleyan next Saturday evening at 8.00 p. m. in the Y. M. C. A. pool in Springfield. One man will represent each college in each event except the relay, dive and plunge.

The events which will be run off are the 50-yard dash, 220-yard swim, 100-yard dash, back stroke, breast stroke, relay, dive, and plunge. The entrants from Williams will be announced at a later date. In the last swimming meet held, that against Springfield Y. M. C. A. College on February 24 in the McCurdy Natatorium at Springfield, Healy took third place in the 40-yard dash, Sanford third in the 100-yard dash, and Olmsted won first place in the 220-yard swim, his time being 2 minutes 51 2-5 seconds. Jones had little difficulty in winning the plunge in the last time of 31 1-5 seconds, and Rubino took third place in the same event.

When Amherst defeated Williams on February 22, Captain Dunon of Amherst won both the 50-yard and 100-yard dashes, the time in the first being 24 2-5 seconds, the tank record, and in the second event 1 minute 2-5 seconds. Leete took second in the 220-yard swim, and Myers second in the 50-yard dash.

Captain Williams is the star of the Wesleyan team, and this year is doing good work in the 50-yard and 100-yard dashes. Pilat, a Wesleyan freshman, is the team's best 220-yard swimmer. Morgan and Foster, who were the star divers last year, will probably enter the dive and plunge events. There are also two new plungers, Jacobson and Southwick, who may take part in these events.

Swimmers to Hold Trials and Handicap Meet Today

For the purpose of stimulating interest in swimming to bring out available material for the squad next year, and as a means of taking time trials for the triangular meet which is to be held next Saturday, an interclass swimming meet will be held this afternoon in Lasell Gymnasium at 4.30 p. m. All events will be run under the handicap system, the men on the present varsity squad being started at scratch and other entries at various distances of handicap.

Seven events, the 50-yd. dash, 100-yd. dash, 220-yd. swim, 110-yd. breast stroke, 50-yd. back stroke, plunge and relay will be held, and no man will be allowed to enter more than two events and the relay. All men desiring to enter the meet should sign their names on the bulletin board in the Gymnasium before Tuesday, and it is urged that as many as possible report, since good swimmers under the handicap, will have no better chance to win than will those who have not been swimming all winter.

'CAP AND BELLS' AGAIN SCORES GREAT SUCCESS

Club Gives Performances of Three One-Act Plays in Waterbury and New York

Cap and Bells again scored successes in its 12th and 13th presentations of "Ryland," "The Game of Chess," and "The Crimson Coconut" at the Plaza Hotel, New York City, and at Leavenworth Hall, Waterbury, Conn., last Friday and Saturday evenings. As has been the case at previous presentations of the three one act plays, "The Game of Chess," with its intense dramatic appeal and unusually fine acting, made the greatest impression, but both "Ryland" and "The Crimson Coconut" were worthy contestants for the favor of the audience.

Capacity houses greeted the Club at both performances, the audience at the Plaza Hotel in New York being perhaps the largest before which Cap and Bells has presented the three plays. The majority of the 800 people who crowded the Plaza were alumni. As in the past, the excellent work of Youngman '22 and McAneny '23 in the leading parts of "The Game of Chess" attracted attention, but Clark '22 and Dodge '24 also scored personal hits. The work of all the actors, however, has steadily improved with experience and with the coaching of Mr. Wood, and the three plays moved with a sureness and professional touch which everywhere caused favorable criticism.

The Club was entertained at dinner on Friday night before the initial performance at the Williams Club in New York City. R. M. Gildersleepe '15 was the chairman in charge of the New York performance, and he was assisted in his work by D. H. Arnold '10, chairman of the Alumni Advisory Committee of Cap and Bells. J. A. Coe '20 was the local manager for the Waterbury performance, and made all the arrangements for the performance and for the reception of the Club. Dancing followed both performances, the music being furnished by the Williams Orchestra.

RELIEF COMMITTEE TO CONTINUE DRIVE

Seeks to Reach Williams' Quota in Student Friendship Fund Movement

Continuing over the week-end, the Student Council Committee is carrying on the Williams Drive for the Student Friendship Fund, which was started as a result of a talk given by Mr. W. H. Tinker, Executive Secretary of the Relief Committee, before the college meeting last Thursday night in Jesup Hall. Although a count of the pledges received has not yet been made, it is hoped by the committee in charge that with the additional amounts obtained yesterday and today the sum given by Williams will come up to all expectations.

Mr. Tinker's talk left no doubt in the minds of his audience that student conditions in the Universities and Colleges in eleven of the nations of Europe are deplorable, and that all means should be (Continued on Third Page.)

1925 QUINTET BEATS UNION BY 21-18 SCORE

Williams Team Wins Close Victory in Rough Contest—Captain Reed Stars

Scoring 21 points to their opponents' 18, the Williams 1925 basketball team defeated the Union Freshmen last Saturday evening in the Lasell Gymnasium. Captain Reed was the star for the winners, scoring a total of 13 points by two difficult field baskets and 9 out of 13 goals from fouls.

At the opening of the game Leitzel started the scoring for Union 1925 with a free throw. Reed then followed with a free throw and a basket. Stanley made another basket for the Union Freshmen, but Brown evened the score by making a field basket, after which Reed scored two points from fouls. Cornell took the place of Leitzel for Union 1925 at this point, and Ide was substituted for Brown in the Williams Freshman line-up. Another basket for Union 1925 by Stanley ended the first half with the score 7-7.

At the beginning of the second half Leitzel entered the game in Cornell's place. The Williams Freshmen scored 5 points before Union could stop their attack. This lead was maintained until the beginning of the last quarter, when Union 1925 scored on two baskets and a free throw in quick succession, thereby tying the score. Cornell was substituted for Crocker in the Union 1925 team and Beckwith replaced Dowling for the Purple Freshmen. The score remained tied until within a few minutes of the final whistle when a basket by Ide and two points from fouls by Reed gave the victory to Williams.

The line-up and summary follow:

Six Numbers to Compose Mr. Salter's 221st Recital

In his 221st Organ Recital at 4.15 tomorrow afternoon in Chapin Hall, Mr. Summer Salter will present a diversified program of six selections by noted composers. Among this number are Ropartz' Introduction and Allegro moderato, written in 1917 to reflect the virile and heroic spirit of the French people in their struggle for existence, Widor's well-known Sixth Organ Symphony, orchestral in character and scope, and the Prelude to Suite "L'Arlesienne," No. 1, by Bizet, composer of Carmen.

Mr. Salter's complete program will be as follows:

Introduction and Allegro moderato J. Guy Ropartz
Adagio Pathetique Benjamin Godard
Sixth Organ Symphony Charles Marie Widor

Prelude to Suite "L'Arlesienne," No. 1 Georges Bizet

WILLIAMS DEFEATS RED AND BLACK

Quintet, With Improved Teamwork, Averages 16-14 Defeat in Previous Game

BLACKMER SCORES 22 OF 28 POINTS GAINED

Robertson, Wesleyan Captain, Drops 10 Fouls in 14 to Purple Star's 14 in 17

In the last home game of the 1922 season, the Williams basketball team downed Wesleyan, 28-24, last Friday evening in the Lasell Gymnasium. The Purple quintet displayed the improved teamwork predicted by Coach Shanahan previous to the contest, and the unusually strong support of the college body was a big factor in winning the game, which avenged the 16-14 defeat that the Red and Black handed Williams earlier in the season.

The scoring ability of Blackmer, Williams' star forward, was above par throughout the game, and he succeeded in dropping 14 fouls in 17 tries, in addition to caging four goals from the floor. Robertson, the outstanding player of the Wesleyan five, scored 10 fouls in 14 attempts, also netting a single floor goal. Boynton played an excellent defensive game for the home team, although the general aggressiveness of the entire five was of such an excellent character as to make the choosing of individual stars difficult. King, at left guard, played a good game for the Red and Black.

Taken as a whole, the game throughout was fast and rough. Technical and personal fouls were frequent, the Captains of both teams being removed from the lineup as a result of four personals. Wesleyan attempted a number of long, spectacular shots from the midcourt, the majority of which were unsuccessful. The Williams five showed marked improvement in following up attempts at floor goals in addition to a general bettering of teamwork.

From the outset of the first half, the game promised to be fast and interesting. Robertson started the scoring with a foul, but Williams soon went into the lead by field goals by Wightman and Blackmer, and a foul shot by the latter, but the Red and Black team came back with two baskets by Robison, the same number of fouls by Robertson, and a goal by Moore. Two points by Wilson and three foul (Continued on Fourth Page.)

Of the eight games scheduled for the last part of the past week in the intramural basketball series, only one was played off, Sigma Phi defeating Delta Psi 38-13 Friday afternoon in a game marked by the improved teamwork and shooting of the winners. In order to complete the series before the spring vacation, the management has announced that in the future no team will be allowed to postpone a game regularly scheduled.

Those games that have been previously postponed will be played off as soon as possible, Assistant Manager Bixby assigning dates some time this week. The regular schedule for games to be played Saturday is as follows:

A New England Conference

Although the conference of four college presidents in North Adams last Saturday resulted in little more than discussion of the present athletic situation, the interesting result was the decision that the discussion should not stop there but would be continued March 21st in Springfield. It was also agreed that other presidents of New England colleges might be invited.

Such a move is of particular interest because of the possibility of concerted action which it suggests. The West has long recognized the value of such action, and the Western Conference, despite recent unfortunate developments, has been of great value in solving the problems of the institutions represented and in advancing the general interests of all sports.
Close observers feel that intercollegiate athletics are facing a considerable crisis.
The best way to meet and face such a crisis in New England is to form a conference of institutions of about the same rank which can present a united front. Through a central board of control standard eligibility rules could be established that would be applicable to every conference member, and other policies could be determined upon and established that would work for the betterment of sport.

When Wesleyan went down to defeat last Friday night, it was merely an individual game that was won by a hard uphill fight. Fifteen or twenty years ago it might have meant the winning or losing of a league championship. Today we have lost the excitement and value that "league games" afforded without finding any compensating advantages. In consequence THE RECORD would like to propose the establishment of a New England Conference in the interests of intercollegiate athletics. Amherst, Bowdoin, Wesleyan and Williams would form a strong basis to build upon.

An Appeal From Afar

"The work of the European Student Relief has been an important factor in promoting international good-will. I quote again from our talk with ex-Chancellor Michels:

I wish to express the profound gratitude of the German students for what has already been done by the students of the world. The results have not only been in food values, but a basis of communication has been established between other nations and ourselves, and we have learned to work together. A cloud of falsehood about each other has hung over all, but we have seen each other face to face in clarity and truth, and have pierced this cloud, and this is the main result of the help of the European Student Relief. It will ever remain, although the dollar may fail us."

The above extract from a recent communication from Cameron P. Hall '21 sums up his favorable impressions of the Student Relief work after an extensive tour through Germany, Poland, and countries of the former Austrian empire.
In the long run the survival of the states of Central and Eastern Europe will depend largely upon the preservation of an educated class. With conditions desperate abroad as they are, the appeal to American students is a doubly powerful one: to keep men alive, and to keep an educational system in existence.

20 Years Ago at Williams

It has now been definitely decided that the inauguration of Dr. Henry Hopkins of Kansas City, Mo., president-elect of the college, will be held on June 24.

At a meeting of the chess club last Saturday afternoon it was decided to hold the annual Amherst-Williams tournament on May 2 and 3. The following men have been chosen to play in the finals of the college tournament: 1902, Carr, Lynde, Wheelock; 1903, W. H. Brown, Taylor;
1904, Bacon, Boyce, Foster.

The search for the freshman canes by the sophomores was suddenly brought to an end last week by the intervention of Gargyle. This intervention was caused by the fear of faculty action.

The catalogue of 1852 gives tuition at ten dollars a term and board at one dollar and fifty cents a week. The professors' salary was $1000 a year. The commencement in 1852 was August 18 and the exercises took the whole day, and the first term began September 18. The longest vacation was in the winter to allow students to teach. There were thirteen weeks of vacation, now there are sixteen weeks.

CONSERVATISM?

To the Editor of THE RECORD.

Sir:
May I ask the indulgence of a few lines of space in the columns for opinions in which the RECORD assumes no responsibility? I wish none save myself to be answerable for my ideas (or lack of them).
On this basis, I take exception to the views of Mr. R. H. Case '07 (Williams RECORD, issue of Feb. 25, 1922). To my mind he does not carry his ideas of the function of the curriculum and the supplementary educational opportunities at Williams far enough. By all means ban the idealistic effusions of men like Spargo and Plumb.
But this is not enough. The theoretical curriculum must be trimmed to meet the needs of modern industry. Censor religion—let none of the unworkable theories of Christ (for man is not yet perfect) reach the ears of any undergraduate; rewrite history—practical Mr. Hirschfeld has just taken the halo from the visionary Columbus; ban political economy—practically speaking it is all theory; eliminate higher mathematics—arithmetic is all one needs to figure income taxes; ban music, art and literature, ban Latin, Greek, and philosophy—not one will help you shoe a horse; forbid the daily papers in Williamstown—they carry news of anarchy and of Congress's doings; close up Eli Walden's theater—Eugene V. Debs appeared in Pathe news. Let us have no decayed straw like this! Williams men must have the best hay and grain of carefully pruned and selected practicalism, during college and for five years (on the average) thereafter. Then let them, practical men, with feet planted firm on solid mother earth, idle a pleasant hour in dalliance with unworkable theories.

Reorganized 'Deutscher Verein' to Meet Tonight

In the first of a series of regular programs, the Deutscher Verein will meet at 7.45 this evening in the Commons Room, following its reorganization on February 27. At that time 40 men interested in German became members of the reorganized society, and elected as officers the following men: Richardson '22, president; McCloud '22, secretary; Hilton '23, secretary; and Newton '23, treasurer.

Several of the professors of the German Department will deliver short addresses on pertinent topics, and Poel '24 will give an illustrated talk on "The Rhine Legends." A double quartet will then render a program of German folk and student songs. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested to attend this meeting.

Bows to Columbia

strength of the winning team developed greatly during the second frame, but the Purple team was suffering a serious slump and could not meet the attack of the Blue and White.

The final period was a continuation of the second, the losers displaying more individual effort than organized teamwork. Columbia's defense proved impregnable, and further scoring by Williams was blocked. The last score of the game came early in the period when Captain Anderson of Columbia skated through the opposing team for a spectacular score. The play saw-sawed back and forth during the remainder of the game, neither team being able to tally again.

The summary follows:

WILLIAMS (3)		COLUMBIA (5)
J. Stephenson	e.	Rogers
Clark	i. w.	Rollins
W. Stephenson	r. w.	Church
Buell	i. d.	Anderson
Becket	r. d.	Squires
Lowes	g.	Jennings

Goals: Buell, W. Stephenson, J. Stephenson, Rollins (2), Church (2), Rogers, Anderson. Substitution: Williams—Hemphill for J. Stephenson. Referee—R. L. Von Bernuth, St. Nicholas Club. Time of periods—three of 15 minutes.

has also shown considerable improvement. Because of the entirely different conditions between work in the cage and on the diamond, however, notably in the case of pitchers, very little can be hazarded until the squad is on Weston Field.

With the single exception of the addition of E. Smith '25 to the squad, no changes have been made among those originally called out. There is now a question as to whether W. E. Richmond '23 will be able to return to College, and in the event that he should not, several changes may be necessitated in the makeup of the infield.

used to relieve such tremendous need. Having practically no money to begin with, and with the great drop in the value of the currency, the students have almost nothing to live on, and with the low wages paid are unable to obtain any additional amounts. Students and professors alike live in the worst possible dwelling places, have an extremely meager fare, and in many cases must share one outfit of clothing between two men. Not only will the fund help these men get an education, but it will also be instrumental in breaking down national barriers and bring about a more friendly feeling between countries in Europe.

Blake '22, Chairman of the Committee on the movement, wishes it announced that checks for pledges may be obtained at the various fraternity and eating houses, and wishes to urge that everyone subscribe immediately so that a suitably large Williams Fund will be subscribed as soon as possible.

tosses and a basket of Blackmer's with Robertson adding two points by the foul route, placed the Purple in the lead, 12-11. Blackmer made the remaining points for the home team by his foul shooting, while scores by Robertson and Moore gave Wesleyan an advantage of one point at the end of the half.

Robertson and Robison brought the Red and Black total up to 19, but baskets by Wilson and Blackmer evened the count. Continued cheering at this time played a large part in the rally made by the team. Blackmer's foul shooting was largely responsible for bringing the score up to 25-21 in favor of Williams, which lead was maintained for the rest of the game. Fouls eged by both Robertson and Blackmer and a basket for the latter ended the scoring, the final count being, Williams 28, Wesleyan 24.

Students Opposed to Bonus

Signed by approximately all of the ex-service men in College, a petition advocating the immediate defeat of the Soldier Bonus Bill at present before Congress was recently sent to Representatives Dillinger and Underhill and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts. The petition was strong in the declaration of the belief that the large bonus which is at present under consideration would be against the principles of American government.

Although he was in Europe at the time when questionnaires were sent out to all college presidents concerning their opinions upon the issue, President Garfield has since emphatically expressed his opposition to the plan as outlined by the Soldier Bonus Bill.

Wesleyan Defeated Last Week by Amherst—Williams Line-Up
is Unchanged

With a quintet that exhibited unexpected strength and scoring power in defeating Wesleyan last Saturday by the score of 44 to 42, Amherst will meet the Williams basketball team in its final game of the season this evening at 8.00 p. m. in Pratt Gymnasium. The Purple and White met defeat at the hands of Williams on February 11 by the decisive score of 32 to 10 but in more recent games has shown much greater strength.

Lamberton at center and Stewart at left guard were the individual stars of the Amherst team in playing Wesleyan. Kyle, a new man, distinguished himself at right forward in handling the ball and in shooting four field goals. Captain Elliott is looked upon as a dangerous forward but was slightly injured in the game on Saturday, and it is not certain that he will start in the line-up tonight. At an earlier date, February 18, Wesleyan defeated Amherst by the score of 42 to 14, from which it is (Continued on Third Page.)

GOthic NOVEL FORMS SUBJECT OF LECTURE

'Walpole, Radcliffe, and Blackwood Representative Authors'
Says Prof. Maxcy

Tracing the development of the Gothic novel from its birth in the eighteenth century to the present generation, Professor Maxcy delivered a lecture on "When Ghosts Walked in the English Novel" last Tuesday afternoon as a number of the Tuesday Lecture Course. Horace Walpole, Anne Radcliffe, and Algernon Blackwood were chosen for detailed treatment as representative of the beginning, the further development, and present-day excellence, respectively, of this type of novel.

"The story designed for the purpose of arousing terror is one of the oldest forms of literary composition," Professor Maxcy began. "Weird tales of ghosts and goblins have been popular from biblical times up to the present day, as the countless mass of fairy tales, romances of adventure, and war tales of horror can testify. But what is known as the Gothic novel came into being in 1764 when Horace Walpole produced 'The Castle of Otranto.'"

Professor Maxcy then gave a resume of (Continued on Third Page.)

Do You Know

That the first American scientific expedition to be organized, equipped, and sent forth by a college was dispatched to Nova Scotia by Williams in 1835? A second expedition was sent to Florida in 1857, and a third explored the Amazon from source to mouth in 1865.

Shooting Practice Begins on Gun Club Range Today

For men interested in the Gun Club, shooting practice will begin this afternoon on the Club's range on the Stetson Road near the hockey rinks. Shells and clay pigeons will be furnished to aspiring trapshooters at especially reduced prices.

Plans for a scratch shooting tournament to be held on the Club's range about the middle of April were made at a meeting of the Gun Club last Friday evening. At the same time it was decided to hold a handicap tournament sometime in May. Both shoots will be open to the college body and will be contested at a distance of 15 yards from the clay pigeons. Prizes will be awarded, pending a later announcement.

SWIMMING TEAM IN SPRINGFIELD TODAY

'Little Three' to Hold Triangular Swimming Meet in Springfield 'Y' Tank

Leaving Williamstown this morning, nine members of the swimming team will make the Springfield trip to represent the College in the triangular meet between Amherst, Wesleyan, and Williams which will be held in the pool of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. at 7.30 p. m. tonight. Although no radical changes have been made in the entry list, regular practice has been held every afternoon this week, and Coach Fowler will be able to enter his strongest team in tomorrow's meet.

In view of the fact that both Amherst and Wesleyan have previously defeated the Purple in dual meets the chances for Williams to win today's contest appear rather slim, but the time of several men has been brought down materially since these meets, and consequently the Williams aggregation will be stronger than earlier in the season. The ruling that each college may enter only one man in each event will prove a handicap to Williams, inasmuch as Captain Jones '23 and Rubino '22 would both probably have placed in the plunge.

Captain Williams of Wesleyan and Captain Damon of Amherst are expected to score heavily for their respective teams. The former will be a formidable contender in the breast stroke and in the 100-yard dash, while his team mate Pilot, who has already beaten Kerr of Williams, is expected to win the 220-yard dash. Captain Damon should have little difficulty in winning the 50-yard dash, and will help materially to cut down the time of the Amherst relay team, but in the 100-yard dash he will have a dangerous opponent in Williams of Wesleyan.

The Williams entry list has not as yet been definitely decided upon, but will be practically as follows: 50-yard dash—Luedke '22 or Sanford '24; 100-yard dash—Wilcox '22 or Kerr '24; back-stroke—Olmsted '24; breast-stroke—Olmsted '24; plunge—Jones '23; dive—Webb '23; relay—Luedke '22, Healy '24, Sanford '24, and Motter '25. (Wilcox '22). While in Springfield the team will stay at the Hotel Kimball.

Lehman Cups Are Offered in Track Meet Next Week

Open to all undergraduates regardless of class or previous experience, the annual track meet for the Lehman Cups will take place on the board track and in Lasell Gymnasium the early part of next week, the exact days being as yet undecided. Two silver cups, awarded each year for the last 22 years by Herbert H. Lehman '99, will be given as prizes to the two highest-point winners.

All entries should be turned in immediately to Manager Richardson '22, Captain Phillips '22, or Coach Seeley. Late entries, however, will be received at any time up to the beginning of the meet. Points will be given in the indicated order to the first five men in the following events: 35-yard dash, first heat (5, 3, 2, 1, 1/2); high jump (one point for every inch over 4 ft. 6 in.); 440-yard run (10, 7, 4, 2, 1); 40-yard low hurdles (5, 3, 2, 1, 1/2); 35-yard dash, second heat (5, 3, 2, 1, 1/2); 40-yard high hurdles (5, 3, 2, 1, 1/2); 880-yard run (10, 7, 4, 2, 1); Shot put (one point for every 6 in. over 29 ft.); Potato race (10, 7, 4, 2, 1); Mile run (10, 7, 4, 2, 1).

W. C. A. PLANS ANNUAL LIFE-WORK INSTITUTE

Prominent Men Secured to Give Addresses on Careers Open to College Men

TO HOLD SEVEN MEETINGS

F. L. Hilton, C. T. Terry, and J. E.
King to Speak—First Talk on March 19

For the seven days commencing Sunday, March 19, the Williams Christian Association is planning to inaugurate its first annual Life-Work Institute. Each evening an address will be given by some man of note upon the particular profession that has proved of most appeal to him, and concrete reasons for following that line of occupation will be given to those who are interested in an exposition of its merits.

With the object in view of choosing only such professions as would most strongly attract the average College man, the W. C. A. has outlined a program of seven addresses, every one of vital importance to the student faced with the necessity of arriving at a decision as to his life-work. The subjects for the talks in order of occurrence will be: "Values to be Considered in Choosing a Career," "Medicine," "Banking and Finance," "The Law," "Journalism and Advertising," "General Business," and "The Ministry."

1922 AND 1924 TIED IN CLASS SWIMMING

Seniors and Sophomores Each Win 20 Points—Third Place to Freshmen With 14

In an interclass swimming meet held for the purpose of stimulating interest in that sport last Tuesday afternoon in Lasell Gymnasium, the Seniors and Sophomores tied for first place with 20 points each, and the Freshmen took third with 14 points. Owing to a scarcity of Juniors with nautical ability, the class of 1923 was not represented in the contest.

Six events comprised the program of the meet, a 43-yard dash, 43-yard back stroke, 100-yard breast stroke, 129-yard swim, plunge, and 172-yard relay. A handicap system was used by Coach Fowler, whereby the novices were given advantage over the men on the varsity squad. The most exciting features of the afternoon proved to be the back stroke and the relay, Motter '25 winning the former by a six-inch margin, and 1924 the latter by the same distance. Olmsted '24 swam an excellent race in the breast stroke, and although starting at scratch, came within two yards of overtaking J. R. Montgomery '22 who started with a 25 second handicap.

Following is the summary of the events in detail:

Straw Vote on Bonus

Today THE RECORD will distribute ballots at the various eating houses for a straw vote on the Bonus Bill to determine the sentiment of the student body on the question that has been attracting so much attention throughout the country at the present time. The three questions that will be asked are as follows:

1. Do you favor passage of the Bonus Bill?
2. Do you believe that the motives of the Senators and Congressmen favoring it are unworthy?
3. Were you in the service?

'Chief' Bender to Train Pitchers on Brief Visit

"Chief" Bender, former star pitcher for the Athletics, arrives in Williamstown this afternoon to lend a hand to Coach Coombs for a few days in rounding the varsity baseball players into shape. As long as he is able to remain he will have entire supervision of the pitching squad of six men which is daily working in the cage.

Practice during the past week has been confined to routine drill, changed, however, from day to day, and Coach Coombs reports that matters are progressing smoothly. Sliding, bunting, hitting, base running and fielding have occupied the entire attention of the squad. Bixby and Holmes have been on the sick list for a few days, but will soon be back at work.

DEERFIELD DOWNED BY 1925 IN CLOSE FINISH

Freshman Quintet Wins 28-27 in Spite of Visitors' Almost Constant Lead

Driving their opponents constantly to the defense, the Williams Freshman basketball team defeated a strong Deerfield Academy quintet, 28-27 in Lasell Gymnasium last Wednesday evening. Starting moderately, the play of both teams gradually gathered speed until an exciting whirlwind pace was reached before the final whistle cut short the hopes of the visitors.

Fortune favored the Deerfield team in the first half, and the Freshmen seemed to be fighting an uphill battle. The end of the period found them still three points in the rear. As the second half began, however, it was plain that the freshmen were ready to make a strong comeback, mainly in the work of Brown and Reed. Atkinson was watched more closely, and could not often break loose. In the last few moments of play, the score changed from a one-point lead for 1925 to three-point lead for Deerfield and then after a breathless gap, back to a victory by the narrowest possible margin.

Van Petersilge, right guard for Deerfield, opened scoring with a long toss, followed soon afterwards by another basket for the visiting team by Robinson, right forward and a third by Atkinson, center. Each side scored a free try, and Van Petersilge made another long one from the middle of the floor. Atkinson tossed the ball in front under the basket, adding to Deerfield's already heavy lead. Reed answered with the first basket from the floor for the yearlings. Snodgrass tossed a foul, but with this the visitor's scoring temporarily stopped. In rapid succession first Brown scored, followed by Reed, who made two fouls and one long floor shot. Atkinson tossed one from under the basket and the half closed with Deerfield in the lead, 14-11.

Shortly after the second period opened Brown jumped the ball in for Williams. Atkinson retaliated with a basket for Deerfield. Clever teamwork carried the ball to the visitors' basket where Brown scored again, almost immediately followed by Reed who tossed a long shot from mid-court. Brown shot another basket, and (Continued on Third Page.)

'Determinism' Is Subject of Talks By Prof. Proctor

Dr. Proctor chose as his subject "Determinism" for his interesting address before the Philosophical Union last Monday night at its regular meeting at 8.00 p. m. in Currier Hall Reading Room. He maintained as his proposition that "every action, and every conscious state, is determined according to scientific laws of causation."

Going on to prove this statement, Dr. Proctor said, "All this means that there is a certain uniformity in sequence of events, but it is necessary to qualify this because of some indefinable mysterious force at work. There are extensive scientific generalizations to cover everything in the universe, such as Will, and Mental Force. If we know all these things, we can predict what a certain individual is going to will."

The meeting ended with the customary discussion, which centered mainly around the question as to whether "Determinism" or "Indeterminism" predominates.

At the same time Albert Bonyng '24, of Locust Valley, Long Island, and Benjamin T. Fawcett '24, of Newton, Mass., were elected Second Assistant Managers of Hockey and Swimming respectively.

O'Brien received a majority on the first ballot. F. P. RAND '12 WRITES NEW WILLIAMS SONG

College Song Committee Requests That Music be Composed to Suit Words

Frank Prentiss Rand '12 is the writer of the winning song in the recent contest for the best song about Colonel Ephraim Williams. There had been a prevalent feeling that no adequate song had been written to express the sentiment felt for our founder, and as a result a call was made to all Williams men to obtain such words.

The College Song Committee has chosen three songs as the best of all submitted, and selected that of Mr. Rand's as superior to the others. The Committee requests that all those who wish to do so to send music for all or any of these three songs to the Williams Club, 230 Madison Avenue, New York City.

The words to the winning song are printed below, and the other two will be published in a later issue.

COLONEL EPHRAIM WILLIAMS
Into dark and hidden danger he rode on to meet the foe,
And they shot him down and left him there to die;
But the gallant man is living still, as we who love him know,
'Mid the mountains where his Purple sweeps the sky.

Chorus
And he's riding, riding, riding, as of yore,
Leading forth to combat, riding on before;
Mountain men are marching, marching, evermore,
Marching after Williams and the Purple.

All For One, One For All

The prospect of a new half-million dollar field gymnasium has ceased to be an ever-receding mirage. It is now fixed in the foreground with every prospect of becoming an immediate reality. The endowment drive to satisfy both that want and the imperative need for increased Faculty salaries has already been announced for April 18th to May 9th.

It goes without saying that the undergraduate body desires to be included in this drive. The actual amount that can be subscribed by men who are still dependent upon others is necessarily small, a mere drop in the bucket. It is the spirit of the gift that is important in this case as always. The project is an all-Williams affair. It is to be an enduring gift for the future of the College from those who have come under its influence. The students of today are no less Williams men than the students of yesterday. Their contact is even more immediate, and their response to its call will be 100% strong.

It was suggested in these columns on the occasion of the recent anniversary of the Founder's birth that more appropriate recognition should be taken of that event. The only present observance is some form of entertainment once in four years, an outgrowth of the former Jackson Dinner bequest. The three undergraduates have never witnessed this performance and it has even passed from the memory of most of the Seniors.

The College that Ephraim Williams founded is taking a long step forward this spring, a step eminently consistent with the ideals of its Founder. On April 18th Williams alumni are banqueting together in cities from Maine to California. They are planning to discuss how best they may aid their Alma Mater in the distant Berkshires. It would seem eminently fitting to include the student body in this scheme of affairs, to set forward the Jackson Dinner to April 18th of this year. Thus undergraduates might join with alumni in commemorating the spirit of Ephraim Williams, and in considering concrete plans for the furthering of his ideals in the modern day.

The Bonus Is Ever With Us

Chairman Fordney and other supporters of the Soldiers' Bonus legislation seem to have innumerable tricks up their sleeve.

As soon as one is greeted by a loud enough howl from the country it is quietly sidetracked and another substituted. At last a measure has been hit upon that seems certain to pass the House and to have some prospects of getting by the Senate, chiefly because it side-steps for the time being the question of ultimate payment.

The principle upon which the whole movement is founded, that of a monetary recompense for patriotic service, is in itself undesirable, and it is difficult to see any economic authorization for so great a national expenditure at this time. Perhaps the worst feature is the use of the bonus as a political weapon for the dominant party. To place Williams on record in this public question we look for a large response from both students and Faculty members. Attention is called to the details of the ballot printed on page one.

Thou Hypocrite!

"Where were you last night?" "Oh, I'd never tell!" This question and reply have become almost a formula around the dormitory and fraternity house of late. The precise wording may be altered, but the implication is invariably the same. Now as a matter of fact the young gentleman who is being interrogated in all probability spent a perfectly innocent evening. He may have disappeared from view by retiring at an early hour or by delving into the library until its closing moments, or even by engaging in some pursuit that is generally considered permissible although not entirely above suspicion, some such pursuit, let us say, as attendance upon a Faculty Dance. Not for one moment, however, would he admit any such accusations.

Were an Englishman, unacquainted with the habits of American college youths, to set about the task of studying the members of this species here for a brief period, he would inevitably arrive at the conclusion that they were almost one hundred per cent "bounders." If he should ask some handsome, sterling young man why the latter stepped out from the Prom floor with his girl for a few moments, instead of receiving the correct answer that the girl was under doctor's orders to take medicine at stated intervals, our English friend would be met with a wink and a dreamy expression. If he made a move toward the young gentleman's hip pocket, the latter would inevitably side step, not because a flask was reposing there, but because it seemed more dashing to intimate that he was defying the Dean and President Harding. Should the foreign investigator saunter into a college study he would probably see some worthy treatise being hastily shoved from sight. If he had entered rapidly enough to catch the criminal actually at work he would doubtless be met with the statement that the culprit had just broken all traditions and opened the incriminating volume out of curiosity to see if it were illustrated. Likewise, if our Englishman were cruel enough to corner some student within the precincts of the library and demand an explanation, the justification would surely be an expression of interest in the attractive librarian, certainly never an admission of intellectual curiosity. And so the investigation might continue, meeting with similarly evasive data on nearly every side, data that had been invariably made derogatory in studied fashion.

The danger of such an attitude is apparent. The general assumption of this aspect by the community provides an admirable cloak for the real criminal, and in time it tends by over-emphasis to warp the true standards of the community. That Williams men understand the higher values and constantly practice them is demonstrated over and over again. The student condemnation of real immorality is frequently startling in its intensity. The W. C. A. is generally swamped with student applications for some type of work involving service to others. The field is inadequate for the supply. Every fraternity house knows the spectacle of seeing upperclassmen spending many hours assisting Freshmen. The Forum, the Tuesday Lectures, and Thompson Course all draw their quotas. But rarely will the man admit that he places real value on such things.

In studying a man's actions we get at the true man. In studying his language we see but the cloak. The college man's cloak today is a very dirty scarlet; it conceals a far fairer gray beneath. He is hiding the truth not only from the world but from himself. Must we continue to seem worse bounders than we really are?

Why Not Know?

Occasions now and then arise when the average undergraduate feels keenly the inadequacy of his knowledge regarding the noteworthy events in the history of Williams. The forthcoming endowment drive serves to draw particular attention to the College.

For a limited time The Record will endeavor to point out those achievements that have brought fame to the institution under the heading, "Do You Know." Credit for much of the material used must be given to the War Memorial Endowment Fund Committee.

50 Years Ago at Williams

The new boarding-house is now to be considered a settled fact. Recent advices from the Chairman of the New York Committee, Mr. C. A. Davison, place the matter upon a firm financial basis, and insure the immediate prosecution of the work. The building is to be a fine one, costing some $10,000. The old presidential mansion is to be removed, and the new house placed at quite a remove from the road. It is one of the conditions of the New York subscriptions that good board be given the student at two dollars and a half per week.

Died, on Saturday, February 24th, while participating in a chicken shoot, six of Prof. Mike's most venerable hens. It is with feelings almost too full for utterance, that we attempt to chronicle the subsequent events. Suffice it to say, that the remains, after laying in state at the Hotel de Milo, were set upon the festive board, and when last seen were rapidly reaching that borne from which no chicken returns.

The little one-horse country road is distinguished by the petty exactions, and often overbearing brutality, of its all-important officials. We know, to our sorrow, that Williamstown is connected with the great outside world by a railroad of precisely this latter stamp.

With the beginning of the last week the Seniors began the study of the "Law of Love." Those who favor the admission of ladies to our College think it an argument for their opinion, that a study of this kind might then be capable of practical illustration.

HOW TO CREATE RADICALS

To the Editor of THE RECORD:
Sir:—I have read with great interest the communication in your issue of February 25th, signed by R. H. Case '07, and cannot refrain from making a few comments upon it, as well as on former communications that have appeared, dealing with the subject matter of your editorial "Radicals and Radicals."

It would seem to me, that were Mr. Case to have his own way, and allow only those staunch old-line protectionists and conservatives to speak here in Williamstown before the college, he would defeat his own ends. Basis for this statement will be found, if we glance for a moment at the history of universities and colleges in the world. In the sixteenth century in England, when the government was trying its best to establish firmly the Anglican Church, and stamp out all dissenters, the universities were hot-beds of Puritanism. In Russia, not long since, when the government was enforcing its autocratic rule, making its arrests, and banishing individuals quite indiscriminately to Siberia for their radical ideas and utterances, the universities were simply centers of radicalism and communism. It has always been true, that when a government is radically conservative, the class of young men who attend the universities and colleges are radically radical. The converse is true, and were the United States government today to adopt a policy of communism, or extreme liberalism, it is a fairly safe guess that the colleges would be ultra-conservative.

As a matter of fact, Williams undergraduates today, are conservative. Professors of the classes in government or politics find that the very great majority of men sitting beneath them are conservative Republicans—the descendants of the "Old Guard." However, we do not want to become narrow in our view; how are we, as college men, going to be able to make the many decisions that will come before us, or how are we going to be able to have any ideas that are worth while, if we have not been able to hear, during the educational period of our lives, both sides of important national questions? College is supposed to train us to be good citizens; will we be such if we are narrow? And how can we avoid being so, if we are allowed to hear only one side of the above mentioned questions?

The ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

offered by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston for the best answer to Mr. Edison's question, "Who Was John Hancock?" has been awarded to Leon V. Quigley, a student at the Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute. This answer, giving a correct, concise and comprehensive statement of the position occupied by John Hancock in American history, is printed below in full.

"Who Was John Hancock?"

JOHN HANCOCK was an American statesman and patriot. His signature is found on the oldest and most important documents of Massachusetts, and of the United States. He was the first signer of the Declaration of Independence and was the first Governor of Massachusetts.

John Hancock was born at Quincy, Massachusetts, in 1737. He graduated from Harvard College, and entering upon his uncle's business became a successful merchant in Boston. He gained much in social power and in wealth, being meanwhile justly popular for his integrity and ability.

He was in 1765-1770 a selectman of Boston and a member of the general court. With Samuel Adams he led the Massachusetts Whigs, and only escaped capture at Lexington and Concord by virtue of the valiant fight by the Minute Men on the "Nineteenth of April '75."

John Hancock was subsequently known in various positions: as President of the Continental Congress, as Major-General of the Massachusetts military forces, as President of the Constitutional Convention. He died at Quincy, Massachusetts, October eighth, 1793.

The historical position of John Hancock is unique in State and Nation. He wielded great political influence but was always liberal and public-spirited. His name is most prominent as a Whig leader during the American Revolution in such events as the Boston Massacre, the Boston Tea Party and the battles of Lexington and Concord.

John Hancock signed his name first to the Declaration of Independence. He thus risked his own "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness" that these privileges might be obtained for others to enjoy. To this end he "pledged his life, his fortune, and his sacred honor."

That he was popular and efficient may be judged from the fact that he was for ten years Governor of Massachusetts, being elected annually to this office by popular vote.

Basketball Team to Finish Season

evident that Amherst is finishing the season with a great deal more power than she began it.
Coach Shanahan is confident that the Purple will show even steeper playing and better teamwork than was exhibited a week ago in defeating Wesleyan 28 to 24. During the week the squad has been at a disadvantage in not having good opposition in the practice periods. The freshman team which has usually furnished this has been broken up by injuries to several of the players. The preparations for tonight's game have consisted mostly in basket practice and light scrimmaging. No changes in the line-up are to be made although it is probable that Reed, the freshman forward, will play for a part of the game.

The probable line-ups follow:
AMHERST WILLIAMS
Elliott, (Capt.) lf Wightman
Eames rf Blackmer
Lamberton c Fargo
Stewart lg Boynton
Phelps rg Wilson, (Capt.)

try teams. While at Williams he has been secretary of his class freshman year, a member of the Student Council, treasurer of the Williams Christian Association, and a member of his class football and relay teams for two years. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Humes, who was also chosen on the first ballot, prepared at the Hill School, where he was secretary of his class, a member of the Student Council, manager of baseball, and a member of the football team for three years. At Williams he has played varsity football for the past two years, was president of his class freshman year, has been a member of the Student Council and the Honor System Committee, and was on the Auxiliary Prom Committee his sophomore year. He is a member of the Sigma Phi fraternity.

Boyette prepared for Williams at the Friends' Academy in Locust Valley, where he was a member of the track team and business manager of the school paper. He is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. Fawcett prepared at the Newton High School where he was a member of the football and baseball teams, and was managing editor of the school publication. At Williams he has been on his class football team for two years, and was on the varsity squad during the past fall. He is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

F. P. Rand '12 Writes New Williams Song

As he rode into the ambush on that deadly autumn day,
With the chance of grim disaster in his mind,
Did his heart with love and longing for a moment steal away
To the dear and quiet valley left behind?

We are Ephraim Williams' men, we are the bearers of his name;
We are heirs to both his fortune and his love;
We will keep his Purple royal, and perpetuate his fame,
While the mountains stand like guardians above.

Deerfield Downed by 1925 in Close Finish

Reed a free try. Three fouls by Snodgrass, a basket each by Van Petersilge, and Snodgrass for Deerfield, and one for the Freshmen by Reed made the count 24-23, in favor of the first-year men. Another by Snodgrass and Atkinson's pretty back-hand shot turned the tables to 24-27. Reed saved the day for 1925 with a basket thrown three quarters of the court, and also a short one, leaving the score 28-27 as the final whistle sounded.
The lineups were as follows:
WILLIAMS 1925 DEERFIELD
Reed l. f. Snodgrass Brown, H. C., r. f. Robinson, Bergen
Dowling c. Atkinson
Beekwith l. g. McKay
Dunham r. g. Van Petersilge
Score: Williams 1925 28, Deerfield 27.
Goals from the floor: Reed, 6; Atkinson, Brown 5; Van Petersilge 3; Snodgrass 2; Robinson, Dowling 1. Goals from fouls: Snodgrass 5; Reed 4. Time of halves: 20 minutes. Referee: Sullivan.

the book, after which he pointed out the characteristic elements of this emerging type of novel. "In writing The Castle of Otranto, Walpole's purpose was to produce a realistic story, but he set himself to an impossible task when he tried to blend what was obviously supernatural with ordinary human nature. The precipitation of a mammoth helmet out of the sky, and figures stepping out of portraits and walking about the halls were the phenomena to which were absurdly linked the doings of persons supposedly acting rationally under these unexplainable conditions. This creaking machinery was also accompanied by elaborately concrete descriptions to such an extent that there is not place for the reader's imagination to enter in."
"From this very rudimentary stage of the Gothic novel, Mr. Maxey continued, "Anne Radcliffe pushed on to a more developed plane. The element of suspense entered here, and explanations of unusual events do not occur until several hundred pages after the curiosity of the reader has been aroused to a high pitch. But Anne Radcliffe improved on her predecessor in that she explained what seemed to be supernatural and impossible as quite commonplace and at least possible when she was at length ready to disillusion the reader."
"The new Gothicism, as represented by Algernon Blackwood, treats of the mysteries within," continued Professor Maxey. "A Psychic Invasion is an example of this novel of the mysteries of the mind, the psychic power of man. Thus the type of novel has advanced to the psychological state, and the horror of tombs, creaking chains, and hideous skeletons has been replaced by something as intense in its appeal yet humanized and more wonderful in its mystery."

Treadway Places Politics Before Postal Efficiency

In an open letter to the public addressed to J. R. Montgomery '22, Congressman Allen Treadway, representative from the Berkshire Congressional district, affirmed that the position of postmaster in Williamstown was to be filled not on merit of efficiency but on Republican party allegiance. According to the Springfield Republican, "that means no Dempsey as the next postmaster of Williamstown."
The letter has been published in the papers of Western Massachusetts and is a reply to the petitions circulated in College and sent to the Congressman, which requested that Mr. Dempsey be retained as postmaster in view of his extremely efficient services and that he should not lose

DEDICATE CLASS BOOK TO PROF. K. E. WESTON

Faculty Member Has Been Head of Art Department for Past 22 Years

In appreciation of his twenty-two years of faithful service as a member of the Faculty, the 1922 Class Book has been dedicated to Professor Karl Ephraim Weston, M. A. who at present occupies the chair of the History of Art and Civilization at Williams.

Graduating from Williams in the Class of 1896, Professor Weston spent one year abroad at the American School of Classical Studies in Rome, and returning to College, received his Master's degree in 1898. He continued his graduate work at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., and after teaching in that city for two years, was called to Williams. He was made Assistant Professor of the Romance Languages in 1904; studied in France, Italy, and Spain from then until 1906, and received his full professorship in 1911. In 1912 he was appointed Professor of the History of Art and Civilization. Professor Weston is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Gargoyles societies, and of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

No radical changes will be made in the Class Book this year from the publication as it appeared last spring. It is expected that it will be ready for distribution in the neighborhood of June first.

FEBRUARY 'GRAPHIC' FAVORABLY REVIEWED

'The Coiffure' and 'Sid Yousref' Found Especially Worthy of Critic's Praise

Courtesy of S. E. A.

There is only one infallible way of finding out whether you are growing old. When you can open a new magazine without the quickening of the pulse with which you used to tear the wrapper from the new copy of St. Nicholas or the Youth's Companion, then you are old. But no reviewer will admit that he is not young; therefore he approaches with zest and the expectation of a good time every new bit of printed matter that comes into his hands. He recognizes only one change in himself; once everything was "good," but now he is sometimes dissatisfied.

What awaits the young old reader who opens his February number of the Williams Graphic? The illustrations tell him that the college is very much alive. Men are acting and singing and running and skating and swimming—and studying. They tell him also what the President looks like when he is having a real vacation, and who is Joie's successor.

In spite of the Saturday Evening Post arrangement of material, which may make one feel when he completes page 16, for instance, that he may never find the next word, the reader learns that the editor, unlike some people, who for the sake of their families shall be nameless, is thinking and wishes others to think, even in college.

Mr. Karagheusian's Sid Yousref transports us to the Orient, the spirit of which he interprets in an effective local-color story. The East must ever be an unsolved enigma to the mind of the West. The virtue of this story, which incidentally emphasizes once more the sweet uses of that adversity known as honorable poverty is that it speaks with the assurance of actual knowledge. Why may not our students who have special knowledge of far away regions give us more interpretations of them?

Mr. McLane is a follower of Poe in his interest of romantic and picturesque ruins. Out of a chaos of form and color he has selected the materials for a clear and vivid picture.

In The Coiffure Mr. Simons has handled with restraint a Dreiseresque triangle. That the motivation would ordinarily be inadequate is accounted for by the tragic background of the Great War. The Coiffure is the kind of tragedy which human nature still makes plausible and finds interesting.

A page and a half of very creditable verse completes the number.

The reviewer has found no reason to be dissatisfied but has enjoyed it all. He will open the March number of The Graphic with the expectation of a pleasant hour.

John Spargo Will Speak Before Forum on Tuesday

John Spargo, well-known as an economist, author, and lecturer, will address the Forum next Tuesday evening at 7.45 p. m. in Jesup Hall on the subject "What Social Revolution Means." Mr. Spargo addressed the Forum in January 1921, on the problems of European reconstruction.

Mr. Spargo has spent many years studying the Socialist movement and social reform governments. At various times he has served as delegate to national and international conventions of the Socialist Party and as a member of national socialistic committees. Some of his pamphlets have gained a circulation of many millions and have placed him in the ranks of the foremost pamphleteers of the day. In 1917 Mr. Spargo resigned from the Socialist Party, and he became chairman of the National Party when it was organized in 1918. His latest work is an exhaustive study of the relations of the theories of Karl Marx and his followers to the essentials of religion.

1924 Succumbs to 1923 in Interclass Relay Finals

Taking the lead at the very start, the Junior relay team easily defeated the Sophomores in the finals of the interclass relay contest last Thursday afternoon at 4.15 on the board track, in the fast time of 3 minutes and 43 1-5 seconds. Stowers, running anchor man for 1923, finished fully a quarter of a lap ahead of Perkins, the last Sophomore runner.

Mackie, the first man to run for the Juniors, started off at a fast pace and had a lead of two yards on Mason at the second bank. He kept this lead until the third lap, when he succeeded in gaining two more yards, handing a four-yard lead to Webb, the second Junior runner. Wishard diminished the lead of the Juniors to two yards again in the second lap of his race, but Webb increased it to four.

D. O'Brien, who ran next for the losers, diminished the lead of Fassee to two yards for a short time, but Fassee increased his speed and sent Stowers off six yards ahead of Perkins, the Sophomore anchor man. Perkins ran a good race, but was easily outdistanced by Stowers.

TRIPLE MEET WON BY WESLEYAN SWIMMERS

Williams Takes Second Place and Defeats Fast Amherst Team by Scant Lead

JONES MADE 1923 CAPTAIN

Veteran Plunger Has Been Beaten Only Once in Last Two Seasons on Team

Springfield, Mar. 11.—Presenting a better showing than had been made at any time previously in the season, the Williams swimming team took second place with 24 points in the triangular meet here tonight, while Wesleyan with 23 points took first and Amherst with 22 points gained the third position. After the contest Sherman A. Jones '23, of New York City, who has captained the team through the past year, was re-elected captain for the 1923 season by the letter men taking the Springfield trip.

The final result at the conclusion of the meet was announced as a triple tie, each team having 24 points, but a protest in connection with the results of the diving gave first place in that event to Wesleyan, thus giving them the slight margin necessary for victory.

Captain Williams of Wesleyan was the individual point scorer of the meet with two first places, and Damon, the Amherst captain, with a first in the 100-yd. dash and a second in the 50-yd. dash, starred for the Purple and White aggregation. Olmsted gained six points for the Purple team, and was closely followed by Captain Jones and Kerr with five points each. Pilot of Wesleyan, with two second places the 220-yd. swim and the 100-yd. breast stroke, also scored high for the Red and Black. Williams and Wesleyan each succeeded in gaining three first places in the meet, and Amherst took two, though the number of second positions taken by the latter piled up a considerable score. The greatest surprise in the meet occurred when Williams of Wesleyan defeated Damon, Intercollegiate champion, in the 50-yd. dash, though Kerr's defeat of Pilot in the 220-yd. swim in the excellent time of 2 minutes 49 1/5 seconds, was also unexpected by the Wesleyan supporters. Jones was forced to plunge 73 1/2 feet in that event to defeat Southwick of Wesleyan, and encountered the strongest opposition he has had this year, with the exception of Bird of Dartmouth.

In the 50-yd. back stroke, Williams gained another five points for Wesleyan, and in fine form, covered the distance in 34 1/5 seconds. Warner of Amherst narrowly defeated Olmsted for the second position, and decided the meet in favor of Wesleyan. For the second time this year, the Williams relay team defeated Wesleyan by the narrow margin of one foot, and thereby gained the second position in that event, though the Amherst team had little difficulty in winning the race. Sanford swam an excellent 100-yd. dash, and succeeded in taking second, while Damon won the event in the fast time of 59 4/5 seconds, and Webb took third in the diving.

'CHIEF' BENDER AIDS BASEBALL CANDIDATES

Noted Pitcher Arrives for Three Days' Visit—Is Assisting Coach Coombs

Arriving in Williamstown last Sunday afternoon, for a three days' visit, Charles A. Bender, former star pitcher of the champion Athletics, is assisting Coach Coombs in the routine practice of the entire baseball squad and has been giving special drill to the battery men. The noted Indian is here through the courtesy of the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., of New Haven, Conn., who have been sending the pitcher to a number of colleges to assist the coaches in the training of their squads.

"Chief" Bender ranks as one of the best moundmen and all-around players that the national sport has ever produced, his extraordinary work in the box having won for him the title of "Wonder Pitcher of the Ages." He started his major league experiences with Connie Mack's Athletics in 1903, being a member with Jack Coombs of that famous group of pitchers who were so successful in winning pennants. He was with Mack for 12 years, joining Pat Moran's Phillies in 1915, and by his marvelous control aided in giving Philadelphia its first National League championship. Later he took the mound for the Baltimore Orioles.

Do You Know

That the first college gymnasium in the country was built on the Williams campus in 1827? Its equipment included some of the first bath-tubs to be installed in the country, the use of such conveniences being illegal in Boston until 1862. The second gymnasium, built in 1859, is still standing and is used as the College hose room.

Alumni of Boston Hold Annual Reunion Banquet

Speeches by President Garfield and Speaker Young of the Massachusetts House of Representatives and the election of officers featured the 55th annual reunion dinner of the Boston Williams Alumni Association held last Thursday evening at the Exchange Club, Boston. The officers elected are as follows: president, Dr. H. Grant Person '91; vice-presidents, Corwin McDowell '96, James T. Bacon '98, Dr. Lewis Perry '98; secretary, Henry W. Dwight '18; treasurer, Tracy A. Rudd '07, besides an advisory and an executive committee. Hon. William A. Burns '97, judge of the Massachusetts Superior Court, was the guest of honor, and Charles M. Davenport '01 presided as toastmaster. President Garfield spoke principally on the need of developing public leaders of college men, citing the Institute of Politics as one example of the way in which a college can help in solving world problems of the present day.

Dr. Twitchell Emphasizes Necessity of Convictions

Taking the disciple Paul as an example of steadfast faith and conviction in religion, the Rev. Joseph H. Twitchell of North Adams addressed the W. C. A. meeting Sunday evening in the Jesup Hall Auditorium. "In all times," said the speaker, "opinions are plentiful, but convictions are few."

"Paul stands out as a man of strong convictions," the speaker declared, "and therefore as a strong man. Everyone turns to the man who knows, who believes, who is convinced. Yet the man of conviction must not be confused with the bigot; the latter is interested only in the form of truth, not truth itself; the former cares for truth alone but still respects the opinions of others. He is not simply a man of opinions. Martin Luther possessed conviction of soul and could not change his belief even though in danger of death. If he had simply thought himself right, he might have been able to change; but what he knew to be right he could not change. What a man thinks is an opinion; what he believes is a conviction."

"To be a strong character, a man must have some convictions of soul. The difficulty is to develop convictions. Just as our actions are the direct result of our thoughts, just so are our thoughts the outgrowth of our deeds."

Therefore it is impossible to have strong, wholesome convictions so long as we are acting against those beliefs. As Paul lived in accordance with what he believed to be right, each of us must live as he believes right. A man should try to find some basic conviction, and live squarely by that. Gradually an expansion of convictions will come, if he really lives fairly by what he is convinced is right."

RECENT STRAW VOTE CONDEMNS BONUS BILL

Only 32 of 340 Voters in Favor of Passage—Seven of These Were in Service

81 EX-SERVICE MEN VOTE

Majority Believe That Motives of Most Proponents of Bill Are Unworthy

From the returns of the Straw Vote conducted by THE RECORD on Saturday on the Bonus Bill now pending in Congress it is evident that the sentiment of the student body is overwhelmingly opposed to the passage of the bill as it stands, for, out of 340 votes cast, only 32 favored the bill while 308 were opposed. In the second question on the ballot, concerning the motives of the Senators and Congressmen urging the Bonus Bill, 173 voters believed that the motives on the whole were unworthy, 123 thought not, and 44 refused to answer the question specifically. The third question, asking whether the voter had been in the service, received only 81 affirmative answers.

Among the men who had been in some form of service, the ballot showed the same definite opposition to allowing the Bonus Bill to pass. Only 7 showed themselves in favor of the bill while 74 were against it. Concerning the motives of the Congressmen, 41 felt that their motives were unworthy while 29 did not.

Comments on the ballots were rare. One man only registered himself as insufficiently informed to answer the first two questions. Seven mentioned that in the case of the Senators and Congressmen they felt that they could not judge these urging the bill as a whole, saying that without doubt there were some instances of unworthy motives which, however, could not be taken as a generalization. One voter commented that the funds for the bonus should be raised by a tax imposed on the sale of light wines and beer. Six men refused to answer the second question on the ground that it was unfairly stated.

The results of the ballot will be sent to Senator Lodge as the senior representative of Massachusetts in the United States.

BIG BROTHER BANQUET TO BE HELD THURSDAY

W. C. A. Will Entertain 115 Boys at Second Annual Dinner at Opera House

Under the auspices of the Boys' Work Committee of the W. C. A., the second Big Brother Banquet will be given to about 115 boys from Williamstown and the neighborhood by undergraduates of the College next Thursday evening at 6.30 at the Williamstown Opera House. It is expected that every boy of the various clubs will turn out, to judge from the success of the banquet held last year and the interest with which they are looking forward to Thursday night.

The objects of the banquet are to afford the boys of the community the opportunity of meeting the College student, to promote a more friendly feeling between the undergraduate body and the community, and to arouse greater interest in the Boys' Work department of the W. C. A. Further opportunity to take a boy to the gathering is offered to any member of the College who will hand in his name to P. Phillips '22, chairman of the committee, two dollars being charged to defray the expenses for each man and his guest.

Music and entertainment will be furnished.

BASEBALL SQUAD TO TRAIN IN DELAWARE

Athletic Council Accepts Proposal to Make Spring Quarters at University

INSIGNIA ALSO AWARDED

Mendes, Richmond, Stowers, Perkins Granted 'W's'—Hockey Team Given 'hwt's'

Definite permission was granted the Baseball Association by the Athletic Council at a meeting of that body held last Saturday afternoon in Jesup Hall, to accept the invitation extended by J. D. Bush '89, Lieutenant-Governor of the state of Delaware, to use the State University athletic grounds and equipment as spring training quarters for the varsity baseball squad. At the same time letters and insignia were awarded to the relay and hockey teams respectively, as a result of the work done in the past seasons.

Leaving Williamstown on April 5, the baseball squad, which will probably consist of 25 men, will go by special car to Newark, Del., where the University of Delaware is located. Here they will stay at a hotel, will eat at the training table of the University baseball squad, and will have free use of the showers and lockers of the gymnasium. Practice will be held twice daily, and it is expected that frequent games will be played with the University team during the afternoon drills. At the conclusion of the week of training, the team will go to New York City, where they will play Columbia University on April 12, and, after being entertained at the Williams Club that evening, will return to Williamstown on the special train. Lieut.-Gov. Bush has expressed his desire that the grounds, buildings, and equipment may be put at the disposal of the Williams team each spring, and hopes that Delaware may become the permanent training camp of the future squads.

As a result of the excellent work which has been done by the varsity relay team this winter, winning the meet against Amherst and Wesleyan, and that in the B. A. A. Games in Boston, major "W's" were awarded Mendes and Richmond '22, Stowers '23, and Perkins '24. Hockey insignia was granted the following men: Becket, Buell, Cruse (Manager), G. Dewey, Rowse '22, Clark, Humphill, Mosher (Assistant Manager), W. Richmond, W. Stephenson '23, Pressprich and J. Stephenson '24, and Lowes '25.

Select Two More Songs To Immortalize Founder

Owing to lack of space THE RECORD was unable to print in its last issue the two songs that were chosen by the Williams Song Committee as second and third in the recent contest to obtain words that would express the sentiment felt by Williams men for the founder of the College, Ephraim Williams. The Committee has made a request that music be written to suit the words, and that it be sent to the Williams Club, 291 Madison Avenue, New York City. John Barker '90 and W. A. Gibson '09 are the authors of the songs.

The songs are as follows:
COLONEL EPHRAIM WILLIAMS
We will sing the song of courage where the drum and bugle call,
For Colonel Ephraim Williams is the bravest of them all;
By the sword he teaches valor, teaches service by the pen,
And he treads the path of glory through the hearts of Williams men.
Chorus.
In the valley of desire, where the joyous vision gleams,
There Colonel Ephraim Williams wrought the college of his dreams;
And his faith shall never falter, nor his colors ever fall,
For Colonel Ephraim Williams was the bravest of them all!
By the hills he loved and guarded, where he held the western line,
The sevens of his bounty take devotion at the shrine
Of the gay and gallant sailor who has left the open sea,
Who has won the open border and has made the free school free.

AMHERST BOWS TO WILLIAMS QUINTET

Purple Closes Season With 36-28 Victory in Rough and Hard-Fought Contest

BLACKMER SCORES 28 POINTS FOR WINNERS

Williams Defensive Aily Supports Forwards as Amherst Trails From Outset

Amherst, March 11.—In a fast game during which the Purple early gained the lead and held it throughout, the Williams basketball team defeated Amherst, 36-28, this evening in the Pratt Gymnasium. Blackmer, who was the outstanding star for Williams, scored the first point of the game on a goal from the foul line and was responsible for 28 of Williams' points.

From the outset, play was exceedingly rough, and four Amherst and two Williams players were removed from the game on personal fouls. In addition to the stellar playing of Blackmer, who dropped 14 fouls in 18 tries and caged seven floor-goals, Boynton did especially commendable work for the Purple defensive, and Fargo at center played a strong game, as did Jayne who replaced him, when the former was removed from the lineup just before half-time. For Amherst, Stewart, who caged 10 fouls out of 17, and Eames, who dropped five floor-goals, were the outstanding stars. Eames also played a generally excellent and aggressive game. Lamberton, playing center, scored three goals from the floor.

Williams' main strength lay in her guarding and in the ability of the players to break away from the Amherst defensive for frequent runs down the court that resulted in tallies. Amherst guarded reasonably well, but her offensive proved clumsy in scrimmages around the basket, and many easy shots were missed because of this failing.

Within a few seconds of the opening whistle, two fouls and a neat goal by Blackmer gave a 4-0 advantage to Williams. Stewart scored next on a foul, and from then on, the scoring progressed by turns, Williams first gaining a few points, then Amherst a few, though at no time did the Purple and White come closer than within three points of Williams. Blackmer and Wilson did all of the scoring for Williams during this half, and Stewart and Lamberton caged all of Amherst's goals. The half ended with the score 17-10 in favor of Williams.

Eames scored a goal for Amherst at the beginning of the second half, but three baskets by Blackmer on personal fouls put Williams more safely ahead, 20-12. A foul goal by Stewart and two goals in quick succession by Eames brought the score to 20-17, but thereafter Williams drew steadily away from her opponents. Hyde, Wilson, and Jayne each scored a goal from the floor, and the rest of the scoring of the half for Williams was done by Blackmer. Lamberton, Stewart, Eames, and Elliott

JOHN SPARGO WILL TALK BEFORE FORUM

'What Social Revolution Means' is to be Topic of Speech by Famous Socialist

"What Social Revolution Means" will be the subject of the talk which will be given by John Spargo, the well-known socialist writer and lecturer, before the Forum at 7.45 this evening in Jesup Hall. Mr. Spargo has written many books and articles on Socialism, and last year addressed the Forum on "Europe's Reconstruction Problem."

"The most spiritually minded Socialist in America," is the way Dr. Lyman Abbott, the editor of The Outlook, characterizes Mr. Spargo, who has also been called the most powerful and effective opponent of Bolshevism in the world. "The eminent Socialist philosopher" is an acknowledged authority on Russian affairs, and in this connection Ex-President Taft says of him, "No one has written more satisfactorily on this subject; no one seems to have more accurate information concerning it."

Born in England, Mr. Spargo identified himself with the socialistic cause when only 18 years of age. Before leaving for America in 1901, he followed special courses of study along the same line at both Oxford and Cambridge Universities. Since 1901 he has been active in the socialistic circles of this country. Together with Samuel Gompers, Mr. Spargo founded the American Labor and Democracy Party in 1917. Earlier than this he was influential in the founding of the National Socialist Party, upon the executive committee of which he later served.

In 1918 Mr. Spargo was attached to the United States Committee on Public Information in Italy, and was also appointed to be a member of the Industrial Conference by President Wilson in 1919. At present Mr. Spargo is living in Bennington, Vt.

Looking to the Future

"Undecided" is all to frequently the answer given by Seniors to queries regarding future occupations. Having spent four years in college striving to forget that the real battle of existence is soon to be faced, the average man after graduation finds himself aimlessly floating downstream like a piece of driftwood with little better prospects than that of being drawn aside by some back-eddy and beached high and dry along the river of life.

The W. C. A. is striving to throw out a tow-line for the college body beginning next Sunday, and it is meant for all classes from Freshmen to Seniors inclusive. We commend for careful study the program of the Life Work Institute printed on the first page.

Complacency

Despite Socialist theories, it seems to be human nature to take pleasure in feeling slightly exclusive, "a bit of aristocratic." Williams men are heard to speak with evident self-pride of how difficult it is to enter the college that nurtured them. They speak with reminiscent awe of the four-year Latin requirement, and other bugaboos that are supposed to keep away all but the very select.

The outsider, on the other hand, is impressed with the fact that Williams is virtually the only institution in New England with an avowed passing mark as low as 50, an entering mark only 83 percent that of most other colleges. Narrow requirements may be mentioned or sliding scales at the other colleges pointed out, but the outside critic brushes them laughingly aside as minor considerations and points to the wide application of a low passing mark that affects all subjects.

According to figures compiled from recent records of entering classes, rarely more than three to five percent of any class would be excluded by raising the entering mark to 60. The eventual value to the College of this five percent, at present admitted to the community, is a very debatable question. Before the complacency we like to assume can have any real basis, it would seem at least necessary to raise our entrance grades to the level of Dartmouth, Bowdoin, Amherst, Wesleyan and many others.

Ecce Femina

Time alters relationships. In the old feudal days the male hero was the sole index of the progress of the world's civilization. His mate was still living according to his own prehistoric ideas of her sex. By the time of the French Revolution the woman had gained a thousand years or more on her lord and master but was still existing according to medieval conceptions. When Mount Holyoke College was opened in 1837 woman clearly demonstrated her intention actively to contest the race of progress with the sterner sex, and with the granting of equal suffrage by constitutional amendment in 1919 she may be said to have drawn fully abreast, in this country at least. And she shows no signs of being content there.

To bring the application closer home to men's colleges, let it be remembered that only twenty years or so ago these same colleges were quite literally occupying the honored seats of sages, while at their feet the institutions of feminine learning bowed low, over-erger to catch such fruits of wisdom and of experience as might be lowered patronizingly within their reach. Harvard's attitude toward Radcliffe is still reminiscent of that period.

Relationships to-day have been altered until they are almost reversed. It is true we smile at the Vassar Senior refusing a Phi Beta Kappa key and at other evidences of what we like to term impractical idealism, but it occurs to some to wonder why out of the vast number of men who have been elected to that Society of the Immortals, there has never been one sufficiently motivated by similar principles to refuse the coveted key. The women's colleges are setting the pace more and more in educational projects. The time may even arrive when we no longer appeal to the distant uncertain "Oxford Method," but rather maintain, as the panacea for all educational ills, the more familiar and efficacious "Smith System" or "Wellesley Way."

During the present year, to take a concrete example, our sister institution in Northampton has established a system of optional honors courses of intensive work for students of high calibre. Classes as such are virtually dispensed with, and the emphasis is laid upon the work done and not upon the place or time of parrotlike recitations. Such an experiment commands the greater interest when we turn to page sixty-one of our own College Catalogue and find there expressed a pious wish for the "establishment in due time of a system of honors courses." The exact wording has been handed down by catalogue after catalogue since that dim antiquity when the Williams College Catalogue was a very young publication. Yet where Smith attains her honors courses in comparatively short order, Williams continues piously to hope, apparently as far from the goal as ever.

An allied problem that has been disturbing the peace of many minds is that of required class attendance. Trinity is on the verge of placing regulations as to attendance in the hands of the individual professors; Harvard, after long experimentation, has hit upon a system of practically unlimited cuts for the consistently good student. The question of the number of cuts to which each student is entitled has been a source of friction at many other institutions. Here again a significant answer is made by a women's college. Vassar believes that the student is "entitled" to no cuts as such. It does, however, recognize the necessity for occasional absences and the further desirability of inculcating a sense of responsibility in the individual student in such cases. The spirit of the system of voluntary attendance upon classes, which has been in successful operation at Vassar for over a year, is well summed up in the Faculty rule that instituted the system:

"It is assumed that every student will regard attendance upon college classes, and the prompt and regular performance of general academic work, as a moral obligation; and that she will not depart from the accepted standard in such matters without due consideration in each case. In general the responsibility for all such decisions will rest with the individual student."

The consensus of opinion of the Vassar Faculty at the end of the first year is that the system is fairly satisfactory. Consequently they have recently voted its continuance during the ensuing year. There has been more cutting with attendance voluntary than there was formerly, and yet the academic standard of the college is higher. A poll of student opinions by the Vassar Miscellany News shows an overwhelming sentiment in its favor and general approbation of the heightened sense of responsibility about the campus.

Higher institutions of learning for women are thus showing the way along untrodden paths where the more conservative men's colleges have not as yet dared venture. Success in the one case cannot be predicted infallibly for the other because of the characteristic differences between the respective feminine and masculine student bodies. The former has always enjoyed the reputation of being more conscientious; the latter has doubtless freer access to automobiles and other travelling mediums. After such differences have been allowed for, an irreducible minimum of common needs still exists. The voluntary attendance that satisfies conditions at Vassar may encounter other practical difficulties at Williams that tend to destroy its effectiveness, but it seems certain that a carefully-guarded, limited application of the principle would be equally beneficial here. Such would be a system providing for the further development of individual responsibility in high-calibre students as rapidly as they show themselves capable of further development. The establishment of honors courses in connection with such a system would mark a noteworthy milestone in the history of Williams.

10 Years Ago at Williams

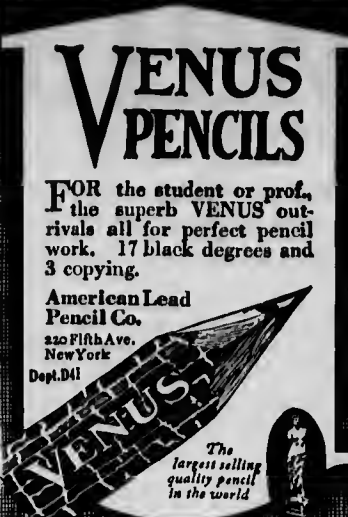

Mr. E. Gouspy, who was in town recently to coach the fencing team prior to the meet with Springfield Training School, addressed the Fencing Club last Thursday evening.

Perry '13 will have charge of the bonfire at the Burial of the Hatchet ceremonies on March 19.

Where are those canes? Suspecting sophomores, suspected freshmen, and suspicious upperclassmen all have "sure dope," and they will all tip you off if you will meet them back of Bemis' at 10.50 next Saturday night,—but meanwhile where are those canes? On the other hand, the sophomores are confident of victory. Weeks of nightly vigil around all houses from Petersburg to Zora and ceaseless guarding of every road, highway, and path between Bennington and Pittsfield have resulted in dope which is causing much anxiety in the 1915 camp. Both sides realize fully the importance of the Friday night action under the revised rules, and both are making strenuous efforts to accomplish their respective ends. Among the papers discovered by the sophomores was a letter from Bueholz of Springfield, the costumer, who had been engaged to disguise four freshmen as farmers, in order that they might stroll quietly over the limits shortly after 5 p. m. Saturday with the canes, and remain concealed until eleven.

But he's really trying out for Sales Manager

THE freshman who comes out for baseball manager and who sticks is learning a lesson which, whether or not it wins that honor for him, should win some honors in after life.

He will learn that his plugging on the diamond, his efforts four years hence to get the upper hand on his first job, and after that his striving to climb into the managerial and executive class are all part of the same game.

Now, just as ten years from now, he will have to do many things that are hard, many things that are unpleasant. The more willing he is, the more work will other men put upon him. But by that he grows.

The rewards after college are given on about the same basis as now. They go to the man who besides doing his main job well, still has the time to reach out after other work and the spirit that masters it.

Here is where this comes home to you. Don't be content with standing high in the classroom. Support your college activities and go after some campus honors too. This broadening of your interests will become a habit that in after life will prove a mighty big help.

more Federals; and he has since pitched Richmond to a Virginia League pennant and New Haven to the laurels in the Eastern League. For the last two years he has been manager of the New Haven team and was responsible for its winning the championship in 1921.

This past winter Bender has been connected with the Winchester organization which placed him in charge of the gun and ammunition department of its New Haven store and has lately handed over to him the athletic goods department as well. By the courtesy of this company several colleges have been able to avail themselves of the benefits of his coaching in their preliminary practice. Bender has accepted a position as manager of the Reading, Pa., team, a member of the International League, for the 1922 season, and is expected to continue his record as a pitcher of pennant-winning teams.

To Immortalize Founder

Where he won the frontier marches; from the college and the town,
To the last grim call of duty, still his loyal sons go down;
To the lists where honor beckons, with their faces to the day,
Firm and valiant march his soldiers where the founder leads the way.
John Barker '99.

COLONEL EPHRAIM WILLIAMS
No battle fires light now the shore of Lake George,
Where Colonel Eph' Williams laid down his brave life,
But his unconquered spirit from summit and gorge
Still bids his sons forward to battle and strife.

Chorus.
Then strike with the strength of Eph' Williams, Strike! Strike!
For God and for Country, your dearest and all,
For brave Alma Mater—for old Alma Mater,
Where the sword of Eph' Williams hangs bright in the hall.

The Chapel tower guards well the unfaltering heart
Of the Soldier and Scholar whose dust is at rest,
But his spirit stands guard with the Angels apart
Cross the seas, o'er the graves of those sons he loved best.

We've seen newly-tarnished the seepers of kings,
And the stars of the empires descend to their fall,
But where'er the song of a freeman still rings
The sword of Eph' Williams shines brightest of all.

Chorus.
Then strike with the strength of Eph' Williams, Strike! Strike!
For God and for Country, your dearest and all,
For brave Alma Mater—for old Alma Mater,
Where the sword of Eph' Williams hangs bright in the hall.

What you should know about a Fountain Pen

A FOUNTAIN PEN is nothing more or less than a writing instrument which carries its own supply of ink. It is virtually a tube containing ink, with a pen point inserted in one end of it.

The difference in efficiency between one make of fountain pen and another lies in how closely they approach perfection in controlling automatically the flow of ink from the tube to the pen point during the act of writing.

Thirty-eight years ago, Mr. L. E. Waterman invented Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen. It was the first fountain pen with a device that in scientific conception and practical application automatically controlled the flow of ink from the barrel to the point of the pen. It did this with a degree of perfection never before known and which, to the present moment, has never been equalled.

This device is the famous Waterman spoon feed and it can be found only in

BONY KNEES OF GIRLS ATTRACT MANY MAD DOGS

Several Students of Smith Brothers Brutally Bitten on St. Patrick's

DR. TITUS A. TICK ADVANCES THEORY

"Kindly Omit Knickers" Is Plea of Hamp. Health Department Droolers

Northampton, Mass., March 17—Cries of "Mad dog!" punctuated the customary celebration of Saint Patrick's Day in this city today. Vicious canines, foaming at the mouth in such a way as to put Ivory Soap to shame, pursued the affrighted populace with disastrous effect and possibly fatal consequences. Following is a list of the first-bitten:

Miss Mary Necker, student at Smith Brother's College, living at 32 Swelmont Avenue: bitten on the knee.

Miss O. Dora Noe, also student, living at 21 Screen Street: bitten on the campus. Condition critical.

Mr. Fuller Proons, Hotel Scaper, bitten on the shoulder.

Mrs. Frank N. Durnest, no home; bitten in the City Butcher shop.

All of the victims went to their homes after treatment except the two students who went to Amherst, and at a late hour tonight it was not known what they went after.

Dr. Tick Advances Theory

As head and shoulders of the local Health Department, Dr. Titus A. Tick was interviewed at his office today after the safe had been moved from in front of the door. The Republican reporter, on the spot as usual, asked Dr. Tick's explanation of the epidemic of hydrophobia that seemed bound to result from the prevalence of angry canines. "Well," said the physician, "I can't for the life of me see why any mad dogs should come to Northampton: they really must be terribly mad to do such a thing. I rather suppose that in passing through, this pack of bloodthirsty animals saw what they thought were bones, though this was highly illusory, for of course what they really

Bryn Mawr, Pa., March 17, 1922.—

"Gurgling goldfish" was the term applied to the average American flapper by the Notso Rev. He characterized the American College girl as a "mercenary mastodon," and by the time he had drooled on for his former enthusiastic

MISS ASQUICH RUNS AMUCK AND SLAMS AMERICAN GIRL

"Your girls. Look at them. They drink, every one of them. If you look in my Autobiography, pages 7-191, dealing with my girlhood, you will not find one assertion, supported by any tangible evidence, to the effect that a drop of drink stained my unstained lips. And they dance. I never did! The American College Girl, by which term I include all girls in American colleges as well as all American girls in colleges, reads Partu Diepstoff and Pakof Orphulyz instead of the invigorating and sweet-scented columns of the Woman's Own Companion or the ringing poetry of the Subway Sam. She kuits entrimps and loggings while her pure, womanly sister across the great salt divide is building up mind and muscle playing squat-tag or hunting field mice. She lugs so degraded herself as to inhale licorice water through a straw instead of over the top edge of a glass as in my England. To put it baldly, American boys are out of luck and had better come over to England, by gee, if they want a swell time. Girls of America, you will rot and turn stogy-colored before I can say Jack Robinson, if you don't cease flaunting the flask this instant."

saw were the knickerbockered limbs of the students of Smith Brothers. It's a queer thing, dogs never seem to have much sense of discrimination. I suppose where they had tried to bite some of them, the disappointment they encountered only served to make them still madder, and unless the unruly students change their habits (You'll pardon the pun) I can't say just how long this trouble is going to last. "How are you going to combat the trouble?" asked the reporter, to which the Doctor replied: "Well, the Hotel Scrapper and the Princeton Inn have offered to take all the dogs off our hands and place them on their menus, that is if we can catch them, so we have procured some clothing dummies, dressed them in knickerbockers, and sprinkled some of the gascones perfume used by students at Smith Brothers on them, and we are awaiting the results. The dummies are very realistic. I shall light it out on this front if it takes all summer, as the Chinese laundryman said when he ironed a dress shirt." When the reporter asked what the Smith girls were going to do in the meanwhile, Dr. Tick replied: "They're going to get a darned good rest from those 1,7-8-Amherst students." The interview closed here.

competitors, have only the regulation size sleeping cars and would be unable to reduce their girth sufficiently to permit them to run on the B. & M. truckage system. Educationally, the proposed plan is rapidly assuming the proportions of a coup. The railroad sokons and mogels have offered prizes to the school children of this city and the wails who are enrolled as students in the Railroad Y. M. C. A. kindergarten classes for the prettiest names they can think up for the new sleeping cars and Pullmans. Although the competition has been open for less than a month, over half a dozen names have been submitted by the clever young namesers of this city, about a score of which appeal very much to the State Railroad Board of Cognomens which is judging the contest. The winning names thos far, which will be given to the first six sleepers to make the round trip from Williamstown to North Adams to back again, are the following, in alphabetical order: "Lazare," "Aponattox Court House," "Will o' the Wisp," "Polyomyelitis," "Potiphar," "Diekerman" and "Men-nen's Malted Milk."

Saot Saickers

Mr. Hearitt Short, general sassa agent of the B. & M. line and art editor of the railroad weekly, The Boston and Main Time-Table, called up a reporter of the Republican as day broke this morning and said that it was the sentiment of the company that everything would work out all right. "And if you want my opinion," he added after the reporter had hung up the receiver, "this here is a nifty pun. It will all come out right in the end."

SPRATT OUSTS THE CLASSROOM

Williams Educator Favors Holding Recitations in Prof. Houses—Deep Plot Seen

Williamstown, March 15—Ever vigilant in the quest of the highest and the cheapest, the trustees of Williams College have been caught in league with a movement which aims to promote a stronger spirit of intimacy between students of the college and the families of the faculty by admitting failure in the antique custom of holding classes in stated classrooms and instead centering the academic life in the homes of the professors. With the first circulation of this rumor an option was taken on Hopkins Hall by Rudolph and Co., which fact seems to add strength to the matter as it is known that the company is in close touch with the trustees.

Correspondents of the Republican have found trucks and remains of numerous students in the vicinity of the home of Professor Spratt and it is believed that this home is the first rendezvous to be undertaken. Most unusual noises and rumblings like the moving of heavy furniture and the rearrangement of plumbing have been heard by neighbors of the Faculty Club, many of whom feel that preparations are being made by the inmates for a large party of guests.

Through an unmentionable source, it has leaked out that one of the forces urging the immediate adoption of the plan comes from the wives of the professors because in the fast approaching time when Williams will be consolidated, they feel that their husbands could take more interest in the course at home without the temptations which would be ever present in the classroom.

Two members of the faculty were yesterday overheard discussing who would be responsible for the damages done to their homes by members of the student body during sessions. Many plans have already been advanced for the conversion of the abandoned classrooms into places suitable for fostering the popular indoor sports. During the warm weather it is expected that the sessions will not be confined to the homes of the professors but that they will be held out of doors, that many pretty May walks will be taken, and that the lawns, the benches of Spring Street, and the bushes of Stetson Road will be verdant with scholasticism.

MAY DAY CARNIVAL ATTRACTS ATHLETES

Dartmouth Boys Invite Their Friends to Join in Happy Celebration of Spring and Warmer Things

Hangover, N. H., March 17, 1922—Plans for a May-Day Carnival were announced by the Student Clown of Dartmouth College here today. The affair is to be conducted a part of a plan tending toward "Athletics for all" that is being carried out at the local institution, and which is heartily endorsed by the Faculty.

Among the events that are to be scheduled are May-Pole dances, Drop the Handkerchief (Mixed Triplets), Kiss the Pillow, Blind Man's Buff, and similar feats that require the use of brain and brawn. The stout-hearted Dartmouth students, hardy and with muscles of iron, are entering into the project with enthusiasm, as athletically inclined students of Smith, Vassar, Harvard, Wellesley and other such schools have been invited to participate.

Fraternity chapters here are developing their teams for the various events, and information has leaked out that a well-known athletically inclined society is developing an elaborate code of signals for the Blind Man's Buff event. A great deal of the enthusiasm is attributed to the fact that at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, the Dartmouth Athletic Council voted to award a straight varsity 'D' to the members of any team representing the College that thing in any of the events. In local circles this move is not considered as detracting from the honor of receiving the insignia for other sports, as the major letter has long since passed the stage where its prestige can be ruined by anything so trivial as its award for a May-Day affair.

At almost any time of the day or night, smiling students may be seen earnestly practising the various tricks and turns of the several events in order to attain the maximum of perfection before the day of the big Carnival. The fete is to be held on the local athletic field, and in anticipation of the rush to the hangover of thousands of spectators and participants of this unique affair, the Hangover Inn, Letts Hall Inn, and similar places are increasing their capacity, story by story and quart by quart.

SEWITT BEATS HIS OWN WIFE

Town Clerk Proves Power of Rule—Is Re-elected to Office on Announcement of Feat

Bemiston, March 18—Town clerk and treasurer Sewitt, our popular anti-democratic official, beat his wife last night! Early reports this morning had it that she had suffered a complete breakdown following her defeat, but her friends have notified the Republican reporter that her condition is much improved, inasmuch as a rich uncle of hers who is a bootlegger called this noon to inquire after her health. By the overwhelming vote of 12 to 2, the present incompetent was re-elected to office in yesterday's election after a whirlwind campaign between the two opposing members of the Sewitt family. One vote was received by A. Salmon who announced

SOUTH AWCWAN BULLY CELEBRATION FOR LOCAL COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Bottle O. Beer Play Host to Children on Golden Anniversary

The second golden wedding anniversary within a month was celebrated tonight when Mr. and Mrs. Bottle O. Beer of South AWCWAN were pleasantly surprised by a large number of their children, grandchildren and friends at their homes. The party broke in upon the elderly couple early in the evening just as they were themselves celebrating in true loving embrace. After the customary congratulations, the Beers were presented with gifts suitable for a golden anniversary.

At this juncture the program was rudely interrupted by a shout from the direction of the silo, "Hold 'er Zeke, she's a rearer!" Farmer Beer rushed out to find that two of the neighbors who had come to help him celebrate, were cornered against the silo by his ferocious bull. After this disturbance, the party returned to the house, and the Beers were given an opportunity to express their gratitude and appreciation for their gifts.

Two tables of euchre, a table of flipch and a game of parcheesi were started without delay, and the fun was allowed to go on till a late hour in the night. Farmer Beer was the high scorer of the evening and received a handsomely crocheted pair of suspenders for his efforts. Mr. and Mrs. Beer have lived in South AWCWAN for the past thirty years, having spent the first twenty of their married life in Agawam. Of their ten children, eight are married and have favored their parents with a total of forty grandchildren. The other two unmarried children live at home.

GREEN RIVER RAPIDS Sad Gas Accident

Muriel Van Buren, well known round about, was the sufferer in a sad gas accident here on Thursday when, coming from a party, she struck a match to light the gas to cook the coffee to give her father for breakfast. All at once the flames embraced her both behind and before and much of her hair was singed. With unusual presence of mind she jumped through a near by window into the river and was rescued by a neighbor with a meat hook.

GABOWSKY MUST WALK STRAIGHT WAY

The sea of marital life was ruffled for the two Gabowskys last night when the master of the house, supposedly, entered at an hour later than was deemed right by the better three-quarters. Stealthily, putting his hand in the door, Gabowsky was well met with a shower of flat-irons, rolling pins, pots, pans, and other debris and he was completely out of luck for the present, for the wife laid the floor and everything else to her credit. Gab has said he would not go back to that for millions. Neighbors who saw the fray said that Gab looked like the day after tomorrow, but that the woman took it as a matter of course. Blows, bricks, and bottles were exchanged freely. "Some scrap," said the old timers who had seen every fracas they had had for years past. Gabowsky is at present awaiting his wife's displeasure in the county jail, awaiting a life-long sentence. He says it's better though.

Marriage Intentions

The following 39 people signified their intentions of taking on the permanent week for the rest of their lives (supposedly) yesterday. The reason that there is an uneven number is accounted for by the fact that the Elias Hocklesworth, age nearly 50, is still hoping and has had her laid in for the last 23 years. However the important 27 are:

Amos K. Wreckage desire Tillie B. Outlock for partnership in joyful cohabitation. Amos is a rubber in a Turkish bath and Tillie is a plumber. (Typographical error.) They expect to live at 11 Rough-house Row.

Isaac Rubenstein Goldnickel will take on Sarah Bardey McQueeney for a mean bout soon. Ike is the pawn of the town and Sally's the queen. Pretty classy combination. Hope to live at pawn shop as usual.

Another elopement filed after the deed had been done. J. M. Crazyfort went over to East Burwick Center, from there to South Burwick Center, then to Burwick, North Burwick, West Burwick, and finally to South-South-West Burwick center to get a hold of one, Mathilde Vasone, and join in the bonds of matrimony. I. M. Will live at one of the Burwicks, to be decided by drawing lots.

TWO POLES MARRIED

Pittsfield, March 17—A wooden wedding was solemnized at the Holy Jesus Church last evening when Hans Gralowsky took himself to a loving bride, Miss Lena Stupentakit. The couple was attractively attired in cambrie bathing suits, after which supper was served to those remaining within reach. Following an extensive tour of the surrounding country, the newlyweds will be at home out of town.

George George George of this city spent Thursday noon hour with his cousin Alexander Alexander Alexander North Street.

Jaake Pumpadine is spending ten cents with his brother in the county jail.

A lemon of treacherous magnitude has been sent to the city by A. Former Resident who is now in the South engaged in the manufacture of coconut shells. It is not on exhibition at the local postoffice.

PERSONALS

Will the woman who picked man out of the gutter when he was plastered last Saturday night, at the corner of 89th and Ipswich Blvd., and who later handed him a wooden boarder's communicate with John E. Walker, care of Repub as soon as possible? There may be a reward, who knows? And besides I want that liquor back that you stole.

If anyone knows of the whereabouts of one, Grinard Bearit, who is tall and has blue eyes, will he please notify Springfield 009? Oh Grinard, you must come back. The children are crying for you, and the house is getting cold. You are ruining our lives, and the kids have no one to call father. They miss you, cruel beast. I won't throw flat irons at you any more if you'll only come.

Deserted Female.

Hattie M.: My word last night was final. I can never think of being hooked up with you for life. My career is ruined. My dreams are shattered, but I will never, no never and never, change my mind. I loved you till last night, Hattie. But a woman with false teeth and a wooden leg? Never. Our lives part here, but I'm glad I found out in time. Farewell, Farewell. Enlightened but Broken Hearted.

HUBBERED DIES OF SHOCK ON DEBAUCH

Touching Sight Witnessed by Spectators—Went All Up in Air—Now Collected and Quiet

Pawall, Vt., March 18—The report is current that O. U. Hubbered died of shock this morning. The bystanders were electrified at the touching sight of his demise. His close, personal contact with those around him had always been a source of great pleasure and happiness to the countless people whom he had numbered among his friends, but now, and to relate, no longer will he press to his bosom the friends who will always remember the gripping spectacle of his shocking death. Indeed, the fact that he was on terms of the closest friendship with one D. Bird of Williamstown, who had been a frequent visitor to the world of this latter gentleman.

According to the report of Hubbered's laudatory, Wotta Bird, who was the last of his Pawall friends to see him, he and Beth embarked on the 7.11 Breakneck Steep Railway schooner for Williamstown. She declared that the two of them appeared to be in very good spirits when they left the town. Neither of them had expressed any intention of taking his life.

It was from the conductor of the 11.07 schooner, however, that the Pawall correspondent was able to obtain the gruesome details of Hubbered's shocking death and of Bird's narrow escape. When the schooner left the hill at Mud Hole, she couldn't quite make the grade—St. Peter must have been using his new violet ray machine—and the passengers were obliged to pile out and help push. Bird and Hubbered took positions at the stern and, according to the report of the conductor, were engaged in a heated argument on the question, "Harmonium, the menace of our land, and whatnot." Neither of them in the frenzy of their discussion noticed the fact that the wire that held the trolley pole in position had broken loose, short-circuiting with the high voltage feeder, and was slipping down toward the two unsuspecting and wrangling victims, carrying with it the message of death.

Following his steady approach to the bird, Mr. Next, by a deft sweep of his butterfly net, entangled it and, though feebly bitten, stuck with it, and at last won the day. The victorious hunter will return with his prize when he gets ready.

North Adams, March 17—The Ladies of the Gosh All Henlock Church will sew buttons on the fourth floor at the meeting of the brooders' Guild which will be held in the church basement tonight.

It is hoped that Bird will recover. Hubbered is at present occupying plot 23 in the Pawall cemetery.

quies Louis St. Pierre whose intimate connection with the brains of the common people will make him most fit for his calling. Mr. Pierre's studio has long been a scene of political thought, with its nightly gatherings of the important citizens of this community. M. Cheneveau has already expressed his willingness to act as aid to M. Pierre, and will arrive in town sometime in the near future.

The Wearin' of the Green
One of the greatest innovations of the Institute will be the two delegates from the Free State of Ireland. Dennis Meed, a well liked citizen of the community will give two public lectures on "Erin for the Irish" and will also contribute his thought to the discussion of the round table conference. "Boss" Murphy, the leader of Tammany Hall in Boston, the other delegate, is also expected to add much to the power of the presentation of Ireland's case. Counsli Neversen has been entrusted with the task of laying the complex problems of Russia before the Institute. He has chosen for his two round table talks, "Vodka and the Soviet," and "The Land of Peace and Contentment." Mr. Trottee who is in the country visiting relations in the East Side of New York City will act as aid to the Counsli. He is gifted with a wonderful personality, and will add a decidedly cheerful aspect to the business of the conference.

General Kelly, a well known local military figure will direct the affairs of Argentina in the Institute. His pompous figure and ease of oratory will undoubtedly lend much to the dignity of the occasion. General was one of the first great military leaders bound for the Rio, ranking alongside and well ahead of such heroic figures as Bolivar of Columbia and others.

H. A. Von Bemis, who before moving to this country was one of Germany's greatest financial experts, will present the status of his fatherland's fiscal affairs in most able fashion. Being an eminently successful merchant his words should bear much weight. Kaiser Wilhelm, at one time quite well known in Germany, will offer what little assistance he may be able to, but it is realized that he has been out of touch with things for some time, and is consequently rusty.

SENTENCE TASK IN FOR NEGLECT OF STUDENTS

Notorious Crook Found Guilty of Non-Support in Morning Session of Court

North Adams, March 17—Isaac Youre-In-The-Baris Tushin, vendor of defunct furniture and second hand underwear, appeared in the county court this morning on a charge of neglect. Found guilty of this, he was also held on a charge of non-support by Judge Lamborn G. Jenney, representing the students of Williams College.

The evidence brought against the defendant showed that due to a yellow streak in his nature, he had been intimidated by Anything For George, and as a result the students had no source of income from their old clothes. The court found Taskin guilty of the charge, and he was sent to bed for a period of thirty days. He has resolved to fight Mr. George in public duel as soon as he has served his time.

Captures Wolf-Wool Bird

North Adams, March 17—Mr. U. R. Next of this city, now touring the far east in quest of almost anything, announces in a letter to a friend in this city that he has been successful in snaking up on one of the finest specimens of the regal, lop-eared wolf-wool bird that has ever been seen. Following his steady approach to the bird, Mr. Next, by a deft sweep of his butterfly net, entangled it and, though feebly bitten, stuck with it, and at last won the day. The victorious hunter will return with his prize when he gets ready.

BRIDGE ACROSS GREEN RIVER NEEDS REPAIR

Fire Department Caucus Held to Discuss Best Measures to be Taken

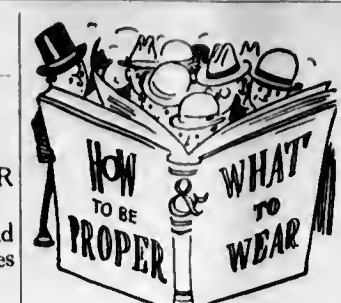

Williamstown, March 17—Persons living near the west approach to the massive bridge crossing the Old Green River have reported to the Department of Health that they have observed several times the unsafe condition of that structure. There seems to be urgent need of restricting the use of the bridge to livestock trucks only ever since the appointment of Colonel B. P. O. E. Kelly to the position of road walker between this city and North Adams.

The matter was brought before the caucus of the Fire Department at its last meeting, and the town labor squad will be placed at work repairing it as soon as the Berkshire Quadrangle Campus grass seed has been sown, and this job can spare their services. Colonel Kelly has sent a letter of appreciation to the Fire Department for their solicitation in behalf of his health and safety. "All's Quiet on The Green-ome."

The South Berkshire Christian Association will hold its annual meeting for the election of officers in the Lowell Gymnasium tomorrow night. Mrs. Frank H. Lamberiau will read a paper on "The Southeast End of a Misspent Life."

The co-ed students of Williams College presented a choral farce on the Scapin Hall Campus last evening under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. which has recently been organized at the college.

While attempting to post a notice on the town billboard last night, Dr. Buck A. Lyptus struck his finger with the hammer and broke the Ten Commandments.

THE moment you enter its doors, you are impressed with its home-like atmosphere, as well as its artistic interior. And that impression is confirmed by its attractive dining room and cafeteria, where delicious menus are served at very reasonable prices; by the perfection of its service, and the courtesy of waiters and attendants. Handsomely furnished and kept neat as a pin, its bedrooms—all with baths—are not only comfortable but inviting. The rooms at $2.75, $3 and $3.50 a day are superior to those in most hotels charging from 50 to 100 per cent. more.

The food served, both in quality and cooking, is the best that can be secured. Our chef, who was for years with the Curtis House at Lenox, is one of the best in New England. Our meats, poultry, fish, oysters, groceries, and all foodstuffs are purchased from the leading houses in their lines, and their freshness and quality are guaranteed. SPRINGSTREET, SATURDAY, MAR. 18, 1922

Boom Bonus Booze

We agree with Mr. Hearst. In the past it must be admitted that we saw us through a glass, darkly. The dollar to be extricated by a sales-tax bulked larger than the heroism of the heroes that gave their last full measure of devotion on Flanders Fields and that have not as yet received the first installment of repayment. The ninety-six million people who remained safely at home or at the college overshadowed the four million who spent their leaves in Paris.

But the events of yesterday have opened our eyes. In honoring one of the country's most glorious heroes in the person of local Oskar Drainwater, President Harding has rendered the nation a signal service by awakening Springfield to its duty. The award of the first bonus to a local lad has quickened our sensibilities to the desirability of further funds. Every dollar so collected means more prosperity for our fair street. "The path of the bonus leads but to the hook-shop" may be a truism, but let it not be forgotten that more money is thereby put into circulation in Springfield.

The poor, generally earning critics, are always with us. They ask where the money is to come from that pays for the War Celebration Bonus. It is a familiar question, one that has frequently appeared in these columns. Thus with the more pride do we hasten to point out the feasible solution that Mr. Arthur Brisbane has suggested confidentially to us. There is no sense of hesitancy on our part in doing this as we have full confidence in the ability of our readers to keep a secret.

The suggested solution falls into two compartments. First, it would be easy to simply print the currency and pay the soldiers with perfectly good money manufactured by the government at the cost of paper and printing without taxing anyone or disturbing any business. Second, it would be almost as easy and much more enjoyable all around to legalize and tax the sale of light wines and beers. Mr. Brisbane, prodded by Mr. Hearst, leans rather heavily toward the second Kill-or-Kure. The support which he will receive is doubtless pleasant to contemplate.

As for The Republican, it favors the adoption of both systems in full as being the best method of securing the delightful features of each. Furthermore, the conviction has been growing (a full twenty-three hours old) that one bonus will not be enough. The "dough"-boys who are to partake of the nation's munificence, will not spend their bonuses in riotous living. The police force will see to that. On the contrary, they will place their well-deserved funds in land holdings or Springfield enterprises of a worthy nature. The bonus, thus well invested, will finally prove to be a great economic blessing to the entire nation. Eminent members of Congress have told us so; it must be true. If a bonus to a mere 4,000,000 soldiers will thus surely prove so vast a blessing to our country, how much greater will be the economic value to the nation of a bonus to all its 100,000,000 citizens. This is the great opportunity before Congress. It is with pleasure and pride that we open their eyes to the prospect of fabulous prosperity, to the vision of innumerable bonuses of the future. Another plume is added to Springfield's cap.

The Tiberian Question

One phase of the Tiberian question was apparently disposed of yesterday when the Siamese delegation informed the Washington Conference that the Tiber river does not flow from the highlands of Tibet and that Napoleon never crossed the Alps anyway. It is thus clear that all the confusion was due to mistakes in translation, and that the question of Napoleon was simply introduced to make the problem harder.

A great step has thus been taken in promoting friendly relations between the two countries, and the Republican commends the statesmen of the American delegation for their far-sighted action in regard to the matter. With this huge problem successfully solved the Conference can now turn its attention to the next question: "Can naval disarmament be attained by moving the ocean so far from the shore that it will be impossible to launch large battleships?" The world anxiously awaits the first news in regard to the results of the conference.

The Time Is Now

The casual observer can find many things in our system of educating the young, which to be called based on fallacies is no mistake. The more careful observer is prone to be shocked by some of the goings on within the academic walls of our Commonwealth. What, for example, is the average sober, upright and godly parent to think of a system of child-rearing which dotes to crowd children into seats right next to each other, which allows only such time for recreation as is not devoted to study, and which, under the shameless guise of a paternalistic pedagogy pretends to carry the teachings of Karl Wasservogel and the pre-Marxian phylacteries free-thinkers to the yet unripened ears of our primary grade children?

That is but one phase of the dilemma which is besetting modern education. Legislative inhibitions by the score have been attempted, only to roll like ice-water from the far too pointed horns of this dilemma. In 1912, and again in 1916 and 1918, large appropriations have staggered our tax-payers, the citizenry having ungrudgingly shelled out in the former year $177.10, in the latter $505,656.55, and in the next $12.98, of which fully 90 per cent in some cases, in others as high as 70 per cent, has been devoted to bettering the schools. Can anyone see any improvement? Will the long-suffering citizenry consent to be thus duped? They can't and it won't, is our opinion.

If the children are to learn, there must be space and time. True, the poet DeValera has said, "Ye gods, annihilate both space and time, And save a nickel while we spend a dime." Let us not forget, however, that divine annihilation has thus far failed to put in an appearance, and so far from carrying out the poet's far-sighted dream, space and time are as yet an ever-present reality, so real, the philosophers tell us, that space may well be considered as an infra-mundane manifestation of time, and time as a bi-gamular classification of space. Conservative minds would do well to ponder the consequences of what might follow if nothing were done to relieve the present educational misprisions that are daily crying for relief, and we can think of no more inspiring way for a new national hero to join the ranks of our country's illustrious than by submitting for the scrutiny and approval of the national electorate one or more bills embodying the principles of a swinging judiciary for the adjudication of educational disputes and the ultimate settlement thereof.

In the meantime, our children are studying in schools fit only for juvenile instruction. Our nephews and nieces are flunking course after course merely through a constructive lack of interest. The legislature will not act, for what petty reason? God knows. The voters at the polls have the matter in their hands at last, and next November we shall see whether education is to become education or is to remain in its unspeakable present state. Vote either "Yes" or "No."

"Ignis Extinguendum Est"

Lawlessness is always distressing, but at times it becomes alarming. When criminals not only break the law with impunity but remain at freedom to mock the stern guardian of our common liberty, it is time for all good citizens to rise to their feet in righteous wrath.

Such is the challenge put to this metropolis by the recent epidemic of false alarms, which has terrorized the community, and caused good citizens of yore to turn over in their graves with anxiety for fear that the homes and possessions of their loved descendants were in danger, and then to flapjack again when the scare proved to be but the invention of malicious minds. And to think that the perpetrators of such indignities remain at large to mock all efforts at punishment. "Alas, poor York!" as Julius Caesar so nobly put it. Picture the heroic members of our splendid fire department, all twenty-three of them, or was it twenty-six, rising at the shrill call of our ever vigilant fire whistle. Stay with them as they rise from their cheery firesides, kiss their wives and children a fond farewell, and dash off in pursuit of duty. Splendid! Tragical! Keep by their side as they eagerly make for the scene of the supposed conflagration, with faces set and stern, confident that their Chief will arrive before the gleaming embers burn down to smoldering ashes. A will-o'-the-wisp chisel. Think of their chagrin as they wearily wend their way homeward to find that the coffee is cold and their wives and children have gone to the movies. Ah! brave fire department. And the instigators of the outrage walk our streets with security, unabashed by the sense of their own guilt.

Indignant, the members of the fire department have brought trial against the offenders, aided by the sterling police force of the city, always keen in the pursuit of his duty. They are right; each should have his dollar. The baby needs a new pair of shoes. Has the long arm of the law suddenly grown nerveless and weak? Can men with impunity violate it and remain in mock? "There is something rotten in the state of Denmark," as the sage Gladstone has so justly remarked.

Citizens, the time has come to rise in defense of the fireside and the home. Strike down these vipers in our midst before they do further harm. Lynching has been suggested. It is too mild. Let the police force bring the full penalty of the law to bear down upon them and crush them. Only thus can good citizens be sure that their rights will be respected. Sic semper falsarum.

NOTE OUR COMMENT

Experience talks. The statement of a general agent for enforcement of the Volstead Act that "there was one week during my investigations in New York City that I was actually afraid to light my cigaret for fear of an explosion due to the accumulation of alcohol in my system" is no mean boast. We doff our hats in envious humility.

Without intending to revive any controversy over "Grand Avenue," we would like to inquire if any of our subscribers has ever heard any of the thousands who have read it say he had finished it.

Miss Rolling Ingold, Upper Fifth Avenue, has announced her opinion that a 90 percent tax on million-dollar inheritances is unconstitutional, because, she says, "you can't legislate against the natural laws of heredity." She thereby shows she's a gold chip off the old brick, but there are plenty of eligible bachelors around who are quite willing to share her natural heredity even if they have to figure up the income tax.

The Springstreet Gala Republican wishes to acknowledge with thanks the kind assistance of Messrs. D. B. Wallace '22, K. P. Britton, and J. C. Byers '23, J. Merryweather '21, and E. P. Richardson '25.

ACENAPHTHENE

(From The Daily Printsanything)

The Principles has always made a determined stand for orthodoxy, but on the occasion of the Boris-Mugleasagain catastrophe, we find ourselves forced to uphold dimathylamin.

Even Rousseau's Doctrine of the Ultimate Purification of Nitrophenylenediamine When Found in Nature would justify this case. We would even go further than this, and put forth the proposition that in the last analysis methylanthraquinone is expedient.

In conclusion, carbonatotetramminecobaltic nightshirt (or in the vernacular, blue pajamas) is the root of the matter.

REVIEWS OF BOOKS

DOWDEE DROOLS

Saphead Shows Strenuous Socialistic Stuff

With the publication of Professor Dowdee's latest book on the "Essences of Socialism and its Relation to Homo Life," a pasture of notable verdure is opened for the consumption of all freedom lovers. Why give professors more money than ordinary plumbers is the argument supported.

From the printers it is learned that advance orders have been entered in such numbers that it is contemplated publishing the book in linen paper rolls in order to speed up its production and to make it of more actual service to the buying public. The critics of the Republican have demanded better accommodations on the pretense that the book has shown them the failure in their family life.

Among the various questions indulged in during the wanderings of the theme are the sentimental points of where would our children go if they did not follow us and how can eskimos be taught to bathe in winter. Many personal glimpses of scenes of Trojan Galters with which the author is familiar are found throughout the book. These add tenor to the harmony of the tale. Outside of the usual dramatic scenes always found in modern books, Mr. Dowdee has enclosed references of unusual worth and character, serving to guide the ordinary laborer through the maze of present day and night occupations. On the Congressional Puzzle: How to Keep the Baby Quiet?

Why not let the spirits pay for the bonus, since the bonus will pay for the spirits?

whole there is much to be gained from the use of the maxims of the author whether the reader is wife, nephew, butcher or minister. We heartily suggest it to all lovers of nature.

WHAT? BLUE LAWS?

Hoary Resident of Springfield Rebels Against Enactment of Unjust Legislation

To the Editor of the Republican:—Judge Penny and village authorities have decided that in view of the increasing immoral tendencies of the students and co-eds of the college, immediate steps must be taken to prevent the pure thirsters after knowledge that inhabit this wart on the slopes of the noble Berkshire, from taking a moral backslide that might have damaging effects on their trousers, speaking metaphorically of course. There has been much too much freedom lately—one would almost think that the college were in the United States instead of the puritanical commonwealth of Massachusetts, think the pillars of the law.

For each one of the crimes and misdemeanors listed below the committee has set a punishment varying from a maximum of twenty-five strong, severe spanks administered by Ed Gravy to three pultry twerks of the nose rendered by Gosh. There will be immediate degrees of penalties including tickles behind the ear, (Continued on Eighth Page)

'Morituri Te Salutamus'

The 1922 Board is hesitating upon the brink of an irrevocable step, upon the bourne of an after-life from which they know that they may never again return to interact or borb that all-too-patient people that comprises The Record's circulation list. For this last effort we ask not your approval, but your indulgence. There are a few who may laugh with us, more who will laugh at us; but it is our hope that the majority will permit themselves an indulgent smile in tribute to those who watch the steady, relentless snip-anip of Atropos' shears, and hold their own life-threads ready with laughter upon their lips.

With this final issue of Volume XXXV the Senior Board drops from sight like some nipped blossom or over-ripe fruit that has served its decorative purpose and now disappears, being but the product of a single year. Though the blossom, the fruit, and the leaves pass away, the tree will remain and its slow growth continue. Years of blight descend upon it at times, bringing its head low in barrenness and shame, and now and then years of extraordinary plenty arrive to bless all those who recline in its shade.

In glancing back over the twelvemonth that has gone, one hesitates to classify it as either a year of blight or a year of plenty. It partakes more of the nature of an average year, blending both good and evil. Countless opportunities for service or cooperation have arisen, only to be discerned too late. The things that have been left undone are legion; the sins of omission more than equal the sins of commission. On the other hand, the improved journalistic standards, the first issue of college rotogravure, and the assumption of the burden of the Press Club work are individual items that help to balance the books of an average year.

The College newspaper has been fortunate during the past year in seeing, in common with the student body, the material advancement of several projects that had been previously advocated in the news or editorial columns. The undergraduate body has been granted six additional chapel cuts and the privilege of selecting the hour of morning chapel; the excessive drinking evil has been mitigated; the Commons Club revived; the Sochow and Sherwood Eddy campaigns carried to successful conclusion; student self-government has taken a considerable step forward with the turning over of complete control over dances to the Student Council; and a definite drive for a vast field gymnasium is about to be launched. Cordial relations have been maintained at all times between students, alumni, and Faculty. These are some of the milestones in the annual advance of Williams, and it is with deep pleasure that The Record records them.

No one of these projects may be described as completed, nor even as largely achieved. Rank the chief task is ahead. We pass them on, to the future, with the newly-arriving problems of scholarship, class-room attendance, and the future size of Williams, to a new and competent board that will bring with them a clearer viewpoint and a freshened enthusiasm. We acknowledge gratefully the past assistance of the 1923 Board, and our wish for the future is that they may tread firmly where we have walked fearfully, that their progress may be paced in feet where ours has been measured in inches. So will The Record perform its proper function; so will Williams prosper.

Whitetail Rabbit Gets Boiled

By Thornton W. Bughouse

If you want to get well oiled
Keep it from the whole damn world.

—Whitetail Rabbit

Now Whitetail Rabbit liked orange extract even better than he did carrots. But his wife, Mrs. Rabbit, never would let him drink it. She always insisted that synthetic gin was much more invigorating and refreshing and besides she didn't like the smell of oranges around the house. But Whitetail was a very mischievous creature and he didn't give a whang-doodle what his wife thought about liquor. He and Rough and Ready Fox had often gone off on drunks together and they both liked the extract better.

So one evening when he was feeling particularly dry, he jumped right out through the window of his little house before Mrs. Rabbit could ask him to take her to the movie, an uninteresting picture, "How the Bear Lost His Tail," and ran, lippety-lop, down the road until he came to the house of his good friend, Shampu the Hare. He and Shampu were quite old pals ever since Shampu had helped him once when Farmer Brown's Boy had almost caught him trying to make off with a couple of chickens. When he came to Shampu's house he didn't dare to ring the bell because he hated like so much hot cheese with Shampu's wife. She had seen the two of them on too many bats before to trust them together. So, very, very cautiously, Whitetail stuck his pink, little nose up over the sill of the window and called to Shampu.

"Say, Shampu, old boy, let's hump off a couple of bumpers of orange extract to-night. The old woman was going to ask me to take her to the movies, but we spanked her top-sail for fair. I feel all set for a big orange jug. What say to a party?"

Now Shampu wasn't exactly a teetotaler himself so he slipped out of the window, and the two of them started out through the Green Forest for Prickly Heat Porcupine's house. Prickly was the best boot-legger in the Forest, and all the animal-folk patronized his establishment.

At last they came to Prickly Heat's house, and softly they rapped three soft raps on the door. They had to be very careful because Bowser the Boozie-Hound was policeman of the great Green Forest and he bit with his sharp teeth any one who did not obey the law of Bruin the Bear.

Very, very cautiously the door opened, and very, very slowly Prickly poked into the cold night air his long and sniffling nose. Three times Whitetail wiggled his left ear; three times he wiggled it forward, and three times he wiggled it back. Then Prickly put his paw up to his ears and wiggled what would have been his ears if he had had any. You see one can't woggle what isn't, can one? No. One can't! Turning around to see if any one was watching, Whitetail whispered, "Are you a shifter?" Slowly Prickly gave back the counter-sign, "The soup is burned."

Then Whitetail reached down in his trousers' pocket, for you see the Woodland Folk both wore clothes and transacted their business in a business-like way, and handed Prickly a Simoleonic Mazuma. In return he received a large quart bottle of Prickly's best quality orange extract.

But the wide open eyes of Hooty the owl had seen them. Now Hooty was quite a cat, literally, of course, and she liked to tell every one everything she saw, but now in the Green Forest nearly all the Folk had gone to bed or the movies, and

The Dainty, Informal Teddy, So Suggestive and Succulent

By Sunuva Gun

Every girl wants to have those dainty little underthings and unmentionables, which are so attractive and mystifying to the male race, to be made of the most enchanting materials possible. Dame Fashion decrees that the young college girl shall use those articles which prevent all itching and tickling, and therefore again the great common sense of women is manifested in their choice of suitable and useful garments. And you can get a man within a mile of you if you but show the least portion of your dainty and flimsy undies, which of course should be selected with the greatest care. They are more important than your dress.

The sketch illustrates what nilday will wear to an afternoon presentation of the season's debutante. The one delicate and charming feature of the Teddy is the fact that the shoulder straps, the great evil of the underthings of the women of today, are absolutely non-skid, and never slide down to reveal those charms which are supposed to be kept sub-rosa by all good girls. The waist is drawn in with a band of anchor hawser, to give the necessary sea-going atmosphere, and is therefore just right for the go-ahead trunk or suitcase. The borders are everywhere fluffed and spangled with green sea weed, to carry out the nautical expression, and by it the men are played for fish. A cagey step-in to step out in.

Clothing this season will be worn over the more important parts of the body—oh not what you think, my dear, but over the arms and covering the neck. Even the dance gowns will be tightly fitted and will extend from the ankles to the neck for the modern dance does not require the former freedom of movement.

Turkish toweling is being worn more and more. Its smooth, spangly surface makes it unusually appropriate for pajamas for gold diggers. In the line of underclothes, the toweling has entered into my ladies' boudoir and has replaced both lingerie and undergarments fashioned from silk. Fine Baptist in honey dew, fleck, orchid, crim-

there was no one to whom she could pass on this piece of gossip. But Hooty suddenly thought of Mrs. Rabbit. She couldn't tell her all about Whitetail's evil-doing, and she had never liked him since the time that he slipped up and put grease on her claws while she was sleeping and she hadn't been able to roost for three days after it. And you know that when an owl can't roost, it certainly is in a sad way. So the mischief-maker flew away to tell Mrs. Rabbit while Whitetail and Shampu were loping along toward the Dead Elm Road Home.

Wumpf the Weasel served them some pretzels, and oh how they did enjoy them with the extract! It made quite a tasteful mixture. For three long hours they sat there and crunched pretzels between their pointed, poignant toothies and sipped the extract through their beautiful, chapped lips. And at the end of that time you should have seen how little Whitetail's twinkling, pink nose was moving. It was twinkling, twinkling, just as Hooty the Owl says the stars twinkle on a dark, dark night. And Shampu's poor little eyes began to pop out further and further, just as old Peter Rabbit says two radishes pop out of the ground in the spring. Whitetail's paws began to tremble and quiver, and he got cold and then hot, and he didn't know whether he was sitting down there or whether that was his body that was sitting there opposite him.

"Ash-ash-chick-tansh," garbled poor, little Whitetail, "I-can't-shay-it-sho-I-shink-shat-it-time-chu-go-home!"

And then those two poor, stewed little beasts staggered toward their homes. No nice cold showers or Bromo-Salters to put them in condition!

It was late, late at night when Whitetail finally stumbled up the path leading to his home by the big sycamore. The moon had almost sunk beneath the hills. Every one had gone to sleep except Hooty and the others in her family—even Wild the Wolf had gone to bed.

If you had been walking through that particular part of the Green Forest at that particular hour of the night, you would seen only two persons awake, Mr. Whitetail Rabbit and Mrs. Whitetail Rabbit, but if you had looked behind the tree you might have seen Hooty holding one claw over her mouth trying to hold back a chortle of glee. As Mrs. Rabbit's rolling pan came down on poor, little Whitetail, you might have heard him murmur, "I-will-always-do-ash-you-shay—and-drink-sun—"

And so ends our Whitetail.

SPRINGSTREET PROUD OF BULLY THROWING AGGREGATION--AGGIES AGILE

New Coach is Snappy Making Aggies Happy

IS PUTTING STEAM INTO FARMERS' TEAM

M.A.C. Is Out to Win Every Sport It Enters In—All the Boys With Vigor New Expect to Clean Up Track and Crew.

Joy reigns supreme on the Massachusetts Aggie campus for the first time since the days of "Ironjaw" Timmer, well known in sporting circles as the baby who put M. A. C. on the M. A. P. After a century and a half of being a back number athletically speaking, the gallant little college nestled close to the soil of Amherst, Mass., is once more giving audible vent to long-suppressed championship aspirations. President Butterfingers, in his tercentennial address before the Committee on Board of the Trustees, happily sounded the key-note of the Aggie Athletic Renaissance, as follows: to wit, viz., "We (Mass. Aggies) are on the crest of the wave (Cheers) Two reasons are the reason for this (Laughter) We have a new coach. The old stage has passed. (Hisses) Yes, gentlemen, (murmurs of appreciation) we have engaged, at some expense (Cries of "Oh, no!"), Buster Kollabohn, as coach, trainer, and assistant coach for our athletic organizations during the approaching twelvemonth. I feel justified in stating . . .

practically every league championship which it is possible to gain . . . will be . . . gained this year by the glorious Cherry and Rose (Applause, for 3 min., 20 sec.) because—(Suppressed excitement) the other members of the league, Connecticut Aggies (Jeers and cat calls) and Nova Scotia Aggies (Cries of "Misschoosts, Misschoosts, Misschoosts") have seen fit to withdraw from the league. (Hullabaloo, ending in wild bellyhoo for the door.)

Radiate Bravo
Small wonder, with the Trustees behind them to a man, that the boys of M. A. C. are radiating hope and fearless courage whenever the subject of athletic prospects is broached on their campus. And small wonder Coach Kollabohn has taken hold of the little college nestling next to the soil and transformed it from a job lot of earth-tamers to a rip-roaring hotbed of sport fiends, all out for blood. The coach has published a booklet entitled "How to Do Athletics, or What Every Aggie Ought to Know," and with this as a text he has built up team after team, until now the little campus squashed close to the soil is teeming with activity.

Coach Kollabohn turned over a golden lead in Mass. Aggie sport this winter. Taking a handful of undeveloped and unshorn heavies, (Mr. Kollabohn has rather attractively small hands.—Ed. Note) he pieced them together into the best indoor football team M. A. C. has boasted in many years. Considering the fact that this is the first year the Aggies have tried the indoor gridiron pastime, their record of no defeats is a tribute to the grip perseverance of the coach as well as to the tactful handling of Manager Dumbello, who brilliantly parried every attempt on the part of a rival college to arrange a game with the Bay State farmer boys.

CREW PROSPECTS NIFTY AS EVER

Puny Purple Paddlers Pick Picture-Plutocrat Pacemaker

Williamstown, Mass.—Prospects for the varsity crew at Williams College this spring are just as bright as they ever were, if not more so, and in the preliminary races held with the Billtown H. S. and the Bennington H. S. the Purple Paddlers have shown remarkable and unprecedented error in dashing through the limpid waters of the turbulent Green River in their India-rubber shell. Tremendous speed has been developed in managing the 18 portages in the 2-mile course, and the men are positively running from point to point and back to point again.

With 16 veterans of last year's crew, which defeated 4 Indian war canoes and an Albany tug boat by a mere bend in the river in the most thrilling race ever witnessed by the two families of North Poughkeepsie, again heavily functioning in the Purple Pontoons, it is certain that Williams' greatest group of oarsmen is about to shell out. Hi Walden '000 is to stroke as usual this season, and will be followed by Dumfries '001, Col. Kelly, Mister Bates, Ensign Ensign, and Bilious Bennis, who are all expected to yield a mean mass of paddle in the Purple raft. Gertie Hickersider is the cox on the crew, being chosen for his great excellence in properly enunciating the numbers, etc. in an oratorical manner. The home canoe was christened yesterday with a large bottle of Odorono and now bears the name of Eve in honor of the late founder of the College. Gertie said with his characteristic humor, "I feel like Adam and Eve on a raft," and Walden, the stroker, replied with his characteristic readiness "s-s-s-s-s do I," whereupon the entire crew crowded so loud and long that practice had to be suspended for the day. Even this slight digression is considered no mean joke these days and Gertie was unanimously awarded a solid gold teething ring as a mark of appreciation.

On commenting about the prospects, Coach House, Yale '09, Middlebury '10, said: "I said that Kelly was the most mean form at present and that he was the only member of the dirty crew who was certainly bound for the Rio rivers in June. Kelly, however, goes in for a great deal of night work, but is always on the watch for new crew pledges. "Dumfries arrests my attention," said House, when interviewed by one of the Republicans. "and I think he is able to star all the time. Mister Bates transports everybody with his masterful stroke and has never been known to catch errands at the wrong time. Ensign Ensign is the clean-up man of the squad and should prove an invaluable asset. Bilious Bennis is a Republic and I think the new frame is going to make those Indians look brown with envy. Hickersider is just the youngster I have been looking for, as he has the personality to make the men fight for dear old Williams." So saying House bowed out.

The age is not virile. No longer do real cave-men jump around from rock to rock, and back to rock, and back to rock again. SALOME HEADHOLD WINS FOR VASSAR

Paradise Park Witnesses Defeat of the Wesleyan Gripsmen

Vassar handily defeated the Green and Yellow wrestling team in the handicap bouts staged tonight in Paradise Park, a neutral ground being picked to assure fairness to all the contestants. The meet was neck and neck until the last bout when the Vassarite secured a Salome headhold and doused her opponent.

Overlooking the magnificent Paradise Pond, the nature's noblemen from Wesleyan clad in their symbolic suits waited patiently for the stalwart denizens of Cold Diggings Gulch. As the blessed dannels strode upon the scene, a gasp of surprise and admiration went up from the assembled multitude. The apparel of the latter team was short and easy to describe, consisting of a "petting sweater" worn loosely but gracefully over a one-piece bathing suit. It had been expected that evening dresses would be worn but the evening was so cold as to necessitate more clothing.

The evening started off well for the Middletown wrestlers when Neck of the Green and Yellow squad flopped Hope U. Gertill from Vassar in 15 minutes 0 1/2 seconds with three allusions to the moon and a simple shoulder hold. He seemed glad to go. The next bout was fast and furious, both obtaining temporary advantages. The Wesleyan benchman early took the lead with a touching remark on the fullness of lips but the Vassarite countered on the weather. The Vassar wrestler then secured a Cleopatra-snapho lady lock with a Helen head hold and won the fall easily.

The cheers doubled, the shouting increased as Ira Quest the Middletown captain, faced Lotta Skill of Poughkeepsie in the deciding match of the evening. Both were out for blood and the honor of the dear old college—for at home it was W. W. week and the Old Cider Mill was empty. The Wesleyan gripsman missed a rolling fall and was caught in a tweek from which he extricated himself with difficulty. Cries of "Go get it" arose on either side and the combatants straightened up for the final encounter. Both the Green and Yellow man let everything slip and fell in to a Salome hold which spelled him doom. As he fell, he shouted, "He-ll." He will be seen at Vassar next weekend.

GARFIELD GASSERS GASP TO VICTORY

Defeat Howse Housers by Terrific Tally—B. V. D. Is Quite S. O. L.

North Adams, March 12—Defeating the Howse Housers by a 13 to 12 1/2 score this evening, the Garfield Gas Works again rose into first place in the North Adams Industrial Basketball Series. This victory clinches the hold of the Gasmen on the coveted prize that is to be awarded to the champions in the series, namely, to wit, one barrel of Shady Jewell's best-quality XXX. The hard-fighting Howse Housers are virtually eliminated by this defeat from the race, falling into the bone-pile along with the Wetmore Blankets Co., the Pi Pi Bakers, the Goodrich Cheese Co., and the Shephard Mattresses, who have all been doused at least once.

The game was marred by one unseemly incident that changed the outcome of the entire contest. The referee, St. Walden of Williamstown, the only man who would accept the position, did not credit the Housers with a basket that they shot toward the beginning of the second half. Walden was observing the antics of Miss Lotta Legge of Buggs, Cona, who was endeavoring to clamber into her seat in the bleachers, and bumped into one of the posts in his excitement, completely failing to observe B. V. Dickerman, the star forward of the Housers, neatly drop the orb into the circumference from his concealed position in the upper gallery where he had secreted himself at the beginning of the period.

WANAMAKER HITT REFUSES HIS "W"

Captain Says He Doesn't Want Same Letter As Wesleyan Wears

Williamstown, Mass., March 17—The local college community was shaken to the roots of its spine yesterday by an announcement from Prof. R. Spaniels Wild, chairman of the faculty committee on athletics, that I. Wanamaker Hitt, 1922, had refused the award of the varsity "W" offered him for his services as captain and manager of the Williams College volleyball team during the past season. "Incompatibility," was the modest explanation proffered by the youthful Purple star, for he has just rounded out his 13th birthday. "I just couldn't see it that way," he replied to the questioning glances of the Republican reporter.

Faculty Pot-Pourri Places Ancient Opponents In Pickle

All precedent was entirely shattered when a spectator was present at the Williams-Amherst-Wesleyan Faculty Bowling League Meet, last Monday night, but rumor has it that he was a professional, and was not there for his health. Far and wide could be heard the shouts of joy by the victorious Williams team when Professor Drooper with a long graceful stroke of his right arm sent flying three pins and so brought the winners team total up to 23 (League record—former record 22 1/2). Composed of such sterling men as Tee Iffe Smith, Drooper, Ryce, and Beaver Poor, and O. Howghe Long serving as first, varsity substitute, the big Purple team easily overcame its insignificant opponents. Unusual excitement occurred during the meet when Dr. Favor of Wesleyan magnanimously accused Beaver of throwing him off his balance by whistling when he was about to bowl, but the commotion was immediately quieted when our own Prof. Ryce stepped forward, and in his deep and sonorous voice demanded that Dr. Favor give an account of his unseemly actions at once, and that if he didn't that he (Ryce) would deal firmly with him.

WU-WU-WU-WALDEN HEADS RINGER '5

Local Lads Look Like Live Lot—Speedy Shooters So Swift That They Tramp Over Opponents

The rising sun of basketball at the Springstreet Young Men's Illum Association College is redder than ever this year, and the quintet, which is so fast that it is burning up the gym floor at all occasions, should prove a great deal before the last of the two games to be played this season. The squad is being coached by the eminent naturalist and sportsman, Iram Basketball, and the system employed by him is summed up in the few words "If you can't make a basket, at least you can pick the other team in the will still have strong physical advertisements."

Speed is the word that best represents the true merits of the fast and scintillating quintet. They fairly twinkle down the floor, from goal to goal, and their acrobatic is astounding. The coach says "I've got the greatest bunch of spitoon litters in the state of Mass. and they can't miss a basket. They're all foul enough to do anything possible with that department of the game." Iram, Iram Strongheart, head of the great virile and manly institution, is highly satisfied with the work already done, and looks for a very successful season. "If you can kill them dirty Amhurst devils," he was heard to enthusiastically remark at a meeting of the faculty in the swimming pool, "I shall feel that the virility of our students is in good, and I shall know that the Illum Ass's will still have strong physical advertisements."

Capt. Wu-Wu-Walden, in the center of the grotesque group above, is easily the finest basketballer on the team. He is a ringer of the first order, and rings goals at every turn. This year, the game already played this year, with the South Hampton Athlete's Club, Capt. Wu-Wu-Walden has been most affectionately named by his fellow play-baskets, secured eight of the ten fouls, called for holding at the wrong time, but again easily rose to the occasion and under the circumstances played a stellar game. The referee, almost lost time out to get his wind and other things, he found great difficulty in saying the "It" in "Time out." Needless to say this was a grave error, but the brainy brain-work of the other ringers saved the soup, speaking, homogeneously.

Saint Peter, the referee, who has recently come over from France to be one of the notorious Springstreet Ringers, and who was once almost the clump of a gang over there, is nearly as much of a stanger as the Cap. This big fellow is a clipper, and he cuts right through the other lines like a free ringer and whack. He is undoubtedly the most barbarous man on the quintet, but though he has close shaves, he never gets cut up about anything in the game.

The next player in the stunning etching is the one and only ever notorious Rubnlekers '12, who came over the way from ancient Hebray to free ringer and whack fellows with false fashions and fundiddles. He owns half the town, the worst half, but he certainly shoots a mean ball when he gets free. He is the guard on the team, and since he is naturally careful and particular about guarding the darts and shesheks, he is supposed to be the great demon dirty dragon on the quintet. Whenever he is guarding a man he presses closely behind him, and never lets anything get away from him. Hairy Wart, the black hope of the quintet, is particularly good at getting out of tight places, and can cut the sandwich in between two players and take the ball as usual. He invariably runs down the floor at top speed, crying "Sandwich Man, Sandwich Man," in varying tones, and dashes into the fray with an increased touch of local color. There is something dark and sinister about Hairy, and the other teams don't like it. He gets 'em though, and hands out a mean mass of fish at all times. Ignatius L. Torredore, the distinguished looking Illum on the right of the Cap. Wu-Wu-Walden is a native of Ireland or some place similar to that point, and is the star ringer of them all.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarettey aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.

SPRINGSTREET YOUTH DISPLAYS NEW STYLE BAT

C. H. Apin Uses Steel Racket to Oppose the Opposing Opposition

The new all steel, semi-conversible tennis racket was introduced for the first time on Springfield courts by C. H. Apin, the local college. The local wielder is among the leading collegiate tennis of the state and Springfield is proud to have such a name on the roster of her illustrious sons and daughters.

The new racket is described by the hope of Springfield as revolutionary in the science of the game. Its solid construction will stop the playful custom of lightly tapping friends on the head. The racket will be heavier on the balls and it is suggested by the local lad that croquet balls be substituted for the normal ones.
The only fault is that they won't bounce but since they satisfy every other requirement, our local swifter favors them.

The Williams College lad was recently in town and played the new Y. M. H. A. courts which he described as far superior to any he had ever formerly played.
After executing several masterful strokes,
the local star produced his serve, demonstrating the latest "belly run blow." It is a sweeping, rancorous cut serve, full of curve and verve and worthy of our local lad. Its great value may be derived from the fact that not once did the opponent of the tennis return it. Not once did it hit in the opposing court and there was no opponent. Our local boy is certainly a source of pride and joy for his home town and Springfield wishes success this season to our promising localist.

WHAT? BLUE LAWS?

giggles in the air, range on the functione, message of the soles of the feet, and chuckings of the chin. All executions will be made by Walleyed Driggs.

Following is the list of heinous crimes:
Don't wear "sissy" moustaches—use a moulin when drinking soup. (This applies to men only.)
Don't swear in public unless you mean it.
Don't smoke cigarettes unless you can perform at least three parlor tricks with them.

Don't spoon in an automobile unless you're with a member of the opposite sex.
Don't decorate your dormitory rooms with obscene pictures—reserve for the real men of action.

Don't roller skate in front of the Post Office.
Don't sit on the curb in Springfield—your feet will be an obstruction to the traffic.

It is with considerable feelings of regret that the people of this community behold the rash emotions of Judge Penny and his associates breaking out in so virulent a form as a set of arbitrary rules such as would have been thought to exceed the bounds of autonomy, by even the kingdom people of centuries past. It is too much; it is more than we expected! A set of indigo-tinted laws for Williamstown? Fool! Graduate! Fellow-citizens, Whoo! Fool! Graduate! Fellow-citizens, our democratic impulses strangle us. It is the command of a tyrant that prohibits a man wearing a "sissy" moustache. Any prospective American citizen successful enough to afford the waste of the soup that must necessarily be absorbed by the moustache, is entitled to permit his latent growth to become saturated with nourishing soup.
It is a matter of expediency. If he were suddenly isolated from civilization and in dire need of assistance, he might fall back upon his moustache, and thus save himself from immediate starvation, sucking the soup-laden hairs of his sub-nasal decoration. Citizens, let us think twice, ere we commit ourselves to these atrocious rules

'Shifters' Tantalizing Exponents of Morality

Latest Collegiate Activity Attacks Very Roots of Family Life—World Famous Colleges Contaminated—
Through Influence of Organization—Some Noted Educators Predict Dire Consequences—Williams
Chapter Offers Rendezvous in Greylock Hotel

From Our Special Reporter

That occult, recondite, and unfathomable organization of students in American colleges and universities known as the "Shifters" is spreading with such incalculable and unexpected rapidity as to evoke from educators in some of the more prominent institutions of the land expressions of dire disgust and disdain.
President Hornsey of Middlebury College is quoted as having expressed his opinion of the "Shifters" in the following terms—
"They're an unwholesome, exclusive set of smart-alecks, and they're kicking up a terrible squalor here at Middlebury," while Professor Huck L. Berry, of the Village and Drama Department, of the Massachusetts Sagittar College, though himself a member of the Who Keeper Upelone frat, maintains that this organization is deleterious to the air of spiritual and moral uplift upon which that institution prides itself.

The secrecy and concealment with which each "Shifter" shrouds the mysteries of his order has rendered very difficult the work of the Republican reporter seeking information regarding the origin, aim, and organization of the society, but nevertheless, nothing daunted, our Mr.
Flatfoot has succeeded in possessing himself with accurate and reliable information.
It is with the hope of assisting the educators of the land to quell this revolution of students that the Republican now lays before the reading public the facts of the case.

So far as can be determined, the society owes its origin to one Knott Penfield, student in the Bacteria and Tonsorial Department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The "Shifters" spread rapidly and now all the preferable colleges and universities of the east and west, and the Republicans, have been favored with chapters. Among these are Sooty College of New York, U. of Vermont, Amherst, Touche, Rosenbaum's Tutoring School, Rutgers University, Williams, Connecticut College, for Women, Columbia, Brown, and Hunter College, Even Yale, Smith, and the Universities of Cuba and Bermuda have been favored with chapters. In spite of the fact that the "Shifters" has a fabulous number of chapters, membership in these seems to be unnecessarily snobbish and exclusive. Only those who have attained the greatest honors and the highest positions of popularity among their fellow students are allowed to join, and this exclusiveness is one of the principal reasons why educators of the land are making phenomenal efforts to stop the movement.
The carefully selected and highly honored few who have been chosen for membership in these many chapters have gained formal admittance to the order only by the performance of most irregular and inordinate duties. Some are required to perform spooky feats at the gruesome hour of midnight, some are required to dispatch telegrams of questionable importance to friends in other institutions, some are bitten upon with fennelish brutality, while in one case, a man was even compelled to sit for a solid hour with a grapefruit balanced upon his head. But these cases are extreme, most candidates being taken in with less severity, but in every instance impressive and awe-inspiring ritual must be performed before a candidate is given the date. Also, before he is given the date (for which the Indestructible Trunk and Baggage Company have the contract), the candidate must take several vows of secrecy to the order.

Obviously the "Shifters" has come to be a source of great concern to the educational world.

Position by Vote of Team
Last Wednesday

IS HIGH SCORER OF SEASON
Captain-Elect Scored 40 Baskets and 100 Fouls in Season of Eleven Games

After R. Blackmer, 24, of Oak Park, 111., was elected to captain next year's basketball team at a meeting of the varsity squad in Jessup Hall last Wednesday evening, the total 292 points scored by the team during the past season of 11 games, the newly elected captain, at right forward, was responsible for 108.
Blackmer, who was captain of the freshman team last year and who later played as the varsity, has been the chief scoring player of the team for two seasons. His massive shooting ability and his consistent work in all other parts of the game have made him the most valuable man on the team. Of the 108 points scored by him last season, 86 were made by field baskets and the remaining by shooting 100 fouls out of 150 tries.

Before coming to Williams, Blackmer attended Oak Park High School where he played basketball for four years, being captain his senior year. In Williams, he has been a member of the Y. M. C. A.
and has been in the college tennis tournaments. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Kenneth P. Britton '23, of Hartford, the board held last Tuesday evening in Jessup Hall. At the same time, George A.

Hurley '23 of Brooklyn, N. Y., was chosen

ing Editor for the coming year.

Britton, prepared for Williams at the dramatic club and also of the band of the school. He was a member of the Purple Cow

Slight Psi Upsilon Fire Caused By Flying Sparks
Sparks from a grate fire falling on the shingles of the Psi Upsilon house on Park Street last Sunday afternoon started a fire which did considerable damage to the roof in addition to the damage done to the upper story by water. Quick work by the members of the house and the college fire brigade prevented further dis-truction.

Flames on the roof were discovered about 3:30 p. m. by members of the ward's family who gave the alarm. Working with the extinguishers, the men in the house prevented the spread of the flames until the chemical engine arrived with members of the college fire brigade.
The blaze was quickly put under control and in half an hour was completely extinguished, partly due to the absence of a high wind. Two large holes in the roof and a partial gutting of the third floor comprise the loss, which is covered by insurance.

SECOND BIG BROTHER BANQUET IS SUCCESS
More Than 100 Boys Entertained as Guests of Student Body
Last Thursday

More than 100 boys of Williamstown and the vicinity were entertained as guests of college students at the second annual "Big Brother Banquet" held at the Williams-town Opera House last Thursday evening. Arrangements for the banquet were in charge of the Boys' Work Committee of the W. C. A., and in addition to the dinner, a program of music and speeches was presented.
Dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. under the direction of Mr. Harry Hart, caterer.
An orchestra composed of R. Buck, L.
Buckner, J. Buckner, Greer, Swan '21,
C. Fisher, Schaeffer, and Wells '25 provided music for the evening, and a quartet consisting of Brigham '22, Holmes and Stephenson '23, and Craig '24 rendered several vocal selections between courses.
Holmes and Craig also presented individual numbers which were enthusiastically received.

At the conclusion of the banquet, Secretary '22, the toastmaster of the evening, introduced J. E. Wilson '22, who spoke for a long time on "Athletics." He was followed by a speech of appreciation by Frederick Stark, a member of one of the Boy's Clubs. William Seaborn, who is at present organizing a band among the boys, was the final speaker of the evening. He described the organization of the band and outlined its plans for the coming year. A song for the boys of the W. C. A. is being for the boys of the community, and the spirit of cooperation shown by the college body.
The banquet was concluded with the singing of The Williams.

JOHN SPARGO SPEAKS

Noted Economist Declares Social-

Before Forum

Declaring that "Socialism will not be a question of great importance within our lifetime as it presupposes a democratic condition that cannot come into existence for a long time," John Spargo, noted economist, author, and lecturer, addressed the Williams Forum last Tuesday evening in the Jessup Hall Auditorium on the subject, "What Social Revolution Means."
The speaker, in spite of his resignation from the Socialist party in 1917 because his colleagues favored the Central Powers, still considers himself a Socialist.
"Socialism," said Mr. Spargo, "requires a sound national and political basis, government, and there is at present no basis in the world where the Socialists would have, if in control, to put their ideas into active practice. For that reason in the unsettled conditions found everywhere today, Socialism will be impossible for a long time."

"Likewise a social revolution cannot be contemplated by anyone who sees a democratic ideal approaching. Either we must think that the reign of industry will be given by the wish of the people to the people, or else that there will come a struggle between the possessors and those who desire possession. If industrial machinery becomes the object of controlling

Humanity in Business, Individual Talents, and Character of Career Stressed
SIX VOCATIONS TO BE PRESENTED THIS WEEK
Prominent Men Will Lecture Upon Opportunities in Different Forms of Work

With the statement that "human kindness, consideration to the body, and the granting of full respect to personality bring a success more enduring than profits on the ledger" as the basic principle to be considered in the selection and performance of a suitable vocation, President H.
A. Garfield opened the Life-Work Institute last Sunday evening in Jessup Hall, presenting the initial lecture on "Values to be Considered in Choosing a Career."

Pres. Garfield emphasized the fact that high fundamentals even the foundations of every sort of life-work, and that a direct disregard of these essential principles must impair the selection of the general field of life activity to be entered upon.
The first value or standard to be established by the speaker was that of the nature and character of the thing which a person is to do. Is a man to be a parasite, a living being on a community, or is he to be independent, constructive, and productive? "The only possible alternative to this," said Pres. Garfield, "is to consider the total return and not the immediate advantages; and by this action, to realize that a useful service with an self-interest is the only possible means of preventing an egoistic vocation. A man is considered a success who has given his powers and energy to helping a given community by an advantageous service.
This service is not necessarily utilitarian; and the type of life-work, whether altruistic or otherwise, is one of the fundamental standards upon which a selection should be based, since it determines to a large degree our usefulness and value to the community in which we live.
